The Telegraph

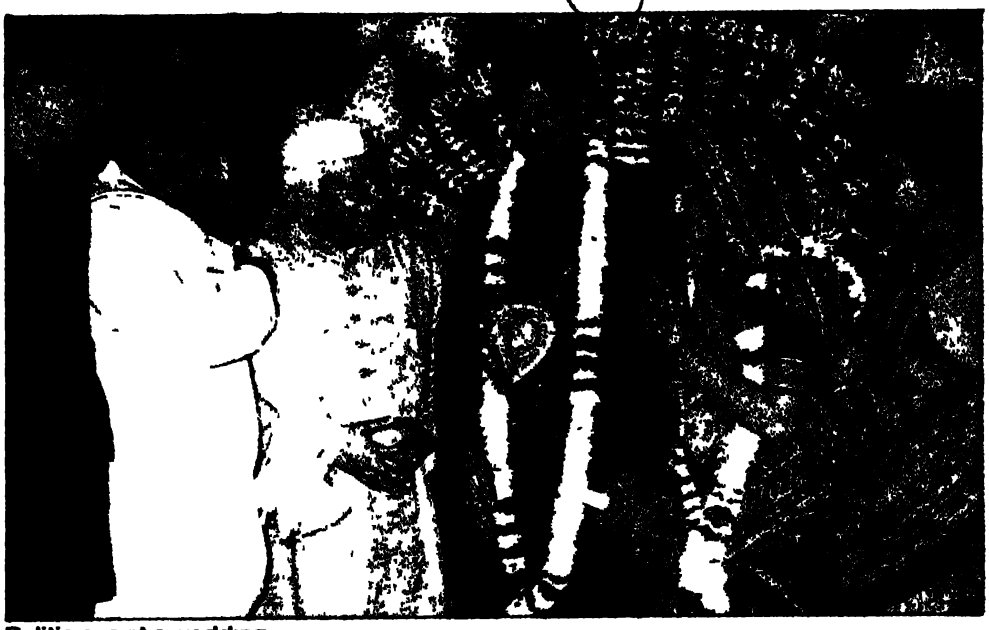
POST MORTEM

Crazy Ways of the Rich

■ 'The Colour of Money' (December 4) was one of the most outrageous articles I've ever read in the Magazine.

A bunch of filthy rich, pseudo-gentlemen is carrying snobbery to the lowest levels of perversity for the sole purpose of grabbing headlines

What is appalling is to see the media giving publicity to such affairs instead of criticising them



And we are being reminded every day that even after 10 years of its occurrence, the victims of the Bhopal gas leak — the majority of them crippled for life — are yet to receive a penny of the compensation which is rightfully due to them

Neelanjan Bhattacharyya, Calcutta

■ When nearly 40 per cent of the country's population is still living below the poverty line and leading a hand-to-mouth existence, the rich choose to spend lakhs on weddings

The colour of money is different for different people For the poor it is the basis of their very survival; the means to buy their daily bread For the rich it is a medium of giving vent to their rapacious feelings

Phel S Girdis

Politicians at a wedding

Marriage is actually a union of two individuals, two minds Instead of spending such astronomical amounts on a single wedding, rich parents should offer financial assistance to parents who cannot afford to get their children married

The government also has to play a role in curbing wedding expenses of the rich Ministers and politicians — often guests of honour at such functions — should shun marriages where there is a crass display of wealth

Santosh Kumar Sharma, Kharagpur

■ The cover story showed how crazy and callous the ultra rich can be in order to flaunt their wealth and supremacy The opulence which is exhibited at the time of weddings and other social functions is, to say the least, disgusting

Debabrata Mohanty, Balasore

■ The Magazine seems to be obsessed with the rich and the fashionable The latest was the story of how the rich spent Rs 15 to 20 lakh for a wedding reception and Rs 14 lakh on floral decoration The marriage aboard an Air India Airbus was an instance of childish extravaganza

Why should the Magazine give so much exposure to the crazy desires of the rich?

Sunil Banerjee, Calcutta

PAGE 4

IF KALPNATH RAI shot into prominence in 1994 for the sugar scam, another Rai (we all know who) spelt sugar for the countrymen, too A laid-back look at the year that's just faded

PAGE 10

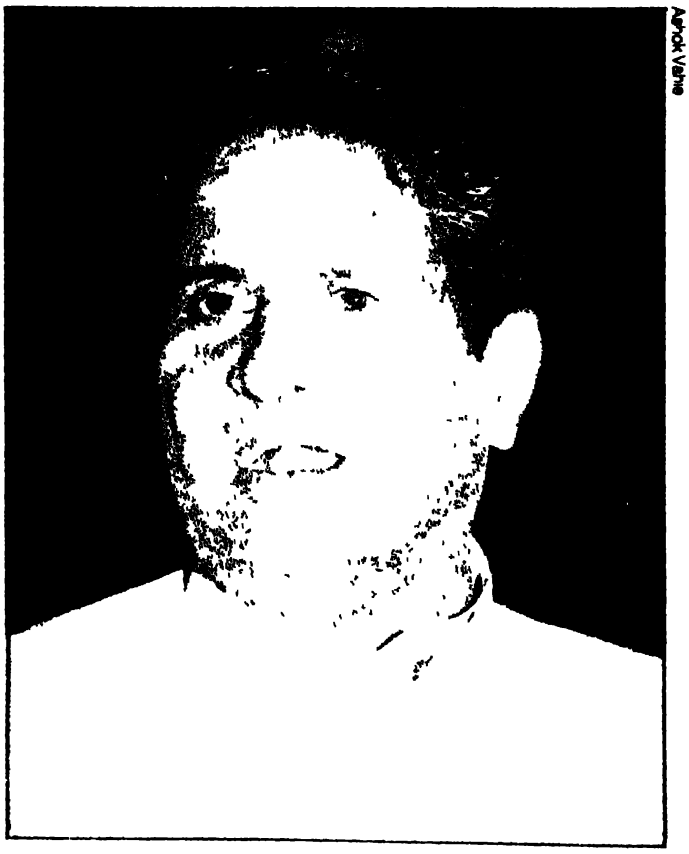
AND THE Magazine also wishes a happy new year to every important, though lesser known, Indians

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
18 MANEKA GANDHI
20 RUSKIN BOND
26 LIFESTYLE
27 IN
28 RASOI
30 FIRST PERSON

Cover Kalpnath Rai by Pankaj Sharma, Aishwarya Rai by Gautam Patole

Uttarpara Jaykrishna Public Li...
Acc No 2/1391



COVER STORY

The Year of the RAI

Anurag Mathur sends a darting eye over the year that was*

BASICALLY, IT WAS A YEAR OF TRIUMPHS FOR INDIAN FIGURES FISCAL AND FEMININE. THE emergence of the modern Indian woman on the international stage was, of course, heralded by Sushmita Sen. But what made the debut unprecedented was the crowning of Aishwarya Rai in the same year.

Kalpnath Rai: Presence of mind

Ashok Vaishnav

An architecture student, it seems safe to predict that Ms Rai will be responsible for many memorable erections in the years to come. But despite the criticisms of the competitions, both women came across as intelligent, warm and presentable symbols of India.

Such events, with the focus of the world on them, are really diplomacy by other means and the IFS can't exactly excel in them. For instance, few foreign secretaries would score well in the swimsuit competition.

The fiscal element was, of course, much more serious and substantial and to those attuned to such matters, even more exciting than the beauty pageant successes. The liberalisation process has been extensive without the upheavals that have often characterised other countries that tried the same thing.

Foreign investment has risen sharply, much more seems poised to flow in, foreign exchange reserves are soaring, inflation nevertheless is in more or less single digits and Indian industry after the initial wails has found, possibly to its own surprise, that it can fight back and compete.

A few companies have been swept away admittedly, but the others have rapidly readjusted. Even the public sector units, hitherto immobile like ice-age pachyderms, frozen fore-

Gautam

Aishwarya Rai: Warm and intelligent s, hol of India

ASHOK VAIRNE

P.V. Narasimha Rao Pouting pretty

ver, are starting to twitch and it is now clear that they will shortly be frisking about like rhinos in love

Overall, so far, this has been the most impressive economic performance by any post-Independence government There is much more to be done, more areas to be opened up, some form of an exit policy devised, subsidies to be reduced, the financial commitment to be converted into actual investments, but the pattern and the pacing have been established

After that will come the equally tough part of directly attacking poverty, spreading health care and educational facilities, infusing quality into these and all other aspects of civic life and, hardest of all, removing the government from the areas where it is unable to perform, or where others can do a better job

If the last year is any indication, the government will actually do all of this — which so far it has managed with an almost insolent effortlessness — and the next 10 years will see India change as much as it has, quite literally, in the previous 100.

An example of how the government plans to function in the future is the case of Doordarshan The satellite invasion found DD internally convulsed and outwardly catatonic

Instead of violently banning the channels which would have been the exactly wrong thing to do, the government decided to compete They placed just about a handful of exceptional people in critical positions and these people in turn effected a marriage between the private sector's software and DD's hardware

Enter DD2, exit satellite threat Naturally, the government wouldn't be the government if they didn't indulge initially in some masti in the form of first-come-first-served and other such mortifying schemes

In this, our government shows a keen appreciation of the fact that an important part of its role is to serve as the object of vile abuses from its people What the citizens call saali sirkar and which makes everyone feel quite pleased

A similar sample of silliness as policy is the delightful case of DD3 Nobody knows whether it is alive or dead or whether it even existed outside of a few fevered imaginations On the other hand, by the time this appears in print, it may well have sprung to life, gurgling and chuckling and full of beans As people say frequently about the saali sirkar, "Who knows yaar "

Then, of course, there was the famous plague Initially, when the foreign media began baying about this dreadful disease and claimed that it was caused by rats, people thought they were being mean again about our

Kalpnath Rai handled himself so cutely that he now no doubt believes he should have been sent to Sun City instead of that imposter. After all, the difference between an A. Rai and a K. Rai is hardly a few letters, and for all he knows, there may well be some sort of facial resemblance, too beloved politicians

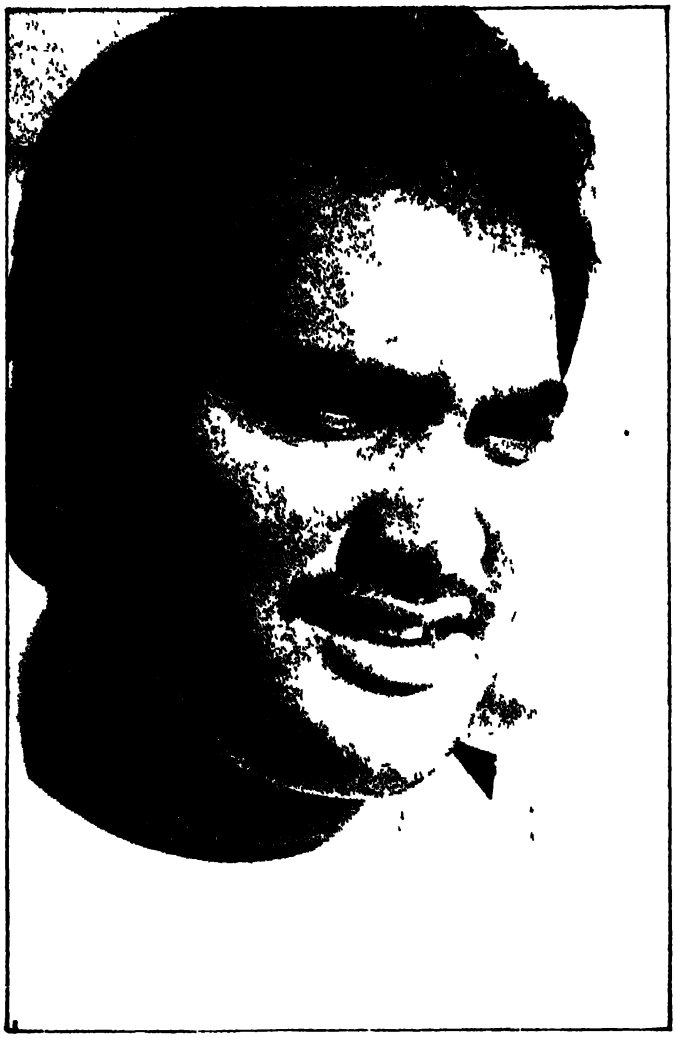
This school of thought gained ground when Indian magazines began carrying photographs on their cover of a creature in dim light and if you had put a white topi on its head, could have passed for Sitaram Kesri with whiskers

However, it turned out they were merely maligning Kesriji because there really wasn't very much of a plague About 50 people died of something like it, but that's all

What was odd was the veritable feeding frenzy in the international media over the non-story Even piranhas first sense blood before they attack Very clearly, in an age where the image is the reality and a good image is paramount, India needs to put into place a system whereby its own point of view can be effectively and forcefully put forward

This was buttressed by the malaria scare where apparently man-eating mosquitoes, like creatures out of a Hollywood horror film, were pouncing on people and murdering them with malaria However, this too petered out, the mosquitoes having either got bored or having been hired away by the Ramsay brothers for their latest horror serial and are now no doubt to be found tanning themselves besides Bombay pools and languidly nipping at passing starlets

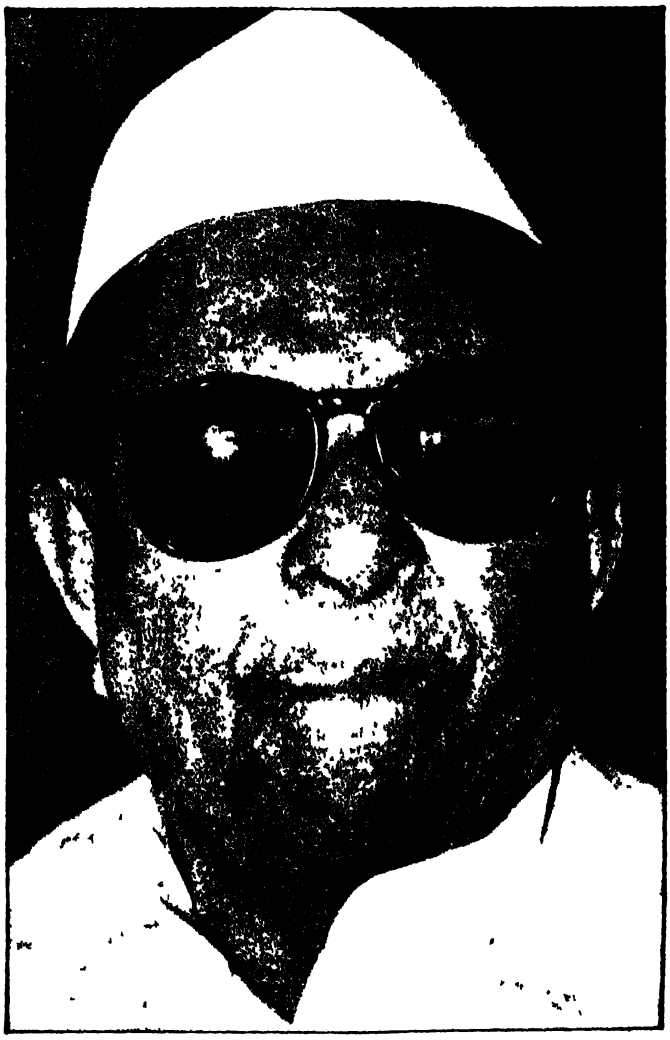
1994



Then, of course, there was the famous plague. Initially, when the foreign media began baying about this dreadful disease and claimed that it was caused by rats, people thought they were being mean again about our beloved politicians

What was disconcerting was the rapidity with which the rest of the world believed the worst of India Tourism virtually ended Flights were banned Heads of states overflew the country Exports from India were put into quarantine or cancelled

While it is undeniable that the garbage on India's streets needs to be cleaned up, it is equally true that the mental trash in foreign minds about India also needs to be thoroughly washed away A nation that is staking its future prosperity on foreign links, can't be held hostage to media rubbish But, unquestionably, the filth within India must first be removed



This sense of India being on the verge of apocalypse is a very deep seated one Every time there is a problem of any sort whatsoever, a conviction

Mohammad Azharuddin. Consistent leadership

Santosh Ghosh

Sitaram Kesri. Plagued by criticisms

Ashok Vaha

Karishma Kapoor: Parkinson's Pelvis

Tayeb Basrai

Sushmita Sen Emergence of the modern Indian woman immediately sets in that this means the end of India for all time

This certainty of doom occurs at least once, but more often, twice a year

The fact that India overcomes its problems with monotonous regularity never seems to dent this gleeful optimism of disaster This is particularly so with regard to terrorism within India

There is not a single terrorist movement that has not found passionate supporters on the grounds that it will unquestionably lead to the dismemberment of India Well, the last year saw the final burial of the problem in Punjab and the joyful bounce into sunshine, and growth in that state has been a particularly cheerful and well documented feature of the preceding 365 days

In the same period, the terrorists in Kashmir seem to have been bashed into the shape and consistency of goshtaba Any realistic appraisal reveals that the insurgency there is in very bad shape There seems a definite fatigue among the people, a longing for peace and the indigenous Kashmiri terrorist seems to have become more of a tourist guide, dutifully escorting mercenaries from across the border to a premature entry into paradise It may well linger on for a while, but last year, the back of the terrorist problem there was decisively broken As I said, goshtaba

Speaking of which, something similar happened, as usual, to India in the athletics arena It's a sad thing, but we simply seem better as a nation at shooting terrorists than shooting for gold

The team came back from Hiroshima looking so stunned that you felt that the atom bomb must have been dropped while they were there Of course, over the year there were a few bright moments in tennis and chess, but the only consistent victories were in cricket

Since the only difference between our overseas humiliations and domestic triumphs is the wickets, we should insist that we'll only play if we can carry our pitches with us And, naturally, neutral umpires who accidentally happen to be employees of the Board of Control for Cricket in India

1994

Hindi film songs reached new depths of depravity with Karishma Kapoor suffering from some form of Parkinson's Pelvis, which wouldn't allow that afflicted portion of her anatomy to stop quivering

Hindi film songs reached new depths of depravity with Karishma Kapoor suffering from some form

of Parkinson's Pelvis, which wouldn't allow that afflicted portion of her anatomy to stop quivering

The lyrics, too, had the romance and poetry associated with two hijras fighting over a customer in Sonagachi But there was such a storm of protest over this appalling bad taste, that the shocked film industry hastily reformed its ways, not having been aware, apparently, that there were still people around who could tell the difference

As part of the backlash, romantic films and comedies made a comeback, but the surprise winner of the musical year was Rap Of course, it was Indianised and, naturally, it won't last because it's too repetitive, but it made for an amusing diversion

Rap in other countries is sometimes the voice of protest and it's interesting that India has no popular music of protest I wonder what it says about our society Good things, I suspect

The greatest lesson of the recent election results in Andhra Pradesh and Karnataka is that virtually nobody can read the mind of the Indian voter consistently Most pre-poll results were embarrassingly wide off the mark But the results do emphasise the political sophistication of the people

They seem to have voted on purely local issues and the result is not necessarily indicative of a turn away from the Congress at the Centre We have seen frequently in the past that the issues that the voter weighs, differs from city to state to national elections But the era of the eternally committed voter is definitely over

For a political party it is now truly perish or perform from the level of panchayat up to Parliament It's the best thing that could happen to India The Prime Minister's position within the party seems unaffected and there has been no revolt aside from N D Tiwari saying, "Please sir, I want some more"

It's a sign that the Congress realises

N T Rama Rao with wife Lakshmi Parvathi Many promises to keep that the days when their second most favourite indoor sport was infighting, are over But they still resist the belief that scandals can influence the voters against them

Witness the way in which they shrugged off the sugar scam Every year, our diligent leaders provide us with a minimum of one scandal and sugar was it last year, as well as aborted ones in telecommunications

What added to the appetite was the awe-inspiring personality of the minister, Kalpnath Rai, who handled himself so cutely that he now no doubt believes he should have been sent to Sun City instead of that imposter

After all, the difference between an A Rai and a K Rai is hardly a few letters, and for all he knows, there may well be some sort of facial resemblance, too Besides, no one could accuse him of lacking in presence of mind, as well as boasting of a certain undefinable something about himself And anyway, if he had lost he could always have blamed it on Ms Sen and Zafar Saifullah

Indo-Pak relations meanwhile continued to display the maturity of two nursery children who have to share one solitary toffee Scuffles, jeers, slanging matches, tears, angry outbursts, petulance, ecstatic though brief-lived triumphs, sulks How on earth do we expect the world to make India a permanent member of the Security Council?

How does Pakistan expect the world to listen eagerly every time its mind-numbing whining about India and its wickedness commences in every forum and at every opportunity? This is one blood feud that makes the world worry Not that we'll nuke each other, but that we'll bore the globe to death

Overall though, it was a continuation of the opening up of India It was steady, sure, perhaps a bit slow, but then it isn't easy to persuade an elephant that it can dance like a ballerina It requires an awful lot of mind changing

And as India opened out to the world, the world began to discover India, its beauties and its beasts It's a two-way process that started in right earnest three years ago, it had its ups and downs, but it's unstoppable though it's barely begun Last year was just a part of that historic process

India

A few companies have been swept away admittedly, but the others public sector units, hitherto frozen forever, are starting to twitch and it is now clear that they will shortly be frisking about like rhinos in love

WISH FULFILMENT

And let us not forget those who don't seem to matter anymore, but also have a new year, says Arup Ghosh

The Magazine wishes to greet on the New Year some people who did not make news, but were done or undone by it And some who carry on regardless — laughing and living and crying logarithms of tears

New Year greetings go out to nine-year-old Mirabai of Limbala Dau village near Killari, Maharashtra, whose house and dreams crumbled on September 30, 1993

Early on that Black Thursday, precisely at 3 56 am, a quake measuring 6 4 on the Richter scale devastated her village and many others The death toll is irrelevant to Mirabai But she did not miss the personal tragedy

Today the fields of Limbala Dau are suffused with the colours of mustard and sugarcane crops and life has begun to take shape anew in relief shelters

People have begun to piece together a shaken existence and even little Mirabai looks forward to the future -- September 30 is now just a shiver down her tender spine Happy New Year to you and all those kids who thought it was a night without end

Our best wishes also to Anahit Zakarian (11) of Goomri city, Armenia, whose life, like Mirabai's, was left broken by a killer quake on December 7, 1988 She lost her father that day and her mother, who works away from home, is desperately trying to keep body and soul together

But she could not keep her daughter Anahit came away to Calcutta to be looked after by the Armenian community here and is now a student of Davidian Girls' School On December 8 last year she completed two years in the city

It must have been difficult for her, growing up alone in a distant city with strange manners and language But she must have realised in these two years that this city has a curious way of making its own those who decide to call it home

Untouched by the fate of Mirabai or Anahit, Pritam Das and Mou Pal continue to continue For these lovers, our lives will never end and flowers never bend with the rainfall

If you have been to the Victoria Memorial or the Dhakuria lakes recently, you are likely to have missed them among many other lovers safely ensconced in a park bench, sharing thoughts and time and the warmth of muddy, saccharine tea

Our best wishes to them and to all the realtors who are greedily eying the few open spaces of Calcutta to implement their concrete plans Little do Pritam and Mou know the dangers that lurk Not from their families or jealous friends, but from promoters who don't sell dreams

Not in the distant future the Mous and Pritams might find themselves

1993

Today the fields of Limbala Dau are suffused with the colours of mustard and sugarcane crops and life has begun to take shape anew in relief shelters. People have begun to piece together a shaken existence and even little Mirabai looks forward to the future — September 30 is now just a shiver down her tender spine

Amidst the rubble of destruction without a place in the sun—condemned to the darkness of cinemas and dingy secondhand hotel rooms

Here's a special New Year wish for them—that some philanthropist builds parks for lovers instead of temples for the salvation-hungry

A very special wish also for Netai Dey who lost love as much as his innocence on November 17 last year killing his best friend, Soumen Das, accidentally while fighting over a spilled satchel in school

Saradacharan Arya Institute is unlikely to find itself in the news again But this one incident involving Soumen and Netai will not be forgotten easily The school is making an attempt So is Netai There is no better time to do so than a New Year

And there is no better time to get married, too This idea of beginning at the beginning has caught the fancy of Soumak Adhikari and Papiya Bose who are tying the knot today

If the two of you can manage to convince the government to declare January 1 a public holiday, mankind will remain grateful to you forever

There is this guy who was born on August 15 Every time he stepped out on that day, he told people celebrating Independence Day not to make such a fuss about his birth

But as for Soumak and Papiya, one hopes they make as much fuss about each other as possible and have a very happy newlywed year

Kishor Roy Chowdhury

They go on forever

1995

Not in the distant future the Mous and Pritams might find themselves without a place in the sun—condemned to the darkness of cinemas and dingy secondhand hotel rooms. Here's a special New Year wish for them—that some philanthropist builds parks for lovers instead of temples for the salvation-hungry

If some newlyweds will be celebrating the New Year there are some who, once perhaps happily married, will not Among them are Bhabatarini Sarkar of Sobhabazar and Bela Mukherjee of Asansol, who on being widowed were despatched summarily to Varanasi to fend for themselves

Most of the 500 Bengali widows in that city wake up at 3 in the morning and spend most day praying and begging If you visit ashrams near Payal Ghat, Dashashwamedh Ghat, Gora Ghat or Raja Rajendralal Ghat there are enough living examples of human apathy to lose faith in families

But not in men The Legal Aid Service, West Bengal, has stepped in to ensure that their pensions reach the widows and not the peons of the postal department This year, hopefully, the widows will be praying for others and not for death A merciful New Year to them

And a flowery New Year to Javed and his friends who sell fragrance to you every evening at the Park Street-Mayo Road crossing Dancing between cars rushing home or vehicles stuck in an irritating jam, they sell flowers dirt cheap, if you know how to bargain

This year, too, you will find them exactly there, almost like landmarks in the cityscape, thrusting bunches of roses and gladioli into your expectant face There are very few people who have made such a good business of cheering up the lives of others

A very happy and painless New Year to Connie Augustus, 75 years old, blind, unable to move and resident of St Vincent's Home, Kidderpore Connie's world consists of vast chunks of time and space unlikely to be filled by anybody

Her two sisters have moved to England and Australia and since then she has no companions except her walk-

The finest Diamond and 22/22K Gold Jewellery at:

NCB 22/22K

Nemichand Bamalwa & Sons,

Jewellers

16-A, Shakespeare Sarani, 3rd Floor Calcutta 700071; Phone: 242-3388

The melting or refining purity of our 22/22K ornaments is 22 Karat (91.67%) XEROSTAT

Victims of filial apathy

IGGS

Most of the 500 Bengali widows in that city (Varanasi) wake up at 3 in the morning and spend most day praying and begging. If you visit ashrams near Payal Ghat, Dashashwamedh Ghat, Gora Ghat or Raja Rajendralal Ghat there are enough living examples of human apathy to lose faith in families man There is a Jim Reeves number that she listens to over and over again It's called One day at a time And Connie lives her life exactly that way

Here's wishing Chuni Ghose and Deb Mahapatra a very prosperous New Year And the same to all the NRIs who dream of a better India and mesmerised by the magic wand of Manmohan Singh are drawn inexorably towards their birthplace

Ghose, a microwave systems engineering expert is setting up a unit at Santacruz to manufacture microwave amplifiers and Mahapatra came from Qatar to establish The Silicon and Ferro Alloy Corporation at Panskura

Ghose's fate is not known, but Mahapatra has faced a lot of trouble from CITU activists demanding their share of the loot

They need more than just our good wishes to grow roots all over again And God knows, we need them more than ever

A very happy and hardworking New Year to my wife and thousands of others like her who were overworked and underpayed in office and who rushed back everyday of the year to another round of floor scrubbing and dish washing and a desperate attempt to make a house a home

And best wishes to all housewives — harassed, pampered, brutalised, adored, burnt, idolised, betrayed and loved

And last, but not the least — a happy New Year to all those who have not yet woken up to the fact after a very late night and a blurry morning of crawling into bed

After wild cheering and wilder drinking bouts, after some crazy dancing and crazier New Year resolutions, there are many among us who have fallen asleep in their weekend best

It will be a while before they get up today, groggy and hit hard by a hangover It is unlikely they would have seen the sun rise over a New Year But, never mind, tomorrow's might be brighter ■

INNER EYE ❑ Bejan Daruwalla

Aries

March 21—April 20

The sun in your 10th angle signifies gains, fatter pay packet, funding, investment, gaiety and socialising Happiness of children and grandchildren, hosting dinners, parties, speechmaking, acting and a tremendous fondness for music are the trends Ganesha says, a jolly good week

Taurus

April 21—May 20

This is the appropriate time to fuse work and play, pleasure and profit, contacts and contracts, buying and selling Many of you will be ready for partnerships, be it personal or strictly business Emotional bonding and business contacts may not go together

Gemini

May 21—June 20

Visits, interviews, conferences meets, inauguration, housewarming, renovating or decorating could well be on the agenda The new moon activates job opportunities, family ties, trips, meeting of minds and hearts Close associations will be formed

Cancer

June 21—July 20

This will be a pretty expensive time for Cancerians So learn to like it A journey is in the offing and so is a job offer Love, birth, conception of children, research, education, new projects, plans, hobbies and sports will be the mainspring of your entire existence

Leo

July 21—August 21

You will work and play in equal measure, render and demand justice in full proportion Excellent chances to make a buck, go in for permanent benefits, bag new and fine assignments as well as deals News of a welcome nature will reach you shortly Time to plan for the whole year

Virgo

August 22—September 22

The main tone will be on loans, joint finances, buying, selling, trading, commission, insurance, benefits, health schemes, security, funding and investing Parents, in-laws, and boss play a larger-than-life part now Learn to tolerate it Friends will help

Libra

September 23—October 22

Long-distance connections, publicity, publishing, acting and directing, and a lot of behind-the-scene activities take place January 6-7 should see you doing useful work if possible, as a more congenial climate for operations and relationships prevail Trips and ceremonies foretold

Scorpio

October 23—November 22

A good time for a job switch, loans, funds, planning a campaign, taking a major decision, signing an important lease, document and deal You may also apply for divorce, plan another marriage, or try marrying for the first time Ganesha says, a week of many possibilities

Sagittarius

November 23—December 20

The lure of distant places and pastures will be irresistible, as the sun hits the right chord for you Additions to the family are possible You will be on the fast track and the chances are kicks and kisses, legal battles and new beginnings are fated Amidst all these, the home, too, will be spotlighted

Capricorn

December 21—January 19

Focus on job and work again You will continue to be imaginative and mighty ambitious The work you put in will have happy returns for a long, long time A job-switch or a pay-hike is also foretold Pets and different projects will interest you

Aquarius

January 20—February 18

Best to get on to ads, travel, publicity and new ventures In short, be multi-dimensional and keep yourself occupied in various activities Children, sports and hobbies give ample delight The luck of the draw will be with you You can make it work for you Be generous

Pisces

February 19—March 20

There will be outlets for love, job, business, profession and, if you feel like, taking a chance Home and office too, will have their full share of your energy, money and attention Parents and in-laws, too, will have their say The second half of the week will be interesting

BIRTHDAYS

January 1: The new moon makes you independent and observant, ready to take chances and try your luck, says Ganesha. New beginnings bring happiness

January 2: Mercury-Neptune conjunction favours workers, organisers, painters, musicians and actors. You will have the chance to show the world how good you are.

January 3: Moon-Jupiter excellent formation leads to plenty of progress. Those in science and technology make the world sit up and notice

January 4: Mercury conjuncts Uranus and that means expect the unexpected. There could be changes in your personal life as well as on the work front.

January 5: Moon-Saturn conjunction could lead to depression and diffidence unless you work consciously against it Journeys and communication help

January 6: Mercury-Venus excellent juxtaposition leads to comforts, contacts and communication. This should be a booming year should your horoscope be strong.

January 7: Venus conjuncts Pluto, giving you power and pelf and the luck of the draw Money, fame, happiness and marriage are yours.

MANU AND SUPERMANU?

US and Indian scholars for the first time are compiling a 'critical edition' of the laws of Manu to establish his relevance in today's world

Shameem Akhtar reports*

The mention of Manu raises the hackles of feminists and anti-caste activists They argue vociferously against the laws of Manu, since they feel that these ancient societal rules contrived to subjugate certain sections of the society for long

But for scholars studying the intricacies of Hinduism and the Indian psyche, these laws cannot be wished away, since these are crucial to the understanding of the Indian philosophical and social structure

Hence, American scholars affiliated to the Smithsonian Institute at Washington DC have decided to compile the first 'critical edition' of Manu with the help of the Pune-based Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute

This is the first time that an attempt is being made to cull material from all the 460 manuscripts of Manu available the world over

For diehard anti-Manu activists who may find such an attempt superfluous, here is an exquisite argument over his relevance Western scholar Wendy Doniger in her popular book on the subject writes "Manu is one moment in the history of Indian religion, and given its influence on later reconstructions it is a moment worth pondering "

She feels that this text "provides a direct line to the most influential construction of the Hindu religion and Indic society as a whole No modern study of Hindu family life can ignore Manu "

The American attempt to compile a 'critical edition' has been provoked by the existing lacunae in any cohesive, researched text against which researchers can pit their analyses and critique of these laws

The Bhandarkar Institute, established in 1917, has been roped into this project for many reasons For one, it is one of the oldest Indian institutes to start active research in a special field — that of scientific orientology Also, it has previous experience in preparation of critical texts - having worked on the critical edition of the Mahabharata which ran in 19 volumes containing 13,000 pages This gargantuan task took 47 years of laborious research

The Bhandarkar Institute also has an exceptional collection of manuscripts At the time of establishment of the institute, the then government of Bombay had, in fact handed over its entire collection of manuscripts - nearly 20,000 of them - to the institute which has since then been assiduously adding to this data of exclusive oriental information

The Indian scholars involved with the Smithsonian Institute's effort will scrutinise all the available texts on Manu and prepare a collation sheet based on the comparison of these The American scholars will take over at the second stage of this intellectual labour of love They will edit the collation sheet to prepare the final critical edition

Dr S N Laddu, director of the project at Bhandarkar Institute, has defended the American takeover at this more crucial second stage of what is essentially an Indian subject, with the argument that the two Americans involved — Dr Richard Lariviere and Dr Patrick Olivelle of Texas University Centre for Asian Studies — are specialists par excellence in this particular field

The Indian scholars will examine each of 2,685 stanzas of the Laws of Manu and note down only those which are pretty different in interpretation The 10th edition of the Laws of Manu, brought by the Nirnaya Sagar Press, will form the basic edition against which comparisons will be made, since this is reported to be the latest

This Indian part of the project will involve scrutinising the most authentic of the 460 manuscripts available Of these, 11 manuscripts which were found in Pakistan have been brought back into the country with American help) The project, chaired by the much-feted orientalist, Dr R N Dandekar, is expected to take over two years and has an annual American funding of Rs 6 lakh

While a section of the staff at Bhandarkar Institute alleged that "there was some problem' with the progress of this project, Dr Laddu ducked all questions "Everything will be back on schedule by the first week of December," he asserted

Whatever the momentum of the project, when it is completed perhaps it will help shed more light on the contradictions of these societal laws which have become so much a part of the Indian psyche As Doniger puts it "It has been estimated that between a third and a half of Manu is in the Mahabharata But it is not certain which was the source and which the borrower "

Perhaps we will also understand better the mindset of the authors (despite its attribution to one single person called Manu, the laws are believed to be the culmination of work by several people) who could contradictorily, in one breath, associate women with "lust, anger, crookedness" and "malice", and in the next, affectionately note that "there is nothing purer than the light of the sun and a girl's breath" ■

POETRY

Selected by Jayanta Mahapatra

Hunger and the Plate of Rice

(1)

I have seen the living Jesus Christ in a plate of rice
The sweet aroma of a steaming plate of rice enters my nostrils,
smarts my eyes

From the nailed palms and feet of the living Christ in the plate of rice,
I see droplets of blood drip,
to condense and become cooked rice grains Strangely, the colour of these blood droplets are white
Perhaps it does not contain haemoglobin

(2)

To clothe and feed my widowed mother, younger brother and sisters,
I strive, struggle, and in doing so my body has become all skeleton

I have to strive however, to keep my family alive
It is proper that I ignore the colour of my blood
Whether it is red or white

Bishnu Sankar Verma

Subhajit Pal

A Bandh Day

It's a bandh day life has come to a standstill, and the unpeopled streets wear the looks of the aliens landed on our planet, eyeing us all with a bemused, confused concern, unable to comprehend what it's all about a grey silence perfectly matching the grey overcast sky with a persistent drizzle looks down upon this dead putrefying city in dark curiosity
what it's all about really?
the question too haunts the minds of thousands like us used to and actually relishing the hectic rush of an extremely busy metropolis
Oh, what it's all about really?
what it's all about?

Grass

The grass grows by itself
Here, there, everywhere,
It grows under the barbed wire,
It grows on the borders
It fills greenness and peace
Into the bloodshot eyes
Of violent men and animals

Sashibhusan Rath

TIME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS

DO

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AGARTALA
IC-741	0710	3 6	IC-742	0940	3, 6
IC 743	0920	daily	IC-744	1150	daily
PF-701	1130	1 3 5 7	PF-702	1610	1 3 5 7
AHMEDABAD
M9-304/109	0855	1 3 5	M9-110/301	1900	1 3, 5
AIZAWL
PF-705	0730	daily	PF-706	1100	daily
BAGDOGRA
PF-707	1130	2 4 6	PF 708	1510	2 4 6
IC-721	1300	1 3 5	IC 722	1540	1 3 5
BANGALORE
IC 771	0600	daily	IC 772	1140	daily
BHUBANESWAR
IC-544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2, 7
IC-769	1525	1 3 5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5
BOMBAY
AI 431	0100	2
IC-676	0730	daily	IC 675	0820	daily
D2 102	0905	daily	D2 101	0835	daily
9W 202	0920	daily	9W 201	0840	daily
AI 309	1930	6	AI 306	1730	5
IC-273	1945	daily	IC-274	1850	daily
9W-212	1955	daily	9W-211	1920	daily
D2 104	2005	daily	D2 103	1935	daily
COOCH BEHAR
PF-707	1130	2 4 6	PF-708	1510	2 4 6
DELHI
			IC-262	0815	2, 4, 7
IC 263	0700	daily	M9 303	0825	daily
M9-304	0855	daily	4S-806	1115	1 2 3 4 5 6
4S-805	1505	1 2 3 4 5 6	AI-682	1145	1
IC 812	1515	1 3 5	IC-401	1155	daily
IC-402	1715	daily	M9-301	1900	daily
IC 261	1900	2 4 7	S2 005	1900	1, 2, 3 4 5 6
M9 302	1930	daily	IC 811	1930	1, 3, 5
S2 006	1940	1 2 3 4 5 6	IC 264	2210	daily
DIBRUGARH
IC 703	0715	3 5	IC-704	1345	3 5
D2 181	1135	1 3 5 7	D2-181	1620	1 3, 5 7
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
IC-701	1240	2 4 6 7	IC 702	1630	2 4 6 7
DIMAPUR
IC-257	1150	4 7	IC 258	1650	4 7

FLIGHTS

AMMAN
RJ 185	1445	4	RJ-184	0705	4
AMSTERDAM
KL-876	0420	7	KL 875	0235	7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
GUWAHATI
IC-703	0715	3 5	IC-704	1345	3, 5
IC-707	0715	1, 4 6	IC-708	1345	1, 4, 6
IC-711	0715	2 7	IC-712	1400	2, 7
D2-181	1135	1 3 5 7	D2-181	1620	1, 3, 5, 7
D2-183	1135	2 4 6	D2-183	1620	2, 4, 6
4S-812	1145	1 2 3 4 5 6	4S-811	1425	1, 2, 3 4 5 6
IC-257	1150	4, 7	IC-230	1620	daily
IC-211	1240	4 6	IC-258	1650	4, 7
IC-229	1310	daily	IC-212	1740	4 6
HYDERABAD
IC-777	1500	2 4 7	IC-778	2005	2 4, 7
IC-769	1525	1, 3 5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5
IMPHAL
IC-707	0715	1 4 6	IC 256	1320	3 5
IC 255	0830	3 5	IC-708	1345	1 4 6
IC 253	1100	2 6	IC-254	1550	2 6
JORHAT
IC-213	0910	2 4 7	IC-213	1315	2 4 7
LUCKNOW
IC-812	1515	1 3 5	IC 811	1930	1 3 5
MADRAS
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC-541	1030	1 3 5
IC-544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2 7
IC-765	1720	daily	D2-171	1045	daily
D2 172	1740	daily	IC 766	2220	daily
NAGPUR
IC-769	1525	1, 3, 5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5
PATNA
IC-249	1430	2, 4 7	IC-249	1805	2 4 7
IC-812	1515	1, 3, 5	IC-811	1930	1, 3 5
PORT BLAIR
IC-285	0640	3 5 7	IC-286	1100	2 4 6
RANCHI
IC-249	1430	2 4 7	IC-249	1805	2, 4, 7
SHILLONG
PF-701	1130	1, 3, 5, 7	PF-702	1610	1 3 5, 7
SILCHAR
IC-255	0830	3, 5	IC-260	1110	1, 7
IC-259	0830	1, 7	IC-256	1320	3, 5
IC-253	1100	2, 6	IC-254	1550	2, 6
IC-211	1240	4, 6	IC-212	1740	4, 6
TEZPUR
IC-213	0910	2, 4, 7	IC-213	1315	2, 4, 7
VISHAKHAPATNAM
IC-542	1115	1 3 5	IC-541	1030	1 3, 5

INTERNATIONAL

BANGKOK
IC-731	0855	2, 4, 5 7	KB-106	1115	3
			KB-106	1215	5
KB-105	1125	2 6	TG-313	1240	1, 3, 6
TG-314	1355	1, 3 6	IC-732	1505	2, 4, 5, 7
AI-306	1910	5	AI-309	1825	6

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[illegible]
RO-076	2040	5, 7	RO-075	1035	5 7
[illegible]
IC-225	1200	1	IC-226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2, 5	BG-697	1655	2, 5
DHAKA
BG-092	0850	4, 5	BG-091	0810	4, 5
BG-092	1150	1, 2 3, 6, 7	BG-091	1110	1 2 3 6, 7
IC-723	1300	1 2, 5 6 7	IC-724	1620	1 2, 5 6, 7
BG-094	1905	1, 2 3 5 6, 7	BG-093	1825	1 2 3, 5 6, 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1 5	BG-095	2020	1, 5
KATHMANDU
IC-747	1115	1, 3 6	IC 748	1455	1 3 6

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
LONDON
BA-142	2050	3 7	BA-143	1525	3, 7
MOSCOW
SU-538	1855	4	SU-537	1655	4
PARIS
KB-106	1200	3	KB-105	1040	2 6
KB-106	1300	5
SINGAPORE
AI-430	1300	1	SQ-416	2040	2, 5
SQ-415	2200	2, 5	AI-431	2235	1
SOFIA
LZ-504	1750	4	LZ-503	1650	4
TOKYO
AI-306	1910	5	AI 309	1825	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
2311	19 15	Delhi Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19 20	Amritsar Mail	7 55	3006
3003	20 35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13 00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat	16 15	2382
2303	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun	16 15	2304
2301	16 30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun	10 15	2302
2305	13 45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat	12 50	2306
3073	23 00	Himgiri (Jammu Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat Arr Tues Wed & Sat	11 35	3074
5047	13 00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon Wed & Fri	4 30	5048
3009	20 30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9 45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18 15	3008
3049	13 20	Amritsar Express	15 30	3050
3039	21 00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5 20	3040
3019	16-05	Kathgodam Express	11 55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5 00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6-30	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17 11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18-20	Asansol Express	8 45	3036
3031	21 05	Danapur Express	5 50	3032
3025	23 00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday Arr Friday	11 35	3026
3071	22 30	Jamalpur Express	5 10	3072
3015	9-55	Santiniketan Express	15 40	3016
1159	15 25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tues & Wed	6 50	1160
1171	15-25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed Arr Fri Sat & Sun	6 50	1172
3327	14-30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4 50	3328
1181	15-25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6 50	1182
		Sealdah
3141	13-40	Teesta Torsa Express Dep Mon Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed Thurs Fri Sat & Sun	6 35	3142
3143	19-15	Darjeeling Mail	8 45	3144
3111	20-15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7 15	3112
5657	6-25	Kanchanjunga Express	20 35	5658
3153	22-00	Gour Express	5 15	3154
5663	20-00	Katihar Express	4 15	5664
3151	11-45	Jammu-Tawi Express	15 50	3152
3133	20-55	Mughal Sarai Express via SBG Loop	12 55	3134
3103	18-20	Bhagirathi (Laigola) Express	10-25	3104
5185	12-40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues Thus & Sat	4 25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6 50	6004
8002	19 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12 00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	1940	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13 45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express	22 05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5 00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5 30	8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8 25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00	8046
8017	16 45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2421	16 40	Bhubaneswar New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16-10
	11 05	New Delhi Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15	—
	14-05	Trivandrum Central Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 45	6321
	14 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13 45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15	–
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13 45	6315
6520	22 35	Guwahati - Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15	–
–	14 05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South-Eastern Railway trains please dial 2203545-54 for in coming trains 2203535 44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains, dial 2203496 3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition, dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running), 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535-37

HEADS AND TAILS

Maneka Gandhi

PULLING WOOL OVER YES

Many animal lovers think wool is one animal product they can use knowing that no creature has suffered to provide it Many of you like Australian wool and look for the label 'Merino' which represents the sheep from which the wool has been got Here are some facts on wool

What is wool? Hair grown by the sheep to protect itself from the weather Is it a natural product? It should be, but nature has, for many years, had no hand in it Without human interference, sheep would grow just enough wool to protect themselves from the weather, but hybrid sheep that the wool industry uses as 'wool machines' are scientifically bred to grow huge amounts of wool, far more than their bodies can carry

Research scientists have bred a Merino sheep which is exaggeratedly wrinkled The more the wrinkle, the more wool Unfortunately, greater profits are rarely in the animal's best interests More wrinkles mean greater perspiration and greater susceptibility to fly-strike, a ghastly condition resulting from maggot infestation in the sweaty folds of the sheep's overwrinkled skin

To counteract this, farmers now perform an 'operation' without anaesthetics called 'mulesing' in which sections of flesh around the anus are sliced away leaving bloody wounds

The unnatural overload of wool (often half their body weight) brings added misery to the sheep, specially in the summer months when they often die from heat exhaustion

The Commonwealth Scientific and Industrial Research Organisation reminds farmers that a closely shorn sheep is more sensitive to cold than a naked man Every year, hundreds of thousands of sheep die of cold soon after shearing

Presumably the farmer is aware of the possibility of this occurrence, but no doubt it is a calculated risk and the high price of wool covers the cost of dead sheep In such commercial undertakings, the suffering of the animals is irrelevant

You probably think that because they are so valuable as wool producers, sheep must warrant proper handling and treatment Here is the truth All over the world and specially in Australia from where we import a lot of wool, they are specially treated

When you see a sheep-shearing demonstration on television, you forget that these are 'demonstration experts' who handle the animal well and do the job neatly and quickly without causing obvious distress But these are not the run-of-the-mill shearers There are a lot of unskilled cutters who work in a hurry and leave blood gashes on the sheep whenever their scissors cut too close Every cutting operation has one boy standing by, called a 'blood stauncher', whose job is to put tar on the wounds to stop the bleeding

In Australia, as anywhere in the world, it is not necessary to use anaesthetic for 'operations' performed on farm-bred animals, so mulesing, tail-docking, ear-clipping and castration of sheep can be performed by unskilled farmhands

Every year, hundreds of thousands of sheep die of cold soon after shearing. Presumably the farmer is aware of the possibility of this occurrence, but no doubt it is a calculated risk and the high price of wool covers the cost of dead sheep. In such commercial undertakings, the suffering of the animals is irrelevant

The suffering caused to sheep during shearing goes unnoticed

Sunil Ghosh

The methods of castration are still quite barbaric, a rubber ring may be used to cut off the blood supply to the testicles, causing them and the scrotum to wither, or the testicles may even be bitten off by farmers, who refer to them as "oysters of the bush" Still more suffering is caused by foot-rot and other harrowing complaints to which these poor creatures are subjected There are photographs of animals literally trying to walk on their knees because their feet are so painful

Now, a special sheep which will never see the outdoors but is bred intensively like chickens in sunless, concrete coops, will be used to produce a 'super wool' called Sharlea A new drug, cyclophosphamide, is being injected into sheep because it has been found to have a hair-loosening effect Instead of shearing, sheep can now have their hair pulled out in handfulls! Of course, the drug has the aftereffect of making sheep blind, but then, who wants a 'wool-machine' which can see any way

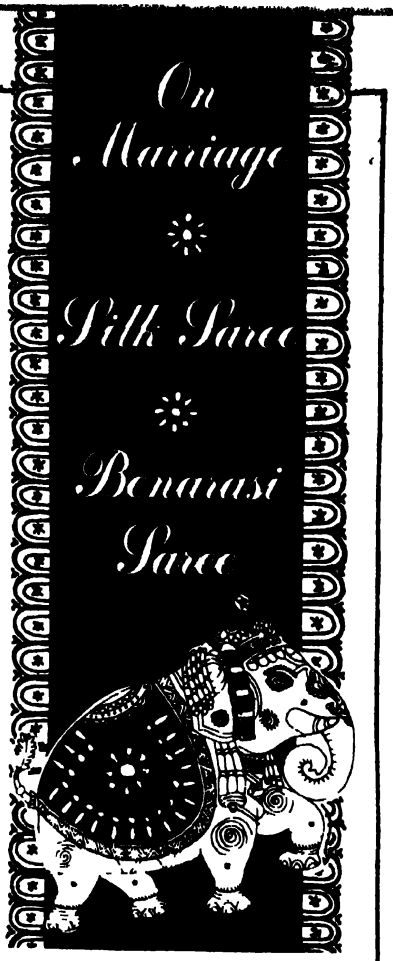
What will happen to the absolutely naked sheep after the hair has been pulled out? Since they are very sensitive to weather, one of the options has been to spray the sheep with a water proof chemical What happens when the farmer feels that the sheep is wearing out? Obviously - the slaughterhouse Some will be transported to vast distances in unsuitable trucks and trains Crowded in layers for a three- or four day journey to the slaughterhouse, they receive neither food nor water and remain standing all the way The sick or clumsy ones who may fall are trampled by their frightened fellow creatures

Of course, some are dead on arrival Those that can still stand are hurled or harried down the gangplank by men with electric prods The dead and the dying are dragged off and thrown into heaps Some may also suffer the ultimate cruelty of live export to the Middle East They are herded into ships (upto 120,000 per ship) where they are forced to stand in their own urine and faeces in dark holds

Amidst the stench, the sheep lie dying as their fellows try to survive on powdery pellet food and urine-contaminated water Further horrors await the sheep in the Middle East where witnesses have seen a sheep's throat cut by a knife in the street where it slowly choked on its own blood, or blinded and bundled into the boot of a car to be slaughtered at home later

Newspaper journalists have reported the intense suffering of badly handled sheep during transport from Australia to Marseilles and Algiers In one instance we are told of 12 wagons leaving Dover on a cargo ship loaded with 800 ewes that had been shorn the day before and had spent a bitterly cold night in the open

Two hours after they arrived at Dunkirk, they were re-loaded, 80 to a truck, bound for Marseilles On arrival, 25 were lame and one so weak that it could not stand The sheep, along with the others, was taken to Algiers, where it was dragged off the ship to die on the dockside At Algiers, sheep which had neither been fed nor watered since leaving Marseilles found a bundle of hay on the dockside and they fought each other to reach it A lorry driver trying to get through, drove straight at them, sending a few flying and breaking their legs Even these were loaded onto the slaughterhouse trucks to hobble to their death



All this cruelty abroad is duplicated a million times in the sheep in Himachal Pradesh Nevertheless, you may say, wool is necessary since it keeps us warm in winter Only if you are a sheep, that is It is not good for humans The skin eliminates wastes all the time The best clothing allows these wastes to go through them so that the body is not injected with its own excretions As we say the skin needs to breathe Clothing that holds perspiration and wastes against the skin limits its activity by obstructing the free access of fresh air and sunlight, thereby laying the ground for all sorts of skin diseases Woollen fabrics are the worst in this respect

If we don't use wool, how do we keep warm? Man-made alternatives, such as nylons and acrylics, are so much better Clothes and blankets which wash easily and do not shrink, keep their colours, cost far less and are far superior to wool when clear bright colours are desired

In future whenever you are tempted to buy wool, remember the cruel treatment that has attended its production As always, the buyer has the power to put an end to organised cruelty Wool users support butchery by subsidising the production cost of lamb and mutton joints — even though they may not consume them

Can one live with the knowledge that one has abetted the callous exploitation of these gentle animals? As with silk, I have always avoided wool I stay with good looking acrylics and nylon stockings and socks in winter

(Sanctuary Features)

Indian Silk House Agencies

129 A, Rashbehari Avenue,
Calcutta - 700 029

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

THOSE BLOOMING WRITERS

When I first came to live in Mussoorie, some 30 years ago, I did not expect to be the only writer living in or around the hill-station. There were, of course, writers in Dehra Dun which had a literary climate of sorts. But in Mussoorie there was none, at least not until I had been there for some time.

You would of course be right in telling me that Hugh Gantzer belongs to Mussoorie, but in the Sixties he was still serving in the Indian Navy and I did not meet him till 1970 or thereabouts, at which time he was writing short stories.

It was only after his retirement from the Navy that he and his wife became a team of highly successful travel writers. And naturally they travelled.

From Brazil to Zanzibar
They would feast on caviar!

It was in the early Seventies that the first budding writer came my way — a young man of American parentage but born and brought up in Mussoorie.

He told me that he planned to write a novel in due course and I nodded sympathetically and made encouraging sounds. (The last time I tried to discourage a would-be writer he became a critic and hounded me ever after!) A few years later he did produce a novel.

His name was Stephen Alter and he went on to write a string of startlingly successful novels which enabled him to kick the dust of Mussoorie from his heels and travel extensively. I believe he now lives in Cairo. Mussoorie's loss is Cairo's gain!

And who was the next friendly neighbourhood writer?

When I first met him he was wearing the orange robe of a sadhu but he had a distinctly Scottish accent. He had spent 12 years in an ashram in Almora and it definitely showed, he could eat nothing but porridge. He was secretary to the Rajmata of Jind. His name was Bill Aitken. One day he confessed to me that he was feeling bored and frustrated.

"Why don't you write something?" I suggested.

"Who'll publish it?"

"I will." (I was then literary editor of Imprint (published from Bombay but compiled by me in Mussoorie).

He wrote a story which duly appeared in the magazine and after that there was no holding him back.

Within a few years, Bill was devouring railway tracks as though they were spaghetti and writing more articles in a month than I could do in a year!

So I was not alone in the woods after all. Not with Win Chamberlain around. He was a gregarious American who had written a sensational bestseller called Gates of Fire, set in an India difficult to recognise. He had rented a villa in Landour, where he was busy writing another, even more salacious novel. I forget the title, but this, too, must have been a bestseller because he now has his own beach house in Goa.

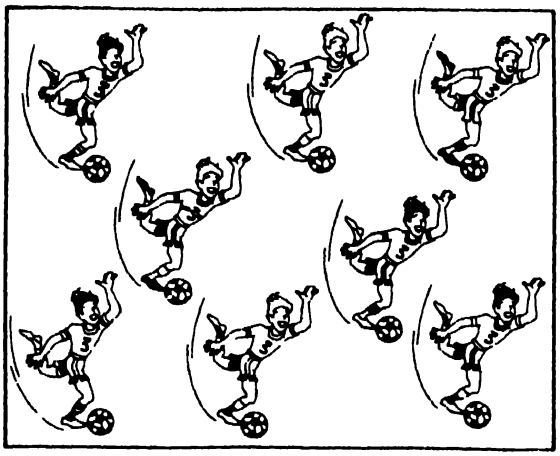
Meanwhile I was plodding on with my unsensational stories and children's books, and was made to feel even more of a country bumpkin when Dhiren Bhagat came along, flaunting a fat salary cheque from the London Observer and a retainer from the London Spectator and an advance from a London publisher.

He was looking for a quiet place where he could write, he said. I helped him find a cottage, but he spent most of his time quarrelling with his landlady and did little serious writing there.

He was a charming young man in his early 30s, quite clever in his conversation. One of the first things he said to me was, "Ruskin Bond — I thought you were dead!" I believe he had also written a premature obituary for Khushwant Singh.

Dhiren's feud with his landlady led him to leave his driver in charge of the cottage while he hared off to Delhi on a journalistic assignment. He was unaccustomed to Delhi's traffic and on a busy road near Gole Market, he met with a fatal accident. A great waste. In spite of his infuriating ways, he had real talent.

Since then, a number of interesting people have been flexing their muscles, dusting off their typewriters and making me look and feel like a journeyman apprentice.



There's Victor Banerji with his shiny new word processor, and Ganesh Saili, on first name terms with publishers and editors, and Briony Kapoor with her brilliant unpublished stories and, of course, a whole bunch of retired Air Marshals, Brigadiers and Surveyors with their formidable memoirs.

I feel like a wafer chip confronted by a club sandwich. But no one can complain of a lack of stimulus — literary, or, otherwise.

(Sanctuary Features)

The last time I tried to discourage a would-be writer he became a critic and hounded me ever after! A few years later he did produce a novel. His name was Stephen Alter and he went on to write a string of startlingly successful novels which enabled him to kick the dust of Mussoorie from his heels and travel extensively. I believe he now lives in Cairo. Mussoorie's loss is Cairo's gain!

JUNIOR WHIRL HAL KAUFMAN

SOCCER MATCH! Two of eight soccer players above look enough alike to be twins See if you can locate them

MIND THIS! In case you never knew or may have forgotten, mnemonics is a technique or system designed to improve a certain function of the human mind What function is that?

The function of memory

HORSE OPERAS TO PONDER

THERE have been lots of singing cowboys Singing horses? Who's to say? Nevertheless, let's pretend famed horses listed below wish to sing out the names of the respective owner/riders Can you match them up?

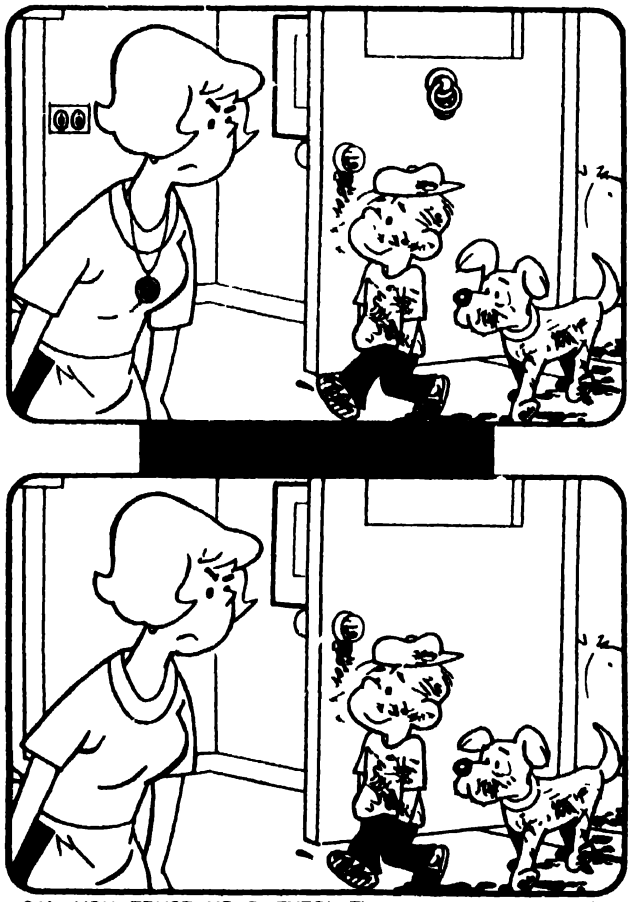
1 Silver
2 Spark Plug
3 Trigger
4 Champion
5 Topper
6 Tony
7 Rosinante

Owner/riders A - Roy Roggers B- Tom Mix C—Don Quixote D--Hopalong Cassidy F—Lone Autry G—Barney Google

No fair pecking

1 F 2 C 3 A 4 E 5 D 6 B 7 C

THIRTY SUM! Twelve numbers between 0 and 15 are in place in the diagram below, four numbers of this sequence are missing How long will it take you to fill the vacant squares so that the four horizontal, four vertical, and two diagonal rows total 30?



Remember, missing numbers complete the sequence 0-15

Give it a try Time limit is four times 30 seconds

Place 5 and 6 across (up blanks 9 and 10 below

0	14	13	3
11			8
7			4
12	2	1	15

HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below

DIFFERENCES 1 Switch is missing 2 Pendant is missing 3 Sleeves are shorter 4 Door knocker is missing 5 Leg is moved 6 Dog's ear is smaller

FUNSPOT

SHORE THING! Hit that beach, find that spot Simply apply the following colors 1—Red 2—Lt blue 3—Yellow 4—Lt brown 5—Flesh tones 6—Green 7—Dk brown 8—Dk blue

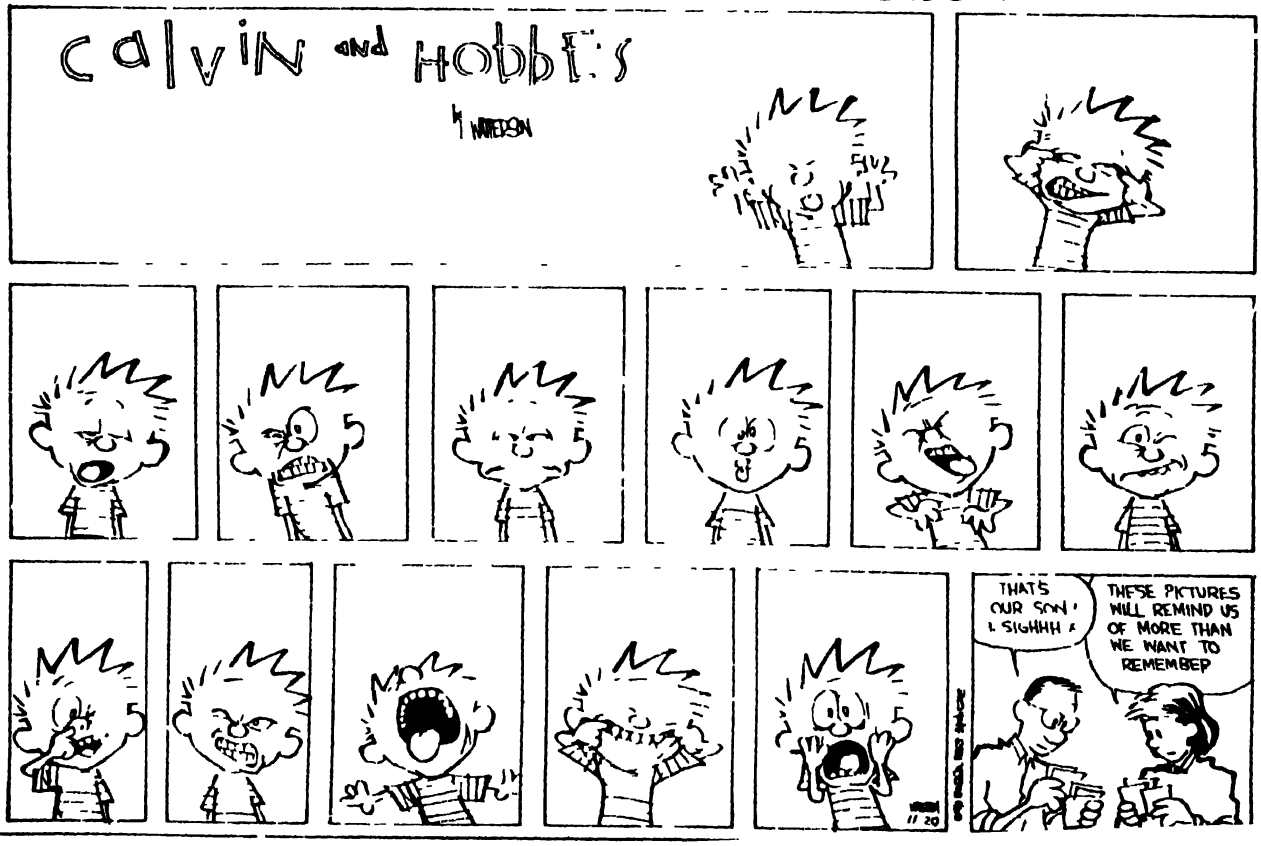
SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

SUPERIOR

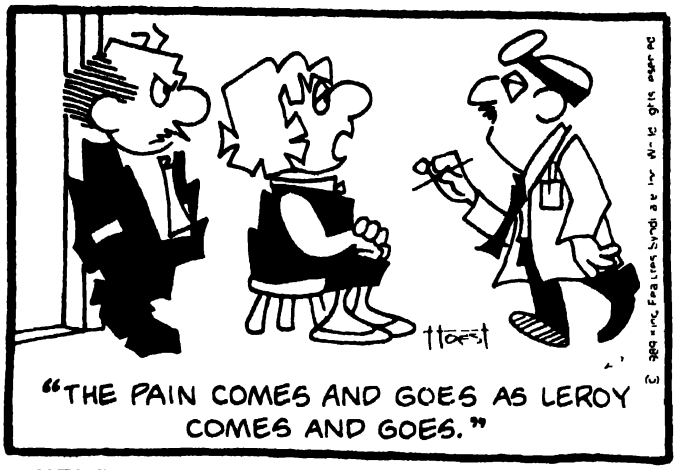
THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

Try to score at least 50 points



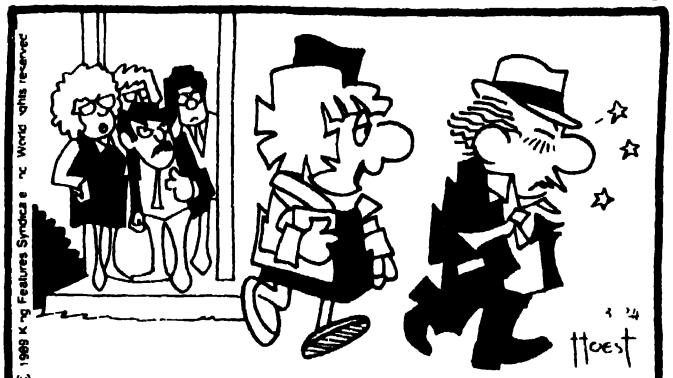
Possible twosome Four site

COMICS



ARCHIE

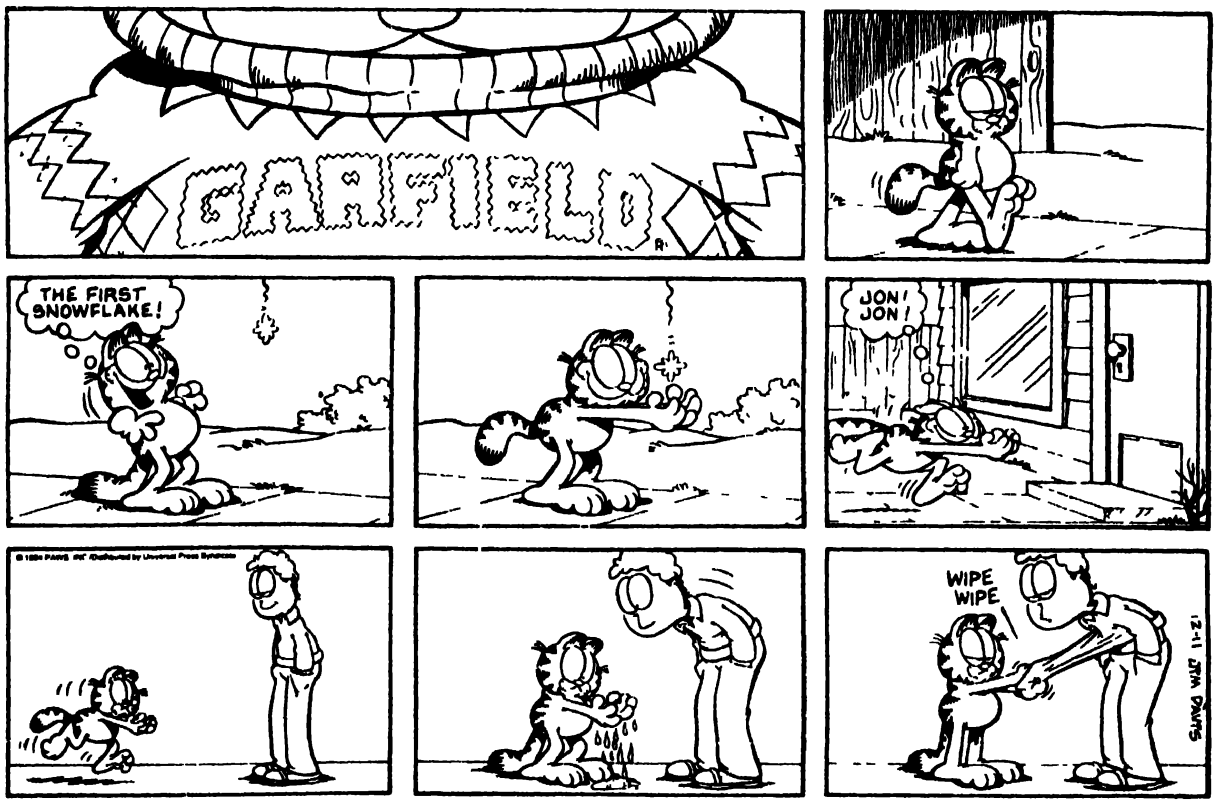
CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON



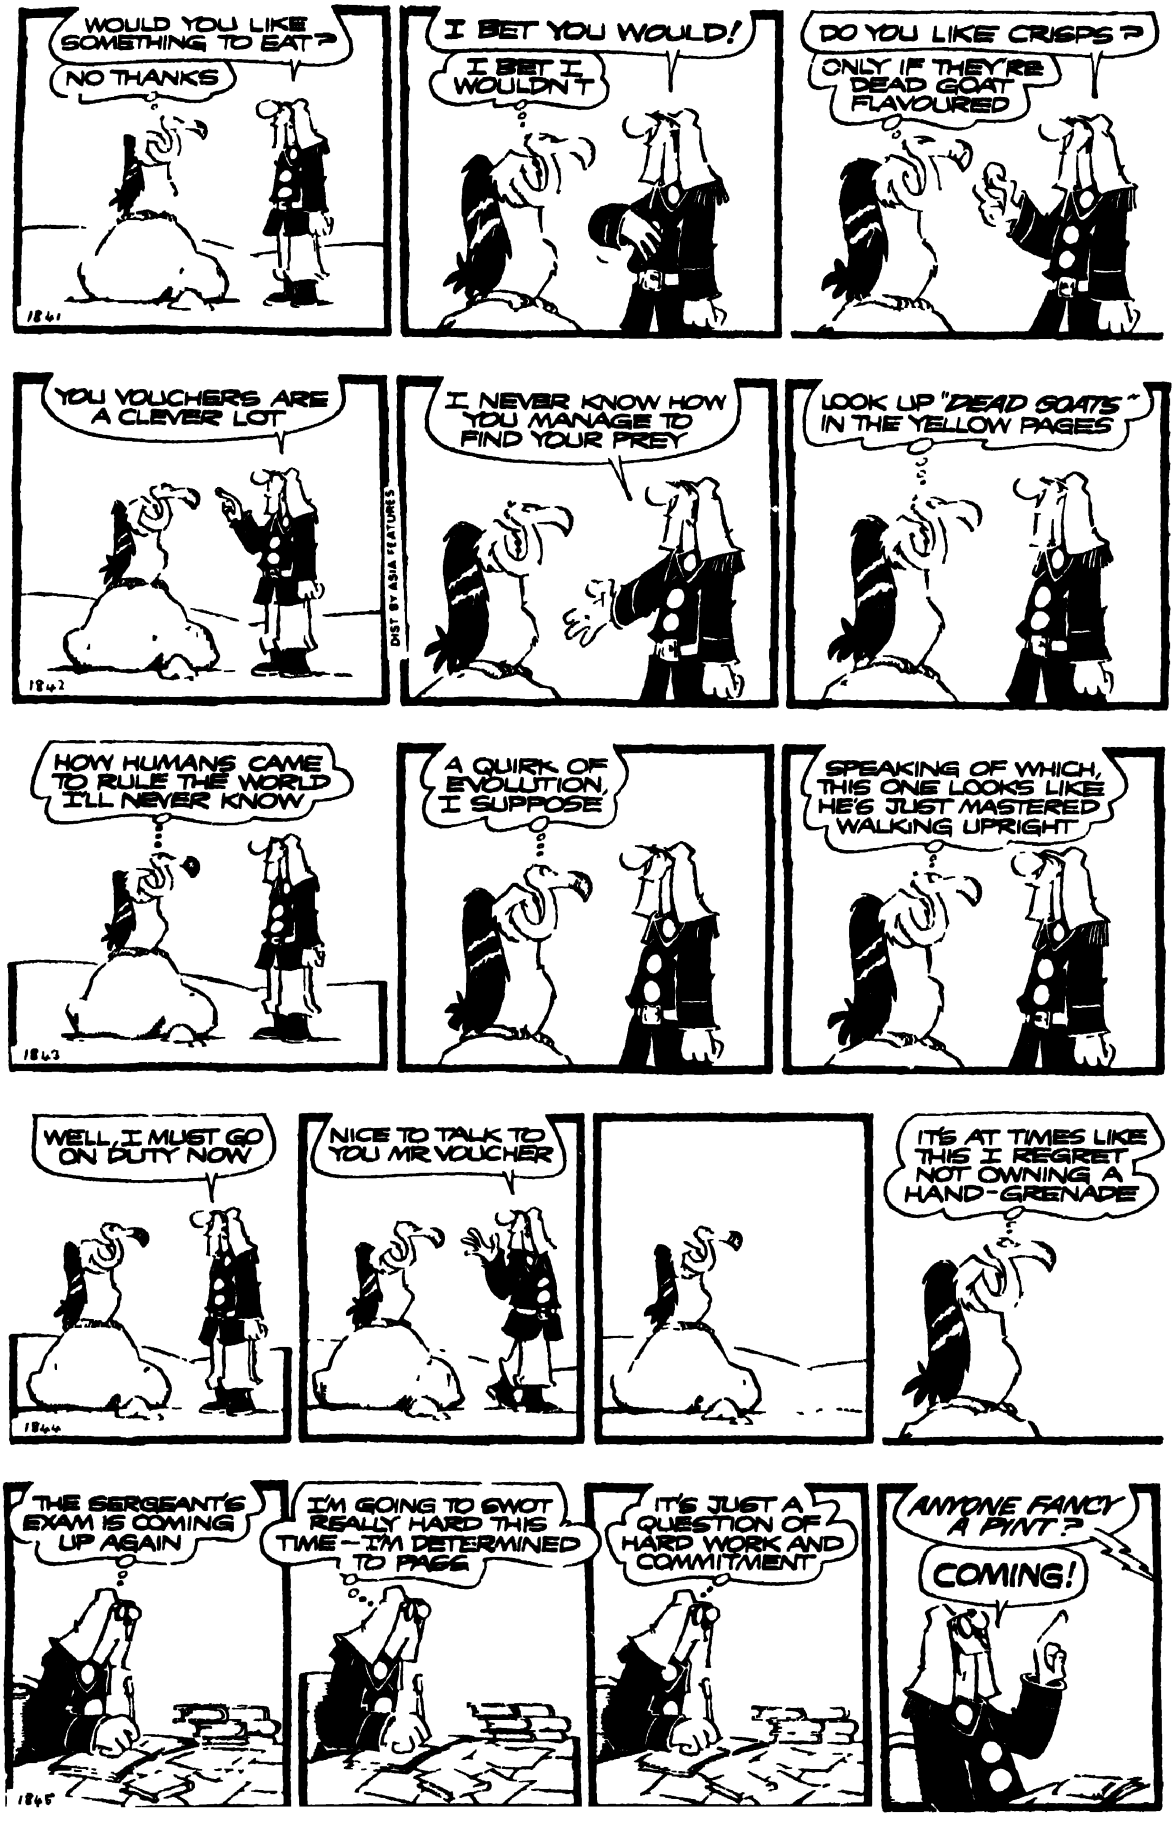
THE LOCKHORNS

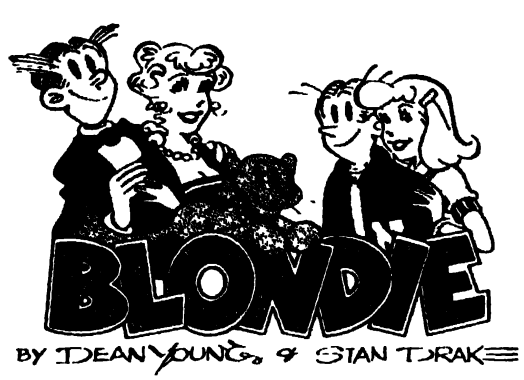
"THE PAIN COMES AND GOES AS LEROY COMES AND GOES."

"THAT WAS PROBABLY THE BEST SHOW WE EVER SLEPT THROUGH."

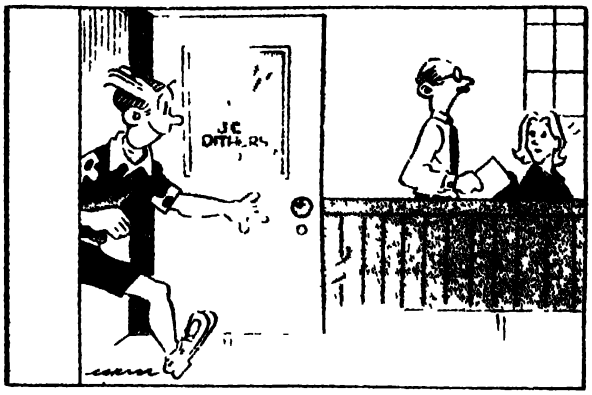


"YOU SEEM TO HAVE A WAY WITH WORDS."

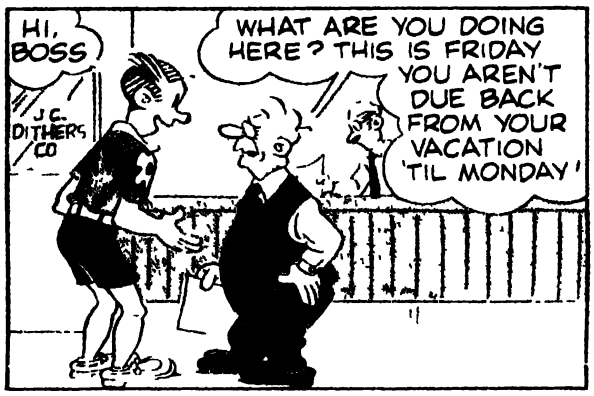


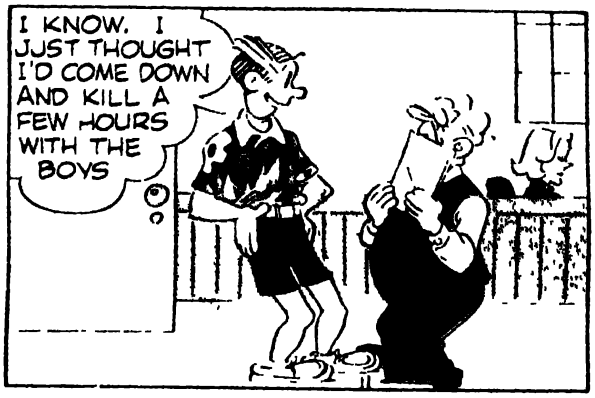


"CELEBRATING? WHY, NO....I'VE BEEN MALE-BONDING!"

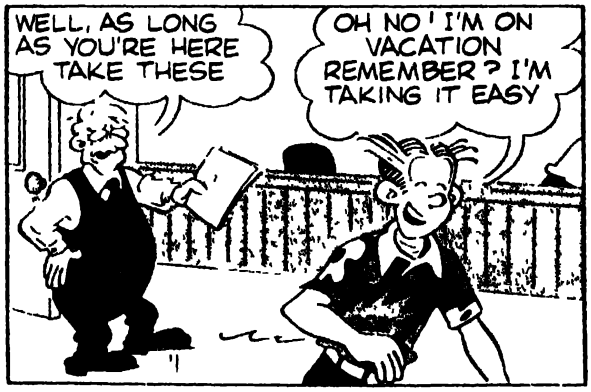


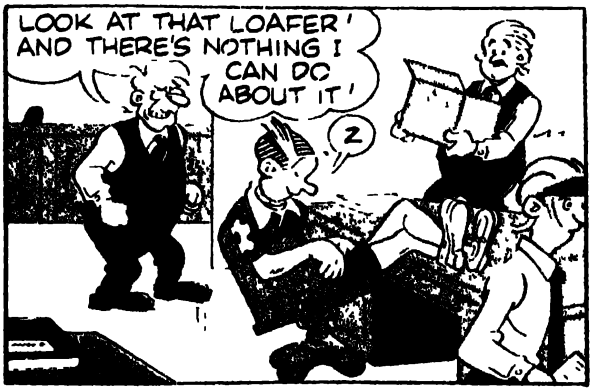
GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS

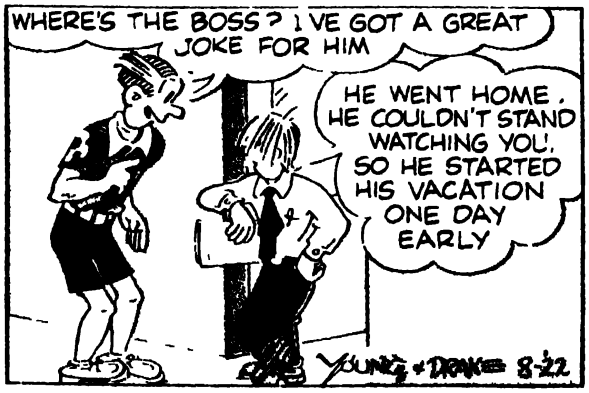




THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP







© 1993 King [illegible] World rights reserved

Wearing History

Avartan —era, a system of chronology starting from a specific point of time, with impetus from traditions past, is also the revivalist name given to Bela Shanghvi's textile art collection

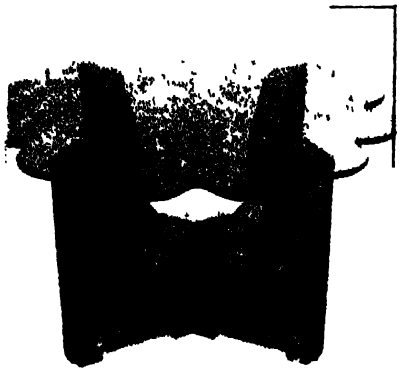
Her range was born after years of arduous labour in museums and libraries, visits to far-flung rural belts, and meeting, in course of her work, a wide cross-section of people

Skilled kaarigars were deeply enthused by her endless reserves of energy to resume the livelihood their forefathers had once pursued

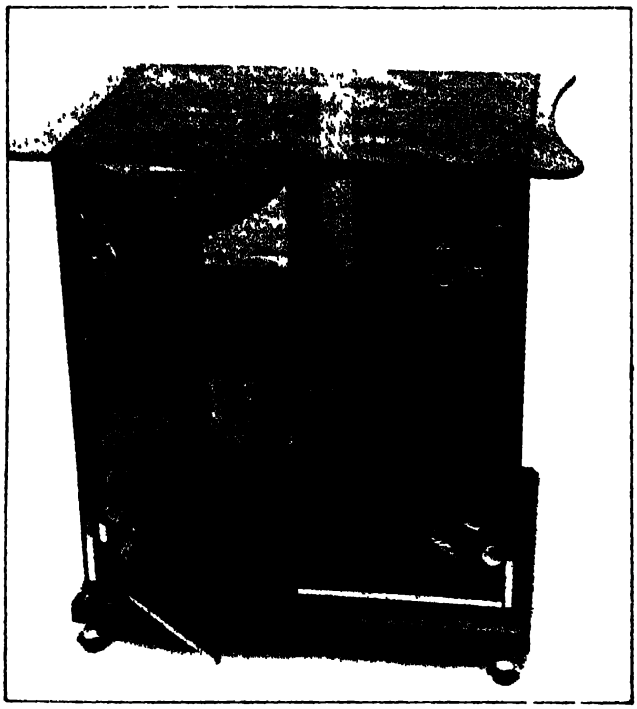
What followed was a resurrection Of Aashavali, Atlas, Bandhni, Block Prints, Paithani, Patola, Chanderi, Chintz, Mashru, Tanchoi, Taheriya and the breathtaking varieties of embroidered textiles Dharwar, Kasauti, Rabari work and Kathi work, to name a select few

Each work of art, blends antiquated motifs and techniques with the embellishments of Avartan's own distinctive signature

It has also taken into its stride customised orders with clients encouraged to choose the material, the myriad colours, motifs, design construction and technique to be used along with precious pearls and stones in gold and silver encasements



Weaving strands of history, Bela Shanghvi's priceless pieces are a joy to behold - and wear



Classy and Glassy

With dwindling reserves of green cover, wood is today getting dearer and furniture-making costlier

In the wake of this 'grow more trees' climate, Glassy decided on the idea of total glass made furniture as a means to substitute wood

Glassy's various items are created by drawing and designing---the onus of whose exclusivity rests entirely on its proprietor, Shantanu Mukherjee

This high-tech mode of interior decoration combines the glamour of glass and the tough tolerance to weight, of wood -- making its furniture non-fragile It's washable and can be handled with relative ease

The classy yet contemporary designs have been used to make dining tables, TV stands, book shelves, mirrors, or even sofas and chairs

On display at the recently held Industrial India Trade Fair, Glassy's wares have made it the Best Award Winner at the city's prestigious trade meet

Glassy has truly brought in some wood-shattering innovations

Rajlakshmi Bhattacharyya

In

THE PICK OF THE WEEK

VIDEOS

Police Academy Mission to Moscow Just when we thought the cold war was over, leave it to the Academy guys to put the heat on

After half a century of opposition and a bitter cold war, the two largest super powers have finally begun working together As part of the cooperation plan there is an exchange visit of the Academy mates to Moscow city, where the mates would display their super-efficiency and also impart training to the Moscow police

Russian police, for years, have always feared the Russian godfather, Konstantine Konali (Row Perlman) Hence the good old mates get banded together in Moscow to tackle Konstantine

But Konali has a master plan — to swindle the entire world with the help of a video game which can access any computer in the world Once the video game breaks them, be it the the New York Stock Exchange or the Landen Fish Market, any computer is easy

BOOKS

All the Nice Girls*, Barbara Anderson: The story is set in 1962. Sophie Flynn loves a sailor at Devonport Naval Base in New Zealand. However, he's not her trusting husband, William. She's fedup with the womanising Commodore and to win him back she decides to to break every moral and naval rule she lives by.

An engrossing social comedy in which the author has perfectly detailed the time and place, thereby making Sophie's dilemmas agonisingly real.

You simply can't ignore the small details penned by the author to discover whether Sophie finally gets what it takes to make herself a life.

Published by Jonathan Cape; £14.99.

LIFESTYLE

Strolly It's VIP's latest launch in the Skybags range of soft luggage

There's a cabin-sized bag with an inbuilt trolley that makes travelling smooth and convenient What's more, it is made with imported denier polyester which gives it durability and a distinctly with-it look

A telescopic handle and a set of recessed wheels make travel just a cake walk And yes, you could have your pick from a choice of three colours black, blue and green

Priced at Rs 1,625, care to travel hassle-free?

ART

Art for arts sake:* In a bid to promote art, Park Hotel, Calcutta, has once again come up with a unique way of showing to the cultured cognoscenti its aesthetic inclinations.

This follows since the play it had helped stage in one of its banquet halls — reaffirming that haute cuisine needn't be its only cup of tea.

Works of 30-odd painters from Arts Acre are on display at the exhibition-cum-sale, capturing through ink, ink and acrylic, watercolour, oil and mixed media the artists' perception of life and colours.

The hotel's makeshift gallery will be open to visitors from 12 noon-8pm everyday till January 20 — an experience you ought not to miss.

TASTINGS

Break with flakes What better way to get cracking every day than to have Kellogg's ready-to-eat cereals in three crunchy options corn, wheat and basmati rice

If their hype is to be believed, Kellogg's cereal with milk and fruit, not only satisfies the family's morning energy needs — it's actually proven to increase alertness and memory

And before we forget, Kellogg's cereals are toasted, not fried (99 per cent fat-free and 100 per cent cholesterol-free) So weight-watchers can actually make a meal of it

Right now, you can only have these nutritious packs ordered from Bombay

RASOI

JIGGS KALRA

We met the beautiful Sheridan Rogers when she visited India to record a series of programmes for Radio Australia We were delighted to discover that the interviews were to be conducted by a food lover with a penchant for Indian delicacies We carried our conversations over three extended and extraordinary sessions distributed over a car ride and several restaurants Unlike other foodwriters with preconceived notions about Indian food who habitually put words in your mouth, Rogers was astonishingly easy on the nerves presence Considering her stature she is a major celebrity she has a wonderful knack of engaging you in dialogue and ferreting out the information she requires

Trained at the Leiths School of Food & Wine in London, Rogers writes for major Australian newspapers and lifestyle magazines She is the author of three superb food volumes We wheedled from her two recipes to usher in the New Year for Rasoi readers – both published in Seasonal Entertaining and have great pleasure in presenting them to you

BLOWAWAY SPONGE WITH CRYSTALLISED ROSE PETALS

INGREDIENTS

The Sponge

4 Egg yolks
4 Egg whites
A pinch of Salt
110 g / 1/2 cup Sugar
60 g / 2 oz Cornflour
6 g / 2 tsp Flour (all purpose)
5 g / 1 tsp cream of Tartare
2.5 g / 1/2 tsp Baking soda
Icing sugar for dusting
Single light cream to spread

The Rose Petal Jam

200 g / 7 oz Rose petals
375 g / 13 oz Sugar
30 ml / 2 tbs Lemon juice
Commercial Pactin

The Crystallised Rose Petals

100 g / 3 oz Rose petals
1 Egg white
A pinch of Salt
220 g / 1 cup Castor sugar (vanilla flavoured)

Serves 4

PREPARATION

The blowaway sponge

Beat the egg whites with a pinch of salt until stiff, then gradually add the sugar until thick and glossy While still beating add the yolks, one at a time, and continue beating until mixture forms a ribbon on top Sift the remaining ingredients and fold gently through the egg mixture

Grease and dust with flour two 8" sandwich tins (layer cake pans)

The rose petal jam: Heel* and wash the petals, then put into a large saucepan with 720 ml/3 cups of water, bring to a boil, cover and simmer for 30 minutes Remove, strain, reserving liquid and petals

Put the reserved liquid back in the pan, add the sugar, stir over medium heat until all the sugar is dissolved Increase to high heat, bring to a boil, reduce to low heat, add lemon juice and commercial pactin (read the sides of the packet to decide the required quantity, the quantity can vary from brand to brand), cook for 10 minutes or until the jam has reached setting point Remove from heat, add the reserved petals, stir and transfer to hot, sterile jars Seal when cold

The crystallised rose petals. Wash the rose petals carefully and pat dry Beat the egg white with salt and 5 ml/1 tsp of water until foamy Brush foam gently on each petal with a pastry brush Make sure that there is no excess white on the petal surfaces (you may require another egg white) Shake or dust the sugar on to both sides of the petals so that they are delicately, but evenly, coated Put on a tray lined with waxed paper and allow to dry for 2-3 days Store in an airtight container in the refrigerator until required

The oven: Pre-heat to 375°F

BAKING

Put the tins in the pre-heated oven and bake for 20 minutes or until the

Blowaway Sponge with Crystallised Rose Petals

tops spring back when touched with a finger and the cake has shrunk slightly away from the sides of the tin Turnout immediately onto grease-proof paper which has been dusted with icing sugar

ASSEMBLING
When cool, spread equal quantities of whipped cream and rose petal jam on each of the two sponges

TO SERVE
Place one sponge on top of the other and garnish with crystallised rose petals

*To heel a rose, remove the white part at the base of the petal

TURKISH DELIGHT

INGREDIENTS
50 g / 4 tbs Gelatine
900 g / 2 lb Sugar
1 strip Orange peel
20 ml / 4 tsp Rosewater
Few drops Cochineal (red food colouring)
125 g / 1 cup Pistachio nuts or Roasted almonds
Icing sugar mixed with a little cornflour

Serves: 8

Preparation time: 1 30 hours

PREPARATION
The gelatine. Put sugar in a saucepan, add 300 ml/1 1/4 cups of water and stir over medium heat until it dissolves (it should look clear and runny)

The sugar: Put sugar in a heavy saucepan, add 300 ml / 1 1/4 cups of water and the strip of orange peel, stir over medium heat with a wooden spoon until the sugar dissolves (if crystals form on the side of the pan, brush down with a brush dipped in warm water), bring to a boil, remove from heat and add dissloved gelatine Return to heat and simmer gently over low heat for 15-20 minutes, stirring con stantly Remove from heat, take out the orange peel, stir-in rosewater, cochineal and nuts, cover the pan and reserve for minutes

Turkish Delight

Skim off any skin that has formed on top and pour into a 11" × 7" × 2 1/4" lamington tray (jelly roll pan) which has been rinsed with water Allow to set, preferably overnight, in the refrigerator

Sift together the icing sugar and cornflour, and rub a little of this over the surface of the Turkish delight Using a sharp knife, dipped in the icing sugar mixture, cut the Turkish delight into squares or diamonds (like burfee) or any other shape that you like and toss in the icing square mixture Decorate with chandi ka varq Store between sheets of wax paper with more sifted icing sugar and cornflour placed between each sheet

NOTE: All weights are nett, that is post-preparation, and not gross ■

LAKSHMI PARVATHI, who left her husband of 20 years and grownup son to move into the NTR household as his biographer, is now his second wife. As the woman behind his re-emergence to political power, she is said to have a major say in affairs of the Telugu Desam Party. Lakshmi has plans, not to be the next CM as outsiders seem to think, but to begin a residential school, a library and a museum, all dedicated to NTR, besides penning a serial for a local magazine based on his real life.

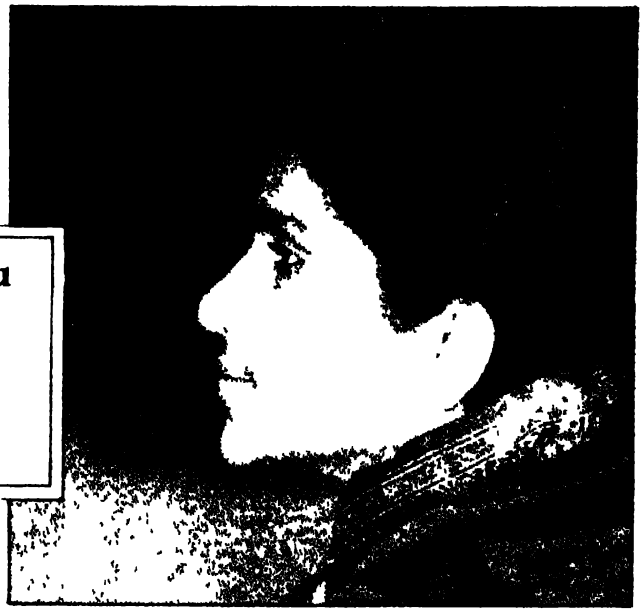
What is your idea of perfect happiness?
Keeping faith in whatever you want to do, disregarding criticism, like my marriage to NTR



What is your greatest fear?
Fear of losing NTR I wish I had met him at least 20 years ago and married him then

Who or what has been the greatest influence in your life?
Literature Particularly, mythology I grew up in an orthodox family, though my father had communist leanings But it was NTR's films on mythology that gave a new direction to my literary talent Many of my admirers, while I was singing Harikatha, know how I used to copy NTR's couplets from the films

What do you dislike most in others?
Hypocrisy Many TDP leaders come to congratulate me on my marriage to NTR, but later ridiculed me behind my back

How would you like to die?

In NTR's laps

Sunil Sooley

What do you dislike most in yourself?
My short height I wish I had a better personality to suit NTR in stature Often, NTR has to bend to camouflage the height-gap when posing for a press photograph

What is your most precious possession?
The unpublished and unfinished works of NTR Now he wants me to complete them

What objects do you always carry?
My bag contains no cosmetics I always carry a book on gayatrijapam and some herbal medicine

What makes you most depressed?
My failure to come upto expectations of the adored 'deity' (aradhyadaivam) I cannot match his knowledge of Sanskrit scriptures

What do you dislike most on your appearance?
I feel embarrassed that I am neither a beauty nor an intellectual giant to stand next to NTR

What is your favourite word?
Service to society, through service to NTR

What is your favourite journey?
Earlier (before my marriage to NTR), it used to be the journey from Guntur to Hyderabad to meet him Now it gives me abundant pleasure to follow wherever he takes me

What is your favourite dream?
That NTR is in power always and serving the poor

What is your nightmare?
Life without NTR And to cook non-vegetarian dishes for NTR (I am a vegetarian, strictly)

What or who is the greatest love of your life?
NTR, of course

What is your source of sustenance?
My ability to adjust to new environment and keep pace with developments

What has been your happiest moment?

When NTR announced our marriage at Tirupati last year and called me, 'Lakshmi, come here'

On what occasions do you lie?
Never

What is your greatest regret?
I regret having caused pain to my parents when I decided to marry NTR Now, they too have approved the marriage

What has been your happiest moment?
When NTR announced our marriage at Tirupati last year and called me, "Lakshmi, come here"

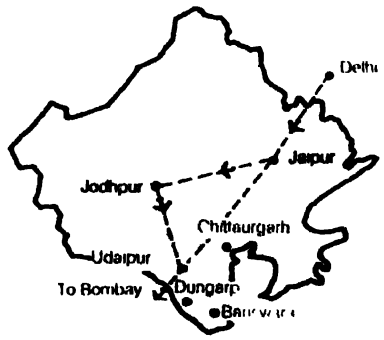
What brings tears to your eyes?
My troublesome past and the vicious campaign of the Congress on my personal life

How do you relax?
I have to keep pace with NTR in his daily chores He starts his day at 2 30 am Only when he gets busy with party work or the government that I have free time I read and re-write many slokas and poems that NTR wants translated

What do you envy most in others?
When NTR reposes more confidence in others

How would you like to be remembered?
As a good housewife and as a lifelong assistant to NTR

How would you like to die?
In NTR's lap



As Beautiful As The Land She Belongs To

Rolling hills, meandering streams and verdant forests Tucked away in the Aravalli ranges, this scenic landscape, comprising Banswara and Dungarpur districts and adjoining parts of Udaipur and Chittaurgarh, is the heartland of Bhil tribals.

Lively, sparkling people, Bhils have been celebrated in history and legend for their bravery Their name itself, deriving from 'Bil' meaning bow, testifies to their skill in archery Wedded to the forest, and never happy away from it, the Bhils represent a culture unique in itself. Their lifestyles and beliefs, their joie de vivre, their fairs and festivals, specially the Baneshwar Fair (Jan-Feb) are altogether delightful.

TRAVEL INFORMATION Nearest Airport-Udaipur
Distance by Road- Udaipur-Dungarpur 120 kms , Dungarpur-Banswara 135 kms , Udaipur-Chittaurgarh 112 kms

Rajasthan - The enchantment never ends

RAJASTHAN TOURISM PARYATAN BHAWAN, Govt Hostel Campus, Jaipur-302 001 Tel 370180, 376362, Tlx 383837, 389525 Fax 0141-316045 · Gram ATITHI
* Rajasthan Tourist Reception Centre, Bikaner House Pandara Road, N Delhi- 110003 Tel 383837, 389525 Fax 011 382823 * CALCUTTA Tel 279740 * AHMEDABAD Tel 420952 * BOMBAY Tel 2835603 * MADRAS Tel 8272093

This classroom has a pilot. A fashion designer. An architect.

A beauty queen

A surgeon.

And

a nasty spark

in the mains.

Fortunately, MDS has done its homework.

MDS makes a wide range of electrical safety devices In this particular case the one that saved the classroom from catastrophe was a device which prevents short circuits and overloads

Without fail Each time Every time

In more than 30 years, we've produced the widest range of miniature circuit breakers manufactured by any single Indian company Most of which have pioneered and created a market in their categories Not startling really when you consider the facts

Technology from the best in the world.

Our technical collaborations for instance are with the world leaders in the field

Dorman Smith U K in 1962

ABB Stotzkontakt Germany in 1982

ABB Elettroconduttore Italy in 1985

And a second collaboration with ABB Stotzkontakt Germany in 1988 for a new product

Products as good as the best in the world

Each of our collaborations has helped us produce a unique electrical safety device, often the first of its kind in the country Not to mention products of the highest quality

Loadster for instance A miniature circuit breaker which we introduced over three decades ago Today it is the most popular brand in India

Loadkontakt, another miniature circuit breaker which protects from short-circuits and overloads by using a' Hammer trip" principle

Loadstop, a residual current circuit breaker, which automatically disconnects the current whenever there is a leakage It also protects costly electrical installations

Then there is Superfuse, a plug-in miniature circuit breaker a truly revolutionary product Instead of a fuse wire, there's a sensitive, pre-calibrated mechanism inside which we've tested 20,000 times already It switches off within milliseconds when there is a short-circuit or an overload

Of course we're working at increasing this range And we're growing as a company too With three factories and over 500 employees And you can rest assured each and every one of us knows exactly what it is at stake

MDS

Electrical Safety Devices

Anything else isn't safe enough.

For a free brochure on How to protect your home and office from electrical hazards write to Sr Manager Marketing MDS Switchgear Ltd 318/319 Shah & Nahar Estate Worli Bombay 400 018

The Telegraph

POST MORTEM

The Mystique of Broadway

■ I was intrigued to find no mention of Charlie Chaplin in the cover story, 'Still a Hit', (December 11) It was in Broadway that Chaplin made his debut as a child thespian

Contrary to belief, Broadway has not wholly lost its pristine glory With the decline of London's West End, another Mecca for theatre lovers, Broadway today rules the roost

The fact that the theatregoers were disheartened at not getting tickets for Les Miserables, explains the unique mystique of Broadway, that it survives despite the enormous changes in the world of entertainment

Debashis Sen,
Calcutta

■ A visit to the United States is incomplete if one does not get to see a Broadway play Some of Hollywood's finest movies have been based on plays premiered in Broadway

Also, several Hollywood stars made their debut in Broadway theatres And many of them, in later years, have returned to Broadway

Calcutta, too, has a theatre tradition Could the Magazine do a story on this aspect?

Manoranjan Das,
Jamshedpur

■ Providing wholesome entertainment to the people for 101 years is no mean achievement. All the plays at Broadway have run to full houses and have been great hits.

B.N. Bose,
Calcutta

Beauty and the Beast*: A runaway hit at Broadway

■ It is amazing that Broadway has been surviving and entertaining for 101 years in the land of electronic entertainment

I wonder if the same could happen in India so that the onslaught of satellite invasion could be checked

Debabrata Mohanty,
Balasore

Rare Wit

■ The First Person interview with Amit Chaudhuri (November 20) was refreshing, witty and humorous Qualities rarely found in individuals these days

Tania Chakrabarty,
Kharagpur

■ Aishwarya Rai has rightly said her happiest moment would come, perhaps, when she would become a mother (First Person, December 4)

Biswajit Kar,
Kharagpur

INSIDE

M.G. Road, Bangalore

PAGE 4

WHY ARE more and more computer companies moving operations to Bangalore? Why is it that one can spend a two-week vacation in the city and yet not feel grotty about it? A look at what makes the Garden City so special, so seductive

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
18 MANEKA GANDHI
20 RUSKIN BOND
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
26 LIFESTYLE
27 POETRY
28 RASOI
30 FIRST PERSON

Cover Bangalore Palace by T L Ramaswamy

COVER STORY

URBAN HOLIDAY

Commercial Street: Hub of activity

With over 900 pubs, balmy weather and food too tempting to be true, Bangalore is India's only city where one can live, earn and holiday, all at the same time, says
Padma Rao-Sundarji

Koshy's Bar One of the best places to eat and drink

IN BANGALORE TO INVESTIGATE FOR GERMAN RADIO audiences why the Karnataka capital is also India's 'Silicon Valley', I decided to commence operations by asking the captains of the industry.

Hoping a couple of pitchers of beer would loosen expert tongues enough to drop indiscretions, I started at one of the 900-odd pubs in the 'city of boiled beans', which is what Bangalore reportedly means.

"Was it the clear, relatively dust-free air that made it easier for you to assemble computers here?" I asked Rajan Shetty, a Bangalore boy and fervent cyberpunk who owns a computer firm

"No man, the weather's cool, that's all. See, people like to live here no, good facilities, eating out is great ," he said lurching towards a passing waiter at Take 5, Bangalore's pub for the mid-30s generation that cut its teeth on Dylan and the Doors

Bearded Chewdy Deshpande, the genial owner of Take 5, just grinned ruefully and shook his head "Ask a minister, and do it at 11 in the morning," he suggested.

"Mr Minister, why are more and more computer companies moving operations to Bangalore?" Silence, as the minister in white Khadi beamed at me and raised a finger to order a cup of tea Desperately flaying, I tried again.

"Why is Bangalore becoming so popular with industrial concerns? What is it that makes you so special? Tell us, tell Germany ," I urged grandly, edging forward to thrust a gigantic microphone under his nose

He shifted ever so slightly and regarded me with the oh-so familiar "I'm about to spout Congress propaganda" look

"You seeeeee, weather's nice," he said, fiddling with the strap of his gold Rolex watch that matched the clasp of his cross strapped sandals

"Yes, but does that have a direct bearing on assembling computers? Is it of any particular advantage?" I persisted

"Peeeeeepull are nice," he supplied, shaking his head and smiling from ear to ear as he slurped the tea brought by a grovelling attendant

"Oh," I retreated, somewhat deflated "But what about other branches of industry? Why are they moving here? Surely the water problem

That got him Up he sat like a shot crisp Khadi crackling with starch, nostrils bristling with indignation

Water problem? What water problem? There is no water problem See, this tap water coming freeeely out, soooooo they like to come simply, that's all Let them aaaallll come, I say," he said magnanimously

As he spoke he reached out towards the wash basin, installed rather illogically in his office, making me suspect this was a frequently posed question

I wished I'd sent my Basavangudi grandmother with her plastic buckets to the minister's gleaming residence to store up enough water for the next two weeks and left to drown my frustration at Lake

Lake 5 teemed with bopping Bubpies A jazz band was tuning up to play to a jampacked, smoky room, constructed by zany Bangalore-based architect, Nicky Arni, who at that precise moment, was running his hand pensively down one of the half-built pillars that ran the length of the room, wondering whether it was losing its intentional look of being part-demolished

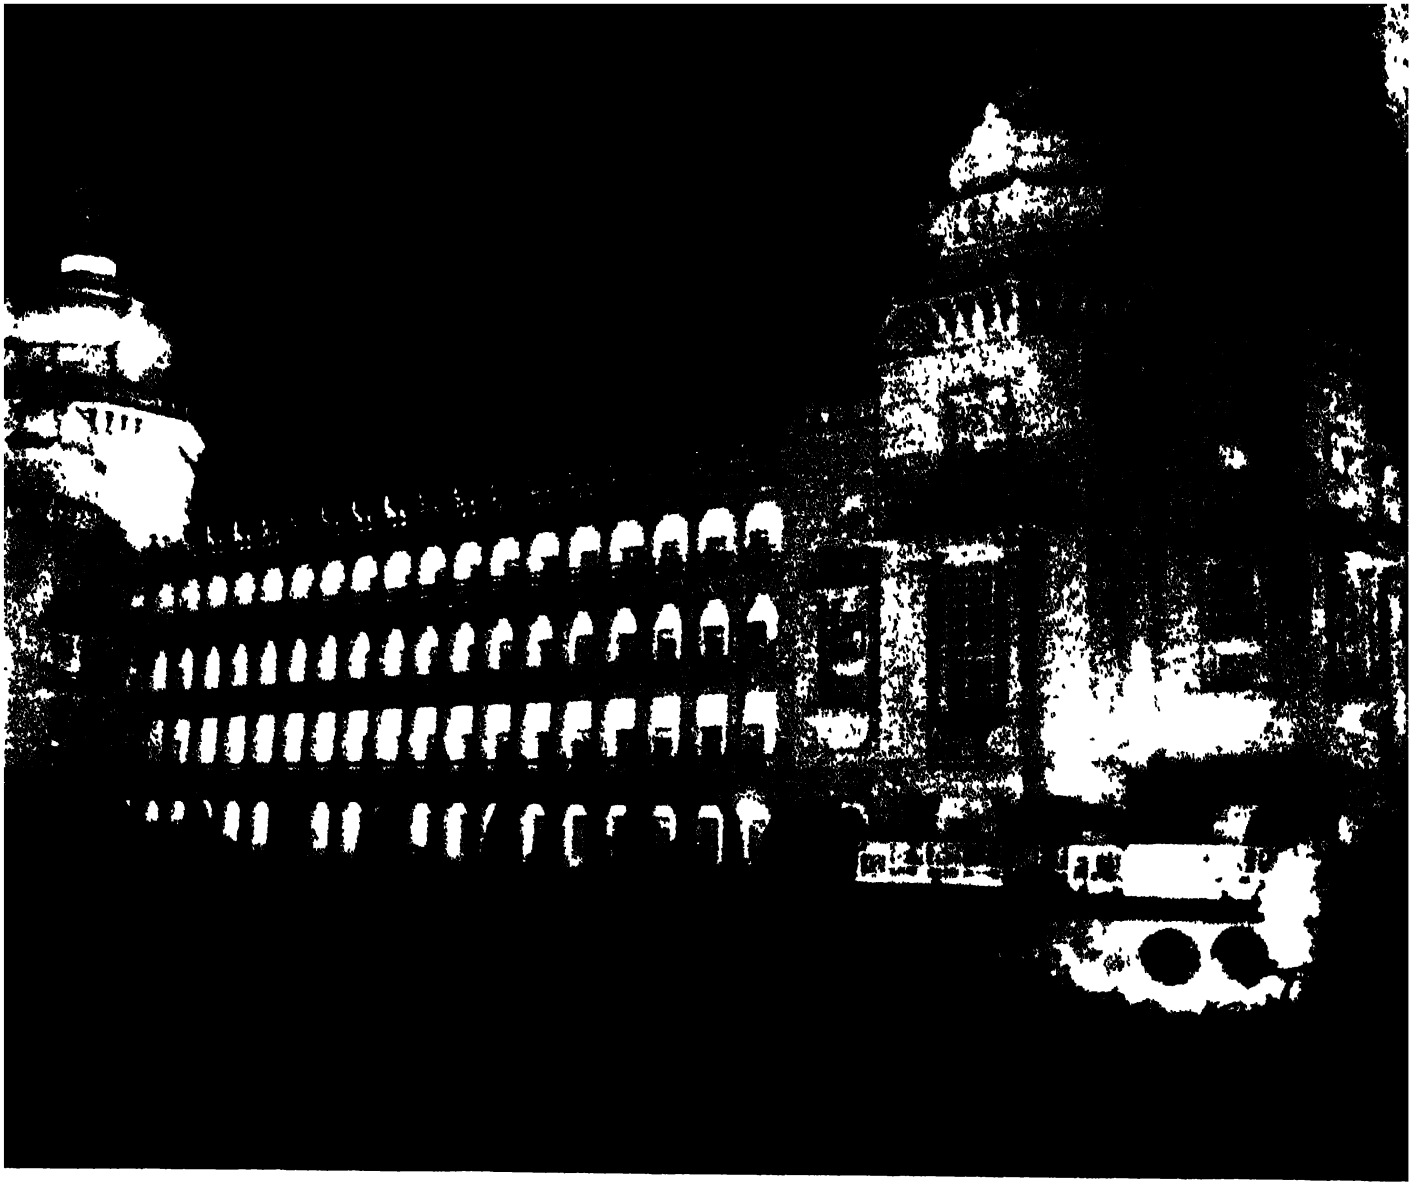
"I say, MTV's coming daa, MTV's coming daa," ran the buzz through the pub All at once, the ladies of Bangalore struck attitudes and geared up to answer unpromptu questions in the whackiest possible way while their men practised slouching more effectively over their pitchers of beer

A bald-headed Brit with an earring was holding forth in a loud East London accent on how "poob loonches would mike awe the diffrince, mate to his silent, staring friend

Took a walk in Cubbon Park full of gnarled trees aflame with vermilion brilliance to figure out how to find someone who could enlighten me an I stopped at the marble statue of Queen Victoria grouching into several chins that guards the entrance to the green expanse in the heart of the city

As the first rays of the sun settled on the Queen, who - it is rumoured - is soon to make room for an iridescent-blue plaster-of Paris one of some illustrious freedom-fighter, pointing as usual - to an unknown object in the sky, the answer dawned

Brigade Road Bangalore's showpiece



Rashbehar Das

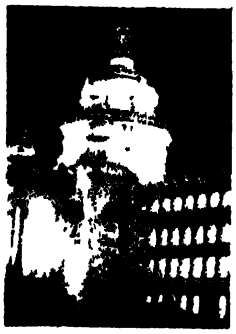
The illuminated Assembly House

People consume vast quantities of alcohol in public with nobody — cops included — losing their shirts over the fact and women go out late at night without having to reckon with the grandsons of chief ministers giving them the chase to pinch their buttocks or worse

on me

It really was as simple as that Bangalore is the only city in India where it is possible to live, earn and holiday at the same time In other words, this is India's only urban centre where you can spend a two-week vacation at home and not feel too grotty about it

Apart from an ideal location six to 10 hours away from the coast (Mangalore, Goa), three to six away from the mountains (Coorg, Nilgiris) and mercifully a three-hour flight and thousands of kilometres away from Parliament House, New Delhi—dammit, they were right



The climate really is seductively perfect and a perfectly valid reason for anyone - be it computer companies or shower curtain-ring salesmen — to move here

Houses and flats are better constructed, they've heard of parquet flooring and even use it to advantage in Bangalore, and your money generally gets you better value for almost anything you covet

People consume vast quantities of alcohol in public with nobody -- cops included - losing their shirts over the fact and women go out late at night without having to reckon with the grandsons of chief ministers giving them the chase to pinch their buttocks or worse

No longer is the night bird restricted to dark, five-star pleasure-domes where an omlette would cost him his nest egg

And, best of all, many a lazy afternoon can be spent licking the salt off

There is none of the frenzied survival panic in Bangalore that is so evident in Bombay and even Delhi. Karnataka shopkeepers display teeth-picking nonchalance but no must-buy-otherwise-get-lost rudeness that typifies smart establishments elsewhere.

DS Nawaz

A remnant of colonial architecture

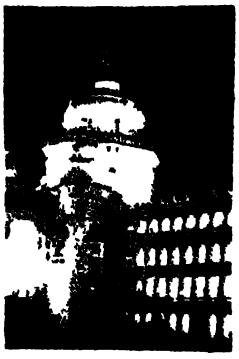
Bloody Marys at the Bangalore Club, where the chattering, wandering jeunesse doree of Bangalore, anxiously place vast orders of kababs to swaying, soporific waiters who get them all mixed up and nobody minds — or remembers what they ordered anyway — as the drunken afternoon wears on

The Jazz Yatra can be witnessed in an open air amphitheatre instead of going through the ignominy of being frisked by sweaty New Delhi cops and holding up inside the claustrophobic Siri Fort auditorium, guaranteed to kill spontaneity, the very essence of jazz

Yes, the weather is nice, the people are nice, albeit rendered somewhat sluggish by too much of La Dolce Vita — and the water problem not half as bad as Madras or other cities

Theatre groups are constantly writing, re-writing and performing all of India's evils translated in dramatic terms — ranging from Arjun Sajnani's slick, polished productions to Mahesh Dattani's — very justified — angst for the plight of Indian elite existence

Urban professionals abound everywhere — in smart suits and ties — darting around as if vast fortunes were to be made any minute and curiously still seem to have the time to spend with harried friends from Delhi under Hotel Victoria's sprawling raintree for Sri Lanka pork curries



There is none of the frenzied survival panic in Bangalore that is so evident in Bombay and even Delhi Karnataka shopkeepers display teeth-picking nonchalance, but no must-buy-otherwise-get-lost rudeness that typifies smart establishments elsewhere

Restaurants serve up value for money and — more important — food unavailable even in the smartest five star speciality restaurants elsewhere in Indian conurbations

Prince's on M G Road is one such example Forget the mock-Regency interiors and concentrate instead on the feast Continental means just that — no indigenous versions like Punjabi-Provencal here

Guzzle barrels of beer or roll your tongue on Grover Vineyards' full-bodied but dry red wine and indulge in the luxury of juicy medallions of beef or whatever you like dissolving in your mouth along with your best resolutions to watch your calories And at the end of it all, even your wallet still bulges with well-being

Everyone seemingly has time to waste and so should you, if you're passing through Bangalore Hang out in the garden restaurant of the Hotel Victoria where it takes an average of an hour for each order to arrive, but the

Tipu Sultan's summer palace, once beautiful, is a sorry sight today. Nothing, but nothing, remains of the murals and elaborate carvings that must have once adorned the walls. All that is liberally splattered everywhere are signs that paan-chewing killjoys were once here waiters are delightful relics — almost as old as the house itself — who serve you with gentleness and shaky hands

Bangaloreans take their siesta very seriously and it can often stretch to four hours an otherwise busy local executive cousin being a perfect example, so use it as an opportunity to stroll down Brigade Road, off M G Road

This is where you can browse through odd assortments of cheap, outrageously smart but also notoriously warped sunglasses, sassy clothes, shoes and peek into a rundown but popular Chinese restaurant which many Bangaloreans swear belongs to the Dalai Lama's sister

In Brigade Road, stop to ask for some passion fruit juice at the Nilgiris Dairy juice stall

"Gotthilla" — Dunno — is not what the man at the counter is likely to say, nor will he bat his eyelids in incomprehension at the mention of the exotic fruit "Season illa," is what he might settle for

"Gotthilla" is the prerogative of the city's notorious rip-off autorickshaw drivers who, like their counterparts almost all over India can tell you are an out-of-towner almost just by watching you walk up to the vehicle

It is typical that in a country where five-year-old brats at steering wheels make headlines in national dailies, Pub World and many others turn a blind eye to goggle-eyed kids of all sizes, shapes and ages and at all times of the day, silently witnessing their parents and other adults getting sozzled and seemingly enjoying it

Reckon with being taken for many joy-rides, but don't get hot under the collar — it'll probably give you an opportunity to see parts of the town you are not likely to visit, such as Richard's Square and Russel Market

A profusion of bright plastic buckets and kitchenware greets you at Russell Market But don't be put off Behind the pots and pans, is a delightful back alley full of junk and antique shops, abounding in weird and wonderful objects like old British ladies' travelling mirrors and ceramic water filters

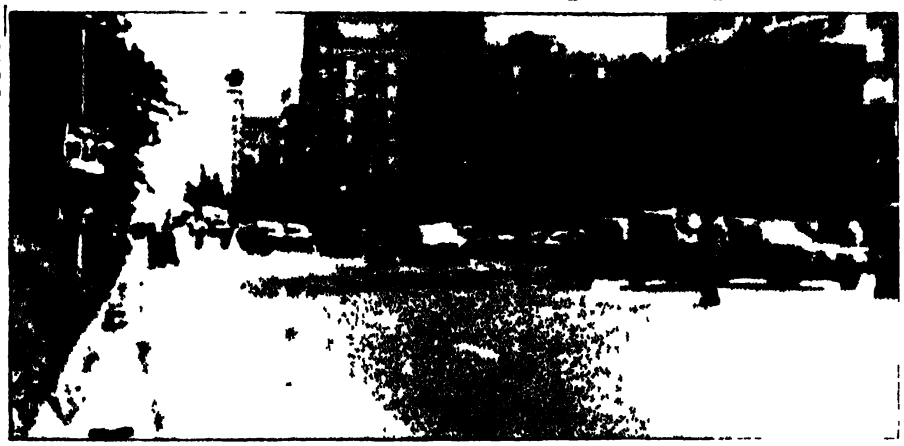
The shopkeepers will dolefully beseech you to pay them their price as they all have daughters ranging between six and 12 in number to marry off but haggle with hard-hearted resolve till they relent

Russell Market is also where the small, bustling Taj restaurant serves the richest biryani this side of the Golconda Fort

Work it off by walking across to Commercial Street to buy mosquito nets and nifty hats in all colours, sizes and shapes, but not before you've peered into the shops that buy and sell old

Russell Market Selling anything from flowers to fowl

C S Nawaz



bottles by the kilo on the way there

The narrow road leading to Commercial Street is full of busy men sitting on cushions and talking business on the telephone amid mounds of beautifully coloured old soda bottles and those huge, sweet jars you see lying on their sides in shops

Commercial Street also has some very old shops in venerable houses which have still retained their intricate wrought-iron railings, patterned tiles and grandfather clocks

But an even better place to get a feel of the kind of grandiose colonial and Fifties-style architecture is the downtown Bangalore Cantonment area — more precisely Lavelle Road, Grant Road, Vittal Mallya Road and Kasturba Road

Many residents have thankfully preferred to retain the look, even

D S Nawaz

M G Road High profile

though — as one tired, elderly aunt told me — it is getting increasingly difficult to maintain such lavish gardens and living space

No matter what anyone tells you, do not take the trouble of driving out to view one of India's oldest banyan tree on the outskirts of Bangalore or even Tipu Sultan's summer palace The tree is but a slate for thousands of Suresh loves Ritas, Raju loves Malinis and a pissoir for every urgent male on a visit

It also abounds in aggressive monkeys, both of the rhesus and human variety, the only difference being the former kind live on the branches of tress while the college-going latter variety is wilfully brought to the spot in buses

Tipu Sultan's summer palace, once beautiful, is a sorry sight today Nothing, but nothing remains of the murals and elaborate carvings that must have once adorned the walls All that is liberally splattered everywhere are signs that paan-chewing killjoys were once here

Do visit Basavangudi's Nandi temple on the outskirts of the Lal Bagh Gardens which themselves can be avoided, unless you want to gasp at the ingenuity of gardeners who cut hedges like elephants, camels and tigers or inspect boringly predictable rows of horticultural prowess

Nandi in the temple is a great, black, shining hulk of a stone bull and the shrine is admirably devoid of unnecessary ceremony and fussy priests who force coconuts and prasad on you and proceed to charge you for it

The temple is as it was meant to be quiet, cool, dark and meditative — at least it was when I visited it

There isn't much else by way of tourist sites in Bangalore except for the Old Post Office and the Library — charming old buildings — in the middle of Cubbon Park The Library is said to have a cobwebbed, dusty collection of curious old British books

But if you are 30-ish, not particularly into religious form or ceremony or 'haring' around from tourist spot to spot with your nose buried in a travel guide, then your time is bound to be taken up just checking out all the watering-holes and feeding-troughs Bangalore has to offer

There is Pub World, a somewhat gaudy establishment divided into four supposedly international sections including a German one called 'Der Keller' (The Cellar)

But it is typical that in a country where five-year-old brats at steering wheels make headlines in national dailies, Pub World and many others turn a blind eye to goggle-eyed kids of all sizes, shapes and ages and at all times of the day, silently witnessing their parents and other adults getting sozzled and seemingly enjoying it

It is pointless to try and urge potential travellers to go to Black Cadillac or this, that or the other, largely because given the profusion, everyone is bound to discover a hang-out of their own

The same holds good for the restaurants But one of the better ones is Shezan a leafy, garden-restaurant which does competent steaks and great apple pie, located just across the Airlines Hotel (itself to be avoided at all costs unless you want to ride the slot-machine toy horse in the garden)

If you're a chronic insomniac, then you shouldn't have a problem arriving at Mavalli Tiffin Rooms shortly after 6 for unforgettable dosas and idlis which, however, are usually sold out by the time the rest of us bleary-eyed night animals rise for breakfast at — say, 8

One of the best places to eat, drink or even just read or write over endless cups of tea is Koshy's Bar and Restaurant Forget the Jewel Box — shaded-glass section for courting couples — go for the dining hall Great Appam breakfasts on Sunday and divine colonial curries on all other days

And as at the Victoria Koshy has delightful waiters who wander around distractedly, flicking at little specks of dust here or there and placing the sauce, pickles and salt and pepper cellars down for the millionth time that day

They give you a fatherly, disapproving look as you hiccup your second order of beer and will occasionally bring it to you holding it in a napkin to protect your feminine honour — actually unnecessary, given that the gorging, largely unconcerned Bangalore males around are used to the sight of female tipplers

And like the Bangalore Club, Koshy's is also a great place to eavesdrop on conversations at lunch to gain valuable insights into what makes Bangalore boys and girls tick

Try and get friends to take you to Hessarghatta Lake for a day's outing with a game of tennis thrown in at the adjoining Boathouse, where toothless ballboys in khaki shorts, chortle delightedly as they bound across the makeshift fence to gather balls for you

When I finally left the city described in a thousand cliches as Asia's fastest-growing, Silicon Valley, Garden City, etc, my questions were pretty much answered

The only one that still nagged me and played on my mind was, why on earth the Dalai Lama's sister would choose to sell momos in Bangalore when she could have picked any sympathetic and — more affluent — country than ours? The weather perhaps? ■

INNER EYE — Bejan Daruwalla

Aries

March 21 – April 20

Ganesha says the moon's quarter makes you personalise, focus on things near to your heart and your secret desires At the same time, pressures of work will continue to mount rapidly and you will have to give your best shot to cope with it January 11, 14 and 15 hold promise of success

Taurus

April 21 – May 20

Venus ushers in money, say by loans, foreign affairs, buying/selling A trip is more than probable, in fact, it is fated Or, visitors meet you for work and play Expenses will mount Religious ceremonies, pilgrimages, enlisting in clubs, socialising and publicity are fated

Gemini

May 1 – June 20

Friends and associates will pitch in Be amiable Smile Believe me, it will help you Mercury-Jupiter happy placing enhances your status and you could bag a contract, a tender Invest wisely Now is the time to buy and sell, if you feel like, you can get expert advice Reach out to people

Cancer

June 21 – July 20

Hard work, a round of fun, and a job well done sums it all up for you Accept invitations and be a part of the crowd and the proceedings Many of you will make a mighty splash because Venus conjuncts Jupiter That means, you could well be a step or two nearer your desire

Leo

July 21 – August 21

You will be upto your eyes and ears in work, changing the course and direction of your work pattern, taking chances and making up for lost time, and your creative juices will flow most powerfully Your range will vary from a simple trip to a journey A promising week

Virgo

August 22 – September 22

There are three trends in simultaneous operation Childbirth, education, research, developing a hobby is one Focus on the home/office in terms of renovation, decoration, buying and selling could be another important direction of the year A sense of justice and fairplay foretold

Libra

September 23 – October 22

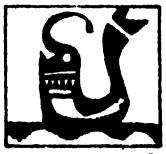
It is in your dealing with mate, partners, and people in general, that you will be tried and tested thoroughly Not to lose your cool On the positive side, you will be well known, have admirers and connect creatively with people Your house will be the centre of attention

Scorpio

October 23 – November 22

Stimulating encounters give you the fillip to grow, generate money have more friends and thus be happy Working folks could expect a pay hike, a bonus, big and beautiful Relationships can be improved by working on them Letters, calls, news and views should be given priority

Sagittarius



November 23 – December 20

Expect financial gains to come your way There will be struggle for power and position Get rid of unnecessary expenses A trip, a journey, or maybe a pilgrimage of sorts is on the cards This is time to make a major move Long-distance connections could be in the offing

Capricorn

December 21 – January 19

You will be in your element organising, experimenting, clearing dead wood, separating the grain from the husk Home conditions and influences will apply strongly for you Whether you are the benefactor or the beneficiary, goodwill is evident and that will go a long way

Aquarius

January 20 – February 18

There is definitely plenty of movement The week also points to a journey, calls, letters, correspondence, contacts, collaborations, negotiations and even final settlements A good week to move forward Changes on the anvil You will also entertain extensively

Pisces

February 19 – March 20

The sun conjuncts Neptune, your ruling planet, giving you both vision and tenacity the two attributes which often lead to success There will be talk of a promotion and it will happen in the next four months, says Ganesha Focus on finance and family could help recharge your batteries

BIRTHDAYS

January 8: Moon's quarter could pose a few problems for you, says Ganesha. Home conditions may not be quite pleasant and congenial.

January 9: Venus-Mars in unhappy placing means you will have to progress slowly, protect your flanks from the flak of the opposition The worst should be over by April

January 10: Moon-Saturn in good formation leads to progress, may be a bit slow, but most certainly very sure Your sacrifices will also be noted and appreciated.

January 11: There will be good luck in store and the resultant prediction will be success, glory, teaching, writing, ability to grow and evolve

January 12: Moon-saturn bad placing could mean health and relationship problems Colleagues and subordinates could trip you

January 13: Sun-Neptune conjunction leads to great vision and determination to succeed.

January 14: Venus-Jupiter gives you the charm and luck to complete unfinished projects and start new ones Those whose work or love has an overseas slant, find sweet satisfaction

FICTION

PORTRAIT OF AN ARTIST

BY AMIT CHAUDHURI

The house was in a lane in a middle-middle class area which curved at a right angle at one end, and, at the other, led to the main road During the Durga Puja, the balconies of the neighbouring houses would be lit with green and blue neon lights, and families would walk towards the end of the lane that curved to the right, and join the crowd that was either coming from or walking towards the goddess Bank clerks, schoolteachers, small businessmen, with their wives and children, the boys in shorts and the girls in frocks, looking like the pictures of children on the covers of exercise books, formed that tireless crowd On the other side of the lane, after one had crossed the main road, one came to a lake with spacious adjoining walks where couples strolled in the evening, and children, accompanied by maidservants, came to play Binoy and I would walk past the lake in the afternoon, when women washed saris or scoured utensils with ash on its steps, and the heat had just ebbed into a cloudy, dream-like vacancy

It was in my uncle's house that, during one of my visits, I met my cousin's English tutor, whom they never referred to by name, but called 'mastermoshai' He was once a manager in an English firm, but had apparently left it after his wife and children had died in a motor accident After that, he had roamed the streets of Calcutta for a year, seldom returning home, and only lately had he reached, once more, a kind of settled state He now lived in his house with his servant, Ganesh, and gave English tuition for a small fee to children like my cousins How he had materialised into my cousins' lives I never really found out, but I gathered that he had been recommended to them by a relative on their mother's side

When I met mastermoshai I was 16 years old, and had had a poem published in the Youth Times, a magazine now defunct Prior to the meeting, while I was still in Bombay, my cousins had shown it to him, so that when I arrived, Binoy smiled and said to me, "Mastermoshai was very impressed by your poem" On Saturday morning, I saw a bespectacled man in his early fifties, dressed in a shirt and lungi, enter the small room where Binoy and Robi studied Approaching the room later, I saw an unlikely lesson in progress, for Binoy and Robi, and even little Mou, were sitting, heads bent, each staring at a book, while the bespectacled man seemed to be reading the exercise books in which they had written their answers It was a time of particular significance, for Binoy, at fifteen, would be writing his matriculation finals at the end of the year, as would Robi two years later After the finals, Binoy would have to decide whether he would take Science or Commerce, he would have to be readmitted to his school, or to another school, depending on how well he did, for his upper matriculation exams, and his life would receive an abrupt push towards a certain direction Even so, he would not be free of the English language and its literature for at least the next two years, although it would be increasingly marginalised from his life

So they sat in that room, reading poems by Longfellow or Tennyson, or short stories by Saki, Binoy the least interested among them, for his favourite subjects were arithmetic and art, and his favourite pastime, football But it said something for their affection for this man, who sat studying their answers, that even Binoy had begun to show signs of interest in the English lesson Interrupting the tuition at one point, my aunt took me into the room and introduced me to the tutor He had a very Bengali face, with short, slightly wavy, hair, a forehead of medium breadth, spectacles that belonged to his face as much as his eyes did, deep lines around his mouth, and teeth that jutted out from under his lip, making his face belong to the pre-orthodontal days His teeth were tobacco-stained, I was to find that he, like most Bengali men, smoked constantly Having now lived in England for several years, where not many men smoke, my memory of him taking a long puff on a cigarette is associated with the anachronistic, old-world atmosphere of Calcutta, with its small dreams and ambitions I don't know why I recall his face in such detail, except that there are some faces, especially those of men belonging to his generation, that have stayed in my mind, perhaps because the world that produced them is now inconceivable He was not at all handsome, but I see that he might have been attractive to his wife when he was a young man It would have been an attractiveness that is different from that of the young men of my generation, one has only to see old Bengali films to realise that men were slighter and smaller in those days, but with a proportionate elegance and agility

Robi got up from his chair, and I sat down next to mastermoshai Robi, sitting on the bed, and Binoy and Mou, looking up from their books, had formed a small, expectant audience Mastermoshai was shy, he was expected to say something about my poem When two literary men meet in Bengal, they do not ask each other personal questions, but straightaway enter realms of the abstract and articulate Mastermoshai's first question to me was, in an English accent tempered by the modulations of Bengali speech "Are you profoundly influenced by Eliot?" Though I was taken aback, I countered this with a few names I had recently discovered in the Penguin Modern European Poets series —Mandelstam, Montale, Brodsky Mastermoshai was impressed The next time he came to the house, he brought me a novel, a Penguin Modern Classic It was Malone Dies by Samuel Beckett, the copy, he said, belonged to one of his 'disciples' The cover had a grim but beautiful picture,a pencil sketch, of a human skull In the pages inside, difficult words had been occasionally underlined, and their meanings noted A strange world had been described there, one that I could not make sense of I took the book with me back to Bombay

It was mastermoshai who first spoke to me of Baudelaire He knew the names of the French existentialists and the titles of their books—Sartre, Camus, Being and Nothingness, The Fall—but his highest praise was reserved for Heidegger's Being and Time

The words 'being', 'subject', 'object', frequently entered our conversations,especially when he was discussing my poetry, of which I had begun to produce sizeable quantities "Every writer needs his Pound," he said to me "Il miglior fabbro— Eliot's better craftsman " He was my first impresario, showing my poem in the Youth Times to his friends and 'disciples' On another occasion, he compared himself to Leopold Bloom and me to Stephen Dedalus, adding, "Every writer needs a guide, a father-figure " On one level, he was a father to me, and on another level, a friend For, behind the big talk about literature, a fondness had grown between us, based on the ardent exchange of ideas that belonged to a foreign language and continent, ideas probably already obsolete over there, but which here, in the comfortingpresence of relatives and friends, took on a unique intensity, a freshness, a friendship that could only have formed in a country with a colonial past Even more provincial, and marginal to Europe, than Dublin was in the early 20th century, was Calcutta at the century's close Trams, rickshaws, markets, office buildings with wide, creaking stairs, bookshops, little magazines, literary critics, uncles, aunts, created this Dublinesque metropolis of which mastermoshai was a part

By the time I visited Calcutta again, another one of my poems had appeared in the large, loose-leafed pages of The Illustrated Weekly of India This magazine, easy to roll, generous to the touch, had circulated among members of my mother's family and even reached mastermoshai He had tucked it under his arm, emerged from my uncle's house, and walked off to show it to his friends— for, in south Calcutta, many literary critics and poets lived within walking distance of each other "Extraordinarily mature for seventeen years old," Binoy reported him to have said He was now ready to introduce me to his 'contacts', clerks and accountants who led a shadow-life as editors, poets, and intellectuals They were a small, stubborn band of people struggling to keep alive a sense of the urgency of modern poetry and its many movements in the midst of an enervating climate and a society with other preoccupations

One morning, mastermoshai arrived at my uncle's house He seemed to be in possession of a secret He told me to hurry up, for he was taking me to meet the editor of the Living City It was a magazine locally published in Calcutta, and I recalled that I had once picked up a copy from a pavement stall in Park Street I had found it interesting in a strange way, because its contributors were Bengalis I had never heard of, with the kind of common reassuring name you think must belong to learned people—Sukumar Mukherjee, Shibnarain Sen—all writing articles in quaint, textbookish English about Bengali literature and culture It confirmed my suspicions that the most important work in literature was being done in the regional languages In Bombay,for instance, I had sensed with some awe that Marathi poets had a highly-developed network of meeting-places and discussion groups organised around a series of roadside cafes and Irani restaurants Here, in Calcutta, the contributors to Living City seemed more middle-class and academic, and yet oddly impressive, inhabitants of a world apart The editor himself, R D Banerjee, had written an article on the Baishnab Padabali, the poets Chandidas and Bidyapati and their influence on Tagore, and the emotions associatedwith birana, or separation from the loved one or God In neat boxes by the side of certain pages, there were small poems written in a language that somehow seemed to fit in naturally with the style in which the essays had been written It was a language that all the contributors to Living City had in common, so that one man, almost, might have composed the contents of the entire magazine There were some pages that had the simplest form of advertisement—a message, or the name of a firm that could not possibly have any interest in literature— personal gestures of goodwill, old friendships, that sustained such a project,

That morning, Binoy and I were relaxing in the house, Binoy in kurta and pyjamas, and I in pyjamas and full-sleeved shirt Dressed like this, both of us accompanied mastermoshai in a

:xi, to a house in one of the lanes near thern Avenue, Binoy sitting at the :k with mastermoshai, who was nging a Rabindrasangeet, and I, in ie front, next to the taxi driver, with ne elbow in the open window In hose days, when I came to Calcutta, Binoy took a personal interest in my literary career, and visited, with mastermoshai and me, the houses of everal editors, a spectator who silently listened to our discussions and eported them later to my mother and is parents He had been my closest ompanion in childhood, we had played and fought with each other Now, it sixteen and seventeen, he and I were as tall as each other, we had reached our full adult height, though we were still boys The taxi entered a lane with two and three-storeyed houses, trees and flowers in their tiny courtyards, their facades in stages of disrepair It was the time of day when children go to school, and men to their offices, and a domestic calm in which these houses belonged entirely to women and servants was evident as we passed through the lane To be part of this pre midday hour was rare for a man The taxi driver, on mastermoshai's command, stopped at a small yellow building Stone stairs of no particular colour, which we climbed up slowly because of the darkness, mastermoshai our leader, took us past the identical bottle-green doors of the two flats on every floor, till we reached the door which had R D BANERJEE in white letters upon a black plastic nameplate Mastermoshai pressed a buzzer The three of us stood in that small space that formed the landing at each flight of stairs and the common area outside the flats, a dark square box from which stairs radiated upward and downward A balding man in spectacles, dressed in a cotton shirt, black trousers, and sandals, opened the door for us It was Mr Banerjee himself, politely but tacitly he led us inside The door, once opened, led to a long corridor that was also a verandah which formed a border to the flat, to its right, there were three rooms with their doors open, and a curtain hanging from each doorway The verandah ended in a wall, and to its left, there was a rectangular space, and then, the verandah of the opposite flat, with the same three doors The building thus seemed to enclose an empty rectangle, with the flats on its margins

Mr Banerjee took us into the first room through a white curtain with printed flowers It had a centre table, a small sofa against the wall, two armchairs facing each other, all in a faded green cloth upholstery, wooden shelves with glass panels on the left, with a few hardcovers upon them Mr Banerjee switched on the fan There was a window at the other end, with curtains that were smaller versions of the curtain at the doorway Mr Banerjee sat on the chair at that end, Binoy on the sofa, mastermoshai next to him, and I on the other armchair Mr Banerjee nodded at Binoy, and said to mastermoshai

"Is he the poet?" Binoy shifted uncomfortably, possibly wondering, suddenly, what he was doing here But, dark-complexioned, almost black, in kurta and pyjamas, large-eyed, he did look poetic

"No, no, ' said mastermoshai "He is his uncle's son This is the boy whose poems I showed you " Mr Banerjee turned to look at me

"I see," he said Unsmilingly, he told me, "I liked your poems "

Magically, tea and biscuits on a plate arrived from nowhere Our presence had set off a small domestic machinery in the flat Conversation opened up, and mastermoshai told Mr Banerjee more about me, while Binoy sipped his tea and listened

"I noticed a mood of biraha in your poems," Mr Banerjee told me "Have you ever read the Baishnab Padabali?"

"No, I haven't," I said a little hesitantly "But I am interested Could you tell me where I can buy a copy?"

"He has trouble reading Bengali," explained mastermoshai, "because he grew up in Bombay As for the Padabali, you should find it in College Street '

"I will publish your poems next month," said Mr Banerjee

Delight made us all silent We finished our tea, got up to leave, and mastermoshai thanked him profusely, while Binoy and I, as before, had merged into the background and assumed the status of bystanders Mr Banerjee closed the door, and that was the last I saw of him

On my next visit to Calcutta, I found that mastermoshai had widened his interests, he was thinking of freelancing as a copywriter, and relinquishing his job as private tutor He had inserted a small message in the Classifieds column of The Statesman, advertising his skills and availability, but the message showed such a command of the idiomatic resources of English that it would have been unintelligible to most Bengali readers. One day, he came to me and gave me a piece of paper. It was for my father, who worked in a firm that had dealings with Britannia Biscuits. "Ask him to show it to them," he said with great pride and self assurance. The piece of paper, which seemed blank at first glance, had its entire space filled with three large words written with a ball point.

BRITANNIA
IS BISCUIT

A few days later, he came up with another slogan for one of Britannia's new creations, the orange-flavoured 'Delite', and this I liked very much for it spoke to me of his whole personality. "Your taste is our Delite." I handed it to my father, who liked it as well. But, once it reached the offices of Britannia biscuits in Bombay, it was, I think, forgotten.

On my last visit before I left for England, I found that mastermoshai had already left his copy-writing days behind him and moved on to new things. He had set up a shop with his servant, from which they sold cooking-oil to customers. "I've instructed Ganesh," he told my aunt, "to make his hand tremble a little while measuring out the oil." He added, in explanation, "These are hard times." On this occasion, I did not stay in my uncle's house, but in the flat my father had bought many years ago, which now, at last, was furnished. It was the flat to which my parents would move after my father's retirement. My mother told me not to waste my holidays and to make use of my time by taking Bengali lessons from mastermoshai. "After all, he is a learned man," she said. Thus, for the first time, mastermoshai came to our flat. It was a different world inside the flat, but he regarded our affluence and difference without envy, he was not embarrassed or diminished by it. He reminisced to me about a man he had once known, the son of a maharajah, who could no longer step out of his great mansion because he could not understand the world. We sat, in an air-conditioned room, at a study-table by a great window that looked out on trees and old, aristocratic houses. The book we began to read together was the slender Chhelebela, or Boyhood, by Tagore.

"Are you enjoying it?" he asked me at one point.

"I like it very much."

"Of course," he informed me, 'you cannot understand, beneath all its lightness, its spiritual rhythm."

I protested then, a little offended. But I know now that he was right, that the music of a piece of writing becomes richer with the passing of time. Mastermoshai's Chhelebela, with his life behind him, was not the same as my Chhelebela, at the age of seventeen. The Bengali lessons continued, interrupted by discussions in which we spoke of various things, including my most recent poetry, an inexhaustible theme, and the strangely refreshing absence of tragedy in Sanskrit drama. But we did not complete the book. Mastermoshai had a small disagreement with my mother, and then my uncle, a few childish, irrational outbursts, after which I myself became rather childishly cold with him. It was not a serious breach, and would have healed. I met him again, by chance, a few days later in my uncle's house. I had put a record of Hindustani classical music on the gramophone, and listening to it, was waving one arm passionately in the air, keeping time with the music. Unknown to me, mastermoshai came and stood behind me, waving his arms as well. When I saw Binoy smiling, I turned. Mastermoshai stopped immediately, and became completely serious. With adult restraint, we acknowledged each other, and he went down the stairs.

Soon after, I left for England. Sometimes, I would ask my mother on the phone, "How is Bishnu Prasad Chakrabarty?" — for that was mastermoshai's name. Information about him was scarce, however. It seemed that, after a series of sporadic and silly quarrels, he had left his tuitions, and taken up the cooking-oil business in earnest. When I came to Calcutta from England, I longed to make up with him, but no one knew where he was. I heard that he had moved into Ganesh's house beyond the railway lines, where the nomadic poor — domestic servants, factory workers — lived in a different society with a different kind of life. Then, a few years later, my mother told me that he had died, leaving everything to Ganesh. I see now that the period in which I knew mastermoshai was a transitional one: when, after having lost his wife and children, having seen through life, he returned to his youthful enthusiasms — Baudelaire, Eliot — to temporarily regain his sanity. And then, for no good reason, he loosened his ties again.

Since that first meeting, much has changed in my life. Going to England blurred certain things and clarified others. I realised that a strange connection between this small, cold island and faraway Bengal had given rise to the small-town world of Calcutta, and even to mastermoshai, from a distance, I saw it gradually in perspective — a colonial small town, with its trams and taxis, unknown to, and cut off from, the rest of the world, full of a love for the romance of literature that I have not found anywhere else, and that is somehow a vivid part of small-town life. As for Binoy, I hardly see him these days. I live, for most of the year, in another part of the world, while he has stayed on in the house in Calcutta. He works in his father's business, and has also joined, I hear, a political theatre troupe, and performs, occasionally, in street-plays. I saw him once on the stage, dressed in silk and costume jewellery as a medieval king, a turban on his head, his dark face made pale and floury with powder. Calcutta is his universe, like a dewdrop, it holds within it the light and colours of the entire world.

(Courtesy London Review of Books)

TIME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS

DOMESTIC

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AGARTALA
IC-741	0710	3 6	IC-742	0940	3 6
IC-743	0920	daily	IC-744	1150	daily
PF-701	1130	1 3 5 7	PF 702	1610	1 3 5 7
AHMEDABAD
M9 304/109	0855	1 3 5	M9 110/301	1900	1 3 5
AIZAWL
PF-705	0730	daily	PF 706	1100	daily
BAGDOGRA
PF-707	1130	2 4 6	PF-708	1510	2 4 6
IC-721	1300	1 3 5	IC-722	1540	1 3 5
BANGALORE
IC-771	0600	daily	IC 772	1140	daily
BHUBANESWAR
IC-544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC-769	1525	1 3 5	IC 770	2120	1 3 5
BOMBAY
AI-431	0100	2
IC 676	0730	daily	IC 675	0820	daily
D2-102	0905	daily	D2 101	0835	daily
9W 202	0920	daily	9W-201	0840	daily
AI 309	1930	6	AI 306	1730	5
IC-273	1945	daily	IC 274	1850	daily
9W-212	1955	daily	9W-211	1920	daily
D2 104	2005	daily	D2 103	1935	daily
COOCH BEHAR
PF 707	1130	2 4 6	PF 708	1510	2 4 6
DELHI
			IC-262	0815	2 4 7
IC 263	0700	daily	M9-303	0825	daily
M9 304	0855	daily	4S-806	1115	1 2 3 4 5 6
4S-805	1745	1 2 3 4 5 6	AI-682	1145	1
IC 812	1515	1 3 5	IC-401	1155	daily
IC-402	1715	daily	M9 301	1900	daily
IC 261	1900	2 4 7	S2 005	1900	1 2 3 4, 5 6
M9-302	1930	daily	IC-811	1930	1 3 5
S2 006	1940	1 2 3 4 5 6	IC-264	2210	daily
DIBRUGARH
IC-703	0715	3 5	IC 704	1345	3 5
D2-181	1135	1 3 5 7	D2-181	1620	1 3 5 7
D2-183	1135	2 4 6	D2 183	1620	2, 4 6
4S-815	1145	1 2 3 4 5 6	IC 702	1630	2, 4 6 7
IC-701	1240	2 4 6 7	4S-816	1705	1 2 3 4 5 6
DIMAPUR
IC-257	1150	4 7	IC 258	1650	4, 7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
GUWAHATI
IC-703	0715	3 5	IC-704	1345	3 5
IC 707	0715	1 4 6	IC 708	1345	1 4 6
IC 711	0715	2 7	IC 712	1400	2 7
D2 181	1135	1 3 5 7	D2 181	1620	1 3 5 7
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	D2 183	1620	2 4, 6
4S 812	1145	1 2 3 4 5 6	4S 811	1705	1, 2 3 4 5 6
IC 257	1150	4 7	IC-230	1620	daily
IC 211	1240	4 6	IC-258	1650	4 7
IC-229	1310	daily	IC-212	1740	4, 6
HYDERABAD
IC 777	1500	2 4 7	IC-778	2005	2 4 7
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC 770	2120	1 3 5
IMPHAL
IC 707	0715	1 4 6	IC 256	1320	3 5
IC 255	0830	3 5	IC-708	1345	1 4 6
IC 253	1100	2 6	IC 254	1550	2 6
JORHAT
IC 213	0910	2 4 7	IC-213	1315	2 4 7
LUCKNOW
IC 812	1515	1 3 5	IC-811	1930	1 3 5
MADRAS
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC 765	1720	daily	D2 171	1045	daily
D2 172	1740	daily	IC-766	2220	daily
NAGPUR
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC 770	2120	1 3 5
PATNA
IC 249	1430	2 4 7	IC 249	1805	2 4 7
IC 812	1515	1 3 5	IC-811	1930	1 3 5
PORT BLAIR
IC 285	0640	3 5 7	IC 286	1100	2 4 6
RANCHI
IC 249	1430	2 4 7	IC-249	1805	2, 4, 7
SHILLONG
PF 701	1130	1 3 5 7	PF 702	1610	1, 3 5 7
SILCHAR
IC 255	0830	3 5	IC-260	1110	1, 7
IC 259	0830	1 7	IC-256	1320	3 5
IC-253	1100	2 6	IC 254	1550	2 6
IC-211	1240	4 6	IC-212	1740	4 6
TEZPUR
IC 213	0910	2 4 7	IC-213	1315	2 4 7
VISHAKHAPATNAM
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5

FLIGHTS

INTERNATIONAL

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AMMAN
RJ-185	1445	4	RJ 184	0705	4
AMSTERDAM
KL-876	0420	7	KL-875	0235	7
BANGKOK
IC-731	0855	2, 4 5 7	KB-106	1115	3
			KB-106	1215	5
KB-105	1125	2 6	TG-313	1240	1, 3 6
TG-314	1355	1 3 6	IC-732	1505	2, 4, 5, 7
AI 306	1910	5	AI-309	1825	6

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
■ BUCHAREST
RO-076	2040	5, 7	RO-075	1035	5, 7
■ CHITTAGONG
IC-225	1200	1	IC-226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2, 5	BG-697	1655	2, 5
■ DHAKA
BG-092	0850	4, 5	BG-091	0810	4 5
BG-092	1150	1 2, 3, 6, 7	BG-091	1110	1 2, 3, 6, 7
IC-723	1300	1, 2 5, 6, 7	IC-724	1620	1, 2 5 6, 7
BG-094	1905	1 2, 3 5 6, 7	BG-093	1825	1, 2 3, 5 6
BG-094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1 5	BG-095	2020	1 5
■ KATHMANDU
IC-747	1115	1, 3 6	IC-748	1455	1 3 6
RA-214	1400	4, 7	RA-213	1315	4 7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
■ LONDON
BA 142	2050	3 7	BA 143	1525	3 7
■ MOSCOW
SU 538	1855	4	SU 537	1655	4
■ PARO
KB-106	1200	3	KB 105	1040	2 6
KB-106	1300	5
■ SINGAPORE
AI 430	1300	1	SQ 416	2040	2 5
SQ-415	2200	2 5	AI 431	2235	1
■ SOFIA
LZ-504	1750	4	LZ 503	1650	4
■ TOKYO
AI 306	1910	5	AI 309	1825	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Romanian Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure Up	Time	Howrah	Arrival Time	Dn
2311	19 15	Delhi Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19 20	Amritsar Mail	7 55	3006
3003	20 35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13 00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tue Wed & Sat	16 15	2382
2303		Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun	16 15	2304
2301	16 30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun	10 15	2302
2305	13 45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat	12 50	2306
3073	21 00	Himgiri (Jammu Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat Arr Tues Wed & Sat	11 35	3074
5047	13 00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Su Mon Wed & Fri
3009	20 30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9 45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18 15	3008
3049	13 20	Amritsar Express	15 30	3050
3039	21 00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5 20	3040
3019	16 05	Kathgodam Express	11 55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5 00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6 30	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17 11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18 20	Asansol Express	8 45	3036
3031	21 05	Danapur Express	5 50	3032
3025	23 00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday Arr Friday	11 35	3026
3071	22 30	Jamalpur Express	5 10	3072
3015	9 55	Santiniketan Express	15 40	3016
1159	15 25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tues & Wed	6 50	1160
1171	15 25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed Arr Fri Sat & Sun	6 50	1172
3327	14 30	Shaktipunj (Chopar) Express	4 50	3328
1181	15 25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6 50	1182

Up	Time	Sealdah	Time	Dn
3141	13 40	Teesta Torsa Express Dep Mon Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed Thurs Fri Sat & Sun	6 35	3142
3143	19 15	Darjeeling Mail	8 45	3144
3111	20 15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7 15	3112
5657	6 25	Kanchanjunga Express	20 35	5658
3153	22 00	Gour Express	5 15	3154
5663	20 00	Katihar Express	4 15	5664
3151	11 45	Jammu Tawi Express	15 50	3152
3133	20 55	Mughal Saral Express via SBG Loop	12 55	3134
3103	18-20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express	10 25	3104
5185	12 40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues Thus & Sat	4 25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure Up	Time	Howrah	Arrival Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6 50 6004
8002	19 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10 8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15 2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15 8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 20 8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12 00 2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 40 7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	1940 7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13 45 6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20 8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express	22 05 8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5 00 8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10 8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5 30 8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8 25 8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30 2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15 8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00 8046
8017	16 15	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25 8018
2421	16 40	Bhubaneswar New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10
	11 05	New Delhi Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45 2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15
		Trivandrum Central Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 45 6321
		Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13 45 6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13 45 6315
6520	22 35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15
–	14 05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45 6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains please dial 2203545 54 for in coming trains 2203535 44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains dial 2203496 3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running) 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535 37

EADS AND TAILS

Maneka Gandhi

MEATING ECOLOGICAL DAMAGES

Instead of writing my column this week I am reproducing an article from the Worldwatch magazine This is an important article because India is going exactly the same way and, therefore, natural law will dictate the same results

It is in three parts, so cut this out and read with the others in the following weeks I would like you to send it to as many members of the government/administration that you can — specially Manmohan Singh and Pranab Mukherjee who have placed meat-eating and meat-selling at the top of their priorities

"When most Americans sit down to dinner they're only a bite away from unwittingly worsening the environment The overlooked offender is tonight's steak, pork chop or chicken breast The unpaid ecological price of meat is so hefty that Americans could end up eating themselves out of planetary house and home

"Putting half a pound of red meat and poultry on the table each day for every American citizen rings up quite a tab The industry that supplies the world's leading nation of meat-eaters is associated with environmental ills ranging from depleted and contaminated groundwater to an atmosphere pumped full of greenhouse gases

"Even modern egg production participates in the ecological wrongdoing There's nothing anti-ecological about cows, pigs, and chickens themselves, rather, American-style farms burden nature because they have outgrown their niche

"In the US, livestock stand at the centre of agriculture, absorbing much of the country's crop harvest along with vast quantities of energy and water

"In other parts of the world, livestock used to be raised as sideline to crops In some circumstances they turn plants people cannot eat, into food they can Every nation in the world that's wealthy enough, nonetheless, is taking notes from the US and is starting to shower resources on raising animals for meat — US style farms seem to be the wave of the future

"If the American-style diet alone does not pose a mortal threat to the world its adoption round the world certainly would The prospect of five billion people eating the way Americans do is an ecological impossibility, requiring more grain than the world can grow and more energy, water and land than the world can supply

"Some shifts in American dining rooms are already apparent Fresh fruit and vegetable sales are climbing Many restaurants feature meatless sections and there is a booming trade in vegetarian cookbooks Also, airlines report a growing number of requests for vegetarian meals But Americans are not yet fat-shunning herbivores

"While beef consumption per person has declined slowly since 1976 and per capita egg consumption peaked years ago, poultry has more than taken up the slack Americans have been jumping from one animal product to the other, eating fewer burgers and more chicken nuggets, fewer eggs and more turkey

"The annual consumption of red meat and poultry together is at an all-time high of 178 lbs per person, up from about 137 lbs in 1955

'Last year, Americans ate about 65 lbs of beef and veal, 63 lbs of poultry, 49 lbs of pork plus 139 eggs and dairy products made from 70 gallons of milk For a family of four, that works out to half a steer, a whole pig and a hundred chickens a year

"Churning those quantities of animal products takes all the ingenuity agriculturists can muster Consequently, modern meat and egg production bears little resemblance to the family-farm idyll that still colours the imagination of most Americans

"In the US, animal foods are produced in concentrated agro-industries, not cow barns and chicken coops In fact, animal farms are as much factories as they are farms Of all the farm animals in industrial countries, only cattle spend most of their time in the daylight Broiler chickens live exclusively in gigantic darkened sheds where thousands of birds are fed measured rations of grain Eggs come from similar installations where hens are crowded into stacked cages, eating from one conveyor belt and laying eggs onto another Pork comes from warehouse-size sheds built over sewage canals that sluice away manure

"Beef cattle graze a year before the ranchers truck them to vast outdoor feedlots to be 'finished' for slaughter Their last months are spent gorging on

Worldwide, 630 million people are hungry today. The most immediate problem of raising animals on grain is the waste of resources. The effectiveness with which animals turn grains such as corn into food products varies enormously. Nearly seven lbs of soya and corn are needed to put one lb of boneless trimmed pork on the table in the US

rich rations of corn, sorghum and soyabean-meal that fatten them for slaughter

"Dairy cows, unlike other farm animals, continue to live something not unlike the old fashioned farm life, often grazing outdoors part of each day However, they too are sent to slaughter when their milk production falls off and their male offspring—useless in the milk business, except for a few breeding bulls—usually become veal calves or 'baby beef'

"Regardless of the animal type, though modern meat production involves intensive use—and often misuse—of grain, crops, water resources, energy and grazing areas In addition, animal agriculture produces surprisingly large amounts of air and water pollution Taken as a whole, livestock rearing is the most ecologically damaging part of American agriculture

"Animal farms use mountains of grain Nearly 40 per cent of the world's total and more than 70 per cent of US production is fed to livestock, according to the US Department of Agriculture data

"Last year, 162 million tonnes of grain, mostly corn, also sorghum, barley, oats and wheat were consumed by livetstock Millions of tonnes of protein-rich soyabean meal rounded out the diet No other country in the world can afford to feed so much grain to animals

"Were all that grain consumed directly by humans, it would nourish five times as many people as it does after being converted into milk, meat and eggs, according to the Iowa-based Council for Agricultural Science and Technology, a non-profit research group

"Worldwide, 630 million people are hungry today The most immediate problem of raising animals on grain is the waste of resources The effectiveness with which animals turn grains such as corn into food products varies enormously Nearly seven lbs of soya and corn are needed to put one lb of boneless trimmed pork on the table in the US

"Cattle require less—4 8 lbs of grain and soya per lb of meat—because unlike pigs, they eat grass most of their lives American chickens eat 2 8 lbs of feed per lb of meat and egg-layers do better at 2 6 lbs

"American feed takes so much energy to grow—counting fuels for farm machinery and for making fertilisers and pesticides—that might well be a petroleum byproduct Cornell University's David Pimentel, a specialist in agricultural energy use, estimated that 14,000 kilo calories are required to produce a pound of pork in the US—equivalent to the energy in nearly half a gallon of gasoline

"Pimentel's data show that energy use, like grain consumption, declines from pork to beef, chicken and eggs" [Courtesy Worldwatch]

(Sanctuary Features)

The Telegraph

is publishing poems regularly.

JAYANTA MAHAPATRA

selects the poems All contributions should be sent directly to him at Tinkonia Bagicha, Cuttack 753001 and not to The Telegraph. Poems should be typewritten in double space, on one side of the paper. Please retain copies of submitted poems as they will not be returned. All published poems will be paid for at our regular rates No enquiries will be solicited.

Fill in the coupon below and send with your contribution

___ Block letters please .

Name_____

Age_

Address_

KUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

THE VANISHING TREES

The peace and quiet of the Maplewood hillside disappeared forever one winter. The powers-that-be decided to build another new road into the mountains and the PWD saw fit to take it right past the cottage, about six feet from the window which overlooked the forest.

In my journal, I wrote: Already they have felled most of the trees. The walnut was one of the first to go. A tree I had lived with for over 10 years, watching it grow as I had watched Prem's small son Rakesh grow up, looking forward to its new leaf-buds, the broad green leaves of summer turning to spears of gold in September when the walnuts were ripe and ready to fall. I knew this tree better than the others. It was just below the window where a buttress for the road is going up.

Another tree I will miss is the young deodar, the only one growing in this stretch of the woods. Some years back it was stunted from lack of sunlight. The oaks covered it with their shaggy branches, so I cut away some of the overhanging ones and after that the deodar grew much faster. It was just coming into its own this year — now cut down in its prime like my young brother on the road to Delhi last month. Both victims of the road — the tree killed by the PWD, my brother by a truck.

Twenty oaks have been felled just in this small stretch near the cottage. By the time this bypass reaches Jabarkhet, about six miles from here, over a thousand oaks will have been slaughtered, besides many other fine trees — maples, deodars and pines — most of them unnecessary as they grew some 50 or 60 yards from the roadside.

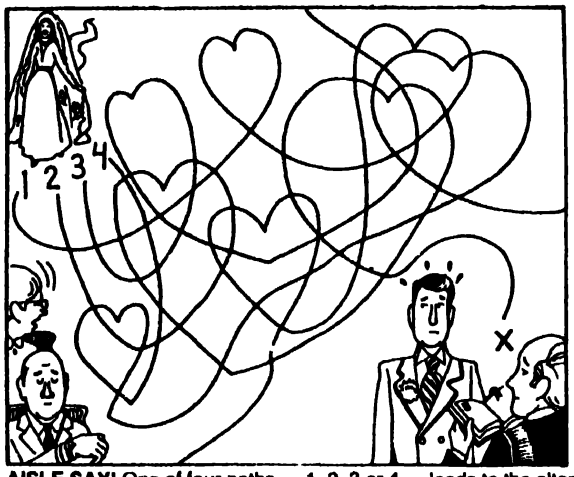
The trouble is, hardly anyone (with the exception of the contractor who buys the felled trees) really believes that trees and shrubs are necessary. They get in the way so much, don't they? According to my milkman, the only useful tree is the one which can be picked clean of its leaves for fodder! And a young man remarked to me, "You should come to Pauri. The view is terrific, there's not a tree in the way!"

Well he can stay here now and enjoy the ravaged hillside. But as the oaks have gone, the milkman will have to look further afield for his fodder.

Rakesh calls the maples butterfly trees because when the winged seeds fall, they flutter like butterflies in the breeze. No maples now. No bright red leaves to flame against the sky. No birds! That is to say, no birds near the house. No longer will it be possible for me to open the window and watch the scarlet minivets flitting through the dark green foliage of the oaks, the long-tailed magpies gliding through the trees, the barbet calling insistently from his perch on the top of the deodar.

Forest birds, all of them, they will now be in search of some other stretch of surviving forest. The only visitors will be the crows who have learnt to live with and off humans and seem to multiply along with roads, houses and people. And even when all the people have gone, the crows will still be there.

Other things to look forward to — trucks thundering past in the night, perhaps a tea and pakora shop around the corner. The grinding of gears, the music of motor horns. Will the whistling thrush be heard above them? The explosions that continually shatter the silence of the mountains as thousand-year-old rocks are dynamited have frightened away all but the most intrepid of birds and animals. Even the bold langurs haven't shown their faces for over a fortnight.



Somehow, I don't think we shall wait for the tea shop to arrive. There must be some other quiet corner, possibly on the next mountain where new roads have yet to come into being. No doubt this is a negative attitude and if I have any sense I'd open my own tea shop. To retreat is to be a loser. But the trees are losers too and when they fall, they do so with a certain dignity.

Never mind. Men come and go, the mountains remain.

(Sanctuary Features)

The trouble is, hardly anyone (with the exception of the contractor who buys the felled trees) really believes that trees and shrubs are necessary. They get in the way so much, don't they? According to my milkman, the only useful tree is the one which can be picked clean of its leaves for fodder! And a young man remarked to me, 'You should come to Pauri. The view is terrific, there's not a tree in the way!'

JUNIOR WHIRL

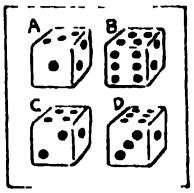
AISLE SAY! One of four paths — 1, 2, 3 or 4 - leads to the altar above Which path? Take a guess then trace lines

PEAK-ABOO! What mountains keep a doctor away? The Apple ations What mountains do odd jobs? The Handy Andes What mountains sing soprano? The High C erras

BACK-UP WORDS TO PONDER

SEE if you can find a four-letter word to complete each of the seven words beginning with BACK below In No 1, for instance, add PACK

1 Hiker's carryall BACK—
2 Spinal column BACK—
3 Loud auto report BACK—
4 Tennis stroke BACK—
5 Baseball screen BACK—
6 Stage set item BACK—
7 Poor filter function BACK—



Remember each requires a four letter word

2 Bone 3 Tire 4 Hand 5 Stop 6 Prop 7 Wash

PIP POPS! Roll a pair of dice Double number of points rolled on either die, add five, multiply by five, add number of points on other die and subtract 25 Alakazam, digits of resulting amount reveal at left, points on first die, and at right, points on second die

And, speaking of dice, one of four pictured below has a flaw — that is to say, one side shows an incorrect number of pips Which one?

The 3 single pip at side bumps it bottom Two pips should appear where single pip is shown

HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below

DIFFERENCES 1 Cap is reversed 2 Stones are missing 3 Fish is smaller 4 Pole handle is shorter 5 Tree is missing 6 Float and line are missing

FUNSPOT

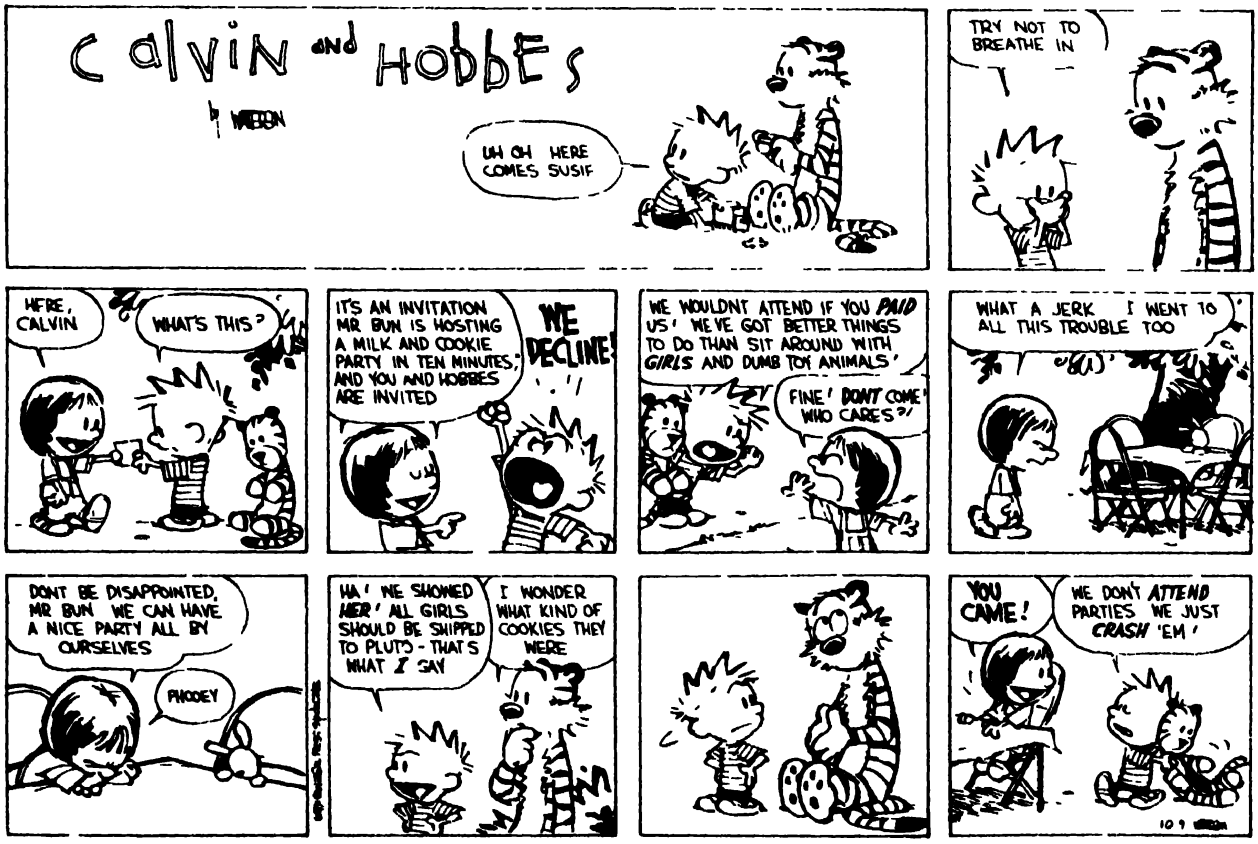
SPOT CHECK! "Where do we go from here?" ask these curious hikers Colorcode 1—Purple 2—Dk blue 3—Yellow 4—Lt brown 5—Flesh 6—Lt green 7—Dk brown 8—Dk green

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

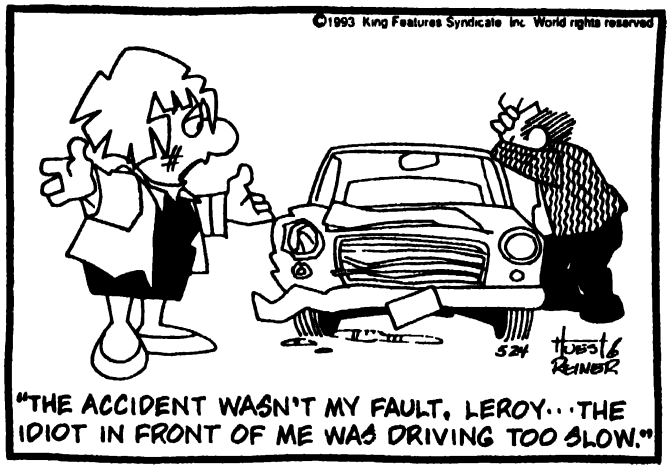
HOSTELRY

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

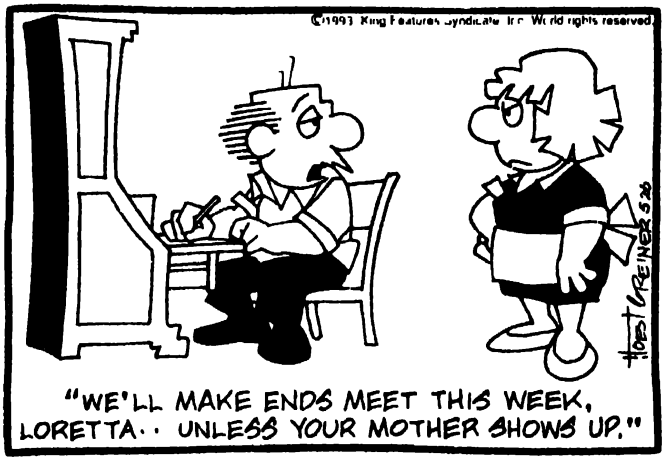


Try to score at least 50 points

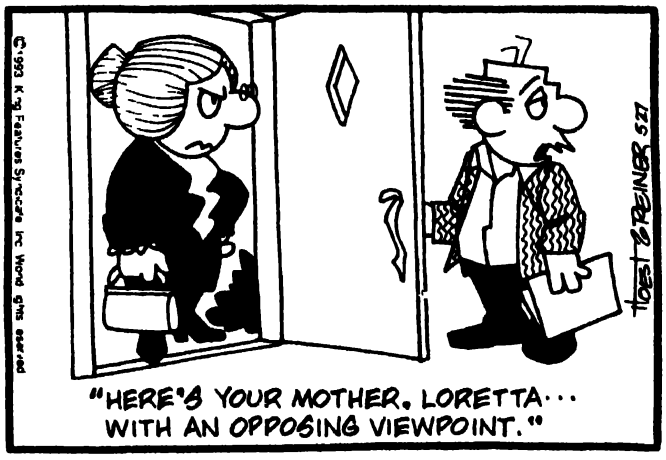
Possible twosome Rely host



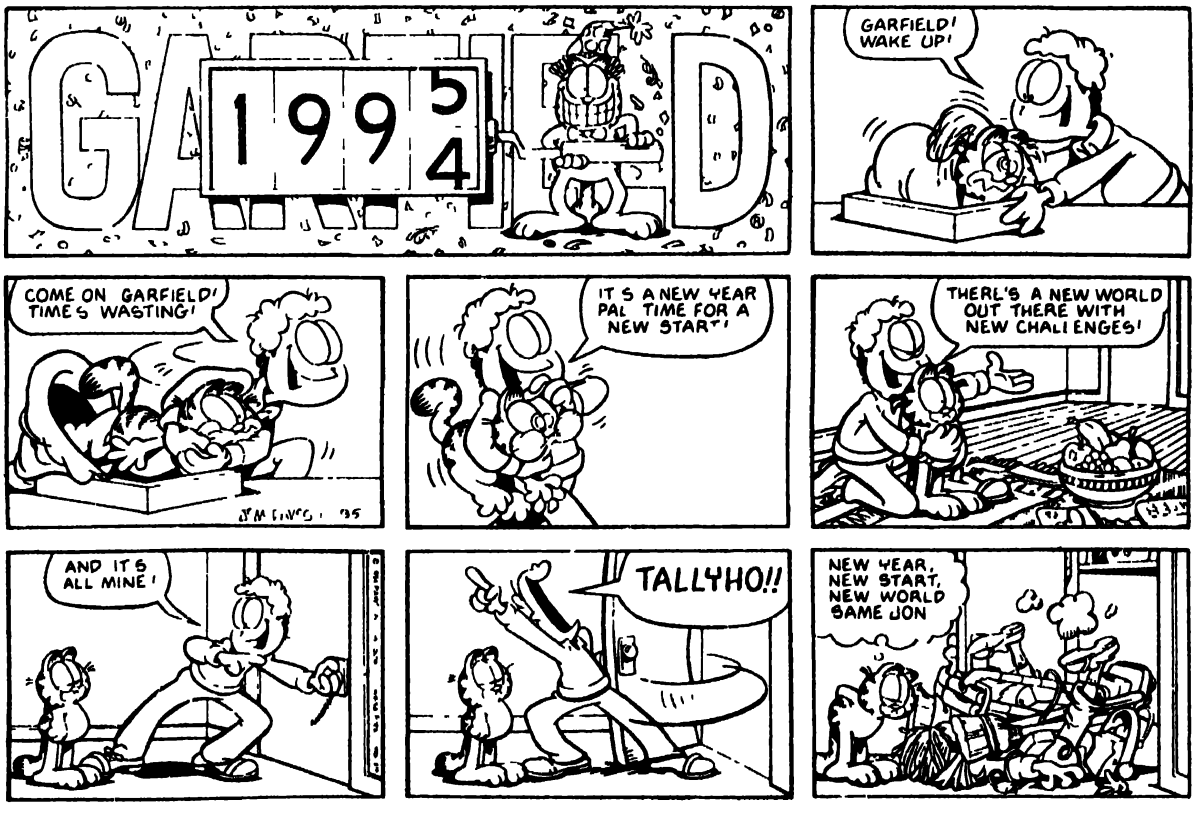
ARCHIE

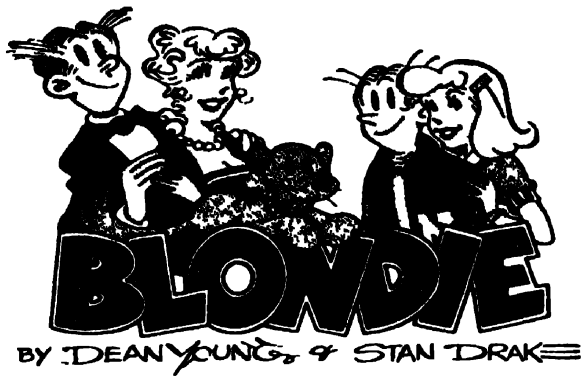


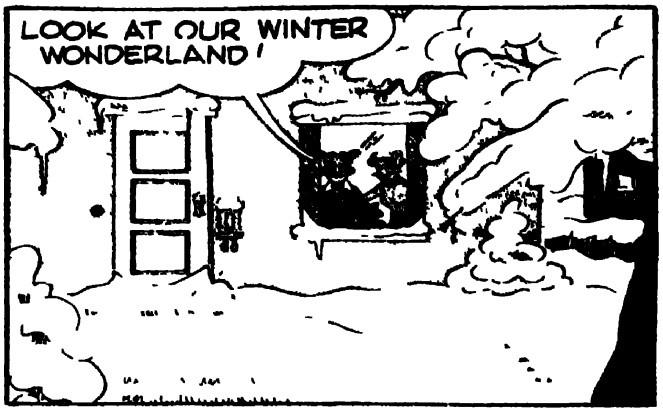
CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON



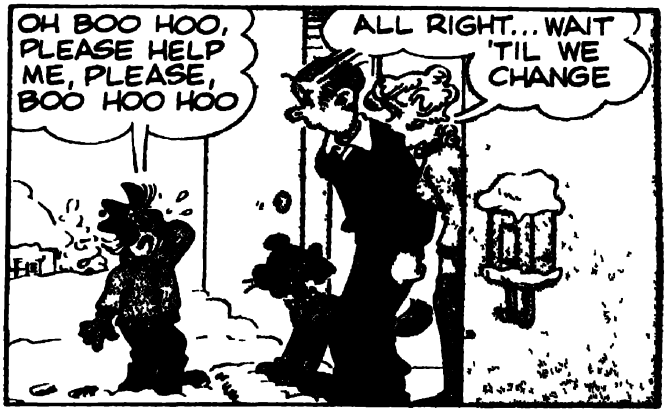
THE LOCKHORNS



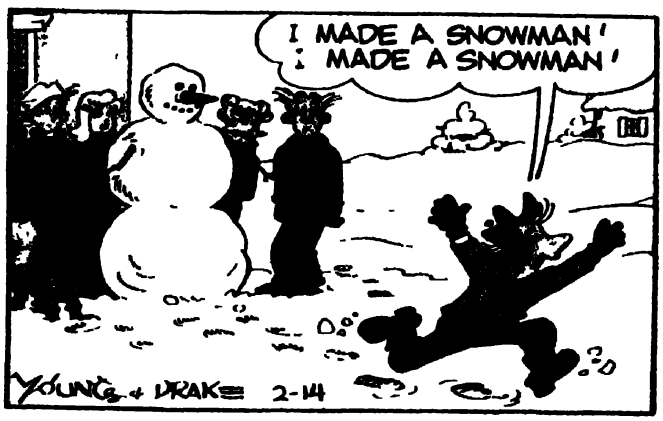




GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS



THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP



© 1993 King Features Syndicate Inc World Rights Reserved

100 Years of Cinema

Stills from films depicting realism

The teething stages of cinema are but a century old For, it was in 1896 at Watson's Hotel, Bombay, that the projectors first began to roll

Indian cinema, with an annual input of 1,000 films, makes India the largest film-making nation in the world, generating a culture which is as popular as it is unbeatable

The Watson Hotel episode began the trend of makeshift screening programmes for which lay the curiosity in Indian motion pictures

The first coherent and consolidated effort was made by Dadasaheb Phalke, the maker of India's first feature film, Raja Harishchandra, in 1913, unfolding a story that formed an indivisible part of life

The romance of Aawara

Indian cinema has unravelled since Phalke's times, a cornucopia of life in its teeming multiplicity Its tongues, too, are varied, divested with the past and the present, and carrying with it the hopes of the future The stars and stardom, worshipped by the country's millions, were an inevitable fallout of this social revolution

Golmaal: Genre of comedy

Its wide verisimilitude has within its perview both fact and fiction, life and legend, contributing to an experience that could only be described as exceptional

To commemorate cinema in its 100th year, Shaw Wallace has come up with a calendar which is not a compilation of a pictorial history, but an overview of the major ideas, impulses and trends that have governed great establishments and their fitting antecedents

As a tribute to the screen's macrocosm, it focuses on the six areas of cinematic interest — biographical, comedy, romance, woman, action and realism — depicting the vigour and vitality, the energy and excitement that symbolise the centenary celebration of celluloid ■

POETRY

Selected by Jayanta Mahapatra

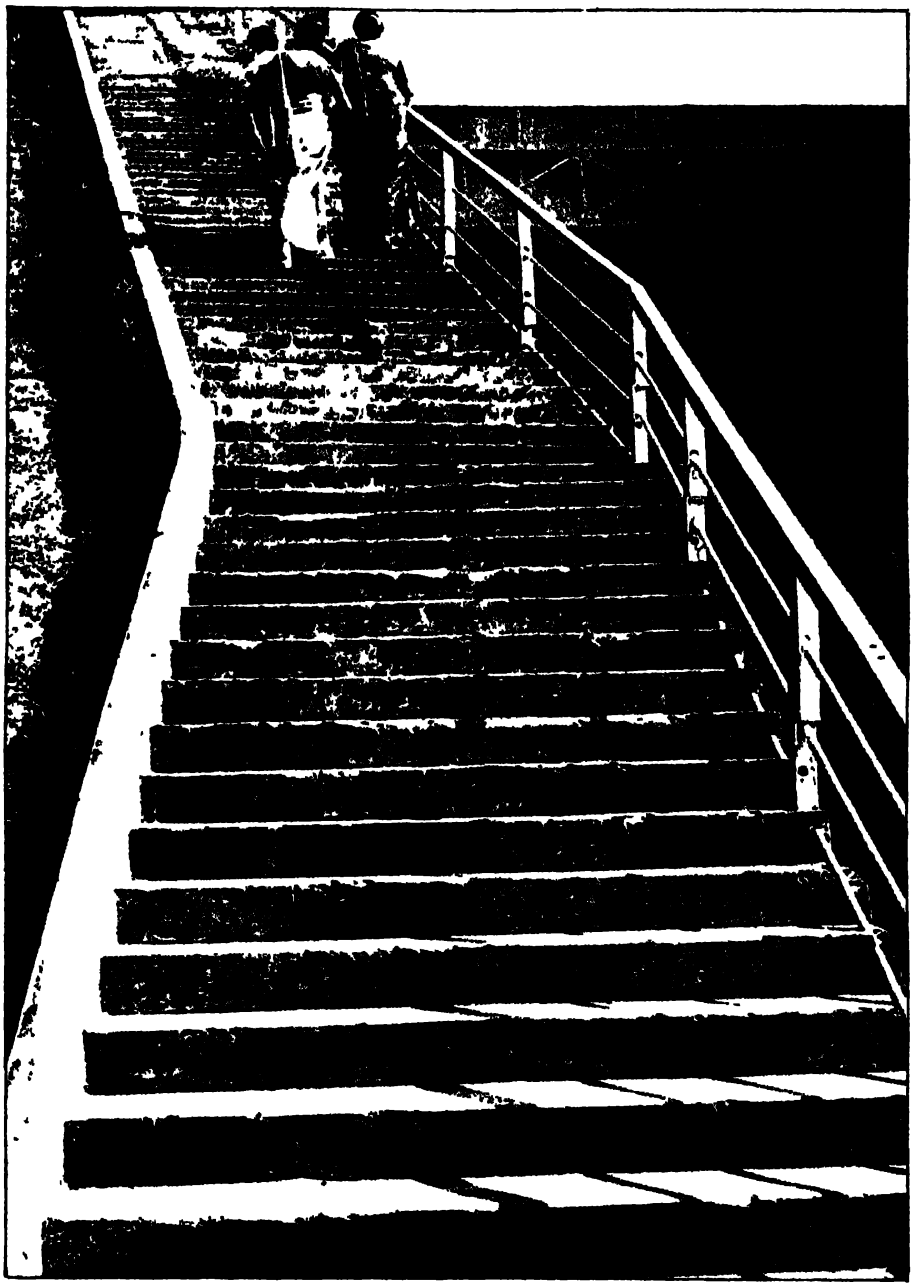
The Diamond World

Sorry Antwerp, Sorry Amsterdam, Sorry Jaipur,
Sorry Renoir, sorry Rembrandt, sorry Husain,
You cannot help fron that peaked brilliance

Of the hills atop the gems, the diadems,
The artistry, the avalanche—

Your blurred dreams, luxury ridden,
Exclude my fellows, my friends
In slow denudation and silent dessication
Even I, once, could not see them
Through that gossamer Monalisa veil

But now I'm grown from
My previous pigmy dazzle
Crossed over from Brussels and Surat
To mingle with the blooms and corn
From Guntur to the remotest corner
Of Bhopal, of Muzaffarpur,
Danced with the maadal mahua of Palamu,
Breathed foliage and rain scented mud



Somalia and Bosnia, Bihar and Bangla
Are shreds of kites torn Across your diamond-hard skies,

Stuck in gem trees forever

Glistening teardrops, of the Kashmiri
Apple cheek beggar woman,
Hanging from the ruby sapphire chandelier
Eardrops in the displays
Of Place Vendome or Zhaveri Bazaar

Now and forever beckoning me
To rise

Laksmisree Banerjee

The Would-Have-Been Girl Child

I did not know how long I floated in what weightless, dark world
And I did not bother about the time,
For it seemed to be timeless
It seemed that I had all the time in the world—
The time to come out.
To look at the sky,
To look at my parents,
To pick up a flower one day,
And, on another day, a book to prepare for a test in the school

I did not know that my parents were arranging for Another kind of a test in a clinic

Then, the time ran out

Susmita Bhattacharya

RASOI

JIGGS KALRA

"Discovering and celebrating seasonal produce," says Australia's leading food writer, Sheridan Rogers, "is a way of becoming more attuned to nature." From the earliest times, the seasons have shaped almost every aspect of man's life. When we become aware as our ancestors were to this rhythm, our cuisine becomes much more satisfying. Therapeutics and aesthetics combine to make food sublime. This wisdom preserved in a passage from Ecclesiastes. "To every thing there is a season, a time to every purpose under the heaven."

Rasoi couldn't agree more. We wish there were others like Rogers who put a seasonal accent on food. Believe us, if such were the case, the planet would surely be a healthier and happier place.

Two recipes from Rogers' Seasonal Entertaining.

BARBECUED QUAILS MARINATED IN OIL AND THYME

INGREDIENTS
12 Japanese Quails

The Marination
300 ml / 1 1/4 cups Olive oil
1 bunch Lemon thyme (fresh and leaves only)
1 clove Garlic
1 Bay leaf
10 stalks Parsley
18 Black Peppercorns (freshly and coarsely pounded)

Barbecued Quails Marinated in Oil and Thyme

Potato Eggplant and Leek Frittata

Salt

The Bruschetta
1 loaf French bread
Olive oil
1 clove Garlic
Sun-dried Tomato paste
A few sun-dried Tomatoes

Serves: 4
Preparation time: 3 30 hours
Cooking time: 5 minutes

PREPARATION
The quails. Snip wingtips from the quails, then cut down their backbones with a pair of kitchen scissors Press down hard on the breast bones to flatten
The herbs: Clean and wash thyme and parsley stalks Peel and crush garlic
The marination: Place the quails in a large earthenware dish, pour on the oil and add the thyme, garlic, bay leaf, parsley and pepper Cover and reserve for at least three hours, turning occasionally
The bruschetta: Cut the French bread diagonally into medium-sized slices Peel garlic, halve and then crush, discarding a half. Toast on the barbecue, watching carefully and turning when golden Brush with a little olive oil, rub with the garlic and smear the paste Strew with the sun dried tomato julienne

COOKING
Arrange the marinated quails on the barbecue and cook over medium heat on both sides for 4-5 minutes or until golden

TO SERVE
Remove to a serving dish, garnish with roundels of fennel and onions and salad greens of your choice Serve with Bruschetta

Note: You can substitue plain tomato paste if you can't find sun-dried tomato paste

POTATO EGGPLANT AND LEEK FRITTATA

INGREDIENTS
2 Potatoes (approx 400 g / 14 oz)
90 ml / 6 tbs Olive oil
200 g / 7 oz Eggplant
1 Leek (medium)
Black Pepper powder
Salt
6 Eggs
60 g / 2 oz Parmesan Cheese
1/2 bunch Basil (fresh)
15 g / 1/2 oz Butter

Serves: 4
Preparation time: 25 minutes
Cooking time: 15 minutes

PREPARATION
The potatoes: Wash, peel and thinly slice
Put enough water in a pan, add salt, bring to a boil, add the potato slices and cook for 5-7 minutes or until just soft Drain and keep aside
The eggplant: Wash, peel and thinly slice
The herbs: Wash and slice leek in half lengthwise Clean, wash and chop basil
The parmesan: Grate
The vegetable mixture: Put oil in a heavy oven-proof frying pan, add eggplant and leek, saute over medium heat until soft Then add the potatoes and sprinkle pepper and salt
The eggs: Whisk until the yolks and whites are combines, stir-in the vegetable mixture, Parmesan and basil

COOKING
Melt butter in a frying pan, pour in the egg mixture and cook over low heat for 15 minutes or until the eggs have begun to set and only the top remains runny
Heat the grill and put the Frittata underneath to set the top

TO SERVE
Slide the Frittata onto a dish using a spatula, cut into pie-like wedges and serve warm or cold

NOTE: All weights are nett, that is ' post-preparation, and not gross ■

SAGI LAKSHMI VENKATAPATHI 'MUSCLES' RAJU, 25, has been in and out of the India XI ever since his Test debut in 1989-90. After emerging as the most successful bowler (on either side) in the series versus the West Indies, the left-arm spinner should now be an automatic first XI selection. Fun-loving, Raju is gutsy, too, as was evident in the Mohali Test.

What is your idea of perfect happiness?
Spending time with parents after a long and hard cricket tour
What is your greatest fear?
Third World War
Who or what has been the greatest influence in your life?
My dad
What do you dislike most in others?
Back biting
What do you dislike most in yourself?
Getting angry very often
What is your most precious possession?
My Sai Baba locket
What objects do you always carry?
My shaving kit
What makes you most depressed?
Child labour
What do you dislike most on your appearance?
My slim body
What is your favourite word?
Oh, God
What is your favourite journey?
Cape Town to Cape Point, South Africa
What is your favourite dream?
None really
What is your nightmare?
Snakes
What or who is the greatest love of your life?
Cricket
On what occasions do you lie?
When I want to avoid a party
What is your greatest regret?

What is your greatest fear?

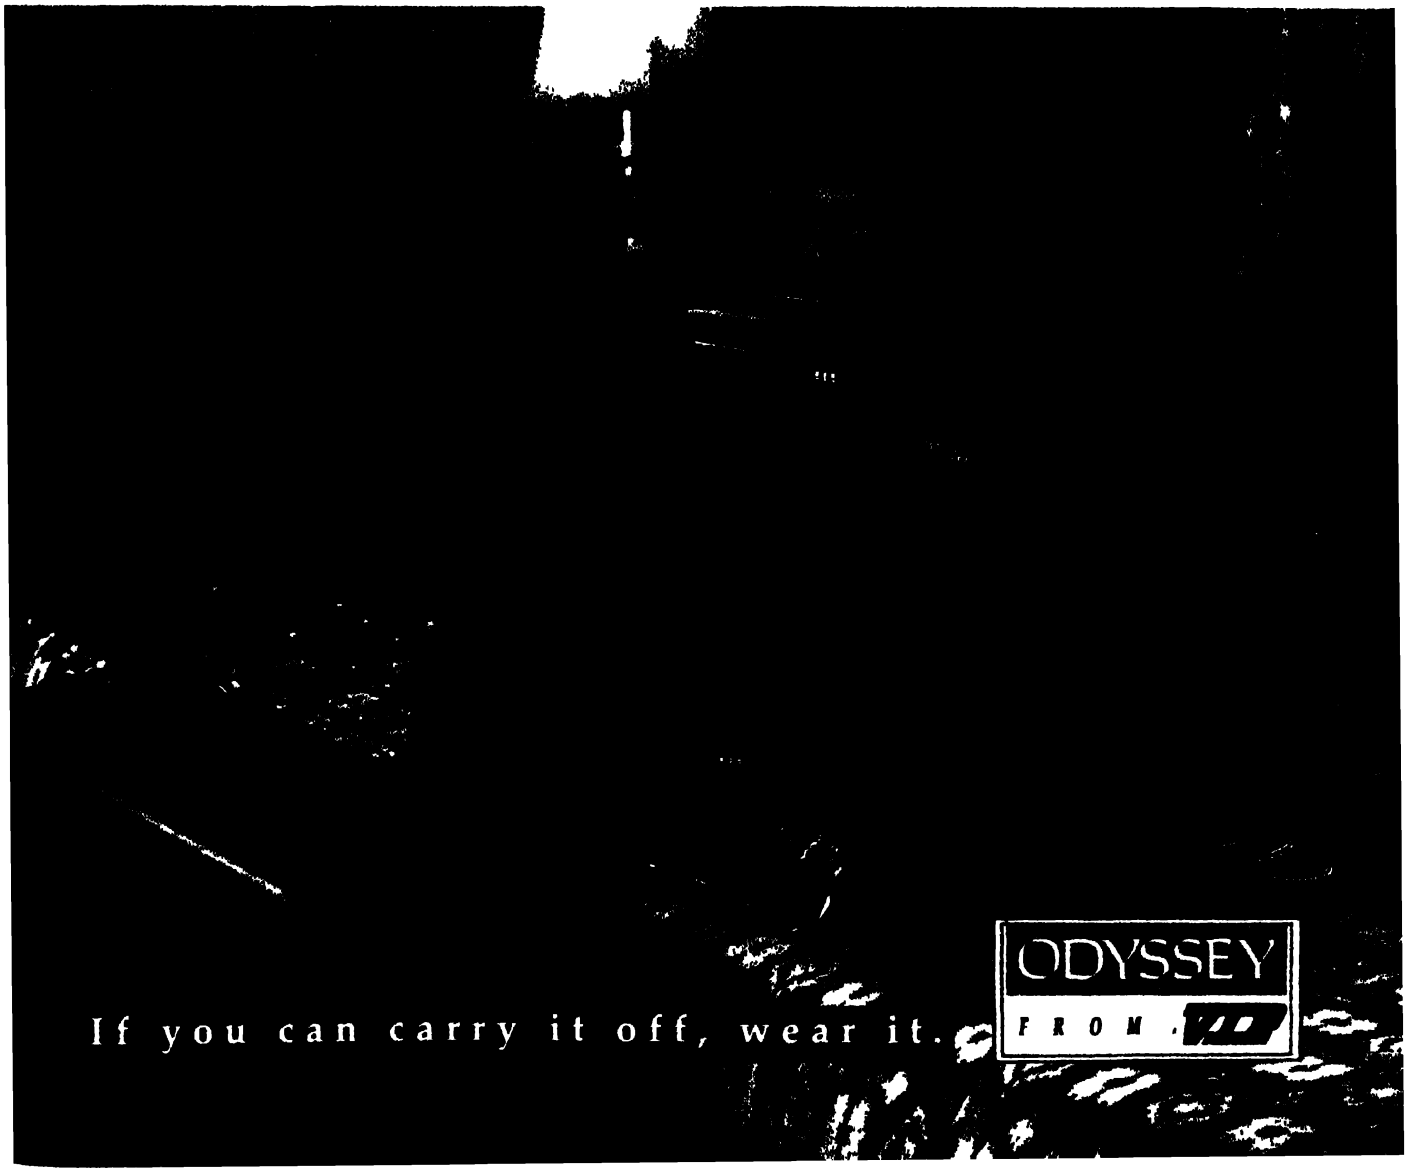
Third World War

What is your most precious possession?

My Sai Baba locket

So far no regrets
What has been your happiest moment?
Being picked for the Indian cricket team in 1990
What brings tears to your eyes?
Poverty in India.
How do you relax?
With friends in my farm.
What do you envy most in others?
Their humour
How would you like to be remembered?
As a friendly person who never hurt anyone
How would you like to die?
Very, very peacefully without troubling others

SUITABLE TRAVEL WEAR FOR A PALACE-ON-WHEELS HOLIDAY



Pack in the lifestyle of a Maharaja With Odyssey. From VIP.

It's more than just luggage. It's a symbol of luxury.

The smoothest ride on wheels. Check the plush interiors. The impeccable finish The unexpected details When you are travelling first class, you've got to wear the style to match

Suitcases Rs 1445/- onwards Briefcases Rs 1125/- onwards Vanity Cases Rs 1245/

Standard Chartered
presents an entirely new idea in banking.

Room Service.

2 in 1 Account
THE DEPOSIT WITH A SAVINGS ACCOUNT

Now opening a 2-in-1 Account with Standard Chartered is as easy as calling up room service. Just a telephone call and our representative will take care of the rest. (Including arranging for your account opening photograph.)

In three days, your personalised cheque book, with a cheque book cover and deposit confirmation receipt will be at your doorstep. Just let us know if it's to be your home or office. You'll find that opening a 2-in-1 Account saves you a lot more than just a trip to the bank. It gives you the high interest rates of a fixed deposit, while allowing you to withdraw money whenever you need it, using your personalised cheque book. To find out more, just call us. But hurry. Room service is available only till December 24,1994.

festive fortunes
from Standard Chartered

Call us - 7 days a week-8 a.m. to 8 p.m. - 76 5155/74 3694/0551. Offer closes 24th December, 1994.

Mail or Fax this coupon to Standard Chartered Bank, 208 Rash Behari Avenue, Gariahat, Calcutta 700 029 Fax 74 0669

Name_____ Address _____

Occupation _____ Fax _____ Contact Tel (O) _____ (R) _____

I would like my account in ☐ Dalhousie ☐ Clive Row ☐ Chowringhee ☐ Bowbazar ☐ Cossipore ☐ Gariahat ☐ Jorasanko ☐ Shyambazar Please send me ☐ Brochure ☐ Call me Tel _____

* cheque book will be delivered three days from the day the funds are actually received in the account Accounts will be opened only after due introduction is provided and a sole discretion of the Bank Cash deposits will be accepted at the Bank's branches only No third party cheques will be accepted The offer of room service is available only hin the limits of Calcutta city The Bank reserves the right to close the offer anytime before the last date, or extend it beyond December 24, 1994 Details and rules of the offer be obtained from the Bank

Enterprise/SCB/16/

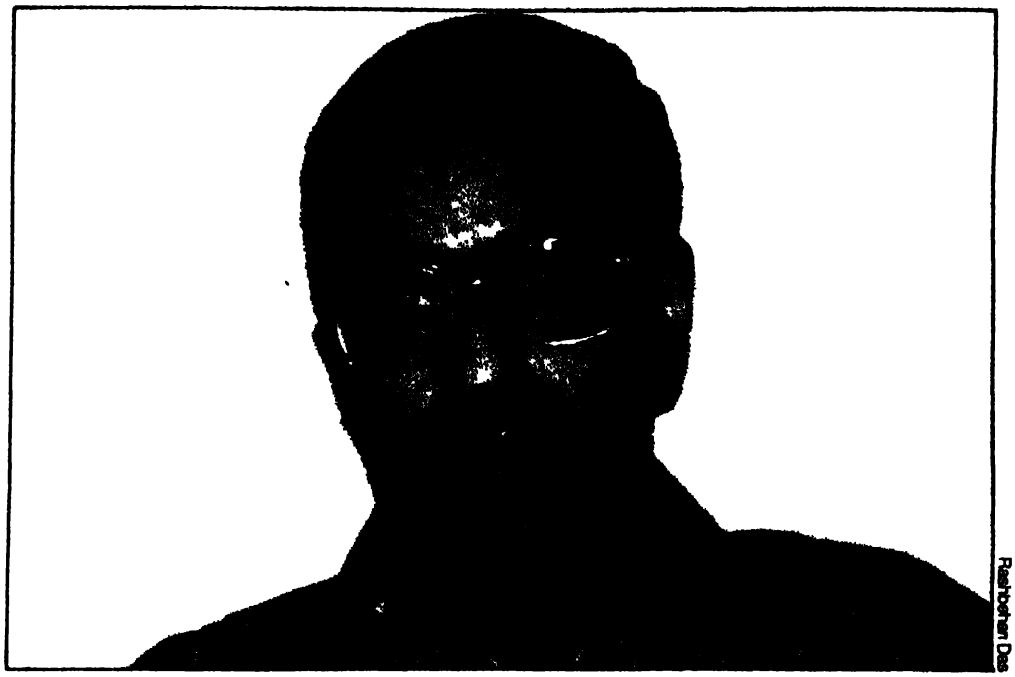
The Telegraph

15 JANUARY 1995

POST MORTEM

Chat—Without the Giggles

■ What makes chat shows popular on television is that they discuss off-beat subjects — social, family and other issues, and not always politics and economics ('Chatter on the Box', December 18).



Chat shows have been instrumental in bringing problems of dowry, child abuse, atrocities on women and corruption to the fore and even looking for tangible solutions

It was regrettable, though, that while pondering over the achievements of chat show hosts like Karan Thapar, Vinod Dua and others, the Magazine ignored Nalini Singh whose trendsetting serials have become a conscience keeper of sorts.

Her popular serial, Hello Zindagi, gave us the true picture of society as it was The serial was instrumental in bringing to light certain key issues along with the darker and neglected side of society In contrast, other chat shows have been grossly gossipy

Chat shows should ideally be a kind of public forum where people's grievances can be aired and redressal sought They will lose their relevance if they become a mere question-answer forum, sprinkled with giggles and silly retorts

Santosh Kumar Sharma,
Kharagpur

Rashbehari Das

Chat show host Karan Thapar: Bringing people to the fore

■ The article showed the other face of television which is not tainted by sex, violence and nudity The chat shows are both entertaining and informative.

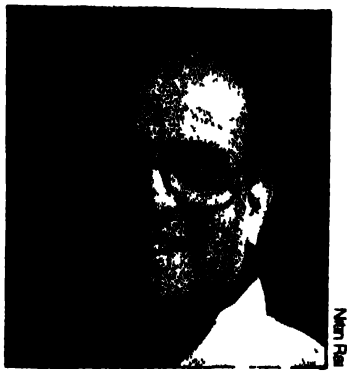
Presenters of these shows must have a pleasing personality and the necessary skill to extract the best out of their guests

Manoranjan Das,
Jamshedpur

■ Indian chat shows still have a long way to go before they can acquire the gloss and glamour of American television's The Donahue Show or The Oprah Winfrey Show

However, the local versions brought to us by the likes of Vinod Dua and Rajat Sharma are entertaining and informative in their own way

Sanhita Pramanick,
Serampore



New Ramayana

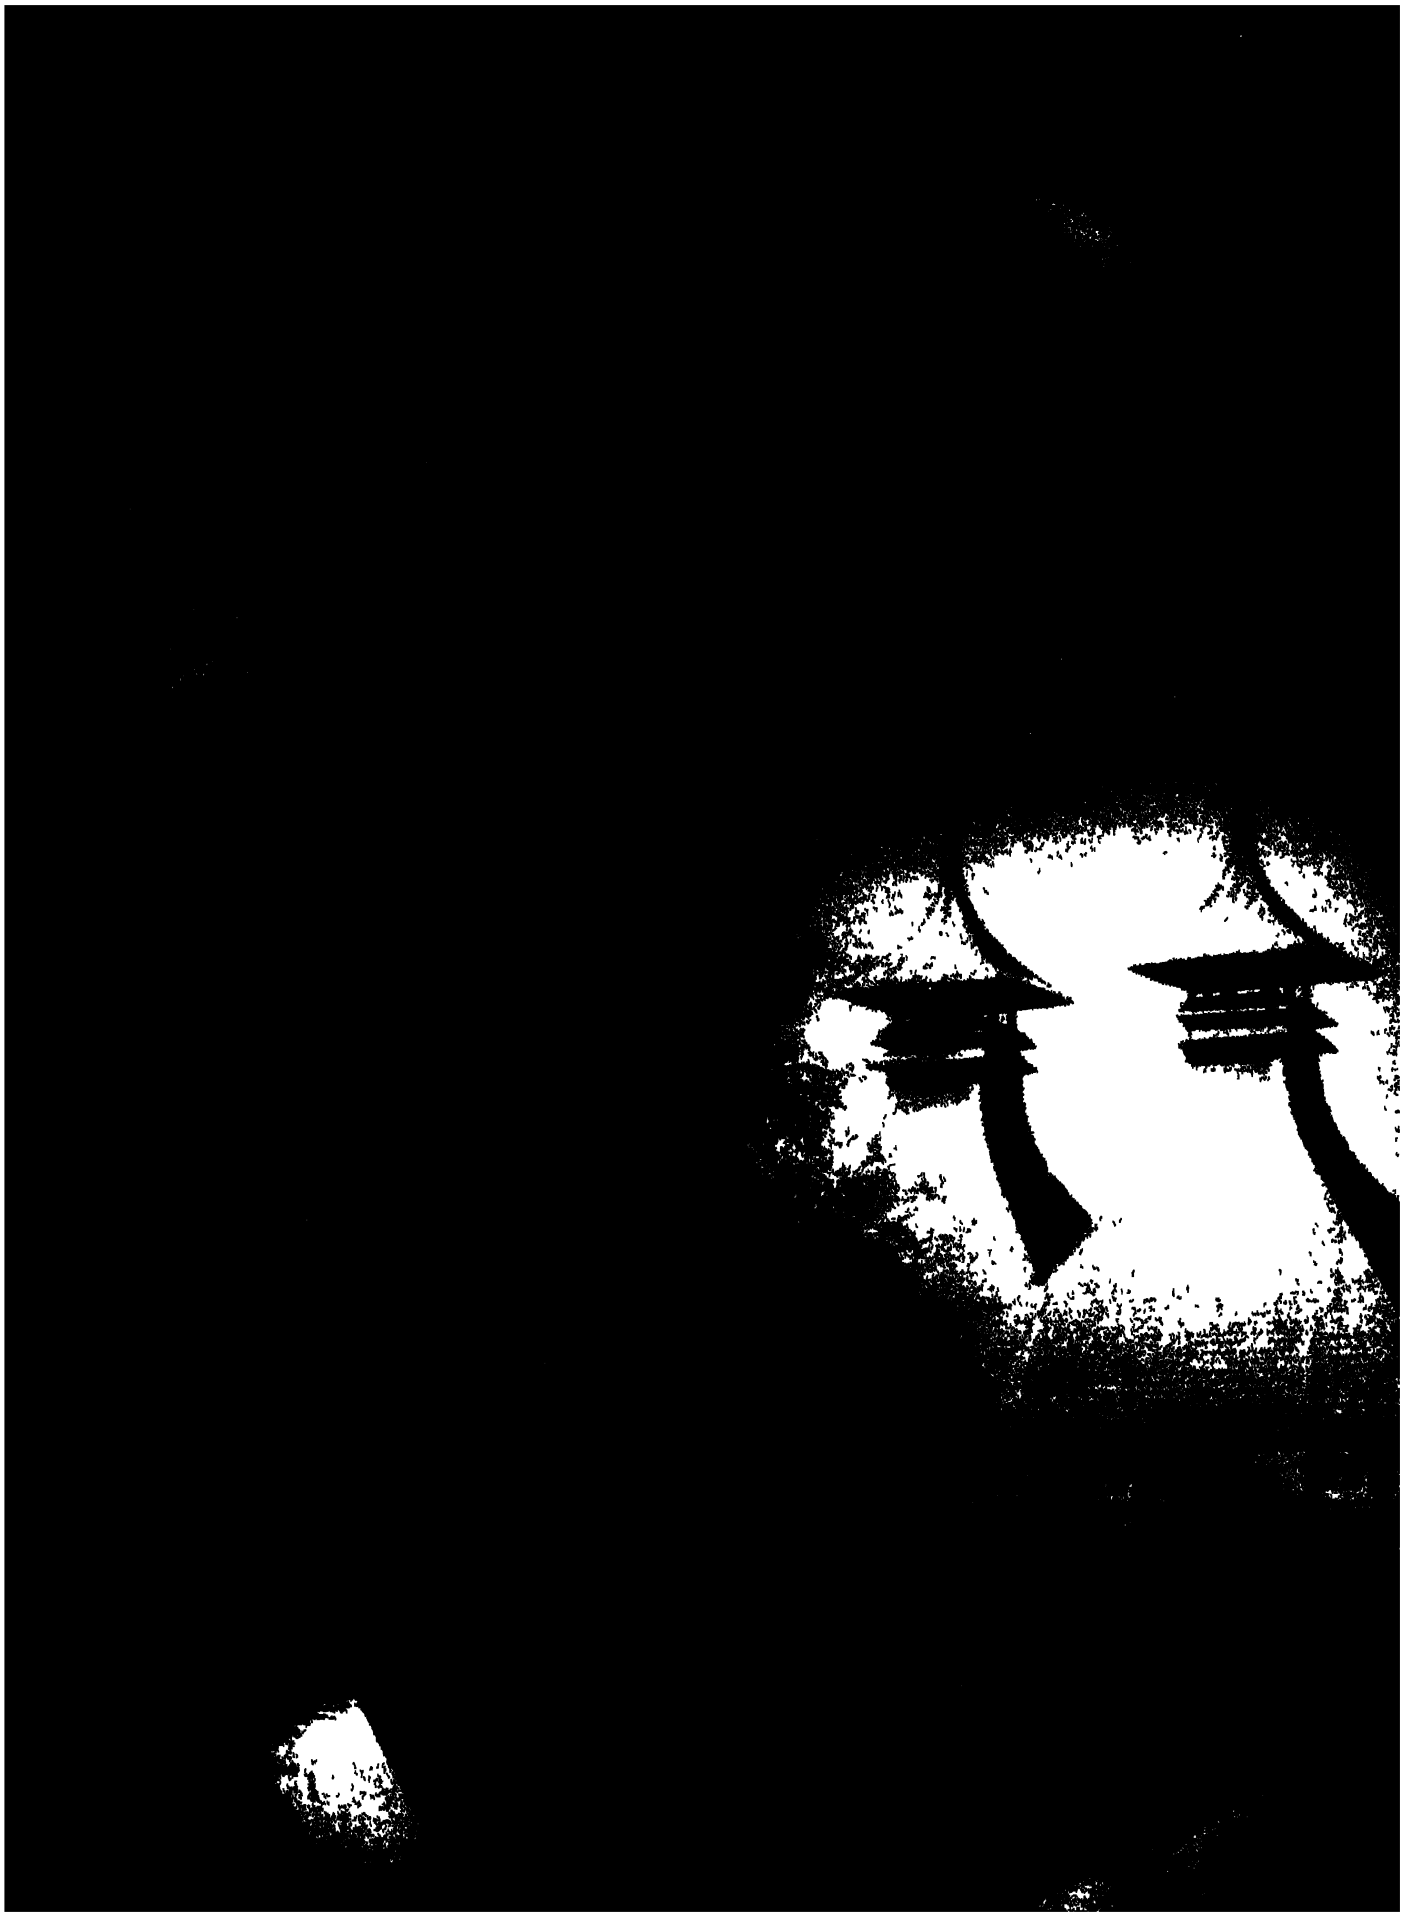
■ In 'Ramayana Retold' (November 27) Nari Kripalani says the Panchvati forest was located in Sumatra (Indonesia) and, contrary to common belief, Lanka was in Australia

We expect some convincing evidence on his claims

R.N. Sahu,
Rourkela

INSIDE

Nitin Rai



PAGE 8

VISHWANATH PRATAP SINGH has been both a man of mission and a marginal man Basically a loner, he now seems to be entering a new phase of life and politics But, as always, he looks at it as yet another challenge

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
18 MANEKA GANDHI
20 RUSKIN BOND
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
26 RASOI
30 FIRST PERSON

Cover Nitin Rai

"My art

is partly acquired,

but mostly inherited"

Trusting his highly trained palate and nose, Colin Scott tests as many as one hundred 12 year-old malts a week. By careful selection and blending, he then creates the outstanding and consistent taste of Chivas Regal year after year.

Seagram is proud to have someone like him. An expert blender born into a family associated with some of Scotland's finest blends. A family that passed on the skills from father to son in an unbroken line.

In the early 1800s, Chivas Brothers began by supplying the cellars of Balmoral Castle, where Queen Victoria came every summer with her family. In fact, she was responsible in part for creating a demand for Scotland's local beverage outside the country, and it is said she used to enjoy a daily dram in her tea.

Chivas Brothers built their reputation on their skills in choosing the best and then blending them to a smooth and mellow consistency. Since then, Seagram's best known blends like Royal Salute, Chivas Regal and Something Special have been appreciated for the same outstanding quality, the world over.

Times may change. But when Seagram offers you a blend that's consistent case after case, year after year, you can hope that the qualities it has inherited, will last forever.

Seagram

ENDURING TRADITIONS.
ENDURING QUALITY.

Something Special • Seagram's 83 Pipers • Passport • Royal Salute • The Glenlivet • Martell
• Mumm Grand Cordon • Tropicana

CREAM THE FAT AWAY

Dr Joshua Leichtberg has invented abdomen and thigh creams that condition the body, turning fat into energy Frank Durham reports

Bearded, curly-headed Hollywood doctor Joshua Leichtberg is feeling a lot better these days after taking a dose or two of his own 'medicine'

Before that, the 42-year-old obesity guru freely admits, he had been letting himself go, fat-wise

So he decided to use himself as the first-ever guinea pig to test a magic cream he had just invented

After rubbing it into his abdomen night and morning for three weeks or so, Dr Leichtberg turned into the lean, mean, medical machine he had always dreamed of being

The flab each side of his waist — the doctor called this his "love handles" — just melted away

And when the cream did the same for 10 other guinea pigs, the doctor named his invention Ab Cream and put it on the market

Now the Hollywood glitterati and thousands of other flab-conscious people are religiously rubbing the doctor's new cream into their stomachs and waists

Some people, according to Dr Leichtberg, also use it to magic away double chins or fatty upper arms

Tinsel Town folk are spurning harsh, killer diets And they can thankfully escape the cosmetic surgeon's scalpel for 'tummy tucks' and fat reducing liposuction operations by using the doctor's gentler method

This uses the body's own mechanism to get people into shape

He insists that, for the best results, cream-rubbers have to eat healthfully and exercise as well It is more a spot-target operation

Dr Leichtberg, author of Doctor's Secret to Great Legs and How to Lose Weight Healthfully without Dieting, says modestly "This is the triumph of science over fat"

His jars of Ab Cream — priced at between US $14 95 and US $19 95 - join those containing his other invention -- thigh cream — on the shelves of hundreds of bathrooms in Hollywood mansions

The thigh cream, he explains, attacks cellulite as well as fat where it is most rampant on hips, buttocks and thighs

Women go more for the thigh cream, and it's mostly men who rub along with the abdomen version

The two creams have made the doctor a star in the city of stars Television, radio and newspaper reporters have beaten a freeway to his door

Now Dr Leichtberg is negotiating to cream off part of the lucrative slimming market in Britain and Europe

He told me "My abdomen cream is unique in the world And it's ideal for people here in Los Angeles, where everybody is concerned with the way they look

"I first became interested in creating these creams when patients came to me who were agonising about how difficult it was to remove fat from certain parts of the body

"Many were going into liposuction Surgery in this town is rampant

"I have a special interest in nutrition, weight loss and skin care

"So it was a natural extension of these interests to see if I could come up with a topical cream that would cause people to lose weight where they wanted to lose it And thereby help them to avoid surgery"

The doctor hungrily spooned up his

Dr Joshua Leichtberg

lunch of Okra gumbo vegetable soup But he warily pushed aside "some kind of chilli" that his wife Sherry had made for him

How does the abdomen cream work? Dr Leichtberg explained "Both my creams function naturally, so things don't happen overnight A man won't turn into an Adonis straight away

"There are many substances, like nicotine or oestrogen patches that are applied to the skin — yet work on the inside This formula is designed to get the fat layers below the skin

"What we want is for the fat cells to shrink To do that, receptors lining the surface of those cells must be stimulated "

The doctor went on "Every day, the body does this when it calls for fat to be released to use for energy Normally, in men, the body will call up the fat in the stomach area last

"In women, it is the thighs that are last in line So we move the priorities up, so that the body uses the fat cells in the target areas first

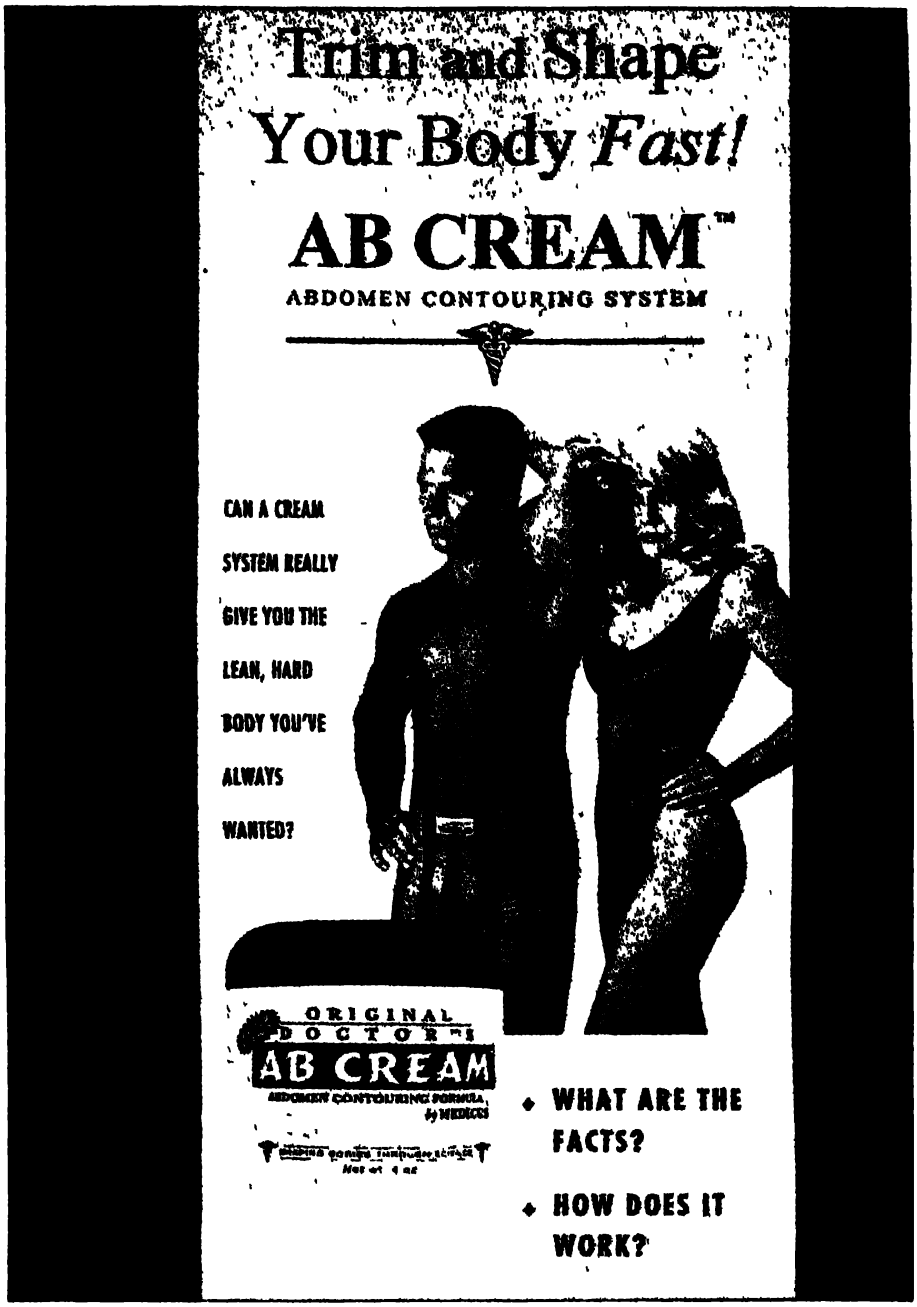
"Normally, the body is stubborn in the way it works I want to direct it to take the fat from where I want it to, rather from where it wants to "

Dr Leichtberg invented the thigh, hips and buttocks cream first, using this system It sold as fast as tickets to a royal premiere

Every time he was interviewed, the doctor was asked if the cream would also work its magic if it were rubbed on a bulging stomach or waist

This set him thinking And his thoughts led him to inventing the abdomen cream He explained the difference in the contents of the two creams

Dr Leichtberg told me "Women's thighs tend to accumulate cellulite but abdomens don't So the thigh cream alone has an anti-cellulite component



"In the abdomen cream, I have bumped up the anti-fat component, which is a theophylline-based molecule "

The doctor's creams don't work miracles He told me "If someone is very obese, they're going to stay that way

"These creams are designed for people who need a little help in getting rid of that last bit of fat in the thigh or stomach areas

"They will help people most who are already losing weight And there will be no problems with those whose weight is stable

"The more you exercise, the better the results will be Then there is the

An advertising leaflet for the slimming cream diet I strongly recommend that people don't diet in the usual sense of the word

"What this means these days is a temporary alteration of one's eating habits for the purpose of losing weight I'm talking about altering the eating pattern permanently

"For example Don't eat food with added fats and oils Apart from obesity, these can cause cancer and heart disease "

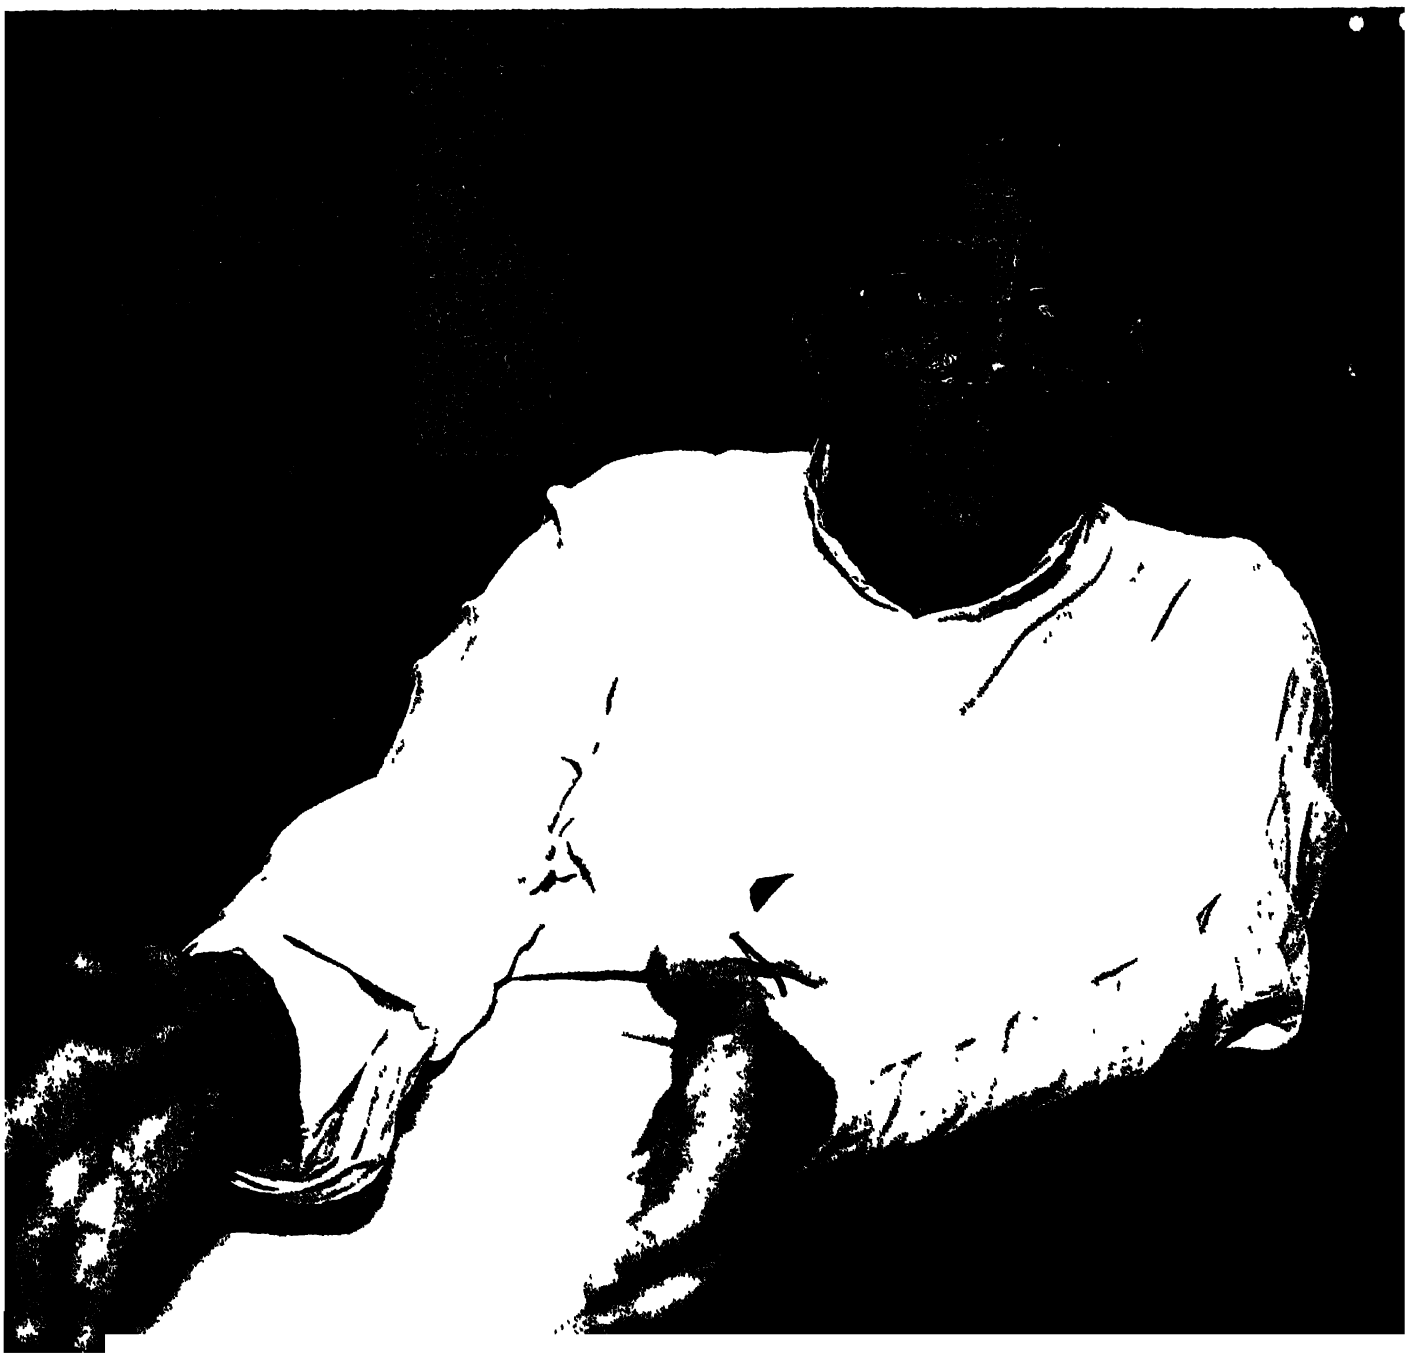
How fast can Dr Leichtberg's abdomen cream, rubbed on night and morning, slim you down? He said "The best result I ever had was 10 days

"The thigh cream works after a minimum of three weeks It gets quicker results than the abdomen cream because taking raw fat off is harder than getting rid of cellulite

"I suggest that people should wait six weeks to get the whole picture They can shed up to two inches I myself lost a total of about five "

One of the doctor's happy customers, blonde, 28-year-old office manager Julie Steele from Los Angeles, said gleefully "I tried everything to get rid of the stubborn fat on my thighs

"Nothing worked But when I rubbed in the cream, I lost an inch and a half off each thigh in three weeks "



Dr Leichtberg is delighted There is nothing the father of two likes more than to see less of his patients Pounds less

(Asia Features)

COVER STORY

LONER

The challenge of life is not quite over for Vishwanath Pratap Singh Bishakha De Sarkar discovered some steel in him while talking to him about his future

In Calcutta, October 1994 Life's a big challenge

IT WAS LUNCH TIME AT AN ALL-BOYS' SCHOOL IN ALLAHABAD A NINE-YEAR-OLD, STANDING all by himself, was suddenly accosted by a boy, just a few years older "You don't know me, but I am your elder brother And don't tell anyone at home that you met me — or else they'll move you to another school," he warned, and left after giving his younger sibling an ice-cream

The small boy was Vishwanath Pratap Singh, living, perforce, away from his family. His brother, C P. Singh, grew up to be a Justice in Uttar Pradesh.

Forty years later, it was the killing of the Justice that pushed V P Singh, the then chief minister of UP, to the national limelight Many believe that more than anything else, it was his resignation a few months after the Justice was shot dead by dacoits that gave him the aura of a man on a mission.

"It is generally believed that I resigned because of my brother's killing," says Singh, sitting back in a cushy chair and tucking his feet into a voluminous cream shawl "But that's not true. I resigned three months later, after a group of dacoits attacked Dalits and minorities," he says.

Today, Vishwanath Pratap Singh — former Prime Minister, Union minister and chief minister — is seen as the messiah of the same constituency of Dalits and minorities This is the man whose life's greatest ambition was to be a Member of Parliament "I never ever thought beyond that," he says In these many decades, politics and political equations have changes as never before

The man whose sudden announcement of the implementation of the Mandal Commission report one humid day in the August of 1990 plunged the nation into turmoil looks back at life with a measure of satisfaction There are, often enough, underlined sentiments of pride and, just once in a while, well-wrapped notes of regret

V P Singh is perhaps the politician who excites the most divergent and passionate of emotions Hated by some as much as he is revered by others, he has been pilloried and praised — all at the same time And while history may have the final word, what cannot be denied today is that the man makes news

If he is not stepping down as chief minister, he is rebelling against his own Congress government If he is not riding on a wave of electoral euphoria, he is falling, with his government, into unknown depths And when he is not seriously ailing, he is painting, penning verse and freezing images with a camera

The works of the 63-year-old painter-poet-photographer-politician pan across images and symbols A noose, in the form of a painting, warns of the future, a photograph of a single rose captures a moment in nature and a poem on stars wonders what shape his dreams will take And all his creations, in turn, seek to answer the question that is V P Singh

All along, the picture that emerges is that of a loner on a path not taken "But then, I was a lonely child," says Singh "It was quite traumatic and I felt really very lonely But I was very fond of nature — and that helped me in living with myself"

His childhood does seem to haunt him still At the age of five, he left his home and family when his parents decided to bequeath him to the childless Raja of Manda He was not allowed to meet any member of his natural family and grew up all by himself in the dimly-lit sprawling royal house of Manda

His adoptive father, Singh recalls, had an alcohol problem "He had a personal tragedy He was shown the photograph of one woman and then married off to another," he recounts He died when V P was 11, wracked by alcohol and tuberculosis "Every day, I was given five minutes to sit with him But because of his ailment, I was made to sit at a distance and converse," says Singh

Singh hints that though his comforts and needs were looked after, little love was showered on him He instead speaks of his foster father's "kindness" towards him, his intermittent stints away from home in a boarding school, of the constant movement from one school to another

The first time he came across filial love was when a government employee, Amar Nath, moved to Manda to look after the estate The Nath family filled in the needs that had never been thought of as important before And after his father's death, Amar Nath was named in his will as the guardian of the young Vishwanath

That was when his own family stepped in from neighbouring Daiya, seeking custody of the child "I realised something was wrong when Amar Nath came down to me, and stood there with tears in his eyes I refused to go with my father, held on to a chair and cried But I was physically picked up, put into a car and whisked away"

The circle had come to a full turn Singh's parents cut off all ties with the Amar Naths It was years later, when Singh was doing his graduation, that he received an invite from Delhi for the wedding of one of Amar Nath's daughters "Till then I had no idea

V.P. Singh is perhaps the politician who excites the most divergent and passionate of emotions. Hated by some as much as he is revered by others, he has been pilloried and praised — all at the same time. And while history may have the final word, what cannot be denied today is that the man makes news

Before the break Sharing tete-a-tete with Rajiv Gandhi

Jagjit Newsphoto Service

With Opposition MPs after resigning from Parliament over the Bofors issue in July 1989

CHEMISTRY THAT DIDN'T WORK

The man-who-was-king very nearly wasn't. Fondness for nature nurtured an interest in the sciences — almost making a nuclear scientist out of Vishwanath Pratap Singh

"I wanted to study science. But my local guardian thought that my job was going to be that of an administrator and I was told to study political science and economics," says Singh. "And those were the days when young people did what their elders asked them to do," he points out

So Singh went on to dutifully do law, got married and then one day — six years after that — suddenly spotted his brother-in-law carrying a physics textbook. Singh read it and, to his surprise, realised that he'd understood most of it. "That's because once I put my heart to a thing, I work towards it single-mindedly," he spells out.

It was then that Singh decided to formally study the subject Though theory was easy, the problem, he realised, was the fact that he needed to be affiliated to a college for his practicals

So he went to the principal of a well-known college in Allahabad and asked for permission to do his practicals there "Did you have science in your high school?" the principal asked. "No," replied Singh. "We are already into September. You think you can finish the course in six months?" the principal asked. "Yes," replied Singh.

The principal was not the kind to mince words. "You may be mad, but I am not," he said and dismissed a disappointed Singh. Singh, on the other hand, was not the kind to give up either. "I tried some sifarish and got into college.

"The principal agreed to give me a 15-day trial period. I prepared my theory well and passed the practicals. The principal was very happy and I was in," he recalls Six months later, he had earned a distinction in physics and chemistry Soon after that, he was in a train for Pune to pursue higher studies in the sciences.

Singh recalls that it was in the train that he first learnt about the chemical symbols — 'Au' for gold, 'Ag' for silver, and so on Singh did his B.Sc from Pune. He was all set to join Trombay, but was thwarted by fate. "I was over-age by a month," laments Singh 40 years later.

Back in Allahabad, "social circumstances" forced him to opt for a different stream. "I was not the least bit interested in politics. I spent my youth not even thinking of politics," he says. "But there were pressures on me — so many people around me had so many hopes and so many aspirations," he says.

ART, HIS JEALOUS MISTRESS

Like all artistes, Vishwanath Pratap Singh has his idiosyncracies. He does not like to explain his art, does not want to pin it down with a title and does not seek to categorise it. "The day you make your art conform to set parameters, it ceases to be a creation," he says.

Singh's studio is his bedroom, where he sits with his canvas and captures his emotions. Most believe that his art flourishes when the Janata Dal is on the upswing and stagnates when the party is in a shambles.

Though interested in the arts from the very beginning, V.P. used to be an erratic painter, finishing all of two paintings over 30 years. But now — with time on his side because of a spate ailments — Singh has taken to some serious painting.

"I first took up art as a hobby, but renewed the interest last year. I think, before that, the last painting had been done in 1962. In these 30 years, my brushes have all dried up," says Singh.

Today, he is ready to try out anything — from oil acrylics to water colours to charcoal, though most of his works are pencil sketches And, he stresses, there is no one school of art that inspires him in particular. "Each form is a medium of expression — be it realism, impressionism or total abstract," he says. "Some take sides — I don't."

V.P.'s paintings take on diverse subjects. A recent canvas symbolises what the former Prime Minister might describe as resurgence of the Janata Dal — a sunrise in shades of orange and yellow.

Another work, a sketch of a raised fist and an upright finger, echoes the thought. And though the artist doesn't say it in so many words, a painting of a hanging rope noose underlines the Congress decline.

V.P.'s fondness for animals finds a place in his drawings. He has done a series on dogs and cats, capturing every small detail of the animals. The paintings were among those which V.P. Singh carried to a multi-party meet in Ghaziabad some months ago — needless to say, at a time when the Dal's fortunes were looking up.

V.P. himself is a little wary of talking about his interest in the arts. "It is more of a personal expression, a reflection of my own feelings," he says.

Hand-in-hand with his love for painting comes his new-found interest in photography. During the long months when his illnesses curbed movement, he took a camera and shot everything that took his fancy. "I am not accomplished in any of these forms of art. But, graphy which interests me," he says.

But V.P.'s ouvre, perhaps, is poetry. He wrote his first poem nearly 30 years ago. "Then for a long time I did not write much, though some of my poems were published," Singh reveals.

The poems penned over the last few months hold a mirror to V.P.'s thinking. And greatly averse to having his poems translated, the politician himself is not too keen to sprout poetry

But, as one of his verses suggests, the poet does not want to define his borders. Says the poem: Abhi tak/ main thos tha/ meri seemayen spasht theen/ sthan nirdisht that/ abh/ pighal raha hoon/ anaayaas/ dhul raha hoon/ taral ban/ bah raha hoon/ neeche/ neeche/ kahin to thahar jaoonga/ kisi gaddey mein/ apni paridhi paa jaunga/ anjuli bhar mujhe/ uthane ki cheshta na karna/ unglion ke beech/ sarak jaoonga/ oonchayion se darta hoon.

With politics ever in a flux, Singh is not able to devote too much time to his interests. "But it is not politics, but art which vies with poetry," he says. For art, he adds, is a jealous mistress.

where they lived So I promptly landed up in Delhi and met them for the first time after so many years "

By the time Singh had graduated from school to college, his life was moving on an even keel A spate of firsts in school and college had given him the confidence to move ahead And it was in college that he first came across what was to turn into his life's leitmotif — his constant fight with the establishment

He [V.P. Singh] was a prefect in college when the student union elections were being held. One of the candidates had the support of the principal, which young Singh thought was 'absolutely improper'. He promptly penned down his resignation letter — the first of the many that were to follow

He was a prefect in college when the student union elections were being held One of the candidates had the support of the principal, which young Singh thought was "absolutely improper" He promptly penned down his resignation letter — the first of the many that were to follow

He was urged by his mates to stand for election — and decided to do so as an independent "I won hands down, and then came the clashes with the authorities " One of the main points of conflict revolved around a portrait of King George V which adorned the principal's room The young boys wanted it to be replaced with a painting of Rana Pratap

When the principal pleaded that he couldn't do so for lack of funds, V P initiated a fund-raising drive, making every student pay a rupee each "We collected Rs 700, but when even after that the photograph remained unchanged, we decided to boycott the principal's Janmashtami celebration and organise one of our own," he recalls

Announcing his resignation from the Lok Sabha last year. One of his recent paintings adorns the wall behind him

There were four or five students at the principal's gathering, and a hall-full at V P 's parallel function "I think it was then that the principal realised what he was up against," laughs Singh

Though the seeds of politics were sown right then, Singh himself came into the arena much later — "at 38, when I was approaching middle-age " Singh realised the need to be in public life when he spearheaded a road-building drive in his village "For 15 days we worked on the road and did away with all the pot-holes But just to get a roller I had to run around so much that I did some re-thinking — it was so much easier to get the government to act when you were an MLA or an MLC," he says

It was then that for the first time in his life V P decided to seek a ticket to the UP Assembly Though Dinesh Singh and Fakhruddin Ali Ahmed lobbied hard for his ticket, he faced an equally strong opposition from within the Congress "I told Indiraji that I had no past record to boast of — just as no other fresh candidate did But I could only promise the future It was like launching a new ship — either it sinks or sails "

And sail V P did As a deputy minister during the mid-Seventies, he thought the Emergency was "too much of a measure " But known widely as one of Sanjay Gandhi's men, he was asked to head Uttar Pradesh in 1980

His resignation brought him back to the Centre Several years and portfolios later — industry for a while, commerce, finance and defence — he elbowed Rajiv Gandhi out as the original Mr Clean

Then came the Jan Morcha, the Janata Dal and the National Front And though V P Singh did set the political agenda for the country, the criticisms came flowing in

Some believed that he was the one who gave legitimacy to the Bharatiya Janata Party by seeking its support to the National Front government at the Centre in 1989 There were others who believed that Singh has always ducked responsibility, and let down his political mentors and supporters Some thought that he had used Mandal as a convenient card in the game of politics

D Sengupta (PIB)

Taking oath as Prime Minister from then President R. Venkataraman in December 1989

With wife Sita Devi and Cabinet colleagues

Little wonder then that there were few — in high circles — who rued his government's fall and his believed exit from politics But just when V P 's bitterest critics had happily written him off as a bad dream, he emerged from the ashes as someone who was critically ailing, exciting curiosity, cynicism and condolences in equal doses

A protracted hungerstrike in Bombay caused renal complications, which were followed by a series of eye problems Then, in April last year, it was diagnosed that V P was possibly suffering from Chronic Myeloid Leukaemia, a variety of blood cancer common to India

Once his ailments — which caused V P to drastically cut down on his election tours — were out of the news, he hit the headlines by resigning from his parliamentary party "But I resigned because I had always said I would do so And I left at a point when the party was gaining strength," he holds

When everyone thought that V P was out of the reckoning, he swung right back into action with the November Assembly elections and now, with success behind him, V P Singh looks back at the changing political equations in the country with the air of a man who started it all "For the first time, the power equilibrium has shifted towards the depressed sections," he stresses

Long after V P 's government at the Centre has gone, it is indeed a reality that can no longer be wished away Not even 10 Prime Ministers, he says with an element of pride, can undo what has been done "There was a price tag attached to the change — and that was the price of a government We paid the price because we wanted the change," he says

And mission over, where does that leave the messiah? Though not out of the political arena — as yet — he has other interests to keep him busy His fight for social justice continues, he states And, meanwhile, he lifts his pen, writes a poem on listlessness, holds his brush, paints a squirrel, picks up his camera and shoots a flower

"All through my life and career I resigned either to keep my word, or because of the challenge," he maintains

When he resigned as the finance minister he points out, it was to fight the economic status quo and as the defence minister to fight against the political status quo "When I resigned as the Prime Minsiter, it was to fight the social status quo," he says And everytime, Singh maintains, his resignantion was the prelude to greater activity

"But the latest resignation is more for personal freedom," says he "This time it is really for a holiday " V P watchers, however, warn that his yearning for a vacation should not be taken seriously

For, more than words, it is the flair of his pyjamas which point to the direction that he is taking When he is in power, a tight churidar goes with his achkans When he is out of power and sidelined, he wears Aligarhi pyjamas And when he is out of power but plotting a coup, he moves on to the loose, wide-flaired Bengali pyjamas The flair, at this moment, couldn't have been any wider ■

When everyone thought that V.P. was out of the reckoning, he swung right back into action with the November Assembly elections and now, with success behind him, he looks back at the changing political equations in the country with the air of a man who started it all

INNER EYE — Bejan Daruwalla

Aries

March 21—April 20

Ganesha says the full moon reactivates your interest in home, and a spot of renovation/decoration could involve the office/shop as well Around January 17, both good and bad things happen, breaking at least the boredom of human existence Romance is foretold

Taurus

April 21--May 20

Though you are on a slightly choppy, changeful sea, expect things and matters to right themselves for you This holds specially true for finances, buying and selling It is absolutely certain that either you will be corresponding and travelling, or inviting visitors, or doing both

Gemini

May 21 --June 20

While finances and family posers are important, you will meet quite a few interesting persons A little care in relationships is advisable, as you should not hurt or be hurt by your loved one Buying/selling are focalised Many of you will be interested in ties

Cancer

June 21--July 20

Despite rough going, rest assured you will find enough to keep busy Also, you may expect some good news You are advised to reach out to people and places as contracts and assignments await you by doing so January 20-21 will be newsy Health safeguards are a must

Leo

July 21—August 21

Better gird up your loins and get work done While it will be incomplete, at least a start will have been made Romance blossoms and that should be welcome Tuesday/Wednesday will be important for Leons Get all personal work done and try to resolve problems then

Virgo

August 22—September 22

Friends may not succeed overmuch, but at least they try to help you The home situation should improve, giving you a little satisfaction and contentment January 19-21 will be specially important for decision-making and coming to grips with emotional affairs

Libra

September 23--October 22

Home, renovation and decoration are quite on the cards for Librans Ganesha says, your mental horizons and expertise will widen considerably, relatives will be very much in your life A trip is on the anvil It would be advantageous to take it Next, expect a wish-fulfilment

Scorpio

October 23--November 22

Friendliness and tact will take you places Many of you will be in a mood to take chances Home and family come in for a radical haul There are opportunities for advancement Entertain Socialise Attend functions and meetings Good for you

Sagittarius

November 23—December 20

From January 17, Pluto, according to western astrology, enters your sign and will be there till January 27, causing dramatic and progressive changes in your entire lifestyle and behaviour patterns This week romance, mixed results in health and funds take up top priority

Capricorn

December 21—January 19

A week of chop and change, but it will help you to adapt and think of alternatives Partnerships of all sorts and human relationships are the issues here It seems you will have to adjust quite a bit However, it should be worth it Negotiations should take up your time

Aquarius

January 20—February 18

Be careful of what you say and to whom you say, because insolence and impetuosity could land you into a lot of needless trouble On the positive side, job opportunities come your way Friends will certainly try to help you Superiors will like you A promotion is possible in February-April

Pisces

February 19—March 20

Best to take the long shot, be it job, love, family or signing a contract Pressures of work will be truly tremendous and decision-making could be a problem by itself Many of you will be seeking new outlets and directions for yourself and your loved ones, shedding away the old

BIRTHDAYS

January 15: Moon-Sun excellent placing means work will be done and you will regain lost position or status Love and romance come your way.

January 16: Full Moon could lead to tensions in partnerships and ties, unless you play it carefully and are ready to compromise A few not-too-pleasant choices necessary

January 17: Moon-Jupiter excellent placing assures children, love, artistic talent, managerial skills and probably the luck of the draw. A wish could come true

January 18: Moon opposes Mercury, giving you plenty of food for thought. Do not be hasty and overzealous This applies for both work and play, money and love.

January 19: Moon conjuncts Mars, favouring a change of scenary, though this could end up on the expensive side It could be a year favouring pilgrimages, publicity and planning.

January 20: Moon Saturn opposition could slow you down, but rest assured, you will get what you want. Home conditions ease, become better.

January 21: Moon-Sun happy placing spells success. Those in teaching, writing, management, statistics, tours and travel do an outstanding job.

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

■ AGARTALA

Departures Flt No	Time	Days	Arrivals Flt No	Time	Days
IC-741	0710	3,6	IC-742	0940	3,6
IC 743	0920	daily	IC-744	1150	daily
PF 701	1130	1 3 5,7	PF 702	1610	1,3 5 7

■ AHMEDABAD

M9-304/109	0855	1 3,5	M9-110/301	1900	1 3,5

■ AIZAWL

PF-705	0730	daily	PF 706	1100	daily

■ BAGDOGRA

PF-707	1130	2,4 6	PF 708	1510	2 4 6
IC-721	1300	1 3 5	IC-722	1540	1 3,5

■ BANGALORE

IC 771	0600	daily	IC-772	1140	daily

■ BHUBANESWAR

IC-544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2 7
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5

■ BOMBAY

AI-431	0100	2
IC 676	0730	daily	IC-675	0820	daily
D2 102	0905	daily	D2-101	0835	daily
9W-202	0920	daily	9W 201	0840	daily
AI 309	1930	6	AI-306	1730	5
IC-273	1945	daily	IC 274	1850	daily
9W 212	1955	daily	9W 211	1920	daily
D2-104	2005	daily	D2-103	1935	daily

■ COOCH BEHAR

PF 707	1130	2 4 6	PF-708	1510	2,4 6

■ DELHI

			IC-262	0815	2 4,7
IC-263	0700	daily	M9 303	0825	daily
M9-304	0855	daily	4S-806	1115	1 2 3 4,5 6
4S 805	1745	1 2 3 4 5 6	AI-682	1145	1
IC 812	1515	1 3 5	IC-401	1155	daily
IC 402	1715	daily	M9-301	1900	daily
IC-261	1900	2 4 7	S2 005	1900	1 2,3 4,5,6
M9 302	1930	daily	IC-811	1930	1 3 5
S2 006	1940	1,2 3 4 5 6	IC-264	2210	daily

■ DIBRUGARH

IC 703	0715	3 5	IC-704	1345	3 5
D2 181	1135	1 3 5 7	D2-181	1620	1 3,5,7
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
4S-815	1145	1 2,3 4 5 6	IC-702	1630	2 4 6 7
IC-701	1240	2 4 6 7	4S-816	1705	1 2 3 4 5 6

■ DIMAPUR

IC 257	1150	4,7	IC-258	1650	4,7

FLIGHTS — INTERNATIONAL

■ AMMAN

RJ-185	1445	4	RJ-184	0705	4

■ AMSTERDAM

KL-876	0420	7	KL-875	0235	7

■ GUWAHATI

IC-703	0715	3,5	IC-704	1345	3,5
IC-707	0715	1,4,6	IC-708	1345	1 4,6
IC-711	0715	2 7	IC-712	1400	2,7
D2-181	1135	1,3,5 7	D2-181	1620	1 3,5 7
D2-183	1135	2 4 6	D2-183	1620	2 4 6
4S-812	1145	1,2 3,4 5,6	4S-811	1705	1 2 3 4,5,6
IC-257	1150	4,7	IC-230	1620	daily
IC-211	1240	4 6	IC-258	1650	4 7
IC-229	1310	daily	IC-212	1740	4 6

■ HYDERABAD

IC-777	1500	2 4 7	IC-778	2005	2,4,7
IC-769	1525	1 3,5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5

■ IMPHAL

IC-707	0715	1,4,6	IC-256	1320	3,5
IC-255	0830	3 5	IC-708	1345	1 4,6
IC-253	1100	2,6	IC-254	1550	2,6

■ JORHAT

IC-213	0910	2 4,7	IC-213	1315	2 4,7

■ LUCKNOW

IC-812	1515	1 3 5	IC-811	1930	1 3 5

■ MADRAS

IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC-541	1030	1,3 5
IC-544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2 7
IC-765	1720	daily	D2-171	1045	daily
D2-172	1740	daily	IC-766	2220	daily

■ NAGPUR

IC-769	1525	1 3 5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5

■ PATNA

IC-249	1430	2 4,7	IC-249	1805	2 4 7
IC-812	1515	1 3,5	IC 811	1930	1 3 5

■ PORT BLAIR

IC-285	0640	3 5,7	IC-286	1100	2,4,6

■ RANCHI

IC-249	1430	2 4 7	IC-249	1805	2,4,7

■ SHILLONG

PF-701	1130	1,3,5,7	PF-702	1610	1 3 5,7

■ SILCHAR

IC-255	0830	3,5	IC-260	1110	1,7
IC-259	0830	1,7	IC-256	1320	3,5
IC-253	1100	2,6	IC-254	1550	2,6
IC-211	1240	4 6	IC-212	1740	4 6

■ TEZPUR

IC-213	0910	2 4 7	IC-213	1315	2,4,7

■ VISHAKHAPATNAM

IC-542	1115	1 3 5	IC-541	1030	1,3,5

INTERNATIONAL

■ BANGKOK

IC-731	0855	2 4,5,7	KB-106	1115	3
			KB-106	1215	5
KB-105	1125	2,6	TG-313	1240	1,3 6
TG-314	1355	1,3,6	IC-732	1505	2,4,5 7
AI-306	1910	5	AI-309	1825	6

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
BUCHAREST
RO-076	2040	5, 7	RO 075	1035	5, 7
CHITTAGONG
IC-225	1200	1	IC-226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2, 5	BG-697	1655	2 5
DHAKA
BG-092	0850	4 5	BG-091	0810	4, 5
BG-092	1150	1 2, 3, 6 7	BG-091	1110	1 2, 3 6, 7
IC-723	1300	1 2 5 6 7	IC-724	1620	1 2, 5, 6, 7
BG-094	1905	1 2 3 5 6 7	BG-093	1825	1 2 3, 5, 6, 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1 5	BG-095	2020	1 5
KATHMANDU
IC-747	1115	1 3 6	IC-748	1455	1 3 6
RA-214	1400	4, 7	RA-213	1315	4 7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
LONDON
BA-142	2050	3, 7	BA-143	1525	3 7
MOSCOW
SU-538	1855	4	SU-537	1655	4
PARO
KB-106	1200	3	KB-105	1040	2, 6
KB-106	1300	5
SINGAPORE
AI-430	1300	1	SQ-416	2040	2, 5
SQ-415	2200	2 5	AI-431	2235	1
SOFIA
LZ-504	1750	4	LZ-503	1650	4
TOKYO
AI-306	1910	5	AI-309	1825	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
2311	19 15	Delhi Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19 20	Amritsar Mail	7 55	3006
3003	20 35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13 00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat	16 15	2382
2303	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun	16 15	2304
2301	16 30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun	10 45	2302
2305	13 45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat	12 50	2306
3073	23 00	Himgiri (Jammu Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat Arr Tues Wed & Sat	11 35	3074
5047	13 00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon Wed & Fri	4 30	5048
3009	20 30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9 45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18 15	3008
3049	13 20	Amritsar Express	15 30	3050
3039	21 00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5 20	3040
3019	16 05	Kathgodam Express	11 55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5 00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6 30	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17 11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18 20	Asansol Express	8-45	3036
3031	21 05	Danapur Express	5 50	3032
3025	23 00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday Arr Friday	11 35	3026
3071	22 30	Jamalpur Express	5 10	3072
3015	9 55	Santiniketan Express	15 40	3016
1159	15 25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tues & Wed	6 50	1160
1171	15 25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed Arr Fri Sat & Sun	6 50	1172
3327	14 30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4 50	3328
1181	15 25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6 50	1182
		Sealdah
3141	13-40	Teesta Torsa Express Dep Mon Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed Thurs Fri Sat & Sun	6 35	3142
3143	19 15	Darjeeling Mail	8 45	3144
3111	20-15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7 15	3112
5657	6 25	Kanchanjunga Express	20 35	5658
3153	22-00	Gour Express	5 15	3154
5663	20 00	Katihar Express	4 15	5664
3151	11 45	Jammu Tawi Express	15-50	3152
3133	20 55	Mughal Sarai Express via SBG Loop	12 55	3134
3103	18 20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express	10-25	3104
5185	12-40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues Thus & Sat	4 25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6-50	6004
8002	19 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12-00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	1940	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13 45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express	22 05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5-00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6-10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5 30	8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8 25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00	8046
8017	16 45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2421	16 40	Bhubaneswar-New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10	—
	11 05	New Delhi Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22-15	--
—	14 05	Trivandrum Central Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 45	6321
-	14 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13 45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15	—
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13 45	6315
6520	22-35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15	—
-	14-05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South-Eastern Railway trains, please dial 2203545-54 for in-coming trains, 2203535 44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South-Eastern Railway trains, dial 2203496-3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition, dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running), 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535-37

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

AN OUTSIDER INSIDE

Timothy the tiger cub was discovered by Grandfather on a hunting expedition in the Terai jungles near Dehra Grandfather was no shikari, but as he knew the forests of the Siwalik hills better than most people, he was persuaded to accompany the party which consisted of several VIPs from Delhi, to advise on the terrain and the direction the beaters should take once a tiger had been spotted

The camp itself was sumptuous — seven large tents (one for each shikari), a dining tent and a number of servant's tents The dinner was very good as Grandfather admitted afterwards It was not often that one saw hot-water plates, finger glasses and seven or eight courses in a tent in the jungle

But that was how things were done in the days of the Viceroys There were also some 15 elephants, four of them with howdahs for the shikaris and the others specially trained for taking part in the beat

The sportsmen never saw a tiger, nor did they shoot anything else though they saw a number of deer, peacock and wild boar They were giving up all hope of finding a tiger and were beginning to shoot at jackals, when Grandfather, strolling down the forest path some distance from the rest of the party, discovered a little tiger 18" long, hiding in the intricate roots of a banyan tree

Grandfather picked him up and brought him home after the camp had broken up He had the distinction of being the only member of the party to have bagged any game, dead or alive!

At first, the tiger cub, who was named Timothy by Grandmother, was brought up entirely on milk given to him in a feeding bottle by our cook Mahmoud But the milk proved too rich for him and he was put on a diet of raw mutton and cod liver oil, to be followed later by a more tempting diet of pigeons and rabbits

Timothy was provided with two companions, Toto the monkey was bold enough to pull the young tiger by the tail and then climb the curtains if Timothy lost his temper, and a small mongrel puppy found on the road by Grandfather

At first, Timothy appeared to be quite afraid of the puppy and darted back with a spring if it came too near He would make absurd dashes at it with his large fore-paws and then retreat to a ridiculously safe distance Finally, he allowed the puppy to crawl onto his back and rest there

One of Timothy's favourite pastimes was to stalk anyone who would play with him and so, when I came to live with Grandfather, I became one of the tiger's favourites

With a crafty look in his glittering eyes and his body crouching, he would creep closer to me, suddenly making a dash for my feet, rolling over on his back and kicking with delight and pretending to bite my ankles

He was, by this time, the size of a full-grown retriever and when I took him out for walks, people on the road would give us a wide berth When he pulled hard on his chain, I had difficulty keeping up with him

His favourite place in the house was the drawing room and he would make himself comfortable on the long sofa, reclining there with great dignity and snarling at anyone who tried to get him off

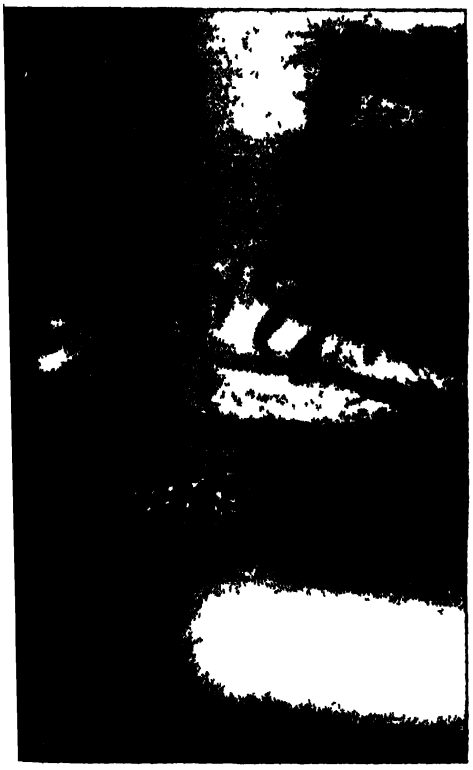
Timothy had clean habits and would scrub his face with his paws exactly like a cat He slept at night in the cook's quarters and was always delighted at being let out by him in the mornings "One of these days," declared Grandmother in her prophetic manner, "we are going to find Timothy sitting on Mahmoud's bed and no sign of the cook except his clothes and shoes!"

Of course, it never came to that, but when Timothy was about six months old, a change came over him — he grew steadily less friendly When out for a walk with me, he would try and steal away to stalk a cat or somebody's pet pekinese

Sometimes at night we would hear frenzied cackling from the poultry house and in the morning there would be feathers lying all over the verandah Timothy had to be chained up

At first, the tiger cub, who was named Timothy by Grandmother, was brought up entirely on milk given to him in a feeding bottle by our cook Mahmoud. But the milk proved too rich for him and he was put on a diet of raw mutton and cod liver oil, to be followed later by a more tempting diet of pigeons and rabbits

more often And finally, when he began to stalk Mahmoud about the house with what looked like villainous intent, Grandfather decided it was time to transfer him to a zoo



The nearest zoo was at Lucknow, 200 miles away Reserving a first class compartment for himself and Timothy — nobody would share a compartment with them — Grandfather took him to Lucknow where the zoo authorities were only too glad to receive as a gift, a well-fed and fairly civilised tiger

About six months later, when my grandparents were visiting relatives in Lucknow, Grandfather took the opportunity of calling at the zoo to see how Timothy was getting on I was not there to accompany him, but heard all about it when he returned to Dehra

Arriving at the zoo, Grandfather made straight for the particular cage in which Timothy had been interred The tiger was there crouched in a corner, full-grown with a magnificent striped coat "Hello, Timothy!" said Grandfather, and, climbing the railing with ease, put his arms through the bar of the cage

Timothy approached the bars and allowed Grandfather to put both arms around his head Grandfather stroked the tiger's forehead and tickled his ears and whenever he growled, smacked him across the mouth which was his old way of keeping him quiet.

Timothy licked Grandfather's hands and only sprang away when the leopard in the next cage snarled at him Grandfather 'shooed' the leopard away and Timothy returned to lick his hands, but every now and then the leopard would rush at the bars and Timothy would slink back into the corner

Mashed Ahmed

A number of people had gathered to watch the reunion when the keeper pushed his way through the crowd to ask Grandfather what he was doing "I'm talking to Timothy," said Grandfather "Weren't you here when I gave him to the zoo six months ago?"

"I haven't been here very long," said the surprised keeper "Please continue your conversation But I have never been able to touch him myself, he is always very bad tempered "

"Why don't you put him somewhere else?" suggested Grandfather "The leopard keeps frightening him I'll go and see the superintendent about it "

Grandfather went in search of the superintendent of the zoo, but found he had gone home early and so after wandering about for a bit, he returned to Timothy's cage to say goodbye It was beginning to get dark He had been stroking and slapping Timothy for about five minutes when he found another keeper observing him with some alarm Grandfather recognised him as the keeper who had been there when Timothy had first come to the zoo

"You remember me," said Grandfather "Now why don't you transfer Timothy to another cage, away from this stupid leopard?"

"But Sir " stammered the keeper "It is not your tiger "

"I know, I know," said Grandfather testily, "I realise he is no longer mine But you might at least take a suggestion or two from me "

"I remember your tiger very well," said the keeper "He died two months ago "

"Died!" exclaimed Grandfather

"Yes Sir, of pneumonia This tiger was trapped in the hills only last month and he is very dangerous!"

Grandfather could think of nothing to say The tiger was licking his arm with increasing relish Grandfather took what seemed like an age to withdraw his arm from the cage With his face near the tiger's he mumbled, "Goodnight, Timothy," and giving the keeper a scornful look, walked briskly out of the zoo

It was the only time Grandfather had been unable to recognise an animal

(Sanctuary Features)

The finest Diamond and 22/22K Gold Jewellery at:

Nemichand Bamalwa & Sons,

Jewellers

16-A, Shakespeare Sarani, 3rd Floor Calcutta 700071; Phone: 242-3388

The melting or refining purity of our 22/22K ornaments is 22 Karat (91.67%)

HEADS AND TAILS

Maneka Gandhi

MEATING INTO OUR ENVIRONMENT

This week's column is a continuation of an article from Worldwatch magazine about the longterm effects of intensive poultry and livestock farming on the environment While the examples and figures relate to livestock farming in the US, with our politicians promoting the meat and poultry farming industries aggressively and indiscriminately, natural law will dictate the same results in India

"Almost half of the energy used in American agriculture goes into livestock production, the majority of it for meat Producing the red meat and poultry eaten each year by a typical American takes energy equal to 50 gallons gasoline Supplying vegetarians with nourishment requires one-third less energy on the farm than supplying meat-eaters

"Of course, energy used on the farm isn't the whole story in the food system Processing, packaging, transporting, selling, storing and cooking foods use almost twice as much energy nationwide as agriculture does Yet, meat still leads the league in energy used per pound of product served Pork involves more than 15 times as much energy as fresh fruits and vegetables

"Feed grain guzzles water, too In California, now the nation's leading dairy producer, livestock agricultre takes nearly a third (the largest share) of irrigation water, according to independe t water analyst Marc Reisner of San Fransisco

"Animal raising accounts for similar shares across the western US, including areas irrigated with water from dwindling underground acquifers The beef feed-lot centre of the nation — Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska and the Texas panhandle -- relies on crops raised with water pumped out of a depleting underground water source called the Ogallala acquifer

"Jim Oltjen, professor of animal science at the University of California at Davis, estimates that half of the grain and hay fed to American livestock grows on irrigated land He calculates that it takes about 430 gallons of water to produce a pound of pork, 390 gallons for a pound of beef, and 375 gallons per pound of chicken

"Thus the water used to supply Americans with meat comes to about 190 gallons per person per day, or twice what typical Americans use at home for all purposes

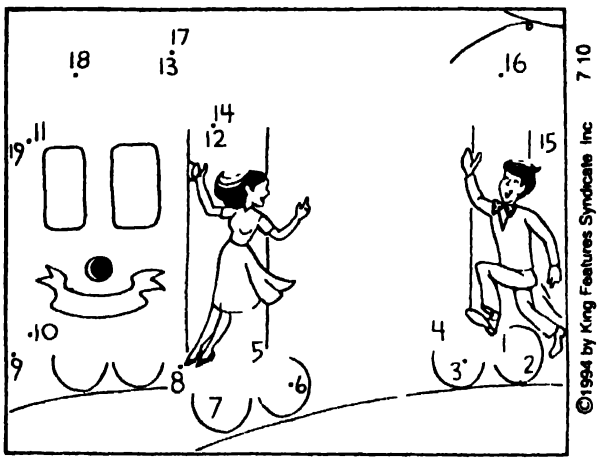
"The livestock industry uses half the territory of the continental US for feed crops, pasture, and range On the half of US cropland growing animal feed and hay, soil continues eroding at a frightful pace despite recent progress in conservation For each pound of red meat, poultry, eggs and milk, farm fields lose about five pounds of prime dirt

"The vast majority of land devoted to livestock is not fertile cropland or pasture, but arid public range in the western US which the government leases to ranchers for grazing Although the 270 million acres so used — an area larger than 14 eastern seaboard states — supply less than 5 per cent of the beef Americans consume, damage to the land is acute

"The worst harm was done in the great cattle drives of the last century An Environment Protection Agency (EPA) sponsored study describes the shameful history 'The land was used so ruthlessly that native perennial grasses were virtually eliminated from vast areas and replaced by sagebrush, rabbitbrush, mesquite and juniper,' the exposed soil was 'quickly stripped from the surface by wind and water unchecked flood flows eroded unprotected streambanks water tables fell lower Perennial streams became intermittent or dry during most of the year'

"Harold Dregne, professor of soil science at Texas Tech University, estimates that 10 per cent of the arid West has been turned to desert by livestock

"With open rangeland overgrazed, cattle concentrate in the narrow streambanks or 'riparian' habitats which are the cornerstone of arid land ecology Trampling and eating vegetation that regulates water flow, herds leave the land unable to absorb cloudbursts Floods then rampage downstream, carrying away soil and accelerating the process of ecological decline



"The American appetite for meat has environmental consequences that extend beyond our national frontiers The US imports only 0 5 per cent of its beef from Central America but the effects of producing that meat are startling In Central America beef exports to the US have played a part in the tragedy of forest destruction Costa Rica, for example was once almost completely clothed in tropical forests, holding within its confines perhaps 5 per cent of all plant and animal species on earth By 1983, after two decades of explosive growth in the cattle industry, just 17 per cent of the original forest remained

"Producing a single Costa Rican hamburger involves the destruction of 55 square feet of rainforest — the area around the size of a small kitchen Such a swathe typically contains one tree, 50 saplings and seedlings of 20 to 30 species, thousands of insects comprising hundreds of species, and an almost unimaginable diversity and abundance of mosses, fungi and microorganisms," according to biologist Christopher Uhl of Pennsylvania State University and Geoffery Parker of the New York Botanical Garden Clearing that single patch of wet Costa Rican forest would also release as much as 165 lbs of the carbon it naturally stores, into the atmosphere in the form of the greenhouse gas carbon dioxide, according to Sandra Brown, professor of forestry at the University of Illinois That's as much carbon as a typical American car releases in a 20-day period "

[Courtesy Worldwatch]
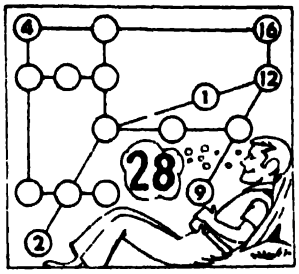
(Sanctuary Features)

JUNIOR WHIRL



HAL KAUFMAN

ON THE GO! Our friend at right is off and running, as you will see when you complete the scene Connect dots

ENTRY LEVEL! Find four progressively longer words ending in "entry" 1 entry 2 entry 3 -- entry 4 -entry (Use proper noun for No 3)

1 Sentry (or gentry) 2 Reentry 3 Coventry 4 Carpentry

DREAM SCHEME TOTAL IS 28

DREAM ON! Note that two numbers — 12 and 16 — at top right of the dream scheme above, total 28 Coincidentally, when missing numbers between 1 and 16 are inserted correctly, each straight line trio of numbers will also total 28

Can you insert the missing numbers?

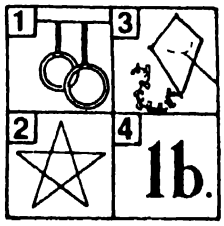
For starters, place 8 in circle at top row centre Thereafter, one 28 trio leads to another in most instances

Remember, only missing numbers between 1 and 16 are to be inserted

Time limit 7 minutes

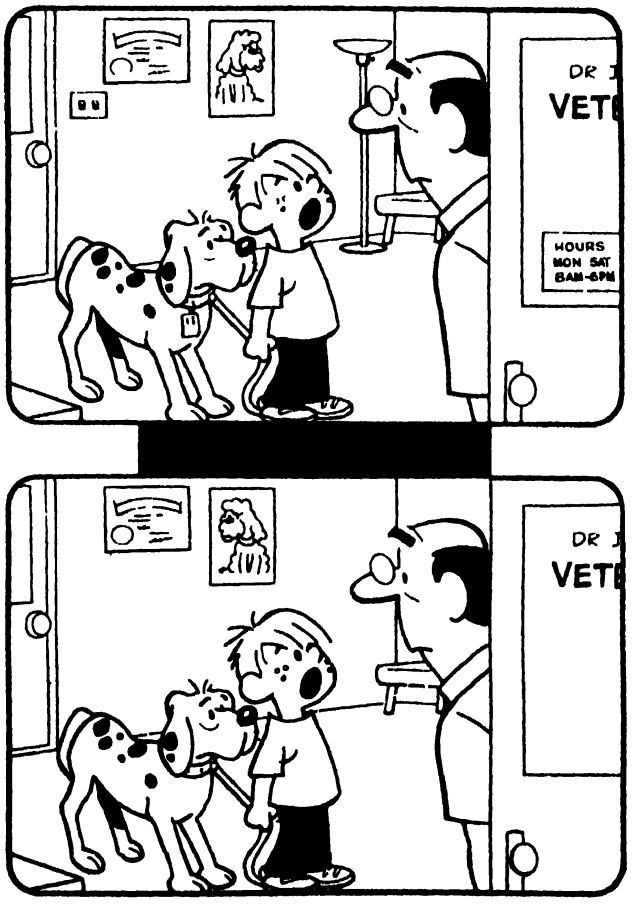
Three in a row is mentioned more than 13 times in the solution. Can you find it?

FOUR CAST! You are challenged to answer the four questions posed below, pertaining to the subjects pictured in the diagram below



1 Rings are equipment used in gyms True or false?

2 The word 'kite' rhymes with verdict, indict, elite Which?



3 Another name for a five-pointed star is quintagon, heptagon, pentacle Which?

4 Letters lb used to designate pound are really an abbreviation of what word?

1 True 2 Indict 3 Pentacle 4 Libra Roman pound

HOCUS-FOCUS

(Drawings by Henry Scarpati)

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below

DIFFERENCES 1 Switch is missing 2 Picture is reversed 3 Tag is missing 4 Lamp is missing 5 Sleeve is shorter 6 Sign is missing

FUNSPOT

SAND HO! "Hey, Mom, put me down! I want to play in the sand, too "

Code 1—Red 2—Lt blue 3—Yellow 4—Lt brown 5—Flesh 6—Green 7—Dk brown 8—Purple 9—Black

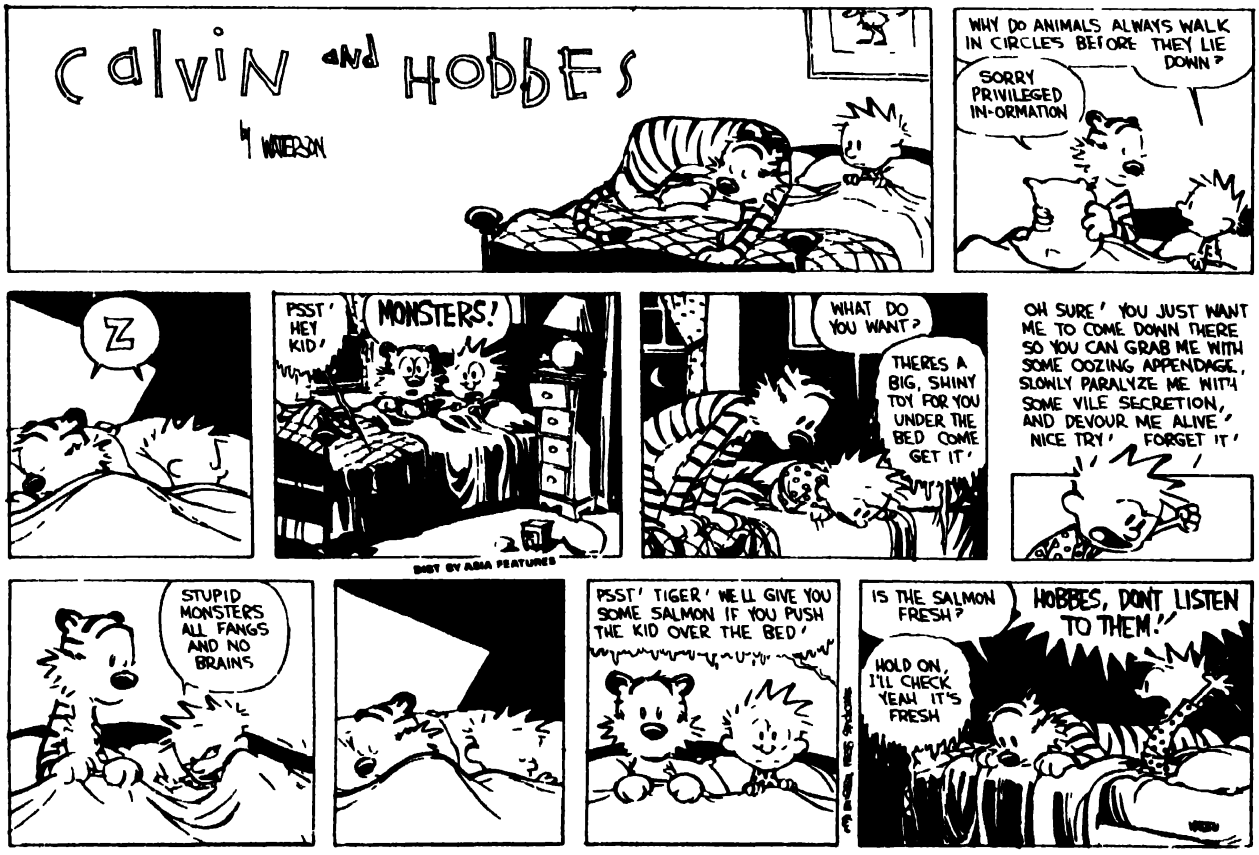
SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

POUNDAGE

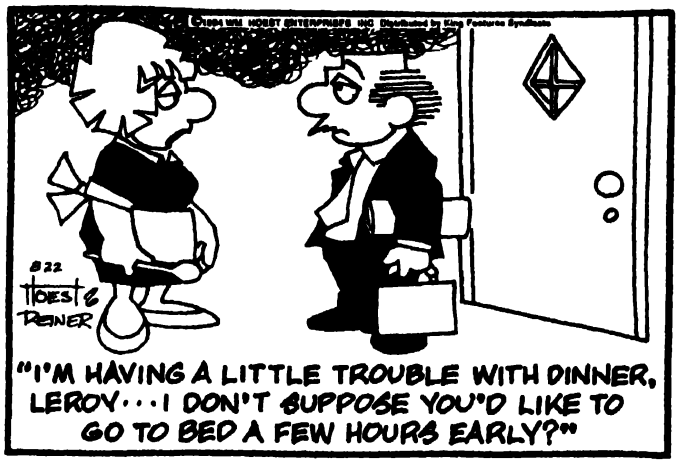
THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

Try to score at least 50 points

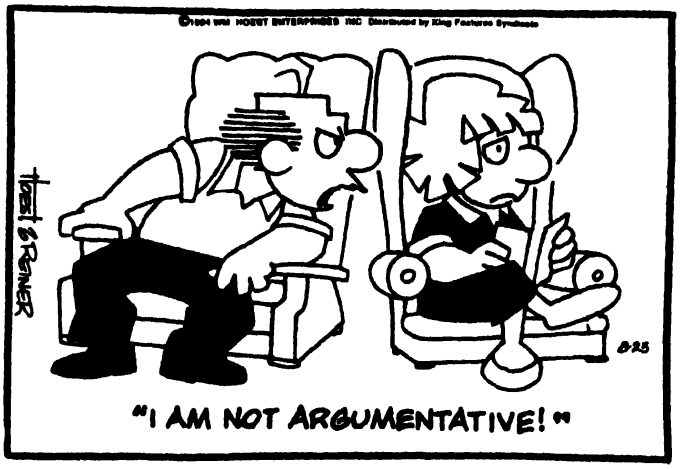


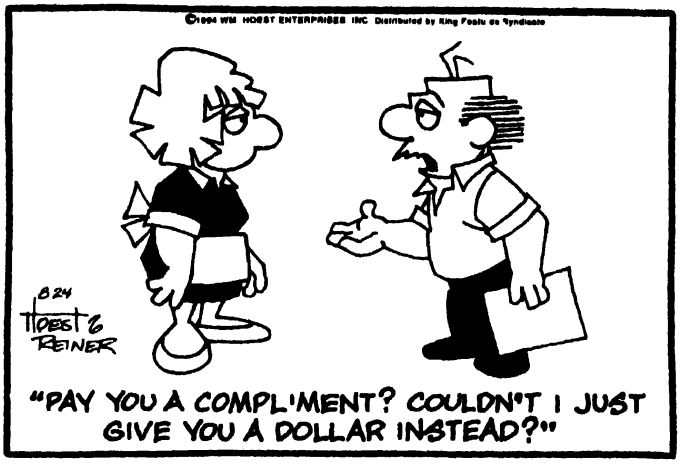
Possible twosome Undo page

COMICS

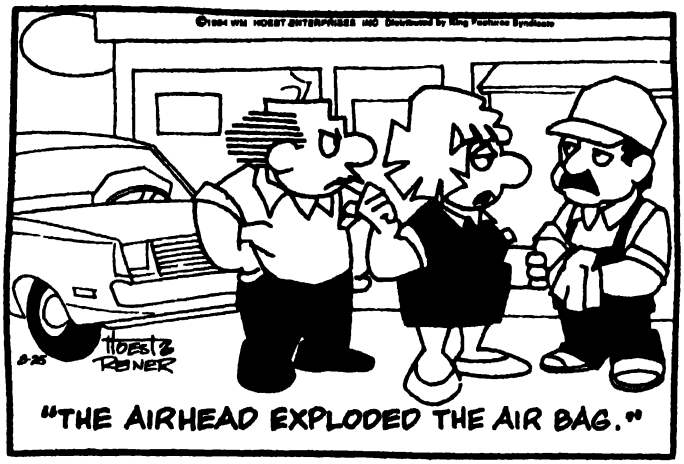


ARCHIE

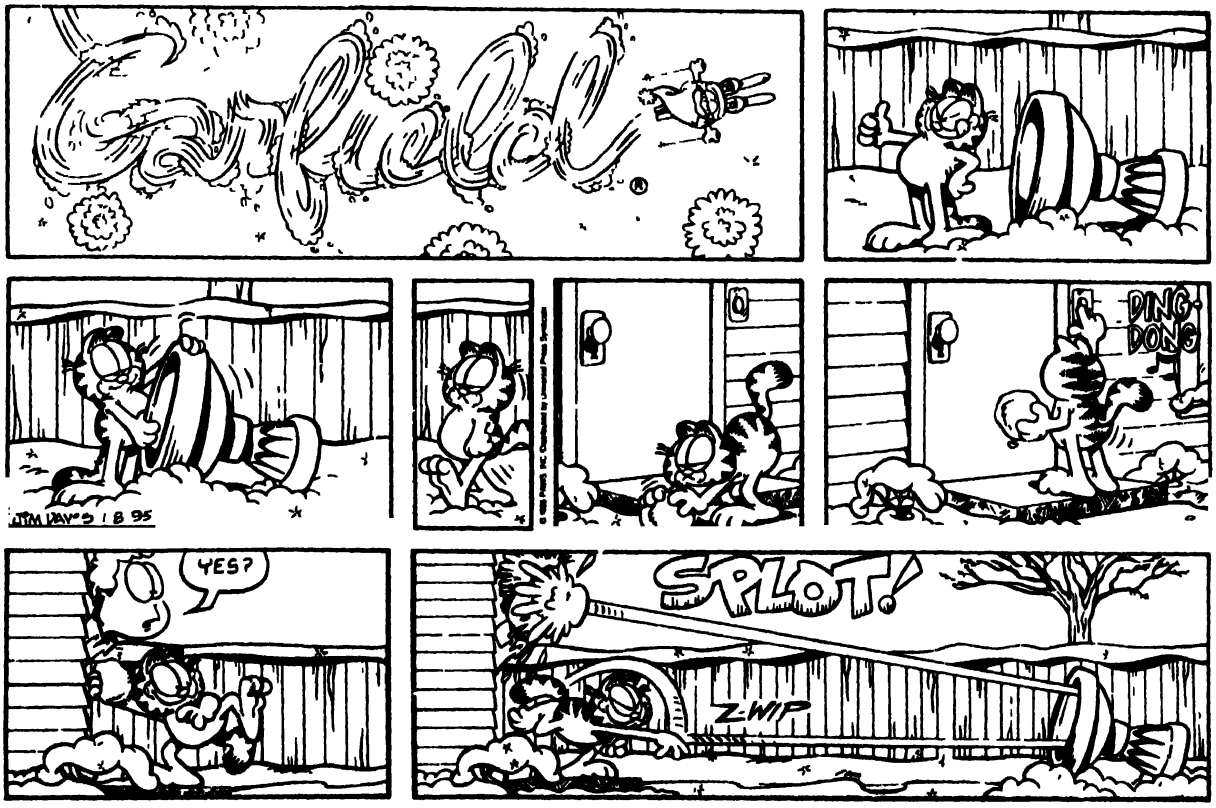


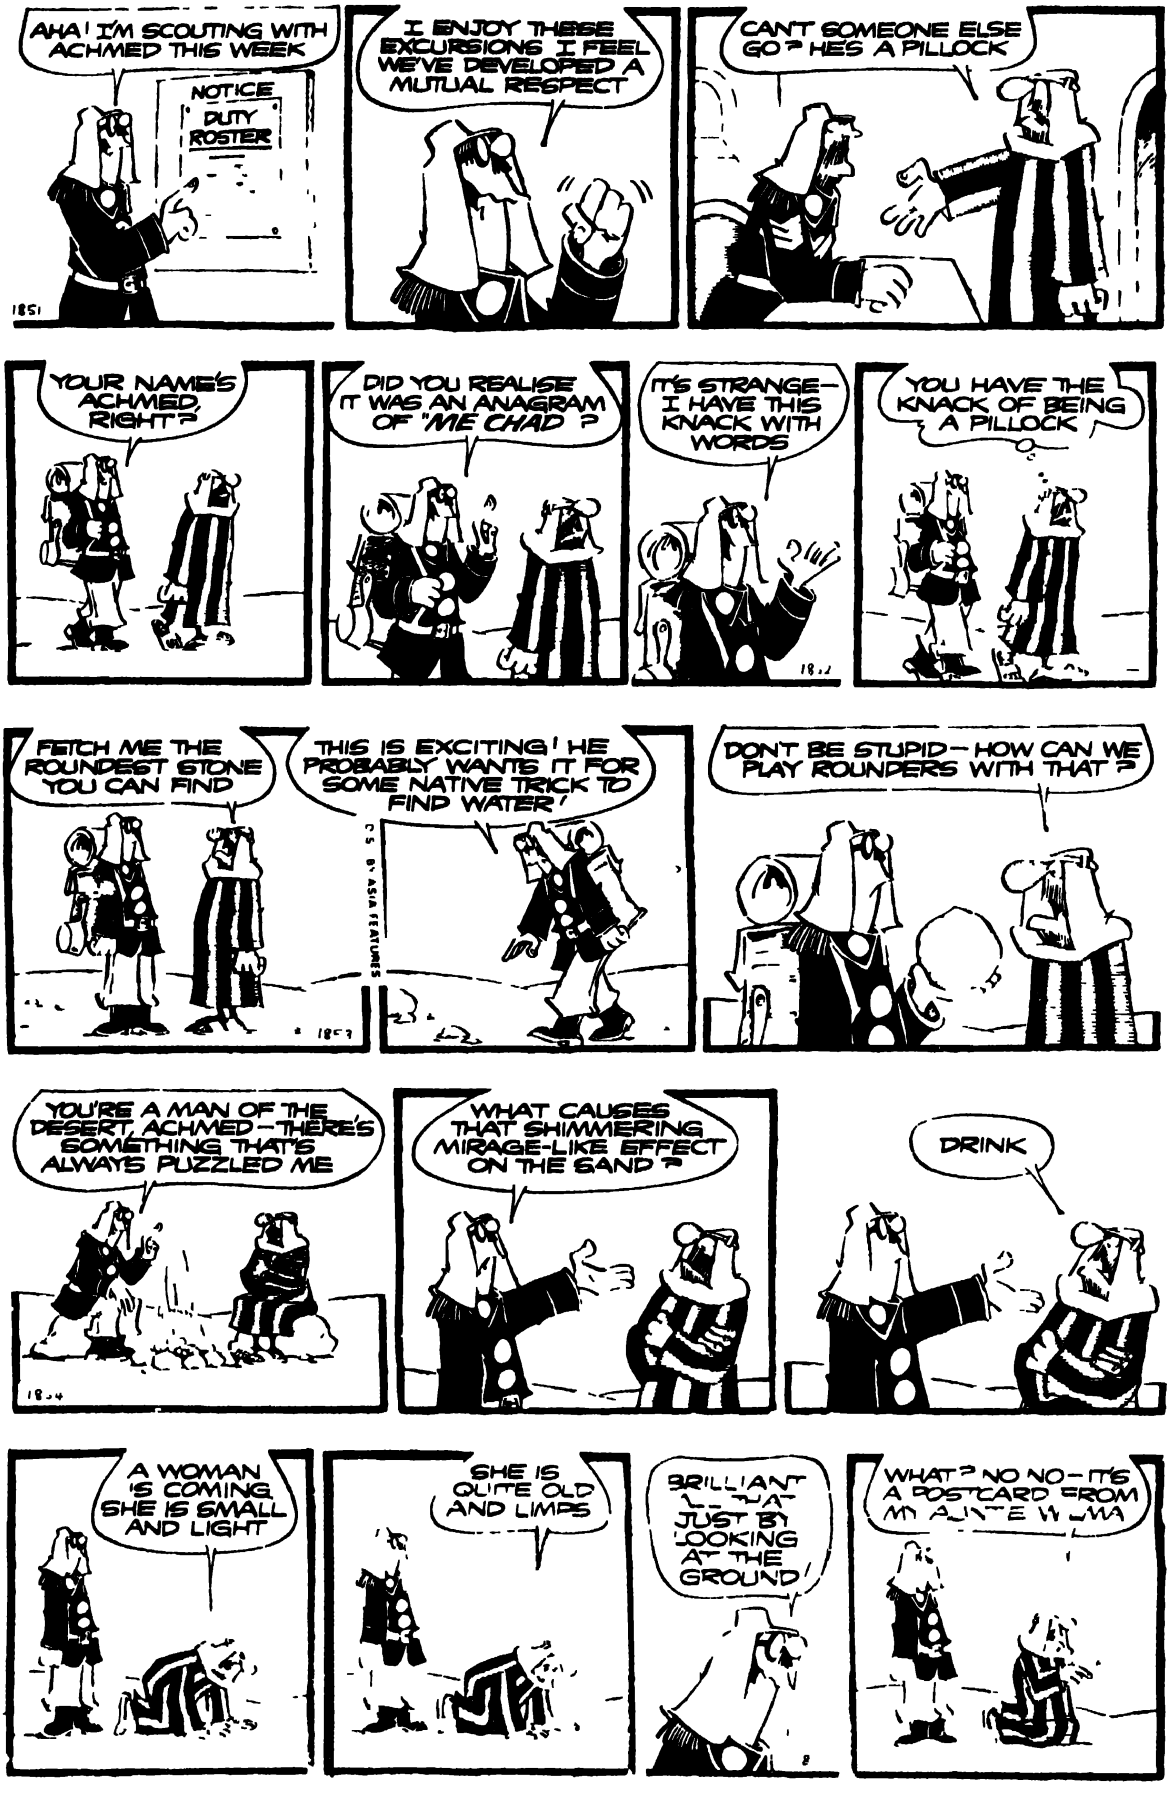


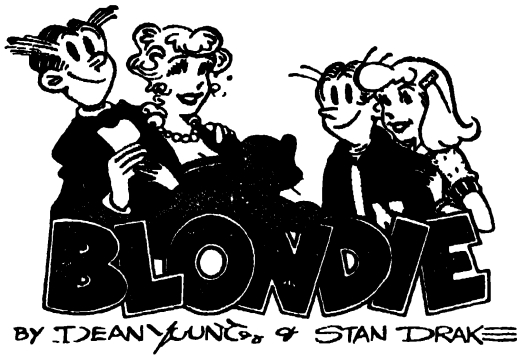
CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON

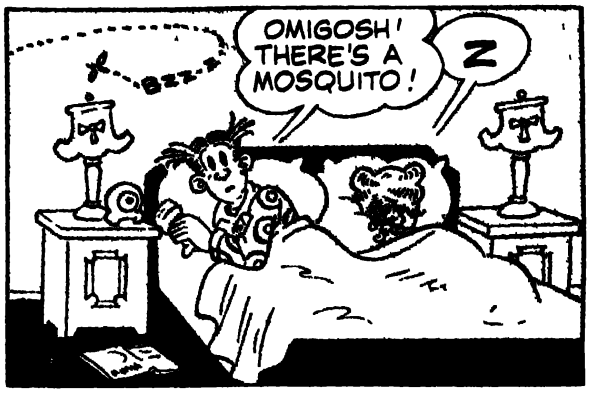


THE LOCKHORNS

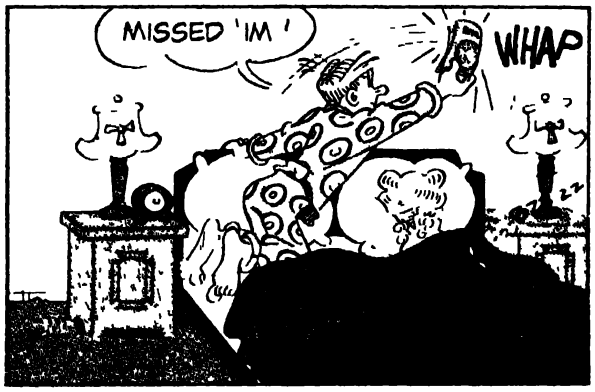


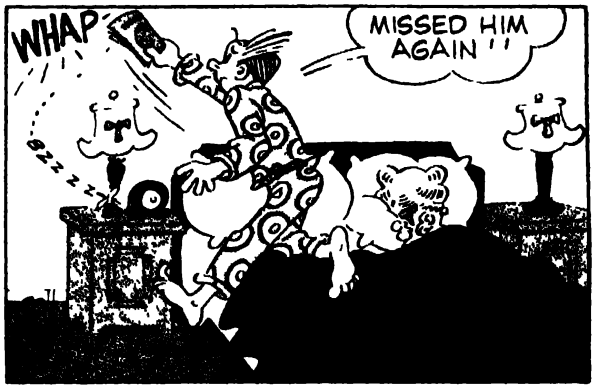




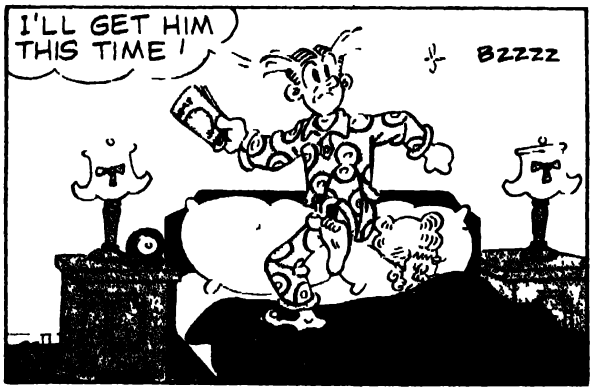


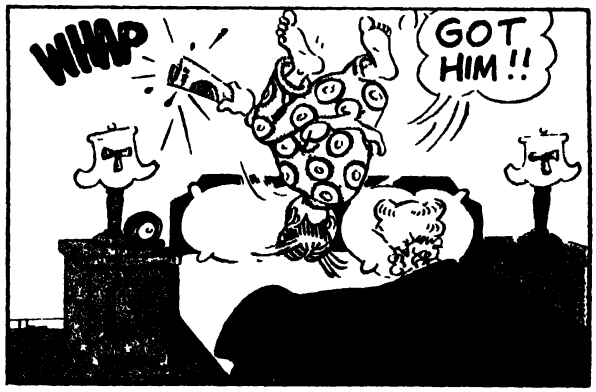
GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS

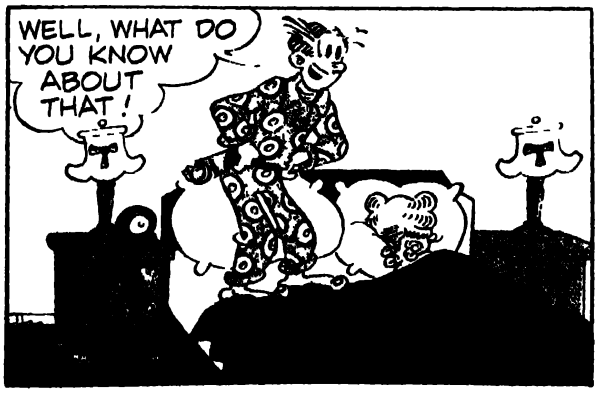


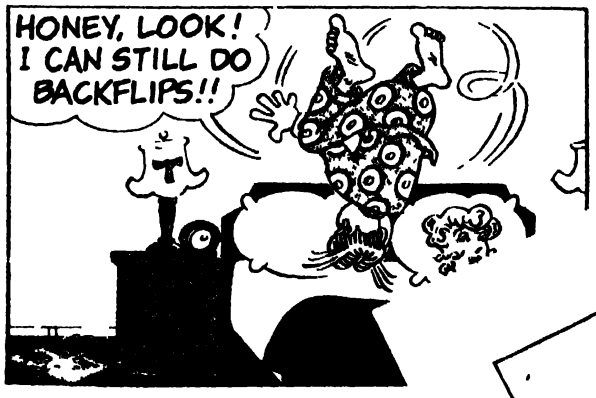


THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP









©1994 by King Features Syndicate Inc World rights reserved

Mudri IFB 2586 94 A

RASOI

JIGGS KALRA

For many years now, Rasoi - Pushpesh Pant and I— have been involved in cooking and creating menus according to the cycle of seasons As a matter of fact, at the Dehli Ka Aangan, where we consult, we have already done a summer, fall and winter menu Before long, we will be presenting a spring menu Farlier, we had done a special menu inspired by Kalidas' Ritu Samhar for Air India We were delighted to see an Aussie, the beauteous Sheridan Rogers, do a book, Seasonal Entertaining

We present two of her recipes in this concluding piece

ROCKPOOL'S TUNA IN HERB 'N' SPICE CRUST

INGREDIENTS

The Fish
6 Tuna steaks
1/3 small bunch Parsley
1/3 small bunch Coriander
1 Onion (red)
2 cloves Garlic
6 g / 2 tsp Cumin powder
6 g / 2 tsp Turmeric powder
6 g / 2 tsp Red chilli powder
3 g / 1 tsp Paprika
Salt
Olive oil
10 ml / 2 tsp Lemon juice

The Braised Eggplant
2 Eggplants (medium)
4 Tomatoes (very ripe)
6 g / 2 tsp Cumin powder
250 ml / 9 oz Olive oil
1/2 bunch Parsley (leaves only)
Lemon juice
Black Pepper powder
Salt

The Red Capsicum Puree
2 Red capsicum (sweet peppers)
20 ml / 4 tsp Olive oil
A few drops Balsamic or Malt vinegar
Black pepper powder
Salt

The Garnish
36 Snow peas
Salt

Serves 6
Preparation time 2 30 hours
Cooking time 12 minutes

PREPARATION

The fish Clean, remove

Rockpool's Tuna in Herb 'n' Spice Crust

the skin, wash and pat dry
The paste: Wash and remove parsley and coriander leaves. Peel, wash and roughly chop onions. Peel and roughly chop garlic. Put all these ingredients into a blender along with onion, garlic, spices, salt and enough olive oil to make a thick paste. Remove to a bowl, add lemon juice and mix well.
The marination: Coat the tuna steaks with the paste and reserve for 30 minutes.
The braised eggplant: Wash the eggplants and slice into 1/4" thick roundels. Sprinkle enough salt and leave to drain in a colander for 1 hour. Rinse and dry the eggplants on absorbent paper.

Skin the tomatoes by plunging into rapidly boiling water for 30 seconds, remove with a slotted spoon to a bowl of cold water and remove the skin. Then, chop the tomatoes and mix the cumin powder into the flesh. Clean and wash the parsley leaves.

Heat oil in a pan and fry the eggplant over medium heat, turning, until golden on both sides.

Heat a little oil in a separate pan and quickly fry the parsley leaves over high heat until crisp but not brown. Remove and keep aside. (The leaves will splutter when they hit oil, so be careful.)

Leave a little of the oil in the pan, add the tomatoes and cook over medium heat until soft. Reduce to low heat, return the eggplants and parsley to the tomatoes and mix well. Simmer the mixture gently for 30 minutes or until the eggplants are tender. Cover with a lid if necessary. Remove and add lemon juice, pepper and salt (to taste).
The red capsicum puree: Wash the capsicums, halve and deseed. Heat the grill, place skin-side up under the grill and cook until blackened and blistered. Put into a plastic bag to steam and, when cool enough to handle, skin the capsicums. Put in a blender and make a puree. Remove to a bowl and stir in the olive oil, vinegar, black pepper and salt by hand, stirring well, until smooth and lovely glossy red colour.
The garnish: String the peas and cut the top ends. Throw into a pot of salted boiling water for a minute, drain and refresh in a panful of iced water. Steam at the time of service.

Ceviche

COOKING

Heat oil in a frying pan/skillet and sear one side of the fish over very high heat until the paste is blackened and crusty. Turn and cook on the other side until the tuna is medium rare (or done to your taste, parenthesis ours). Remove and keep aside.

TO SERVE

Put a spoonful of braised eggplant on a plate and cover with red capsicum puree. Place the tuna steak on top and finish with a spoon of lemon juice. Serve with steamed snowpeas.

Note: Rockpool is a famous restaurant in Sydney.

CEVICHE

INGREDIENTS

The Fish
750 g / 1 lb 11 oz Salmon fillets
60 ml / 2 oz Lemon juice (freshly squeezed)
120 ml / 1/4 cup Lime juice (freshly squeezed)
4-6 Spring onions or shallots
1 stalk Lemon grass
1 Cucumber
2 Green chillies
450 g / 1 lb Prawns (medium)
480 ml / 2 cups Coconut milk
Salt
1/2 bunch Coriander

Serves 4
Preparation time 2-3 hours
Cooking time 12 minutes

PREPARATION

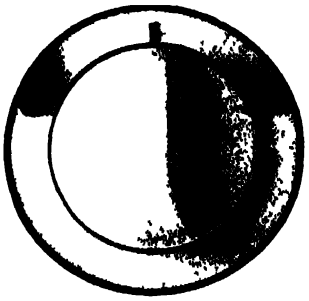
The fish: Clean, remove the skin, debone completely, using tweezers, if necessary, wash and pat dry. Then slice into thin strips and put an enamel or glass bowl.
The marination: Cover the fish with lemon and lime juices, cover and refrigerate for 2 hours.
The prawns: Clean, wash, devein and blanch for 3-4 minutes. Drain and keep aside.
The vegetables: Remove the whiskers and the outer layer, wash, cut the spring onion bulbs diagonally and the greens into juliennes. Wash and cut lemon grass diagonally. Wash and thinly slice cucumber. Slit green chillies, deseed, wash, finely chop and discard the stems. Wash and chop coriander.

ASSEMBLING

Remove the fish from the refrigerator, add the remaining ingredients, stirring gently, until well combined.

TO SERVE

Remove to a salad bowl and serve as a starter with a bread of your choice.



NOTE: All weights are nett, that is post-preparation, and not gross. ■

THE TWO FACES OF THE

AS SEEN BY YOUR JEANS

All men may have been created equal However, you can't say the same for clothes Most washing machines don't seem to understand this simple fact They insist on giving filthy jeans and exquisite Kanjeevarams the same wash Except, of course, an IFB Washing Machine

Temperature Control - Gives you the cleanest possible wash, for all fabric types

The Gentlest Wash

The IFB Washing Machine puts on velvet gloves while handling your expensive Kanjeevarams Its Tumble Wash system is the closest you can get to actually washing your clothes yourself Little wonder, then, that the Tumble Wash is the world's most preferred washing system

The Toughest Wash

Dirty jeans, on the other hand, don't stand a fighting chance The Pre-Wash facility gives them an initial soak to dislodge dirt Then, the main wash goes to work With its powerful motor and Stainless Steel Drums (both inner and outer), the IFB Washing Machine makes light work of the heaviest loads And, that's only the beginning

The Cleanest Wash

A Temperature Control facility lets you wash clothes at any setting, from room temperature to 95°C As most of today's detergents work better above 40°C, your clothes come out cleaner than ever While tough stains lose their grip at higher temperature settings

Sounds good? Well, there's more to come

LICENCE BOSCH IFB Fully Automatic Washing Machines come in 2 models T2400 & T2900 DX

MANUFACTURED BY IFB INDUSTRIES LTD Offices in India AHMEDABAD, Ph 460628 BANGALORE, Ph 5583640/037 BOMBAY, Ph. 6408914/5714, 6422925/5577.

IFB WASHING MACHINE

AS SEEN BY YOUR KANJEEVARAMS

• 3 Rinses and 2 Spin Cycles remove detergent completely So there's no likelihood of discolouration of clothes or skin irritations

• A faster Spin Cycle dries your clothes in no time Even during the monsoon season

• The IFB Washing Machine has the lowest water and detergent consumption Only 85 litres of water, and up to 50% less detergent, for a full 5 kg load Making it the most environment - friendly washing machine in the market

We could go on and on However, to fully appreciate the capabilities of the IFB Washing Machine, drop in at any IFB Dealer for a demonstration You'll soon find out why clothes are happiest in an IFB!

IFB
THE WORLD'S MOST ADVANCED WASHING SYSTEM

Mudra IFB 2586 94 A

RASIPURAM KRISHNASWAMY LAXMAN, quite easily the country's best-known political satirist, has been waking up thousands of newspaper readers every morning since 1947 with his witty and incisive cartoons Laxman, who prefers to see and speak through his most endearing creation — the bewildered common man in a check shirt and dhoti — is a vitriolic critic of the establishment, exposing the follies and foibles of politicians. A graduate of the University of Mysore, he is a self-tutored artist having been rejected by the J J School of Arts, Bombay The winner of Padma Bhusan and Ramon Magsaysay Award, among others, Laxman is also the author of Sorry, No Room and Idle Hours

What is your idea of perfect happiness?
I can't think of perfect happiness One should have a little doubt Creativity is an agony and not an ecstasy
What is your greatest fear?
That I might miss the plane I am a nervous traveller
Who or what has been the greatest influence in your life?
Myself
What do you dislike most in others?
Garishness, vulgarity and stupidity which you find in large measure everywhere
What do you dislike most in yourself?
My temper which is not very pleasant Also, prejudice
What is your most precious possession?
All my possessions are precious
What objects do you always carry?
Barely myself

Durgadas Basu

On what occasions do you lie?

Lie is not such a bad thing as truth makes it out to be. Lie is useful. He is a good fellow

How would you like to be remembered?

I don't think I will be remembered at all. Once I pass away no one will remember me

What makes you most depressed?
Early morning But the moment I brush my teeth it disappears
What do you dislike most on your appearance?
My entire face
What is your favourite word?
Bloody nonsense
What is your favourite journey?
Any journey out of the workplace
What is your favourite dream?
You can't remember all your dreams
What is your nightmare?
Being awake
What or who is the greatest love of your life?
Retiring after a hard day's work
What is your source of sustenance?
Hope
On what occasions do you lie?
Lie is not such a bad thing as truth makes it out to be Lie is useful He is a good fellow
What is your greatest regret?
That I have not been able to repair the clocks that have gone bad
What has been your happiest moment?
I am waiting for it

What brings tears to your eyes?
Listening to Carnatic and Western classical music
How do you relax?
I relax every moment Maybe not in a reclining position always
What do you envy most in others?
I don't
How would you like to be remembered?
I don't think I will be remembered at all Once I pass away no one will remember me
How would you like to die?
I don't want to die

WHAT GETS THE GO-AHEAD IN OTHER COMPANIES, OFTEN GETS THE THUMBS DOWN IN OURS.

For many companies quality means product excellence That's why they devote their energies to improving product quality As they perceive it

Colour-Chem, however, has a different point of view Our quest for quality is driven by the need to fulfill the product expectations of our customers

That's why our Marketing and Technical Service Executives interact regularly with customers to understand their needs Our R&D team acts on this feedback to effect continuous improvements in quality And our Quality Assurance staff apply process checks which are extremely stringent– even by most companies' standards

To ensure that our customers' needs and expectations are not just met but surpassed And what seems excellent this time around is perfect the next

Colour-Chem

Subsidiary of Hoechst AG

194 Churchgate Reclamation, Bombay 400 020

Hoechst

Unearth India's Finest

Antiquity

Cheers!
Shaw Wallace

The True Blue

The Telegraph

POST MORTEM

Missing Seshan

■ Although it is not easy to pack a year's happenings in one single writeup, mention should have been made of the Chief Election Commissioner, T N Seshan in the cover story, 'The Year of the Rai,' (January 1)

Seshan has converted an otherwise convoluted and boring electioneering process into an exciting one So much so that the people are taking an active interest in exercising their franchise

Who knows, 1995 may be the year of Seshan

Deepak Kumar Das Adhikary,
Calcutta

■ The firebrand Chief Election Commissioner has not only proved his super efficiency in handling the cumbersome election process but also shown he is a man of his words Sadly, the bureaucrat did not find a place in the cover story

Aishwarya Rai on the cover was well deserved A word about our ace pistol shooter, Jaspal Rana, in place of Azharuddin, would have been more justified considering

T N Seshan· Man of the Year?

India's dismal performance against the Windies in the final Test

B N Bose,
Calcutta

■ Why was there no mention of the photo identification cards introduced for the first time in the history of Indian voting by T N Seshan?

Undoubtedly, Seshan should have been featured on the cover

Debanjan Banerjee,
Calcutta

■ The cover story was a good way to begin the new year

With Sushmita Sen and Aishwarya Rai clinching the Miss Universe and Miss World titles, respectively, India scaled new heights of international fame Winning these coveted titles in the same year is a rare occurrence for any country

On the whole it was a year of progress for India On the economic front, liberalisation finally put the country on the right road to prosperity Manmohan Singh and Montek Singh Ahluwalia should be congratulated for spearheading India in the right direction

But there were thorns in the road to progress too — and they were in the form of ministers like Kalpnath Rai who got entangled in a major scandal Both N T Rama Rao and Kalpnath Rai present pictures of dishonesty and fraudulence — one with sugar, the other with rice

Mili Das,
Sindri

■ Aishwarya Rai and Kalpnath Rai could not have been more different from each other One is mired in controversy and scandal, the other is a perfect picture of grace and beauty One earned disgrace for the nation, the other brought dignity to her country

Mousumi Das,
Jamshedpur

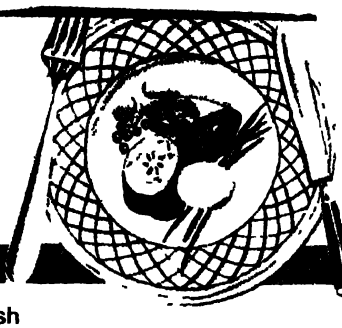
■ The cover story headline once again proved the Magazine's obsession with glamour and power What has Aishwarya Rai really done to receive so much media publicity? Anyone who bares her body to the world and answers cliched questions cannot be a symbol of beauty and intellect, particularly for a country like India which boasts of its rich cultural heritage all the time

Lalu G. Chowdhury,
Calcutta

INSIDE

Aloke Mitra

PAGE 6



OLD AGE is not all sorrow and suffering One's faculties may eventually switch off, but there are certain unasked privileges to be enjoyed too An essay by R K Narayan on the calm and peace of mind one attains at 80 Also, a companion piece on how some octogenarians are ensuring their winters are full of sunshine

SECTIONS

4 RASOI
16 TIME TABLE
18 MANEKA GANDHI
20 RUSKIN BOND
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS

Cover: R K Narayan by Subrata Gangopadhyay

RASOI

JIGGS KALRA

Photographs by Sanat Ghosh

It is every chef's prerogative to signature a dish he has masterminded Alphonso at The Oberoi Grand's La Rotisserie is justifiably proud of the Italian-inspired Mozzarella Alphonso The dish's flavourful impact is enhanced by the subtle magic of oregano Just as delightful is the chicken 'drumstick' delicacy This particular ballotine is stufffed with vegetable sticks and, significantly, is prepared without aspic

MOZZARELLA ALPHONSO

INGREDIENTS

The Pasta Sheets

800 g / 1 3/4 lb Flour
4 Eggs
20 ml / 4 tsp Cooking oil
Salt
Flour for dusting

The Filling

175 g / 6 oz Mozzarella
45 g / 1 1/2 oz Parmesan
25 g / 3 tbs Onions
15 g / 1/2 oz Capsicum
16 Raisins
0 5 g / 1 tsp Oregano
3 g / 1 tsp Black pepper (freshly and coarsely ground)
1 5 g / 1/2 tsp Nutmeg
Salt

The Honey Sauce

15 ml / 1 tbs Honey
260 ml / 2 tbs Tomato puree (fresh)
10 ml / 2 tsp HP sauce
5 ml / 1 tsp Worcester sauce
3 g / 1 tsp Paprika powder
2 tsp Orange marmalade
2 tsp Mixed fruit jam
45 g / 1 1/2 tsp Sesame seeds

The Remaining Ingredients

Butter for brushing Pasta sheet edges
Oil to deep fry Pasta

Serves 4

PREPARATION

The dough Sift flour and salt into a paraat or a tray on to a work surface and make a bay Beat the eggs in a bowl Put the eggs in the bay and start mixing gradually When fully mixed, knead to make a hard dough, cover with moist cloth, keep aside for 10 minutes, uncover, divide into 16 equal portions, make balls, cover with moist cloth again and keep aside for 5 minutes Dust the work surface with flour and roll out each ball with a rolling pin into a disc of 4" diameter

Mozzarella Alphonso

Heat water in a pan, sprinkle salt, stir and boil each disc for 45 seconds, remove and refresh in panful of iced water, drain and keep aside

The filling: Grate mozzarella and parmesan in a bowl Peel onions, wash and cut into fine dices Wash capsicum, deseed and cut into fine dices Wash and pat dry raisins

Melt butter in a frying pan, add onions and capsicum, saute over medium heat until onions are translucent and glossy Remove, add the sauteed onions and capsicum to the grated cheese along with the remaining ingredients, mix well, adjust the seasoning and divide into 16 equal portions

The stuffing: Brush the pasta discs with melted butter Place equal quantities of the filling in the discs, gather the edges and press with the fingers to make potli or little pouches After the filling is properly sealed, open the edges from the top to obtain a top view of an open flower

The sauce: Heat a tawa/griddle, spread the sesame seeds on top and toast over low heat until they emit their unique aroma and are lightly coloured

COOKING

Heat oil in a kadhai/wok, add the stuffed pasta potli/pouches and deep fry over medium heat until golden

Put the tomato puree in a saucepan, add 120 ml / 1/4 cup of water, bring to a boil, reduce to low heat and simmer until of thin sauce consistency Pass the sauce through a fine mesh soup strainer into a saucepan, return sauce to heat, add the remaining ingredients, except sesame seeds, and simmer until of sauce consistency Remove and adjust the seasoning

TO SERVE

Make a bed of equal quantities of sauce on each of 4 individual plates, evenly sprinkle the toasted sesame seeds on top, place 4 pouches on the sauce and serve as a starter

Cuisses de Poulet Ballotine

CUISSES DE POULET BALLOTINE

INGREDIENTS

16 Chicken drumsticks
Butter to brush and grease
4 Carrots (medium)
4 sticks Celery
2 Capsicum (large)
75 g / 6 tbs Butter
30 ml / 2 tbs Cooking oil
180 ml / 3/4 cup White wine (dry)
300 ml / 1 1/4 cups Double cream
10 g / 1 3/4 tsp Green mustard paste (preferably wasabe*)
A generous pinch of White pepper powder
Salt
10 ml / 2 tsp Brandy

Serves: 4
Preparation time: 45 minutes
Cooking time: 25 minutes

PREPARATION

The chicken: Clean the drumsticks but retain the skin Remove the sinews and tendons, remove the meat by carefully scraping along the entire length of the bone, ensuring that it comes off intact in its original shape (there should be no loose ends) Wash and pat dry

The vegetables. Peel carrots, core, cut into forty-eight 4" / 10 cm long sticks, blanch in salted boiling water for 2 minutes, drain and refresh in iced water Clean, wash and cut celery into 4" / 10 cm long sticks Wash capsicum, halve, deseed and cut into 4" / 10 cm long sticks

The stuffing. Pack three sticks of each of the vegetables in the deboned drumsticks and keep aside

COOKING

Heat butter and oil in a frying pan, add the stuffed drumsticks and fry over medium heat until evenly golden Then add wine, bring to a boil, reduce to low heat, cover and simmer, stirring occasionally until chicken is tender (approximately 12-15 minutes) Remove the drumsticks and keep warm

Stir-in cream to the simmering sauce, add brandy, stir, add mustard, stir until fully incorporated, bring to a boil, add pepper and salt, stir, reduce to low heat and simmer, stirring occasionally, for 3 minutes Remove and adjust the seasoning

TO SERVE

Make a bed of equal quantities of sauce on each of 4 individual plates, place 4 drumsticks on the sauce, garnish with parsley and serve with additional vegetables of your choice

*Wasabe is a green coloured Japanese mustard

NOTE: All weights are nett, that is post-preparation, and not gross ■

COVER STORY

LIFE AT 80

BY R.K. NARAYAN

IT IS IMMATERIAL WHAT THE 'PLUS' SIGNIFIES OR HOW FAR IT GOES ONE CHANGES RADICALly at 80 — until you reach the 364th day past 79 you are Mr So-and-So, but on the 365th day you enter a new janma Old age sets in with the precision of a planet in orbit and the insidious moving belt takes you down a gentle slope, unnoticed, until you see others at home proceeding towards the telephone while you are blissfully unaware of the ringing

Let a fellow octogenarian correct me if I generalise that the left ear drum is the first to be to be switched off You don't notice it until you find that others around mumble a great deal and utter unclear sentences Faculties are switched off one by one, beginning at the top

Abhi e Mitra

Absent-mindedness is the first symptom Your hands act independently, just misplacing and hiding papers, documents and keys so that your waking hours are spent searching for something or other A Caliban seems to be at your elbow plaguing you, enjoying the torments he inflicts

Next you forget names and faces Familiar face but who is he? Or the name is all right, we were classmates of course, but I can't remember what he looks like We even had photographs, but they are lost General forgetfulness starts thus, a blessing Forgetfulness is a boon to be cherished, remembrance could be a torture sometimes.

Travelling downward from the top, senility starts The apparatus called the human body begins to demand constant attention, while hermits advise "Learn to forget your body Ignore it and you will attain divine peace" Impossible at this stage

Every moment one corner of the system or another clamours for attention, major or minor — maybe a scratch or an ache or something serious Whatever it may be, it rings an alarm bell

Ultimately a dozen different specialists have to monitor your system from time to time to reassure you that you will continue to be alive, with dos and don'ts Your medical schedule becomes overwhelming

When I think of Gibbon, I admire his genious in naming his Roman history, Decline and Fall, for they are a natural sequence It applies to Eighty Plus with decline one has to dread a fall too, which seems built-in My doctor always cautions, "Don't fall" I respect his advice, no doubt, but gravity is ruthless

Tumbling down is inevitable in old age I have suffered two falls in three years On both occasions I realised how totally helpless one feels — when you start falling, no power on earth can arrest your fall

The pull of gravity is inexorable, if it could also tunnel through the core of the earth, it would perhaps not rest till you found yourself at the Antipodes Luckily I was not broken or maimed, I got off with shock and bruises

Now I give due respect to Nature's authority by mending my conduct never rise abruptly from my seat or the bed, never venture to walk without a four-pronged "walker" in hand and also a human support to clutch — a precaution for survival

Past 80, one becomes dependent on so many helping hands Travel becomes impossible, unthinkable Every little movement assumes the dimensions of a manoeuvre — to be deeply thought out and managed

But old age is not all a suffering There are certain benefits too For one thing, you find everyone considerate in a hundred ways Age brings on certain unasked privileges People avoid hurting your feelings and are ever cautious and considerate and treat you as if old age were an achievement

Your own interests change First and foremost, women look worshipful rather than sensual Next you realise the unimportance of possessions, acquisitions, and enjoy the pleasure of dispossessing yourself of everything and watching others enjoy life

Fewer irritations in life are felt because of your defective hearing You don't fret any more at the idiocies presented on TV You can always operate the God-given shutters, one's eyelids, which — properly used — can shut off any spectacle

So, also, if you don't wish to hear, the simplest method is to plug your ears with the little fingers in hand, which seem to be made to measure

Music when soft voices die,
Vibrates in the memory - -

So said Shelley It may not always be "music" — if you go on to consider another aspect of memory

When to the sessions of sweet silent thought
I summon up remembrance of things past,
I sigh the lack of many a thing I sought,
And with old woes new wail my dear times' waste

This has to be avoided, unless you are able to revive in its full intensity a lost experience or a lost face, which

You forget names and faces. Familiar face but who is he? Or the name is all right, we were classmates of course, but I can't remember what he looks like.... General forgetfulness starts thus, a blessing. Forgetfulness is a boon to be cherished; remembrance could be a torture sometimes

Thus you have natural facilities to see no evil, hear no evil and speak no evil, if you resist the temptation to discuss the newspaper headlines with others

At Eighty Plus you learn to attain peace of mind by these measures It takes time and practice to understand your potentialities and exert your inner strength You must reach a minimum of 80 years to mellow and realise your potentialities

Memory is one factor that must be curbed rigorously Memory and hope are two elements that are inborn Hope is potent in earlier life, its area diminishes unnoticed in later life, and more mental space is usurped by memory, which is pleasant and sustaining up to a stage I say up to a stage, which is to be determined by the nature of one's experience

Shakespeare seems to achieve as he concludes his sonnet

But if the while I think on thee,
dear friend
All losses are restor'd and sorrows end

But it is not given to all to enjoy this revival For most of us, recollection is painful — a past moment or a face brings on an overwhelming mood of sadness

To forget the past and live in the present, relishing the quality of every moment as it comes and letting it also pass without regret, realising the inevitability of the Eternal Flux, is the practical way to exist in peace

(The Guardian)

When I think of Gibbon, I admire his genious in naming his Roman history, Decline and Fall, for they are a natural sequence. It applies to Eighty Plus: with decline one has to dread a fall too, which seems built-in

SUMMER OF THE PATRIARCHS

Old age is not a prayer for merciful death Neither is there any looking back There's still much to be achieved Arup Ghosh meets some octogenarians for whom life remains as busy as ever

They don't believe in yesterday Having crossed 80 and with their shadows stretching to blur life and memory, they live from day to day setting things straight and hoping that everything will be alright when it is time to go But it isn't that their lives are a prayer for merciful death There are some octogenarians who don't just keep themselves occupied but still hold important positions and do important work

There are things to be done and done fast Time is, with all its fickleness, running out And death casts a furtive glance at them before passing on to claim someone else as its own This time they have given it the slip — but only just

It could well have been their winter of contentment — resting on laurels and reflecting on achievements — but they prefer to swim the tide Even against it at times

Sagarmoy Ghosh (82) Never looking back

Arnt Data

Jyoti Basu (80) All set to industrialise Bengal

The West Bengal chief minister, Jyoti Basu (80), is probably the most obvious example Still crazy about work after all these years When one would expect him to write his memoirs and indulge his grandchildren, he goes about changing the political and economic climate of the state Things never get too hot for him, not even in the desultory climate of West Bengal

The chief minister apart, there are others who carry on as if there is no tomorrow At their age they may be right Bhabatosh Dutta (84), economist and scholar, has lost his eyesight But that does not stop him from dictating articles to a person who then passes it on to Business Standard Nor does it prevent him from listening to newspapers being read out to him and keeping in touch with the world

Govinda Vinayak Karlekar (83) and Kalyani Karlekar (84) are still treasurer and president, respectively, of Calcutta Social Project Kalyani Karlekar is worried about the future of the project in their absence but she is trying to set guidelines that will steer the organisation when they won't be around

L.C. Sahgal (84) retired from the LIC to become a real estate consultant At the age of 75 he gave all that up to 'lead a retired life' But that was not to be. He is now actively involved in the revival of Sanskrit, besides propagating yoga and nature cure

Sagarmoy Ghosh (82), editor of Desh, is looking forward to compiling a history of his magazine through the hundreds of letters he has received from various authors It is just that he cannot get down to doing it because of the demands of regular office work

Novelist Ashapurna Devi (86) is bedridden and deaf but is still reading avidly and writing furiously The only thing she looks forward to is death but till fate grants her that favour, she cannot resist picking up the pen every morning, even if it is just to write letters

Deepa Kalyan Chowdhury

B.P. Ghosh (82): Believing in strict regimen

Arka Mitra

Ashapurna Devi (86). 'I cannot talk. My pen does it for me. Take away my pen and I will fall silent'

So they battle on With their bodies giving up slowly and their memory not being what it was, it can't be easy Not that they are seeking concessions Nor asking to be noticed They know they are lucky to be living longer than most people and are making the best of it

He took a long time to come to the phone "I cannot see I have to feel my way to the telephone That's what took me so long," explains Bhabatosh Datta "This is the curse of a long life Your body takes revenge I cannot see, Hiren Mukherjee cannot hear But Triguna Sen, I am told, is still quite active"

When we reach his house the next day, a stern maid tells us to take off our shoes and keep the conversation short An emaciated man lies in bed wearing a wornout dressing gown and wrapped in an ordinary shawl Grim, bony fingers cover his eyes The little light that enters them hurts

Retinal degeneration and emphysema, shortness of breath, apart, Datta had a gastric ulcer treated a couple of years ago Though he has no other complaint, he misses his wife and his eyesight He lost both nearly five years ago He has no children

"I also miss my books The person who reads out the newspapers to me is not as fast as I would have liked him to be There is so much I have to catch up with Do you know anything about why Seshan is trying to defer the polls? I think it will help Rao"

He rattles off dates and details with consummate ease Age has not withered the mind but the body shows signs of decay Most of his friends have predeceased him and those still around are either paralysed or have lost their memory. Datta hears the TV news regularly and also tunes in to the radio. Life, for Datta, is feeling his way around his room

There is little Datta looks forward to personally But he hopes good will befall the country What bothers him is the 'unimaginable corruption' that has overtaken the country "Only the rich will prosper There will be 10 million people joining the ranks of job seekers every year "

"Many of the things that I have written about have come true but I still hope my fears are unfounded " He still writes Not the way he would have liked but he dictates it to a person who puts it down on paper He finds the method cumbersome and the result is a slowing down of the process

Datta's predicament is quite understandable But what is amazing is his unrelenting desire to learn, understand and communicate Till all the doors are shut permanently

Aloke Mitra

Kalyani (84) and Govinda Vinayak Karlekar (83) Force behind the Calcutta Social Project

Unlike Datta, L C Sahgal is still mobile and active at the age of 84 Early every morning, you will find him at the Maidan engaged in yogic exercises and prayers Then it is back to home and work Food is light and almost sugar free And work is handling the postal education system of the Bharatiya Sanskrit Vidyaniketan, a part of his latest obsession to promote the language

Life at his age means the slowing down of all physical processes, having to live away from sons and daughters, in the care of servants "My sons live a very hectic life I cannot cope " His wife suffered for nine tormenting years from Parkinson's disease "She was like a log of wood all those nine years Just lying there on the bed, not being able to move " Even that was almost 15 years ago

It was quite traumatic for Sahgal But he had by then sought and found solace in spiritualism First he met Dinshaw K Mehta (Dadaji) and later Baba Muktanand of Ganeshpuri Before he met them he had high blood pressure and cholesterol level and spondylitis — "everything that leads to an early death" But the meetings changed him

Today he believes in simple living and eating In exercising regularly And in building an inner strength and resilience to shocks "I am today neither too happy nor too sad Work, prayer and music are my companions "

A vegetarian by choice, he contends that a life without excesses is the secret of long living Words pour out as he tries to define happiness and harmony He brooks no interruptions as if in a hurry He searches his memory for names and places that he has lived and worked in, some of which are lost to him — streets and bylanes of Lahore, Bombay, Dubai, Kuala Lampur

But he is not at a loss for words "Harmony is happiness Harmony is bliss If anything creates a discord correct it If you cannot correct it, then avoid it If that fails, then try to develop a system by which you can get around it " He takes my name often As if to separate it from the memories that crowd his mind

When I leave him, he is contented Having been able to tell me what I wanted to know — the source of his sustenance We shake hands before separating He blesses me Framed against the door, he looks neither happy nor sad, just lonely

Aloke Mitra

Bhabatosh Dutta (84) 'There's so much I have to catch up with'

Prof. B.P. Ghosh (82) can hardly afford to be alone Surrounded by his wife, sons, daughters-in-law, grandchildren and students he has more than a handful to live with

A strict regimen is what he believes in On Fridays he goes to the University College of Medicine to teach M D students biochemistry The rest of the days are spent preparing for that

He gets up at 4 in the morning to prepare lecture notes "Most teachers don't study or update their notes that is why the students are so disinterested " At 5 30, he goes upstairs for a short stint with dumb-bells and to water his plants

Breakfast is sharp at 6 Then there are free classes at home for anybody who wishes to learn — M Sc students, would-be doctors and anyone else who is interested Lunch is at 11 Then a siesta till 2 30 pm and it's back to physical exercises

Classes are resumed thereafter and continue till 5 30 pm Dinner is at 6 Then he goes to bed At 9 pm, he wakes up for another round of making notes for his lecture The day ends exactly at midnight

The only person who objects to such a routine is his wife, who would prefer to go to sleep when the professor starts his second session with books

Prof Ghosh taught in the US, Ghana and Nigeria before his retirement And he preferred the lifestyle there Which was, though full of responsibilities, not without its 'colonial' charm, specially in Africa Spacious houses, good food and good living "I have tried to maintain the same here but it's not quite possible "

But what is possible is a diet without rice and a life sans alcohol and cigarettes "No rich food and no butter, though I cannot resist sweets "

L C Sahgal (84) Life is exercise and prayers

Pain in the joints, bronchial allergy and constipation are constant companions of life after 80, but "I keep away from items that cause trouble because the only thing I live for and look forward to is teaching Call it my passion "

When it comes to passion, Sagarmoy Ghosh calls Desh magazine that Huddled in his chair and burrowing into a book, he says age has snatched many joys But one of the few pleasures left in his life is playing with his grand-daughters in the evenings But there is so much he has had to give u "There was a time when every evening I would either watch a play or jo a musical soiree or even go to a football match But that is a thing of the past "

IF YOU WANT TO LIVE LONG

There is no better way to confound confusion than ask octogenarians the secret of their long life. Some would say eat-only vegetarian food. Others have eaten flesh all their lives.

Some used to smoke. For others it's the shortest way to the crematorium. Some led a disciplined life. Others were used to late nights The only common agenda that emerges is that there is no common agenda.

Dr Soupayan Dutta, general physician and cardiologist, agrees. "There is no hard and fast rule. Three factors determine the longty of a person. His/her genetic disposition, associated illness and lifestyle."

There are some families in which every member, or at least, a majority, live to be 70. But most are not that lucky. So they have to lead a 'measured' life in order to live long

Even among old people, according to Dr Dutta, there are three types. Some who always crib that they cannot enjoy life as much as others can. Some are stoic about the fact and accept their fate and the third type just goes about doing what they have done all along. The last mentioned, obviously, are the most productive.

Dr Dutta suggests that the best thing to do is to avoid the factors that create disease or disability. Here are some of them:

- Non-vegetarian food. There is evidence that non-vegetarian food can affect the heart and the brain, says Dr Dutta, it is not the [illegible] across the world is vegetarianism
- Smoking: Acknowledged by all doctors to be one of the greatest contributing factors to a host of health problems.
- Alcohol: An otherwise disciplined life can be marred by its consumption. According to most doctors, this is the biggest problem along with smoking.
- Anxiety and overambition: Though it sounds a bit didactic, Dr Dutta contends that these two reasons contribute greatly to cardiac problems, among others.
- Pollution: An inseparable part of city life, doctors advise retired people to live as far away from congestion as possible. For those who are too tied up with work, weekend trips are advised Without alcohol, of course

As in the West, psychiatric deaths and mechanical accidents will go up in our society. There still is no cure for loneliness. And as machines take over all advancing societies, related accidents are also bound to increase. Doctors have not found any cure for that, either

Dr Dutta issues a warning to everyone. If you want to live long start controlling diet and exercising regularly. At 50, it might be too late.

He also warns against the use of placebos. "I have found people using Ginseng and other such 'drugs' that are supposed to 'revive' people. No authentic textbook or journal mentions such 'drugs' or discusses them. There is no proof either that such 'drugs' prolong life.

"Following the marketing of such 'drugs', some Indian manufacturers have started selling ayurvedic versions. They cite the Vedas or Charak as the origin of such 'medicines'. Again there is no [illegible]

Though a long life might not entirely be in the hands of a person, he has to, at least, make an attempt to remain healthy. There is, as the doctor says, no easy way out Or should it be, there is no easy way in

Also gone are the days of his active participation in the production work of Desh. But he still vets manuscripts and tackles problems as and when they arise.

He loved long walks. "When I stayed in S.R. Das Road, my wife and I would go to the Lakes for a walk. Ever since I moved to Salt Lake I had to put a stop to that. There are no footpaths in Salt Lake and all those who are learning to drive find it a convenient place. A couple of days back, two aged men were knocked down by a greenhorn. And the parks here are unattended jungles."

So they battle on. With their bodies giving up slowly and their memory not being what it was, it can't be easy. Not that they are seeking concessions. Nor asking to be noticed. They know they are lucky to be living longer than most people and are making the best of it

Though at the age of 82 he surely has a crowd of memories to lose himself in, Ghosh prefers to look ahead.

Kushal Roy

EARLY TO BED, LONG WALKS

If you told Dr S.C. Mitra, all of 89 and kicking, "Heal thyself, physician," he is likely to answer, "I have." Till two years ago he was more active than most people half his age—curing people and looking after his diagnostic clinic.

Today, with a pacemaker, he is slightly less mobile, but he does use the 'mechanical' lift his son has installed at home to get to the ground floor of his house and is then lifted into a car and taken to the clinic.

But only occasionally. But there are still people who cannot do without his medical advice that he gives readily over the phone. He would like to be more active but one of his sons has put his foot down. After that cardiac arrest two Durga Pujas ago, his son has to be careful about what Dr Mitra does.

Fifty years ago, he quit smoking. He was also a regular morning walker. Diet means moderate food with moderate spices. Too much of non-vegetarian food is not good, says the veteran doctor. And above all, "keep a check on your temper."

His wife is 80 and doing well. But they are not the only members of the family who have lived long. Dr Mitra's father lived to be 92 and his than look back It might be because his memory fails him occasionally. It might be because his age makes him stand apart from the crowd It might be because the past is now just a string of photographs you cannot talk to.

She points to the photograph framed on the wall and asks, "Do you recognise him?" I do How can I forget the most dynamic teacher in our department? Just 40, one day he didn't get up from sleep For Kalyani Karlekar it has been 12 distant years since her son, Ranajoy, died

There are more recent deaths that hurt — and the pain lingers Satyajit Ray, her cousin, Nalini Das, her sister She scans her memory for names, but loses herself in a reverie. "It's so cold," she complains

Tidy is the word that comes to mind Govinda Vinayak Karlekar and Kalyani Karlekar have none of the dishevelled look about them that one associates with old people They are not exactly natty, but comfortably dressed and exude a lot of warmth — just like other grandparents who always have a hidden booty of cookies and fairy tales to spare

Surely, so do the Karlekars but they have more at hand than just growing grandchildren Calcutta Social Project (CSP), Kalyani Karlekar's brainchild, tries to help street and slum children from "womb to work", apart from engaging in a host of other related activities

Govinda Karlekar was the president of the railways union and later the chief labour adviser and industrial relations officer of Calcutta Port Trust After his retirement, he joined CSP to look after its legal and tax aspects Kalyani Karlekar did almost the same — she launched the project after retiring as a teacher

So there was no opportunity to lead a superannuated life Another life was waiting to begin at 70 And by all indications, a more hectic life Though the husband needs to take rest after every meal, the result of two cardiac and one cerebral attack, the wife usually has a long day — paperwork in the morning, reading in the afternoon and meetings in the evening

"I am quite a friendly person People keep dropping in to seek help and advice At this age, it is quite strenuous," says Kalyani Karlekar But she doesn't seem to mind

Life after 80 for them is no different perhaps than life at 60 except that they cannot put in as much as they would like to The body complains But their diet has remained almost unchanged, except that Govinda Karlekar avoids red meat and misses out on the eggs at breakfast His wife had to make sacrifices, too She cannot accompany him on his evening walks due to arthritic pain

But that does not prevent her from translating books, reviewing them and writing a history of the CSP All done with a great sense of humour On her 75th birthday, she penned a few lines which five years later one of her grand-daughters changed to My plans are annual/ My acts more mental than manual/ How otherwise could it be/ At four-fifths of a century?

If Ashapurna Devi were able to read English, she would have nodded her head in agreement She fell ill about four months ago and has not recovered since She cannot hear and her son has to lip the words so she can read them All her actions are confined to her bed She reads, writes, eats and chats from that eight ft by eight ft square of living space

Her husband died 17 years ago when she was an active housewife and authoress — cooking, looking after the family, attending literary meetings and writing relentlessly Today, she has no wish except to see her family happy and wait patiently for silence to befall Though her bones have gone brittle, her memory is startlingly fresh

She can rattle off poems that she picked up in her childhood Poems she heard her brothers recite at home Because she never went to school But who could stop an inquisitive person and a voracious reader? Egged on by an encouraging mother and later a supportive husband, she went on to write volumes And received recognition in equal measure

"I cannot talk My pen does it for me Take away my pen and I will fall silent " If she were to write about her life today, she would probably mention only those aspects that make her feel good "There has been so much pain in my life But they seem so distant now I have spent all my anger I cannot be unkind to people even if I want to be I have no sorrow "

Except that she never got to learn English and missed out on reading those hundreds of books she could have

No regrets, she said No sorrow Nothing to look forward to No yesterday, no tomorrow Just being there It seemed cruel to ask what all these people would have done if they got another chance to live their lives Would they have lived it differently?

What difference does it make now After all this years of living and working and hoping And covering miles and milestones Of waiting for years to let the pain subside Of watching time and people slip away Of gathering joy like seasonal blooms Of letting life open up like an umbrella during a surprise shower

They have lived and lived well Now some of them are hurriedly getting things in place before downing shutters and the others are awaiting, like eager schoolchildren, their turn to

AND NO SMOKING

Pradip Malik

EXTRACT

A THOUSAND FINGERS

BY ROMESH GUNESEKERA

Out beyond the reef, shoals of fish turned in a dazzle Mister Salgado held Nili's hand while the sea-foam swirling below rubbed out their footprints as they walked along the sand For once there was nobody else around — no urchins, no drifters — the beach was our own except at first for Wijetunga, Mister Salgado's assistant

Wijetunga helped me unpack the foodstuffs in the kitchen He had grown a thick beard His hair was longer and he had developed a low parting on one side from which the hair was slicked over across to the other He was more prepared to speak to me this time The little boy who used to help him was not around When I asked about the kolla, Wijetunga said he had sent him to school "A child must have education Otherwise what will he become, here? In this country?" As he spoke his breathing became easier, as if something had cleared his nose and throat

Later Mister Salgado came and asked him about his work Wijetunga spoke with his head down He said he had a way to go away that afternoon for a few days He had sent a request about it to Colombo He had not known we were coming "OK, OK," Mister Salgado waved his hand about "That's fine I can check the reports next week You come to the office in Colombo We can talk then, that will be better" Mister Salgado seemed relieved

Afterwards Wijetunga asked me, "Why doesn't he come this side so much now? Not even a message for weeks And then suddenly this trip Why?"

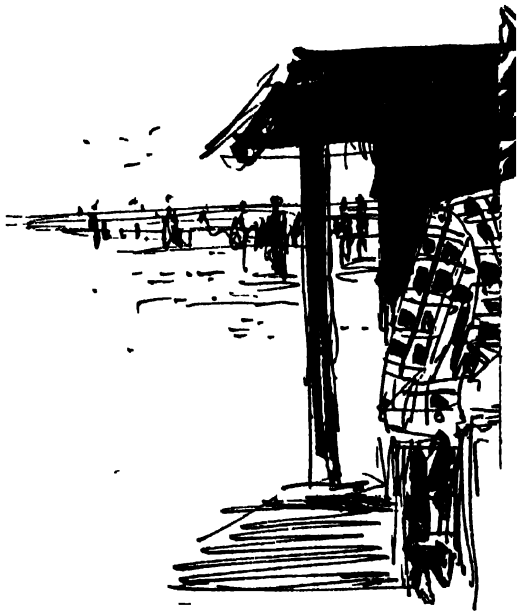
I mentioned Miss Nili

"But who is she?"

"Nili-nona," I said "She runs a hotel for tourists in Colombo"

"Tourists?" he shook his head in dismay "Listen, these people all think tourists will be our salvation All they see is pockets full of foreign money Coming by the plane-load Don't they realise what will happen? They will ruin us They will turn us all into servants Sell our children" He gripped my shoulder hard "You know, brother, our country really needs to be cleansed, radically There is no alternative We have to destroy in order to create Understand? Like the sea Whatever it destroys, it uses to grow something better" He let go of me and stared at the ocean turning itself inside out, a deep blue gathering to swallow the sun "Have you heard the Five Lessons?" he asked me softly He didn't mean the scriptures — the Precepts He meant the simplified lessons that explained the crisis of capitalism, the history of social movements and the future shape of a Lankan revolution "You know what happened in Cuba?"

I said, "But I am only a cook"



"We will have to talk more, brother, next time" His beard opened, allowing a small injured smile out "You say nothing to him, all right? Not yet For now, brother, you cook But one day" he closed his eyes for a moment, "we will be able to live for ourselves" I wondered if he had ever spoken like this to anyone before I took a deep breath, but the air had turned sour, blowing in over the copra pit at the edge of the compound

That night by the ocean I made a pol-kiri-badun curry, a steamed pittu and my most special dish of brinjals, but Mister Salgado and Nili hardly noticed what I had done The shiny purple skins were decorated with the green tomatoes and our sweet Embilipitya grass, but I suppose a compliment would have been difficult to draw out there on our first night, they were so enamoured of each other

After eating together they went out on the night beach I imagined them with the moon in their hands, fingers enmeshed, picking their way over green turtle eggs, their ears filled with the roar of the surf, rubbed by the wind and salt and swelling up, their tongues wordlessly pricking into each other and enlivening their bodies, the ocean rushing up the sloping beach, snatching at their ankles with a thousand fingers and clawing the sand from under their feet

Mister Salgado would be able to explain the exact ebb and flow of the whole cluster of galaxies at a time like this how the light of the moon moved the tide, and heaven was reflected in the shape of our heads, and each exquisite sensation was lodged forever in the contours of a hypothetical mind And how it all moved as the earth moves, the earth deep inside ourselves the only terra firma in our tentative lives

In my boxroom a mosquito discovered my ear and dug in Each time I smacked it a smug drone would rise triumphantly out of my hurting head I felt it pierce my skin, according to Mister Salgado, if you can feel the sting it is not the resurgent malaria that she is injecting in return for her suck, but I was not so sure Then I heard Nili and Mister Salgado returning to the bungalow, entering their room A sandal — a leather screppu — dropped on the concrete and was kicked slithering across the floor The whole house seemed to creak and flap as the wind rose, the shutters shook The confusion of sounds was too much I couldn't bear to stay inside any longer and I went out to immerse myself in the simpler roar of the ocean and let it, like the waves, curl in my

Extracted from Rest by Romesh Gunesekera, Penguin India; 1994; Rs 125

ears and overwhelm me

In the morning, at first light, the sea lay like a Madras pancake Thosai flat Tranquil As the other two were unlikely to get up for ages, I decided to walk the length of the beach Further down the bay the fishing boats were coming in thin, dark vessels with matchstick figures heading for home

The wet sand hugged my bare foot at every step, sucking at the sole, the surf burbled under the surface and small crabs raced into their sand holes After about a quarter of a mile I came to where the boats were drawn up There was a line of big black outriggers on the dry sand Another boat was coming in Three men were hauling it up on to the beach one pushing from the sea, the other two with their backs to each of the arched outrigger arms, digging their heels in the sand and using each surge of the sea

' Ahey, ohoy, apa thenna, ahey, ahoy thel dhala '

With each rhyme they heaved, and the boat would slide an arm's length By the time I reached them, the boat was over the hump of the white frothy beach on to dry sand One man got up into the narrow top of the boat and started chucking the catch out He threw a large blue-striped fish at my feet

"What is it?" I had never seen such a brilliantly coloured one before

"Fish!" the man laughed He was straddling the boat with his sarong twisted into a loincloth

I asked him where he got it

He lifted his arm and pointed to the sea, "Out there We go to the mouth of the sea " The edge of Mister Salgado's blue abyss

"Was it good?"

"Last night it was not too good over there We only got a couple of these and some stupid stray mackerel "

The other two men came closer One took his dirty green hat off and scratched his head "Sometimes, if we are in luck, we might catch a shark or something bigger But you really need a Johnson motor to go far enough for that, beyond the reef, and be sure of getting back in time "

"Sometimes we go all night and there's nothing Not like in the old days when they used to fly into our hands "

I was surprised "Nothing?"

"These days the fish are not plentiful "

"Why?"

"What do you expect with this government?" they hooted, laughing

The blue-striped creature wriggled and flopped over, coating both its sides in seasoned sand I wondered how long it would take to die Before cooking it I would have to wash it and gut it, scrape off the scales but keep the colour There were blurry yellow stripes as well as blue The mouth was a hard beak of triangular pincers

"How much?" I asked nodding at it I thought Nili would be impressed

I think they thought I was a real city mahathaya because when I got my money out, one of the men said he would clean the fish for me I didn't even have a purse, just a couple of notes in my shirt pocket I liked the idea of them thinking of me like that, it was worth the extra money They threw the guts back into the sea as if to feed the waves

I retraced my vanished steps thinking all the time of how I should cook the fish I had no idea what it would taste like Maybe the colour was not a camouflage for protecting its flesh but an enticement to distract from its awful taste My best bet, I reckoned, was to steam it, and put plenty of lime in the sauce Grilling would destroy the magic of its colours and the point of it all

When I got back I found Nili sitting by a tree, playing with her hair, lifting it up and letting it drop on her curved back She smiled dreamily at me "What a wonderful place, no?"

After breakfast, I sat and stared at the sea A beach house requires very little day-to-day housework The sand gets everywhere whatever you do It was a holiday, in a way, for me also Later she came to watch me in the kitchen She peered over my shoulder at the fried rice "Hmm, that smells lovely '

"Temperadu", I explained Then I showed the fish all ready for the steam boat "

"What amazing colours!"

I couldn't stop myself from smiling

"You got this on the beach?"

"From the fishermen," I explained

She called out to Mister Salgado, "Come and look at what Triton has got "

He came up "What?"

"Look at this blue fish "

"Parrot fish," he said "A bit of an acquired taste Coral crunchers If only you'd come snorkelling, I'd show you " I felt all jittery and weak "Very pretty though I'm sure Triton will make it tasty "

I was on tenterhooks for the next hour until they had finished lunch I had to conjure up some chilli sambol and sweeten the lime sauce invoking all the godlings of fish-cooking in all the poky kitchens of Southern China to produce a favourable result Fortunately it worked out Whatever taste the flesh might have had, the Chinese sauce disguised it Nili was still smiling at the end of the meal, and Mister Salgado was happy cooling off with a beer He fell asleep in an armchair and Nili chatted to me for a while

She said the sea looked too rough for reef-combing, but that she would like to see the fish catch the next morning I said I would take her We didn't have to go as early as I had done because the fishermen had told me

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AGARTALA
IC 741	0710	3 6	IC-742	0940	3, 6
IC 743	0920	daily	IC-744	1150	daily
PF 701	1130	1 3 5, 7	PF-702	1610	1, 3, 5, 7
AHMEDABAD
M9-304/109	0855	1, 3 5	M9-110/301	1900	1, 3, 5
AIZAWL
PF 705	0730	daily	PF-706	1100	daily
BAGDOGRA
PF-707	1130	2, 4, 6	PF-708	1510	2 4 6
IC-721	1300	1 3, 5	IC-722	1540	1 3, 5
BANGALORE
IC-771	0600	daily	IC-772	1140	daily
BHUBANESWAR
IC-544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2 7
IC-769	1525	1 3, 5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5
BOMBAY
AI-431	0100	2
IC-676	0730	daily	IC-675	0820	daily
D2-102	0905	daily	D2-101	0835	daily
9W-202	0920	daily	9W-201	0840	daily
AI-309	1930	6	AI-306	1730	5
IC-273	1945	daily	IC-274	1850	daily
9W 212	1955	daily	9W-211	1920	daily
D2-104	2005	daily	D2-103	1935	daily
COOCH BEHAR
PF 707	1130	2 4 6	PF 708	1510	2 4 6
DELHI
			IC-262	0815	2 4 7
IC-263	0700	daily	M9-303	0825	daily
M9-304	0855	daily	4S-806	1115	1 2 3 4 5 6
4S-805	1745	1 2 3 4 5 6	AI-682	1145	1
IC-812	1515	1 3 5	IC-401	1155	daily
IC-402	1715	daily	M9-301	1900	daily
IC-261	1900	2 4 7	S2 005	1900	1 2 3 4 5 6
M9-302	1930	daily	IC-811	1930	1 3 5
S2 006	1940	1 2, 3 4 5 6	IC-264	2210	daily
DIBRUGARH
IC 703	0715	3, 5	IC-704	1345	3 5
D2 181	1135	1, 3 5 7	D2 181	1620	1 3 5 7
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
4S-815	1145	1, 2 3, 4, 5 6	IC-702	1630	2 4 6 7
IC-701	1240	2, 4, 6, 7	4S-816	1705	1 2 3 4 5 6
DIMAPUR
IC-257	1150	4 7	IC-258	1650	4 7

FLIGHTS — INTERNATIONAL

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AMMAN
RJ-185	1445	4	RJ-184	0705	4
AMSTERDAM
KL-876	0420	7	KL-875	0235	7
BANGKOK
IC-731	0855	2 4 5, 7	KB-106	1115	3
			KB-106	1215	5
KB 105	1125	2, 6	TG-313	1240	1, 3 6
TG-314	1355	1, 3, 6	IC-732	1505	2, 4, 5 7
AI-306	1910	5	AI-309	1825	6

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
GUWAHATI
IC-703	0715	3, 5	IC-704	1345	3 5
IC-707	0715	1, 4, 6	IC-708	1345	1, 4, 6
IC-711	0715	2 7	IC-712	1400	2, 7
D2-181	1135	1, 3, 5 7	D2-181	1620	1 3, 5, 7
D2-183	1135	2, 4, 6	D2-183	1620	2, 4, 6
4S-812	1145	1, 2, 3 4, 5, 6	4S-811	1705	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6
IC-257	1150	4, 7	IC-230	1620	daily
IC-211	1240	4, 6	IC-258	1650	4 7
IC-229	1310	daily	IC-212	1740	4 6
HYDERABAD
IC-777	1500	2, 4 7	IC-778	2005	2, 4 7
IC-769	1525	1, 3, 5	IC-770	2120	1 3, 5
IMPHAL
IC-707	0715	1, 4, 6	IC-256	1320	3 5
IC-255	0830	3, 5	IC-708	1345	1 4 6
IC-253	1100	2, 6	IC-254	1550	2 6
JORHAT
IC-213	0910	2 4 7	IC-213	1315	2 4 7
LUCKNOW
IC-812	1515	1 3 5	IC-811	1930	1 3 5
MADRAS
IC-542	1115	1 3 5	IC-541	1030	1 3 5
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2 7
IC-765	1720	daily	D2-171	1045	daily
D2-172	1740	daily	IC-766	2220	daily
NAGPUR
IC-769	1525	1 3 5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5
PATNA
IC-249	1430	2 4 7	IC-249	1805	2 4 7
IC-812	1515	1 3, 5	IC-811	1930	1 3 5
PORT BLAIR
IC-285	0640	3 5 7	IC-286	1100	2 4 6
RANCHI
IC-249	1430	2 4 7	IC-249	1805	2 4 7
SHILLONG
PF-701	1130	1 3 5, 7	PF-702	1610	1, 3, 5 7
SILCHAR
IC-255	0830	3 5	IC-260	1110	1, 7
IC-259	0830	1 7	IC-256	1320	3, 5
IC-253	1100	2 6	IC-254	1550	2, 6
IC-211	1240	4 6	IC-212	1740	4 6
TEZPUR
IC-213	0910	2 4 7	IC-213	1315	2 4, 7
VISHAKHAPATNAM
IC-542	1115	1 3 5	IC-541	1030	1, 3 5

Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No.	Time	Days
[illegible]
RO-076	2040	5, 7	RO-075	1035	5, 7
[illegible]
IC-225	1200	1	IC-226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2, 5	BG-697	1655	2, 5
[illegible]
BG-092	0850	4 5	BG-091	0810	4, 5
BG-092	1150	1, 2 3, 6, 7	BG-091	1110	1 2, 3, 6 7
IC-723	1300	1, 2, 5, 6, 7	IC-724	1620	1, 2, 5, 6, 7
BG-094	1905	1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7	BG-093	1825	1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1, 5	BG-095	2020	1, 5
KATHMANDU
IC-747	1115	1, 3 6	IC-748	1455	1, 3, 6
RA-214	1400	4, 7	RA-213	1315	4, 7

Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
LONDON
BA-142	2050	3, 7	BA-143	1525	3, 7
MOSCOW
SU-538	1855	4	SU-537	1655	4
PARO
KB-106	1200	3	KB-105	1040	2, 6
KB-106	1300	5
SINGAPORE
SQ-415	2200	2 5	SQ-416	2040	2, 5
SOFIA
LZ-504	1750	4	LZ-503	1650	4
TOKYO
AI-306	1910	5	AI-309	1825	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure Up	Time	Howrah	Arrival Time	Dn
2311	19 15	Delhi-Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19 20	Amritsar Mail	7 55	3006
3003	20-35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13 00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat	16 15	2382
2303	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun	16 15	2304
2301	16-30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun	10 45	2302
2305	13-45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat	12 50	2306
3073	23-00	Himgiri (Jammu Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat Arr Tues Wed & Sat	11 35	3074
5047	13 00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon Wed & Fri	4 30	5048
3009	20 30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9 45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18 15	3008
3049	19 20	Amritsar Express	15 30	3050
3039	21 00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5 20	3040
3019	16 05	Kathgodam Express	11 55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5 00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6 30	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17 11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18 20	Asansol Express	8 45	3036
3031	21 05	Danapur Express	5-50	3032
3025	23 00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday Arr Friday	11 35	3026
3071	22 30	Jamalpur Express	5-10	3072
3015	9-55	Santiniketan Express	15 40	3016
1159	15 25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tues & Wed	6-50	1160
1171	15 25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed Arr Fri Sat & Sun	6 50	1172
3327	14-30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4 50	3328
1181	15 25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6 50	1182
		Sealdah
3141	13-40	Teesta Torsa Express Dep Mon Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed Thurs Fri Sat & Sun	6 35	3142
3143	19 15	Darjeeling Mail	8-45	3144
3111	20-15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7 15	3112
5657	6-25	Kanchanjunga Express	20 35	5658
3153	22 00	Gour Express	5 15	3154
5663	20-00	Katihar Express	4 15	5664
3151	11-45	Jammu Tawi Express	15 50	3152
3133	20-55	Mughal Saraı Express via SBG Loop	12 55	3134
3103	18 20	Bhagirathi (Laigola) Express	10-25	3104
5185	12-40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues , Thus & Sat	4-25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure Up	Time	Howrah	Arrival Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6 50	6004
8002	19-20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15-15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8030	11-20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12 00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	1940	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13-45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express	22-05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5 00	8006
8015	21-40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5 30	8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8 25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15-00	8046
8017	16 45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2421	16 40	Bhubaneswar New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10	–
--	11 05	New Delhi Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15	--
—	14 05	Trivandrum Central Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 45	6321
	14 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13 45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15	--
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13 45	6315
6520	22-35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15	—
—	14 05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South-Eastern Railway trains, please dial 2203545 54 for in coming trains, 2203535-44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South-Eastern Railway trains, dial 2203496-3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running), 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535-37

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

AN OASIS OF HOPE

The Jaunpur range in Garhwal is dry, brown and rocky Water is hard to find and green fields are to be seen only far down in the valley, near the Aglar or some smaller stream Elsewhere, only monsoon crops are grown

I have walked five miles without finding a spring or even a shady spot along the sun-blistered path I am beginning to wonder if the only living creatures in the area are the big lizards who slither about on the hot surface of the rocks and stare at me with unblinking eyes

Just as I am asking myself if it is better to be a lizard than a thirsty trekker, I round the bend and discover a small mountain oasis, a crooked little shack tucked away in a cleft in the hillside Growing beside the shack is a single pine tree, humming softly in the faint breeze that drifts across the mountains

When one tree suddenly appears in this way, lonely and dignified in the middle of a vast tree-less silence, it can be more beautiful than a forest

There is no glamour about the shack — a loose stone structure with a tin roof held down by stones But it is a teashop, one of those little pockets of pioneering mankind that spring up in the mountain wildernesses to serve the weary traveller

●●●

In remote mountain areas, time has a different meaning, you may count the days but not the hours. And yesterday, today and tomorrow merge into one long day. When there is nowhere to go you have no need of a clock. You eat when you are hungry and sleep when you are tired

●●●

Go where you will in Garhwal, you will always find a teashop to sustain you just when you feel you have reached the end of your tether

A couple of mules are tied to the pine tree and the mule-drivers, handsome men in tattered clothes, sit on a bench in the shade, drinking tea from brass tumblers The shopkeeper, a man of indeterminate age — the cold dry winds from the snows have crinkled his face like a walnut but his teeth are sound and his eyes are clear — greets me as a long-lost friend, although we are meeting for the first time

As a concession to my shirt and trousers he produces a chair for me It is a period chair, possibly ever a Sheraton, but the stuffing has come out of the seat It must have escaped from the nearby hill station, Mussoorie, where the sahibs forgathered in years gone by

The shopkeeper apologises for its condition, "The rats have been nesting in it " And then to reassure me, "But they have gone now "

I would just as soon be on the bench with the mule-drivers but do not wish to offend the shopkeeper, who has already given me his name, Megh Chand, and taken mine So I take his chair into the shade and gently lower myself into it

"Do you live here alone?" I ask

"Sometimes I am alone," he says "My family is down in the village, looking after the fields It is quite far, six miles, so I go home once a week and then my son comes up to look after the shop "

"How long have you had the shop?"

"Oh 10, 15 years, I do not remember exactly "

Why bother to count the years? In remote mountain areas, time has a different meaning, you may count the days but not the hours And yesterday, today and tomorrow merge into one long day When there is nowhere to go you have no need of a clock You eat when you are hungry and sleep when you are tired

But the mule-drivers have somewhere to go and something to deliver, pumpkins and potatoes They are busy men of the world, and presently they lead their pack animals away down the dusty path

"Tea or lassi?" Megh Chand gives me a choice and I take the lassi which is sharp and refreshing The wind soughs gently in the upper branches of the pine tree and I relax in my Sheraton chair like some 18th century nabob who has brought his own chair into the wilderness

Megh Chand tells me that he has been starved of good conversation "Next year," he says, sitting down on the steps of his shop, "the government will be widening the road and then the busses will be able to to stop here For many years I have depended on the mule-drivers, but they do not have much money to spend Once the busses come, I will have many customers Then perhaps I can afford to go to Delhi to have my operation "

"What operation?"

"Oh, a rasoi—a growth—in my stomach Sometimes the pain is very bad I went to the hospital in Mussoorie but they told me I would have to go to Delhi for the operation

"Whenever anyone is seriously ill, they say, 'Go to Delhi!' Does the whole world go to Delhi to get treated? My uncle was told to go to Delhi for an operation He went from one hospital to another till his money was finished, and then he came back to the village, and died within a week

"So maybe I won't go back for the operation The money is needed here Once the the buses come, I will have to keep sweets and biscuits and other things, and also a boy to help me cook a few meals All I can offer you today is a bun It was made in Delhi, I was told "

"I'd rather have your lassi than a Delhi bun," I protest, for the bun looks as old as the Sheraton chair "But where do you get water?" I ask

"Come I will show you," he says, and takes me round to the back of the shack and through an unexpected gap in the hillside It gives me a breathtaking glimpse of snow-clad mountains striding into the sky

It is cool and shady on the northern face of the hill, and here, issuing from rock, is a trickle of water Yellow primulas grow in clusters along the edges of a damp, dripping rock-face The water collects in a small stone trough

"There is no other chesma (spring) along this road," he says "And busses can't go down into the ravine unless they fall into it So they will have to stop here!" He is triumphant

We return to the shop front, where a milkman has just arrived with a container of milk He, too, sits down for a rest, refreshment and conversation Next year, if the road is ready (and it is a big 'if' because with hill roads you can never be sure) and if he can afford the fare (an even bigger 'if') the milkman will be able to use the bus

But there are some who will walk anyway, because they have always been walking Or ride mules because they have been doing it all their lives

Still, when the road comes, time will take on new dimensions for Megh Chand Even in remote areas, buses must keep to some sort of schedule and Megh Chand will have to be sure his pot is on the boil and be on the lookout for arrivals and departures

He will be better off than he is today, but he is aware that prosperity has its pitfalls. He remembers a cousin who opened a small grocery shop on a new bus-route near Devprayag One day some young hooligans got off the bus, looted his shop and left him battered and bruised It was the sort of thing that never happened before

It is time for me to be on my way I leave Megh Chand and his Sheraton chair with regret

"I hope the road will soon be ready," I say in parting "I hope you will make lots of money I hope you will be able to go to Delhi for your operation And I hope I can come this way again "

Hillman or plainsman, we have only our hopes to keep us going

(Sanctuary Features)

The finest Diamond and 22/22K Gold Jewellery at:

Nemichand Bamalwa & Sons,

Jewellers

16-A, Shakespeare Sarani, 3rd Floor Calcutta 700071; Phone: 242-3388

The melting or refining purity of our 22/22K ornaments is 22 Karat (91.67%)

INNER EYE ❑ Bejan Daruwalla

Aries

March 21—April 20

Ganesha says, hard work and commensurate rewards, as the new moon helps you to work hard, play hard Important decisions regarding job, business, and profession will have to be taken January 27-28 offer opportunities Use it wisely and well

Taurus

April 21– May 20

You will have to pull yourself up by the bootstraps so to say The outstanding directions of the week include contacts, communication, buying, selling property, journey and publicity In other words, you have a full plate to chomp Go right ahead

Gemini

May 21—June 20

Sun trine moon placing means victory, money, good cheer, excellent company, and a whale of a deal coming through for you Your enemies will vamoosh like a bat out of a cave Problems connected with legacy, insurance, loans and the money of a spouse will have predominance Be brave

Cancer

June 21 –July 20

You too will pop in and out of financial transactions and family get-togethers Those in industry, business and real estate are assured of loans and funds Also, the spotlight is on partnerships, be it marriage, business alliance and collaborations Trips are on the cards

Leo

July 21—August 21

Do try something elaborate Probably it will not backfire Children, sports and romance give great delight Financial issues will have to be resolved While lady luck will ride with you, it would be absolutely senseless and stupid to be blunt and inflexible

Virgo

August 22—September 22

You too will believe in getting up and standing up for your rights The new moon does signify birth or conception, renovation, decoration, house moving and travel Finances will be much to the fore of things You will take the bite out of laziness and go in for a flurry of activities

Libra

September 23—October 22

Venus, your planetary chief, is in fine placing with Mercury, making for journeys, campaigns, a new venture and an affair of the heart January 27 and 28 are definitely for meeting people, making travel plans, correspondence and contacts The home also figures very significantly for Librans

Scorpio

October 23—November 22

Ganesha says plenty of action, both on the work front and the home slot Those in large corporations and governmental organisations do best Mars could be responsible for health hazards to you and your loved ones Travel is possible on account of the new moon impact

Sagittarius

November 23—December 20

Mercury-Pluto excellent placing will help you to garner news, write effectively, communicate directly and effectively, and sign important deeds and documents Trips and ties are well signified Old flames and sweethearts may come alive, upsetting the apple cart

Capricorn

December 21—January 19

The moon in your sign, according to Western astrology, helps you to take the initiative, decide important meetings, conferences, policies, follow-throughs Go in for the kill, buy, sell and invest Also, you will try to restore and heal hearts as well as minds, and win the gratitude of others

Aquarius

January 20—February 18

Love and hate, bouquets and brickbats, in almost equal measure, should make the week quite unusual and exciting Despite expenses, you will hold on to what is yours by right Many Aquarians could be in a for a change of job, profession and even business

Pisces

February 19—March 20

Moon-Neptune fine placing gives extra mileage to teachers, lawyers, middlemen, editors, artists, politicians, travel agents and industrialists You will certainly try to fan out to people and places now The snag is that your own health needs safeguarding

BIRTHDAYS

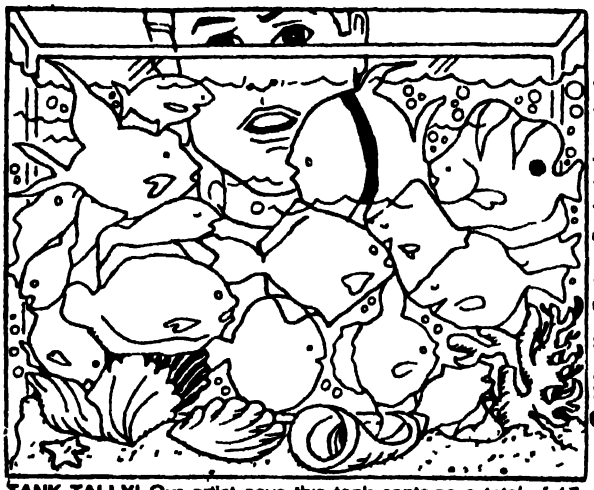
January 29: Moon-Neptune conjunction makes you imaginative, intuitive and introspective, says Ganesha. This, in turn, gives you the necessary insight.

January 30: The new moon is excellently juxtaposed with Jupiter, resulting in name, fame, money and honey. You will come out of the dumps and regain your position.

January 31: Moon conjunction Mercury makes way for news, messages, reporting, teaching, writing, computer programming, training or researching.

February 1: Venus trine Pluto means the end result will be good. There will be mental tensions and even agonies, but rest assured, it will all pass and joy will prevail.

February 2: Moon-Saturn conjunction makes you more cultivate courage and even bravado now. Family life could have a sub-save. Many of you will proceed with caution.



February 3: Sun-Mercury conjunction will definitely lead to a wish-fulfillment. Many Aquarians will move fast.

February 4: Moon trine sun-Jupiter results in expansion and progress at different levels. Expect a promotion if in service, and profit if in business.

Owing to disruption in supply, Maneka Gandhi's column could not be carried this week*— Editor

JUNIOR WHIRL

HAL KAUFMAN

©1994 by King Features Syndicate Inc 1-16

TANK TALLY! Our artist says this tank contains a total of 17 assorted tropical fish How many do you observe?

TRIFLE RANGE! How trifles may alter history, in the words of writer teacher Vladmir Nabokov "A toothache will cost a battle, a ___ cancel an insurrection " Fill blank Hint Add a weather word

The missing word is drizzle

TIMBER	FLOWER
2BAL..	2DRE...
3...SON	3...OUS
4ENA..	4SLE...
5...GIR	5...UTY
6FUN..	6PUR...

NAME INSERTS TO PONDER

YOU are asked to fill in 12 three-letter names of boys and girls to complete the two columns of six-letter words above Place boys' names in the blanks on left, girls' names on the right

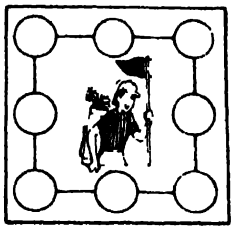
Names to be inserted are listed below (scrambled, of course) Two of the twelve are already shown

BOYS	GIRLS
Dan	Amy
Les	Sue
Gus	Flo
Tim	Bea
Mel	Joy
Sam	Eve

How quickly can you fit all 12 names in?

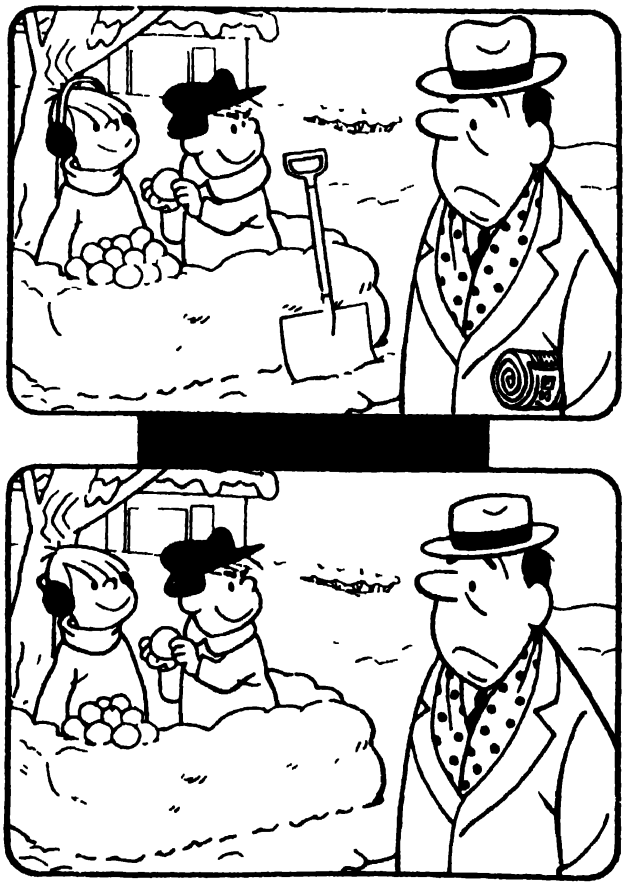
Time limit 2 minutes

Boys 1 Tim 2 Sam 3-Les 4-Mel 5-Dan 6-Gus Girls 1 Flo 2 Amy 3-Joy 4-Eve 5-Bea 6-Sue



MATCH PLAY! Golfers may be so-so at addition, but the player below is said to have solved this poser in two minutes' time Let's see how long it takes you Object is to place digits 1-8 in the diagram below so that circles on each of the square's four sides total 14

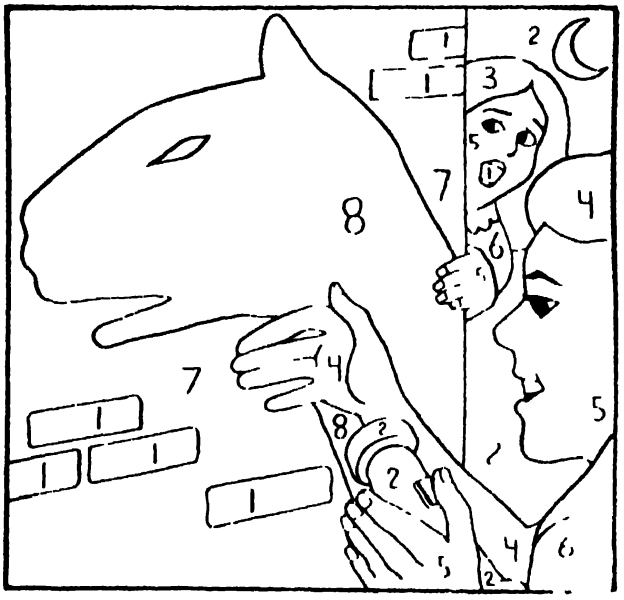
Each of the numbers 1-8 is to be used just once



Clue Numbers 3, 4, 5 and 8 appear in the corners

No fair peeking below

Top left corner — 3 then clockwise 6 5 1 8 2 4 7 will do it



HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below

DIFFERENCES 1 Earmuffs are different 2 Snowballs are missing 3 Collar is smaller 4 Shovel is missing 5 Hat is different 6 Paper is missing

FUNSPOT

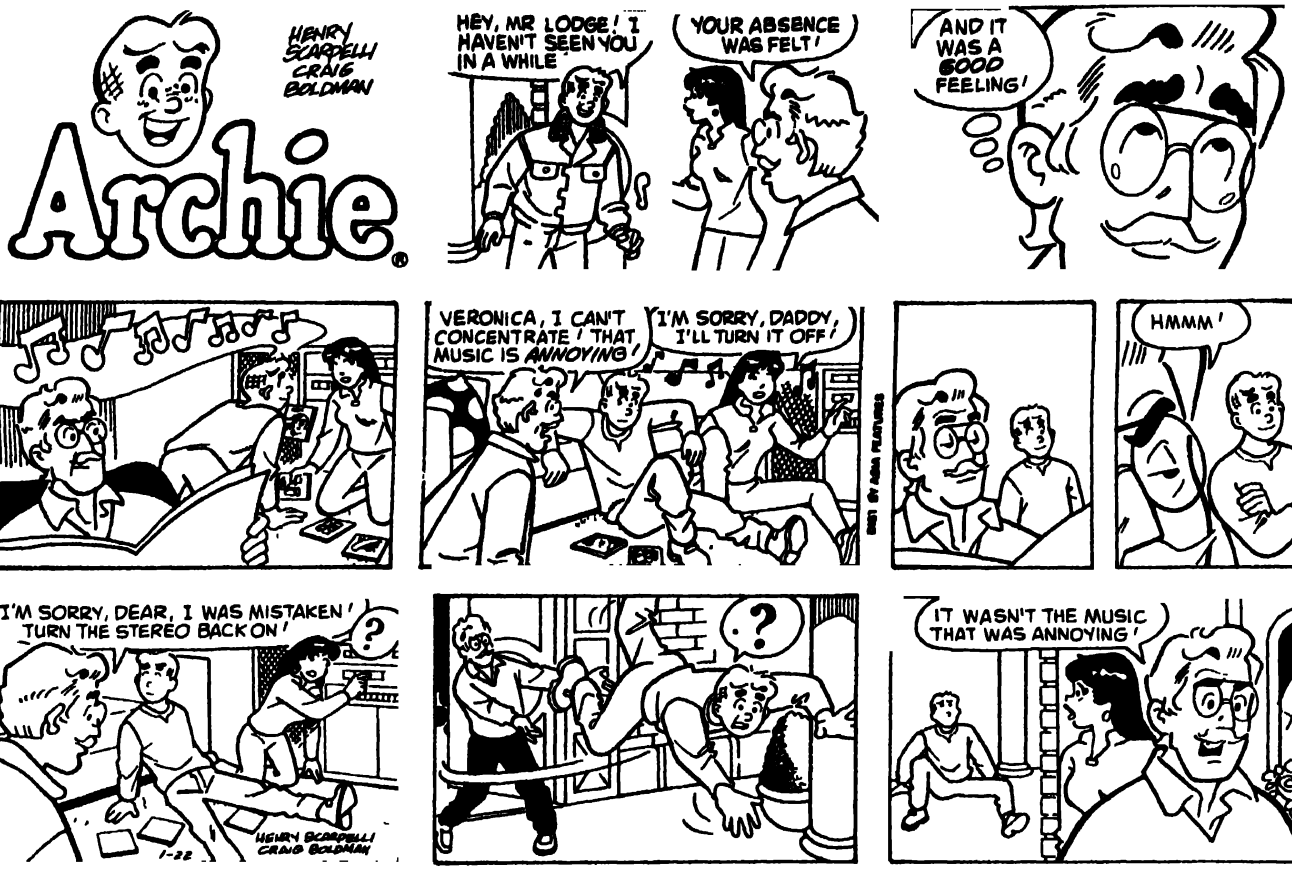
HANDS ON! Let's have a show of hands — on the wall, that is Add these colors neatly 1—Red 2- Lt blue 3—Yellow 4—Lt brown 5—Flesh tones 6—Green 7—Dk brown 8—Black

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

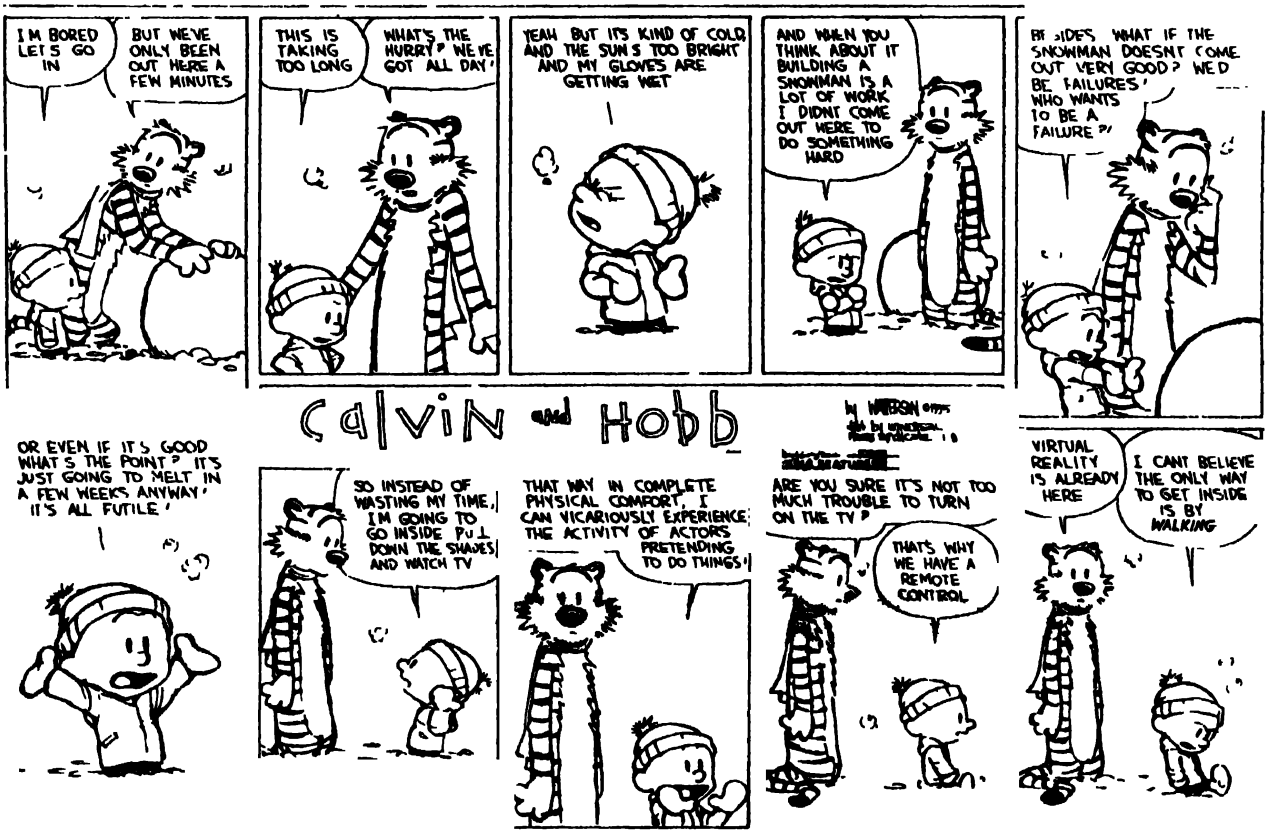
WATERBED

- - - - - - - -



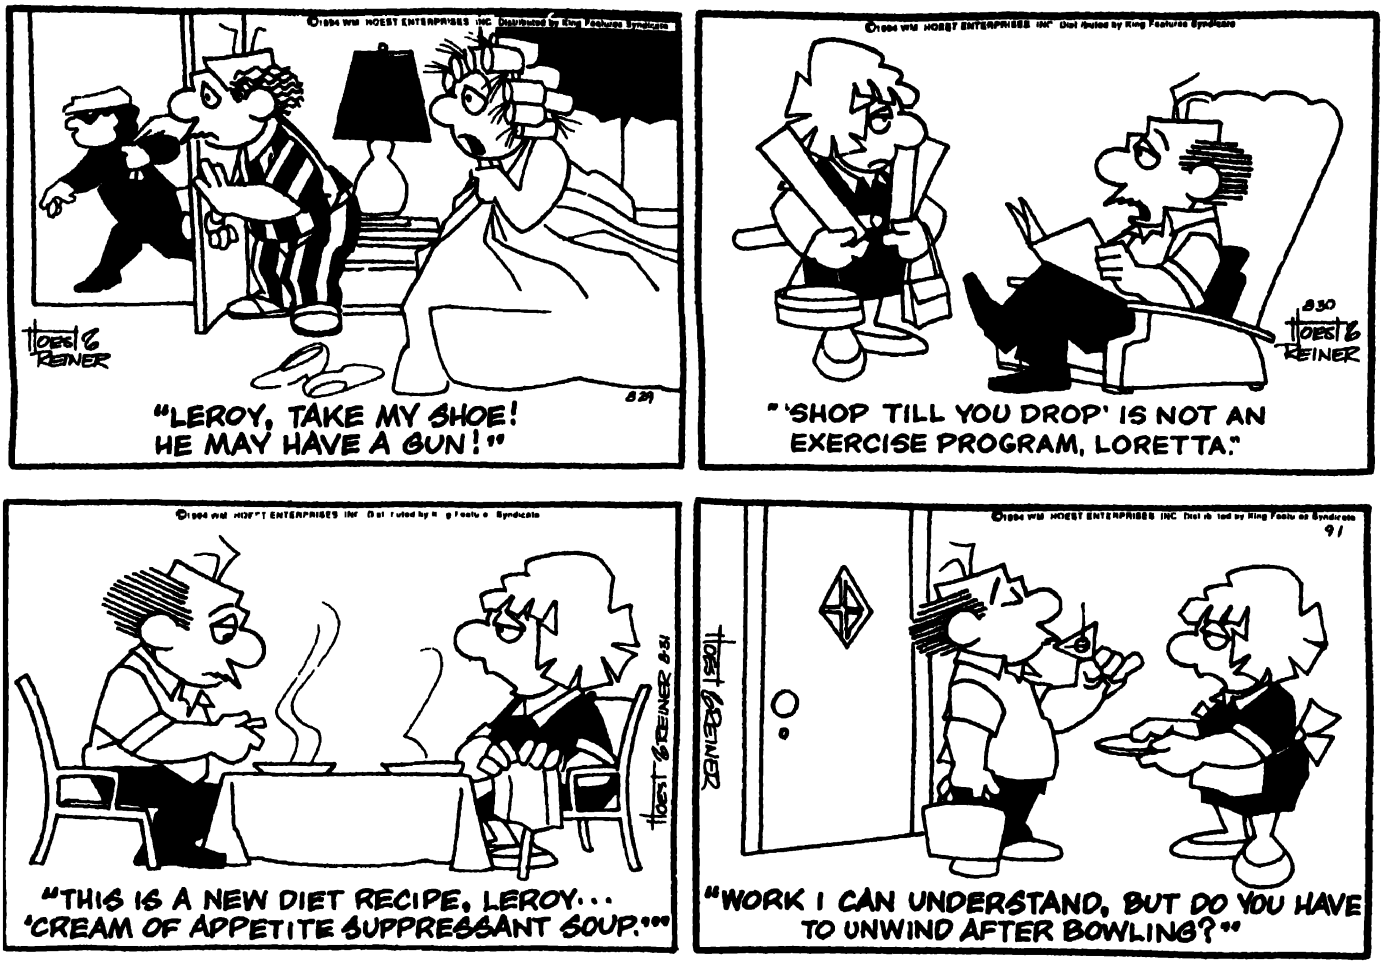
THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

Try to score at least 30 points

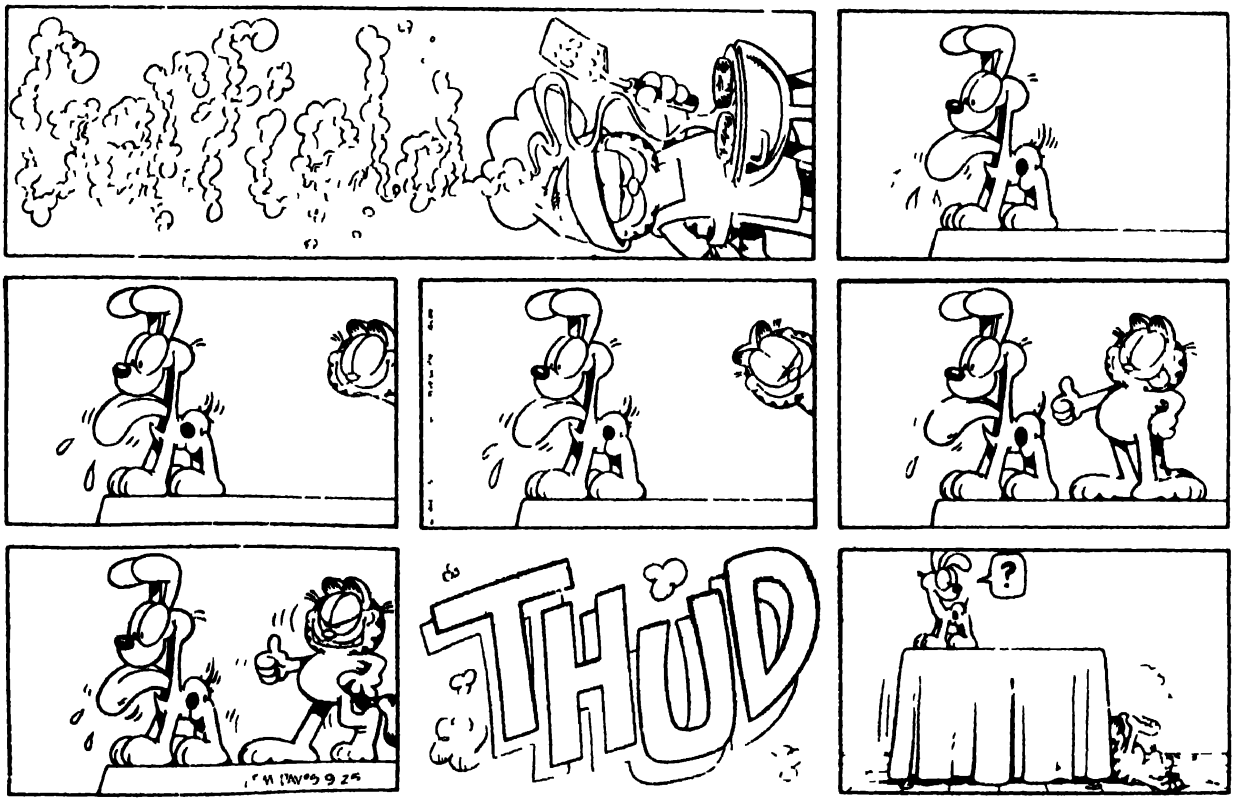


Possible twosome Drew, beat

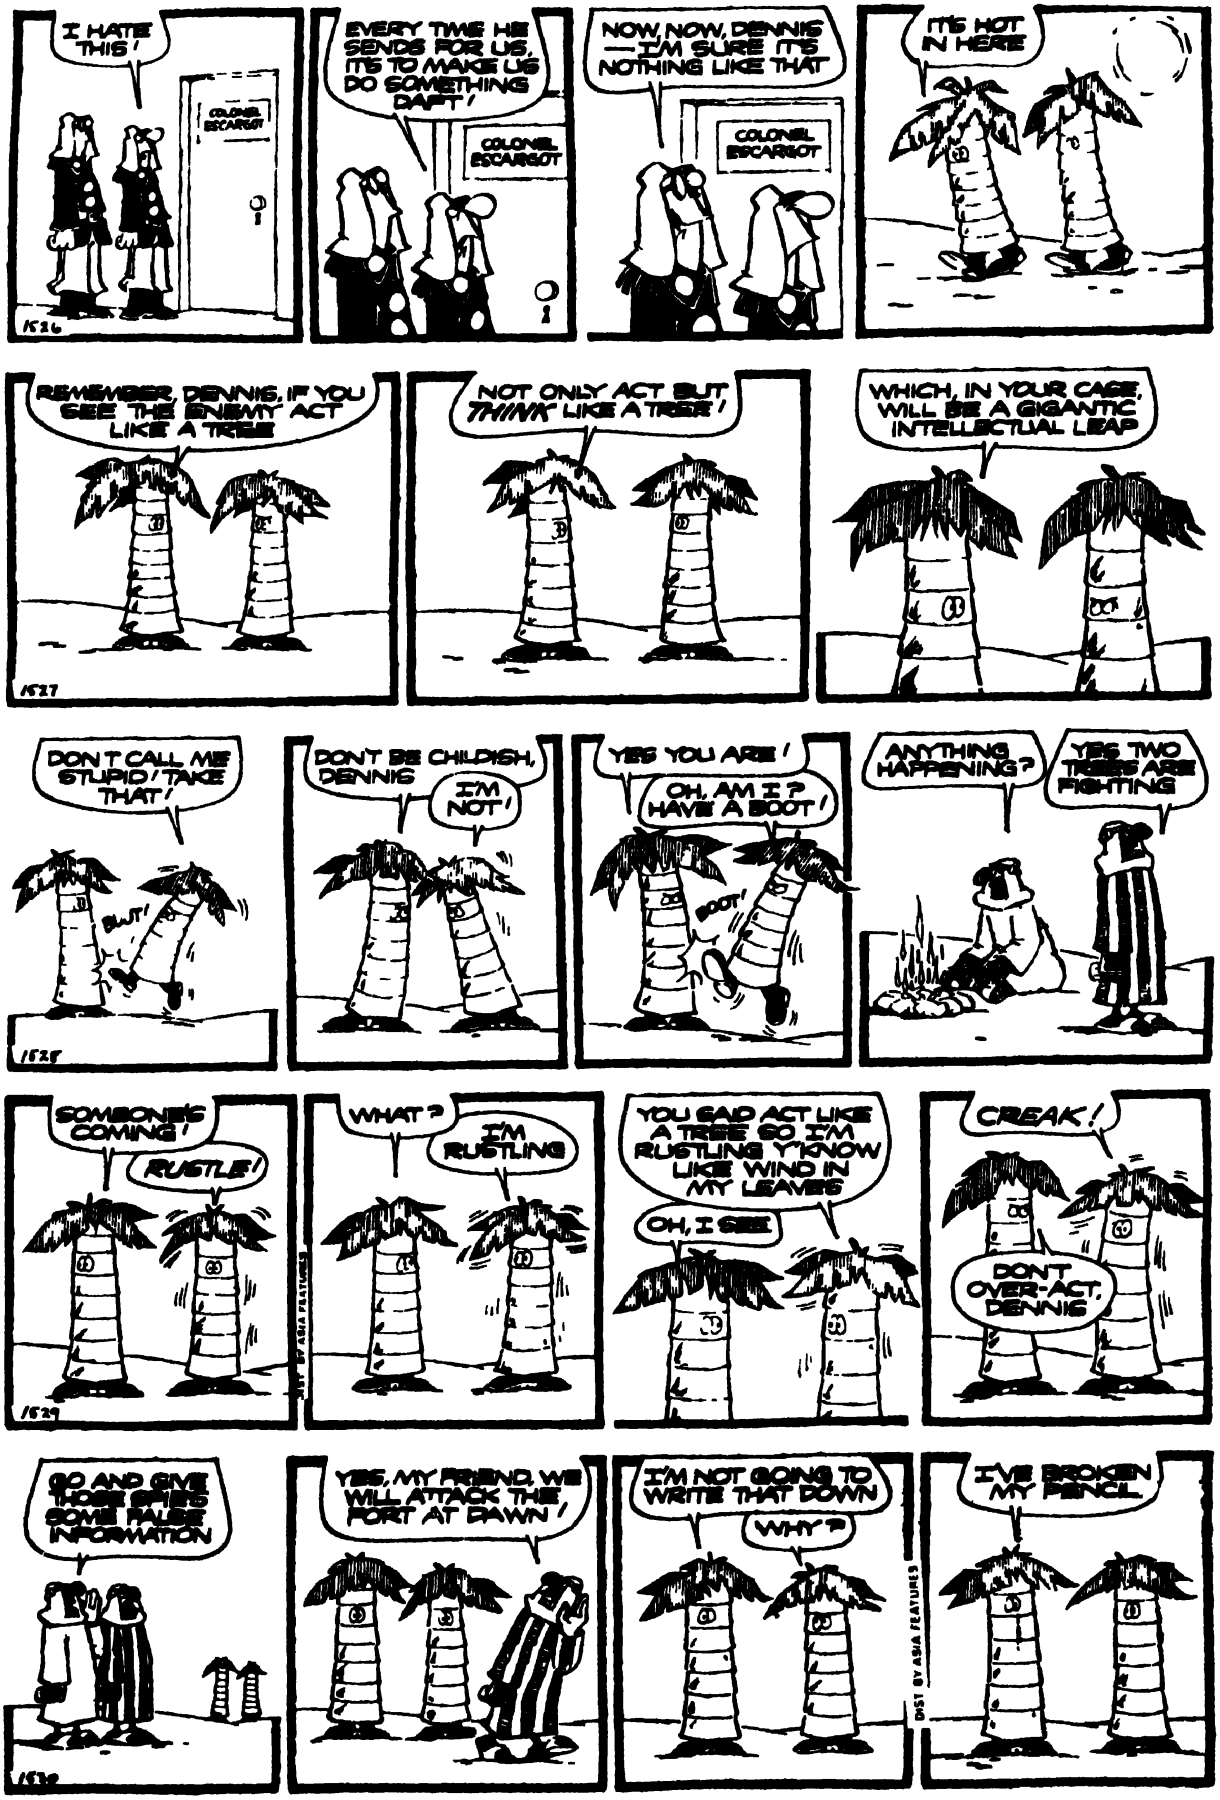
COMICS



ARCHIE



CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON



THE LOCKHORNS

GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS

THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP

CLUBS in CALCUTTA

The club as a place for socialising is not an Indian phenomenon. It was introduced by the British who first came to India to trade and stayed back to rule To understand the reason for this it will be usedful to refer to the following from H R Panckridge's "A Short History of the Bengal Club, 1827-1927"

"It is the practice of European peoples to reproduce as far as possible in their settlements and colonies in other continents the characteristic social features of their national lives

Thus it is that that the footsteps of France are marked by the cafe, those of Germany by the beergarden

In the tropical possessions of the British Crown the idea of the club makes a special appeal to the large number of men, who are compelled by circumstances to be separated from their wives and families for longer and shorter periods To these clubs afford some consolation for the pains of exile and loneliness, while at the same time they offer a welcme solution of a difficult problem to the many bachelors with a disfaste for housekeeping "

Royal Calcutta Turf Club

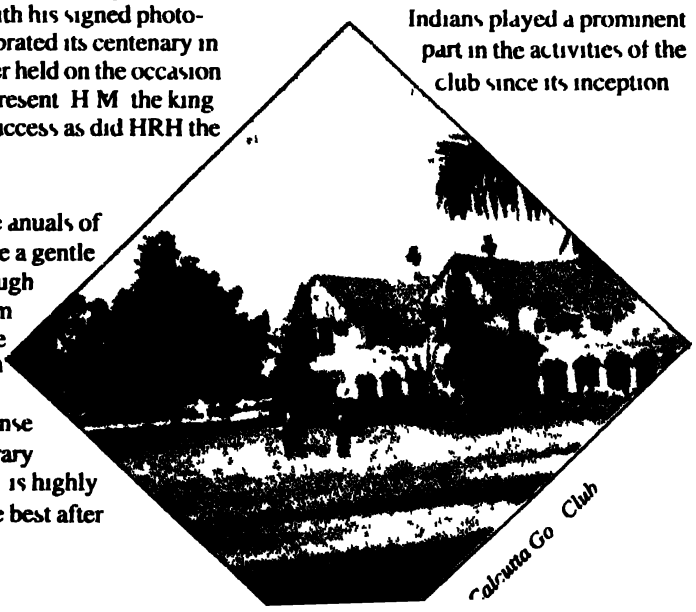
Panckridge's words aptly sum up the rationale behind setting up of clubs by the British With their departure the mantle has fallen on their Indian successors to maintain the continuity of this institution So club life continues, well set to enter the 21st century—a long way since its inception in the early 19th

The Bengal Club, founded in 1827, is certainly the oldest club of Calcutta and seems to be the earliest in India as well His Excellency Lord Combermere agreed to become its Patron and Lt Col The Hon J Finch, C B , who was Military Secretary of Lord Combermere, became the first President The rules of the club originally stipulated that there could be 500 members with 100 drawn from the Bench, Bar or Clergy and the rest from the services It followed that businessmen would be excluded but that could hardly have been the intention In the original lists of members many names from now forgotten mercantile houses can be traced

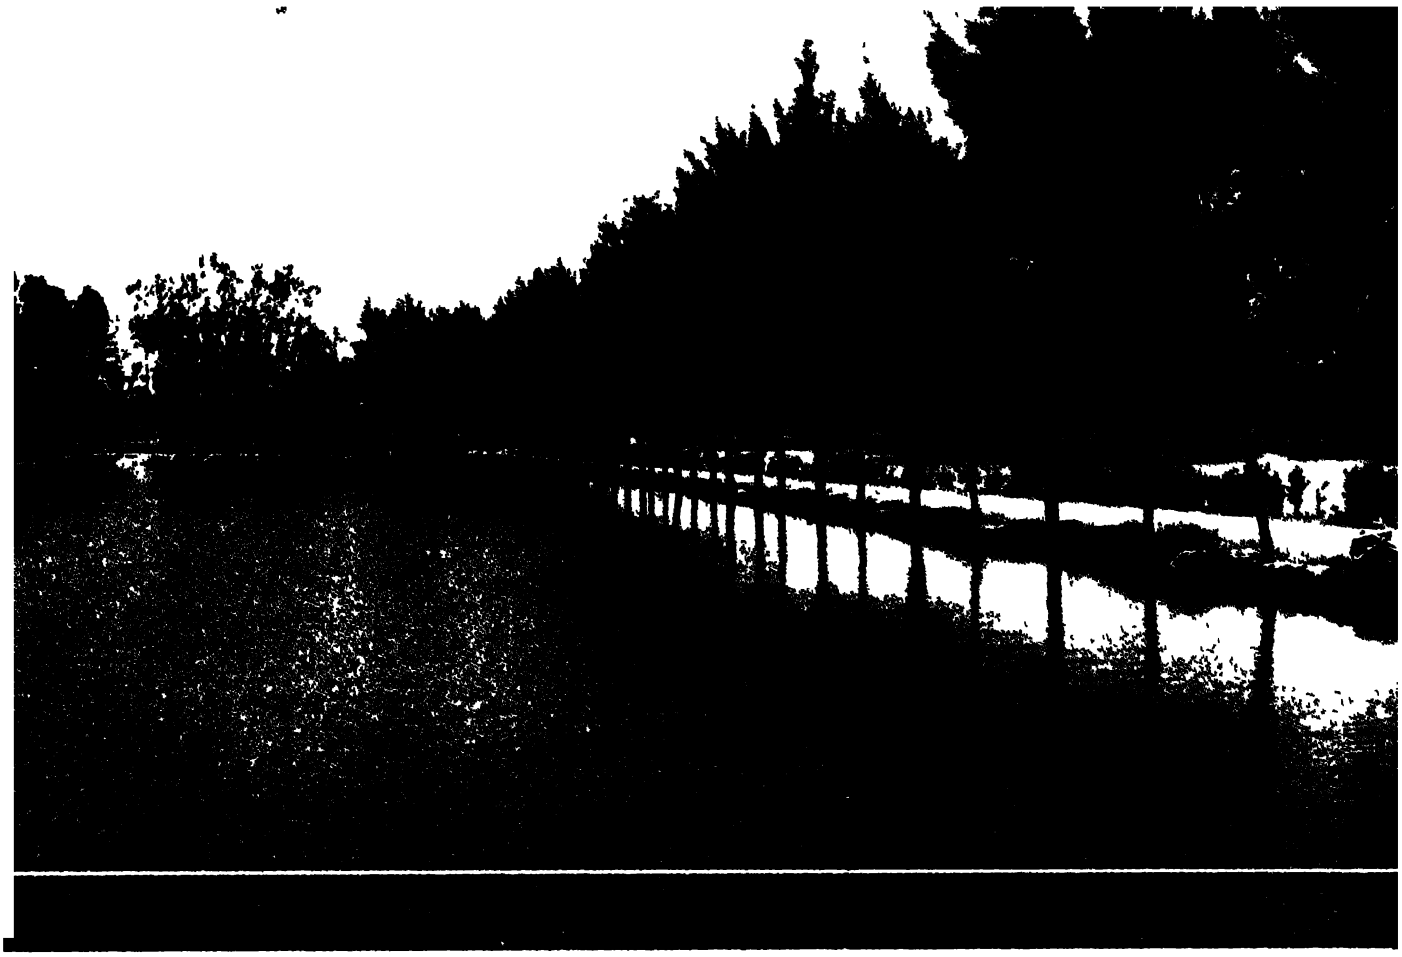
Initially the Bengal Club was located at the four-storied Gordon's Buildings at Esplanade East We understand that at the celebration dinner on the acquisition of the premises the venison was excellent and the meal "did much credit to the culinary talents of Mr Payue, the Stward"

It is interesting to note that on Lord Combermere's departure from India, Lord William Bentinck, the Governor-General of India, became the second Patron of the club

In time the club removed itself from Gordon's Buildings to Tank Square which of course is the modern Dalhousie Square or, even more recently, B B D Bag It was in 1845 that the Bengal Club came to its present site The building was that which was occupied by Macaulay when he was in India as Law Member of the Supreme Council from 1834 to 1838 The property belonged to Babu Kali Prasanna Singha of Jorasanko from whom a lease of 30 years, on most satisfactory terms, was arranged



The old club house was dismantled in 1908 and another was constructed in the same place in 1911 Finally, in 1970, the Chowringhee front was pulled down and what remains is the Russell Street portion On 30th December, 1921, the Bengal Club entertained His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at luncheon and HRH graciously presented the club with his signed photograph The club celebrated its centenary in 1927 and at the dinner held on the occasion 138 members were present H M the king wished the club all success as did HRH the Prince of Wales



To go through the anuals of Bengal Club is to take a gentle ride backwards through time Men at the helm of Indian affairs were all members Even in this egalitarian era the club retains its sense of integrity The library of the club even now is highly regarded as being the best after the National Library

At the risk of not being chronological we now jump 80 years and come to 1907 in the twentieth century In that years was formally opened the Calcutta Club with 45 members present at the inauguration It was located at No 17, Elysium Row The first patron was Lord Minto and the Maharaja of Cooch Behar was the President Within a year of being at Elysium Row, the club moved, this time to Russell Street The committee was, however, on the lookout for a permanent site and a plot of land measuring approximately $8\frac{1}{4}$ bighas was selected The frontage was on Lower Circular Road and on Chowringhee Road as well This is the Calcutta Club as we all know now and it was formally opened by the Governor of Bengal, Sir Thomas David Gibson Carmichael in 1915

It is imperative to understand the background of the Calcutta Club The clubs of the time were formed for the social purposes of the British and these were exclusive for a fair member of Britishers also It was only towards the end of the nineteenth century that some of the standoffishness was shed but the taboo on the fraternising of communities remained Increasingly enlightened people felt the need for a place where people could meet socially without the barriers of community, race or religion It was in 1905 that a group of Britishers and Indians got together to found a club where all could meet on an equal footing From the germ of their idea Calcutta Club was born

Indians played a prominent part in the activities of the club since its inception

A country club for country lovers

Get away Escape Retreat to quiet, peaceful elegance To a very private, very exclusive place Just 15 minutes west of Calcutta

Calcutta's very first country club – The Lake Land Country Club is ready to play host to you Ready to live upto your lifestyle, your expectations, your experience of the best anywhere

A green jewel, set in the glimmering waters of interlinked lakes, for the traditional, opulent, classy pleasures with contemporary amenities and facilities A gentleman's club as well as the gracious lady's

A club with character.

The Lake Land

COUNTRY CLUB

Developers

Panchawati Holiday Resorts Limited

8D Landmark, 228A AJC Bose Road Calcutta 700 020
Phone 406922 Fax 033 2429082, 033 660240

Lake Land Country Club has caught my imagination
I would like your representative to call me

Name _____

Address _____

_____

Occupation _____

Phone (Residence) _____ (Office) _____

Fax

Among others, Gaganendranath and Abanindranath Tagore were members B N Rau, an architect of the Indian Constitution, lived in the club for a time Noel Barwell, the last of the British barristers of Calcutta, was also a resident

Very early in its existence, Calcutta Club became involved in sporting activities As early as 1915, Prafulla Nath Tagore paid for the cost of a tennis court In 1920 the Maharaja of Cooch Behar presented a Squash Tennis Challenge Cup and in 1928 a cup for the annual billiard tournament was presented by Sir Brojendra Nath Mitter There have been many other trophies donated by other luminaries A swimming pool was opened in the year of the club's golden jubilee

Lake Land Club

As stated before, the club was founded as much for Europeans as for Indians The atmosphere was much more congenial than elswhere Towards the end of the 1970s, Rabindrasangeet and Bengali drama firmly entered the premises It has become customary to stage of Bengali play on the eve a the Bengali new year followed by a delicious Bengali dinner

Moving over to sports we now come to Tollygunge Club which was founded in 1895 to "promote all manner of sports" It has an area of 100 acres of lush grounds and the club house itself is over 200 years old having been built by Richard Johnson around 1780-81, Johnson's property came into the possession of Prince Golam Mohammed, son of Tipu Sultan and the Tollygunge club acquired the property from his descendents This year the club will be observing its centenary week from February 10-18 and the centenary celebrations are to be inaugurated by the Chief Minister 24 past presidents are expected to be the present at the celebrations

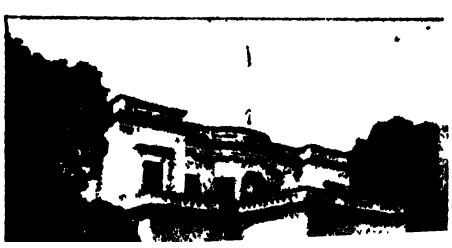
Tollygunge Club is the only one of its kind in India and according to Mr Robert H Wright, OBE, who is the managing member, the club tries to be the best in the country if not in Asia Only recently it earned plaudits from the visiting Prime Minister of Singapore

To be the premier sporting club it maintains seven tennis courts, three of squash, three swimming pools, 30 ponies apart from a golf course and billiards and bridge rooms The extensive grounds have a large collection of trees and plants some brought from places as far away as Australia and South America

Mr Wright mentioned that the Tolly gunge Club was one club which never had a race barrier However, non-Britishers did not have the vote but could enjoy all the facilities This says a lot, for it is a domain which went liberal well after independence Today the club has 1200 members out of which less than 200 are expatriates Six to 7% of the members are ladies Though this club as others has become less formal the emphasis still is on strict screening when it comes to admitting new members Also, any kind of misconduct on the part of members brings swift retribution At present the waiting list numbers around 1000

Practically across the road from the Tollygunge Club is another venerated institution, the Royal Calcutta Golf Club Originally known as Calcutta Golf Club, it was designated "Royal" in 1911 when King George V and Queen Mary visited India The RCGC is over 150 years old and is the oldest golf course outside the British Isles At one time the club boasted of a 36 hole golf course but pressures on land have taken their toll and the present course is one of 18 holes It has been revised several times, the most recently in the mid-1970s It is ranked among the top courses in the world The fairways are liberally bordered with trees and there are 23 water hazards or "tanks" as these are known and these seem to exist solely to torment the golfers The tanks are used for purposes othen than golf One can come across an accasional goat drinking water or a couple of children having a bath All these of course add to the pleasure of playing the game The Royal Calcutta Golf Club hosted the Classic Indian Open in 1994

One club which seemed positively lively when compared to the clubs of the time is Saturday Club which was founded in 1875 and moved to its present premises in 1900 The premises had been owned by the trustees of the Late Rajendra Mullick Bahadur of Marble Palace Being at the heart of the city, it has proved to be a boon for generations of members



The Saturday Club today is a family club every day of the week It offers badminton, squash, tennis and table tennis facilities to its members On the first floor of the club house there is the library where there is an exclusive section for children There is also the popular banqueting hall, the Phoenix, which can host a sizeable conference

Among the premier sports clubs of Calcutta is surely the Royal Calcutta Turf Club which was formed as the Calcutta Turf Club in 1847 and became Royal in 1912 The Calcutta Derby Sweep was introduced in 1867 and ultimately its staggering amount helped to tide over any financial difficulty of the club This club was perhaps the only club to have an office in London The fact that racing is as popular today as it was over a hundred years ago and that it has grown vastly in scope is in no small way due to the activities of the Royal Calcutta Turf Club

The names of two other sporting clubs spring readily to the mind—those of the Calcutta Cricket Club and the Calcutta Football Club The two together is now known as the Calcutta Cricket and Football Club The history of cricket in Calcutta goes back to the end of the 18th century There are extant records of a cricket match in the 1790s After the old Calcutta Cricket Club merged with the Ballygunge Cricket Club it moved to the Ballygunge grounds of the latter Football became popular later than cricket Football was played both by the civilians and the military and gradually the military teams came to dominate till 1911 when Mohun Bagan won the IFA shild The cricket and the football clubs merged in 1965 The football club used to play rugby also This tradition is kept alive today The Calcutta Cricket and Football Club hosts popular cricket matches and limited side football is also played

From what has been said it becomes clear that all the established clubs have one thing in common—tradition Tradition is the mainstay of any club worth its name However, it is important to remember that when these clubs started in India there was no tradition or precedent So if a club is to sta ' today it will have to build up the tradition

This is precisely what the most recently established club in Calcutta, the Lake Land Country Club is doing It is in Howrah on the Kona Expressway It was formally inaugurated on 25th December 1994 The club is the nucleus of a 40 acre green estate which includes 15 acres of water body The whole project has been undertaken by Panchawati Holiday Resorts Ltd The club already has 250 members and these members will be able to get a feeling of serenity difficult to come by This club will also have a golf course

Our former rulers have gone forever but their spirit lingers on in many institutions founded by them In the hoary old clubs one really feels the presence of this spirit in time-worn corridors The responsibility of running the clubs smoothly has passed on from the merchant princes and the box wallahs to leading lights of the corporate world, the Bench, Bar and the medical profession Old timers may carp but the fact remains that an obnoxious barrier, that of racism, has been removed Otherwise of course, clubs remain as insular as ever and they are meant to be so—places where like minded people can congregate for social intercourse It remains to be seen whether new legends will be added to the existing ones But it can be said with some degree of certainty that club culture in Calcutta is flourishing and will continue to flourish

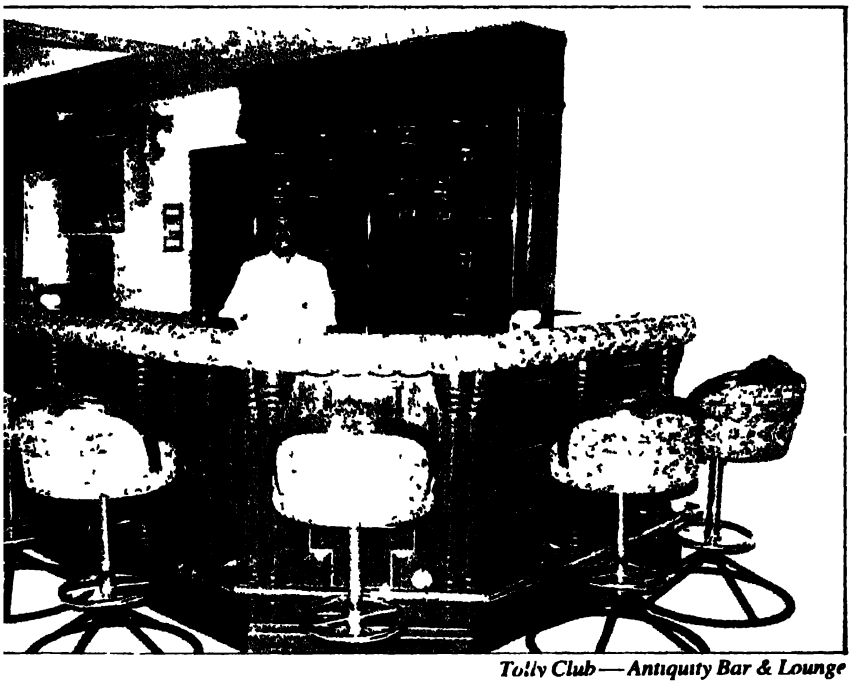
Acknowledgements

1) A Short History of the Bengal Club, 1827-1927 by H R Panckridge—Courtesy Bengal Club
2) The Calcutta Club
3) Calcutta 200 Years—Courtesy Tollygunge Club
4) The Saturday Club
5) Mr Robert H Wright, OBE, managing member, Tollygunge Club
6) Royal Calcutta Turf Club
7) The Royal Calcutta Golf Club

CLUBS AND BRANDS

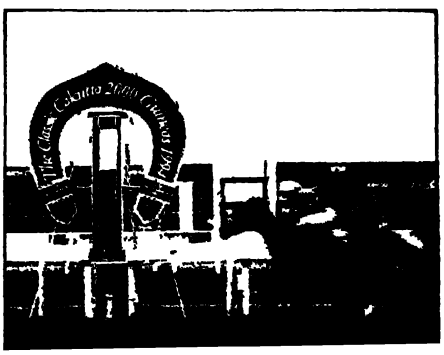
Clubs are normal places for promoting brand images that blend with their culture If it is inter-club sports, you will run into ITC sponsorship under the famous brand name Wills there is the Wills inter-club sports meet at Saturday Club every year, ending with the Wills Carnival bash Wills again is the sponsor of the new year's eve bashes at Tollygunge Club, CC&FC and Saturday Club It is a permanent part of the atmosphere in the last two with the Wills Bar at CC&FC and Wills Pavilion at Saturday Club

Apart from the usual subsidised offer of a new drink or cigarette at club nights and other functions, certain brand names have already become closely associated with certain sporting activities and tournaments that essentially belong to the club milieu



Golf is one of these And here corporate sponsorship is very much established ITC and Shaw Wallace are the main sponsers

ITC sponsorship, in the name of its premium cigarette Classic, is already a part of the golf scene The Classic Cup tournament at Tollygunge Club is extremely popular among amateur golfers in the last event (December 19-26, 1994) there were 724 participants The Classic Indian Open, held in rotation at Calcutta, Delhi and Bombay, is the largest Asian professional golf tournament with a prize money of $250,000 The last one was held at the Royal Calcutta Golf Club Club between March 3 and 6 last year



Then there is the Classic Eastern India Open Golf Tournament, a big professional meet with Pro-Am events in which amateurs can test their skills with professionals These have both popularised golf and woven the Classic brand name into the game and the lifestyles of the people who play

Classic is also very much into the hours that immediately follow a game of golf there is the Classic Pavilion at the Tollygunge Club and the Classic Shamiana at RCGC where golfers relax after the game These have a bar, a food counter and more importantly, a golf corner where you can have a look at golf magazines and golf literature The lavish entertainment and dinner that takes place at the Classic Night where the prizes are distributed by the ITC chairman, has also become a very prestigious club event where all worth social esteem have to be seen

Shaw Wallace, one of the 19 founder-members of the Merchants Cup Tournament way back in 1906, is the sponsor of the already well-known Antiquity Invitation Cup tournament for amateurs Named after the the company's super-premium 'Antiquity', the tournament is held in major clubs in major cities Three tournaments have already been held at RCGC and one each in Delhi and Bombay The grand entertainment — musical and gourmet — at the club nights that come at the end of each tournament, have also contributed to its popularity, as pointed out by Mr Nirvic Guha, Marketing Manager

Tolly Club — Antiquity Bar & Lounge

Classic Calcutta 2000 guineas

Scots hate to see it go.

HIGHLAND QUEEN

To place your order for Highland Queen Authentic Scottish Replica Bottles, please write to Macdonald Mohan Distillers Ltd , G-23, NDSE I, New Delhi 110 049

ULKA 20379

Mr Ashok S Malik, the joint managing director of Shaw Wallace, says as normal golf sponsorship is for professional events, his company chose the amateur circuit to promote the game "Club culture," he says, "is easier in Calcutta because life is easier" The golf courses here, he says, are only a few minutes away from your residence or place of work while they are usually far away in the capital and Bombay While it is difficult to get into the golf clubs of Delhi and Bombay, its easier in the case the Tollygunge Club and Royal Calcutta Golf Club The RCGC for example, he says is not very snooty and people from a reasonable background with an inte-

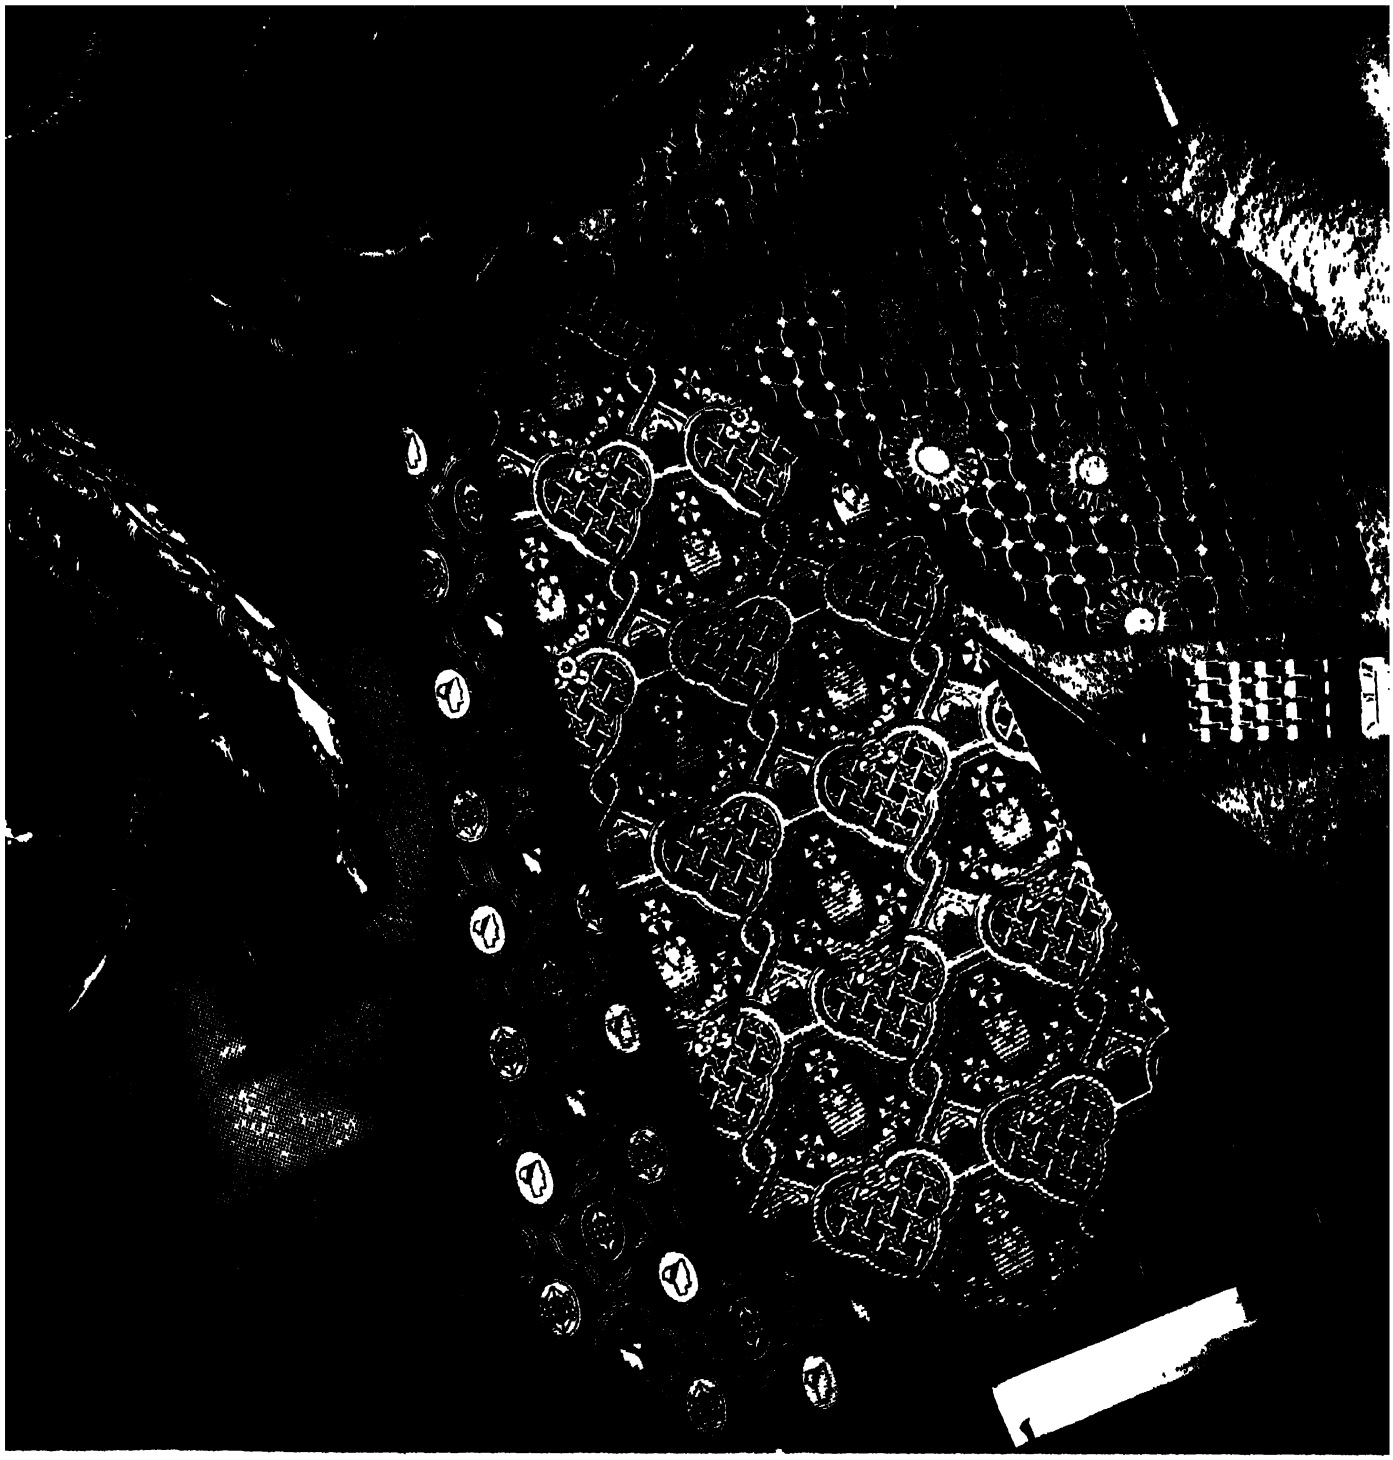
Classic Cup at Tolly Club

rest in golf are normally taken in without much fuss

Mr Malik, himself a five-time national champion, is all for wider promotion and popularisation of golf which he says is the "the fastest-growing sport in the world" Among the interesting statistics he casually cites to support this is the fact that over 200 countries play golf and in a country like Japan where there is acute land shortage, about two to three hundred golf courses are still being built

Apart from sponsoring major sporting events like the recent Director's Special test cricket series between India and West Indies and the well-known Royal Challenge racing events, Shaw Wallace has also sponsored a polo tournament in Delhi Some football tournaments have come in for Director's Special sponsorship as well Director's Special, of course is the name of the company's medium segment brand, while Royal Challenge is the premium segment leader — a position held by Peter Scot once upon a time In this area, as Mr Malik said, the main criterion is the mileage the company brand gets — among the spectators and TV viewers

Calcutta is still considered the best place to launch your brand — whether it is through a racing or golf cup named after it or through 'club nights' where it is introduced to the members Rajiv Mehra, director of Mohan Meakin and the newly formed Macdonald Mohan Distillers, says "we still believe what Calcutta thinks today India thinks tomorrow" So when Meakin formed the new company to bottle and market scotch — Macdonald & Muir's Highland Queen — it instituted the Highland Queen Trophy and the Macdonald Trophy The races for these took place at the Royal Calcutta Turf Club on December 10 last These two trophies featured on the day along with the Mohan Trophy The trophy and the brand were introduced on December 9 at the Highland Queen Night at RCTC which was graced by the cream of society and celebrities from the film world



The effect was later spread to the members of major clubs — RCTC, CC&FC, Royal Calcutta Swimming Club, Tollygunge Club, Royal Calcutta Golf Club, Bengal Club and Saturday Club among them — through what was called the 'happy hours' On these evenings you could get a free peg of Highland Queen against every one you ordered

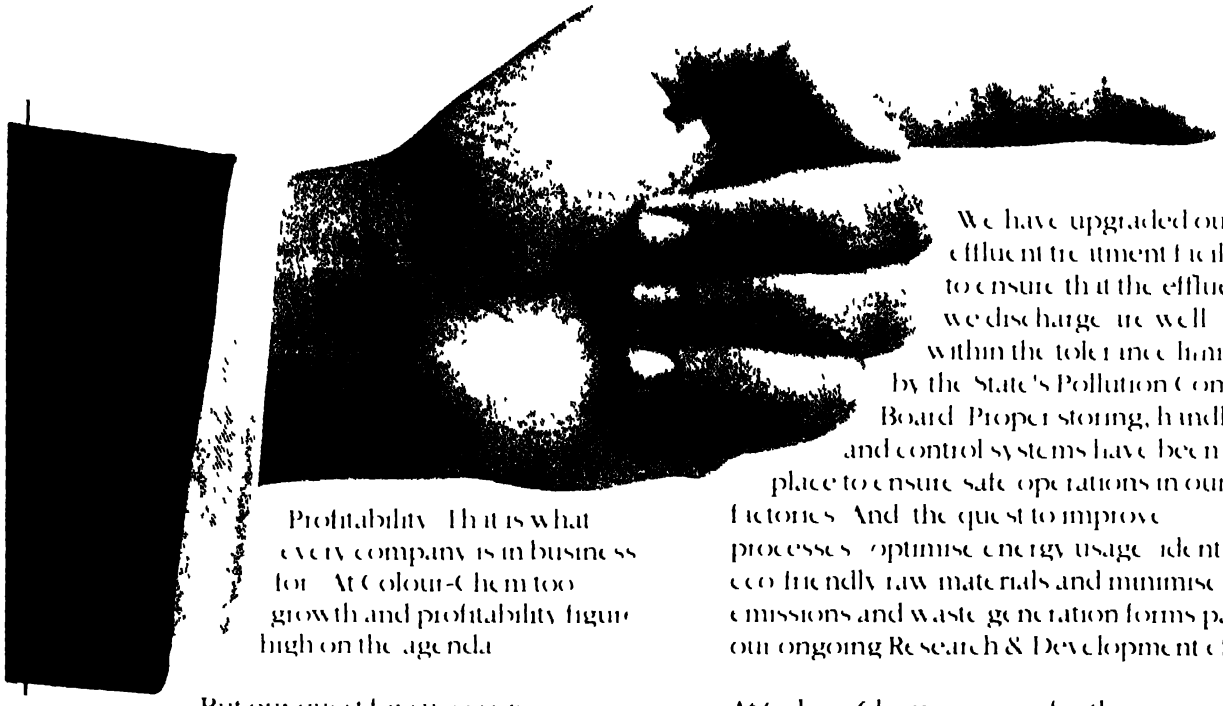
In fact equestrian sport, particularly racing, has always been an area receiving corporate sponsorship, epecially by liquor and cigarette manufacturers The most prestigious racing event, the triple cup (Derby, St Ledger and 2000 guineas) has drawn ITC's Classic sponsorship The Classic Calcutta Derby took place on January 8 last The other Classic racing events, held in a five-yearly rotation at the five major centres, are the Classic Invitation Cup, Classic Sprinters Cup and Classic Stayers Cup They took place in Calcutta in March last year

The annual horse show at Tollygunge Club is also a Classic event and Classic was the regular sponsor of the polo season at RCTC till last year This year it has maintained its presence by sponsoring the IPA (Indian Polo Association) Cup — NG

Highland Queen Night at RCTC

BENTLEY

WHEN DRESSING BECOMES AN ART



NECK TIES, SCARVES, CRAVATS, KERCHIEVES & BOW TIES.

Zorex Ties Manufacturing Co Pvt Ltd , Zorex House, A - 105, Wazirpur Group Industrial Area, Delhi - 110052 Tel 7254100, 7254200 Fax 91-11-7212244

DELHI C Place S C Sharma & Co , Gopal Sons Selections, Jainsons Dept Stores, Snowhite, Mohanlal Sons South Extn Pall Mall, Big Jo's, Kala Mandir, Snowhite, Shanti Shopping Lajpat Nagar Creations, Ritu Wear G. K.-I Tycoon Aurobindo Place Adam & Eve Green Park. Ram Sons Karol Bagh Gujral Sons, Gopal Sons, Swagat Collection Ashok Vihar Climax Exclusive Chandni Chowk. Down Town, Mohan Sons Tilak Nagar Ruchi Textiles BOMBAY Flora Fountain S N Pursram, Akbarally's Colaba Grand Bazar Dadar T T Circle Milan Men's Wear Andheri (W) Shopper's Stop Chembur, Santacruz (W) Akbarally's BANGALORE Deepam Silks, Prestige, Gazzaz Collection, Hajee Jana's, Royal Tailoring Co CALCUTTA Lindsey Street P I C Dept Stores, Stile at Ease, Horizon, NU-York, Mohan's MADRAS India Silk House, Pan Clothing CHANDIGARH Trend Setters, Cloth Palace 17-E, Jain Brothers LUDHIANA Cambo's Collections, Capital Dept. Store AMRITSAR: Sardar Hatti, Wardrobe JAMMU Monalisa LUCKNOW Kaysons, Surf Men s Wear, Bhasin Fashions KANPUR. Kalpana Men's Wear DEHRADUN The Perfection House SAHARANPUR Fancy Bag Store, City Look. MEERUT Rainbow Clothiers BAREILLY Kwality Centre JAIPUR Kanta Textiles, Omkar Textiles GUWAHATI Beach Fashion's, Goenka Readymades, Goenka Fashions, Sabnam, Jagsons RANCHI Kashmir Vastralaya BHUBANESWAR Kalamandir Fashions ROURKELA- Indera Garments. INDORE. Agrawal Stores

ALSO AVAILABLE AT OTHER FINE MENSWEAR STORES THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY

While The Mind Points To Next Year's Targets, Our Hearts Point To The Environment

Profitability. That is what every company is in business for. At Colour-Chem too growth and profitability figure high on the agenda.

But our quest for success is distinguished by an additional characteristic an abiding concern for the environment. It is this voice that ensures that the Company's growth is not at the expense of the environment.

We have upgraded our effluent treatment facilities to ensure that the effluents we discharge are well within the tolerance limits set by the State's Pollution Control Board. Proper storing, handling and control systems have been put in place to ensure safe operations in our factories. And the quest to improve processes, optimise energy usage, identify eco friendly raw materials and minimise emissions and waste generation forms part of our ongoing Research & Development effort.

At Colour-Chem, concern for the environment always comes ahead of plans for growth and progress. Because our Company has a heart that rules over the mind.

Colour-Chem

Subsidiary of Hoechst AG

194 Churchgate Reclamation Bombay 400 020

Hoechst

HTA 2481 95

The Telegraph

5 FEBRUARY 1995

POST MORTEM

Bustling Bangalore

■ Bangalore enjoys an enviable geographical location which has, in many ways, made it the 'fastest growing' metropolis in India ('Urban Holiday', January 8)

Besides being a picturesque and green city, Bangalore is the mecca of the electronic industry The Indian Institute of Science provides the city with all the scientific and technical manpower it needs Foreign investments are pouring in due to an honest work culture

To make the city more modern and swank, the Karnataka government plans to set up the air-conditioned Light Rail Transit (LRT) system at a cost of Rs 4,200 crore

Bangalore will be the first city in India to boast of the environment-friendly LRT system

Manoranjan Das,
Jamshedpur

■ The cover story read like an advertisement feature of the Karnataka Tourism Development Corporation The pictures were a great delight though

What amazed me, however, was the omission of the history of this garden city

Debanjan Banerjee,
Calcutta

■ Bangalore will charm any casual visitor As a holiday spot, too, Bangalore has no parallel

However, the city is rapidly getting polluted The government must go out of its way to preserve its greenery and beauty

Subhasis Ray,
Rourkela

M.G. Road, Bangalore: Clean and green

■ The apathy of the Karnataka government is fast causing Bangalore to become a concrete jungle Wetlands are being systematically converted to pave way for industrial complexes by flouting all possible rules

It is a pity Bangaloreans have chosen alcoholism to emulate the West If this trend is not checked, the city will lose its ancient culture

Puja and Rahul Berry,
Calcutta

Name that Sells

■ The Magazine has become a spicy Sunday pullout and the cover story, 'Queen B' (December 25), bears testimony to this

I really wonder if pedigree is the passport to fame and popularity because Ramola Bachchan has nothing to recommend herself I found her nothing more than a busy socialite who can go to any extent to attract attention

Bharat Jalan,
Calcutta

INSIDE

PAGE 4

DISILLUSIONED WITH corrupt politicians and a parliamentary system that has led to acute political instability, urban middle-class Pakistanis are looking for a new hero in Imran Khan whose West-bashing and pro-Islamic utterances have rattled both friends and foes Also, an exclusive interview with King Khan

PAGE 26

A look at this year's Femina Miss India contest

SECTIONS

15 INNER EYE
16 TIME TABLE
18 RUSKIN BOND
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
28 RASOI

Cover Imran Khan by Utpa Sorkar

COVER STORY

King Khan

Imran Khan appears to have travelled a quick and tumultous journey from cricket idol and pin-up boy to political messiah and Islamic flag-waver

Najam Sethi on why Pakistanis love Imran— and what he is saying*

FROM KARACHI TO KHYBER, THE PAKISTANI MASSES PROCLAIM HIM AS THE "NEXT PRIME MINIster of Pakistan" Benazir Bhutto and Nawaz Sharif are stunned by his lustre The ruling elites shudder at his denouncements The West has been clean bowled by his Islamic beliefs What, in Allah's name, has Imran Khan done to rattle friends and foes alike?

It all began last August when Imran set out to solicit donations for his cancer hospital Wherever he went, he was mobbed by rousing, spontaneous crowds Children tripped over themselves to hand him their pocket money Young women flung their bangles, bracelets and earrings at him Widows, workers, traders and even beggars lined up excitedly to stuff his hands with cash

"I've never seen anything like it," admits Imran, relishing his popularity "I raised over Rs 60 crore in two months "

Overwhelmed, Imran seems to have succumbed to the galleries He has lashed out at people with money or power who, he says, have refused to support his cause "The capitalists of this country don't feel the pain of the poor," he thunders "These wealthy crocodiles are always hungry for more, that's why I have gone to the poor for my hospital "

He has also lunged at the politicians. "They are corrupt to the core, they have devoured the wealth of this nation, yet they are still thirsting for more Hang me from the Minar-i-Pakistan if you find that I have embezzled any money from the hospital," he booms to the crowds

The crowds roar their approval when he flays the West for immorality and argues that "nudity and obscenity have led to the decline of the West" They are ecstatic when

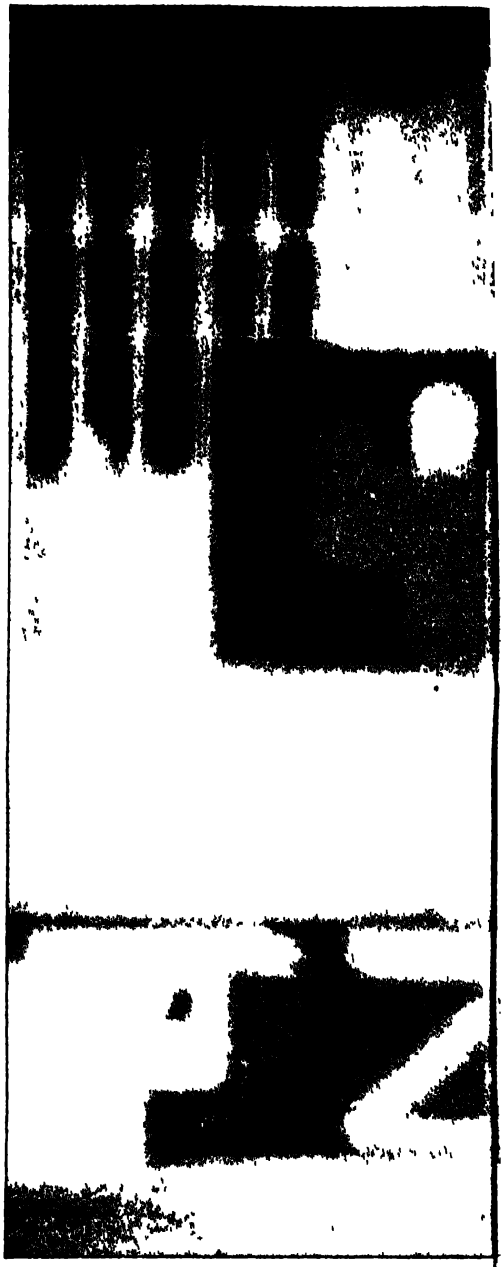
With the World Cup 1992: 'I made Rs 45 lakh out of the World Cup and gave it all away to the hospital'

he drums in his message that 'Pakistan was founded in the name of Islam But our ruling elites only worship money, the World Bank and the superpowers"

Urged recently to form a political party and lead an Islamic revolution, Imran parried his vociferous hosts "I was offered a ministry by Zia-ul-Haq, Nawaz Sharif and Moeen Qureshi But I did not accept their offers because politics is dirty business I do not believe in parliamentary democracy because no one can speak the truth or do any good in such a system"

Then he exploded a bombshell "I'm in touch with General Hamid Gul He has invited me to join his group"

Association with General Gul (an avowed 'Islamic visionary') has catapulted Imran into screaming, front-page news General Gul is a fiercely controversial man He was head of the Interservices Intelligence agency during the Afghan jihad against the Russians when he sought to militarily impose an Islamic fundamentalist government on Kabul



He was drummed out of the army in 1992 for disobeying the army chief's orders Since then, he has openly advocated a war against India to liberate Kashmir and says that Muslim countries from Turkey to central Asia, Afghanistan and Pakistan are ripe for an Islamic takeover

Playing Unicef's goodwill ambassador

Asia Features

Kamal Jutka

Striking a lethal blow

If Imran's radical utterances have electrified the streets and bazaars of Pakistan, they have also led to shock and disbelief among large, well-to-do sections of his admirers at home and abroad

Everyone wants to know whether or not Imran has suddenly metamorphosed from an urbane, Westernised, sports hero into an Islam touting, anti-West spouting icon

Does he have any political ambitions? What is his relationship with General Hamid Gul? How close is he to the fundamentalist Jamaat-i-Islami which claims that it is supporting his endeavours? More significantly, what are the factors behind his sudden leap into the hearts and minds of ordinary Pakistanis?

Although Imran clearly loves to bask in the spotlight, he has become alert to the pitfalls of populism In an exclusive interview to the Magazine, he has denied many of the explosive statements attributed to him in the Press recently He is also playing his cards close to his chest and keeping his political options open

The more troubling and immediate question relates to the factors behind Imran's meteoric stardom Urban, middle-class people are responding to him because they have begun to despair of corrupt politicians and are rapidly losing faith in a parliamentary system which has led to acute political instability since it was ushered in five years ago

Afflicted by inflation and short of jobs, ordinary folk have become increasingly hostile to the country's

'The capitalists of this country don't feel the pain of the poor,' he [Imran] thunders, 'these wealthy crocodiles are always hungry for more, that's why I have gone to the poor for my hospital'

uncaring politi and economic elites with ostentati s lifestyles and grub by, get-rich ick wheeling-dealings In contra iran comes across as noble s, upright and bold

Th also a strong undercurrent of a vest sentiment flowing across all s and groups in the country P anis felt betrayed when the U ed States, a staunch ally for four ades, cut all economic and milita- aid in 1990 in response to the country's nuclear programme

Lack of Western support for the cause of Muslim Kashmir and down-

'I was offered a ministry by Zia-ul-Haq, Nawaz Sharif and Moeen Qureshi. But I did not accept their offers because politics is dirty business.... I do not believe in parliamentary democracy because no one can speak the truth or do any good in such a system'

Nikhil Bhattacharya

right hostility to Bosnia, in contrast to its massive response in the Middle East in 1991 when its economic interests were threatened, also rankles deeply with Pakistanis

Most people are convinced that the West has launched a fresh crusade against Islam and frowns upon Muslim cultural values The mood is one of despair, anguish and drift

Thus when Imran rails against the immorality of the West and exhorts people to take pride in their faith or attacks the 'boot-licking' attitude of local elites towards the West, his sermons evoke standing ovations across the country

Imran says he is conscious of his new standing among the people He says he will not become a pawn in the hands of fanatical religious groups or demagogues He says he has no political ambitions, apart from wanting to form a pressure group to get a better deal for the health and educational needs of the poor

But there is a steely glint in his eyes when he talks about the prospects of his 'pressure group', when he rants about the hypocrisy, degeneration and immorality of the West, when he blasts Benazir Bhutto and Nawaz Sharif for corruption and raves about the failures of the parliamentary system of democracy without offering any viable alternative

Equally suspicious is his reticence to openly criticise General Hamid Gul's aggressive views or to flay the Jamaat-i-Islami for its extremism However, the most troubling dimension to the new Imran Khan is his complete inability to offer any reasoned or well thought-out solutions to the political problems he has been so quick to identify

The man's identity crisis truly reflects that of a nation in turmoil

The author is Editor of the Friday Times, Lahore

'A bloody revolution never solved anything'

Imran Khan makes some points cogently only as he can to Najam Sethi. Excerpts from the interview

On the masses: All I've got from the upper class is scepticism while the poor have responded with such enthusiasm to the hospital—so tell me, which class should I praise? When I give these statements in favour of the awam it's not because I want to get into politics, it is possible to actually be touched by these people

People are responding like this to me because they are reacting against what is going on In the cities I've come across such antagonism against the PPP, people are begging me to join up with Nawaz Sharif I say I won't join him because like the PPP, he's also corrupt

On Hamid Gul: If there are certain aspects to Hamid Gul I admire, it doesn't mean I stand for whatever he says. In my opinion, he should not be talking about international issues at a time when the people in this country are going through hell

I've never said that I regard him as the biggest Mujahid of Pakistan I agree that his background is controversial But in my view, he's played a positive role in Afghanistan Look at the other leaders How can you even think of supporting them, they are traitors to this country I am prepared to say that Hamid Gul is better than the other two (Benazir and Nawaz), at a personal level and in terms of integrity

Compared to Nawaz Sharif and Benazir, I would support him any time because not only are they corrupt, they also don't have the interests of Pakistan at heart People call Gul a fanatic I'm prepared to admit that he borders on fanaticism, but at least he is concerned with the interests of this country The other two are willing to pay any price just to stay in power Of course, this is only in comparison

On politics: I don't believe in getting into a system in which you have to pay exorbitantly to get elected This means that those who get elected necessarily become corrupt because they have to recoup their expenses

Secondly, this party system of parliamentary democracy, this is just nonsense The discipline of the party system means that sometimes you have to compromise, you have to lie in public Therefore, only a certain kind of personality is suited to this system and I cannot be part of it I'm much better outside politics

I don't think there should be a revolution, I think there should be an awareness A bloody revolution never solved anything We must create a gradual awareness that these poor people are our responsibility, it is not a question of us versus them

Until the people at the top are totally above board, you can't do anything First of all, those at the top must have the will, which means they should be determined not to succumb to corruption The current leaders haven't a clue which way they are taking us.

The problem here is that the weak are oppressed, not women in particular, that is all lies. When rich Veena Hayat was raped, the government almost fell, but when a poor woman is raped, no one cares

Someone at the top has to set an example, and then, be determined to set things straight

If you paid bureaucrats a better salary, for example, they would collect taxes Their salaries are unrealistic in the first place, so they become corrupt

I don't want to talk about solutions, or what system would be best for the country because I don't want to get into politics Every government has asked me to join them and I have always refused

There is one simple thing that I have learnt from cricket never enter a match until you are properly prepared for it Opportunism is inherently disastrous If I were to enter politics, I would first equip myself to answer questions about the economy and so on I would have a team of high-powered people who are experts in their own field and would decide matters of policy There are brilliant Pakistanis around Winning an election is no big deal, the real game begins afterwards

This campaign has given me strength Now everyone is approaching me for my next project which is on education We have got some very good people We are thinking in terms of a four-pronged attack technical education, managerial skills, etc This is my plan for the future

Then we want to mobilise the youth in a literacy campaign and that is still to be worked out I want to mobilise them to go to villages and teach there in the holidays this is my plan In this way, we can activate Pakistanis into education at a mass level

Once the programme is there, anyone, whatever their ideology, can help us, we won't stop them As far as Pasban and the Jamaat-i-Islami is concerned, let me say this they can help us but they can't be decision-makers on my behalf

On women: We call our people uncivilised but I tell you that when we went fund-raising, entire streets would be crowded and whenever a woman approached to give money, the crowd would part and respectfully allow the woman to make her way People say women are oppressed in this country Well, when I said that no Western country accords its women such respect as we do, the people would clap Why? Because they respect women

The problem here is that the weak are oppressed, not women in particular, that is all lies When rich Veena Hayat was raped, the government almost fell, but when a poor woman is raped, no one cares Think about the poor man whose wife is raped, imagine what he goes through The point is that the weak have no rights in this country.

I would like to see women have all the rights given to them by Islam In my view, men and women are equal, but different What Western women's lib is trying to prove is that they're the same They're trying to compete with men This was never meant to be, it was a complementary role and never a competitive role

The biggest damage that women's lib has done is to destroy the family All my friends in the West are divorced Men and women are supposed to have complementary roles, the basis of which is that only women can be mothers A man cannot change nappies It is not possible for a man to manage a house

If a woman wants to pursue a career then she shouldn't have children If you want to have children, then you have to have a woman at home One has to provide and one has to look after the kids and it cannot be the man who looks after the kids!

I disagree with the Western view that if a woman wears a dupatta on her head, she is 'subjugated' in some way I think a woman is subjugated when she's shown naked selling toothpaste on a billboard Women in the West are discriminated against much more than they are here Here, they're given a lot more respect Women here have separate queues, they are given preferential treatment

In Islam, if a couple divorces, the man has to leave the house to the woman This is as it should be I don't believe there is compulsion in religion Wearing a dupatta and so on, is a woman's personal choice The basis of Islam is modesty, women should dress modestly

In the West, as hemlines have gone up, neurosis in women has also increased They're all on diets and half of them have anorexia In discos, all the fat women sit on the side and get drunk and depressed If reducing clothes means progress, then that should mean that the African tribes are very progressive!

On the West People are distorting what I say I don't blame the West for anything I only blame those of us who are always licking the West's boots The West is naturally going to pursue its own interests But the point is, why do we allow ourselves to be used by them? After giving that statement on Kashmir in India, why was Douglas Hurd let into this country? He has had the worst record as far as the Bosnian issue is concerned

On why I favour the salwaar kameez — well, it is my responsibility to give the youth some pride, in whatever way I think We shouldn't be asha-

Men and women are supposed to have complementary roles, the basis of which is that only women can be mothers. A man cannot change nappies. It is not possible for a man to manage a house

The finest Diamond and 22/22K Gold Jewellery at:

Nemichand Bamalwa & Sons,

Jewellers

16-A, Shakespeare Sarani, 3rd Floor Calcutta 700071; Phone: 242-3388

The melting or refining purity of our 22/22K ornaments is 22 Karat (91.67%) HEMOSTAT

med of our culture All the time I have lived in England, I've noticed that the biggest compliment for Pakistanis is to be told that they look Italian

I want to tell people that as long as they are ashamed of being Pakistanis, others will continue to despair them The people that excel in this country in cricket, for instance, don't have this hang-up They are all Urdu-medium people I have been a part of the cricket scene for the 20 years that we were a team with an inferiority complex to becoming a team with self-esteem

The reason people here wear trousers and shirts is to show that they are a degree better than the common man I am ashamed to see the upper class youth of Karachi, for instance What relevance have they to Pakistan? If you left them in a village they would probably get lost, they can't even speak Urdu

I haven't rejected the West! If I was to wear trousers the next time I go to London, the masses won't reject me, I will only be condemned in drawing room conversations

I have never criticised America or

I disagree with the Western view that if a woman wears a dupatta on her head, she is 'subjugated' in some way. I think a woman is subjugated when she's shown naked selling toothpaste on a billboard any other foreign country I agree that you cannot be an island. But I disagree with the contention that you have to grovel. You should have dignity For the 20 years that I have played cricket abroad, I have watched Pakistan evolve When we first went abroad, Pakistanis would say nothing other than "thank you" and "please" Now they have pride

Having lived in the West and been accepted by it, I have no inferiority complex and I accept people in the West as equals Their media has treated me very well I'm not one of those bitter Pakistanis who has been mistreated by the West Some of my closest friends are from the West

I can see their strengths and their weaknesses And in my mind, the breakdown of the family is their biggest weakness Our strength is our family system While I was in university, I read Germaine Greer's The Female Eunuch and thought women's lib was right I now realise that it's impractical And the limits of freedom have gone too far

For instance, I disagree with gays getting married This is against the norms of civil society I never said I was an angel But having been in two cultures I see that as a weakness now

Westerners are very clear in their vision They only worship one god and that's the material god They've never made any bones about it Their hypocrisy was exposed by the Iraq war and now it is clear that self-interest is their only driving force I accept that there is a lot we can learn from them But it should be a student-professor relationship not a slave-master one At the moment what we're doing is aping a foreign culture which I disagree with My problem is here not there

On pride: There is one principle that is tried and tested Until and unless a nation has self-esteem, pride, it cannot progress I say that we should at least try to stand on our own two feet I think there is a lot of potential in this country We are winning at cricket, squash, hockey, because there is a lot of talent in this country

England has lots of facilities, but it's not winning at anything It shows a nation that is declining, that it has lost its vibrancy In the US, the Pakistanis and Chinese are the two best academic groups Why? Because there's a lot of talent here

I say, God save us from be-ghairati, I'm ready to die rather than be be-ghairat I can't bear this culture of

Iqbal had a progressive Islam, it wasn't a fossilised Islam. And the Islam I visualise gives freedom to the minorities, it is a free Islam, a secure and confident Islam. Not a reactionary Islam dependency They come over and we beg them and lick their boots

The only way to regain our pride is to take a cut in our standard of living Which means, probably, that we should be paying our taxes

On obscenity: I said [in an earlier interview] that having lived in the West I have seen its strengths and its weaknesses Their strengths are meritocracy, justice, human rights, and so on Their weaknesses, their biggest threat, is the breakdown of the family This is a direct consequence of immorality

Since the sex, drugs and rock 'n' roll revolution of the Sixties, I myself have seen the breakdown of the family And then, women's lib, which has degraded the status of the mother, they say, why should we stay at home and look after the children when we can go out and work, too

In other words, motherhood, which is looked up to in our culture, is nothing in the West As a result, their family has broken down When men and women both go out to work, soon there is a divorce How is the home to be run? Degrading the mother's role plus sexual permissiveness have led to the mess that the West is in right now

In Pakistan, the problems are different There is still some fear of God in the masses They gave me money because of the Day of Judgment These are good people, they are not immoral Westerners would never give money in this manner because theirs is a materialistic society

We should look at Western culture clearly and decide what is worth taking from them and what isn't Unfortunately, we are also adopting their immoral side Our youth, the cream of the society, has been taken up by pop culture We have seen the results of this culture, the way in which drugs, for example, have become a part of university life there We can get the best out of that culture, but we don't have to copy everything whole hog

On Islam and faith: The only reason I have managed to survive the hard times that I've been through recently, when no money was coming in for the hospital, is because of my faith In the World Cup, too, I just had faith that we would win It is faith that carries me through

Iqbal had a progressive Islam, it wasn't a fossilised Islam And the Islam I visualise gives freedom to the minorities, it is a free Islam, a secure and confident Islam Not a reactionary Islam What people are doing in the name of Islam is not Islam, it is reactionary They're reacting against colonialism, or against a two-tier system of a Westernised elite and neglected masses

More than anything else, Islam is personal Islam gives me strength in life, direction, and it clarifies matters for me Islam can't be drilled into people Unfortunately, it has gone into the hands of those who are just not capable of convincing anyone

Islam has come to me through my experiences I didn't have any psychological problems, I was one of the most fulfilled people you'll know because I had everything in life It was a sequence of events that made me realise that this has not happened by chance Then I decided to read the Quran It says that when you give in the name of Allah, you will also receive. I made Rs 45 lakh out of the World Cup, and I gave it all away to the hospital. Now the people have given me much, much more ■

Aries

March 21—April 20

Visits and trips are on the cards Health precautions are absolutely essential While the home and office come in for their fair share of attention, the focus is likely to be on buying, selling, socialising, partying or, at least, meeting and holding talks with people

Taurus

April 21—May 20

Right upto the middle of this month, relationships and exchange of ideas hold the key to happiness The next month offers a promise of promotion, success and joy Your children could be a source of great satisfaction You could be earning a lot of money, too, now

Gemini

May 21—June 20

A great deal of bravado can be expected of you as the planets favour you immensely this week Get ready to entertain and socialise You may have to work hard, be it in business or profession, and rest assured the results will be pleasing in the days to come

Cancer

June 21—July 20

A trip is on the cards and it could include a stop-over, too Despite some opposition, it will be a good idea to let yourself go Be natural and candid The last half of the month favours that approach There are strong indications of partying, entertainment, contacts and contracts

Leo

July 21—August 21

Mortgage, buying and selling are the important trends of the week Other highlights are employment, pets, loans, funds and financial transactions There is a chance of a change in the nature and scope of your job You could also take on more responsibilities

Virgo

August 22—September 22

Heavy expenses are fated this week Important ties are strongly indicated You will be highly energetic Good luck, too, will play a significant role in shaping your week The next few days will be very decisive in terms of communication Be progressive

Libra

September 23—October 22

Those in communication, publicity, teaching, information, and news lead the way, and the rest of the world follows A week to try out new ideas and something very different Considerable headway will be made specially around the end of this month

Scorpio

October 23—November 22

This is the time to work off your steam and frustration Money comes to you by way of legacy, joint-finances, lottery, bonuses, and that should be quite satisfactory There will be improvements in your place of work Attachments and separations are foretold

Sagittarius

November 23—December 20

The planets change signs and this in turn gives you confidence, making it possible for you to see the world through pink-tinted lenses This is also the time to make trips, ties, contacts and contracts Despite opposition, it would be a good idea to let yourself go

Capricorn

December 21—January 19

You will aim at comforts and luxury Many of you will work harder now, and this will hold you in good stead later Renovation, decoration, housing and, perhaps, a shift seem likely Trips and get-togethers are foretold for you this week Your homefront will also keep you busy

Aquarius

January 20—February 18

You will have to move fast now New ties and relationships are indicated You will have restrictions and greater freedom to execute your projects and ideas Journeys, collaborations and publicity keep you happy and busy throughout the week

Pisces

February 19—March 20

Renovation and decoration of your home and office seem likely Do learn to take health safeguards A journey is foretold in the next fortnight Expect visitors to play a significant role There will be a lot of buying, selling and heavy expenses this week

BIRTHDAYS

February 5: Your communication skills will give you an edge over others. Buying, selling and monetary transactions are likely.

February 6: Ill-health and family problems could take up your time and energy. Loans and funds will be available. Changes on the workfront are certain.

February 7: This could be a promising birthyear for creative people and those in business. Do take care of your health as work load will increase.

February 8: Travel, contacts, contracts, news, views and publicity seem well indicated for you. A romantic attachment for the single and fancyfree.

February 9: Your confidence in yourself and faith in the divine providence should do wonders for you this birthyear. You will move fast and gain acceptance.

February 10: Your effect on the homefront would be most pronounced. There is a risk of a major fallout with those who matter. Guard against deception.

February 11: This is the time to make important decisions. Plan well ahead in advance. Success will then be certain. Trips are on the cards.

TIME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[redacted]
IC-741	0710	3, 5	IC-742	0940	3, 5
IC-743	0920	daily	IC-744	1150	daily
PF-701	1130	1 3 5, 7	PF-702	1610	1, 3 5, 7
AHMEDABAD
M9 304/109	0855	1 3 5	M9 110/301	1900	1 3 5
[redacted]
PF-705	0730	daily	PF-706	1100	daily
[redacted]
PF-707	1130	2, 4, 6	PF-708	1510	2, 4, 6
IC-721	1300	1 3 5	IC-722	1540	1, 3, 5
[redacted]
IC-771	0600	daily	IC-772	1140	daily
[redacted]
IC-544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2, 7
IC-769	1525	1, 3, 5	IC-770	2120	1, 3 5
[redacted]
IC-676	0730	daily	IC-675	0820	daily
D2-102	0905	daily	D2-101	0835	daily
9W-202	0920	daily	9W-201	0840	daily
IC-273	1945	daily	AI-306	1840	5
9W-212	1955	daily	IC-274	1850	daily
D2-104	2005	daily	9W-211	1920	daily
AI-309	2035	6	D2-103	1935	daily
AI-681	2350	1
[redacted]
PF-707	1130	2, 4, 6	PF-708	1510	2, 4 6
[redacted]
			IC-262	0815	2, 4, 7
IC-263	0700	daily	M9-303	0825	daily
M9-304	0855	daily	AI-682	0950	1
IC-812	1515	1, 3, 5	4S-806	1115	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6
IC-402	1715	daily	IC-401	1155	daily
4S-805	1745	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6	M9-301	1900	daily
IC-261	1900	2, 4, 7	S2 005	1900	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6
M9-302	1930	daily	IC-811	1930	1, 3, 5
S2 006	1940	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6	IC-264	2210	daily
[redacted]
IC-703	0800	3, 5	IC-704	1430	3 5
D2-181	1135	1, 3, 5 7	D2-181	1620	1, 3, 5 7
D2-183	1135	2, 4 6	D2-183	1620	2, 4, 6
4S-815	1145	1, 2, 3, 4 5, 6	IC-702	1630	2, 4 6, 7
IC-701	1240	2, 4, 6, 7	4S-816	1705	1, 2 3, 4 5, 6
[redacted]
IC-257	1150	4, 7	IC-258	1650	4, 7

FLIGHTS — INTERNATIONAL

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[redacted]
RJ-185	1445	4	RJ-184	0705	4
[redacted]
KL-876	0420	7	KL-875	0235	7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[redacted]
IC-703	0800	3 5	IC-704	1430	3, 5
IC-707	0800	1, 4, 7	IC-708	1430	1, 4, 7
IC-711	0800	2, 6	IC-712	1410	2, 6
D2-181	1135	1 3, 5 7	D2-181	1620	1, 3, 5, 7
D2 183	1135	2 4, 6	D2-183	1620	2, 4, 6
4S-812	1145	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6	IC-230	1650	daily
IC-257	1150	4, 7	4S-811	1705	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6
IC-211	1240	4, 6	IC-258	1740	4, 7
IC-229	1310	daily	IC-212	1740	4, 6
HYDERABAD
IC-777	1600	2 4 7	IC-778	2100	2, 4, 7
IC-769	1525	1 3, 5	IC-770	2120	1, 3, 5
IMPHAL
IC-707	0800	1 4, 7	IC-256	1320	3 5
IC-255	0830	3 5	IC-708	1430	1, 4, 7
IC-253	1100	2 6	IC-254	1550	2, 6
JORHAT
IC-213	0910	2 4 7	IC-213	1315	2, 4, 7
LUCKNOW
IC-812	1515	1, 3 5	IC-811	1930	1 3, 5
MADRAS
IC-542	1115	1 3 5	IC-541	1030	1, 3, 5
IC-544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2, 7
IC-765	1720	daily	D2 171	1045	daily
D2-172	1740	daily	IC-766	2220	daily
NAGPUR
IC-769	1525	1 3 5	IC-770	2120	1, 3 5
PATNA
IC 249	1430	2 4 7	IC-249	1805	2, 4 7
IC-812	1515	1 3, 5	IC 811	1930	1 3, 5
PORT BLAIR
IC-285	0640	3 5 7	IC-286	1100	2 4 6
RANCHI
IC-249	1430	2 4 7	IC-249	1805	2, 4, 7
SHILLONG
PF-701	1130	1 3 5 7	PF-702	1610	1, 3, 5 7
SILCHAR
IC-255	0830	3 5	IC-260	1110	1, 7
IC-259	0830	1 7	IC-256	1320	3, 5
IC-253	1100	2 6	IC-254	1550	2, 6
IC-211	1240	4 6	IC-212	1740	4 6
TEZPUR
IC 213	0910	2 4 7	IC-213	1315	2, 4 7
VISHAKHAPATNAM
IC-542	1115	1 3 5	IC-541	1030	1 3 5

INTERNATIONAL

BANGKOK
IC-731	0855	2 4, 6, 7	KB-106	1115	3
			KB-106	1215	5
KB-105	1125	2, 6	TG-313	1240	1 3 6
TG-314	1355	1, 3, 6	IC-732	1505	2 4, 6, 7
AI-306	1950	5	AI-309	1925	6

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[redacted]
RO-076	2040	5, 7	RO-075	1035	5, 7
[redacted]
IC-225	1200	1	IC-226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2, 5	BG-697	1655	2, 5
[redacted]
BG-092	0850	4, 5	BG-091	0810	4, 5
BG-092	1150	1, 2, 3, 6, 7	BG-091	1110	1, 2, 3, 6, 7
IC-723	1250	1, 2, 3, 5 6	IC-724	1520	1, 2, 3, 5, 6
BG-094	1905	1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7	BG-093	1825	1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1, 5	BG-095	2020	1, 5
[redacted]
IC-747	1115	1, 3 5	IC-748	1455	1, 3, 5
RA-214	1400	4, 7	RA-213	1315	4 7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[redacted]
BA-142	2050	3, 7	BA-143	1525	3, 7
[redacted]
SU-538	1855	4	SU-537	1655	4
[redacted]
KB-106	1200	3	KB-105	1040	2, 6
KB-106	1300	5
[redacted]
SQ-415	2200	2, 5	SQ-416	2040	2, 5
[redacted]
LZ-504	1750	4	LZ-503	1650	4
[redacted]
AI-306	1950	5	AI-309	1925	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Romanian Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
2311	18 15	Delhi Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19 20	Amritsar Mail	7 55	3006
3003	20 35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13 00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat	16 15	2382
2303	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun	16 15	2304
2301	16-30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun	10 45	2302
2305	13-45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat	12 50	2306
3073	23-00	Himgiri (Jammu-Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat Arr Tues Wed & Sat	11 35	3074
5047	13 00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon Wed & Fri	4 30	5048
3009	20-30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9 45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18 15	3008
3049	13 20	Amritsar Express	15 30	3050
3039	21 00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5 20	3040
3019	16 05	Kathgodam Express	11 55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5 00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6 30	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17-11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18-20	Asansol Express	8 45	3036
3031	21 05	Danapur Express	5 50	3032
3025	23 00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday Arr Friday	11 35	3026
3071	22 30	Jamalpur Express	5 10	3072
3015	9 55	Santiniketan Express	15 40	3016
1159	15-25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tues & Wed	6 50	1160
1171	15 25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed Arr Fri Sat & Sun	6 50	1172
3327	14-30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4 50	3328
1181	15 25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6 50	1182

Up	Time	Sealdah	Time	Dn
3141	13 40	Teesta-Torsa Express Dep Mon Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed Thurs Fri Sat & Sun	6 35	3142
3143	19-15	Darjeeling Mail	8 45	3144
3111	20-15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7 15	3112
5657	6 25	Kanchenjunga Express	20 35	5658
3153	22 00	Gour Express	5 15	3154
5663	20-00	Katihar Express	4 15	5664
3151	11 45	Jammu-Tawi Express	15 50	3152
3133	20-55	Mughal Sarai Express via SBG Loop	12 55	3134
3103	18-20	Bhagirathi (Laigola) Express	10 25	3104
5185	12-40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues Thus & Sat	4 25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6-50	6004
8002	19-20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8-10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15-15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5-15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16-20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12-00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19-40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	1940	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13-45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10-20	8014
8011	6-15	Ispat Express	22-05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5-00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6-10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5-30	8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8-25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21-30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4-15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15-00	8046
8017	16 45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11-25	8018
2421	16 10	Bhubaneswar-New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10	—
—	11 05	New Delhi-Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10-45	2422
6822	22 35	Guwahati Howrah - Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15	—
—	14-05	Trivandrum Central Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13-45	6321
—	14 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13-45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati - Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22-15	—
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri , Arr Tues & Fri	13-45	6315
6520	22 35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15	—
—	14-05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13-45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South-Eastern Railway trains, please dial 2203545 54 for in coming trains, 2203535-44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South-Eastern Railway trains, dial 2203496 3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition, dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running), 131 (regarding train operations) and 136 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535-37

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

THE NIGHT OF THE STORM

Looking back at the experience, I suppose it was the sort of thing that should have happened in a James Thurber story, like the dam that burst or the ghost that got in

But I wasn't thinking of Thurber at the time, although a few of his books were among the many I was trying to save from the icy rain and sleet pouring into my bedroom and study

We have grown accustomed to sudden storms up here at 7,000 ft in the Himalayan foothills and the old building in which I live has, for 100 years, received the brunt of the wind and rain as they sweep across the hills from the east

We'd lived in the building for over 10 years without any untoward happening It had even taken the shock of an earthquake without sustaining any major damage, it is difficult to tell the new cracks from the old

It is a three-storey building and I live on the top floor with my adopted family — three children and their parents The roof consists of corrugated tin sheets, the ceiling of wooden boards That's the traditional hill-station roof

Ours had held fast in many a storm, but the wind that night was stronger than we'd ever known it It was cyclonic in its intensity and it came rushing at us with a high-pitched eerie wail

The old roof groaned and protested at the unrelieved pressure It took this battering for several hours while the rain lashed the windows and the lights kept coming and going

There was no question of sleeping, but we remained in bed for warmth and comfort The fire had long since gone out, the chimney stack having collapsed, bringing down a shower of sooty rain water

After about four hours of buffeting, the roof could take it no more My bedroom faces east, so my portion of the roof was the first to go The wind got under it and kept pushing until, with a ripping, groaning sound, the metal sheets shifted from their moorings, some of them dropping with claps like thunder onto the road below

So that's it, I thought, nothing worse can happen As long as the ceiling stays on, I'm not getting out of bed We'll pick up the roof in the morning Icy water cascading down my face made me change my mind in a hurry Leaping from my bed I found that most of the ceiling had gone too

Water was pouring onto my open typewriter and abandoning the rest, I stumbled into the front sitting-room (cum library) only to find that a similar situation had developed there Water was pouring through the wooden slats raining down on the book-shelves

●●●

It was cyclonic in its intensity and it came rushing at us with a high-pitched eerie wail. The old roof groaned and protested at the unrelieved pressure. It took this battering for several hours while the rain lashed the windows and the lights kept coming and going

●●●

By now I had been joined by the children who had come to rescue me Their section of the roof hadn't gone yet Their parents were struggling to close a window that had burst open, letting in lashings of wind and rain

"Save the books!" shouted Dolly, the youngest, and that became our rallying cry for the next hour or two

I have open shelves, vulnerable to borrowers as well as to floods Dolly and her brothers picked up armfuls of books and carried them into their room But the floor was now awash all over the apartment, so the books had to be piled onto the beds Dolly was helping me gather up some manuscripts when a large field rat leapt onto the desk in front of her Dolly squealed and ran for the door

"It's alright," said Mukesh, whose love for animals extends even to field rats "He's only sheltering from the storm"

Big brother Rakesh whistled for our mongrel Toby, but Toby wasn't interested in rats just then He had taken shelter in the kitchen, the only dry spot in the house

At this point, two rooms were practically roofless and the sky was frequently lighted up by flashes of lightening There were fireworks inside, too, as water spluttered and crackled along a damaged electric wire Then the lights went out altogether which in some ways made the house a safer place

Prem, the children's father, is at his best in an emergency and he has already located and lit two kerosene lamps, so we continued to transfer books, papers and clothes to the children's room

We noticed the water on the floor was beginning to subside a little

"Where is it going?" asked Dolly for we could see no outlet

"Through the floor," said Mukesh "Down to the rooms below"

He was right, too Cries of consternation from our neighbours told us that we were now having their share of the flood

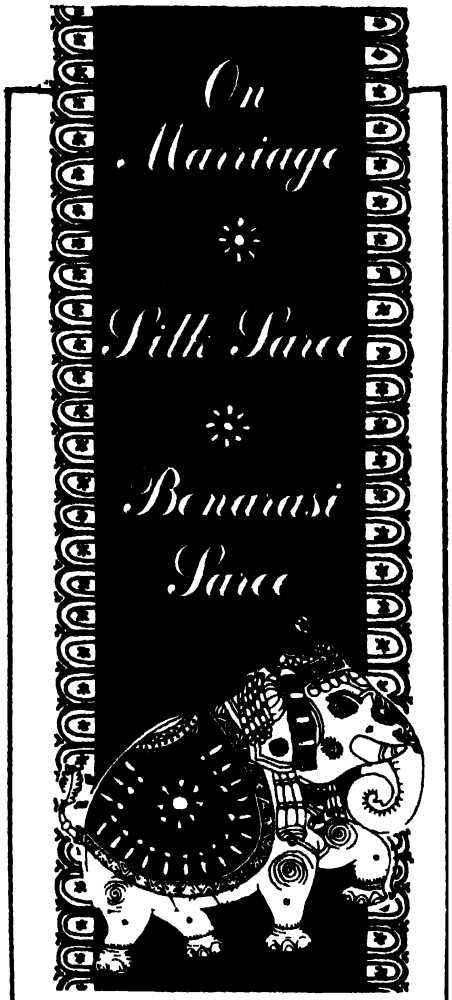
Our feet were freezing because there hadn't been time to put on enough protective footwear and, in any case, shoes and slippers were awash Tables and chairs were also piled high with books I hadn't realised the considerable size of my library till that night

The available beds were pushed into the driest corners of the children's room and there, huddled in blankets and quilts, we spent the remaining hours of the night while the storm continued to threaten further mayhem

But then the wind fell and it began to snow Through the door in the sitting room I could see snowflakes drifting through the gaps in the ceiling and settling on picture frames, statuettes and miscellaneous ornaments

Mundane things like glue bottle and plastic doll took on a certain beauty when covered with soft snow The clock on the wall had stopped and with its covering of snow reminded me of a painting by Salvador Dali And my shaving brush looked ready for use!

Most of us dozed off



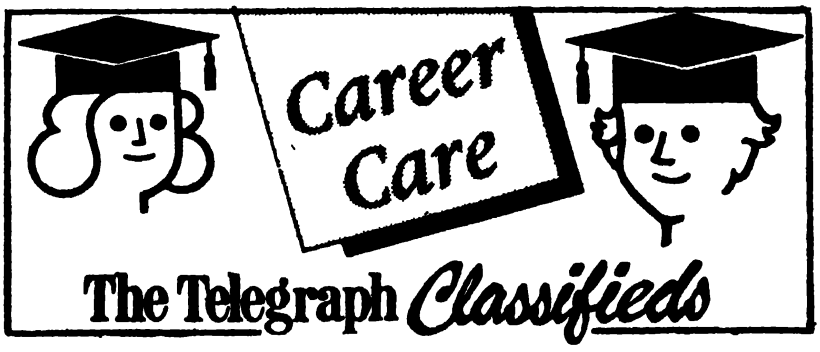
I sensed that the direction of the wind had changed, and that it was now blowing from the west, it was making a rushing sound in the trees rather than in what remained of our roof The clouds were scurrying away

When the dawn broke, we found the window-panes encrusted with snow and icicles Then the rising sun struck through the gaps in the ceiling and turned everything to gold Snow crystals glinted like diamonds on the empty book-shelves I crept into my bedroom to find the philodendron looking like a Christmas tree

Prem went out to find a carpenter and a tin-smith while the rest of us started putting things in the sun to dry out And by evening, we had put much of the ceiling back on again Vacant houses are impossible to find in Mussoorie so there was no question of moving

But it is a much improved roof now, and I look forward to approaching storms with some confidence

(Sanctuary Features)



Indian Silk House Agencies

129 A, Rashbehari Avenue, Calcutta - 700 029

COMPUTERS
THE
NEW QUALIFICATION
CHANDRA DATA SYSTEMS
A complete house of Computer Education
Prepare you for Today
29/B Tarachand Dutt Street
Calcutta 700 073
Opp Mohammed Ali Park
Phone 238 7505

Career Development Program

Advance Computer Courses using WINDOWS & GRAPHICS as Environment

- Adv. Diploma in Computer Science & Management (18 months).

Eligibility H S / Graduate

NSCT
National School of Computer Technology
2, Raja Basanta Roy Road (near Rashbehari Crossing), Cal-26, Ph 76-2615
Study Scholarship up to Rs 2500/-
Cut this and bring to get a special offer

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE OF HOTEL MANAGEMENT

ANNOUNCES

DIPLOMA IN HOTEL & CATERING MANAGEMENT
(1995-98 SESSION)

THE INSTITUTE : International Institute of Hotel Management (I.I.H.M) is formed with the object of imparting international standrard of 'Education & Training' in Hotel & Catering Management. The Institute has an impressive infrastructure including an eminent faculty team. I.I.H.M. is one of the best 'Institutes of its kind' in India.

COURSE DURATION : 3 YEARS FULL TIME (Monday to Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p m.)

INDUSTRIAL TRAINING : The students would be put on Industrial Training in 5 star hotels in India & Nepal for 6 months.

PLACEMENT : The Institute would arrange for campus Interview by the top Indian and International hotel chains.

MINIMUM QUALIFICATION : Pass or appeared in class 12 level Examination from a recognised Board. Age limit : 23 years.

ADMISSION PROCEDURE : Candidates have to appear for a written Test to be held at Calcutta, Bhubaneswar, Asansol, Siliguri, Patna, Bombay, New Delhi, Madras and Kathmandu. Candidate qualifying in the written test would be called for group dicussion and personal interview at Calcutta at their own cost.

HOSTEL : I.I.H.M. has seperate well maintained hostels for boys and girls close to the campus.

COURSE COMMENCING FROM :JULY 1995

PROSPECTUS & FORM : Prospectus is available on payment of Rs. 100/- (Rs. 120/- by M.O. only) from the Institute.

I I H M

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE OF HOTEL MANAGEMENT
CF–192 Salt Lake City, Calcuta–700 064
(near Swimming Pool) Ph: 359-6065

Join Quest's

interactive
MULTIMEDIA
ANIMATION
2D-3D GRAPHICS
LAN/DTP/CAD
COMMERCIAL APPLICATIONS
Courses

- Highly Rated Faculty
- Placement Assistance
- 100% Practical Time
- Avail upto 40% in Scholarships

Contact
QUEST INSTITUTE OF ADVANCED COMPUTING
Suite- 2A, 12A Camac St
Cal-17 Ph 242-1134

For Studies In

- US, Australia —All subjects
- UK, Switzerland, France— Business Management & Hotel Management
- Russia— Medical & Engineering with English as the medium

Contact
Visu Consultants Pvt. Ltd.
67, Ekdalia Road
(Opp Bijon Setu),
Ballygunge, Cal 19
Ph 440-4116 (O)/ 34-1190 (R)

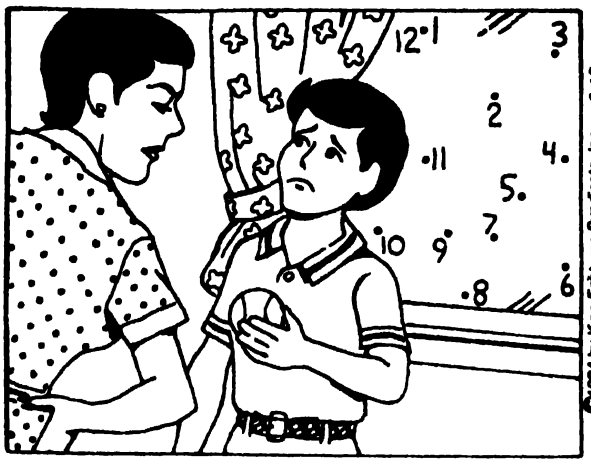
We take your international career as seriously as you do.

DIPLOMA IN
- Travel & Hotel Management
- Airhostess & Flight Purser Course.
- International Airline

HAWAII
HOTEL INSTITUTE MONTREUX SWITZERLAND

Conducted by:
Trade-wings
INSTITUTE • OF • MANAGEMENT

Calcutta 1, Crooked Lane, Room No 108, 1st floor, behind Great Eastern Hotel, Cal-69, Ph 243-0625/0415



Asansol 1st floor, Mritunjoy Bhawan, 56/2, West Apcar Garden Asansol-713304, Ph 20-5701/2532

Guwahati G N B Road, Silpukhuri (Near Goswami Service) Guwahati-781003

ADMISSION OPEN

JUNIOR WHIRL

HAL KAUFMAN

BREAK POINT! Mom's had it with Junior, and baseball, too To complete the picture, draw connecting lines dot to dot

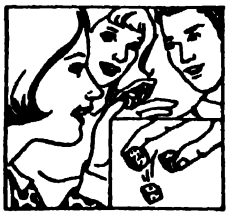
SPY LINES! Spy A, after a wild goose chase, filed a one word report ALLO Spy B, pursuing a hot lead reported Mr Bigam Can you decipher the reports? No fair peeking

Spy A—Nothing after all Spy B—Am after Mr Big

1. UP __	7. DOWN __
2. UP __	8. DOWN __
3. UP __	9. DOWN __
4. UP __	10. DOWN __
5. UP __	11. DOWN __
6. UP __	12. DOWN __

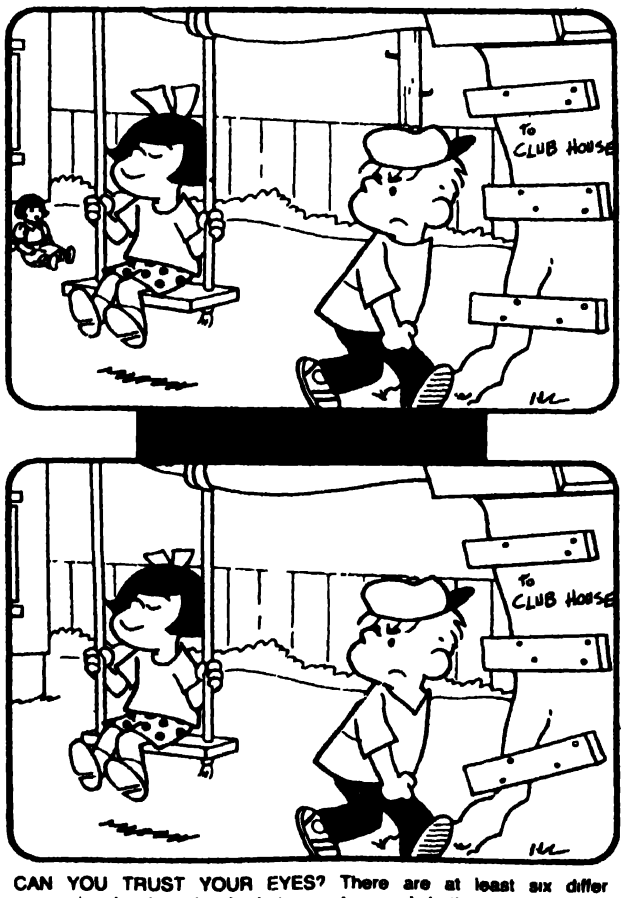
UPS AND DOWNS TO PONDER

ADD a four-letter word to each of six UPs (1-6), and to each of six DOWNs (7-12), to form 12 eight-letter words in accord with definitions below



1 On a high note.
2. To modernise
3 Sustain, as a law.
4 Cost of repairs.
5 As a result.
6. Rowdy commotion.
7 Heavy rain
8. Skiing category
9 Make smaller models.
10 Machine outage
11 Reduce hoopla.
12. Lower Manhattan.

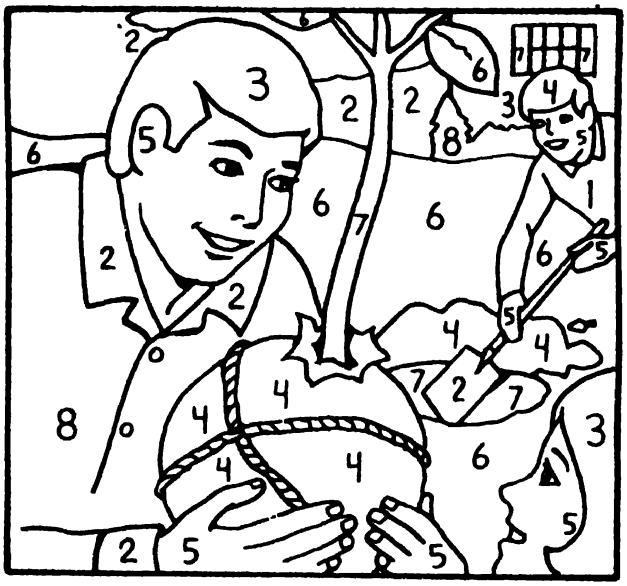
1 beat 2 date 3 hold 4 heap 5 shot 6 roar 7 pour 8 full 9 ape 10 dime 11 play 12 town. Variations are possible



KNOW DICE! Place three dice side by side Pick up all three at once between your thumb and forefinger. Squeeze dice, ease pressure, and alakazam, middle die will fall (see inset), whereupon the other two are brought together

Secret Moisten fingers before you pick up dice Moisture and pressure will cause outer two to adhere to fingers long enough to allow centre die to drop

Give it a try



HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below

DIFFERENCES 1 Doll is missing 2 Bow is smaller 3 Swing seat is smaller 4 Pole is missing 5 Neckline is different 6 Tree step is moved

FUNSPOT

PLANT LIFE! Plant that tree and watch it grow Apply colors neatly by number Code 1—Red 2—Lt blue 3—Yellow 4—Lt brown 5—Flesh tones 6—Lt green 7—Dk brown 8—Dk. blue

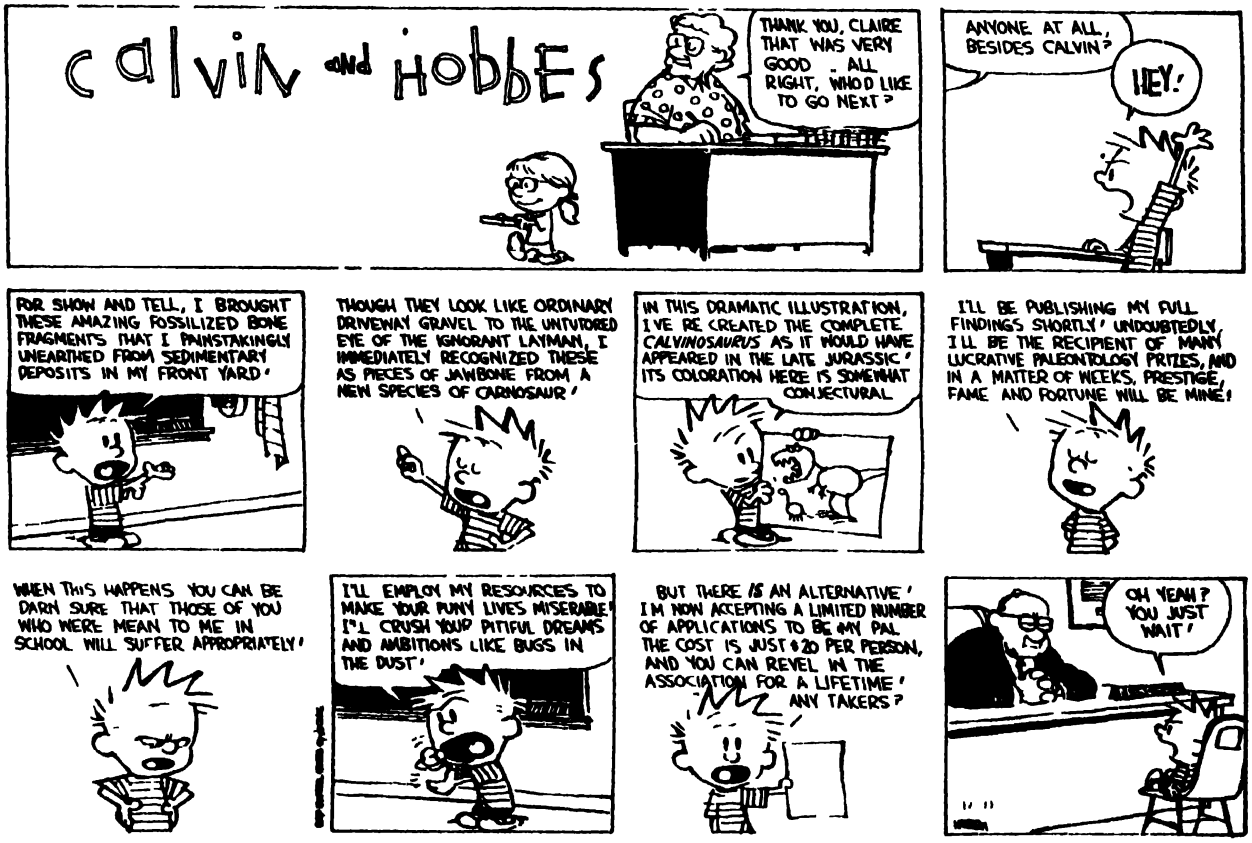
SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

OUTBREAK

- - - - - - - -

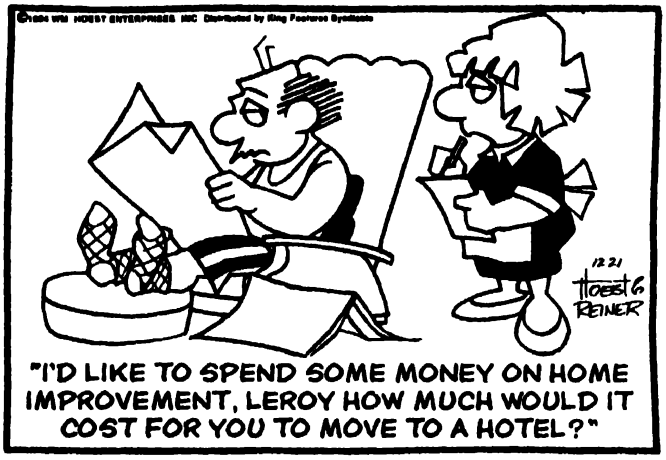
THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters



Try to score at least 50 points

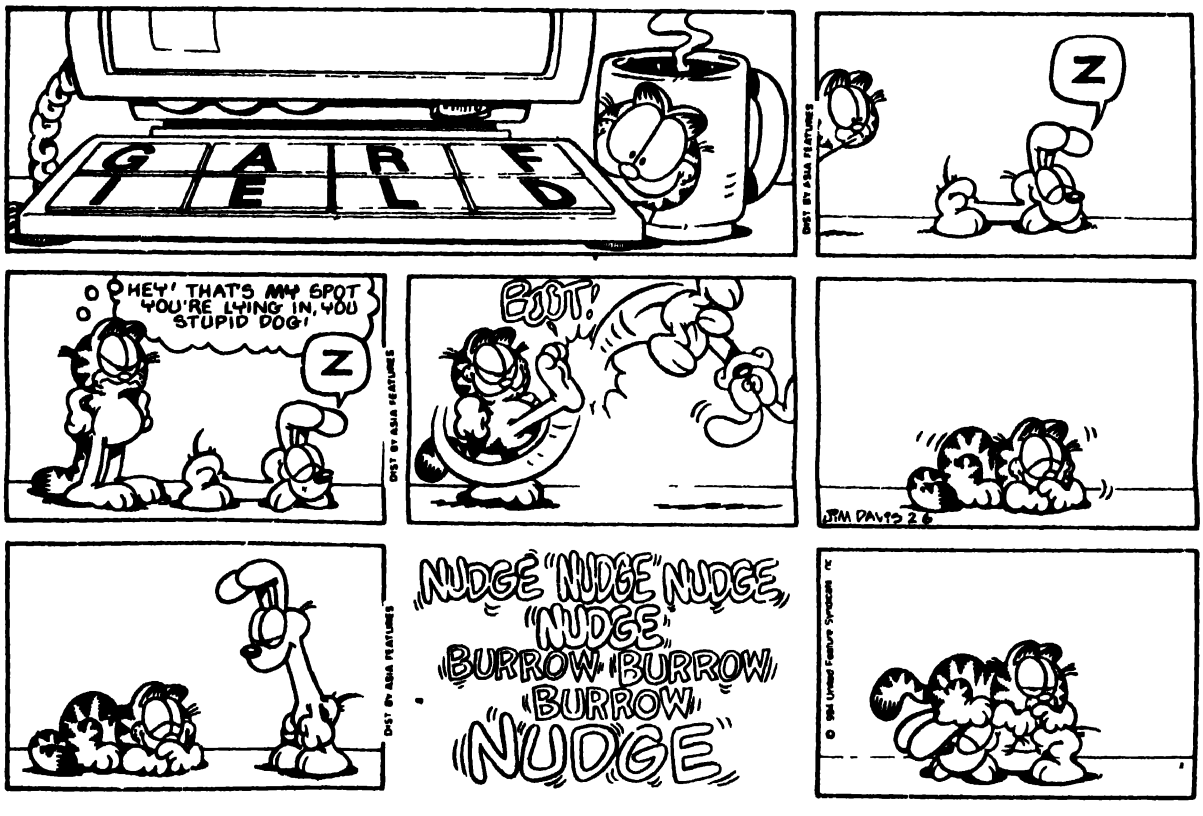
Possible twosome Fake bout

ARCHIE

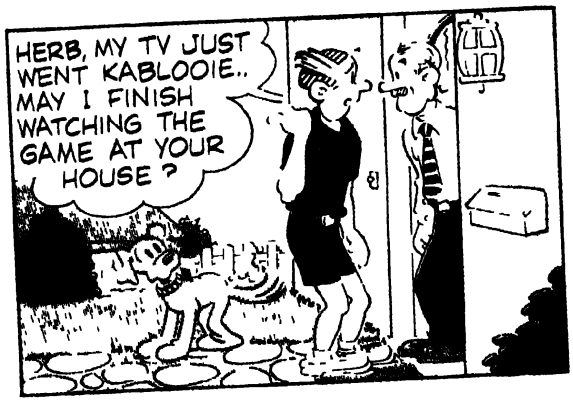


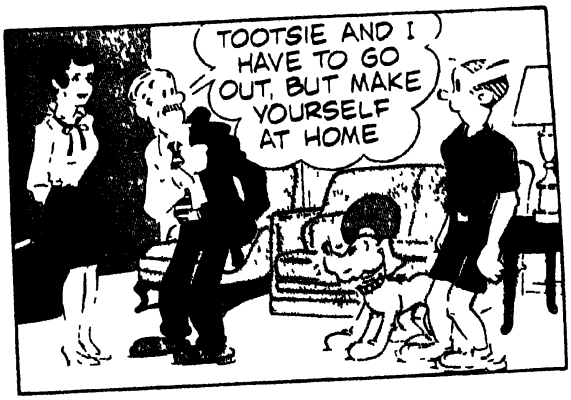
CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON

THE LOCKHORNS

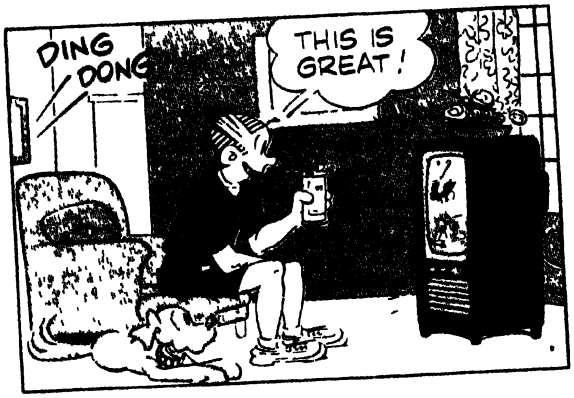


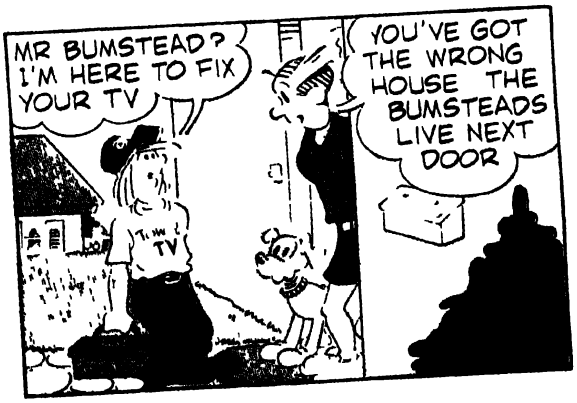
GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS





THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP





© 2014 by King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.

Miss India-Universe Manpreet Brar flanked by Miss India-World Priti Mankotia (right) and Miss India-Asia Pacific Ruchi Malhotra

The New Queens

The crowning of India's most beautiful women at the Femina Miss India contest last month was, in essence, a tribute to those with beauty and 'brains'

Vaishali Honawar reports*

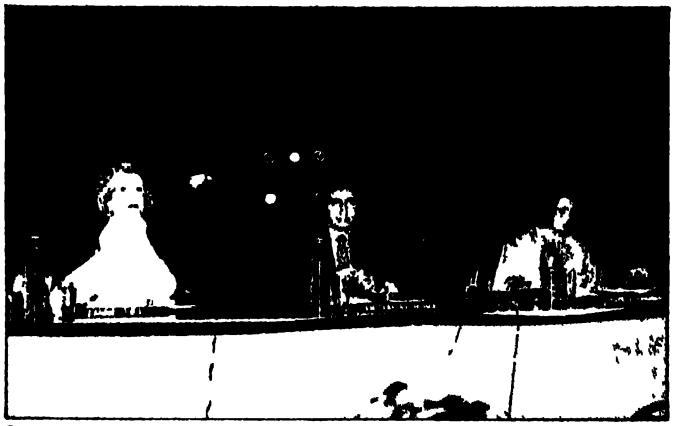
Femina's "most historic glamorous event of the century", which climaxed with the crowning of Miss India-Universe, Manpreet Brar, Miss India-World, Priti Mankotia, and Miss India-Asia-Pacific, Ruchi Malhotra, was certainly a star-studded event

Besides the celebrity guests from the world of fashion and showbiz, you had among the judges — much to the delight of the crowds — Amitabh Bachchan himself, who seems to have made it his mission these days to be seen at public events

The contest began as a contest should, with no apparent favourites It was only after the second round that Manpreet, who is a model and an MBA student studying human resources in Delhi, set herself apart from the rest of the contestants with her confident answers



All in all, however, the show was a very long-drawn-out affair, dragging on for four not-so-exciting hours after making a start over half an hour after the scheduled time

The mosquitoes, too, seemed to have turned out in full force at the Andheri Municipal Sports Complex that Saturday evening where the 29 "beauties with brains" from all over the country vied for the crown that took Sushmita Sen to the top of the world, in full view of the country (DD telecast the contest live)

Perhaps, the only time when excitement ran high was when a small fire started close to the stage, when Amitabh Bachchan's name was announced as one of the judges, and when the reigning Miss Universe and Miss World — Sushmita Sen and Aishwarya Rai — rode into the stadium in vintage cars to crown the winners

But otherwise, there were few moments when

Rashbehar Das

Simone Tata, Amitabh Bachchan and Persis Khambatta sit in judgement

the audience was held in thrall, as was apparent from the fast-emptying rows of seats once the show had actually taken off with a Kathak fusion presentation by Aditi Mangaldas and her troupe

First came the swimsuit round after which the celebrity judges — Vijay Amritraj, Geet Sethi, actresses Sarika and Zeenat Aman, politician Renuka Chaudhury, BBC's Indian correspondent Andrew Whitehead, Lakme chairman Simone Tata, fashion designer Abu Jani and Persis Khambatta, besides Bachchan — went to work, bringing down the number of contestants to 20

The sportswear round, introduced for the first time, had the girls walking in tennis shorts, riding breeches and what have you

While the judges set about narrowing the choice further to 10 girls, magician P C Sorcar (Jr) presented a magic show which did not cast much of a spell over the audience

The next was the traditional Indian wear round which had the girls descending on the stage from either side in cage-like lifts

It brings to light the poor quality of the set which was flanked by tacky torches and had the most unimaginative colour scheme possible

Anil Nagda/Femina

Sporting spirit

A rock concert by Gary Lawyer and an unending fashion show later, the five finalists walked in, resplendent in evening gowns One question was put to all of them and "to avoid any confusion or any charges of bias" they were given one minute to write down their answers and to read them out aloud

Miss India-Universe and Miss India-World received identical prizes — Rs 100,000 in cash, a colour television, an air-conditioner, a designer wardrobe from Ritu Kumar and a host of other

Rashbehari Das

Some cheerful counselling Sushmita Sen and Aishwarya Rai with the winners

Rashbehari Das

The fashion extravaganza

prizes, while Miss India-Asia-Pacific received Rs 50,000 in cash, a colour television, a designer wardrobe from Ritu Kumar, etc

Interestingly, Femina has re-christened the titles this year, tagging on with the 'Miss India', the titles of the international contests the winners will represent, insisting it is an indication of the seriousness with which it now regards international contests

Does the fact that Aishwarya lost the crown to Sushmita before winning the Miss World anyway have something to do with it? ■

RASOI

JIGGS KALRA

There are two kinds of chefs operating in the kitchens of restaurants that serve Indian food. The rikaabdaar jo handi lagana jante hain and those who only know frying pan cooking. Sadly, most belong to the latter tribe. A tribe that has negated the very basis of Indian cooking. A tribe that has taken the easy way out. A tribe that believes it can cook all Indian food by mixing and matching mutually exclusive ingredients with three gravies — red, brown and yellow.

Mercifully, there are chefs — and their numbers are on the increase — jo handi lagate hain and take great pride in their work. Aash Mohammed, presently performing at Hyatt Regency's Dehli ka Aangan, is one. So when Team Rasoi developed the following recipes, we invited this master to experiment with us. We were simply delighted with the results.

Try for yourself and see if you share the pleasure!

BAINGAN BEMISAAL

INGREDIENTS

4 Aubergines (large round)
Cooking oil to deep fry
Cooking oil to grease roasting tray

The Filling

500 g / 1 lb 2 oz Kid mince
50 g / 1/4 cup Unsalted butter
15 ml / 1 tbs Cooking oil
90 g / 3 oz Onions
25 g / 4 tsp Garlic paste (strained)
15 g / 2 1/2 tsp Ginger paste (strained)
8 g / 1 tbs fresh Fennel
240 ml / 1 cup clear Kid / Lamb stock
150 g / 5 oz fresh Tomato puree
1 g / 1/2 tsp Van Ajwain / Thyme (dried)
1.5 g / 1/2 tsp Red chilli powder
Salt
24 green Peppercorns (fresh if you can obtain them)
16 Roasted pistachios
75 g / 2 1/2 oz Paneer
45 g / 1 1/2 oz Cheddar cheese
15 g / 1/2 oz Khoya
2.25 g / 3/4 tsp green Cardamom powder
1.5 g / 1/2 tsp Mace powder

The Gravy

750 g / 1 lb 11 oz Tomatoes
60 ml / 1/4 cup Cooking oil (preferably olive oil)
16 Curry leaves
65 g / 1/2 cup Onions
65 g / 1/2 cup Leeks
8 flakes Garlic
2 Bay leaves
8 black Peppercorns
4.5 g / 3 tbs Van Ajwain / Thyme (dried)
2 fresh Red chillies
1 litre / 4 1/4 cups clear Kid / Lamb stock
Salt
5.25 g / 2 tsp Flour of roasted gram
5.25 g / 1 1/4 tsp Unsalted butter

Serves 4
Preparation time 1.15 hours

Cooking time 30 minutes

PREPARATION

The aubergines Wash and halve. Heat oil in a kadhai / deep frying pan, add aubergines and deep fry for two minutes. Remove, cool, carefully scoop out the pulp, leaving half an inch, to make 'moulds' and keep aside. (Use the pulp to make Bhartha as an accompanying dish.)

The filling Peel, wash and finely chop onions. Remove the whiskers and the outer layer, wash and finely chop leeks and fennel. Wash and pat dry green peppercorns. (If using canned peppercorns, drain and pat dry.)

Grate paneer, cheddar and khoya in a bowl, mix well. (For cheese use Vijaya, not Amul, as the latter's flowing quality is poor.)

Heat butter and oil in a frying pan, add onions and leeks, saute over medium heat until onions are light golden, add garlic and ginger pastes, saute until onions are golden, add fennel and stir. Then

Baingan Bemisaal

add mince, bhunno/stir-fry for 2-3 minutes, add 240 ml/1 cup of stock, bring to a boil, reduce to low heat and simmer, stirring occasionally, until liquid has evaporated Increase to medium heat and bhunno/stir-fry until the fat leaves the sides Now add tomato puree, thyme, red chillies and salt, bhunno/stir-fry until the fat leaves the sides again Sprinkle green cardamom and mace, stir, remove, adjust the seasoning (keeping in mind that you will be adding cheese later) and divide into 8 equal portions

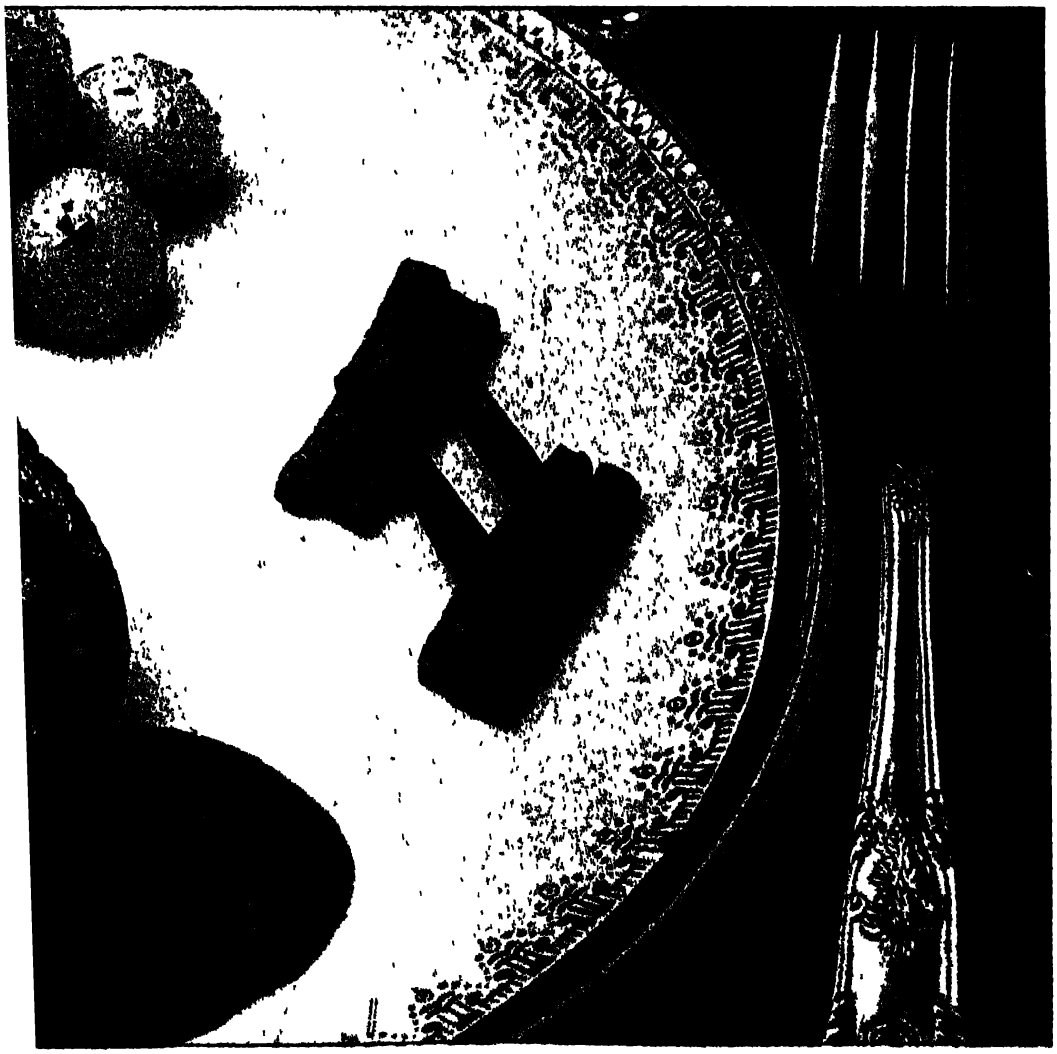
The stuffing Put a portion of the filling in the aubergine 'moulds', cover with equal quantities of the paneer cheddar and khoya mixture, arrange in a greased roasting tray and keep aside

The gravy: Clean curry leaves, wash and pat dry Remove eyes, wash and roughly chop tomatoes Peel, wash and roughly chop onions Remove the whiskers and the outer layer, wash and roughly chop the leeks Peel and roughly chop garlic Wash red chillies, slit, deseed, roughly chop and discard the stems

Put the flour of roasted gram in a bowl, add the butter, mix until homogenous and refrigerate

The oven Pre-heat to 275°F

COOKING



Put the roasting tray in the pre-heated oven and bake for 7-8 minutes, then turn on the top heat and bake for 2 minutes or until the cheese is lightly coloured

To prepare the gravy, heat oil in a pot, add curry leaves, stir over medium heat for a few seconds, add onions and leeks, saute until onions are translucent, add garlic and saute until onions are light golden, add bay leaves and peppercorns, saute until onions are golden

Then add tomatoes, cover and cook, stirring occasionally, until mashed, add stock, bring to a boil, reduce to low heat and simmer, stirring occasionally, until reduced by half Remove and pass through a fine mesh soup strainer into a handi/pan Return gravy to heat, add thyme, red chillies and salt, stir and simmer, stirring occasionally until of ketchup consistency Sprinkle cardamom and mace, remove and adjust the seasoning

TO SERVE

Make a bed of sauce on a third each of four plates, arrange two stuffed aubergines on the sauce and serve with sauteed potatoes, carrots and beans

PANEER KA KOFTA

INGREDIENTS

The Kofta

400 g / 14 oz Paneer
4 Potatoes (medium)
30 ml / 2 tbs Lemon juice
2 5 g / 1 tsp black Cumin seeds (Shahi jeera)
3 25 g / 1 tbs Coriander
2 fresh Red chillies
3 g / 1 tsp white Pepper powder
6 5 g / 1 tbs Cornflour
Salt
Cooking oil to deep fry

The Filling

60 g / 2 oz Broccoli
60 g / 2 oz Red bell pepper (capsicum)
60 g /2 oz Madras onions/shallots
10 g / 1" piece Ginger
2 green Chillies
4 Orange segments
12 Roasted almonds
1 g / 2 tsp Marua/Marjoram
Salt

The Gravy

50 g / 1/4 cup Desi ghee/Clarified butter
5 green Cardamom
2 black Cardamom
2 Bay leaves
1 stick Cinnamon (1")
200 g / 7 oz boiled Onion paste
10 g / 1 3/4 tsp Garlic paste (strained)
10 g / 1 3/4 tsp Ginger paste (strained)
150 g / 5 oz Yoghurt
60 g / 2 oz Almond paste
5 g / 1 tsp Coconut paste
720 ml / 3 cups Vegetable stock
1 g / 2 tsp Marua/ Marjoram
3 g / 1 tsp white Pepper powder
Salt
1 5 g / 1/2 tsp green Cardamom powder
0 75 g / 1/4 tsp Nutmeg powder

Paneer Ka Kofta

10 ml / 2 tsp Rosewater
30 ml / 2 tbs Cream

Serves 4
Preparation time 1 30 hours
Cooking time 45 minutes

PREPARATION

The potatoes Boil, cool peel, mash add lemon juice and mix well
The remaining vegetables Clean, wash and finely chop coriander Wash red chillies slit, deseed, dice and discard the stems
The kofta mixture Grate paneer in a bowl add the potatoes, coriander red chillies and the remaining ingredients, mix well Divide into 12 equal portions, make balls and keep aside
The filling Blanch broccoli in salted boiling water for a minute, drain, refresh in iced water drain pat dry and cut into the tiniest florets Wash red bell pepper slit, deseed, dice and discard the stem Peel, wash and dice onions Scrape, wash and dice ginger Wash green chillies, slit, deseed, dice and discard the stems Remove the orange segment skin and cut each into small pieces Cut almonds into flakes Put these ingredients in a bowl, add the remaining ingredients, mix well and divide into 12 equal portions
The stuffing Flatten the kofta between the palms, place a portion of the filling in the middle of each and make balls again
The frying Heat oil in a kadhai, add the stuffed kofta and deep fry over medium heat until cooked, ensuring they do not get coloured (approx 2 minutes)
The gravy Whisk yoghurt in a bowl Put the vegetable stock in a bowl, add marjoram, bring to a boil, reduce to low heat and simmer, stirring at regular intervals, until reduced by half

COOKING

Melt desi ghee / clarified butter in a handi / pan, add both cardamoms, bay leaves and cinnamon, stir over medium heat until the cardamom changes colour, add the boiled onion paste, bhunno / stir fry until specs of fat begin to appear on the surface, add the garlic and ginger pastes both dissolved in 45 ml / 3 tbs of water and bhunno / stir-fry until specs of fat begin to appear on the surface Remove handi / pan from heat, stir in yogurt, return handi / pan to heat and bhunno / stir-fry until specs of fat begin to appear on the surface Then add the almond and coconut pastes, bhunno / stir-fry until specs of fat begin to appear on the surface, add the reduced vegetable stock, pepper and salt, stir, bring to a boil, reduce to low heat, simmer for 2-3 minutes, remove and pass through a fine mesh soup strainer into a separate handi / pan Return gravy to heat, add the fried kofta and simmer over medium heat for 4-5 minutes Now add green cardamom powder, mace powder and rosewater, stir Remove, stir in cream and adjust the seasoning

TO SERVE

Divide three-fourths of the gravy into 4 equal portions, make a bed on each of 4 individual plates, arrange 3 (not 2 as shown in the photograph) kofta on the gravy, pour equal quantities of the remaining gravy on the kofta and serve with phulka or steamed rice

NOTE All weights are nett, that is post-preparation, and not gross ■

MRF ZIGMA STEEL

THE SPACE AGE RADIAL

MRF ZIGMA STEEL The Space Age Radial The tyre with muscles Of steel And the rage of the Maruti owner Slide into the driver's seat Start the car Hit the road Race away And feel the strength of MRF Zigma Steel As it takes control like no tyre has ever done before Accelerate You'll discover that taking off was never so smooth Manoeuvre . The unique 'Z' old tread pattern unravels a new force in road-hugging Brake Feel the broad tyre base hold the road in a tight grip Park The tough, wide tyre base and the sensational raised lettering announce your arrival-in style! MRF ZIGMA STEEL It's an out-of-the-world driving experience

NOW ALSO AVAILABLE FOR YOUR MARUTI 1000CC

This classroom has a pilot. A fashion designer. An architect.

A beauty queen

A surgeon

And

a nasty spark

in the mains.

Fortunately, MDS has done its homework

MDS makes a wide range of electrical safety devices In this particular case, the one that saved the classroom from catastrophe was a device which prevents short-circuits and overloads

Without fail Each time Every time

In more than 30 years we've produced the widest range of miniature circuit breakers manufactured by any single Indian company Most of which have pioneered and created a market in their categories Not startling really when you consider the facts

Technology from the best in the world

Our technical collaborations for instance, are with the world leaders in the field

Dorman Smith U K in 1962

ABB Stotzkontakt Germany in 1982

ABB Elettroconduttore Italy, in 1985

And a second collaboration with ABB Stotzkontakt, Germany in 1988, for a new product

Products as good as the best in the world

Each of our collaborations has helped us produce a unique electrical safety device, often the first of its kind in the country Not to mention products of the highest quality

Loadster, for instance A miniature circuit breaker which we introduced over three decades ago Today it is the most popular brand in India

Loadkontakt, another miniature circuit breaker, which protects from short-circuits and overloads by using a "Hammer-trip" principle

Loadstop, a residual current circuit breaker, which automatically disconnects the current whenever there is a leakage It also protects costly electrical installations

Then there is Superfuse, a plug-in miniature circuit breaker a truly revolutionary product Instead of a fuse wire there's a sensitive pre-calibrated mechanism inside, which we've tested 20 000 times already It switches off within milliseconds when there is a short-circuit or an overload

Of course we're working at increasing this range And we're growing as a company, too With three factories and over 500 employees And you can rest assured each and every one of us knows exactly what is at stake

MDS

Electrical Safety Devices

Anything else isn't safe enough.

For a free brochure on How to protect your home and office from electrical hazards write to Sr Manager-Marketing MDS Switchgear Ltd 318/319 Shah & Nahar Estate Worli Bombay 400 018

The Telegraph

POSTMORTEM

A Poet Among Politicians

■ The cover story on Vishwanath Pratap Singh ('Loner', January 15) gave us an insight into his multifaceted personality That he is an accomplished painter, a good poet and a capable photographer was a revelation

V P Singh has always crusaded for the cause of the minorities and the Dalits It was, perhaps, commitment to this cause, more than any political motive, that prompted him to lend support to the implementation of the Mandal Commission report

It is ironical that those who criticised him on this count and fuelled passions of public fury and hatred against him, were later to mouth the same sentiments for the depressed classes

Throughout his life, he has remained a man of moral instincts and honest endeavours He has never resorted to unfair means, even to grab power

And all his resignations in his long political career bear testimony to this commitment to righteous cause

Shooter

V.P. Singh A crusader forever

Actually, had it not been for the Bharatiya Janata Party, the government of V P Singh would have survived He dared to stop L K Advani's marathon rathyatra, knowing very well the BJP would withdraw support to his coalition government and he would have to go
Santosh Kumar Sharma,
Kharagpur

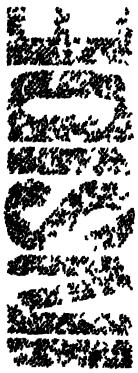
■ The cover story brought to mind a remark of V P Singh which he had made as finance minister in 1985 on his stringent measures against tax evaders

Asked if he was afraid of the repercussions, he had replied that left to himself he would rather pursue painting, photography and poetry than politics His entry into politics was accidental, he had said

He could have remained the Prime Minister of India, honourably and comfortably, had he compromised with the BJP or not implemented the Mandal recommendations

But his was a mission of principle, not compromise to remain in power
Sunil Banerjee,
Calcutta

■ The cover story expressed the actual loneliness of V.P Singh



He is the best example of a politician who is secular He relinquished the chief ministership of Uttar Pradesh following an attack on Dalits and minorities

His resignation from the Prime Ministership of India was also prompted by his commitment to secularism It is a pity we do not have more such honest politicians
Biswajit Kar,
Kharagpur

■ In eulogising V P Singh as a maverick politician one should bear in mind that he was solely responsible for igniting communal passions by Mandalising politics
Manoj K. Jain,
Shyamnagar (W B)

■ The cover story was interesting, but too long V P Singh's short tenure as Prime Minister of India was disastrous and most of his political challenges proved wrong

Why does the Magazine have to give such extensive coverage to a flop politician?
Prabal Guha,
Jamshedpur

Gautam Patel

PAGE 4

THE DEFINITION of beauty has always been dictated by America But the victories of Sushmita Sen and Aishwarya Rai in two international beauty pageants last year have ushered in a radical re-evaluation of the concept of beauty

PAGE 26

A PHOTOFEATURE on the Supermodel prelim contest in Bombay
Supermodel contest

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
18 RUSKIN BOND
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
28 RASOI
30 FIRST PERSON

Cover Madhu Sapre
by Madhur Shroff/Femina

COVER STORY

BEAUTY: TALL, DARK AND ASIAN

With two Indians winning international beauty contests, perceptions about what is beautiful are changing, says Amit Roy

DO GENTLEMEN STILL PREFER BLONDES? IT'S A PERTINENT QUESTION, CONSIDERING AISHWARYA Rai, the 21-year-old new Miss World, who is very pert and very pretty, is currently doing her stuff in India.

Since her triumph follows that of Sushmita Sen, the 19-year-old Miss Universe, many people have been wondering whether in the international beauty business — and it is a multi-billion dollar business — the blonde look is being replaced by the Asian

Cindy Crawford Top gun in the world market

Some changes are certainly on the way In Britain, the current cover of Cosmopolitan magazine has the face of Rohini, a model whose father is Sri Lankan and mother is English

Rohini grew up in Canada and now lives in London with her photographer husband, Angus Ross.

This is the third time this year that Rohini, who has a distinctly Asian face, has made the cover of Cosmopolitan Since casual sale of magazines depend on their cover, Rohini is obviously regarded very much a winner She is also very much an exception

For a couple of years, a number of top modelling agencies in London, notably Models 1, have been scouting around for Asian girls but have so far not found anyone suitable.

Models 1 was keen on Mehr Jesia, the top Bombay model who twice came to London but returned home within days. Perhaps

Madhu Sapre As good as any in the West

she was homesick or missed her boyfriend

Madhu Sapre came, too, but did not click with Models 1 The view was that she looked better in real life than in her photographs

Who decides what is beautiful? And precisely, what is beautiful?

Defining what is beautiful is a lot harder than identifying who is beautiful Judging by those whose photographs appear most frequently in Western newspapers and magazines, the Princess of Wales is certainly beautiful

And so are Claudia Schiffer and Cindy Crawford among the current crop of supermodels All in all, picture editors, advertising agencies and clothes companies still believe that when it comes to selling products blondes have the biggest pulling power

To be sure, there are exceptions Naomi Campbell, the first black supermodel Britain has produced, is one Another is Yasmin Ghauri, a New York-based model of mixed Indian-Canadian origin

In London, a modelling agency called Mystique has been set up to cash in on what is thought to be a growing demand for Asian or Eurasian girls But its founder, Kay Khan, is discovering that it is still a slow process getting her girls launched

Nor is the situation likely to improve radically for Asian girls so long as American TV soaps and Hollywood are allowed to define the international concept of beauty

There can't be much doubt that it is American TV and movie moguls who have brainwashed the world into accepting their notions of beauty The evidence comes from the experience with Black judges in South Africa

Mehr Jesia Good show, too

Defining what is beautiful is a lot harder than identifying who is beautiful. Judging by those whose photographs appear most frequently in Western newspapers and magazines, the Princess of Wales is certainly beautiful

When Black and White girls were allowed to enter the same contests for the first time, it was thought that Black judges would pick Black women But not a bit The Black judges invariably plumped for blue-eyed, long-legged, blonde women The same as everyone else

Eric Morley, the chairman of the Miss World organisation and the man who began the contests in 1951, confirms that the dominating influence in defining beauty is American

"The Black judges take their opinions on what is beautiful from Hollywood," he admits

Will Sushmita and Aishwarya usher in a radical re-evaluation of beauty? There are some who certainly think so, among them Vimla Patil, who organised beauty contests in India for 20 years in her capacity as editor of Femina

The victory of two Indian girls is, she says, "a sign that beauty and fashion are no longer the preserve of one race"

Asia, she argues, is "looking up" in the economic sense and that "Europe and America will have to change"

Her idea of a beautiful Indian woman is fairly conventional "Sharp features, fair colour and a slight shyness and innocence Not someone who is too brassy or too assertive"

Patil adds "Beauty is a globalised concept"

But is it?

It certainly hasn't been the case with Miss World winners in the past Each year, when the contest is held, the organisation produces a glossy brochure which includes smiling pictures of all the past winners The gallery reveals at a glance that a very high proportion were blondes

Here are a few picked at random —

Miss Sweden, the country associated with the Nordic type, won in 1951 and 1952 Then there was Miss UK (Lesley Langley) in 1965, Miss Australia (Penelope Plummer) in 1968, Miss Austria (Eve Rueber) in 1969, Miss Australia (Belinda Green) in 1972, Miss USA (Marjorie Wallace) in 1973, Miss Sweden — yes, again — (Mary Stavin) in 1977 And so on

To be sure, non-white, dark-haired girls occasionally won — for example, India's Reita Faria in 1966 But between 1951 and 1989, when the contest was held in London, Eastern and Oriental girls had the odds stacked against them

And on this subject of beauty, Aishwarya takes a lofty view "Today, the concept of beauty the world over goes beyond being just pretty," she observes "You have got to think beautiful to be beautiful So it's your inner self, the way you view life, the way you project yourself "

Most of the time however, advertisers are selling a dream so that a woman's inner beauty is irrelevant

"By Indian standards," Aishwarya points out, "I am considered fair, light-eyed, light-haired That's not typically Indian "

Aishwarya is good-humoured and laughs easily when asked to compare herself to her 'rival' Sushmita

"If you compare Sushmita with me, we are quite different in terms of our physical aspects," she responds "At the same time, we are both Indian We are similar in our lifestyles, our traditions We have grown up in a particular manner which is Indian "

She says that according to some people the "dusky Indian look" has become fashionable "By Indian standards I am not dusky I am not typically dark-eyed, dark-haired and typically Indian as viewed the world over But that has not thwarted my comfortable position back home on the modelling front "

This is a reference to her highly successful career as a model in India, where she has promoted everything from soaps to saris

One of the ironies about beauty contests is that they have been phased out of many other regions of the world, including the East, West Asia and eastern Europe They have become hugely popular because women see them as a way of expressing their emancipated status

Aishwarya says she met no opposition from her family "My parents were really supportive "

Naomi Campbell Black, but Western

Her view is that "modelling is a profession like any other You are working in an industry There is the photographer, the artist, the agency, the client, the creative people, all working together to get on with the campaign

"There are contracts, legalities, the financial aspect It's pure business You have got to learn to treat it that way if you want to do it seriously If it is for a lark, a brush with fame, then it's different "

In Britain, however, attitudes to beauty contests have changed radically over the past decade When Michael Grade, now chief executive of Channel 4 television, was controller of BBC 1, one of his first moves in 1987 was to stop screening beauty contests

There can't be much doubt that it is American TV and movie moguls who have brainwashed the world into accepting their notions of beauty. The evidence comes from the experience with Black judges in South Africa

His justification was "These contests no longer merit air time They are an anachronism in this day and age of equality and verging on the offensive "

This is right on stuff Yet, contests had great pulling power once Eric Morley introduced the first Miss World in 1951 as a contribution to the Festival of Britain The following years the Americans started their own pageant and called it "Miss Universe"

Since trans-Atlantic rivalry was now involved, Morley continued with his contests which quickly became a great British tradition

While Morley became the organisational brains behind the contest, his wife Julia (who has accompanied Aishwarya to India) handled the girls Often, there were mini-scandals which helped maintain interest in the ritual

For example, in 1974, Helen Morgan, Miss UK, had to hand back the title because she was revealed to be an unmarried mother In the Britain of 1994, where one out of four births are out of wedlock, that probably would not happen

In 1980, Gabriella Brum, Miss West Germany, relinquished her crown because she had been involved in pornographic films

Were the girls exploited, as feminists often claimed? It didn't seem so

Morley's London office is lined with photographs of past winners, many of whom, he points out, turned out to be high achievers

Miss Grenada (1970) became her country's High Commissioner to Canada, Miss Brazil (1971) a plastic surgeon, Miss Venezuela (1981) a computer engineer, and Miss Dominican Republic (1982) an architect

With time, the contest changed The bikini was used in 1951 but never again Later, the leotard was adopted and showed the natural form One important concession to the feminist movement was dropping the derriere shot when girls were made to turn around for the cameras in a parody of dog shows

Between 1959 and 1979, BBC TV showed Miss World live on television The contest attracted a record audience of 27 5 million in 1969 When Thames TV took over the programme, audiences had started to decline but that was not the real reason why Miss World was dropped from television

It was simply that senior television executives, mainly men, sided with the feminists who had long argued that beauty contests were degrading

Aishwarya and Sushmita Taking on the world, together

'cattle shows'

As chief executive of Channel 4, Michael Grade declared "The sooner they become extinct the better"

In 1989, Miss World moved out of London for the first time, and for the last three years have found a home in South Africa

It cannot be any coincidence that as soon as Miss World was staged outside London, a different kind of look began to be favoured for the winner

This year, Miss South Africa, a Black woman, came second Miss Zimbabwe, another Black was fourth Aishwarya accepted her title from last year's title holder - a Black Miss Jamaica

Unlike Miss Worlds of the past, who were used primarily to sell clothes, the new title holder will work mainly for charity in Third World countries and promote an entirely different political and economic agenda

Not everyone is pleased that beauty contests are no longer shown on British television (other than on Sky, a satellite channel) One influential woman who has surprisingly never objected to them is Mary Whitehouse, long considered the moral conscience of Britain and for 20 years president of the Listeners and Viewers Association, a watchdog body for radio and television

"A lot of people do enjoy them and not just men either," she says "I can understand those who say it is exploitative But so long as the camera does not linger on certain parts of the body, I don't see these competitions as a dire threat to civilised values"

At Models 1, Jose Fonseca, one of the co-partners of the agency, also regrets the passing of contests "English TV felt it was too out of date and that it was against the feminist movement In my opinion, this view is absolutely ridiculous I feel the concept needed to be changed slightly by leaving out bathing suits and high heels As an event, as a competition, it was brilliant It's a shame it was not adapted"

To be sure, non-white, dark-haired girls occasionally won — for example, India's Reita Faria in 1966. But between 1951 and 1989, when the contest (Miss World) was held in London, Eastern and Oriental girls had the odds stacked against them

But, who defines beauty? "Photographers and magazines have a lot of influence," says Fonseca "Advertisers do, too"

This is why she thinks that the East, where economies are growing faster than in the recession-hit West, will be influential in determining what sort of girls are used to promote new products "The growth is in the East That's where the future lies," Fonseca adds

Over the 12 months as Aishwarya undertakes a programme of international travel, she — and Sushmita, as well — will have a chance to project the Indian look

Aishwarya is looking forward to it "There will be appearances, modelling, fashion shows, inaugurations"

She is candid about what becoming

Rolta Faria: Miss World two decades ago

Miss World means. "To be honest this does open a lot of avenues. You lead many years of your life within one year."

The new Miss World laughs easily and there is about her an engaging honesty. "This Miss World experience," she says, "is something I am going to treasure for the rest of my life."

But after seeing Aishwarya and Sushmita, will gentlemen still continue to prefer blondes?

The bikini was found in 1951 but Later, the leotard was adopted the natural form. important to the feminist movement was dropping the derriere shot when girls were made to turn around for the cameras in a

The American soap which is currently popular in Britain — and, one assumes, it will also get a worldwide audience — is Baywatch. The action does not change much from week to week. golden blondes in skimpy swimsuits are filmed running up and down golden beaches.

The formula always works So why should it be changed? So far as American soap and movie makers are concerned, blonde is beautiful. And blonde is best.

But Aishwarya has done her bit in the battle to displace the blonde look When she won, her victory was watched by a worldwide television audience of 1.3 billion. ■

EXTRACT

The Man, THE MAGIC

Extracted from Michael Jackson The Magic and the Madness by J. Randy Taraborrelli; Headline Book Publishing Plc; £6.99

BY J. RANDY TARABORRELLI

Being out on the road and forced to mingle with fans whenever he ventured out into the world — which wasn't often — was also difficult for Michael. "Sometimes, you get the real mean ones," he said of his fans. "Those who'll come up to you and say, 'Siddown! Sign this for my baby,' I say, 'I don't have a pen.' 'What! You don't have a pen? Go hunt for one.' I say, 'Oh my God, how can they be so bold and cruel?'"

"And also, it hurts to be mobbed," he complained. "Not mentally, but physically. Your body feels like a noodle, being pulled by ten different people. They don't realise it. They love you so much they just want a part of you. They say, 'I gotta get a piece of this guy, if it's his shirt, his hair, his face, anything.' There are fans who actually have pieces of my hair.

"I could go to England right now, and they'd show me and say, 'This is your hair from three years ago.' I'd say, 'Oh my gosh.' And it's sitting in their wallet. They collect hair. There are fans who know the back of your head, the way your body's shaped. I have walked across fans with my head totally down, and I will puff my face out so they don't know who I am — and they stop you anyway. It's amazing. I don't know how they know."

The biggest numbers of The Jacksons' show were always Michael's solo songs from the Off the Wall album. There were special effects arranged by magician Doug Henning. Michael seemed to disappear into a puff of smoke after performing Don't Stop 'Til You Get Enough. Offstage, Michael also seemed to disappear. He stayed to himself, rarely socialising with his brothers or the rest of the entourage. "This is my last tour," Michael Jackson said. "I will never do this again. Ever."

★★★

By September 1981, despite CBS Records' best efforts to keep what had happened a secret, most industry insiders were well aware of what had happened between Katherine Jackson and Gina Sprague. Michael had made it clear that he did not want to have to face any reporters, because he was afraid that he might be asked to comment. However, the press grind would continue, Michael's wishes notwithstanding.

I was scheduled to interview Michael on October 3, 1981. My interview had been arranged by CBS Records, Michael's label. I had been warned against mentioning the name Gina Sprague or asking about what was referred to by the record company as 'the incident'. I was compiling a list of questions when the phone rang. It was Michael.

He got to the point immediately. "There's a certain way I want to do this interview."

"Which is?"

"Well, I want Janet to help."

"Help do what?" I asked.

"Janet is going to sit in on our interview," he told me. "You'll direct your questions to her, and then she'll pass them on to me. Then I'll give her the answers, and she'll pass them on to you. It's the only way I'll do the interview. I hope you understand."

It took a moment for me to digest his directions. He made it all sound so logical, I thought I had misunderstood. I asked him to repeat himself, which he did.

"Michael, I don't get it," I said. "You're giving me an interview, but you're not talking to me? What kind of madness is that?"

"It might seem like madness to you," he said. "But there are reasons for the things I do. You just have to try to understand."

"But—" I began.

"If you're willing to do it my way, I'll see you tomorrow. Good-bye."

He hung up the phone. The discussion had ended.

The next day I arrived at the Encino home on time for the interview. "Glad you could make it," Michael said as we shook hands. He was wearing a black T-Shirt and matching jeans. His feet were bare, as they had been the last time I interviewed him two years earlier. I noticed that his nose was different, thinner and more defined since our last interview. He spoke in an odd, falsetto whisper, which seemed even softer than it had the last time we talked. He was now 23.

After Michael and I exchanged a few pleasantries in the living room, Janet, age 15, walked in wearing a red leather miniskirt, black boots, and a plaid sweater. She did not say hello. She simply sat at Michael's side.

Michael introduced me to her. We shook hands, but she never made eye contact with me. I sat opposite them.

"Now, you'll do the interview the way you promised, won't you?" he asked me.

"I didn't promise anything, Michael," I reminded him.

He rose from his chair. "Then we can't do the interview," he said.

"Wait," I told him. "Okay, let's try it. Let's start with the Jacksons' album, Triumph. How do you feel about it?"

Michael glared at me and nodded towards his sister. I redirected my question.

"Janet, please ask him how he feels about the album."

"He wants to know how you feel about the album," Janet said to her brother.

"Tell him I'm very happy with it," Michael said. "Working with my brothers again was an incredible experience for me. It was magical."

In Spain during the Dangerous tour when charges of sexual misconduct threatened to destroy his multi-million dollar empire

Janet nodded her head and turned to me. "He told me to tell you that he's very happy with the album," she said. "And that working with his brothers was an incredible experience for him."

There was a pause.

"You forgot the part about it being magical," Michael said to her. He seemed irritated.

"Oh, yeah, he said it was magical."

"Magical?" I repeated.

"Yes," she said. "Magical."

Michael and I stared at each other for a moment as I tried to think of another question for Janet to ask her brother. Everything I had planned to ask suddenly seemed too complicated.

The interview did not last long. Occasionally, young Janet would interject a comment. "Remember when that girl got upset because she had heard you had a sex change?" she asked Michael. "You remember what happened to her? She got so upset, she jumped out of a window. I think she died." Michael just stared ahead, not saying anything.

After five more questions — and five answers from Michael by way of his sister — I said that I'd rather not continue. "Why not?" Michael wanted to know. "Janet will tell you what happened when I visited Katharine Hepburn last month," he offered.

"I'd rather you tell me, M··hael," I pressed.

Janet let out a sigh of relief.

"Well, I can't."

"Then, look, just forget it. Let's just forget this whole thing."

"Okay, if that's how you feel," he told me as he got up. He smiled, shook my hand, and disappeared. Janet followed.

What was happening to Micheal Jackson, I wondered. He used to be such an adorable, happy little kid, totally unaffected by show business — or at least that was how he had seemed when he and his brothers first became famous as The Jackson 5 in the 1970s. On the day of this interview, however, he seemed unhappy and mistrustful. He had told his record company that he no longer sought direct contact with the media for fear of questions about Gina Sprague. He apparently preferred to withdraw. But when the label's executives, and Michael's own father, insisted that he continue courting the press, he rebelled. To please them, he would make himself available to the media, but to please himself, he would not have direct contact with the reporter. This tactic might seem ludicrous to some people, but desperate people sometimes take desperate measures just to make a point, especially when nobody will listen.

Diana Ross is credited to have discovered The Jackson 5

Beverly Hills psychiatrist Carole Lieberman observed, "In Michael's pretend world, he no doubt reasoned that if there was a problem with the story, he never really said anything to the writer at all, Janet did. Also, his actions were his way of distancing himself from the question as to whether or not his mother really did assault that lady. This is the kind of behaviour that, in the extreme, makes people schizophrenic."

It hurts to be mobbed,' he complained. 'Not mentally, but physically. Your body feels like a noodle, being pulled by 10 different people. They don't realise it. They love you so much they just want a part of you. They say, "I gotta get a piece of this guy, if it's his shirt, his hair, his face, anything." There are fans who actually have pieces of my hair'

Upon leaving, I met Michael's father, Joe, in the driveway. I told him what had happened. He smiled, shrugged his shoulders and said, "That's Michael."

As I pulled out of the driveway and through the front gate, I felt a grudging admiration for the way Michael had gotten what he wanted. He had manipulated the situation and made a mockery of the promised interview. I never wrote about that episode. Instead, I cancelled the feature altogether. Michael got what he really wanted: no story.

I was not the only reporter subjected to Michael's odd interviewing style. Reporter Judy Spiegelman also witnessed such a scene, and writer Steve Demorest had a somewhat similar experience. Even though Demorest was asked to direct his questions to Janet, who then redirected them to Michael, Michael gave Demorest his answers directly.

In his interview, for Melody Maker magazine, Demorest asked Michael about the possibility of his having children in the near future. Michael shook his head no. He'd like to raise a child, but if he did, it would be one whom he would adopt, "in the far future." He would not procreate. "I don't have to bring my own into the world," he said uneasily.

Michael continued, "One of my favourite pastimes is being with children — talking to them, playing with them in the grass. They're one of the main reasons I do what I do. They know everything that people are trying to find out — they know so many secrets — but it's hard for them to get it out. I can recognise that and learn from it. They say some things that just astound you. They go through a brilliant, genius stage. But then, when they become a certain age..." Michael paused. His face looked sad. "When they got to a certain age, they lose it."

Michael was obviously withdrawing deeper into a fantasy world, perhaps because the real one in which he lived was so turbulent and painful. The Jacksons were supposed to be a positive example to millions of young people as to what could be accomplished with hard work and family unity. Michael sincerely wanted his family to be outstanding role models. "Everybody has somebody to look up to," he said. "The Jacksons give them strong role models. People look up to us. We have a responsibility to them to lead our lives right. And we do." ■

INNER EYE ❑ Bejan Daruwalla

Aries

March 21—April 20

Ganesha hints journey time, collaborations on the anvil at least, rendezvous and conferences, efficiency in work and, therefore, good results Money will come and prestige will soar Home conditions and influences could, however, cause concern A week to reap rich rewards

Taurus

April 21—May 20

Be happy, be valiant Learn to laugh He who laughs, lasts Have faith Be brave, and that implies much can be done with your life Children, hobbies, travel, loans, correspondence and contracts are the corners which will be touched by fate now A week of achievement and joy

Gemini

May 21—June 20

Partnerships at all levels are clearly indicated Also, the focus is on the home, renovation, decoration, alteration, leasing and funding While it is good to be on the go, you don't have to be inordinately aggressive and pushy You don't need to, as money will come and deals fixed

Cancer

June 21—July 20

A week to communicate at break-neck speed, win laurels and recognition, do the impossible and yet be fully alive Sounds good Letters, calls, ads, publicity, fame, journey and an overabundance of news and views will do your heart much good

Leo

July 21—August 21

Two trends now run and may merge More income, business deals, negotiations and hectic transactions is one A creative streak running right through the week, making you very imaginative and daring is the other Many Leons will be working overtime Health safeguards are essential

Virgo

August 22—September 22

The sun-Neptune fine formation helps you to carry the battle over to the enemy's camp and score a thrilling victory It could also mean melancholy will flee, and confidence return Good things happen to you A good week to get engaged, marry and start a new venture

Libra

September 23—October 22

A lot of movement physically, mentally, imaginatively and spiritually It is this fluidity and flux which will be exciting Artists, journalists, writers, those in foreign collaboration, get ample mileage Expenses for a good cause are destined Journeys and contacts complete the scene

Scorpio

October 23—November 22

Time to reap a harvest, points out Ganesha, because the sun and Uranus are in a formidable aspect for you More money, a dash of romance and good old luck, clubbing and socialising, getting engaged or marrying, are the various threads of your life Children give joy.

Sagittarius

November 23—December 20

The moon's first quarter in your sign helps you to target goals, be sure of yourself, get directional ability and shoot straight, be it business, love, job or profession This is a period to get into the heart of your business or job and score heavily

Capricorn

December 21—January 19

Inspirational moves and intuitive flashes fuse with cold logic, giving you a great natural advantage over others It will help you to deal properly Around February 14, you should experience sweet satisfaction, be it in romance, business, social whirligig, or through children

Aquarius

January 20—February 18

The luck of the draw will favour you, thanks to the moon's quarter That means friendship, favours, interviews, appointments, behind-the-scene activities, negotiations, funding, loaning, capital formation, a house move and an important journey with many spin-offs

Pisces

February 19—March 20

This is very definitely the time to flow with the current, rather than take a stiff, rigid, unbending attitude, as your relationships will determine your happiness An engagement, marriage, collaborations, business and professional partnerships, and journey are foretold distinct possibility.

BIRTHDAYS

February 16: Venus-Saturn in excellent placing leads to solid foundation for wealth and security. Those in industry, [illegible] sales and distribution do well.

February 17: Moon trines Uranus-Neptune and that could bring about good fortune, often in a sudden and [illegible] manner. It could also mean rewards.

February 18: The moon tenders Jupiter, thus giving you opportunities for advancement in life. It could also mean wealth and joy. Children give delight.

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S COLUMN

BEHIND THE FINCH BEAKS

To write an adventure story about a couple who spent 20 years of their lives measuring finches' bills seems a tall order

But Jonathan Weiner, with his book, The Beak of the Finch, has done just that The beaks in question are in the Galapagos islands and the couple are Peter and Rosemary Grant.

It says a lot for the British character that these two extraordinarily eccentric people are English — and a lot for the state of British higher education that they do their research and teach in American universities

But what led them to that remote archipelago, and to all those beaks?

The Galapagos are a hot, inhospitable set of islands off Central America When the third bishop of Panama was blown off course in the 16th century, he described the archipelago by saying, "It looked as if God had caused it to rain stones "

When Darwin landed there on his famous Voyage of the Beagle, he was astounded to see a whole array of species he had never seen before, including a lot of small birds so tame you could swat them dead with your hat

These were the islands which Darwin later wrote were the "origin of all my views" — the source of the theory of evolution

The finches specially fascinated him He wrote, "In the 13 species of ground finches, a nearly perfect gradation may be traced, from a beak extraordinarily thick to one so fine, that it compares to that of a warbler "

He then went on to give his first published hint of what was then his secret theory, "One might really fancy that, from an original paucity of birds in his archipelago, one species has been taken and modified for different ends "

Darwin didn't stay long in the Galapagos He shot some finches, stuffed them (a skill he'd learned from an American ex-slave) and took them back home

He never even saw Daphne Major, the tiny island where Rosemary and Peter Grant and the rest of their Finch Unit have spent 20 years of research

He never realised the potential of what have since been known as Darwin's finches, with their tool kit of 13 different beaks

Daphne Major has no shores, just sheer cliffs Nobody had ever dreamed of living there But inaccessibility guaranteed the Grants a remarkable wild laboratory in which to start from where Darwin left off

To reach the island they have to circle it in a small rowing boat until they come to a tiny ledge the size of a doormat and covered with barnacles

The swell of the Pacific Ocean lifts the boat high above the ledge, and then dips to a level way below it The trick is to jump at the right time to make contact with the doormat ledge. From there it's still a steep climb to the top — and all supplies have to be transferred from the rowing boat to the doormat

These supplies even include great casks of drinking water — there is no source of fresh water on the island

The island is home for cactus finches, which live, breed, eat and drink from cactuses, and seed-eating ground finches The Grants have known every one of them for 20 generations

They know exactly which finch

Darwin didn't stay long in the Galapagos. He shot some finches, stuffed them (a skill he'd learned from an American ex-slave) and took them back home. He never even saw Daphne Major, the tiny island where Rosemary and Peter Grant and the rest of their Finch Unit have spent 20 years of research. He never realised the potential of what have, since, been known as Darwin's finches, with their tool kit of 13 different beaks

1

3

●●●

Evolution isn't just fast, it changes direction, and one evolutionary process can cancel out another. So evolution, it seems, is like a volcano. From a distance it looks calm, with just a plume of smoke above the horizon, but close up, it is boiling with activity

●●●

begat which, which offspring lived and which died Each has been mist-netted Or trapped A sample drop of blood has been taken from each of one and the exact dimensions of their beaks measured to within a fraction of a millimetre

Their songs have been recorded and even their food noted The island has been divided into a grid and the size, quantity and species of seeds in each square carefully sifted out of the soil. The result of this elaborate and time-consuming data collection has been to prove that evolution works a lot faster than Darwin ever imagined.

For him, evolution was too slow a process to watch Later, scientists concurred and developed a unit for evolution called, funnily enough, the darwin

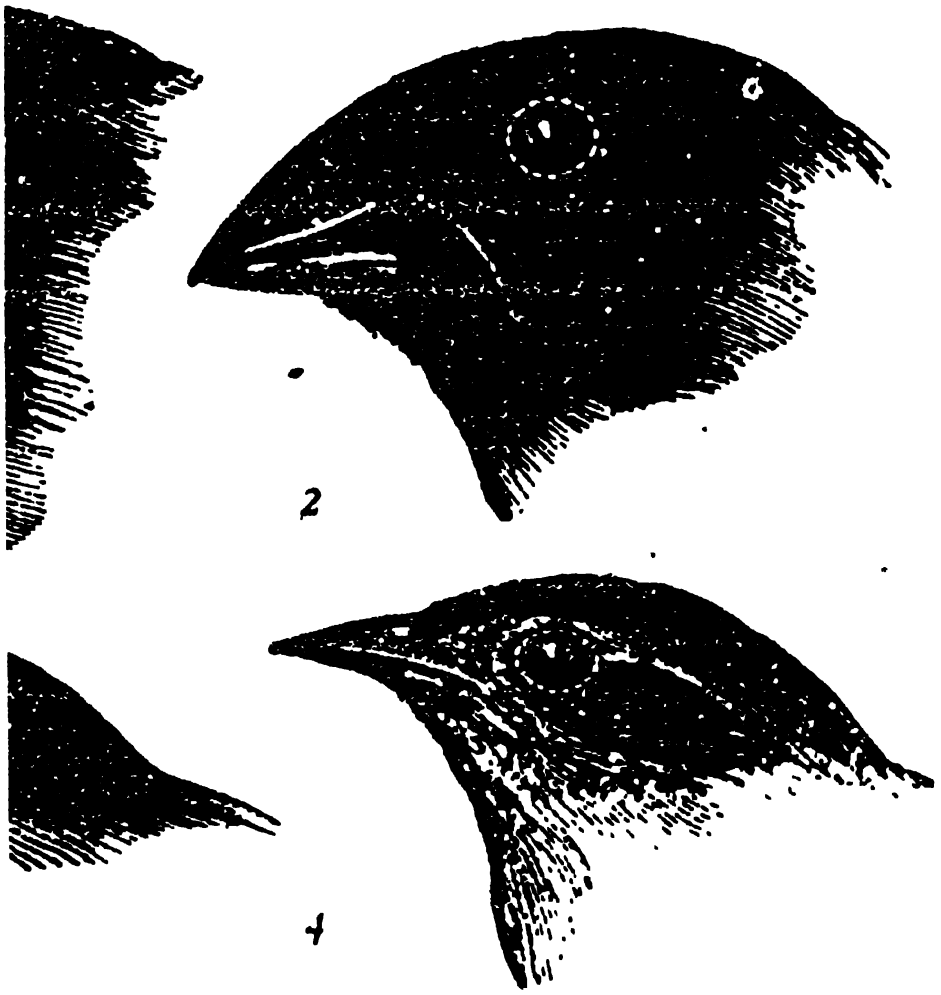
The darwin is a rate of change of one per cent every million years Looking solely at changes in fossils this seemed a reasonable rate for evolution — but the Finch Unit showed their birds were evolving at a rate of 25,000 darwins.

Natural selection was on the rampage A severe drought reduced the number of finches of one species by 85 per cent The birds which survived were the ones with larger beaks because the few remaining seeds were hard and needed bigger beaks to crack them. The difference of half a millimetre in beak size meant life or death for the finches

The drought decimated the female finches, which were generally smaller than the males. Then came the rain and the remaining females favoured larger males to mate with and in turn bore fledglings which had beaks five per cent larger than those born two generations previously The whole species had changed

The drought was followed by a tremendous tropical storm called El Nino — the child — which inundated the island, created a vegetation explosion and drove the finches into a breeding frenzy One female laid 29 eggs in 7 clutches in just one season.

The population boomed but the rains were not repeated There were not enough seeds to go round and those that were left were mainly small, opened more easily with a smaller beak. Smaller beaks survived and bred Evolution isn't just fast, it changes direction, and one evolutionary process can cancel out another



So evolution, it seems, is like a volcano From a distance it looks calm, with just a plume of smoke above the horizon, but close up, it is boiling with activity

Many more discoveries came out of the research but perhaps the most fascinating was when the Finch Unit fed all possible data into a computer and asked the computer to design an ideal ground-finch beak for life on the Galapagos

The computer analysed and came up with not one, but, three ultimate designer beaks — identical to those three different species of ground finches Every finch had found a logical niche for itself

(The Beak of the Finch ,Evolution in Real Time by Jonathan Weiner, Rupa, Rs 572)

(Sanctuary Features)

Four of Darwin's finches from the Journal of Researches

[redacted] TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

[redacted] FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[redacted] KHAJURAHO
IC-741	0710	3, 6	IC-742	0940	3, 6
IC-743	0920	daily	IC-744	1150	daily
PF-701	1130	1 3 5, 7	PF-702	1610	1, 3, 5, 7
[redacted]
M9-304/109	0855	1 3 5	M9-110/301	1900	1, 3 5
[redacted]
PF-705	0730	2, 4, 6, 7	PF-706	1510	2, 4, 6, 7
[redacted]
PF-735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1
PF-737	0730	3, 5	PF-738	1740	3, 5
IC-721	1300	1, 3, 5	IC-722	1540	1, 3, 5
[redacted]
IC-771	0600	daily	IC-772	1140	daily
[redacted]
IC-544	1115	2, 7	IC-543	1035	2, 7
IC-769	1525	1, 3, 5	IC-770	2120	1 3, 5
[redacted]
IC-676	0730	daily	IC-675	0820	daily
D2-102	0905	daily	D2-101	0835	daily
9W-202	0920	daily	9W-201	0840	daily
IC-273	1945	daily	AI-306	1840	5
9W-212	1955	daily	IC-274	1850	daily
D2-104	2005	daily	9W-211	1920	daily
AI-309	2035	6	D2-103	1935	daily
AI-681	2350	1
[redacted]
			IC-262	0615	2, 4, 7
IC-263	0700	daily	M9-303	0825	daily
M9-304	0855	daily	AI-682	0950	1
IC-812	1515	1, 3, 5	4S-806	1115	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6
IC-402	1715	daily	IC-401	1155	daily
4S-805	1745	1, 2 3, 4, 5, 6	M9-301	1900	daily
IC-261	1900	2, 4, 7	S2 005	1900	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6
M9-302	1930	daily	IC-811	1930	1, 3, 5
S2 006	1940	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6	IC-264	2210	daily
[redacted]
PF-737	0730	3, 5	IC-704	1430	3, 5
IC-703	0800	3, 5	D2-181	1620	1, 3, 5, 7
D2-181	1135	1, 3, 5, 7	D2-183	1620	2, 4, 6
D2-183	1135	2, 4, 6	IC-702	1630	2, 4, 6, 7
4S-815	1145	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6	4S-816	1705	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6
IC-701	1240	2 4, 6, 7	PF-738	1740	3, 5
[redacted]
IC-257	1150	4, 7	IC-258	1650	4, 7
[redacted]
PF-735	0730	1	IC-712	1410	2, 6
PF-737	0730	3, 5	IC-704	1430	3 5
PF-705	0730	2, 4, 6, 7	IC-708	1430	1, 4, 7

[redacted] FLIGHTS

[redacted]
RJ-185	1445	4	RJ-184	0705	4
[redacted]
KL-876	0420	7	KL-875	0235	7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
IC-703	0800	3, 5	PF-706	1510	2, 4, 6, 7
IC-707	0800	1, 4, 7	D2-181	1620	1, 3, 5, 7
IC-711	0800	2, 6	D2-183	1620	2, 4, 6
D2-181	1135	1, 3, 5, 7	IC-230	1650	daily
D2-183	1135	2, 4, 6	4S-811	1705	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6
4S-812	1145	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6	PF-736	1730	1
IC-257	1150	4, 7	PF-738	1740	3, 5
IC-211	1240	4, 6	IC-258	1740	4, 7
IC-229	1310	daily	IC-212	1740	4, 6
[redacted] HYDERABAD
IC-777	1500	2, 4, 7	IC-778	2005	2, 4, 7
IC-769	1525	1, 3, 5	IC-770	2120	1, 3, 5
[redacted] IMPHAL
IC-707	0715	1, 4, 6	IC-256	1320	3, 5
IC-255	0830	3, 5	IC-708	1345	1 4 6
IC-253	1100	2, 6	IC 254	1550	2 6
[redacted] JORHAT
IC-213	0910	2 4 7	IC-213	1315	2, 4 7
[redacted] LUCKNOW
IC-812	1515	1 3 5	IC-811	1930	1 3 5
[redacted] MADRAS
IC-542	1115	1, 3, 5	IC-541	1030	1, 3 5
IC-544	1115	2, 7	IC-543	1035	2 7
IC-765	1720	daily	D2-171	1045	daily
D2-172	1740	daily	IC-766	2220	daily
[redacted] NAGPUR
IC-769	1525	1 3 5	IC-770	2120	1, 3, 5
[redacted] PATNA
IC-249	1430	2, 4, 7	IC-249	1805	2 4, 7
IC-812	1515	1, 3, 5	IC-811	1930	1 3 5
[redacted] PORT BLAIR
IC-285	0640	3, 5, 7	IC-286	1100	2, 4 6
[redacted] RANCHI
IC-249	1430	2, 4, 7	IC-249	1805	2, 4, 7
[redacted]
PF-705	0730	2 2 6 7	PF-706	1510	2 4, 6, 7
[redacted]
IC-255	0830	3, 5	IC-260	1110	1, 7
IC-259	0830	1, 7	IC-256	1320	3 5
IC-253	1100	2, 6	IC-254	1550	2, 6
IC-211	1240	4 6	IC-212	1740	4, 6
[redacted]
IC-213	0910	2, 4, 7	IC-213	1315	2 4 7
[redacted]
PF-737	0730	3 5	PF-738	1740	3, 5
[redacted]
IC-542	1115	1, 3, 5	IC-541	1030	1 3, 5

[redacted] INTERNATIONAL

[redacted]
IC-731	0855	2, 4, 6, 7	KB-106	1115	3
			KB-106	1215	5
KB-105	1125	2, 6	TG-313	1240	1, 3, 6
TG-314	1355	1, 3, 6	IC-732	1505	2, 4, 6, 7
AI-306	1950	5	AI-309	1925	6

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No.	Time	Days
[redacted]
RO-076	2040	5, 7	RO-075	1035	5, 7
[redacted]
IC-225	1200	1	IC-226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2, 5	BG-697	1655	2, 5
[redacted]
BG-092	0850	4, 5	BG-091	0810	4, 5
BG-092	1150	1, 2, 3, 6, 7	BG-091	1110	1, 2, 3, 6, 7
IC-723	1250	1, 2, 3, 5, 6	IC-724	1520	1, 2, 3, 5, 6
BG-094	1905	1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7	BG-093	1825	1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1, 5	BG-095	2020	1, 5
[redacted]
IC-747	1115	1, 3, 5	IC-748	1455	1, 3, 5
RA-214	1400	4, 7	RA-213	1315	4, 7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[redacted]
BA-142	2050	3, 7	BA-143	1525	3, 7
[redacted]
SU-538	1855	4	SU-537	1655	4
[redacted]
KB-106	1200	3	KB-105	1040	2, 6
KB-106	1300	5
[redacted]
SQ-415	2200	2	SQ-416	2040	2, 5
[redacted]
LZ-504	1750	4	LZ-503	1650	4
TOKYO
AI-306	1910	5	AI-309	1825	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure Up	Time	Howrah	Arrival Time	Dn
2311	19-15	Delhi-Kalka Mail	7-20	2312
3005	19-20	Amritsar Mail	7 55	3006
3003	20-35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13-00	3004
2381	9-15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat	16 15	2382
2303		Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fri & Sat Arr Mon, Thurs Fri & Sun	16 15	2304
2301	16-30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun	10-45	2302
2305	13-45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat	12 50	2306
3073	23-00	Himgiri (Jammu-Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues, Fri & Sat Arr Tues Wed & Sat	11-35	3074
5047	13-00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon Wed & Fri	4-30	5048
3009	20 30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9-45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18-15	3008
3049	13-20	Amritsar Express	15-30	3050
3039	21-00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5-20	3040
3019	16-05	Kathgodam Express	11-55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5-00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6 30	5660
3317	6-10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17-11	Coalfield Express	10-30	3030
3035	18-20	Asansol Express	8-45	3036
3031	21-05	Danapur Express	5 50	3032
3025	23-00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday, Arr Friday	11 35	3026
3071	22-30	Jamalpur Express	5-10	3072
3015	9-55	Santiniketan Express	15-40	3016
1159	15-25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri, Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tues & Wed	6-50	1160
1171	15-25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed, Arr Fri Sat & Sun	6 50	1172
3327	14-30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4-50	3328
1181	15-25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6-50	1182
		Sealdah
3141	13-40	Teesta-Torsa Express Dep Mon, Tues, Wed Thurs, Fri & Sun Arr Tues, Wed, Thurs, Fri, Sat & Sun	6-35	3142
3143	19-15	Darjeeling Mail	8-45	3144
3111	20-15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7-15	3112
5657	6-25	Kanchanjunga Express	20-35	5658
3153	22-00	Gour Express	5-15	3154
5683	20-00	Katihar Express	4-15	5684
3151	11-45	Jammu-Tawi Express	15-50	3152
3133	20-55	Mughal Sarai Express via SBG Loop	12-55	3134
3103	18-20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express	10-25	3104
5185	12-40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues Thus & Sat	4-25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure Up	Time	Howrah	Arrival Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6 50	6004
8002	19-20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8-10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16-20	8029
2841	14-10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12-00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday, Arr Saturday	19 40	7004
7003D	8-10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	1940	7004D
6311	22-35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13 45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8014
8011	6-15	Ispat Express	22 05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5-00	8006
8015	21-40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
8007	22-15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5 30	8008
8409	19-00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8 25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4-15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00	8046
8017	16 45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2421	16-40	Bhubaneswar-New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10	—
—	11-05	New Delhi-Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6322	22-35	Guwahati - Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22-15	—
—	14-05	Trivandrum Central - Howrah - Guwahati Express Saturday only	13-45	6321
—	14-05	Cochin Harbour Terminus - Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13 45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati - Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15	—
6316	22-35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri, Arr Tues & Fri	13-45	6315
6520	22-35	Guwahati - Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22-15	—
—	14-05	Bangalore City - Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains, please dial 2203545-54 for in-coming trains, 2203535-44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South-Eastern Railway trains, dial 2203466-3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition, dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running), 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535-37

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

IN THE RUINS OF FOX-BURN

In spite of the frenetic building activity in most hill-stations, there are still a few ruins to be found on the outskirts Neglected old bungalows that have fallen or been pulled down, and which now provide shelter for bats, owls, stray goats, itinerant sadhus, and sometimes the restless spirits of those who once dwelt in them

One such ruin is Fox-Burn, but I won't tell you exactly where it can be found, because I visit the place for purposes of meditation (or just plain contemplation) and I would hate to arrive there one morning to find about 50 people picnicking on the grass

And yet it did witness a picnic of sorts the other day, when the children accompanied me to the ruin They had heard it was haunted, and they wanted to see the ghost.

Rakesh is 12, Mukesh is six and Dolly is four and they are not afraid of ghosts I should mention here that before Fox-Burn became a ruin back in the Forties, it was owned by an elderly Englishwoman, Mrs Williams, who ran it as a boarding house for several years

In the end, poor health forced her to give up this work and during her last years she lived alone in the huge house, with just a chowkidar to help Her children who had grown up on the property, had long since settled in faraway lands

When Mrs Williams died, the chowkidar stayed on for some time until the property was disposed of but he left as soon as he could Late at night there would be a loud rapping on his door and he would hear the old lady calling out "Shamsher Singh, open the door! Open the door, I say, and let me in!"

Needless to say, Shamsher Singh kept the door firmly closed He returned to his village at the first opportunity. The hill-station was going through a slump at the time and the new owners pulled the house down and sold the roof and beams as scrap.

"What does Fox-Burn mean?" asked Rakesh, as we climbed the neglected, overgrown path to the ruin

"Well, Burn is a Scottish word meaning stream or spring. Perhaps there was a spring here once If so, it dried up long ago"

"And did a fox live here?"

"Maybe a fox came to drink at the spring There are still foxes living on the mountain. Sometimes, you can see them dancing in the moonlight"

Passing through a gap in the wall we came upon the ruins of the house In the bright light of the summer morning, it did not look in the least spooky or depressing A line of Doric pillars were all that remained of what must have been an elegant porch and verandah Beyond them, through the deodars, we could see the distant snows It must have been a lovely spot in which to spend the better part of one's life No wonder Mrs Williams wanted to come back

The children were soon scampering about on the grass, whilst I sought shelter beneath a huge chestnut tree

There is no tree as friendly as a chestnut, specially in summer when it is in full leaf The slightest breath of wind makes the leaves break into conversation and their rustle is a cheerful sound, unlike the pine trees in the wind

Mukesh discovered an empty watertank and Rakesh suggested that it had once fed the burn that no longer existed Dolly busied herself making nosegays with the daisies that grew wild in the grass

Rakesh looked up suddenly, he pointed to a path on the other side of the ruin, and exclaimed, "Look, what's that? Is it Mrs Williams?"

"A ghost!" said Mukesh excitedly

But it turned out to be the local washerwoman, a large white bundle on her head, taking a short-cut across the property A more peaceful place could hardly be imagined until a large black dog, a Spaniel of sorts, arrived on the scene.

He wanted someone to play with — indeed, he insisted on playing — and ran circles round us until we threw sticks for him to fetch and fed him half our sandwiches

"Whose dog is it?" asked Rakesh

"I've no idea"

"Did Mrs Williams keep a black dog?"

"Is it a ghost dog?" asked Mukesh

"It looks real to me," I said

"And it's eaten all my biscuits," said Dolly.

"Don't ghosts have to eat?" asked Mukesh

"I don't know, we'll have to ask one"

"It can't be any fun being a ghost if you can't eat," declared Mukesh

The black dog left us as suddenly as he had appeared and as there was no sign of an owner, I began to wonder if he had not, after all, been an apparition A cloud covered the sun and the air grew chilly

"Let's go home," said Mukesh

"I'm hungry," said Rakesh

"Come along, Dolly," I called But Dolly couldn't be seen

We called out to her and looked behind trees and pillars, certain she was hiding from us Almost five minutes passed in searching for her, and a sick feeling of apprehension was coming over me when Dolly emerged from the ruins and started running towards us

"Where have you been?" we demanded, almost with one voice

"I was playing in there — in the old house — playing hide and seek"

"On your own?"

"No, there were two children" A boy and a girl They were playing too"

"I haven't seen any children," I said

"They've gone now"

"Well, it's time we went too"

We set off down the winding path, with Rakesh leading the way, then had to wait because Dolly had stopped and was waving to someone.

"Who are you waving to Dolly?"

"To the children"

"Where are they?"

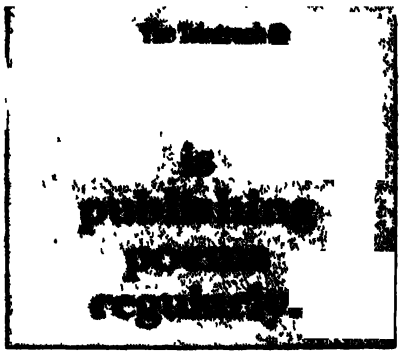
"Under the chestnut tree"

"I can't see them Can you see them Rakesh? Can you Mukesh?"

Rakesh and Mukesh said they couldn't see any children But Dolly was still waving

"Goodbye," she called

"Goodbye!"



Were there voices in the wind? Faint voices calling goodbye?

"We can't see anyone," I said

"No, but they can see me!"

Then she left off her game and joined us, and we ran home laughing Mrs Williams may not have revisited her old house that day, but perhaps her children had been there, playing under the chestnut tree they had known so long ago

(Sanctuary Features)

JAYANTA MAHAPATRA

selects the poems. All contributions should be sent directly to him at Tinkonia Bagicha, Cuttack 753001 and not to The Telegraph. Poems should be typewritten in double space, on one side of the paper Please retain copies of submitted poems as they will not be returned. All published poems will be paid for at our regular rates. No enquiries will be solicited

Fill in the coupon below and send with your contribution

___ Block letters please .

Name_____

Age_

Address_

POETRY

Selected by Jayanta Mahapatra

Durga

Swathed in yards of synthetic red raiments,
Awash in the haze of an unsure lumionsity.
More like a reluctant witness to our deeds—
Perpetually poised to strike at monsters,
Armed with deadly arms and a divine wrath—
Kill, Mother, tear asunder our black heart,
Out with thy deadly arms and divine wrath
Inured and immobilised you stand and stare,
Like a hapless onlooker, as we sink deep
Overcome by dark passions, into dark and
Vile labrynth of our darkened souls,
And yet you stand oblivious, uncaring
Or, has our evil surpassed our inhumanity,
Undone your power to undo the evil in us?

H. Rajendra Prasad

Bird on the Wall

Days of fever,
Pills and bitter taste
Are over
Morning

I sit on the verandah
Of my house
Watching a bird on
The wall chirping
It seems to Welcome me back to life

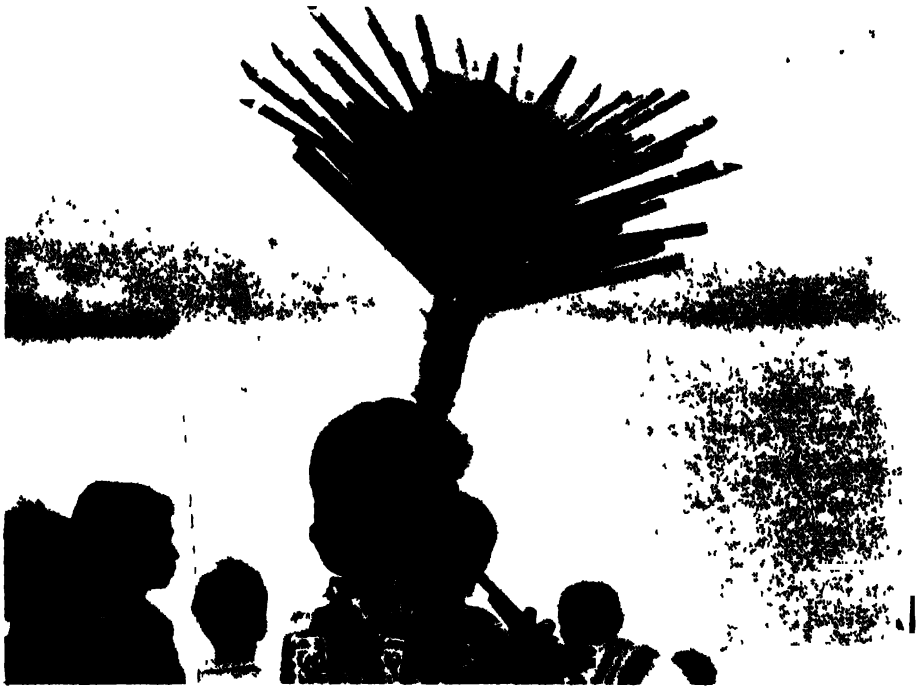
Lively bird,
It doesn't know that
It has made me happy
Watching it
I wonder how can it
Just live a life
Without any wish
To make someone happy.



K. Ramesh

The Course it Takes

Now if I think
I think of things not mine and I do not know of it at the time it's happening
I have come to it
drifting as a sub-continent
I cannot wrest myself free from it.
a dry leaf, perched on a stream and desperately seeking a naive bend
I am yet to know where I am heading

But this much I know this thing wafting me has already made me its victim.
No longer can I ask, nor answer, questions
This thing runs into its kind of untramelled water and wind.
This thing now quickens its steps to touch the head of its shadow, now walks ahead of me
playing with water;
its mouth a dark suture

Rabindra K. Swain

Far Away After an Earthquake

A giggle in the sky

While digging
the crumbled concretes and powdered mud walls saw a cry escaping into a placid sky

The earth wriggled ripples on her belly.
Lives crushed into death

I walked along the road listening to the people's talk, never read a newspaper
but couldn't help watching a TV report

Eyes dry of tears hearts ignorant of the reason behind the divine temper diviners suggested remedies astrologers proud of precision.

I watched the drumsticks swaying in frail branches and palm trees
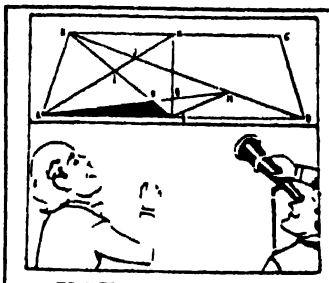
madly shaking their fronds.

M. Sabin

JUNIOR WHIRL

HAL KAUFMAN



© 1995 by King Features Syndicate Inc 1-22

FIND TWINS! Two of nine perfume bottles seen above look enough alike to be twins Which two is for you to decide

LOOSE CHANGE! Find the name of a current U S coin among consecutive letters of each sentence 1 Cedric entered the race 2 Di met with friends 3 Nick Ellen and Sue left 4 Your oil is down a quart Enn

1 Cent 2 Dime 3 Nickel 4 Quarter

BLACK HOLE SKY SCAN

THERE appears to be a triangular black hole (or something) in the section of sky formed by the trapezoid ABCD shown above

Question Of how many triangular components of the overall area is the black triangle a part? Do you say 4, 6, 8, 10?

Study the figure carefully, then list triangles in which black segment is found (Triangles may vary in size and shape)

When your list is complete, compare it with answer given below

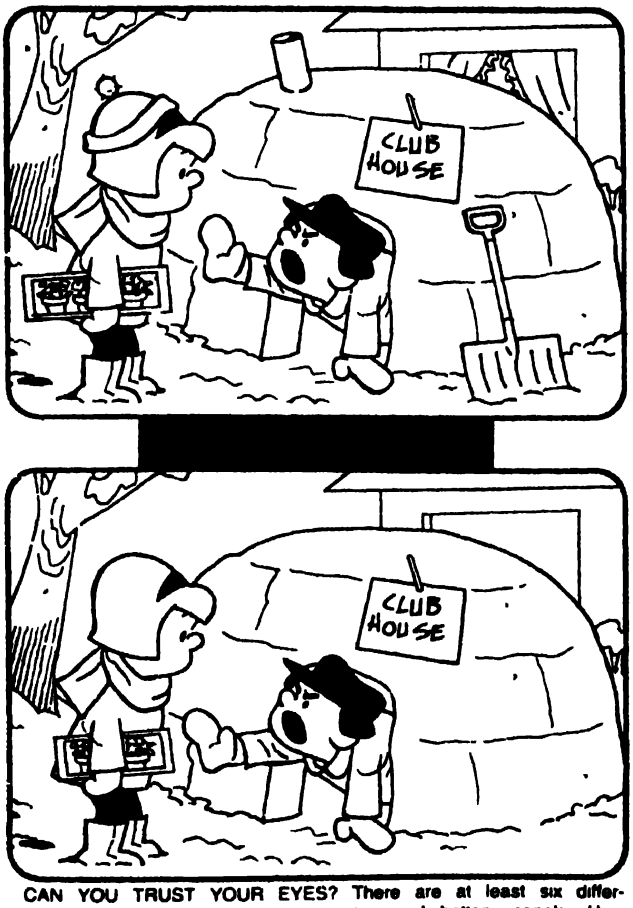
Time limit for your space probe is just two minutes

No fair peeking below

Triangle AEF appears in eight other triangles ACE AHE, AHD AIE AJD, AKE ABE, ABD

FULL HOUSE! Names of eight pieces of furniture are contained in the letter maze provided below You are invited to trace these names letter by letter in the following continuous order

Table, desk, chair, lamp, bed, mirror, sofa, piano.

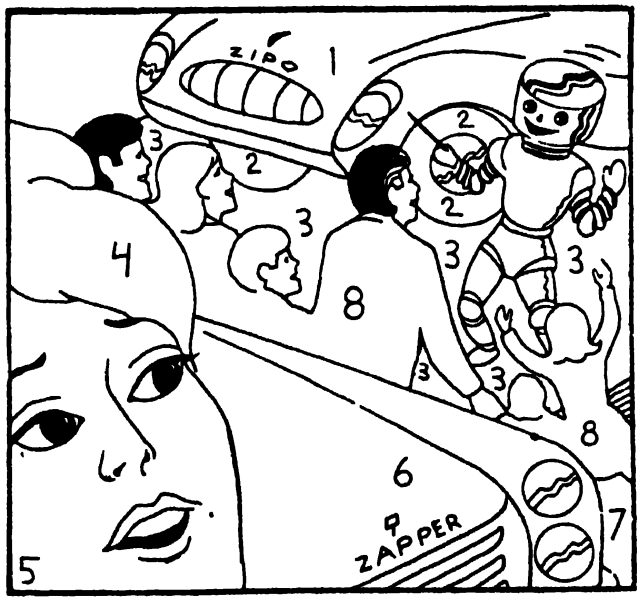


Begin at T in top left corner and proceed to adjacent letters, horizontally, vertically, or diagonally

Each letter in the diagram is to be used just once

Time limit Two minutes

T	A	O	N	O	S
L	B	A	P	F	R
D	E	I	A	R	O
E	S	K	R	I	M
H	C	R	P	B	D
A	I	L	A	M	E



HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below

Differences 1 Cap is missing 2 Picture is smaller 3 Chimney is missing 4 Arm is moved 5 Curtains are missing 6 Shovel is missing

FUNSPOT

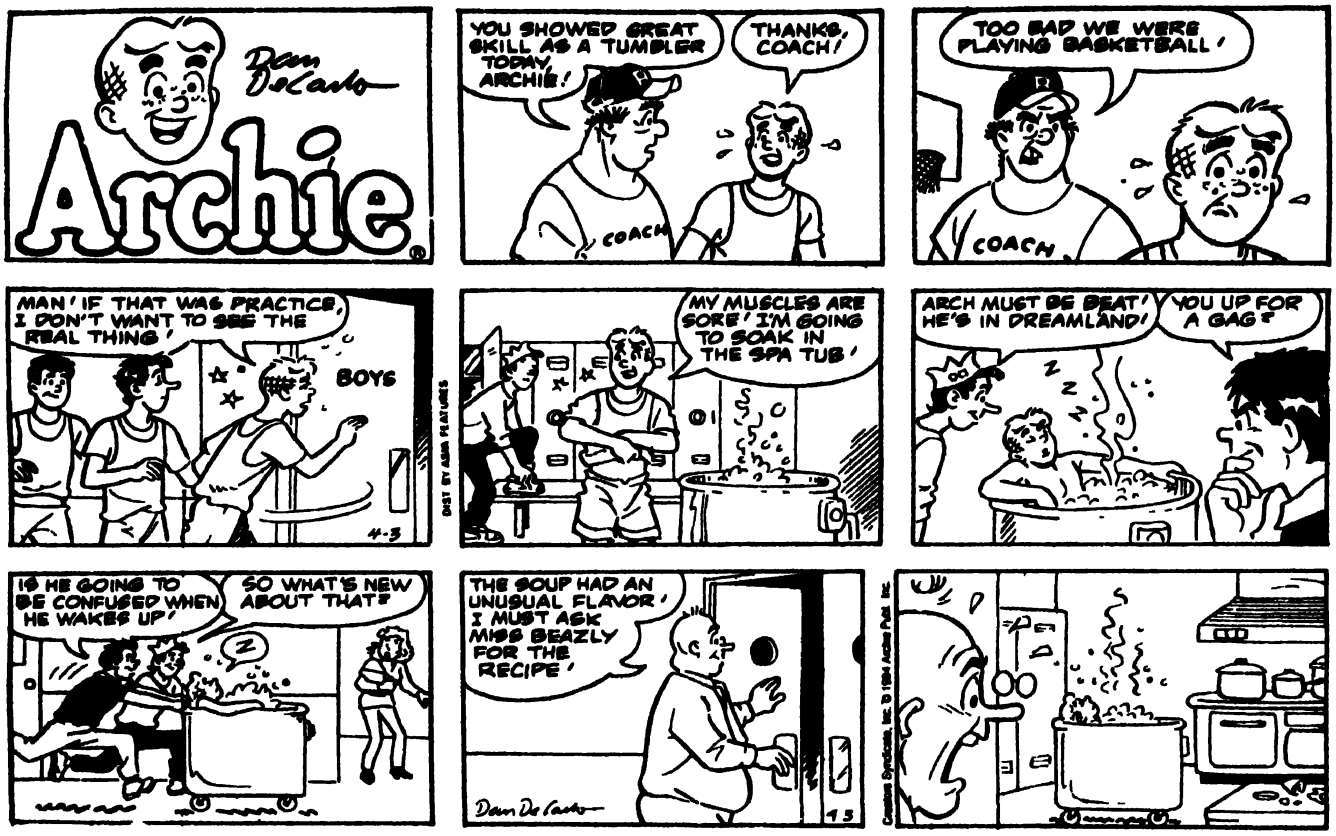
SHOW CASE! Rova the Robot is a hit at the car show Add the following colors neatly. 1—Red 2—Lt. blue 3—Yellow 4—Lt. brown 5—Flesh tones. 6—Green 7—Dk. brown 8—Lt purple

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

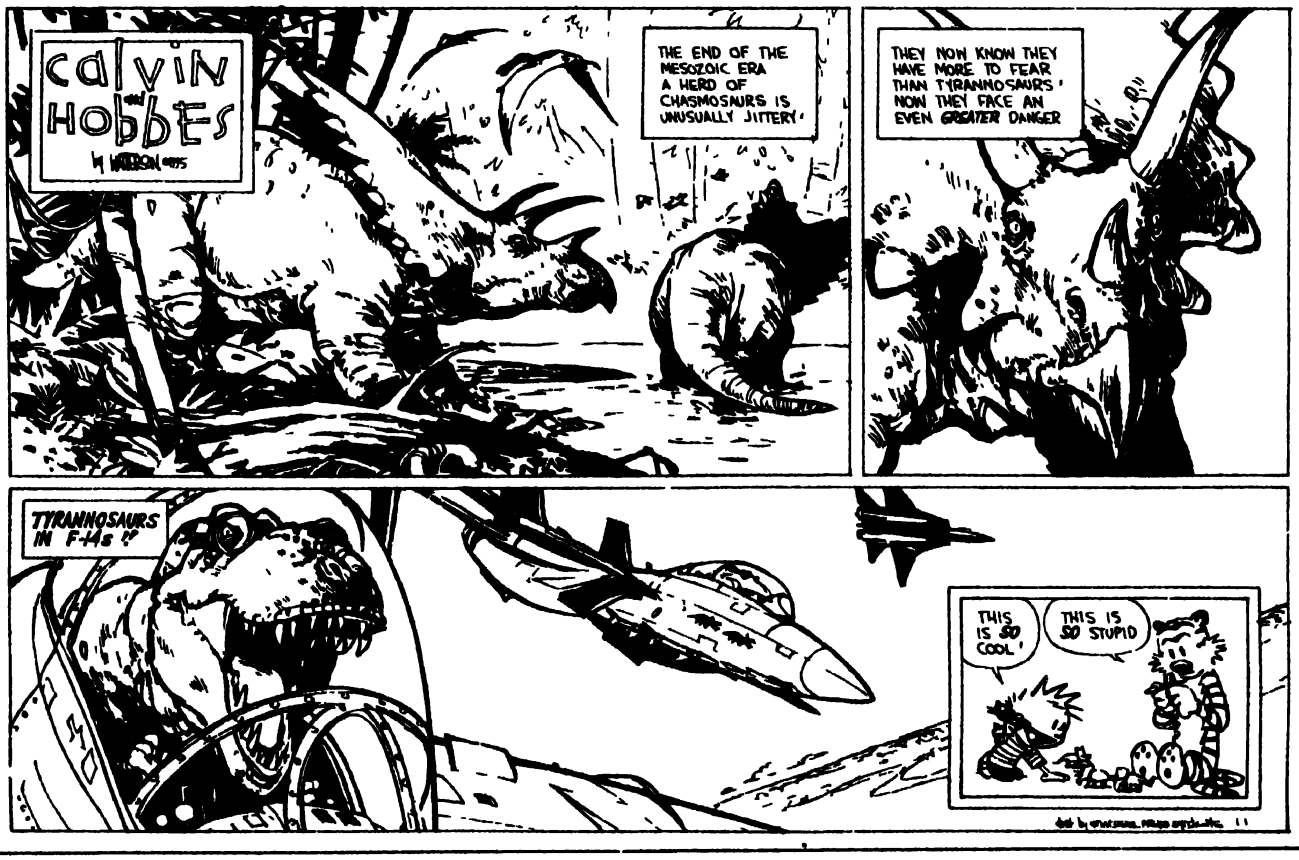
HEPTAGON

- - - - - - - - -



THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

Try to score at least 50 points



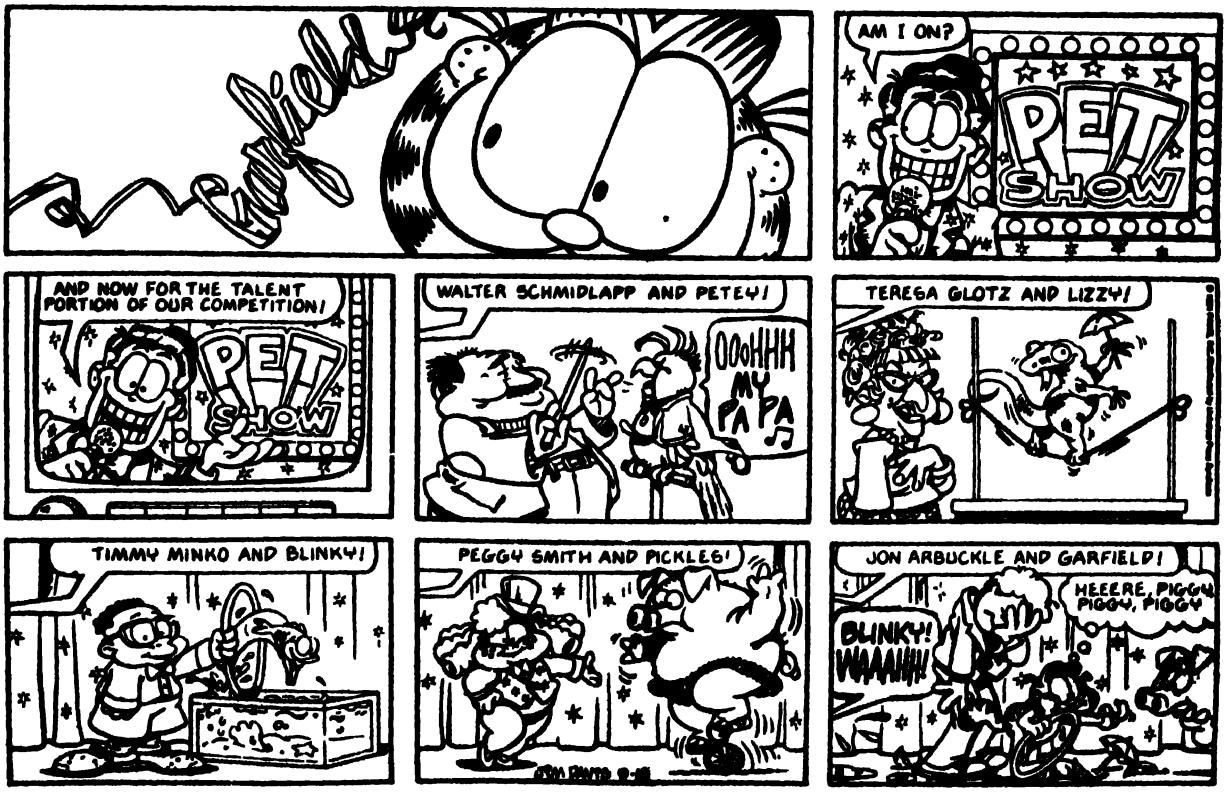
Possible twosome Path gone

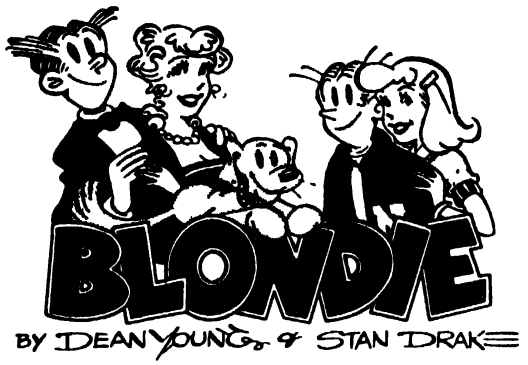
COMICS

ARCHIE

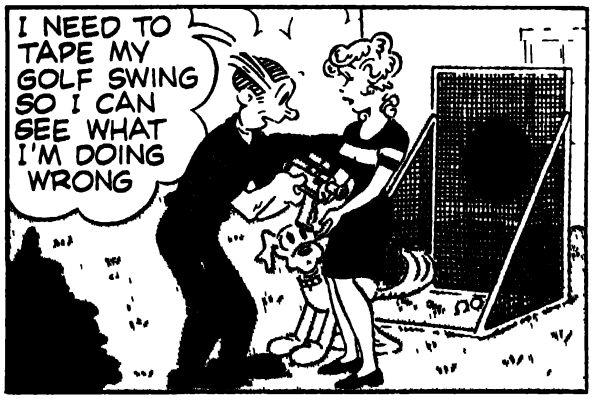
CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON

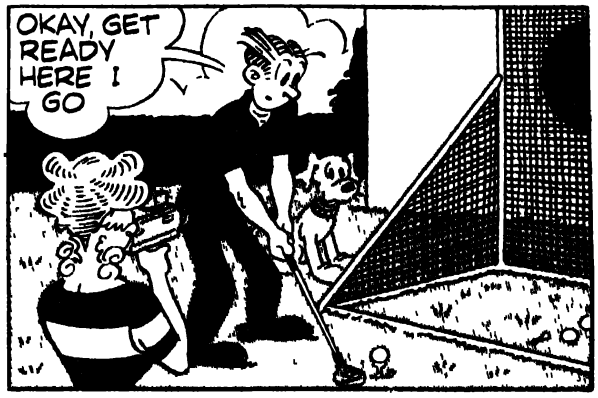
THE LOCKHORNS



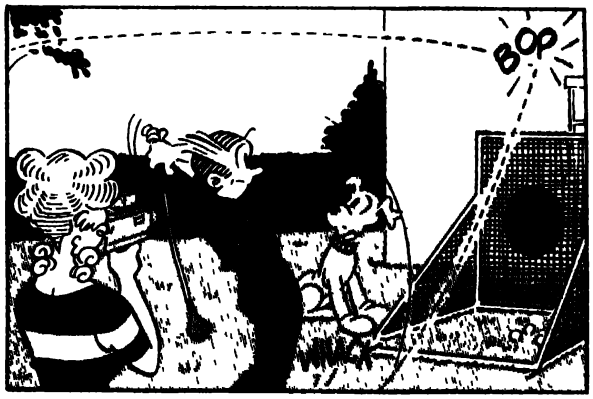


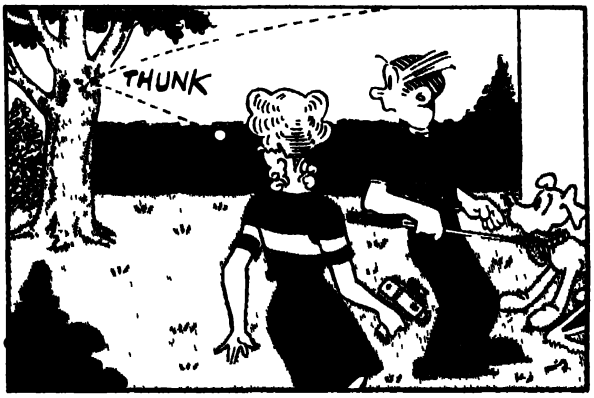
GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS

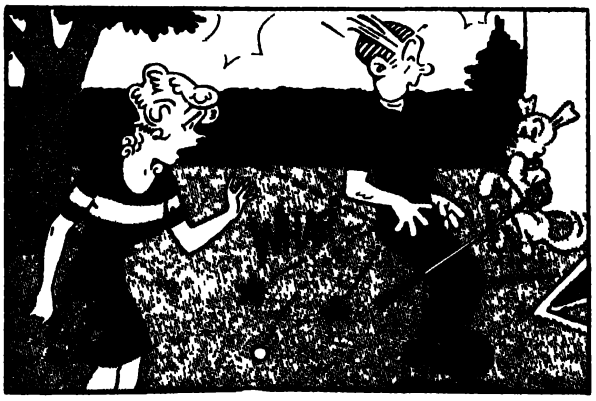


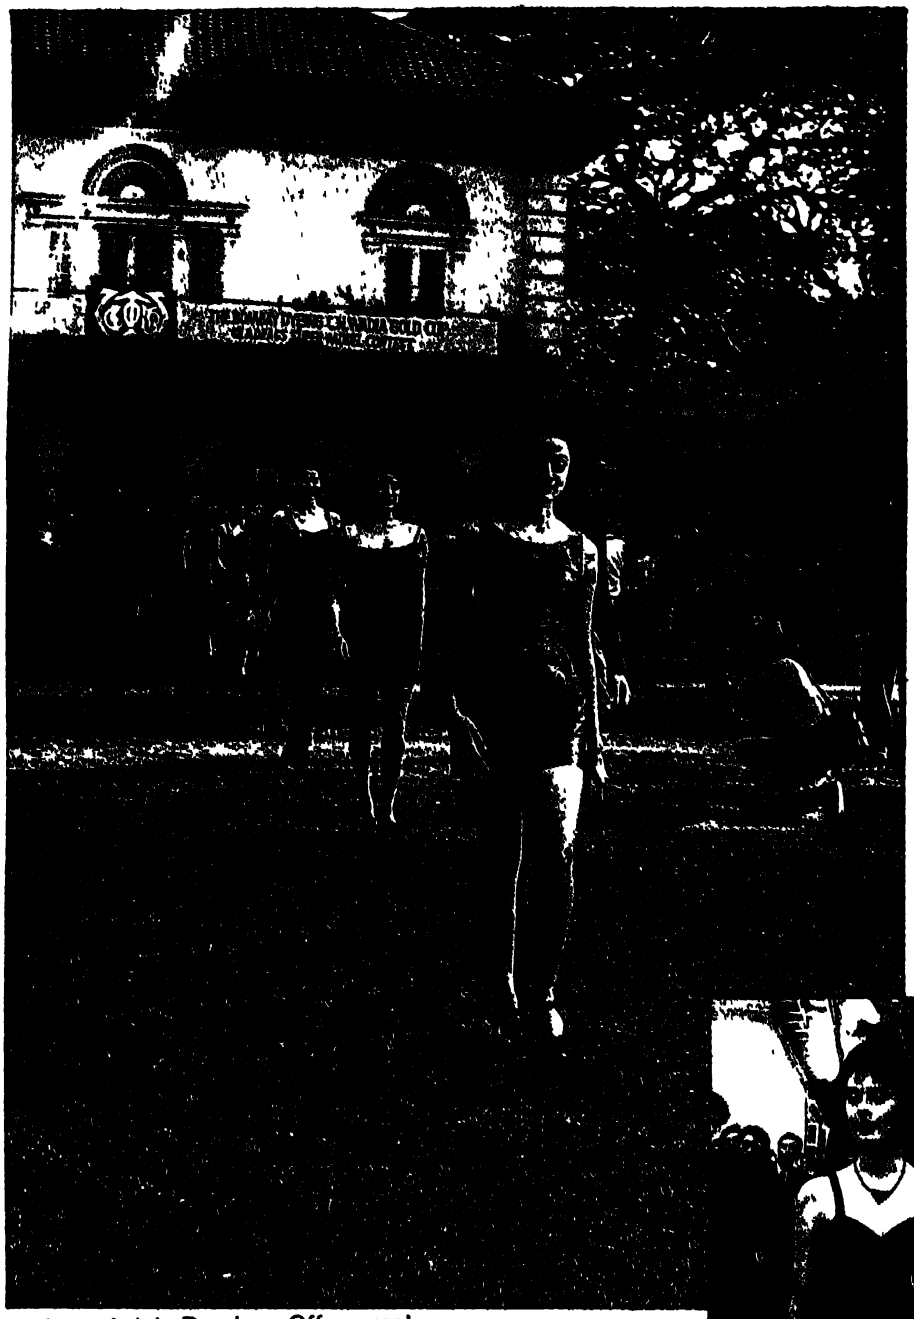


THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP









©1994 by King Features Syndicate Inc. World rights reserved

EVENT

Neigh and Yeah!

At the Mahalaxmi racecourse in Bombay, they had their fill recently; even those with just the glad eye. Lensman Gautam Patole had his share of the fun

At the turf club, Bombay Off course!

Gladrags editor Maureen Wadia with a model (left) and Karishma Kapoor

It was horseplay of sorts! Riding on the success of the Supermodel contest in March last year, Bombay Dyeing and Gladrags magazine were back — to put the three glamorous combos of modelling, fashion and racing together

The Mahalaxmi racecourse which provided the backdrop for the pulsating spectacle, Race 'n' Fashion Fantasy, saw not just horseflesh, but starlets, tipsters, punters, beefcake and cheesecake — jostling for space on the turf And there was dreamboat Karan Kapoor, and cousin Karishma, wooed and wowed by the crowd at large

The show began with Denim Rhapsody as the first of the four-part fashion sequence in which models strutted around in rugged cowboy outfits Namrata Shirodkar and Mehr Jesia catwalked on the paddock, as did Mallaika Arora, throwing the male audience into ecstacy

The second round was more ethnic in tone, followed by the Supermodel contest comprising 24 girls and 23 men (horses not included)

The finale at the grand stand, was the longest ever rampwalk (at 1,200 feet) cheered by a crowd gone berserk

Jasmine Shroff, Arti Iyer, Chandni Iyer, Ruskhsnaiida, Dionne Daniel, Zahira Lakdawalla — the semi-finalists among women, and Dinesh Bhandari, Karan Radhakrishna, Aseem Merchant, Mansoor Khan, Hassan Babai and Manpreet Singh — among men, walked away with the plaudits

For them, it could be the start of a promising career, as a look-back shows Jaggi Kaur, Super Model 1994, carving out, within a span of nine months, a career as a model on the international ramp Hardly had the dust settled when Rajat Bedi, India's first all-India

Part of the fashion show

The lineup

The parade

A face in the crowd: Giving the models a run for their money

Male Model 1994, came fourth at the World Manhunt contest in Australia

Bombay's semi-finalists will compete with their Delhi and Bangalore counterparts on D-day — February 18 and those coming up trumps will receive Rs 3 lakh in cash other than a load of gifts and exciting modelling contracts abroad

Though held on the same day as the Femina Miss India contest, there was little to eclipse the euphoria bubbling forth As a show on another course, the contest was an instant hit

Raj Bhatt

RASOI

JIGGS KALRA

Balti cooking is the current range in Britain and leading the Balti brigade is Shehzad Husain, a Pakistani of Hyderabadi origin, who has authored three books on Indian cuisine

A frequent contributor to newspapers and magazines, Husain, a one-time faculty member at the Cordon Bleu school in London, is consultant and advisor to the retail giant, Marks & Spencers Her latest — The Balti Cookbook — comes to us courtesy of Subhash Arora and Teksons One has to acknowledge Arora's contribution to food books — and food writers of Indian origin His first effort — Indian Cookery by Michael Pandya — was a bestseller Husain's book promises to do even better and as far as Rasoi is concerned, will make a handsome addition to your cookbook library

Two recipes, with a promise of more to follow in the coming weeks

BALTI CHICKEN

INGREDIENTS

1 125 kg / 2 1/2 lb Chicken
45 ml / 3 tbs Cooking oil (preferably corn oil)
3 Onions (medium)
3 Tomatoes (medium)
1 stick Cinnamon (1")
3 Green cardamom
2 Black cardamom
4 Black peppercorns
1 25 g 1/2 tsp Shahi jeera (Black cumin seeds)
10 g / 1 3/4 tsp Garlic paste (strained)
10 g / 1 3/4 tsp Ginger paste (strained)
3 g / 1 tsp Garam masala
3 g / 1 tsp Red chilli powder
Salt
30 g / 2 tbs Yoghurt
60 ml / 1/4 cup Lemon juice
6 5 g / 2 tbs Coriander
2 Green chillies

Serves: 4-6
Preparation Time. 45 minutes
Cooking Time: 35 minutes

PREPARATION

The chicken· Clean, remove the skin, trim, cut each breast into 2 pieces, separate the drumsticks from the thighs to obtain 8 pieces, wash and pat dry
The vegetables: Peel, wash and slice onions Remove eyes, wash, halve and slice tomatoes Clean, wash and chop coriander Wash green chillies, slit, deseed, finely chop and discard the stems
The yoghurt· Beat in a bowl

COOKING

Heat oil in a large kadhai/wok or deep round-bottomed frying pan, add onions, bhunno/stir-fry until golden, add tomatoes and stir for a couple of minutes Then add cinnamon, both the cardamom, peppercorns, cumin seeds, the ginger and garlic pastes, garam masala, chilli powder and salt, stir, reduce to low heat and bhunno/stir-fry for 3-5 minutes Increase to medium heat, add chicken pieces, 2 at a time, and bhunno/stir-fry for at least 7 minutes or until the spice mixture has completely penetrated the chicken pieces Reduce to low heat, stir-in yoghurt, cover with foil (ensuring it does not touch the food) and cook very gently for about 15 minutes, checking once to make sure that the food does not stick to the bottom of the kadhai or pan Sprinkle lemon juice, stir, remove and adjust the seasoning

Balti Chicken

TO SERVE

Remove to a platter, garnish with coriander and green chillies and serve at once

Note. Chicken cooked on the bone is both tender and flavoursome However, you may substitute the whole chicken with 675 g / 1 1/4 lb of boned and cubed chicken The cooking time would be reduced

BALTI STUFFED VEGETABLES

INGREDIENTS

3 Aubergines (small)
1 Red bell pepper
1 Green bell pepper
1 Yellow bell pepper

The Stuffing
45 ml / 3 tbs Cooking oil (preferably corn oil)
3 Onions (medium)
3 g / 1 tsp Red chilli powder
0 75 g / 1/4 tsp Turmeric powder
3 g / 1 tsp Coriander powder
3 g / 1 tsp Cumin powder
10 g / 1 3/4 tsp Ginger paste (strained)
10 g / 1 3/4 tsp Garlic paste (strained)
Salt
450 g / 1 lb Kid / Lamb mince (lean)
3 Green chillies
6 5 g / 2 tbs Coriander

The Sauteed Onions
45 ml / 3 tbs Cooking oil (preferably corn oil)
0 75 g / 1/4 tsp Kalonji (onion seeds)
0 75 g / 1/4 tsp Mustard seeds
0 75 g / 1/4 tsp Fenugreek seeds
0 5 g / 1/4 tsp Cumin seeds
4 Dried red chillies
3 Onions (medium)
Salt
3 g / 1 tsp Red chilli powder
2 Tomatoes (medium)
2 Green chillies
6 5 g / 2 tbs Coriander

Serves 6
Preparation Time. 1 hour
Cooking Time 35 minutes

Balti Stuffed Vegetables

PREPARATION

The aubergines (eggplant) Wash, slit lengthwise up to the stalks, keeping the stalks intact
The bell peppers. Wash, cut the tops off the peppers and deseed You can retain the tops and use them as 'lids' once the vegetables have been stuffed
The stuffing Peel, wash and slice onions Wash green chillies, slit, deseed, finely chop and discard the stems Clean, wash and chop coriander

Heat oil in a medium handi / pan, add onions, fry over medium heat for about 3 minutes, reduce to low heat, add chilli, turmeric, coriander and cumin powders (dissolved in 30 ml / 2 tbs of water), stir, add the ginger and garlic pastes, stir, add salt, stir, bhunno / stir-fry for about a minute Then add the mince, increase to medium heat, bhunno / stir-fry for 7-10 minutes, using a wooden spoon to scrape the bottom of the pan Now add the green chillies and coriander, stir, remove, adjust the seasoning and keep aside

When the mince is cool, pack it loosely in the vegetables
The sauteed onions Wipe dried red chillies, clean with moist cloth Peel, wash and chop onions Remove eyes, wash, halve and slice tomatoes Wash green chillies, slit, deseed, finely chop and discard the stems Clean, wash and chop coriander

COOKING

Heat oil in a large kadhai / wok or deep round-bottomed frying pan, add kalonji (onion), mustard, fenugreek and cumin seeds together with the dried red chillies, bhunno / stir-fry for about a minute, add onions, fry until onions are soft (approximately 2 minutes) Then add salt, chilli powder, tomatoes, green chillies and coriander, cook for a minute Remove, adjust the seasoning and keep aside

Place the stuffed vegetables on top of the sauteed onions in the kadhai / wok, cover with foil, ensuring that the foil does not touch the food, return kadhai / wok to low heat and cook for 15 minutes Remove when the vegetables are tender

TO SERVE

Serve with steamed rice or pulao

NOTE All weights are nett, that is post-preparation, and not gross ■

FIRST PERSON

KELUCHARAN MAHAPATRA is one of the few dancer-gurus who is known to have brought Odissi out of the temple sculptures and the traditional palm leaf paintings to the centrestage of contemporary dance. Over 1[illegible] dance numbers, including several ashtapadis and pallavis, and more than 50 dance ballets have been choreographed by him, though his best performances remain inside the classroom where he has groomed the likes of Sonal Mansingh, Sanjukta Panigrahi and Protima Bedi. A workaholic, this Padma Bhushan is known for his singleminded devotion to his kala.

What is your idea of perfect happiness?
The success of my work
What is your greatest fear?
Non-acceptance of truth in my work.
Who or what has been the greatest influence in your life?
Guruma, my wife
What do you dislike most in others?
Bad behaviour

What do you dislike most on your appearance?

My big naabhi (navel)

What do you dislike most in yourself?
Not possessing a clear mind
What is your most precious possession?
The blessings of God
What objects do you always carry?
Paan
What makes you most depressed?
Not being successful in my work
What do you dislike most on your appearance?
My big naabhi (navel)
What is your favourite word?
Shiva
What is your favourite journey?
To Delhi.
What is your favourite dream?
About the darshan of God
What is your nightmare?
Criticism
What or who is the greatest love of your life?
Nritya
What is your source of sustenance?
My son, whatever I can do for him
On what occasions do you lie?
For the benefit of others
What is your greatest regret?
Not being able to establish a dance institute according to my wish
What has been your happiest moment?
The day I was blessed by my mother for receiving the Padma Bhushan

What do you envy most in others?

That my wife dances better than I do

What brings tears to your eyes?
Teaching the abhinaya portion
How do you relax?
Watching television and taking some seva from Guruma.
What do you envy most in others?
That my wife dances better than I do
How would you like to be remembered?
For my polite behaviour
How would you like to die?
In the name of Shiva

If you can keep your head while those about you are losing theirs and blaming it on you Stay where you are
If you can't, welcome to Kanha - Kipling country
940 square kilometers of Eden
The nearest crowd is a mountain range away
A blurred marsh harrier swoops down on a cluster of bush quail
A four-horned antelope hangs in mid-air and races on
A blue bull vanishes behind a veil of bamboo
A leopard rockets across the horseshoe-shaped valley
Now you see him, now you don't Wait a minute! Hold your breath
You are eye-to-eye with a tiger
Whew!
Slow down It's the only place on earth where you can see the swamp deer
Kanha
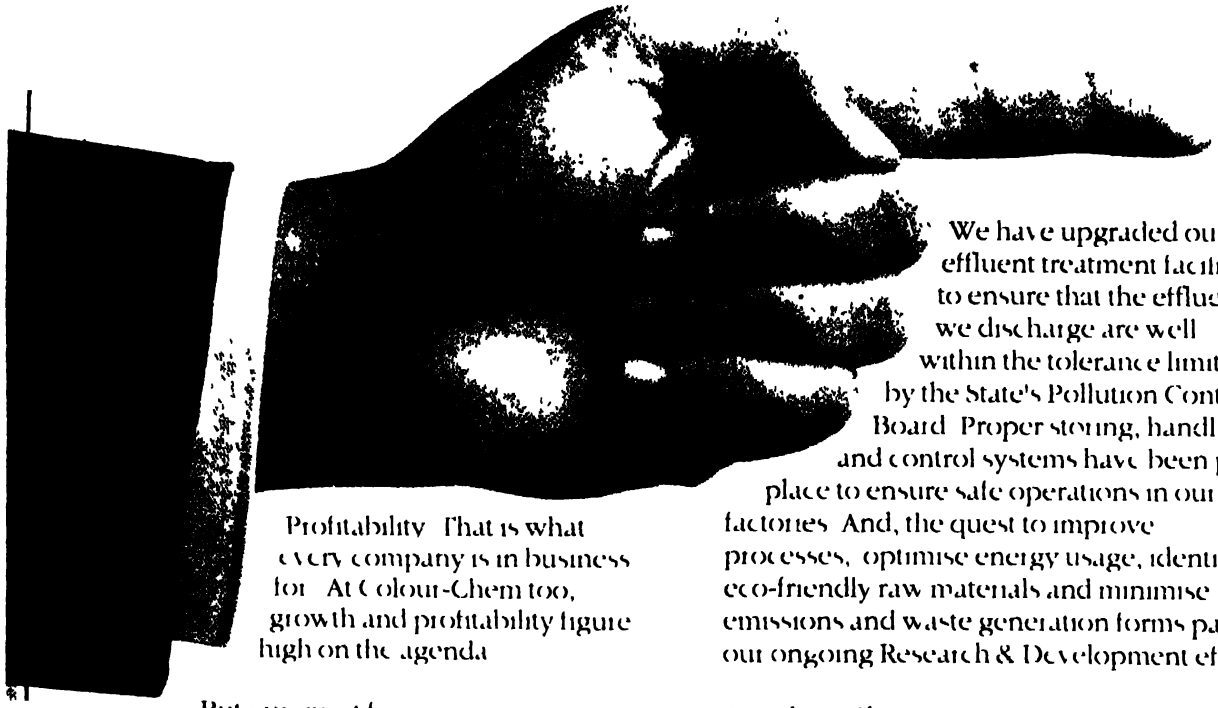
Where Mowgli, Baloo, Bagheera and Sher Khan are looking forward to your visit



MADHYA PRADESH TOURISM
YOUR HOSTS IN THE HEART OF INDIA

Places of interest nearby MAPBLE ROCKS (Bhedaghat) Soaring to a spectacular 100ft on either side of the serene Narmada Equally spectacular are the Dhuandhar Falls
Where to stay KANHA Kanha Safari Lodge (Mukki) on the banks of a river provides all city comforts Baghira Log Huts (Kisli) is a charming cluster of cottages Jungle Camp (Khatia) provides ideal economy accommodation in a jungle setting Tourist Hostel (Kisli) has dormitories MARBLE ROCKS Motel Marble Rocks provides a spectacular view of the famous gorge JABALPUR Hotel Kalchuri A modern, professionally run hotel with all amenities
How to get there Kanha is well connected by road Nearest railheads are Jabalpur (165 kms), Raipur (213 kms) and Nagpur (290 kms) The latter two are also the nearest airports Bhedaghat is a mere 23 kms from Jabalpur

We offer convenient and great value package tours from Ahmedabad, Bombay, Calcutta and New Delhi For more information and bookings, contact your nearest MPT Office BHOPAL Gangotri', T T Nagar Tel 554340-43 Fax 552384 AHMEDABAD G 3 Hemkoot Complex, Opp Capital Commercial Centre, Ashram Road Tel 420395 BOMBAY 74 World Trade Centre Cuffe Parade, Colaba Tel 2184860, 2187603 CALCUTTA 'Chitrakoot' Room No 7, 6th Floor, 230 A, A J C Bose Road Tel 2478543, 2475855 NAGPUR 407-A Lokmat Bhawan Wardha Road Tel 523374 NEW DELHI 204 205 Kanishka Shopping Plaza, 19 Ashoka Road Tel 3321187 3324511 (Ext 277) Mrignayani Emporium, Brahmaputra Shopping Complex (near Railway Reservation Centre), Sector 29 NOIDA Tel 89-55283 89-56756
Kanha National Park is closed from July 1 to October 31

BAGHIRA LOG HUTS KISLI

WHILE THE MIND POINTS TO NEXT YEAR'S TARGETS, OUR HEARTS POINT TO THE ENVIRONMENT.

Profitability That is what every company is in business for At Colour-Chem too, growth and profitability figure high on the agenda

But our quest for success is distinguished by an additional characteristic - an abiding concern for the environment It is this voice that ensures that the Company's growth is not at the expense of the environment

We have upgraded our effluent treatment facilities to ensure that the effluents we discharge are well within the tolerance limits set by the State's Pollution Control Board Proper storing, handling and control systems have been put in place to ensure safe operations in our factories And, the quest to improve processes, optimise energy usage, identify eco-friendly raw materials and minimise emissions and waste generation forms part of our ongoing Research & Development effort

At Colour-Chem, concern for the environment always comes ahead of plans for growth and progress Because our Company has a heart that rules over the mind

Colour-Chem

Subsidiary of Hoechst AG

194 Churchgate Reclamation Bombay 400 020

Hoechst

HTA 2481 95

The Telegraph

19 FEBRUARY 1995

POST MORTEM

Not Born in the USA, But...

■ The cover story, 'Campus Complex' (January 22), reflects the initial agonies of Indian students who go to the US for higher studies

Self-help forms the basic philosophy of the American education system And the faster the Indian students learn it, the better

There is no private coaching system American students spend more hours in the library than their Indian counterparts The sincerity of the teachers is a great motivating factor for the students which is rarely found in Indian campuses

Once Indians learn to cope with the pressure and feel less homesick, they perform very well because of their hard work No wonder American professors prefer Indian students to do research under them than American students

But Indians used to hostel life have an advantage They can face the new environment with greater confidence and can adjust faster

Manoranjan Das,
Jamshedpur

C R Venkatesh

Bangalore: The people are as nice as the city

■ After a long time the Magazine produced an excellent cover story Indians, to whom emotions matter more than competitions, naturally take long to adapt themselves to an alien society

Sanjib Dutta,
Calcutta

■ I feel proud that Indian students are able to make a niche for themselves in the academic world of the US

Education also means being able to adapt oneself to any environment Once a student does so, much can be expected of him

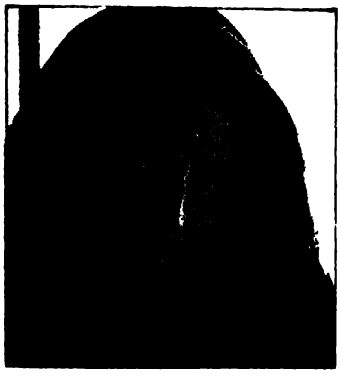
One important thing Indian students in the US should never forget is their cultural moorings Even as students, they should project Indian culture and its traditions abroad

Prasanta Kumar Ghosh,
Barasat (W B)

Bangalore, With a Heart

■ The cover story, 'Urban Holiday' (January 8) only harped on the material development of Bangalore The human side was totally ignored

Undoubtedly, Bangalore will soon become one of Asia's prime electronic centres But the people of Bangalore are worth talking about



I was in Bangalore at the time of Rajiv Gandhi's assassination and very apprehensive of an outbreak of communal violence But not only did the city stay calm throughout that tumultuous period, the citizens went on with their daily chores, quite unruffled

They are very courteous to people who visit the city What the article really missed out was Bangalore's work culture Hartals, strikes or any form of unrest are rare No wonder foreign investors are making a beeline for Bangalore

Calcutta should see the difference

Debabrata Mohanty,
Balasore (Orissa)

INSIDE

Anil Grover

PAGE 6

SHOBHA DE has done it again This time, she becomes the first in Indian publishing history to release two titles simultaneously — at the Calcutta Book Fair, which ended last fortnight And each title from a different leading publisher We give you extracts from both

SECTIONS

4 LIFESTYLE
16 TIME TABLE
18 RUSKIN BOND
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
26 PINUP
27 IN
28 RASOI
30 FIRST PERSON

Cover Anil Grover

IF YOU PLEASE!

The latest in the line of fashion, from Paris (and Milan)

Photographs: AP

German model Claudia Schiffer does wonders for a pale blue, tight-fitting dress as part of Valentino's ready-to-wear collection

Italian model Carla Bruni in a red flared cocktail dress (Herve Leger collection)

Danish model Helena Christensen presents a black cocktail Herve Leger design

Italian actress-model Isabella Rossellini on the catwalk during a Bluemarina fashion show

COVER STORY

The TRIP

Ritika was a woman with wild uncontrollable longings It had always been this way with her, ever since she was a child growing up on the outskirts of Delhi Her parents had long given up trying to understand their self-willed youngest daughter, so different from the other children So different in fact that her timid mother often wondered under which particular celestial conjunction she'd conceived her Ritika looked different, acted different, behaved different She was unlike anybody her family had ever known — with an untamed, limitless imagination that made people around her dizzy It got Ritika into a great deal of trouble too as a school girl And even more of it as an adult, especially since her husband, locked in a world defined by money and yet more money, didn't have the foggiest notion about his sweet, docile wife's secret life peopled by dangerous men and breathless moments Hiten only saw a restrained and respectable woman who kept a clean, efficient house and was a wonderful mother to their three children

But recently, Ritika's fantasies had started to scare and worry her She'd begun to panic at her own thoughts, agonise over the eventual consequences of actions not yet taken Because she knew she was going to do it -- fulfil at least one of her recurrent dreams, that is Before it was too late — too late to live the life she constantly yearned for A life lived on the edge nervously but oh so deliciously Ritika was sick of the self-deception She'd started to feel more and more like an imposter And like all imposters, she knew it was only a matter of time before she'd found out and exposed Not that she cared about the outcome of such a prospect in her more reckless moments On the contrary, she hankered after it "God, I hope it happens soon," she'd think to herself as she supervised dinner "I can't keep up the pretence much longer " Pretence? What pretence? Nothing had changed as far as her behaviour was concerned She didn't neglect to perform any of her duties She loved and cared for her family She said all the right things at the right moment to the right person She was admired for her skills at 'managing' everything so efficiently without neglecting anyone or anything Friends often asked her advice on how to perform the perfect balancing act She'd overheard one or the other remarking, "It's amazing how she does it Just look at her — so in control, so on top of the situation And look at me, for instance — one minor emergency and I promptly fall apart "

Ritika enjoyed stringing women like them along — offering advice on time-management to harried careerists, giving tips on smart investments to housewives with small, private incomes, helping a mother understand a difficult child better, counselling a distraught wife on how best to cope with a neglectful husband without nagging Yes, Ritika could do all that most convincingly even as her mind continued to race with fevered images of unlikely situations, unspoken conversations and untamed couplings with strangers at twilight

It amused and aggravated her that her husband suspected nothing, knew nothing, understood nothing He saw in her only what he wanted to see — a loving wife who behaved herself at parties, unlike some of the other bitches, a conscientious mother who didn't skip a single PTA, and an obliging bed partner who rarely said "no" Hiten was a simple, self-satisfied man

Ajit Gore

Extracted from Small Betrayals by Shobha De, UBSPD, 1995, Rs 85

BY SHOBHA DE

whose idea of a marital crisis didn't go beyond his wife's refusal to attend a business dinner with him because she just wasn't "in the mood"

"There's no question," he'd once thundered when Ritika had trotted that out as an excuse "Moods don't come into this It is your duty as my wife to accompany me whenever and wherever I go after all, it's for our sake that I'm doing all this Do you think I enjoy going to all these boring affairs?" Ritika had bowed her head and assumed a penitent expression -- she'd become very good at doing that without further argument, she'd gone to her cupboard and busily started looking for an appropriate saree How easy it was to fool her husband -- to appease him, distract him, and forget about him

Sometimes Ritika wondered whether there was something seriously the matter with her Did other women 'suffer' from a similar syndrome? Whom could she ask such a crazy question to? Ritika imagined phoning her friend, Anisha — the only real friend she had — to ask, "Do you sometimes feel so strongly attracted to a stranger that at that particular moment you know — you just know — you'd leave your family, your husband, children, everything and run away with him?" It had happened to her She remembered at least one incident clearly

Hiten had decided — uncharacteristically — to take her along on a business trip abroad They were to spend four days in Dubai — a place that had always intrigued Ritika - - before leaving for London The thought of travelling with as boring and unadventurous a companion as Hiten was something Ritika reconciled herself to At least he was pleasant enough, if not exactly inspiring Besides, a new place always fired up her imagination and made her pulse race The possibilities — oh God — the possibilities, she'd think excitedly even when at the back of her mind she knew only too well that each trip would be exactly like the previous one — uneventful and crammed with shopping for the kids And yet, as Ritika packed, she had visions of unexpected adventures, unplanned happenings Hiten, of course, only experienced the usual excitement most people display at the prospect of going abroad "I'm warning you," he cautioned his wife goodhumouredly, "No shopping this time I'm not a rich man, remember "

Ritika had grinned tolerantly at that husbandly remark Shopping! He actually thought she was all charged up about shopping! Ha! What did she care about a new lipstick or the latest perfume? What a fool Hiten was to think she'd be smiling her secret smile over something as mundane as shopping

On their third day in Dubai, exhausted, dehydrated and desperately bored going from one glittering shopping mall to the other, Ritika had longed to catch her breath and drink a tall glass of iced tea She'd tugged at Hiten's shirt sleeve He'd looked irritable and tired too, as if all the walking around looking for cheap electronic goods was her fault

"Now what?" he'd asked shortly

She'd pointed to a small self-service cafe and said, "I'm thirsty Can we catch our breath a little?"

He'd consulted his watch — a gesture she found particularly irritating — it wasn't as if he had an appointment to keep and they were running hopelessly behind schedule because of her Reluctantly, he'd agreed They'd staggered towards the chairs and collapsed tiredly, scattering their bundles all over

Ritika had her large sunglasses on She was dressed in clothes she despised — clothes she wouldn't have dreamt of wearing in Bombay — tights and a casual shirt She sat at a small round table and looked blankly ahead of her while Hiten went off to get her tea She noticed a small, chic shoe shop adjoining the cafe It had an unusually attractive window display Whoever had arranged the hay and rocks over painted sand must have been awfully artistic, she concluded idly, comparing the different textures and colours The shoes were different

Dilip Sett

too — not the usual strappy sandals and chunky platforms so in vogue then These were beautifully crafted works of art in jewel tones — rich purples, deep pinks, velvety greens, indiscent blues Classical shoes, moulded to caress the foot snugly Some had tiny windows cut on top, others were laced up in front The heels were graceful and sculptured, the leather, matt-finished and unblemished Ritika couldn't take her eyes off the footwear, poised so delicately over rough-hewn rocks She couldn't remember shoes ever looking so seductive She imagined how wearing one of them would feel - - the leather brushing against her skin, her toes fitting snugly inside, her ankle resting lightly on the well-balanced heel

And shoes were not even a fetish with her To add to it, Ritika had problem feet and a bunion distorting her left big toe It was one of the reasons why she disliked travelling Her feet experienced enormous fatigue even before she left the airport But these shoes looked so heavenly so pretty almost too pretty to be worn At least far too pretty for her singularly unattractive feet So what? She thought defiantly I know I'll never own such a fine pair — they probably cost a small fortune — but at least I can dream She continued to stare, lingering over each handcrafted detail Just then, a man with a long, easy stride walked out of the shop She noticed him immediately He noticed her too He was one of the best looking men she'd ever seen And frighteningly elegant in a studiedly casual sort of a way He walked a short distance to an adjoining shop and came back briskly His eyes caught hers again

In real life Ritika rarely reacted to men — strange men — this strongly But this man was extraordinary To begin with, he sported a neatly-tied pony-tail Normally, Ritika would have mocked a grown man with a similar hair-style And this chap was no spring chicken He had a much-lived face — angled and sharp This ought to have made the pony-tail seem still more incongruous, almost foolish - - he certainly wasn't dressed like a hippie On the contrary, his clothes were conservative and expensive-looking Loose grey trousers and an open-necked blue shirt He wore tan-coloured brogues on his large feet But then, he was large too — over six feet tall And broad Ritika quickly tried to think who he reminded her of — some Hollywood movie star? An archetypal gigolo from a European film? No Then it came to her — he resembled a Giorgio Armani advertisement — the one that featured a mature man with a weathered face A man who looked like he'd slept with hundreds of women and would sleep with hundreds more And yet, not an obvious Lothario Not a vain, empty-headed Lover Boy but a man of refined tastes and acute sensibilities A thinking man A sensitive man Someone who probably played the flute for relaxation Ate strawberries after sex and painted his lover's toe-nails fire-engine red while she slept

Hiten came back crossly saying, "No iced tea " They don't have it Why don't you drink a Pepsi like everybody else?"

The spell was broken, but not entirely Absently Ritika said, "OK I'll have a Pepsi Sorry about the tea '

And Hiten was off again Ritika's eyes went back to the shop entrance She knew he'd walk out soon Very soon And he did Her heart skipped a beat and she began to wonder whether he'd come up to her and ask, "Mind if I join you?" He probably thought she was alone since Hiten had been in a queue most of the time She obviously looked interested Ritika blushed at the thought Maybe she was giving out all the wrong (right?) signals The man must have concluded she was a tourist — one of those bored, rich wives, on a shopping junket He probably saw (and slept with) several of those How terrible She stared as he strode off again His back looking as inviting, as sexy as his front Perhaps even more so Mentally, she stripped him off his clothes She visualised what his bottom must look like — taut and well-muscled, though it was really quite hard to tell through the loose lines of his impeccably cut trousers She liked his loping walk The way he'd causally rolled up his sleeves The neat bow around his pony-tail The broad, square forehead The cheekbones like priceless calcium deposits The eyes — deep-set and as blue as the Mediterranean This man was a cliche. Alarmingly good-looking A three dimension designer ad

Then why was she reacting so foolishly? She, who was not the sort to go for lookers and never had been She, who rarely devoured men with her eyes (most weren't worth the effort) She who didn't see herself as a particularly sexual animal (all that unaesthetic heaving and huffing) And here she was going weak at the knees over a man who looked like the jacket of a Mills & Boon romance (without that pony-tail, of course) Now, he was walking back towards her staring hard sizing her up? She could've looked away Feigned disinterest Pretended she hadn't noticed him in the first place But she didn't Instead with great deliberation, she removed her sunglasses and placed them on the table She held his eyes steadily with her own, almost challenging him beckoning him to take the initiative He didn't He walked back into the shoe store Ritika felt bitterly let-down Perhaps he was the owner Maybe he was trying to entice her to enter his shop — see him on his own home ground She actually considered it Hiten? Well, that was easily taken care of All she had to do was park him at the table with all the shopping and say lightly, "Will be back in just a moment — spotted something cute — but don't worry, I'm not buying, just looking " And she'd saunter off unhurriedly perhaps never to return

Ritika dejectedly watched Hiten walking back with a small plastic tray loaded with paper glasses of Pepsi and ice He'd thrown in a packet of potato crisps for himself Hiten looked so vulnerable so unsuspecting so, so silly, as he negotiated his way past manic shoppers to where she was seated Her impulse was to pick up her bag briskly and announce to Hiten, "This is it I'm leaving you I can't stand another minute of monotony And the predictability I'm bored out of my wits I'm off " But she knew she wouldn't do it Not now Not ever She smiled sweetly at her husband and said in her submissive wifely voice, "Sorry for the trouble But I was dying of thirst "

They sipped their drinks in silence Rivulets of sweat were trickling down Hiten's face He needed a shave He looked almost shabby in his semi-holiday gear The T-Shirt was too tight His paunch was showing The bald patch on his head too The whites of his eyes looked yellowish There were blackheads over his nose She thought of his bottom — it was ugly Discoloured, rough to the touch Large and completely lacking in any sort of muscle tone It jiggled each morning as he walked nude from the bathroom to his cupboard Ritika had always had a thing about men's bottoms She'd noticed the one featured in the Obsession fragrance ad It had been perfect — firm, round high, compact She was certain the shoe shop man's would be similar As she drank down her Pepsi thirstily, she imagined what he might be doing inside the shop at the moment Maybe he was a salesman Maybe he had a fetish for women's feet Maybe he worked in a shoe shop so that he could caress hundreds of anonymous feet attached to strange women Ritika didn't want him to see her own ugly ones No, there was no way she was going to walk into his shop

He came out again This time, he was accompanied by a woman He looked in her direction and smiled a small, ironic smile as he caught sight of Hiten She got the message, and shrugged He shrugged, too The Ritika imagined phoning her friend, Anisha — the only real friend she had — to ask, 'Do you sometimes feel so strongly attracted to a stranger that at that particular moment you know — you just know — you'd leave your family, your husband, children, everything and run away with him?' It had happened to her woman with him took his arm possessively

Was she his wife? Ritika immediately imagined them in bed together and hoped they'd be entirely incompatible The woman with him looked brassy and hard And the way she clung to his arm revealed her insecurity She also looked ill-tempered and impatient, deep frown lines criss-crossing her forehead The lipstick was all wrong — a bright orange that clashed with her colouring Her hair seemed bleached and coarse Ritika looked at her clothes — too tight, too short, too obvious But she probably had great breasts The legs were passable though the ankles were too thick Actually it was her manner that wasn't attractive — bossy, pushy as she looked this way and that, her hands holding on to his arm like grasping claws Before they crossed the street and disappeared from view altogether, he turned around for one final time and looked at Ritika With such intensity, it was as if they had made love Ritika's hand — the one that was holding the straw — suddenly dropped to the table with a loud thud Her eyes lost their shine The corners of her lips drooped, and the colour drained from her face She felt exhausted And old

Hiten was staring at her strangely "You look ill Are you all right?" he asked

She looked past him at the rapidly shrinking flash of blue in the distance She shook her head Hot tears started to well up in her eyes Ritika felt a dull pain growing in her heart It was hopeless If only she could have had one glorious hour with the man Just one Not even an hour of sex Just conversation And kisses And cigarettes And laughter And touches And jokes One hour She'd have untied his hair and buried her face in his neck She'd have opened her mouth to receive his tongue She'd have stroked his back And made love to his face One hour. That was all she wanted from life One hour of being hundred per cent alive A hundred per cent herself One hour free of pretence No acts No duties No obligations No strings attached No memories No future No regrets Especially, no regrets

She composed herself and turned towards Hiten He was still looking at her, this time with genuine concern "Maybe we should try and see a doctor You look pale," he said Ritika straightened her narrow shoulders, pushed back the hair from her eyes, stuck her chin out, inclined her head and smiled a slow, mysterious smile before saying, "I'm fine Absolutely fine Never felt better Really " She wasn't exactly lying, either

LITTLE GASPS

And this is an extract from the other title of Shobha De, Snapshots

Sounding wistful Aparna said to a visibly fatigued Swati, "You've led quite a life, girl I'll say that "

Swati, struggling with obvious tiredness, managed a small smile while saying, "It hasn't been such a ball, Aps Not really I've had to pay the price too "

Aparna asked gently, "So, what went wrong with the Juan thing?"

"Everything We were completely mismatched except in the bedroom And guess what? Both of us knew that with our special talents in that department, we'd always get compatible partners Soon after the hush-hush wedding Juan went back to his polo ponies in Argentina, businesses all over the world, besides panting women at each turn, a few men, and God knows who or what else Maybe a couple of frisky emus and llamas too I was expected to look a Maharani and behave like one whenever he was in town and in the mood to show me off My career fell to pieces and I was virtually isolated from my friends, my life in England "

Aparna didn't look very sympathetic as she asked in a voice sharper than she'd intended it to be, "But you got to keep the money right?"

"Yes and no," Swati said "I got sufficient pocket money But strictly no credit cards, no joint accounts and no access to Juan's real wealth With my terrible habits, it didn't take me too long to blow it all up And guess where most of it went? Straight up my nose!"

It was Aparna's turn to regard her friend with shock and disbelief "Are you telling me you snorted a fortune away?"

Swati shook her head miserably "There was nothing for me to do I was like a captive animal,part of his zoo By the way, his major passion in life was to collect endangered species He used to pay the earth for creatures on the World Wildlife Fund's protected list I began to feel like a snow leopard or something One of his trusted aides, who was my bodyguard, offered me some coke one evening while amusing me with backgammon tricks Juan was out of town and I was in a reckless mood That was it You can't imagine how quickly that stuff can get one hooked And how swiftly it disappears Later, much later, it took me years of expensive therapy to pull out Besides months spent in a drying out clinic in California "

Extracted from Snapshots* by Shobha De, Penguin India; 1995; Rs 100

'Believe me — all men are just the same. And Indian husbands, the worst. Look at that German couple in the next block, see how much work the man does. Why, the other day while strolling downstairs, I saw him feeding the baby. Changing his nappy. Even playing with the kid! Have you seen any of our men doing that?'

Aparna looked at her watch pointedly "Whew! This has been quite a day It's too late now to reopen closed chapters, but I wanted to ask you whether you remember this?"

Swati gasped as Aparna pulled out a printed muslin dupatta with pretty beads stitched into its corners The expression on Swati's face was difficult to fathom even for Aparna, who knew her so well But that little gasp had given her away and she realised it quickly Swati regained her composure before asking casually, "How come you are still hanging on to that old thing? I thought you must've thrown it into an incinerator "

Aparna shook her head and laughed bitterly "No way Each time I look at this dupatta I'm reminded of of you know what "

Swati shot to her feet and started pacing the small study "I told you earlier, it didn't happen the way you're probably imagining it "

Aparna sat back quietly and said, "No? Well then, how about telling me what did happen? I think in all fairness you owe me that much "

Swati took a deep breath and continued to walk around the room This was one episode she wasn't hazy about No, Swati had no trouble recalling the details — the smallest ones At the end of it all, Rohit hadn't been worth the time or the effort But in any case, Swati's target hadn't been Aparna's man, it had always been and still was Aparna herself The smart, cool, efficient, together Aparna The woman Swati secretly longed to be but never could become

Aparna worked late and hard Often, Rohit would get home before her and start po'tering around the neat kitchen, checking the fridge to find out what was going for dinner Sometimes he'd chill a bottle of beer or two And occasionally help with preliminaries by chopping and cutting vegetables or getting a large, cheerful salad ready Rohit also specialised in aloo parathas and dry bhindi — two dishes that had kept starvation at bay in his hostel days Aparna was always appreciative of these gestures even if she knew in her heart of hearts that Rohit did it all for himself - he enjoyed cooking And he liked his beer He also preferred dinner on time And a menu he could control Besides, as he often reminded Aparna, she may have been the world's greatest ad lady but she was no cook And, of course, her mother never failed to remind her, "Thank your stars Rohit helps you with housework Look at your father Or any of the other husbands All they do is come home, put their feet up and order their women around 'Get me this! Do that Do this '" "Not modern ones, Mama," Aparna would say gently making her mother snort, "Believe me — all men are just the same And Indian husbands, the worst Look at that German couple in the next block, see how much work the man does Why, the other day while strolling downstairs, I saw him feeding the baby Changing his nappy Even playing with the kid! Have you seen any of our men doing that"

It made Aparna happy that her mother seemed as ga-ga over Rohit as she herself was Yes, no question about it — Rohit was very, very special in her besotted eyes And Aparna felt blessed This was a side to her personality — her soppy side — as she identified it, that she was unable to fathom Rohit brought out her suppressed sentimentality on a scale that often scared her Aparna carried his pictures in her bag and didn't require too much encouragement to pull them out Friends told her she gazed at him with an "I adore you" expression that was almost embarrassing in its intensity And yet Aparna was realistic enough to realise that Rohit as viewed by the rest of the world was by no means an exceptional person He was just a regular sort of chap Good-looking but hardly irresistible Average Yes, that was the word Average height Average looks Average achievements But to her Rohit embodied all that she'd ever longed for in a man When asked by curious colleagues to define those qualities Aparna would blush deeply before saying evasively, "It works for me, whatever this it is And that's all that matters Besides, every other male bores the hell out of me Either he's busy being supermacho, super-stud, super-prick, or he turns out to be a slobbering slave No thanks I think I belong to the fortunate few who have actually found the mate of their dreams " Rohit gave the appearance of being easygoing — even likeable He was smart-talking, amusing, slightly lazy, good-humoured and inoffensive A sly flirt with an innocuous rogue's easy charm, Rohit was known to chat up Aparna's more attractive friends after a beer too many But nobody minded since it was assumed he didn't intend his attentions to be taken seriously He'd declare boozily at the end of the evening, "I'm just a party-flirt, girls, ignore me But do take my compliments seriously " Everybody would smile indulgently, including Aparna But what Rohit didn't know or refused to acknowledge was that even these light, breezy, social flirtations bored little holes into Aparna And each time he looked into another woman's eyes and fed her some silly line or the other, Aparna would recoil with hurt and pain and end up blaming herself for not being a sport For not being sufficiently tolerant Or worse — for not being interesting enough in Rohit's eyes he'd sensed a certain, something tween Swati and Rohit the first time they'd met during one of Swati's early trips back home But she'd reminded herself sternly that Swati was her oldest and closest friend and an incorrigible tease who didn't mean a thing when she parked herself on a man's lap and announced, "Darling, when was the last time you got this lucky?" This was supposed to be her style An act that nobody was meant to take seriously. Rohit obviously enjoyed the attention, and which man wouldn't, Aparna reasoned Besides, Swati was just an occasional visitor to India and one of the few mutual friends they both enjoyed An evening with Swati was always so fizzy and fun, Aparna didn't mind putting up with her playing games with Rohit Anything that was so blatant was obviously innocent and certainly not to be taken to heart Swati couldn't help being Swati Rohit agreed when later, lying in bed reviewing the evening, Aparna would bring up some of Swati's more outrageous comments and check Rohit's reaction to them "She's a kid, darling That woman has never really grown up," he'd say with a small laugh

There were times Swati would pop by unannounced, straight from the airport, carrying a bottle of wine, some imported cheese and french bread Occasionally she'd drag in the boyfriend du jour as well While Aparna didn't exactly welcome these impromptu affairs, Rohit seemed to perk up at the intrusions

"Let's party, guys," Swati would announce making herself comfortable on the carpet while her escort filled up the ice bucket and Aparna fixed a meal that was more substantial than usual There were also a couple of times Aparna would get home late from work and find Swati giggling away happily with Rohit They'd greet her cheerfully and carry on with their interrupted conversation making her feel like an interloper

"Hi, sweetheart," Rohit would raise his hand in greeting, while Swati would continue to loll around, displaying her legs, stretching her limbs and holding out her glass to Rohit with a pout, "Darling, be an absolute doll and throw some cubes in there, please " There'd be a perfunctory explanation thrown in Aparna's general direction, "Was on my way to the hotel and I saw the light on. Couldn't resist checking out the scene Don't mind do you, darling?"

"I bloody well do," Aparna had been tempted to scream once or twice. But never did And she felt far too ashamed to voice her annoyance to Rohit What would he think of her? How petty she'd appear And it wasn't as if Swati was just any old woman off the streets Besides, as the sound of their laughter floated into the bedroom while Aparna wearily got out of her office clothes and went in for a bracing shower, she'd feel relieved that Rohit was being entertained by someone as exuberant as Swati Aparna often felt she was a bit too serious, a bit too earnest for her own good A bloody bore in other words Maybe Rohit needed someone bubblier, someone who laughed at his corny jokes, told a few dirty ones herself, someone frothy and fun, someone less uptight, less inhibited, someone like Swati Anxiously, she'd ask Rohit about it, trying to make her worries less weighty by sounding as off-hand as she could Rohit was always exceptionally prompt with his reassurances He'd clasp her in a bear hug, ruffle her hair and say, "Forget it, love of my life If I need to be entertained I can always reach for my Playboy joke books Don't be silly I adore you just the way you are — grim and starchy and tense and intense and terrible "

"I'd come to collect my dupatta, the one I'd forgotten the previous time — remember? You'd liked it — pink bandhni That was it I hadn't gone to your place to seduce your man Damn it I was surprised to find him at home at that hour "

"Really?" Aparna said bitingly "My version is slightly different I heard you called him from London while he was at work and fixed it all up thinking I was en route to Delhi for the new cola launch Only, the two of

'It works for me, whatever this it is. And that's all that matters. Besides, every other male bores the hell out of me. Either he's busy being supermacho, super-stud, super-prick, or he turns out to be a slobbering slave. No thanks. I think I belong to the fortunate few who have actually found the mate of their dreams'

you miscalculated My flight was late and it finally got cancelled Too bad I came home, huh? And the look on your face — do you think I'll ever be able to forget it? What was it, come on, tell me Triumph or guilt?"

Swati, pretending to study a small chip on her carefully lacquered nails, asked softly, "And what about the look on Rohit's face? What did you make of that?"

Blandly, Aparna said, "Shit-faced That's exactly how he looked Shit-faced I could've killed the two of you Strangled you both with your pretty dupatta " Aparna fingered it lightly "You forgot to take it with you in your hurry to get out of the place I kept it as a memento " Aparna spread it out slowly taking her time Swati watched fascinated, like it was an object she'd never seen before or a deadly snake raising its hood out of a basket "Miss it?" Aparna asked "I've preserved it the way I found it It even smells of you, at least of the way you did in those days What was it you always wore? Some cheap stuff Charlie?" Aparna held the dupatta to her nose and sniffed it "It's there — everything, the whole story Here, hold it Feel it Smell it " She handed it over to Swati whose instinctive reaction was to draw back from it like it was something live, something that could bite her Recovering rapidly, Swati picked it up and draped it around her shoulders "Isn't that how I used to wear it? Loosely tied like a large scarf? I loved bandhni things in those days Still do But now they make me feel tacky Very Janpath, if you know what I mean But back then all of us lived in Rajasthani stuff — remember? And all that chunky silver jewellery You were famous for your powder bindis and I had more kajal in my eyes than a Kathakali dancer " Aparna smiled at the memory despite herself Swati came over to sit by her "Hey, all this was a long, long time ago We've all moved on, changed, grown up Or don't you agree? You shouldn't have kept it, you know What was the point in hanging on to this wretched thing Bad memories Nasty ones Horrible, just horrible "

Aparna nodded "True But Rohit was my husband not yours Perhaps your little affair was nothing more than a casual screw to you But it destroyed my marriage, my life Had I been more like you I might have moved on, found someone else I tried to But it didn't happen I wanted Rohit Longed for him In a way, I still do I've got so many of his shirts, a tennis racquet, shoes, shaving things, a discarded wrist watch, coffee mug, books, music, speakers, he still lives there, you know It sounds crazy, but after so many years I haven't got over him "

Swati patted her hand "There were others I wasn't the only one he betrayed you with. He told me so himself And these letters, they're unbelievable He's boasting like a bloody schoolboy trying to impress me with his conquests — 'body counts' as he calls them Pathetic I really don't know what it was — is — that obsesses you about that scumbag "

Aparna's eyes flashed as she hissed, "Don't call him that You brought out the ugly side in him The Rohit I knew was different A caring, attentive, sensitive person — the only man I respected In many ways he was the only man who made me feel wonderful and I'm not talking only about sex, you know He brought out my femininity, — made me feel, you know, a woman in the best sense of the word "

"Aa-ha, now comes the truth You've always had a problem about that, haven't you?" Swati asked, her eyes glinting

"About what?" Aparna countered, a defiant edge to her voice

"About being a woman — that's what," Swati replied

A long silence followed A silence that was filled with the filtered noise of desultory conversation from the next room Aparna's face was mask-like as she fought unsuccessfully to keep her emotions at bay Swati watched her keenly, revelling in the discomfort she had successfully created Finally, when Aparna spoke, it was with sorrow "I don't care if you know or who knows any longer Yes, I have problems, but then, who doesn't? Maybe you are very secure about your sexuality I've always been confused — always Way back in school too "

Swati said, "Don't I know it? You fall into the classic butch category "

Aparna shook her head "It isn't that simple Had it been so uncomplicated, I might have been able to come to terms with it It isn't just about liking women and hating men It's far more complex Besides, I don't really hate men Maybe I hate myself, at least certain aspects of myself But the fact still remains — I'm uncomfortable about being born a woman It seems so so I don't know unfair Rohit was the only person who understood this and accepted it It was so comforting, so wonderful Maybe it was this very quality that made him irresistible to other women — to you or to the one he finally left me for or to the countless others I'm sure he bedded "

Swati was reflective as she replied, "Yes, Rohit was sensitive to women Simpatico as the Spanish put it But more than anything else, he was great in bed And coming from me, baby — that's a mega compliment " ■

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S COLUMN

THE HEAT AND DUST OF MUGHALSARAI

When was the last time you drove down from Varanasi to Mughalsarai? Not recently, if you have any sense I came to the distinct conclusion that I hadn't any as I hit the jam by the Ganga bridge for the third evening in succession

My companions and I had been doing a little filming for a documentary on the Mughalsarai side of the Ganga, but were staying in the Cantonment on the other On this, the last of a three-day shoot, one of our two Ambassadors had developed massive problems in the region of the carburettor float and could only proceed in 50-metre spurts before flooding

No mistri in Chakia could handle it, so we all crammed into the second car, two of us reciting the Hanuman Chalisa It happened to be Hanumanji's birthday Perhaps it was he who carried us across the bridge, and perhaps it was the scepticism of the godless in the back seat that brought us to a halt behind innumerable trucks immediately afterwards

"Saale jam to dekh kar bukhar aa jata hai," said our driver, just after he had threatened to thrash a trucker for not giving right of way

How can I describe the dust and dark and diesel fumes of this stretch of road? The surface is pot-holed and the air so thick that light barely passes through it There are continuous roaring trucks, overloaded and continually breaking down — often on the narrow, two-lane bridge across the Ganga

These are the breakdowns which cause jams more than 10 kilometres long, where drivers rev their engines for hours before losing hope and switching them off

Then the Ambassadors and smaller vehicles fight down the dusty berms to try to beat as much of the jam as they can Bullock carts ensure that traffic across the bridge proceeds no faster than them, even when it starts to move Then there is a regular stretch of hell into the city

Rubbish has been piled on either side of the main highway Sometimes it burns, but mostly it rots and the dust it produces is pestilential

We laughed at the dust the other night, although we could see a man coughing into a flannel in the car in front The next morning, however, as I coughed and sneezed and vomited, I reflected more seriously on the dangers of atmospheric pollution

All of us who live in cities now

How can I describe the dust and dark and diesel fumes of this stretch of road? The surface is pot-holed, the air so thick that light barely passes through it. There are roaring trucks, overloaded and continually breaking down — often on the narrow, two-lane bridge across the Ganga know there is something wrong, and that even without advanced road development we are managing to produce advanced pollution

One encouraging thing is that in Britain they have noticed it too — despite years of Thatcherite rule (the PM who would never travel by train) and the dominance of the road lobby led by a formidable organisation called the British Road Federation Two recent reports have made it clear that the car cannot be king, and human selfishness and unbridled individualism, which the British Road Federation calls "personal freedom" will have to be curbed for our survival

You may not be able to see the air pollution in Britain as you can in Mughalsarai, but it is there all the same Teachers in London are now given training in coping with asthma in the classroom and are told that in every class of 30 children, three are likely to be asthmatics carrying drugs and inhalers

This marks a considerable increase in asthma in children It is not yet conclusively proved that traffic pollution alone causes the disease, instead of just aggravating it, but a betting man would put his money on guilty

Those aren't my words but those of an expert witness who deposed before the cross-party committee of British MPs looking into transport and particularly the causes and effects of the clouds of filth that hang over London

Their report roundly condemns the motor car It also condemns the good that people think they are doing by using a popular kind of unleaded petrol Less lead maybe being pumped into the atmosphere, but, says the report, "Evidence strongly suggests that the potential health hazards resulting from the excessive aromatics used outweigh any possible benefits from the reduced lead "

Aromatics like benzene are linked to cancer and childhood leukaemia It begins to seem that motor transport is irredeemably environmentally unfriendly

This is also the view of Royal Commission on Environmental Pollution In spite of the bad name the royal family has given itself, a royal commission is still a royal commission This one had officially recognised what most poeple had noticed for years — that building roads just increases traffic

It has challenged the whole concept of Mrs Thatcher's "great car economy" which has held sway for so long It calls for more public transport, the doubling of the price of petrol and a halving of the government's £19-billion road programme

The money saved, the Commission says, should be spent on rail, buses and trams The Commission chairman is aiming for "a transport system which is much less damaging to health and the environment, and at the same time more efficient in providing the access people want for work and for leisure" The report has been widely welcomed because it deals in plain, old-fashioned commonsense

However, it is difficult in a democratic country to control something as personally convenient as the motor car Down the Grand Trunk Road it is very difficult to control trucks — even the drivers often don't succeed Most of these trucks are plying down the main rail route between Calcutta and Delhi But if the railways were permitted to develop and aggressively market their freight services, perhaps commonsense could clear the air there and save the lungs of those who live and travel along the Grand Trunk Road

(Sanctuary Features)

You may not be able to see the air pollution in Britain as you can in Mughalsarai, but it is there all the same. Teachers in London are now given training in coping with asthma in the classroom and are told that in every class of 30 children, three are likely to be asthmatics carrying drugs and inhalers

The finest Diamond and 22/22K Gold Jewellery at:

NCB 22/22K

Nemichand Bamalwa & Sons,

Jewellers

16-A, Shakespeare Sarani, 3rd Floor Calcutta 700071; Phone: 242-3388

The melting or refining purity of our 22/22K ornaments is 22 Karat (91.67%) HEROSTAT

TIME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AGARTALA
IC 741	0710	3 6	IC-742	0940	3, 6
IC 743	0920	daily	IC-744	1150	daily
PF 701	1130	1 3, 5 7	PF-702	1610	1, 3, 5, 7
AHMEDABAD
M9-304/109	0855	1 3 5	M9-110/301	1900	1 3 5
AIZAWL
PF-705	0730	2, 4, 6, 7	PF-706	1510	2, 4, 6, 7
BAGDOGRA
PF-735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1
PF-737	0730	3, 5	PF-738	1740	3, 5
IC-721	1300	1, 3, 5	IC-722	1540	1, 3 5
BANGALORE
IC-771	0600	daily	IC-772	1140	daily
BHUBANESWAR
IC-544	1115	2, 7	IC-543	1035	2, 7
IC-769	1525	1, 3, 5	IC-770	2120	1, 3, 5
BOMBAY
IC-676	0730	daily	IC-675	0820	daily
D2-102	0905	daily	D2-101	0835	daily
9W-202	0920	1 2 3, 4, 5 6	9W-201	0840	1 2, 3, 4, 5 6
IC-273	1945	daily	AI-306	1840	5
9W-212	1945	daily	IC-274	1850	daily
D2-104	2005	daily	9W-211	1910	daily
AI-309	2035	6	D2-103	1935	daily
AI-681	2350	1
DELHI
			IC-262	0815	2, 4, 7
IC-263	0700	daily	M9-303	0825	daily
M9 304	0855	daily	AI-682	0950	1
IC-812	1515	1 3, 5	4S-806	1115	1, 2 3, 4, 5, 6
IC 402	1715	daily	IC-401	1155	daily
4S 805	1745	1 2 3 4 5, 6	M9-301	1900	daily
IC 261	1900	2, 4 7	S2 005	1900	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6
M9 302	1930	daily	IC-811	1930	1, 3, 5
S2 006	1940	1 2 3 4 5, 6	IC-264	2210	daily
DIBRUGARH
PF-737	0730	3 5	IC-704	1430	3 5
IC-703	0800	3, 5	D2-181	1620	1, 3, 5, 7
D2 181	1135	1, 3 5, 7	D2-183	1620	2, 4 6
D2-183	1135	2, 4 6	IC-702	1630	2, 4, 6 7
4S-815	1145	1, 2, 3, 4, 5 6	4S-816	1705	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6
IC-701	1240	2 4, 6, 7	PF-738	1740	3, 5
DIMAPUR
IC-257	1150	4 7	IC-258	1650	4, 7
GUWAHATI
PF-735	0730	1	IC-712	1410	2 6
PF-737	0730	3, 5	IC-704	1430	3 5
PF-705	0730	2 4, 6, 7	IC-708	1430	1 4 7

FLIGHTS — INTERNATIONAL

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
BANGKOK
IC-731	0855	2, 4, 6, 7	KB-106	1115	3
			KB-106	1215	5
KB-105	1125	2, 6	TG-313	1240	1, 3, 6
TG-314	1355	1, 3, 6	IC-732	1505	2, 4, 6, 7
AI-306	1950	5	AI-309	1925	6
DHAKA
RJ-185	1445	4	RJ-184	0705	4
KATHMANDU
KL-876	0420	7	KL-875	0235	7
KUALA LUMPUR
MH-684	1000	1	MH-683	1800	1
MALE
IC-703	0800	3, 5	PF-706	1510	2, 4, 6, 7
IC-707	0800	1, 4, 7	D2-181	1620	1, 3, 5, 7
IC-711	0800	2, 6	D2-183	1620	2, 4, 6
D2-181	1135	1, 3, 5, 7	IC-230	1650	daily
D2-183	1135	2, 4, 6	4S-811	1705	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6
4S-812	1145	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6	PF-736	1730	1
IC-257	1150	4, 7	PF-738	1740	3, 5
IC-211	1240	4, 6	IC-258	1740	4, 7
IC-229	1310	daily	IC-212	1740	4, 6
HYDERABAD
IC-777	1500	2, 4 7	IC-778	2005	2 4, 7
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5
IMPHAL
IC-707	0715	1 4 6	IC-256	1320	3 5
IC-255	0830	3 5	IC-708	1345	1 4, 6
IC-253	1100	2 6	IC-254	1550	2 6
JORHAT
IC-213	0910	2 4, 7	IC-213	1315	2 4 7
LUCKNOW
IC 812	1515	1 3 5	IC-811	1930	1 3, 5
MADRAS
IC-542	1115	1 3 5	IC-541	1030	1 3 5
IC-544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2 7
IC-765	1720	daily	D2 171	1045	daily
D2-172	1740	daily	IC-766	2220	daily
NAGPUR
IC-769	1525	1 3 5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5
PATNA
IC 249	1430	2 4 /	IC-249	1805	2 4 7
IC-812	1515	1 3 5	IC-811	1930	1 3 5
PORT BLAIR
IC-285	0640	3 5 7	IC-286	1100	2 4 6
RANCHI
IC-249	1430	2 4 7	IC 249	1805	2 4 7
SHILLONG
PF-705	0730	2, 2, 6, 7	PF-706	1510	2, 4, 6, 7
SILCHAR
IC-255	0830	3 5	IC 260	1110	1 7
IC-259	0830	1 7	IC-256	1320	3 5
IC-253	1100	2 6	IC 254	1550	2, 6
IC 211	1240	4 6	IC 212	1740	4, 6
TEZPUR
IC-213	0910	2 4 7	IC-213	1315	2, 4 7
TEZU
PF-737	0730	3, 5	PF-738	1740	3, 5
VISHAKHAPATNAM
IC-542	1115	1, 3, 5	IC-541	1030	1, 3, 5

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No.	Time	Days	Flt No.	Time	Days
[redacted]
RO-076	2040	5, 7	RO-075	1035	5, 7
[redacted]
IC-225	1200	1	IC-226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2, 5	BG-697	1655	2, 5
[redacted]
BG-092	0850	4, 5	BG-091	0810	4, 5
BG-092	1150	1, 2, 3, 6, 7	BG-091	1110	1, 2, 3, 6, 7
IC-723	1250	1, 2, 3, 5, 6	IC-724	1520	1, 2, 3, 5, 6
BG-094	1905	1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7	BG-093	1825	1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1, 5	BG-095	2020	1, 5
[redacted]
IC-747	1115	1 3, 5	IC-748	1455	1, 3, 5
RA-214	1400	4, 7	RA-213	1315	4, 7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No.	Time	Days	Flt No.	Time	Days
[redacted]
BA-142	2050	3, 7	BA-143	1525	3, 7
[redacted]
SU-538	1855	4	SU-537	1655	4
[redacted]
KB-106	1200	3	KB-105	1040	2, 6
KB-106	1300	5
[redacted]
SQ-415	2200	2, 5	SQ-416	2040	2, 5
SOFIA
LZ-504	1750	4	LZ 503	1650	4
TOKYO
AI-306	1910	5	AI-309	1825	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
2311	19 15	Delhi Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19 20	Amritsar Mail	7 55	3006
3003	20 35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13 00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat	16 15	2382
2303	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun	16 15	2304
2301	16 30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun	10 45	2302
2305	13 45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat	12 50	2306
3073	23 00	Himgiri (Jammu Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat Arr Tues Wed & Sat	11 35	3074
5047	13 00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon Wed & Fri	4 30	5048
3009	20 30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9 45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18 15	3008
3049	13 20	Amritsar Express	15 30	3050
3039	21 00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5 20	3040
3019	16 05	Kathgodam Express	11 55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5 00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6 30	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17 11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18 20	Asansol Express	8 45	3036
3031	21 05	Danapur Express	5 50	3032
3025	23 00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday Arr Friday	11 35	3026
3071	22 30	Jamalpur Express	5 10	3072
3015	9 55	Santiniketan Express	15 40	3016
1159	15 25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tues & Wed	6 50	1160
1171	15 25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed Arr Fri Sat & Sun	6 50	1172
3327	14 30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4 50	3328
1181	15 25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6 50	1182
		Sealdah
3141	13-40	Teesta Torsa Express Dep Mon Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed Thurs Fri Sat & Sun	6 35	3142
3143	19-15	Darjeeling Mail	8 45	3144
3111	20-15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7 15	3112
5657	6-25	Kanchenjunga Express	20 35	5658
3153	22-00	Gour Express	5 15	3154
5663	20 00	Katihar Express	4 15	5664
3151	11 45	Jammu Tawi Express	15 50	3152
3133	20-55	Mughal Sarai Express via SBG Loop	12 55	3134
3103	18 20	Bhagirathi (Laigola) Express	10 25	3104
5185	12 40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues Thus & Sat	4 25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6 50	6004
8002	19 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12 00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	1940	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13 45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express	22-05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5 00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5 30	8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8 25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00	8046
8017	16 45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2421	16 40	Bhubaneswar New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10	--
	11 05	New Delhi Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15	—
-	14 05	Trivandrum Central Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 45	6321
	14 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13 45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15	–
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13 45	6315
6520	22 35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15	—
–	14 05	Bangalore City - Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains, please dial 2203545-54 for in-coming trains, 2203535-44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South-Eastern Railway trains, dial 2203496 3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition, dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running), 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535-37

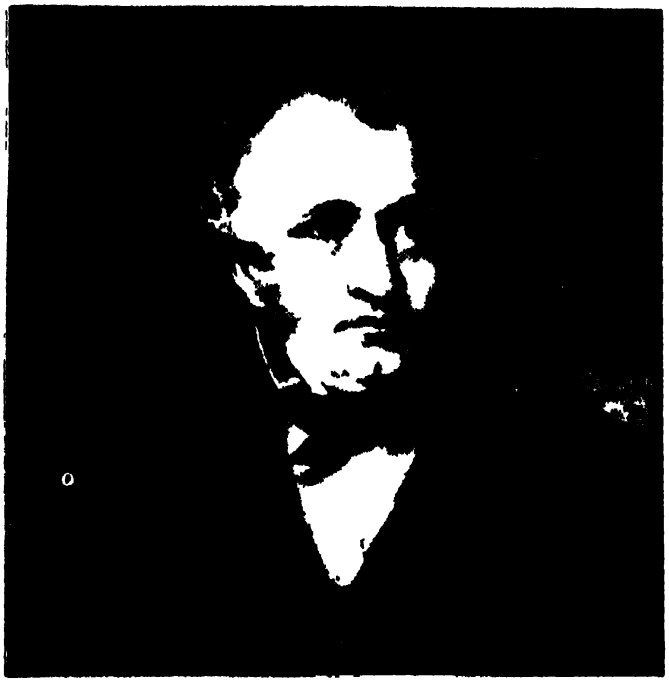
RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

CRITICKED OFF

Every author, little or great, has received at least one review that has stung to the quick The great have often received more than their share of literary brickbats — if that's any consolation to the rest of us

I don't know what Shakespeare thought of his critics, but we do know that Voltaire described Hamlet as "the work of a drunken savage" Well, there's no reason why a drunken savage shouldn't write a masterpiece But it wasn't only Hamlet which came under attack

The diarist, Samuel Pepys, said, A Midsummer Night's Dream "was the most insipid, ridiculous play I have ever seen in my life" He may, of course, have been to a particularly bad performance Just as I did when I saw the Hollywood version over 30 years ago



James Cagney as Bottom, Mickey Rooney as Puck and Joe E Brown as Flute were just a little too incongruous to successfully inhabit the enchanted world of Shakespeare Not the author's fault!

Dickens had been transferred more successfully to film, but in his lifetime he was regularly savaged by reviewers who refused to believe his reputation could last and who called his writing "meagre and melodramatic" and "transparent and make-believe"

The reading public paid no attention to the critics He was the most popular author on both sides of the Atlantic and continues so till this day Over a hundred years on the bestseller lists

Sometimes, I wonder if adverse criticism doesn't actually help an author's reputation

Tolstoy's Anna Karenina was dismissed as "sentimental rubbish" Today, no shelf of classics would be complete without it Macaulay sneered at Wordsworth's "crazy mystical metaphysics, the endless wilderness of dull, flat, prosaic twaddle" That last phrase would be a good description of Macaulay's own turgid and unreadable prose Wordsworth's craziness continues to enchant

Thomas Babington Macaulay

Tolstoy's Anna Karenina was dismissed as 'sentimental rubbish'. Today, no shelf of classics would be complete without it. Macaulay sneered at Wordsworth's 'crazy mystical metaphysics, the endless wilderness of dull, flat, prosaic twaddle'. That last phrase would be a good description of Macaulay's own turgid and unreadable prose. Wordsworth's craziness continues to enchant

Thomas Carlyle got personal and called Emerson, "a hoary-headed and toothless baboon" and described Charles Lamb thus "A more pitiful, grasping, staggering Tomfool I do not know " We wish had Carlyle staggered around a little, he might have had some thoughts equal to Emerson's and written prose as memorable as Lamb's Carlyle is a sure cure for insomnia

One reviewer called Whitman "morally insane", and another accused Dean Swift of having a "diseased mind" H L Mencken, a vitriolic news paperman, said of Henry James that he was "an idiot and a Boston idiot to boot, than which there is nothing lower in the world" Mencken came from Baltimore, which probably accounts for his prejudice

John Keats, who had once been a chemist's apprentice, was advised by one cruel reviewer, "Back to the shop Mr John Back to the plasters, pills and ointment boxes " Poor John died before he could take the advice of his detractor, but his love poetry lives on, long after his unloved critic bit the dust (Sanctuary Features)

INNER EYE — Bejan Daruwalla

Aries
March 21—April 20

Time to gallivant, throw bread upon the waters, be friendly, make up with enemies, marry or get engaged, go in for collaborations, a tie, and a link Ganesha says, do enlist in clubs and organisations Good for you financially and, more importantly, emotionally and socially

Taurus
April 21—May 20

You will have to strain your sinews, work to a plan, but rest assured the results will be simply wonderful and, therefore, well worth the while A journey or a house move is definitely on the cards A trip towards the week's close is indicated Also, this is a good week for amusements

Gemini
May 21—June 20

Your work will be done and consequently you must go all out and push for it with all your might Many Geminians feel shy at the start Don't Just resolve and be victorious Loans and funds for a project and an enterprise will be made available Approach those who are able to help you

Cancer
June 21—July 20

Cultivate the positive attitude that nothing is beyond you and you will find nothing really is Yes, you will have to make that extra effort, give that final heave, but it will yield magnificent results Many Cancerians will be in for contacts and contracts with foreign lands and distant places

Leo
July 21—August 21

A time to find what you are seeking But be a little careful of health and finances. Let not trifles upset you unduly Be generous as is your real nature Joint-finances and investments could be of great importance now Mars helps you to be victorious, but you don't have to bait others

Virgo
August 22—September 22

You will be in a half-way house between service and alliances A period of transition is foretold It could mean a change of job/profession/business Partnerships, be they personal or professional, could also undergo a change A few gains could be registered

Libra
September 23—October 22

Romance, speculation, birth of children, higher education and promotion, these are the issues which will form the framework of your life now It would be a good idea to cultivate friends and well-wishers, as you are going to need them Love knocks at the door of your heart

Scorpio
October 23—November 22

Mercury, in direct motion now, suggests news, messages, renovation, decoration, courtship and children Your creativity will be commendable Many of your plans can, and will, be put into action with success What you do now will have a fine spin-off in April, specially financially

Sagittarius
November 23—December 20

This is an excellent week to contact and communicate, be it through flyers, posters, calls, letters, ads, telex, fax and so on Your home will also come in for a full share of attention Important changes in the office are also foretold Health of elders could concern though Do be careful

Capricorn
December 21—January 19

This week your finances and family matters could liven up considerably That, in turn, should make you happy You will be paying great attention to your personal appearance, home and your public image Find time for entertaining and developing a hobby An exciting week

Aquarius
January 20—February 18

Pluto in Sagittarius, temporarily, according to Western astrology, helps you in your enterprise and social circles You will be making many new friends, starting a new relationship, so to say More importantly, your attitude will be very positive, a pointer to success

Pisces
February 19—March 20

A good week to carry out your plans, be diplomatic but get the message through Many Pisceans will be honing their skills, thinking of shifting to a new job, a different profession, an ancilliary line of work Visits, house and office move could take up a lot of your time

BIRTHDAYS

February 19: The planets signify excellent intuition and expression Changes of job and work are absolutely certain Care of health is a must.

February 20: Despite pressure and prejudices, you are bound to succeed, says Ganesha. Keep your cool and do your duty.

February 21: Moon-Saturn fine placing shows slow, but sure, improvement in health and status. Things will begin to go your way. Journeys and ceremonies give delight.

February 22: Moon's last quarter makes you overtly ambitious and daring You will therefore venture forth and be successful, says Ganesha. Romance foretold.

February 23: Moon-Jupiter conjunction shows expansion, growth, progress and development. Romance and good fortune in property matters are foretold.

February 24: Moon-Sun sextile leads to opportunities, good fellowship, hectic socialising and success in job.

February 25: Moon-Saturn excellent placing means slowly but surely your plans will crystallise and bear fruit. Planning is everything.

COMPUTERS
THE
NEW QUALIFICATION
CHANDRA DATA SYSTEMS
A complete house of Computer Education
Prepare you for Today
29/B Tarachand Dutt Street
Calcutta 700 073
Opp Mohammed Ali Park
Phone 238 7505

Career Development Program

Advance Computer Courses using WINDOWS & GRAPHICS as Environment

- Adv. Diploma in Computer Science & Management (18 months).

Eligibility H S./ Graduate

NSCT
National School of Computer Technology
2, Raja Basanta Roy Road (near Rashbehari Crossing), Cal-26, Ph 76-2615
Study Scholarship up to Rs 2500/-
Cut this and bring to get a special offer

The Telegraph Classifieds

INSTITUTE OF ADVANCED MANAGEMENT

HOTEL MANAGEMENT COLLE
ANNOUNCES

DIPLOMA IN HOTEL & CATERING MANAGEMENT

THE INSTITUTE: IAM affiliated Confederation of Tourism. Hotel & Catering Management, United Kingdom, is ranked as one of the best "Hotel Management College" in the country. The Institute has a wide industry acceptance both in India and abroad. The Institute's infrastructure, teaching faculty and human resource support is one of the best in the country.
COURSE DURATION: THREE YEARS, FULL TIME COURSE
CLASS TIMINGS: 10 AM to 5 PM, 6 days a week.
NO. OF SEATS: 120
INDUSTRIAL TRAINING: 6 months compulsory industrial training in top Star & Deluxe hotels in India & Nepal.
PLACEMENT: The Institute till date has achieved a clean 100% placement record through Campus Interviews. All the top Indian and International hotel groups conduct Campus Interview in the Institute every year.
MINIMUM QUALIFICATION: Pass or appeared in class 12 level Examination from a recognised Board.
Age Limit: 22 years as on 01.07.1995.
ADMISSION PROCEDURE: Candidates have to appear for a Written Test on 13.4.95 to be held at Calcutta, Bhubaneswar, Asansol, Siliguri, Patna, Bangalore, Bombay, New Delhi, Madras and Kathmandu. Candidates qualifying in the Written Test would be called for group discussion and personal interview at Calcutta at their own cost.
COURSE COMMENCING FROM: July 1995 (8th Session)
PROSPECTUS: Can be collected from College or City office on cash payment of Rs. 250/-. Outstation candidates have to send Rs. 270/- through M.O. Only to Executive Director (Admission), IAM, AE-486, Salt Lake, Calcutta-700 064.

INFORMATION: For further information and prospectus contact at:

IAM
COLLEGE: IAM, AE-486, SALT LAKE CITY, CALCUTTA-700 064, Phone: 37-7726, Fax: 74-8172.
CITY OFFICE: 37/1B, HAZRA ROAD, (2nd Floor) CALCUTTA-700 029, Phones: 475-9237 & 74-8132.

TAKING INDIA AHEAD IN HOTEL MANAGEMENT

Admission On
SESSION 1995-96
From Classes NURSERY TO XII (ALL STREAMS)
(CBSE — Delhi Board)

We provide
- English Medium Co-ed
- Trained, Experienced, Motivated Teachers
- Individual Care
- Transport Facilities
- Computer Education

 Transfer Cases Accepted

Contact Dr. Pandey
Salt Lake Collegiate School
BG — 101 } Salt Lake City
BF — 93 }
Calcutta — 91 Ph 37 1916

Join Quest's

interactive
MULTIMEDIA
ANIMATION
2D-3D GRAPHICS
LAN/DTP/CAD
COMMERCIAL APPLICATIONS
Courses

- Highly Rated Faculty
- Placement Assistance
- 100% Practical Time
- Avail upto 40% in Scholarships

Contact
QUEST INSTITUTE OF ADVANCED COMPUTING
Suite- 2A, 12A Camac St
Cal-17 Ph 242-1134

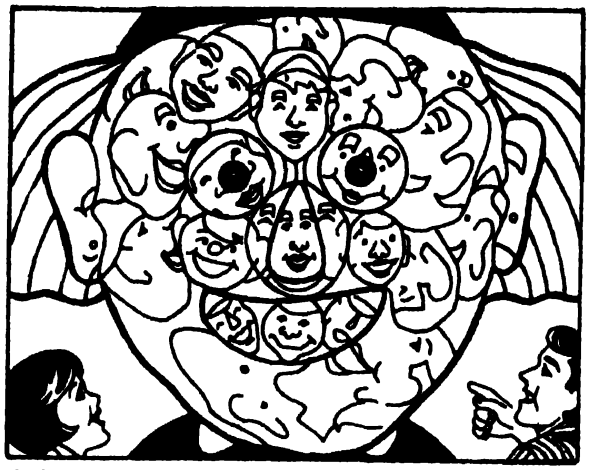
We take your international career as seriously as you do

DIPLOMA IN
Travel & Hotel Management
Airhostess & Flight Purser Course.
International Airline

HOTEL INSTITUTE MONTREUX SWITZERLAND
HAWAII

Conducted by:-

wings
INSTITUTE • OF • MANAGEMENT



Calcutta: 1, Crooked Lane, Room No 108, 1st floor, behind Great Eastern Hotel, Cal-69, Ph 243-0625/0415

Guwahati: G N B Road, Silpukhuri (Near Goswami Service) Guwahati — 781003

Also Branch Opening from April '95 at Garlahat: 1/1, Dover Lane, Calcutta — 700 019
Ph 440-6356

ADMISSION OPEN

JUNIOR WHIRL

FACE TRACE! Our artist says there are some 28 faces in the clown portrait above How many of them do you find?

FINGER FRAUD! Count backwards on fingers on your left hand — 10, 9 8, 7, 6 Add five for your right hand that's total of 11 Which you don't have

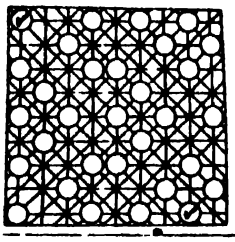
LETTER MIX EXERCISE

SEVEN letters in Panel 1, above, may be un-scrambled to form three different seven-letter words, while six letters in Panel 2 will form three six-letter words Clues to possible words are provided by these definitions

Seven-letter words
(a) Cutting back on calories, etc
(b) Fixing typos
(c) Applied a match
Six-letter words
(a) Smokey the Bear's hangout
(b) Not as loud
(c) Companion word to child or home

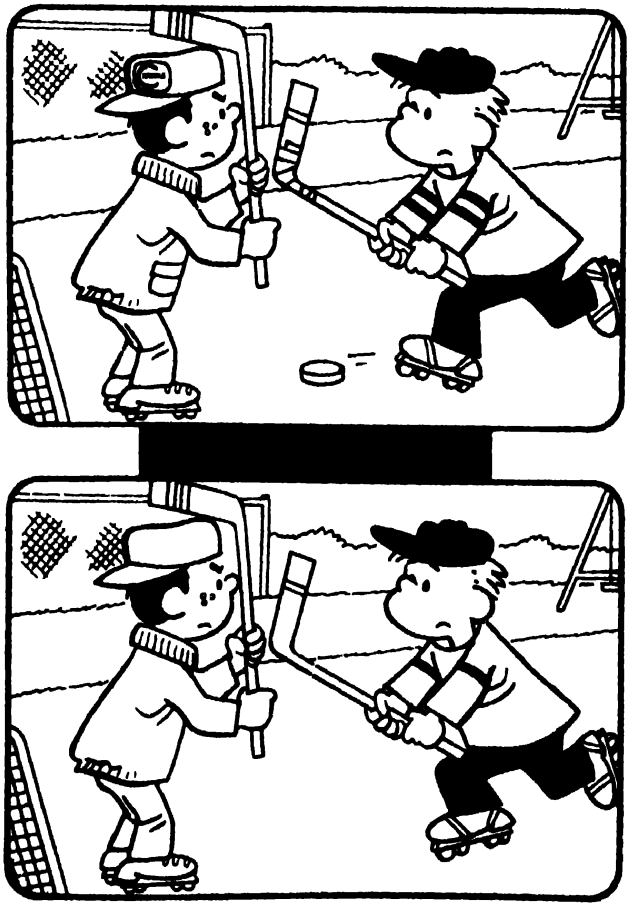
What are the words?

Words in order Dieting, editing, quitting, forest, rather, foster



CHECK MATES! Two checkmarks appear among the circles of the figure below You are asked to insert seven more checks in such a manner that no two checks appear in the same horizontal or vetical row, or on any of the numerous diagonal lines

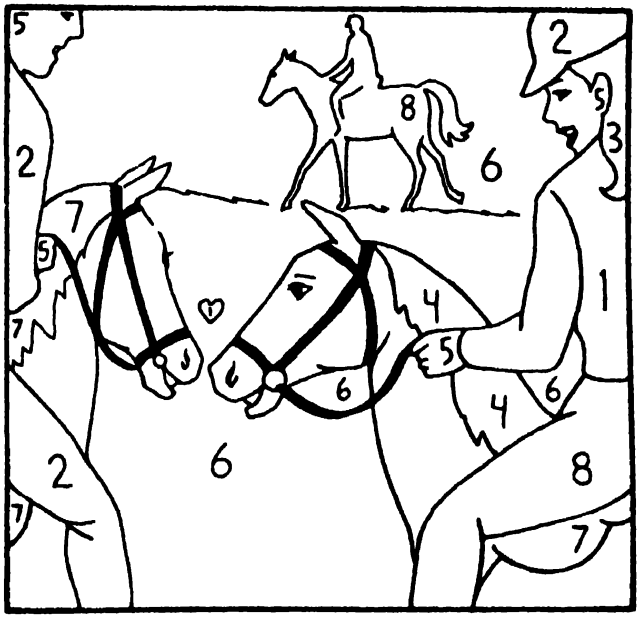
Remember, two marks are now in place Insert seven more



Patience will help, as will an eraser

No fair peeking below Other answers may be possible

Check 2nd circle in 2nd row from top 2nd in 3rd row from top 2nd in 4th row 4th in 5th row 1st in 7th 1st in 8th 3rd in 6th 1st in 8th



HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below

DIFFERENCES 1 Hat logo is missing 2 Pocket is missing 3 Tape is missing from hockey stick 4 Puck is missing 5 Arm stripe is missing 6 Leg is moved

FUNSPOT

STABLE TALK! Well, fancy meeting you here! Use crayons or colored pencils to add these colors 1—Red 2—Lt blue 3—Yellow 4—Lt brown 5—Flesh 6—Green. 7—Dk. brown 8—Purple

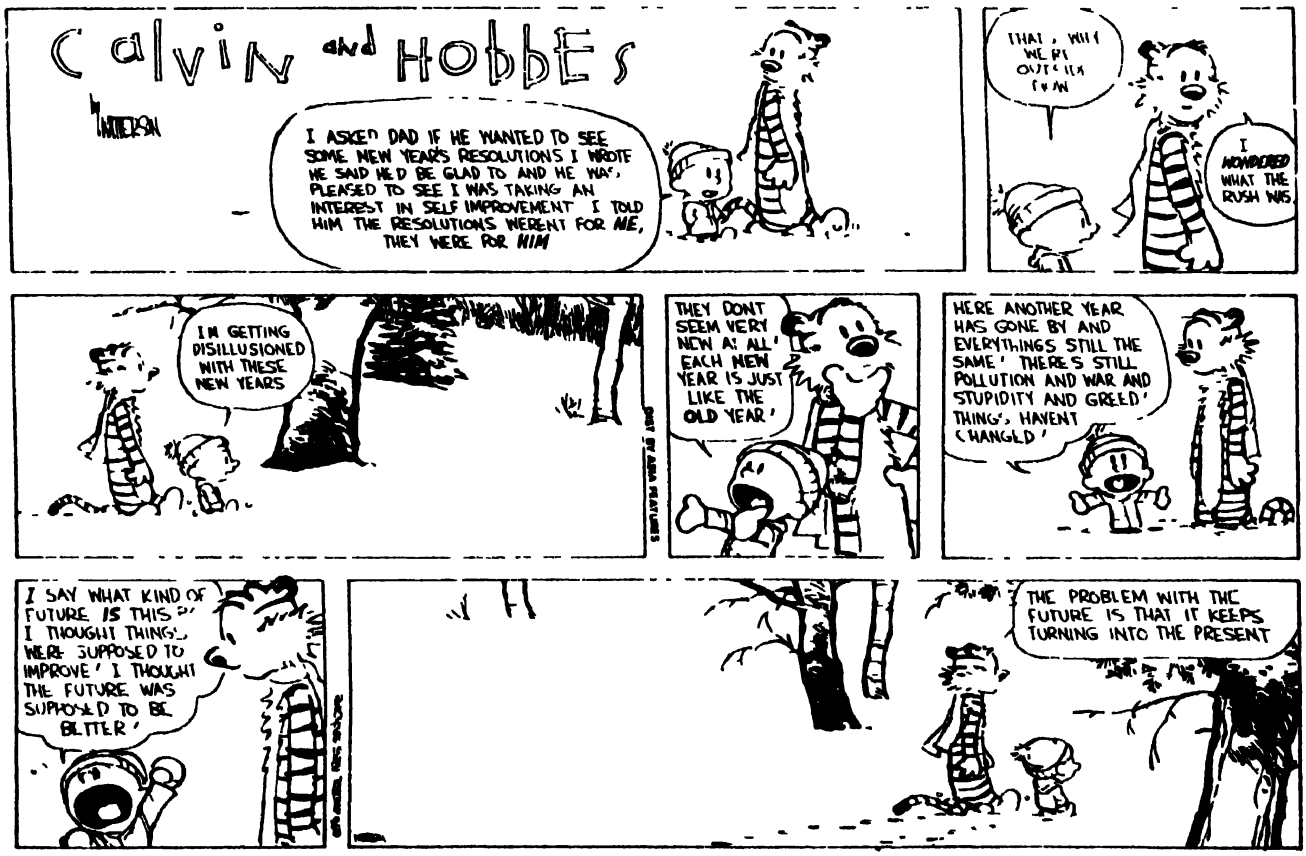
SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

ALLOCATE

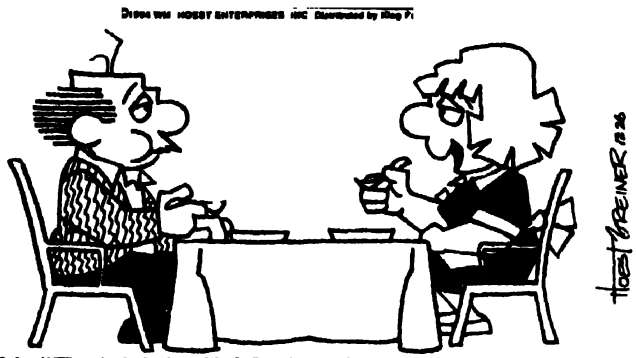
THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

Try to score at least 50 points



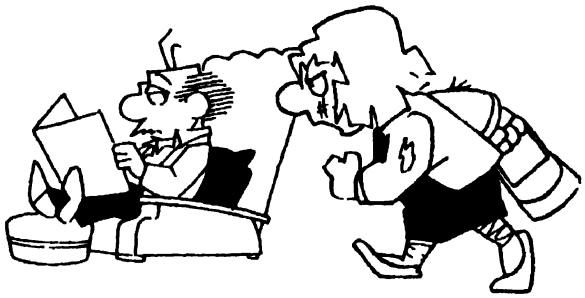
Possible twosome Coal, tale

COMICS



ARCHIE

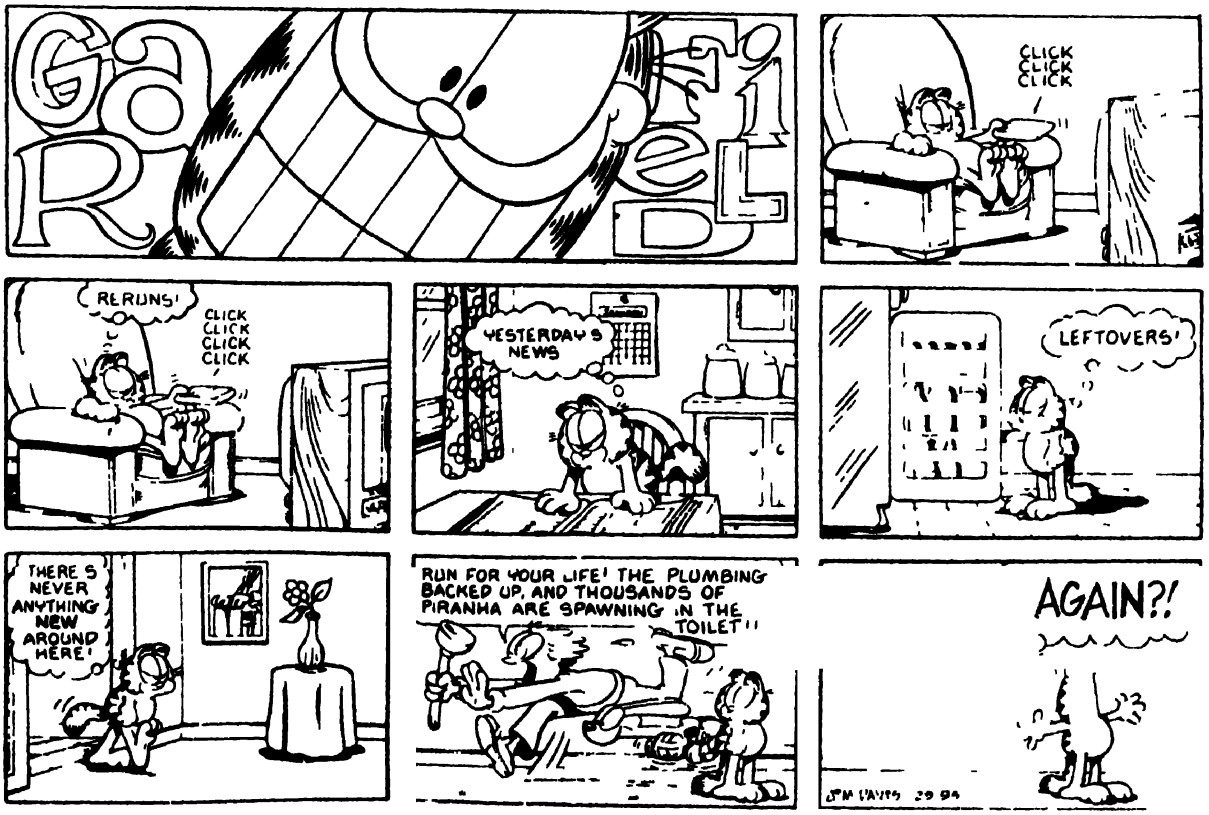
CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON



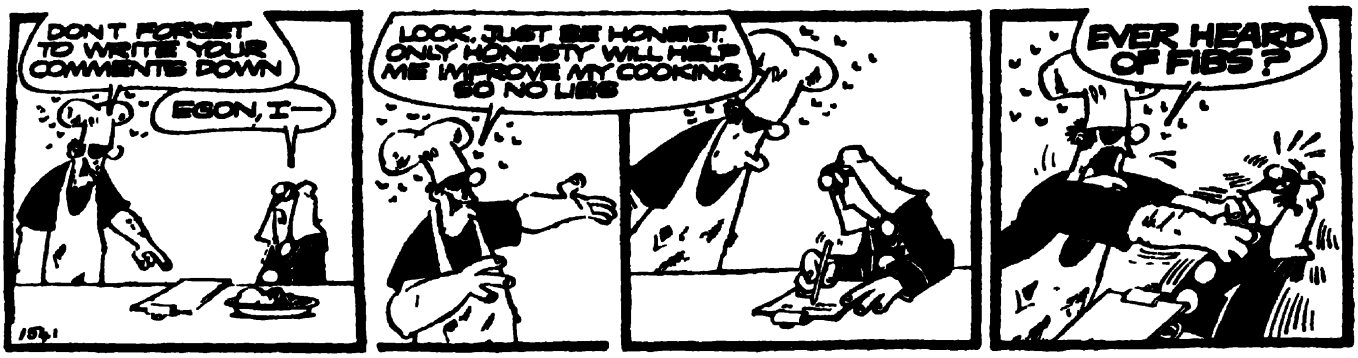
THE LOCKHORNS

I CAN'T HEAR A WORD YOU'RE SAYING, LEROY YOU'RE TALKING WITH YOUR MOUTH FULL. KEEP IT UP."

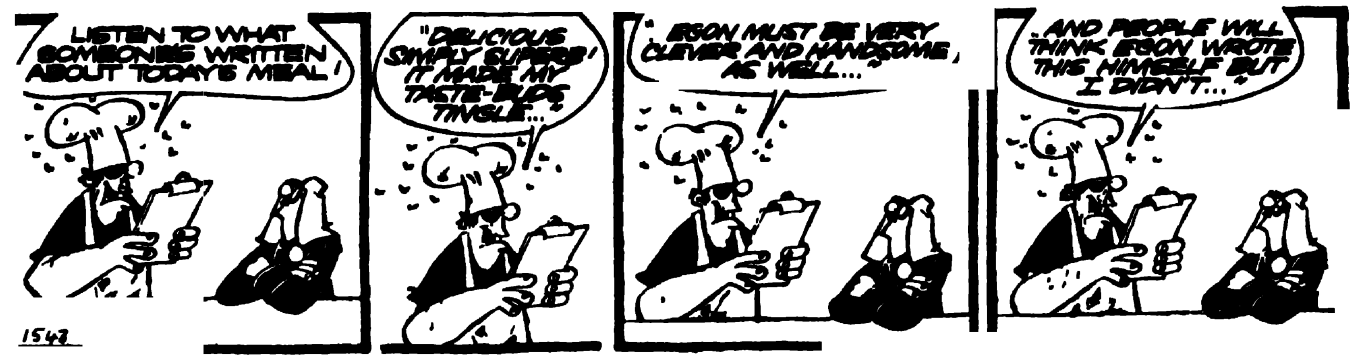
"WELL ..... THERE'S A WIG SHOP ON THE WAY HOME"



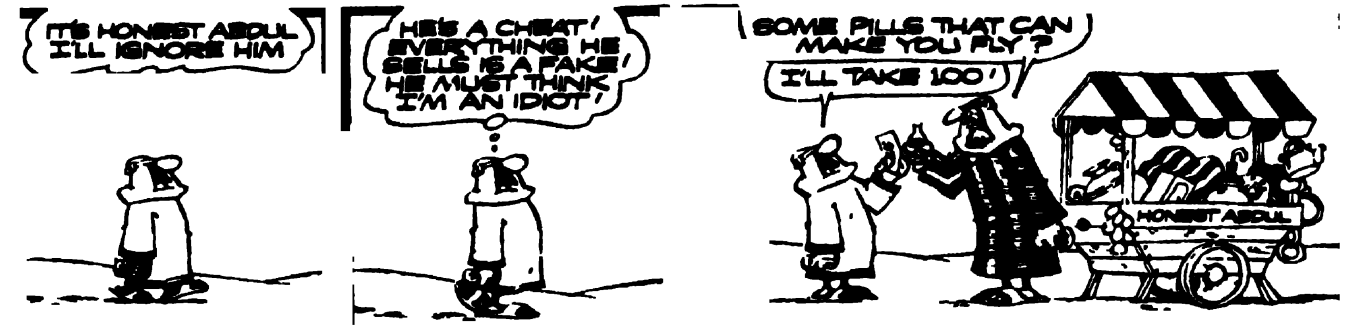
"I STOPPED TOO FAST FOR THE CAR IN BACK OF ME, AND TOO SLOW FOR THE CAR IN FRONT OF ME!"



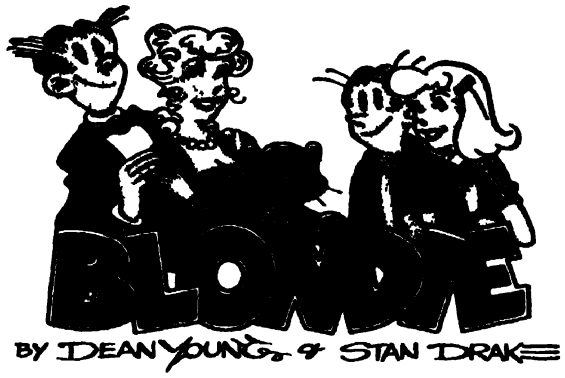
"LEROY HAS MOOD SWINGS FROM NASTY TO HOSTILE"

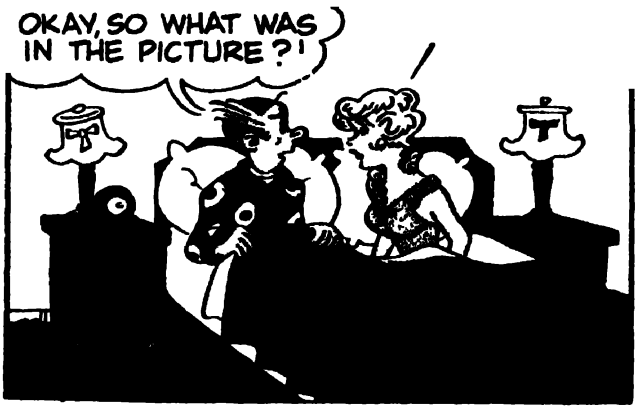


GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS



THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP





©1984 by King Features Syndicate Inc. World rights reserved

Sharon Stone

Sharon, by Choice

Not everyone seems to agree that Sushmita Sen and Aishwarya Rai are the two most beautiful women in the universe or the world.

When some male British celebs were asked recently to name the woman they thought was most sexy and beautiful, they unanimously voted for Sharon Stone, the hottest star in Hollywood.

"I am a normal red-blooded man," admitted best-selling author Jeffrey Archer in justifying his preference for the blonde actress.

The 35-year-old top Hollywood star who shot into fame with her portrayal of the sexually emancipated Catherine Tramell in Basic Instinct, garnered twice as many votes as runners-up, pulp fiction actresses Uma Thurman and Kim Basinger.

"She embodies all the glamour a woman of the Nineties should," said the famed fashion designer, Giorgio Armani.

Of course, Michelle Pfeiffer and Princess Diana were not to be forgotten Michelle, many felt, had a very "sexy mouth" and they adored Princess Di "for her curious blend of English rose and raw sex appeal"

Strangely, none of the respondents opted for any Indian beauties.

Blonde, Big and Blue-eyed

When it comes to a choice between Michelle Pfeiffer and Julia Roberts, most men prefer the former. This was revealed in a GQ Magazine survey conducted on 635 men, aged between 20 and 44, which said men desired women who were blonde, reasonably intelligent, big-bosomed and blue-eyed.

And topping the list was none other than the ravishing beauty, Michelle Pfeiffer.

Surprisingly, men want their women to be demanding and not submissive. Eighty-two per cent of those interviewed said so.

Seventy-two per cent felt women were jealous, 68 per cent viewed them as bitchy and 71 per cent saw them as wilful partners.

Good looks may be a stimulus for a lasting relationship for many, but not for all. Sixty-one per cent admitted they like women with 'no looks' but 'great brains'.

Michelle Pfeiffer

Whereas only 29 per cent sought 'great looks' and 'little brains' in their women. The finest quality, however, men look for in women for a stable and mature relationship is a keen sense of humour followed by honesty, loyalty and intelligence

The ideal partner, so said the men, should be shorter than them, have straight, blonde hair, blue eyes and a proportionate figure.

Do Indian men endorse these preferences?

In

THE PICK OF THE WEEK

VIDEOS

The Road to Wellville The story, set in Michigan, is based on a leading sanatorium for the well-known and well-to-do (Perhaps along the lines of the Betty Ford Clinic)

A thoroughly enjoyable comedy, starring Anthony Hopkins, Bridget Fonda and John Cusack

BOOKS

Deadlier than the Male*, Alix Kirsta: This book is sure to generate a lot of debate on what the author says — millions of children, old people and husbands share the same secret that they are being either battered or sexually abused by women.

The author argues that it's a myth that it's alien to women's nature to be agressive and violent.

Almost a century ago, writer Cesare Lambroso reckoned he could detect the female with a criminal bent of mind: she'd be fat and ugly. Lately, it has been established that rogue hormones are to blame for deviations from women's nurturing roles.

Published by HarperCollins; £6.99.

LIFESTYLE

Hot pot Milton's new casserole has Golmaal for a name, sans the chaos and the hotchpotch it inevitably conjures up

The product, on the contrary, is specially designed to be flat for the sake of "retaining the shape" of those soft, rounded malai koftas, dahi wadas and lipsmacking gulab jamuns kept within its confines

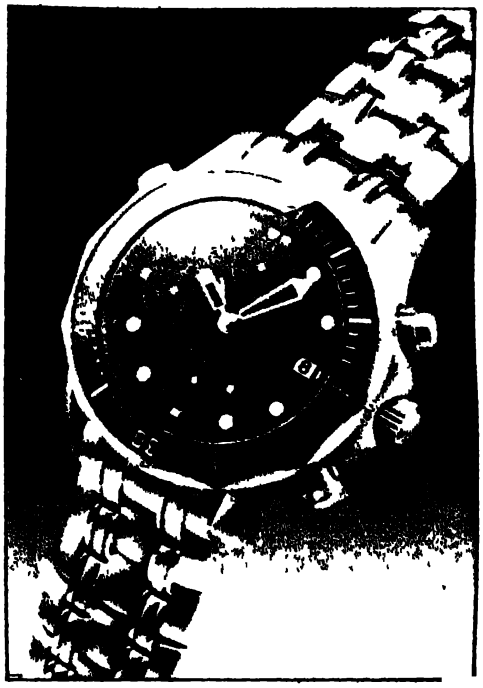
In delicate, floral designs, it is meant for the ever-busy housewife who wants to serve her meals piping hot, or as the perfect gift item for your gourmet friend



The price of the casserole along with six bowls is Rs 598

Just the casserole is tagged at Rs 426 A tempting offer — won't you agree?

Big league Omega, the legendary Swiss watchmakers, are on the expansion trail in India, introducing for the first time their new Seamaster range

The one to watch out for is the Omega Seamaster Professional Chrono Diver, which can brave the scorching heat and the tumultuous ocean waters

What's more, it's equipped with a helium escape valve with screw-in crown and has specially developed chronograph pushtons which can function underwater to a depth of 300 metres

Nominated as the Watch of the Year (1994) by the German trade magazine, Armbanduhren International, the Chrono Diver is meant for the man with exacting standards, be it in business or at leisure, for the aquatic sports lover or the deep sea diver It's for all tides — and naturally, for all times

HEALTH

Fishy odour:* Most people have a wrong idea that a fishy body odour is caused by a lack of personal hygiene. According to medical sciences, the Fish Odour Syndrome is caused by the body's inability to efficiently oxidise the chemical, trimethylamine, present in choline-rich foods.

The fishy odour is excreted through urine, saliva, breath, sweat and even vaginal secretions.

So, the best remedy would be, besides taking antibiotics, to avoid choline-rich foods that include eggs, liver, offal, soya beans and sea fish.

TASTINGS

Piece of cake Here's how you'll find baking a child's play Just go by the easy-to-follow instructions that Brown and Polson Cake Mix spells out for its users And you're sure to come up with the softest, fluffiest and scrumptuous cakes in town

The cake mixes come in two delicious flavours vanilla (at Rs 24) and chocolate (at Rs 26)

RASOI

JIGGS KALRA

Last year, when Rasoi travelled in the United States, the most noteworthy aspect on almost every menu was the emphasis on stir-fries. Of course, the other side of the pond had taken a shine to Chinese stir-fried food. Pity, the Yanks haven't quite discovered the exotic charm of the sub-continental stir-fries. Last week, we brought you the first taste of Balti cooking. Balti, which is an extension of kadhai cooking, applying the speedy stir-frying technique to a whole range of wonderful dishes, is the style that has finally challenged Tandoori and Moghalia cuisines in Britain.

Shehzad Husain's The Balti Cookbook, brought to Indian lovers of food by Shubhash Arora of Teksons, presents a perfect introduction to an old cooking style of India and Pakistan. The recipes included in the book range from the classics to the innovative. Two recipes

CHICKEN KOFTA BALTI WITH PANEER

INGREDIENTS

The Kofta

450 g / 1 lb Chicken
10 g / 1 3/4 tsp Garlic paste (strained)
5 g / 1/2" piece Ginger
4.5 g / 1 1/2 tsp Coriander powder
4.5 g / 1 1/2 tsp Red chilli powder
0.75 g / 1/2 tsp Dried fenugreek leaves (kasoori methi) powder
0.375 g / 1/4 tsp Turmeric powder
Salt
6.5 g / 2 tbs Coriander
2 Green chillies
Cooking oil (preferably corn oil) to grill kofta

The Paneer Mixture

175 g / 6 oz Paneer
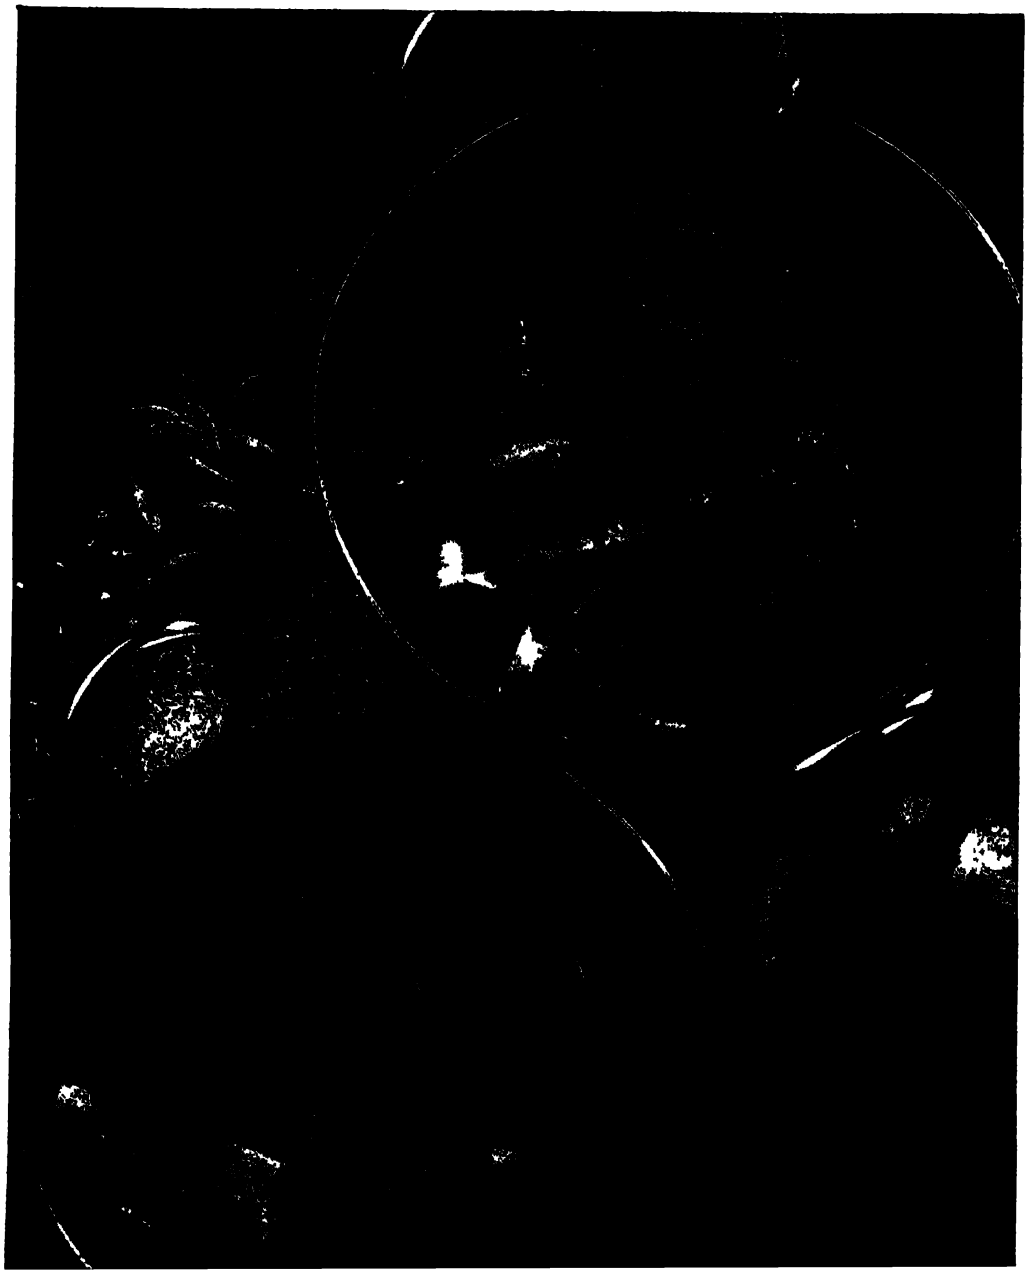
175 g / 6 oz Sweet corn or Corn kernels
1 Onion (medium)
1 Red bell pepper
1 Green bell pepper

The Garnish



6 Mint sprigs
1 Dried red chilli (optional)

Serves: 6
Preparation time: 45 minutes
Cooking time: 30 minutes

PREPARATION

The chicken: Clean,

Chicken Kofta Balti with Paneer

remove the skin, debone, cut into cubes, wash and pat dry.
The vegetables: Scrape, wash and shred ginger. Clean, wash and finely chop coriander. Wash green chillies, slit, deseed, finely chop and discard the stems.
The kofta: Put the chicken and the remaining ingredients, except oil, into a medium handi/pan, add 600 ml/2 1/2 cups of water, bring to a boil over medium heat and cook until the liquid has completely evaporated Remove and cool

Transfer to food processor or blender and mince for 2 minutes, stopping once or twice to loosen the mixture with a spoon Scrape the mixture into a large mixing bowl, using a wooden spoon Divide into 12 equal portions and make balls
The paneer mixture: Cut the paneer into 1 1/2" cubes Peel, wash and slice onions Wash red and green bell peppers, halve, deseed, cut into juliennes and discard the stems
The garnish: Clean mint, wash and pat dry Wipe red chilli clean with moist cloth and then crush

COOKING
Heat oil in a kadhai/wok over high heat, reduce to medium heat, add kofta and deep fry until light brown Remove with a slotted spoon to absorbent paper to drain excess fat

Reheat the remaining oil in the kadhai/wok, add the paneer mixture ingredients and flash fry over high heat for approximately 3 minutes Remove and adjust the seasoning

TO SERVE
Divide the *paneer*mixture equallly between 6 kadhai/woks, add 2 kofta to each serving and garnish with mint sprigs and equal quantities of the crushed chillies if you wish

Balti Baby Vegetables

BALTI BABY VEGETABLES

INGREDIENTS
10 New (baby) potatoes
12 Baby carrots
12 Baby courgettes
30 ml / 2 tbs Cooking oil (preferably corn oil)
15 Baby onions
30 ml / 2 tbs Chilli sauce
10 g / 1 3/4 tsp Garlic paste (strained)
10 g / 1 3/4 tsp Ginger paste (strained)
Salt
200 g / 1 cup Kabuli channa (chick peas)
A generous pinch soda bi-carb
10 Cherry tomatoes
1 Dried red chilli (optional)
20 g / 2 tbs Sesame seeds (white)

Serves: 4-6
Preparation time: 30 minutes
Cooking time: 35 minutes

PREPARATION
The vegetables: Wash, pat dry and halve the potatoes Peel, wash and pat dry carrots and onions Clean and wash courgettes Wash and pat dry tomatoes
The kabuli channa: Pick, wash put in a handi/pan, add 1 litre/4 1/4 cups of water, bring to a boil and then continue to boil for 2 minutes. Remove and reserve in the same water for 1 hour

Drain, add 1 litre/4 1/4 cups of fresh water and the soda bi-carb, bring to a boil, reduce to low heat, remove the scum, cover and simmer until cooked but not mashed. Drain and keep aside
The red chilli: Wipe red chilli clean with moist cloth and then crush

COOKING
Put water in a medium handi/pan, add salt, stir, bring to a boil, add potatoes and carrots, boil for 12-15 minutes, add the courgettes and boil for a further 5 minutes or until all the vegetables are just tender Drain and keep aside

Heat oil in the kadhai/wok, add baby onions, fry over medium heat until golden brown, reduce to low heat, add the chilli sauce, garlic paste, ginger pastes and salt, taking care not to burn the mixture Then add the boiled kabuli channa (chick peas) and bhunne/stir-fry until the moisture has been absorbed Now add tomatoes and stir with a slotted spoon for about 2 minutes Remove and adjust the seasoning

TO SERVE
Transfer to a serving bowl, sprinkle red chillies and sesame seeds and serve as part of a main meal or as an appetizer

 By varying the vegetables chosen and experimenting with different combinations, this recipe can form the basis for a wide variety of vegetable accompaniments Try baby corn, French beans, snow peas, okra and cauliflower florets*

NOTE: All weights are nett, that is post-preparation, and not gross ■

GANESH PYNE, 58, the reclusive painter with a melancholic disposition, can hardly be accused of being prolific, choosing to work with the more painstaking medium of tempera and using potions that are solely his own making. But Dame Fortune has been kind, smiling through his best known works, The Two Brothers, The Assassin,Boy and the Painted Horse and The Blue Column. Though awards have poured in, his desire to excel continues

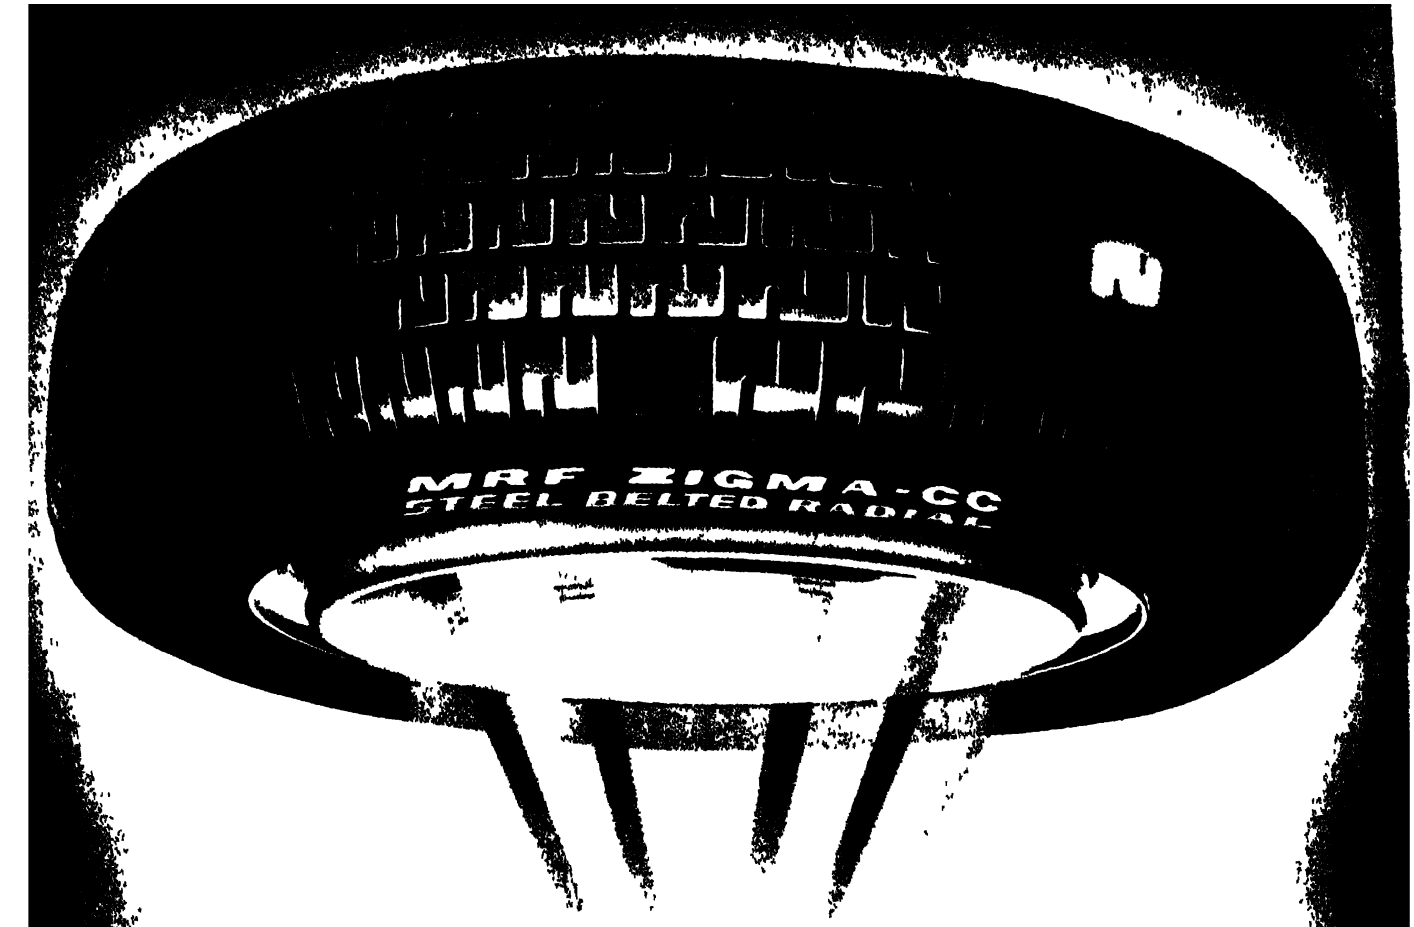
Tarapada Banerjee

What is your idea of perfect happiness?
A mind which is beyond any confusion whatsoever, and impossible for me to attain
What is your greatest fear?
Life
Who or what has been the greatest influence in your life?
My grandma
What do you dislike most in others?
Their unwillingness to communicate—to reach out, so to say
What do you dislike most in yourself?
My introvert nature
What is your most precious possession?
The materials with which I draw and paint
What objects do you always carry?



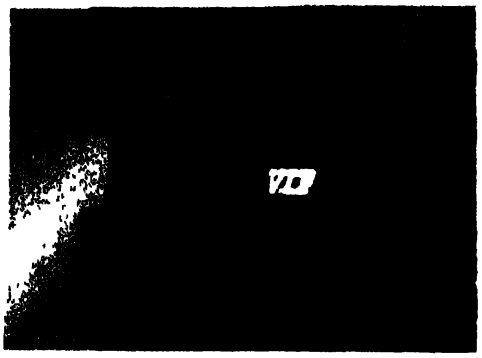
What do you dislike most in yourself?

My introvert nature

Curiously enough, it is a jaiphal (nutmeg) I always keep tucked into my pocket
What makes you most depressed?
The cry of helpless children
What do you dislike most on your appearance?
I have never given it a thought, nor been aware
What is your favourite word?
Oh God!
What is your favourite journey?
None that I can think of
What is your favourite dream?
Sleeping in deep waters
What is your nightmare?
The void beneath the steps that I am descending, and a contrary one, which involves my ascending those that end before a closed door
What or who is the greatest love of your life?
My grandma When alive, it is she I loved most, and now that she is gone, it is her memory that I cherish
What is your source of sustenance?
Solitude
On what occasions do you lie?
To fortify my privacy
What is your greatest regret?
That my dreams of being a writer could not be fulfilled
What has been your happiest moment?
When I enrolled as a student at the Government College of Art and Craft, Calcutta
What brings tears to your eyes?
When two ends do not meet despite my repeated efforts
How do you relax?
By allowing my mind to move freely
What do you envy most in others?
Determination
How would you like to be remembered?
I would not like to be remembered at all
How would you like to die?
If and when I wish to

What is your favourite dream?

Sleeping in deep waters



MRF ZIGMA STEEL

THE SPACE AGE RADIAL

MRF ZIGMA STEEL The Space Age Radial The tyre with muscles Of steel And the rage of the Maruti owner Slide into the driver's seat Start the car Hit the road Race away And feel the strength of MRF Zigma Steel As it takes control like no tyre has ever done before Accelerate : You'll discover that taking off was never so smooth Manoeuvre · The unique 'Z' old tread pattern unravels a new force in road-hugging Brake : Feel the broad tyre base hold the road in a tight grip Park : The tough, wide tyre base and the sensational raised lettering announce your arrival-in style! MRF ZIGMA STEEL · It's an out-of-the-world driving experience

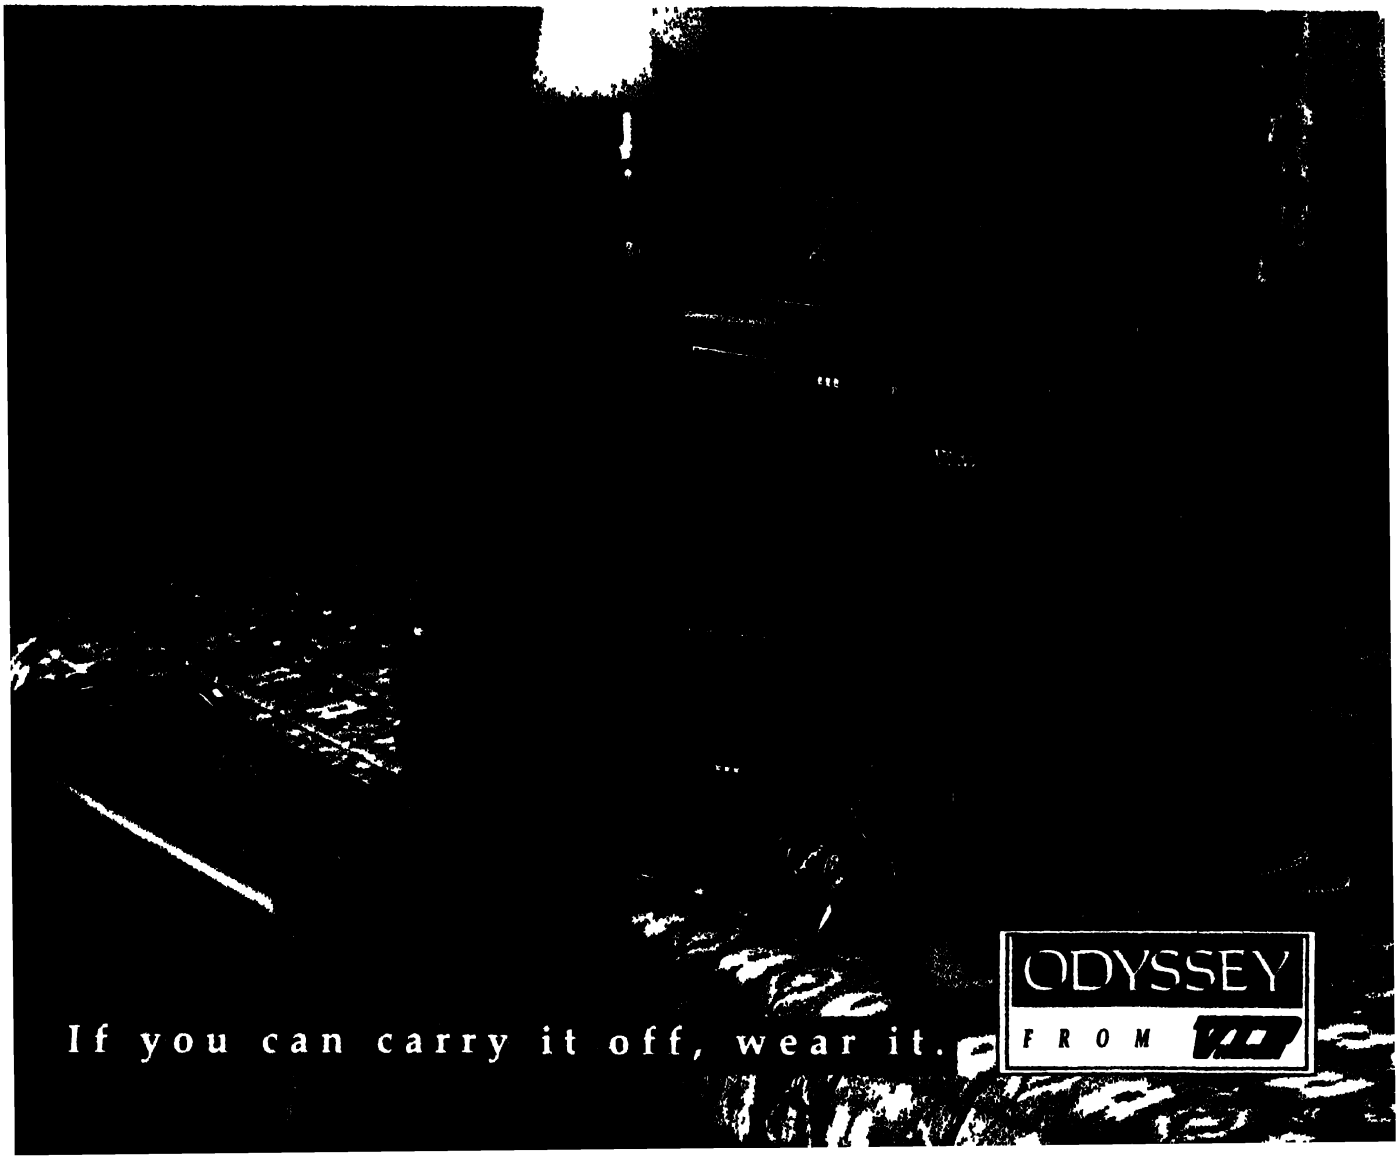
NOW ALSO AVAILABLE FOR YOUR MARUTI 1000cc

SUITABLE TRAVEL WEAR FOR A PALACE-ON-WHEELS HOLIDAY



Pack in the lifestyle of a Maharaja With Odyssey From VIP

It's more than just luggage It's a symbol of luxury

The smoothest ride on wheels Check the plush interiors The impeccable finish The unexpected details When you are travelling first class, you've got to wear the style to match

Suitcases Rs 1445/- onwards Briefcases Rs 1125/ onwards Vanity Cases Rs 1245/-

The Telegraph

26 FEBRUARY 1995

POST MORTEM

In the Winter Years...

■ The spirit to live life creatively in spite of physical failings is amazing ('Life at 80' and 'Summer of the Patriarchs', January 29)

When the season of life proceeds from "mists and mellow fruitfulness" to severe winter we need not surrender totally to the ravages of age

In particular, Bhabatosh Dutta's grit and determination is awe-inspiring We could never have dreamt of his agonising physical and circumstantial limitations despite which he keeps his intellect alive

I hope we can shake off our insensitivity to the other elderly members we see and meet, and develop more sympathy and respect for them

Dipali Mukherjee, Calcutta

A Glimpse of Broadway

■ The Magazine could not have chosen a better subject for its cover story ('Still a Hit', December 11) But somehow, the writeup did not deliver what it promised

I expected some nostalgia — an opportunity to flip through the legacies of Broadway But what I got was only a glimpse of Broadway

The cover story should have said more about this threatre district than just giving review-like accounts of Broadway's current productions

Neelanjan Bhattacharji, Calcutta

Mr Unclean

■ V P Singh has forever tried to establish that he's the man on the right path ('Loner,' January 15) Time and again he has used his resignation letter to gain public sympathy

His political track record has nothing much to talk about After the chief ministership of Uttar Pradesh, he found a berth in the Union Cabinet getting portfolios like defence, finance.

After Indira Gandhi's death he gained political prominence as Rajiv Gandhi's ally But he betrayed Rajiv Gandhi, too, to bolster his 'Mr Clean' image

He succeeded in forming a new political alliance, thanks to which he became the Prime Minister

But the period of his Prime Ministership was also not without controversy It was one of the darkest periods ever witnessed in India He divided society for electoral gains by using the Mandal card His divisive policies caused many an innocent student to self-immolate on the streets of Delhi

Singh deserves to remain a loner, for, the moment he enters active politics the nation will be in danger

Manish Chaturvedi, Calcutta

Mixed-up Mixes

■ The articles in the Magazine are eminently readable except for the Rasoi column of Jiggs Kalra His recipes for some quaint dishes are indeed very complicated

Secondly, it is difficult to become a good cook by simply following a set recipe

Instead of Rasoi, why don't you start a regular sports column?

Sharmistha Dutta, Calcutta

■ I am an insignificant old man of 80 who has read the cover story with unconcealed delight

The active lives of Jyoti Basu (80) and Sagarmoy Ghosh (82) have inspired me to live up to 81 — and quite actively.

I am a vegetarian and undertake the usual outdoor chores. I am proud of the fact that for the past 25 years, I have not felt the need to take any medicines.

I keep myself engaged reading books on biology, physics, mathematics and poetry. I am a regular contributor of articles on science and maths to the Bengali science magazine Gyan Bigyan.

I do not have either blood pressure or blood sugar and sleep well at night. With the blessings of Sarada Mata I am fit and fine. What more do I need?

P.C. Dasgupta, Calcutta

INSIDE

Gautam Patole

PAGE 8

IN A few days, Morarji Desai will turn 100 An affectionate look at the Grand Old Gandhian

PAGE 4

THE DISCOVERY of pre-historic cave paintings in France throws up an aesthetic question, too

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
18 GILLIAN WRIGHT
20 RUSKIN BOND
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
28 RASOI
30 FIRST PERSON

Cover Gautam Patole

FOCUS

IS IT ART, ANYWAY?

The recent discovery of prehistoric rock paintings in southeastern France raises an important question, says Pothik Ghosh

Imagine standing before the Guernica without being told what it is or who created it Think of embarking on a hazardous expedition to reach a modern art gallery displaying works of Rembrandt, Raphael, Salvador Dali and Marcel Duchamp

Reflect on the possibility of cutting across snake-infested jungles, navigating through rapid-ridden rivers, clambering along a steep cliff and crawling on your bellies through dark caves to reach Louvre

The ideas seem crazily anachronistic with the modern understanding of fine arts —both their creation and appreciation A museum which is the ultimate epitome of art and its critical appreciation and which as a concept developed a thousand years ago, reaching its acme during the Renaissance, has an aristocratic and luxurious ambience to it

Art in its present form is an activity that has been born out of profusion and abundance and the presence of art galleries is a significant attribute that expresses the modernity of a place—New York being an example

But human beings painted pictures perhaps an era before the Sistine Chapel or anything similar to it came into existence If the prehistoric rock art and cave paintings are any indication then creation of pictures have occupied human consciousness for about the last 50,000 years

Last December three amateur explorers chanced upon a cave at the foot of a cliff in the Ardeche region in southeastern France They had to wriggle through a tunnel into the complex labyrinth of caves, and lo! to their surprise, in the pale glow of their head lamps, they noticed two red lines on a cavern wall

One of the explorers, Jean Marie Chauvet, who is a government employee overseeing the protection of the many historically important caves in the region, said that those markings were characteristic of the stone age

The French ministry of culture later claimed that the caves, which had a large number of animals drawn on their walls, were perhaps more valuble than the legendary prehistoric cave paintings of Lascaux in France and Altimira in Spain They have dated these cave paintings to be as old as 20,000 years

In fact, when the first cave paintings were discovered in Spain they were dismissed as hoaxes It was only in the beginning of this century that such 'art-forms' were accepted as the genuine manifestation of prehistoric human consciousness

The recently discovered cave paintings depict animals such as the woolly rhinoceroses, bisons, mammoths, deer, bears, lions, horses, a panther and a hyena The colours used are red, black and ochre, out of which the preponderance is that of red The pigment is an oxide of iron called haematite and has been extracted from the earth

There is a painting which represents 50 woolly rhinos It has a rhythm, texture and exuberance, unparalelled even by the most modern of all visual arts According to Jean Clottes, a well-known expert on prehistoric art, the most important thing about the entire find is that predatory and dangerous species like lions, panthers, hyenas and bears far outnumber horses, bisons, deer and mammoths Clottes also says that this is something unique to the recent discovery

Animals resembling a bear and a panther in

Patrice Beghain, the regional head of cultural affairs, says, "These paintings are more beautiful than those in Lascaux " But this is where a disturbing question needs to be confronted Is the aesthetic evaluation of these paintings justified?

The great film maestro, Satyajit Ray, in his last film, Agantuk, uses the famous bison of Altimira as a motif of aesthetics in prehistory That was, perhaps, the attempt of a modern man trying to understand an undocumented, iconographic representation without the bridge of language and writing

one of the 20,000-year-old wall paintings found near Vallon-Pont-d'Arc

The idea, however, is whether we can possibly interpret prehistoric cave art in terms of aesthetics, specially when the date for the invention of aesthetics is yet to be ascertained

Though there are differences of opinion, most prehistorians and archaeologists agree that communication by visual images came into existence some 40,000 years ago That was when the Homo sapien Cro-Magnon migrated from West Asia and reached Ice Age Europe

The evolutionary superiority of Cro-Magnons over the Neanderthals, according to some experts, was a brain with a large frontal lobe well-equipped for associative thinking This can easily be inferred because art is essentially an effort to symbolise a particular thing by something else — association

It is a language, that rests on the structure of a signifier representing

According to Jean Clottes, a well-known expert on prehistoric art, the most important thing about the entire find is that predatory and dangerous species like lions, panthers, hyenas and bears far outnumber horses, bisons, deer and mammoths

Buffaloes and horses are among the animals depicted in the cave paintings found in southern France and thus giving meaning to a signified

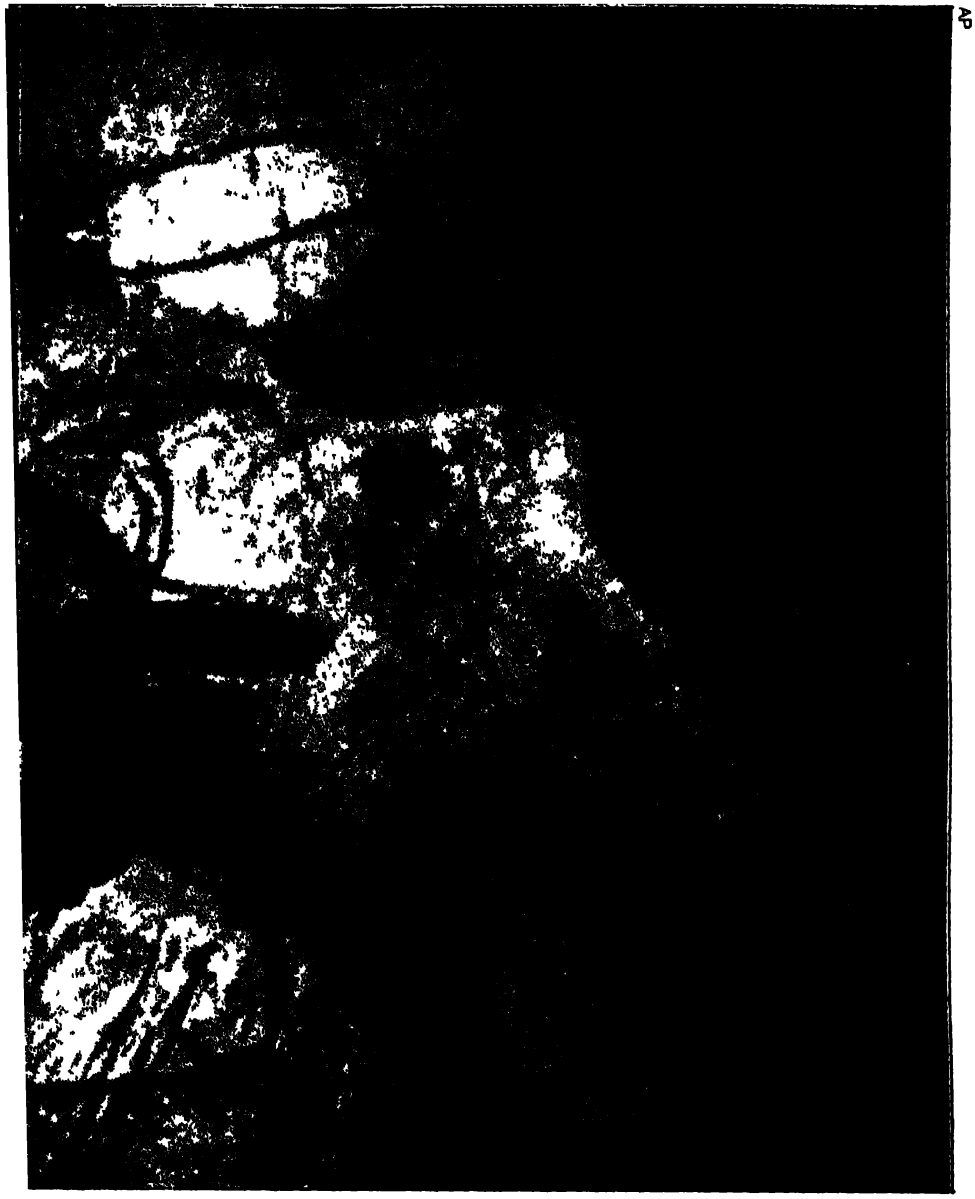
At least on this count an attempt can be made to understand pre historic art, even if aesthetic considerations are discounted

Therefore, if we try to comprehend the Ardeche cave paintings without using any modern tool or aid for art appreciation, the proposition beco mes all the more interesting

If an archaeology of art is performed it is found that among the oldest types of art is personal decoration — ornaments such as beads, bracelets, pendants and necklaces

Tatooing and painting body-surfaces also formed an integral part of such practices The latter persists even to this day among many tribes the world over



It is not yet clear, as to whether the aforestated practices are interpreted and understood as art or rituals Or why else should pictures be painted in the most inhospitable and inaccessible of regions Tatooing and painting body surfaces were done to practise totemism The use of beads, masks, and feathers of different birds are also various manifestations of the custom

Totemism, according to the Oxford Dictionary, is the practice of using emblems of natural objects, usually animals, to represent a clan or an individual This practice helped differentiate between a bison man and, say, an eagle man Totems also served as a form of magic in which it was believed that certain animal symbols and tatoos represented certain good or bad omens

For example, the cry of an eagle indicated victory in wars A famous anthropologist says, "It appears that a totem may be any enduring element of the physical or mental environment, either unique conceptual entitities, or more frequently, classes or species of things, activities, states, or qualities which are constantly recurring and are thus considered to be predurable "

The shift of the background from body-surfaces to walls of caves and rock shelters can, perhaps, be explained by the following statement of ethnographer Sir James Frazer on the prehistoric and tribal conception of magic "If we analyse the principles of thought on which magic is based, they will probably be found to resolve themselves into two first, that like resembles like, or that an effect resembles its cause, and, second, that things which have once been in contact with each other continue to act on each other at a distance after the physical contact has been severed "

From this it can plausibly be construed that cave paintings began when the Paleolithic (Old Stone Age) man thought that by painting animals, which were hunted for food or for his protection, he could have control on the animals in the same way in which he controlled their figures, shapes and sizes, while painting

Totemism also acquired fixed positions, as is evident from a painting in the recently discovered Ardeche caves, in which several horses are shown charging towards two rhinos Perhaps, representing the animosity of a 'horse' clan towards a 'rhino' clan

Prehistoric rock shelter paintings discovered recently in India, throughout the length and breadth of Bihar, according to Dr Prakash Charan Prasad, are perhaps the oldest (dating back to 20,000 years) Haematite has been used in all these paintings

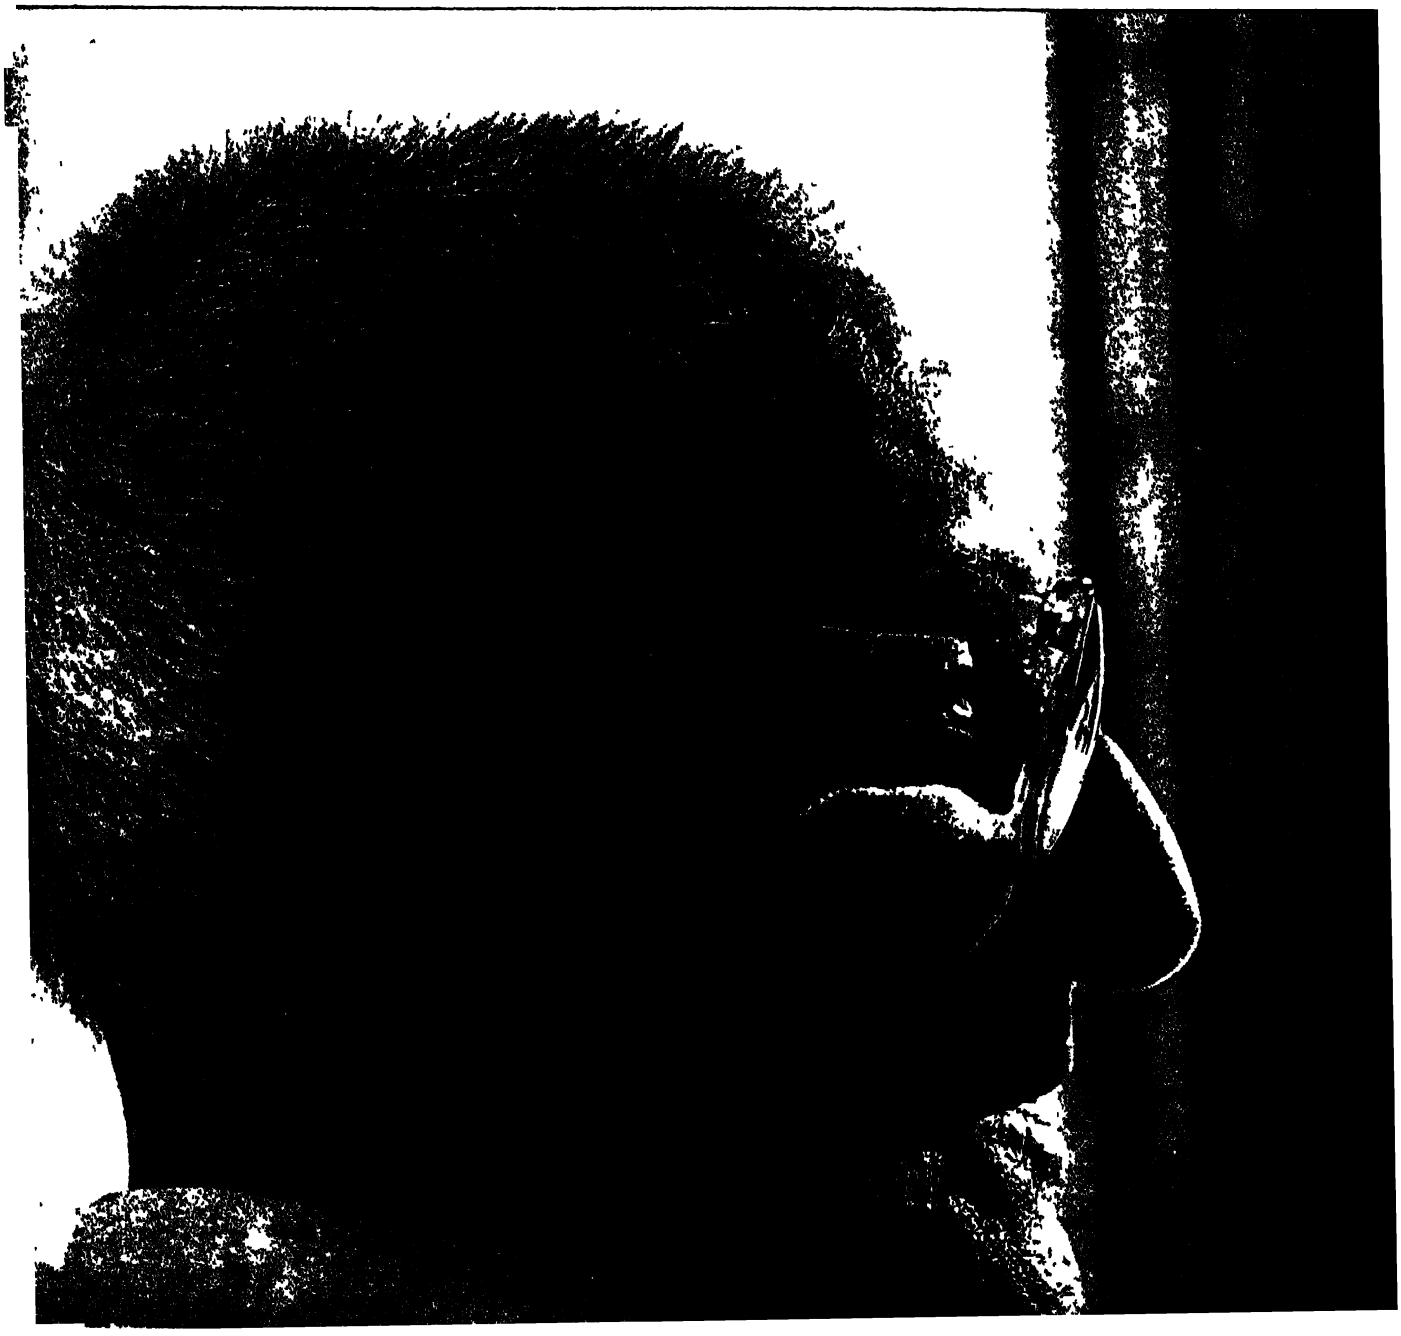
Prehistoric rock paintings of Arnhem Land in Australia which are also thought to be of the same age as Altimira and Lascaux, have definite indications which show that they are forerunners of aboriginal art

However, the most significant out of all these are particularly the ones in a village called Isko, Hazaribagh district

The Isko paintings, unlike all other such art discovered till date, does not depict a single hunting scene Animals are drawn in ones and twos and are not shown in a group An anthromorphic figure or the painting of a strong and super man with a distinct phallus is also visible on the Isko rock shelters

According to a local Munda tribal the prevailing tradition of kohvars— paintings on the walls of the room where newlywed couples spend their first night are actually a continuance of these prehistoric paintings Kohvars have very strong tantric connotations - - a form of sexual or virile sorcery and magic

Prehistoric rock paintings of Arnhem Land in Australia which are also thought to be of the same age as Altimira and Lascaux, have definite indications which show that they are forerunners of aboriginal art



But unfortunately these paintings which offer us a glimpse into the consciousness of our ancestors are being destroyed Experiences have been bitter after Altimira and Lascaux were opened to tourists Negligence on the part of the Indian archaeological authorities is leading to the gradual destructions of rock and cave art in Hazaribagh and Bhimbhetka

Hence, drawing lessons from these experiences the French authorities have re-sealed the Ardeche caves and have decided not to make it a tourist spot

To understand the importance of these invaluable treasures, words of the great anthropologist, Claude Levi Strauss need to be emphasised upon after a little modification 'If sound and meaning, as Saussure has taught us, are the two indissociable halves of linguistic expression, then the work of the cave man speaks countless languages - a discourse always expressed by an unbreakable solidarity between the background chosen and the techniques of execution ' ■

COVER STORY

A GREAT LONG LIFE

Bhavdeep Kang spent some moving moments with Morarji Desai in Bombay a few months back, when he was nearing his century

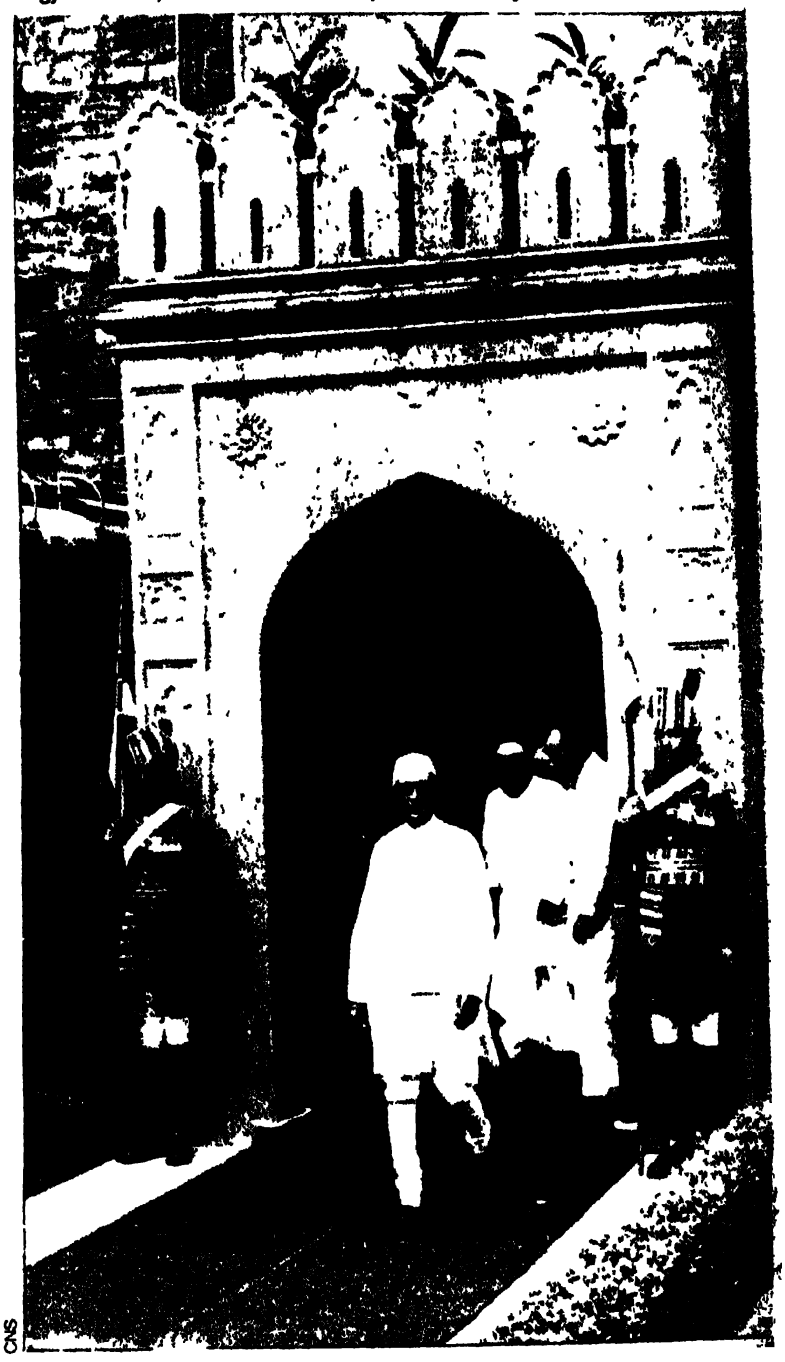
YOU REACH OUT SURREPTITIOUSLY AND BRUSH HIS SLEEVE, ONLY HALF-CERTAIN THAT HE IS there. "Hello," he says, in a whisper from a light-year away

Sthithapragna. Complete detachment. Just before his century, former Prime Minister Morarji Desai was the picture of the dispassionate Gandhian he has striven to be all his life.

He still follows the world's foibles and follies, interested but unmoved. Cloaked in other-worldy stillness, he rests on a divan in the living room of his plush apartment in south Bombay.

The man who as chief minister of Bombay banned liquor, outlawed kissing and drinking scenes in films and ordered all restaurants closed at midnight; the celibate (notwithstanding a baseless scandal over a certain Muslim lady) who reportedly ticked Gandhiji off for using the shoulders of young girls as support while walking, watches with equanimity as fun and frolic become the order of the day



The Union Minister who castigated a woman Member of Parliament for dolling up in expensive clothes and jewellery observes quietly a thriving fashion scene featuring Pierre Cardin, Mezz, Lacoste and Benetton.

The puritan who took grave offence when a journalist accused him of using a "mild after-shave" remains unperturbed at the invasion of Drakkar Noir and L'Oreal.

The Prime Minister who frowned on Coke smiles as he sees it thunder back in the wake of Pepsi. MNCs are being treated as essential "MNTs (amenities)" these days, he quips.

"It is not necessary, quite harmful to the contrary," he says, but that is as far as he will go in criticising government policy.

Morarji Desai, Prime Minister, with the then Defence Minister, Jagjivan Ram, at Red Fort on Independence Day, 1977

Facing page photograph by

Morarji Desai has won his lifelong battle against anger and hatred, made good his boast as Prime Minister that he had rid himself of all negative emotions You search in vain for the self-righteous, rigid, curt, abrasive and dictatorial prig as described by Janardhan Thakur

The inflexible autocrat who "fought so long and hard against human weaknesses that virtue itself became a fetish with him" is long gone

He does not feel "let down" by anybody, he says Not Jawaharlal Nehru who first offended him by dividing the erstwhile state of Bombay, not Indira Gandhi who played a cat-and-mouse game with him when he was Finance Minister, not the members of the Janata club whose shenanigans forced his resignation in 1979

Senility? Perish the thought He reads some 14 newspapers a day, eveningers included, entertains occasional visitors and remains articulate, if hard of hearing It may take him a minute to string together a single sentence, but he makes his point

"It is for others to say what I have achieved But I have no regrets about my life, no changes I would like to have made I lived my life according to my own ideas and was not made to change by anybody," he says firmly

He shuffles from living room to bedroom, spurning the use of walking sticks and ignoring the attendant who hovers solicitously at his side His eyesight (he uses a magnifying glass to read) and hearing are a little impaired, his speech not at all

His face is remarkably unlined — after all, the English calendar puts his age at only 24-plus (he was born on February 29) But for a bout of illness a little over six years ago, he would still be campaigning in Gujarat, declares his son and heir, Kantibhai, proudly What is the secret of his longevity and excellent health? A diet of milk and coconut water, constant medical attention or "the water of life"?

Freedom from tension, the man who will be 100, stresses "I have no worries as I have not done harm to anybody I have never treated difficulties

STILL FEARLESS

Shameem Akhtar had an encounter of the brief kind with Morarjibhai

Journalists are once again treading a path to the home of the former Prime Minister Morarji Desai. Long queues are forming outside the Desai residence for a darshan of the man who will be 100 three days from now

But a clucking Kanti Desai, Morarji's son, makes each journalist write out a questionnaire, waves aside most questions as being beyond the pale of the near-century old man and talks nonstop while the father looks on at a world he is no longer interested in, through a pair of thick glasses that distort his eyes

Speaking literally into his ear, one asks him his special list of Gandhians and he wheezes, "The Mahatma"

His message to the youth, also in one word, is to be "fearless" And his core philosophy, again in one word is, "Gandhism"

The interview is over

And child-like, the ex-Prime Minister is led away, his delicate frame almost keeling over the attendant who supports him till his room Other, not-so-lucky journalists, who had fixed up appointments, look on dismayed while Kantibhai tells them darshan time is over and they have to try another day.

And the son settles down for a chat, to recapture a fleeting shadow of the glory that was his when his father was among the most powerful men in the country.

Along with his great-grand daughter on his 99th birthday

In a homage to the grand old man, two panels have been formed to supervise the centenary celebrations. One is a government body that is awaiting to be gazetted and as difficulties It all depends on the mental state it is God's law," he adds

It is his deep-rooted Gandhian belief in live and let live which contributed to the success of his foreign policy, he recalls During his Prime Ministership, with the able services of External Affairs Minister, Atal Behari Vajpayee, India showed Pakistan that it wanted peace from a position of fearlessness and strength "and they reciprocated"

The son of an Anavil Brahmin school teacher, Desai cut his teeth on the Mahabharata and the Ramayana Religious principles can enrich political life, he says, when asked to comment on his former Cabinet colleagues trumpeting Hindutva from the rooftops "The religious path must be properly followed," he adds quickly Kantibhai alertly deflects any "controversial" questions

Himself pushing 70, the former businessman, once described as the "Sanjay Gandhi of the Janata government" and Desai's one blind spot hovers around his father like a mother hen

Although — touchwood — Desai is healthy apart from a minor hernia, the slightest negligence could do a lot of damage, he says Particularly as his father never voices the slightest complaint even if he is unwell

"I have to watch the signs Sometimes I can make out what the doctor cannot," says Kantibhai It is the compulsion of looking after his father that has kept him from active politics, says he

the other a private one organised by the Bharatiya Vidhya Bhavan with a galaxy of well-known figures as members — Nani Palkhivala, R. Venkataraman, Prem Chandra Goel and C. Subramaniam.

The year-long centenary celebrations will include cultural and literary programmes the schedule for which will be chalked out by the government body during its first meeting to be held soon. The man of 100 may actually make a rare public appearance for a meeting though the family is unwilling to commit itself on it as yet.

"At his age it is not possible to predict what tomorrow holds for him And he is not in a physical state to attend such functions though we will try to bring him for one, if possible. Also, he has reached a stage in life where he is not interested in such worldly things as celebrations. Even at the height of his power he never paid much lip service to such things as birthdays, which is why he antagonised many people who themselves expected to be wished on their birthdays," explains the son.

The recent femur bone operation on the thigh has further restricted his movements The earlier padmasan that Desai used to do religiously everyday has now been stopped completely. His puja is now restricted to reciting the Gita, keeping slow time with the rosary beads.

Most of his time is spent in bed while he is out for a brief half-hour break in the evenings, when outsiders are allowed to meet him. His diet — fruits, nuts, milk (a la Gandhi) has been the same since the Emergency, when in a fit of asceticism, he renounced cereals forever from his plate

The family has been embarrassed by the sudden flush of media interest in Desai. Some of the requests have been downright awkward, cribs a member, relating how one publication wanted its representative to spend the whole day with the former Prime Minister.

The British Broadcasting Corporation has also asked permission to do a shoot, and the family is still considering if he can endure it

Also in the can are two films on the man. One by Devindra Kandewal who, along with his camera team, spent three days with Desai. Kandewal has prepared a tough questionnaire of 50 queries probing into the life of the man whom he was capturing on film.

Though Kandewal shot most of it at his own expense, he has now secured a sponsor who is willing to buy Doordarshan time, with the possibility of a 15-episode series which covers his entire life, extending right from his childhood to the years of political wilderness now.

Only the childhood sequence remains to be shot, with the search on for a child artiste who resembles the sepia photos of Desai as a toddler.

Another film was created by the Films Division crew and this is expected to be screened as pre-entertainment fare in cinema halls. And as his time with the public continues to shrink by the day, this may be the only way to remember the man who captured, for a short moment in history, the imagination and hope of our people.

MILK AND COCONUT WATER

Gautam Patole

Here is the Morarji Desai longevity diet (in conjunction with a trouble-free mind):

- 2 litres of milk, in seven doses evenly spread over the day.
- Coconut water twice a day, preferably in the morning at a three-hour interval.
- An early lunch (at 9.30 am when most of Bombay is packed, half-asleep, into local trains) consisting of more milk, fruit, home-made cottage cheese, butter from cow's milk, dates and something sweet.
- Dinner is the same, with steamed (not boiled) vegetables substituted for fruit

Once every week, a medical team laden with equipment descends on Sarang apartments to give him a thorough check-up He undergoes a sonography once every four months, to facilitate early detection of any ailment

Desai settles himself comfortably in the living room, under a relatively young portrait of himself and smiles benevolently at his great-grand children Four generations live in the sprawling apartment It is a long way from Balsar in Gujarat where he was born and brought up in poverty

He was married at 15, just days before his father committed suicide and forced him to bear the burden of a large family Ten members of the Desai family and four servants are comfortably housed in the apartment which most Bombayites would consider a palace

Little Vishal and Aishani, two of the four great-grand children, hop and scramble through the rooms, weaving their way between magnificent crystal vases, ashtrays and statuettes

Desai has a message for today's young people "Live truthfully few people are doing that now," he says However, he believes they are safe from Western cultural imperialism "Nobody can harm our culture They may try, but they will not succeed " So much so for Kentucky Fried Chicken replacing chana-bhatura

His thoughts on Jyoti Basu, nearest to him in age "I have always believed communism is futile But it is for them to decide whether it has any meaning

He has no intention of working on a new set of memoirs when he turns 100 and his centenary celebrations, which include an exhibition of photographs depicting his life, get under way

It is past 5 pm and time to wrap up the meeting so that the Original Old Man can take a siesta What is the greatest change he has seen, in the century which has passed before his eyes? Is it cable TV, man on the moon or woman in bikini?

Desai smiles beatifically "I have seen a free India"

MORARJI, ACCORDING TO THEM

Samita Bhatia talked to people in New Delhi who have known the Gandhian closely or observed him carefully

Perhaps, the only occasion when Mike Wallace, one of US's intrepid journalists, was flummoxed was during an interview with the former Prime Minister, Morarji Desai

Quizzing Desai about his fad — his belief in the treatment of 'aqua pura' — Wallace was least prepared for Desai's cutting rejoinder "Yes, I drink my own urine, and am not asking you to drink mine "

Jairam Ramesh, former advisor to the PM, who was then in the US, recalls feeling a surge of pride at the man who could hold his own — even on the matter of his unorthodox regimen

When the next leap year, 1996 dawns, Morarji Desai will mark his centenary Almost 100, alert and sprightly, subscriber to the Gandhian idiom in politics, a respected administrator, criticised and condemned by his detractors, never depressed by failure or heady with success and unfazed by praise — is how one has known Desai

He is also known as a man who has exercised strict dietary control for the last 50 years — he has not consumed any cereals, but has retained a healthy and simple diet of fruit, milk, honey and some nuts

Those who worked with him closely, like V Y Tonpe and Hashmukh Shah, know Morarjibhai to be self-reliant, as one who hated to be fussed over, a light traveller and a far-sighted individual with a philosophic bent of mind

Others go as far as to say that he was a man born far ahead of his times

Tonpe, his special personal secretary and known to Desai since 1937 says, "He believes in the destiny of India and that social re-structuring will happen As a matter of fact, he wanted to finish and carry on the work of Patel and Nehru "

A man whose political career appears as spotless as the white homespun clothes he wears H D Shourie, well-known social activist and leading lawyer, finds one aspect striking "We are looking at the one person in politics with an eminent stature Not only did he carry himself ramrod straight, so too was he in politics, function, performance and action "

Ready to take on anything

Therefore, it was not surprising that Desai never went out of his way to oblige his strong band of supporters who had stood by him through thick and thin Observes Hasmukh Shah, who was joint secretary in Desai's office for eight years, "Mr Desai never went for a trade-off nor did anything that was less than correct "

But who — on the other hand — as PM unwittingly became the butt of jokes for holding forth on urine therapy A fetish that the world media picked upon and splashed on the front pages But it was no secret that he rarely ever cared what others thought about his thoughts (or actions)

There are few people whose minds remain as clear when they are pushing 100, and "Morarjibhai is one such person," says B N Pande, Congress (I) MP, Rajya Sabha, whose association with Desai dates back to 1930

A strict disciplinarian and intolerant of any manifestation of indiscipline, Desai's brief and crisis-ridden tenure as PM "was dogged by indiscipline in his party, but those who pulled him down could not — ironically — run the government themselves!" says Pande

As the chief minister of Bombay Presidency Morarjibhai was quite popular among both the Gujarati and Marathi speaking people, Pande recalls Responding to public grievances very

Raghu Rai

The Gandhian way

sympathetically, though not giving in to irrational demands

A staunch follower of the Gandhian principles, Pande reiterates that Morarjibhai was "outspoken and sometimes did not mind offending people with his plain speaking" Fully committed to Gandhian ideals, very firm in his beliefs and totally unconcerned with other points of view

As an administrator, he was amongst the ablest, says former Prime Minister Chandra Shekhar, but adds that "his rigidity and firm beliefs in his own viewpoint created annoyance among his colleagues, earning him much criticism" It was this inflexible approach combined with a somewhat "whimsical and eccentric" attitude, Jairam Ramesh agrees, that overshadowed his positive attributes

Shekhar recalls Desai in the forefront after the elections that made him PM Shekhar remembers Desai as a man who did not make compromises with those his points of view diverged — whether in personal matters or public life

"Even at a time when the party split and the government fell, he never made a compromise with any person whom he thought did not appear to be a person of principles, honesty or integrity," says Shekhar

Undoubtedly a man of impeccable personal integrity, he may have been accused of many things but not of corruption According to Shourie, while the presentday connotation of politics is negative, "no one can point an accusing finger at him, nor any blemish of corruption taint his character" "For he stood by his principles all through his political career"

While Desai's critics may have come down with a heavy hand, Pakistan appears to have been more conscious of his worth "For it conferred upon

Almost 100, alert and sprightly, subscriber to the Gandhian idiom in politics, a respected administrator, criticised and condemned by his detractors, never depressed by failure or heady with success and unfazed by praise — is how one has known Desai

With Chandra Shekhar when the latter called on him

him the highest award — the Nishan-e-Pakistan for his commitment and services to the promotion of better ties between the two countries Indo-Pak relations have never been better than they were during his premiership," emphasises Ramesh

Desai has always accepted events as pre-ordained and therefore untoward occurences did not appear to disturb him His firm faith in Providence and God has seen him through the most trying times

Shekhar recalls, "Even when he relinquished prime ministership I saw him working on the spinning wheel, completely composed So, too, at the time of the air crash in which he had a miraculous escape Though five people were killed and many injured (including his son) Morarjibhai was unperturbed "

But Shah puts the record straight and declares that despite Desai's outward calm, he is "really soft, and intensly human on the inside, though he won't like to show as much" "He cares enough to remember names, and make enquiries of a very personal nature when he meets you," he muses

But today Desai does not want to discuss politics Since his retirement from public life he keeps aloof, is well informed about political developments, but never expresses himself on controversial issues

Chandra Shekhar knows him to be "positive for future developments and convinced that the phase India is passing through is temporary — and that a bright and glorious future lies ahead"

And Pande concludes, "I pray that Morarjibhai celebrates his 125th birthday, as was Gandhiji's desire which unfortunately remained unfulfilled " ■

According to H.D. Shourie, while the presentday connotation of politics is negative, 'no one can point an accusing finger at him, nor any blemish of corruption taint his character'

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S  COLUMN

WISDOM OF THE WOMB

It is very dangerous to generalise All too often if something is true, the opposite is also true It is commonly thought that 50 to 60 years ago, people had large families and now they have family planning But Ayodhya, or rather Ayodhya Neta, put me right about that

Ayodhya is not just the name of a pilgrim town on the banks of the Saryu river, it is also the name of an 80-year-old who lives in the Kurmi tola of the small village of Bariasanpur in the Chiraigaon block of Varanasi district

Now Chiraigaon is a fascinating place and perhaps I shall write of it later And Ayodhya is an engaging character Despite his title neta, he is not a politician — not at least since 1942 He is a neta through the sheer force of his character

From his charpoy, outside his loom shed where two or three men are constantly turning Japanese yarn into Banarasi saris, he can see the local shrine A tree hung with pieces of red cloth and festooned with bells It is here that women come to pray for children For surely it is a curse to be childless and son-less

Ayodhya is 80 and smiles at such superstition He thinks God sent him into this world and what he made of himself after that was his own responsibility

It is about children that I had come to see him I was accompanied by a doctor who had nominated him as an example of a grandfather figure with many children, whose own children had been deeply influenced by modern wisdom

One of his sons, I knew, had become the village health minister for perhaps one of the most successful family planning programment in the district and had spent a number of years handing out condoms and oral contraceptives I needed to find such a model family for a television documentary 'documenting' changes in attitudes over this century

"Sixty years ago, people must have had a lot of children?" I asked, to back up my simplistic assumption

"Oh indeed "

"And you must have found it difficult coping with a large family?"

"No, I didn't have one "

So I was misinformed I gave the doctor a straight look but before I could say anything, Ayodhya Neta continued, "I looked . around at all the people with big families and I could see they weren't happy "

"When a man gets married," he beamed at me through thick glasses and two days' white stubble, "he only thinks of manoranjan — pleasure — and he forgets everything else but that Then after two or three children he begins to realise what society is about, his social responsibilities Why should I lie to you? That's what happened to me "

Ayodhya's wife didn't hear this part of the conversation as she was just approaching, having harvested a crop of unexpectedly diseased rice

"After that," continued her husband, "I thought, we don't have much land and what we have can't stretch like rubber and so I thought I went to Varanasi and bought a book by a Pandit called the Kokh Shastra It was what the sages used to use and is very old Not that we were so successful," he concluded, "what shame is there in saying it? We had three children by design and one by accident I regret that very much Really, to have more than two children is a crime "

"And what did you think about this?" I asked his wife who was concerned with the loss of the rice than the conversation But to please her guest she turned her large, bright eyes on me and answered, "We decided together, just us two My mother and father-in-law were dead, so there was no one to oppose us "

"Have tea," said Ayodhya Neta, pushing a steel cup in my direction, "you see a cart has two wheels They have to go in the same direction If one goes east and the other goes west there's disaster It has to be a joint decision "

This couple had three sons and one daughter, all of whom had learned from their parent's example All three daughters-in-law and the daughter had been sterilised after two or at the most three children

Sterilisation is popular with women as it frees them from all further jhanjhat and jhagra over contraception Sterilisation of women is also popular with men Vasectomy has been in the doldrums since the Emergency

As I left, I promised to return Ayodhya Neta smiled again, "In the old days," he said, "I never saw an Englishman in this village You had to go to a lot of effort to see them I am now happy that they came to see me "

My companion, the doctor, was amazed to hear about the Kokh Shastra Despite being an expert on community medicine and population control, he had never heard of it He immediately dropped in my opinion Obviously he was cut off from his roots and was unacquainted with the ancient traditions of India where an answer for every problem has already been evolved

On my return to Delhi, I sought out the Kokh Shastra and after some effort discovered it in an Unwin paperback in English But surely this couldn't be the book This was not the plain guide to family planning through restraint as I had imagined This was the Kama Sutra of medieval India Birth control was certainly not the first objective of the author In fact there seemed no mention of it at all

Had Ayodhya Neta read a different book? Or had his heritage of the ancient traditions of India just left him with a highly evolved sense of humour

(Sanctuary Features)

TIME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AGARTALA
IC 741	0710	3 6	IC-742	0940	3, 6
IC 743	0920	daily	IC-744	1150	daily
PF 701	1130	1 3 5 7	PF 702	1610	1 3 5 7
AHMEDABAD
M9-304/109	0855	1 3, 5	M9-110/301	1900	1 3 5
[illegible]
PF-705	0730	2, 4, 6, 7	PF-706	1510	2, 4 6 7
[illegible]
PF-735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1
PF-737	0730	3, 5	PF-738	1740	3, 5
IC-721	1300	1, 3, 5	IC-722	1540	1, 3 5
[illegible]
IC-771	0600	daily	IC-772	1140	daily
[illegible]
IC-544	1115	2, 7	IC-543	1035	2, 7
IC-769	1525	1, 3, 5	IC-770	2120	1, 3, 5
[illegible]
IC-676	0730	daily	IC-675	0820	daily
D2-102	0905	daily	D2-101	0835	daily
9W-202	0920	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6	9W-201	0840	1, 2 3 4 5, 6
IC-273	1945	daily	AI-306	1840	5
9W-212	1945	daily	IC-274	1850	daily
D2-104	2005	daily	9W-211	1910	daily
AI-309	2035	6	D2-103	1935	daily
AI-681	2350	1
[illegible]
			IC-262	0815	2, 4, 7
IC-263	0700	daily	M9-303	0825	daily
M9-304	0855	daily	AI-682	0950	1
IC-812	1515	1, 3, 5	4S-806	1115	1, 2 3, 4, 5, 6
IC-402	1715	daily	IC-401	1155	daily
4S-805	1745	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6	M9-301	1900	daily
IC-261	1900	2, 4, 7	S2 005	1900	1, 2 3 4 5, 6
M9-302	1930	daily	IC 811	1930	1 3, 5
S2 006	1940	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6	IC-264	2210	daily
[illegible]
PF-737	0730	3, 5	IC-704	1430	3, 5
IC-703	0800	3, 5	D2-181	1620	1, 3 5, 7
D2-181	1135	1, 3, 5, 7	D2-183	1620	2, 4, 6
D2-183	1135	2 4 6	IC-702	1630	2, 4, 6 7
4S-815	1145	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6	4S-816	1705	1 2, 3 4 5 6
IC-701	1240	2, 4, 6, 7	PF-738	1740	3 5
[illegible]
IC-257	1150	4, 7	IC-258	1650	4 7
GUWAHATI
PF-735	0730	1	IC-712	1410	2, 6
PF-737	0730	3, 5	IC-704	1430	3 5
PF-705	0730	2, 4 6 7	IC-708	1430	1 4 7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
IC-703	0800	3, 5	PF-706	1510	2, 4, 6, 7
IC-707	0800	1, 4, 7	D2-181	1620	1 3, 5, 7
IC-711	0800	2, 6	D2-183	1620	2, 4 6
D2-181	1135	1, 3, 5, 7	IC-230	1650	daily
D2-183	1135	2, 4 6	4S-811	1705	1 2, 3 4 5 6
4S-812	1145	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6	PF-736	1730	1
IC-257	1150	4 7	PF-738	1740	3, 5
IC-211	1240	4, 6	IC-258	1740	4, 7
IC-229	1310	daily	IC-212	1740	4, 6
HYDERABAD
IC-777	1500	2, 4 7	IC-778	2005	2 4 7
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5
IMPHAL
IC-707	0715	1 4 6	IC-256	1320	3 5
IC-255	0830	3, 5	IC-708	1345	1 4 6
IC-253	1100	2 6	IC-254	1550	2 6
JORHAT
IC 213	0910	2 4 7	IC-213	1315	2 4 7
LUCKNOW
IC-812	1515	1 3 5	IC 811	1930	1 3 5
MADRAS
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC-541	1030	1 3 5
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2 7
IC-765	1720	daily	D2-171	1045	daily
D2 172	1740	daily	IC-766	2220	daily
NAGPUR
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5
PATNA
IC-249	1430	2 4 7	IC-249	1805	2 4 7
IC-812	1515	1, 3 5	IC-811	1930	1 3 5
PORT BLAIR
IC 285	0640	3 5 7	IC-286	1100	2 4 6
RANCHI
IC 249	1430	2 4 7	IC-249	1805	2 4 7
SHILLONG
PF-705	0730	2 2 6 7	PF-706	1510	2, 4, 6, 7
SILCHAR
IC-255	0830	3, 5	IC 260	1110	1 7
IC 259	0830	1 7	IC 256	1320	3 5
IC 253	1100	2 6	IC 254	1550	2, 6
IC 211	1240	4 6	IC-212	1740	4 6
TEZPUR
IC-213	0910	2 4 7	IC-213	1315	2 4 7
TEZU
PF-737	0730	3 5	PF-738	1740	3, 5
VISHAKHAPATNAM
IC-542	1115	1 3 5	IC-541	1030	1, 3, 5

FLIGHTS — INTERNATIONAL

[illegible]
RJ-185	1445	4	RJ-184	0705	4
[illegible]
BANGKOK
IC-731	0855	2, 4, 6, 7	KB-106	1115	3
			KB-106	1215	5
KB-105	1125	2, 6	TG-313	1240	1, 3, 6
TG-314	1355	1 3 6

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[illegible]
RO-076	2040	5, 7	RO-075	1035	5, 7
CHITTAGONG
IC-225	1200	1	IC-226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2 5	BG-697	1655	2, 5
DHAKA
BG-092	0850	4, 5	BG-091	0810	4, 5
BG-092	1150	1, 2, 3, 6, 7	BG-091	1110	1, 2, 3 6, 7
IC-723	1250	1 2, 3, 5, 6	IC-724	1520	1, 2, 3, 5, 6
BG-094	1905	1, 2 3 5 6 7	BG-093	1825	1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1, 5	BG-095	2020	1, 5
KATHMANDU
IC-747	1115	1 3, 5	IC-748	1455	1 3, 5
RA-214	1400	4 7	RA-213	1315	4 7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
LONDON
BA-142	2050	3, 7	BA-143	1525	3, 7
MOSCOW
SU-538	1855	4	SU-537	1655	4
PARIS
KB-106	1200	3	KB-105	1040	2, 6
KB-106	1300	5
SINGAPORE
SQ-415	2200	2, 5	SQ-416	2040	2 5
SOFIA
LZ-504	1750	4	LZ 503	1650	4
TOKYO
AI-306	1910	5	AI 309	1825	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
2311	19 15	Delhi Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19 20	Amritsar Mail	7 55	3006
3003	20 35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13 00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat	16 15	2382
2303	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun	16 15	2304
2301	16 30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun	10 45	2302
2305	13 45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat	12 50	2306
3073	23 00	Himgiri (Jammu Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat Arr Tues Wed & Sat	11 35	3074
5047	13 00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon Wed & Fri	4 30	5048
3009	20 [illegible]	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9 45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18 15	3008
3049	13 20	Amritsar Express	15 30	3050
3039	21 00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5 20	3040
3019	16 05	Kathgodam Express	11 55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5 00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6 30	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17 11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18 20	Asansol Express	8 45	3036
3031	21 05	Danapur Express	5 30	3032
3025	23 00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday Arr Friday	11 35	3026
3071	22 30	Jamalpur Express	5 10	3072
3015	9 55	Santiniketan Express	15 40	3016
1159	15 25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tue & Wed	6 50	1160
1171	15 25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tue & Wed Arr Fri Sat & Sun	6 50	1172
3327	14 30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4 50	3328
1181	15 25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6 50	1182
		Sealdah
3141	13 40	Teesta Torsa Express Dep Mon Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed Thurs Fri Sat & Sun	6 35	3142
3143	19 15	Darjeeling Mail	8 45	3144
3111	20 15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7 15	3112
5657	6 25	Kanchanjunga Express	20 35	5658
3153	22 00	Gour Express	5 15	3154
5663	20 00	Katihar Express	4 15	5664
3151	11 45	Jammu Tawi Express	15 50	3152
3133	20 55	Mughal Sarai Express via SBG Loop	12 55	3134
3103	18 20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express	10 25	3104
5185	12-40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues Thus & Sat	4 25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6 50	6004
8002	19 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12 00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	1940	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13 45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express	22 05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5 00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5 30	8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8 25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00	8046
8017	16 45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2421	16 40	Bhubaneswar New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10
	11 05	New Delhi Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6321	22 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15
	14 05	Trivandrum Central Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 45	6321
	14 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13 45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13 45	6315
6520	22 35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15
	14 05	Bangalore City - Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains please dial 2203545-54 for in coming trains 2203535 44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains dial 2203496 3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition, dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running), 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535-37

KUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

THE MIST, THE MILDEW

Fog, mist, cloud, rain and mildew — these were the things the British must have looked for while selecting suitable sites for the hill stations they set up in the Himalayan foothills 150 years ago Shimla, Mussoorie, Darjeeling, Dalhousie, Naini Tal, all soggy with monsoon or winter mist and dripping oaks and deodars

The climate must have reminded them of their homes on the English moors or the Scottish highlands Mistakenly called 'health resorts' these towns, situated at 7,000 ft or over, were guaranteed to send people with weak hearts or lungs to an early grave Look up the old burial registers if you want confirmation!

Being quite sound in the chest, I have survived all that the mountain monsoon can throw at me and having gone through the annual ritual of wiping the mildew away from my books and a certain green fungi from my one and only suit I decided to leave cloud country behind for a few days and be the guest of Cyril Raphael, an old friend who left these misty regions years ago and now administers the Bhuvaneshwari Mahila Ashram (a social service organisation) at Anjani Sain in Tehri-Garhwal

Pine country this, dry and bracing, with the scent of pine resin in the air, I have always thought 5,000 to 6,000 ft a healthier altitude to live at but perhaps I'm prejudiced, having been

I decided to leave cloud country behind for a few days and be the guest of Cyril Raphael, an old friend who left these misty regions years ago and now administers the Bhuvaneshwari Mahila Ashram at Anjani Sain in Tehri-Garhwal. Pine country this, dry and bracing, with the scent of pine resin in the air, I have always thought 5,000 to 6,000 ft a healthier altitude to live at but perhaps I'm prejudiced, having been born in Kasauli, which is pine rather than deodar country

born in Kasauli, which is pine rather than deodar country

Anjani Sain is about the same height and gets the sun all day Given adequate food and pure water, it's a healthy place to live in Contrary to what most people think, Garhwal is not a poverty-stricken area Almost everyone has a bit of land and does at least have the traditional do roti for sustenance, which is more than can be said for the urban unemployment in other parts of northern India

This area has always been known as khas-pati, probably because it was special in several ways — climate-wise and probably economy-wise, too Down in the flat valley there are green fields and even mango trees, the descent to lower altitude being quite sudden in these parts

The small Anjani Sain bazaar, with its single bank, post office and chemists shop, shimmers in the noonday sun It looks like a set for the gunfight at OK corral But this is, generally, a peaceful area and the small Muslim population lives in harmony with its Hindu neighbours

At the ashram, I am in time for early lunch — thick rotis made from mandwa (millets) — two of these are more than enough for me! Endless glasses of milky tea will see me through till supper time

Towering over Anjani Sain and blessing all those who live or pass beneath, is the Chanderbadni temple, dedicated to one of the incarnations of Goddess Parvati As this is not one of the main pilgrim routes, the temple does not get many visitors as some of the other sacred shrines in the hills The image here represents the body of the Goddess The feet are worshipped at Kunjpura (near Narendra Nagar), the head at Sirkhunda (near Dhanolti)

Below the Chanderbadni peak is a Garhwal Mandal rest house, for those who wish to break their journey here

Anjani Saini lies midway between Tehri and Devprayag — a two-hour bus ride from each place — I came via Tehri, the road climbing steeply above the hot dusty town that is destined to be submerged by the waters of the Tehri dam

The dam should have been ready by now, but having been the subject of a great deal of controversy, work on it has progressed in fits and starts I am told that this entire region is 'ecologically fragile', one of those words bandied around at seminars all over the world

Well, I'm not an expert in these matters, but I should think most of our earth is ecologically fragile having had to put up with hundreds of thousands of years of human civilisation

Old Tehri was no beauty spot, and New Tehri growing rapidly above it is even uglier From a distance it looks like a giant cemetery When the architecture of suburban Delhi or Modinagar is brought to the hills, what is there to say? You just look the other way

Fortunately, the defaced mountain is soon left behind and as it slips out of sight and we ascend into the pine regions, the eye is soothed by the pretty slate-covered houses of the villagers and their little gardens ablaze with marigolds and yellow and bronze chrysanthemums Chrysanthemums love this climate Down in the fields there are patches of crimson amarnath (cholai) interspersed with the fresh green of young wheat

And here be leopards! My companion tells me of one that strolls down the motor road every evening, forcing the local bus to go round him His presence also accounts for the absence of stray dogs

Suddenly in the distance, I see what at first glance seems to be a cloud or a large white sailing ship On approaching, it turns out to be the freshly whitewashed buildings of the Bhuvaneshwari Mahila Ashram, clinging to the steep slopes of the mountain

Here, for two or three days, I find rest and sustenance The manifold activities of the ashram (directed mainly towards the welfare of widows and small children) are there for all to see and I recall the splendid relief work undertaken by its young field workers after the Uttarkashi earthquake — they had rushed to the spot before the government agencies could swing into action

However, as a social worker, I am somewhat inept I am just a frazzled old writer who never quite made it to the top and who now seeks refuge from the all-pervasive clutter of tourism that makes ordinary life almost impossible in our hill stations

I hope the land grabbers and the real estate 'developers' never get this far They are welcome to their malls and artificial lakes and Dhaba parks Just so long as I am free to escape from it all, to sit here at Anjani Sain contemplating a large white rose in Cyril's garden, while the rest of the world watches video

(Sanctuary Features)

The finest Diamond and 22/22K Gold Jewellery at:

Nemichand Bamalwa & Sons,

Jewellers

16-A, Shakespeare Sarani, 3rd Floor Calcutta 700071; Phone: 242-3388

The melting or refining purity of our 22/22K ornaments is 22 Karat (91.67%)

INNER EYE ❑ Bejan Daruwalla

Aries

March 21 -April 20

Your ability to communicate and reach for new goals, will come in most handy now It is time to move forward, emotionally, mentally and physically, as you will seek new avenues, openings and ventures Ganesha says, good for you Expect visitors and friends to be of help

Taurus

April 21—May 20

It would be best to take the bull by the horns and get it out, be it a difference of opinion, an honest mistake, or a genuine misunderstanding Once again, finances will be of utmost importance There is a slight danger of ill health, accidents, or a feeling of unease which can be overcome

Gemini

May 21—June 20

The moon conjuncts Mercury now, dear Geminis, and this will give you the imagination, vigour and daring to love and be loved, open a factory, start any sort of important partnerships, be it marriage, collaboration, or a business association Journey is more than possible

Cancer

June 21 -July 20

While expenses will be heavy, people will be quite co-operative and willing to work A trip will be more important than you do foresee Many Cancerians will be busy working their heart out and the rewards will be quite attractive, too A jobswitch is in the cards for you, or a promotion

Leo

July 21—August 21

Time to marshal your resources, go in for group activities and a lot of socialising Pay heed to the other person's point of view, as, that will enhance your popularity and rake in the profits, too Birth of children, a round of love, happy creative pursuits, are the other salient features for Leons

Virgo

August 22 -September 22

For you folks the going will be slightly tough in the sense that you will have to attend to too many things and details at the same time, as demands will keep on piling up Around February 30 you will be able to cope with them So gear up and get going An eye for detail and a flair for order will help

Libra

September 23 -October 22

It's the right time to use your diplomatic skills and talent for pleasing people to your advantage Throw a party, socialise, take a trip or take others on a tour Promotion and perks will be yours if you go about it the right way Calls, correspondence and publicity will have an extra edge to it

Scorpio

October 23—November 22

The slant will be on your work, your friends and your finances This trio will keep you busy right upto July 1995 Therefore, this is not a fleeting trend You will have to live with it Property affairs and taxes too will have an undue importance now Be discreet

Sagittarius

November 23—December 20

Venus, the luxury planet is well placed with Jupiter the money planet, and therefore you will be in a position and in a mood to enjoy the good things of life and the definition of a good thing, will obviously vary from person to person But good times and happiness await you!

Capricorn

December 21—January 19

Your work will claim you almost totally Yet, you will have time for fun and games, rearing children, cooing and wooing as the poets say! Ganesha feels you will use the time wisely and well, get much done, and thus feel good February 27-30 may offer an interesting proposal in your life

Aquarius

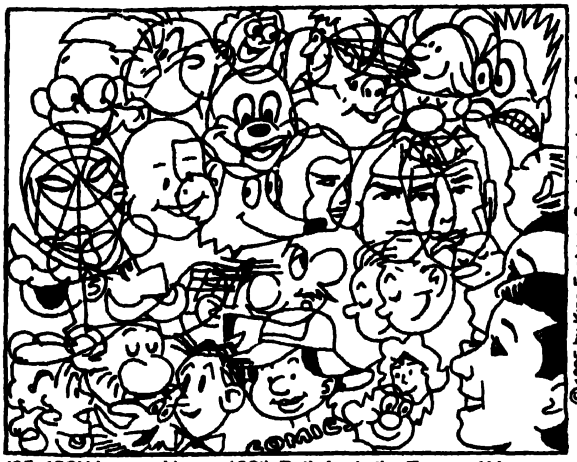
January 20—February 18

You will feel the clouds lifting, sunshine filtering through, and that means, in practical terms, money, contracts, friendships, offers, travel and collaboration If in for an interview, an important appointment or meet, the chances are, you will come through splendidly

Pisces

February 19—March 20

The full moon activates your home front That means renovation, decoration, buying and selling, and it applies to the office as well Any property, right from a car to jewellery is included in this ambit A home away from home is another possibility Loans, funds and capital will be available now



B I R T H D A Y S

February 26: Moon-Venus conjunction assures you of riches and comforts, says Ganesha and that's wonderful going! Promotion and perks are probable. Progress is certain.
February 27: Moon-Mercury conjunction leads to news and behind the scene activity, which turns highly favourable for you Friends and well-wishers will help
February 28: Moon square Pluto: This transition may not be easy Mysterious events are clearly foretold A journey is possible
March 1: The new moon could cause disturbances and upsets but this is not a horoscopic reading and therefore do not loose your cool. By May, matters should go right.
March 2: Mercury sextiles Jupiter leading to opportunities, right timing, good connections, and consequent success. The luck of the draw will be with you.

March 3: Venus sextile Pluto shows an upsurge in confidence and ability to lead from the front. Ganesha says, your work will be done, however difficult it might be.
March 4: Moon trines good luck planet Jupiter and that means the world will smile upon you and you will bask in your own glory! Be bold.

JUNIOR WHIRL

HAL KAUFMAN

'95, 100! Hear ye, Happy 100th Birthday to the Funnies! How many cartoon stars, old and new, can you find above?

SLAM CLUNK! One letter has gone astray in the name of each of these pro basketball teams 1 Miami Beat 2 Phoenix Huns 3 Houston Rockers 4 Indiana Racers 5 L A Flippers How quickly can you set them straight?

1 Heat 2 Suns 3 Rockets 4 Pacers 5 Clippers

1	2	3	4	5
2
3
4
5

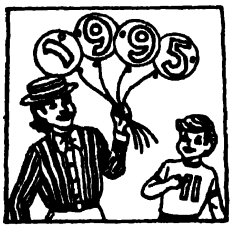
WORD SQUARE CHALLENGE

FIVE five-letter words are required to complete a word square above That is, words will read the same both across and down

Definitions of words are as follows

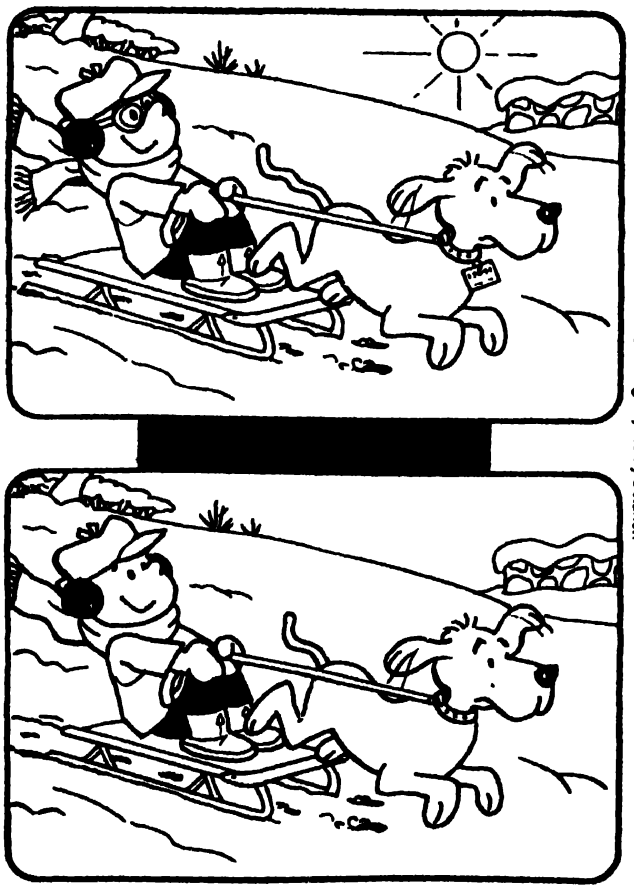
1 Weather word that causes concern
2 Indian shelter
3 Unseals a letter
4 Monies collected by landlords
5 Brother or sister's room at times?

Remember, word square words read the same both across and down Insert each word both ways



Time limit Two minutes

1 Storm 2 Tepee 3 Opens 4 Rents 5 Messy

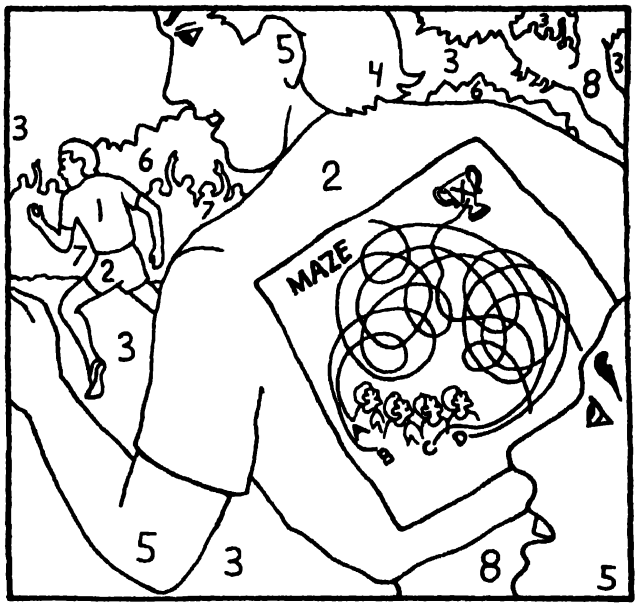


FUN YEAR! You can have some fun converting digits of the new year, 1995, into lucky number 11, like so Add the first digit, 1, to the next three digits, 995, for a total of 996 Turn 996 upside down and get 966 Divide 966 by last digit, 6, and get 161

Now turn 161 upside down and add resulting digits

Presto-alakazam, if you've done topsy-turvy calculating correctly, your final result is the lucky number 11

HOCUS-FOCUS



Drawings by Henry Boltinoff

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below

Differences 1 Goggles are missing 2 Board end is missing 3 Sled is shorter 4 Tail is different 5 Sun is missing 6 Dog's tag is missing

FUNSPOT

SHIRT CIRCUIT! And the winner is . Add the following colors neatly by the numbers. 1—Red. 2—Lt. blue 3—Yellow. 4—Lt. brown 5—Flesh tones. 6—Lt. green. 7—Dk. brown. 8—Purple.

SPELLBINDER

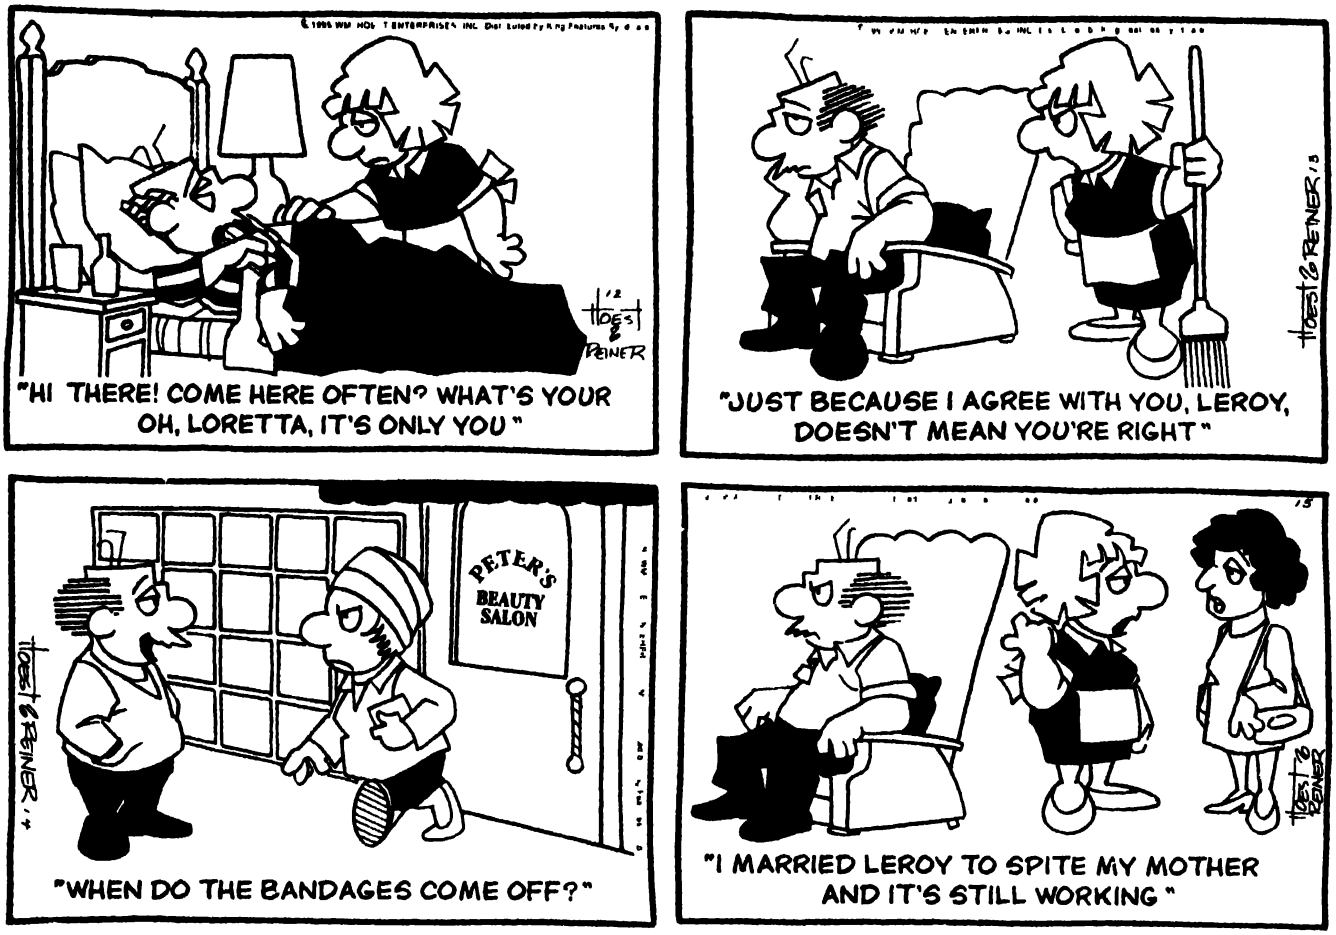
SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

STURDIER

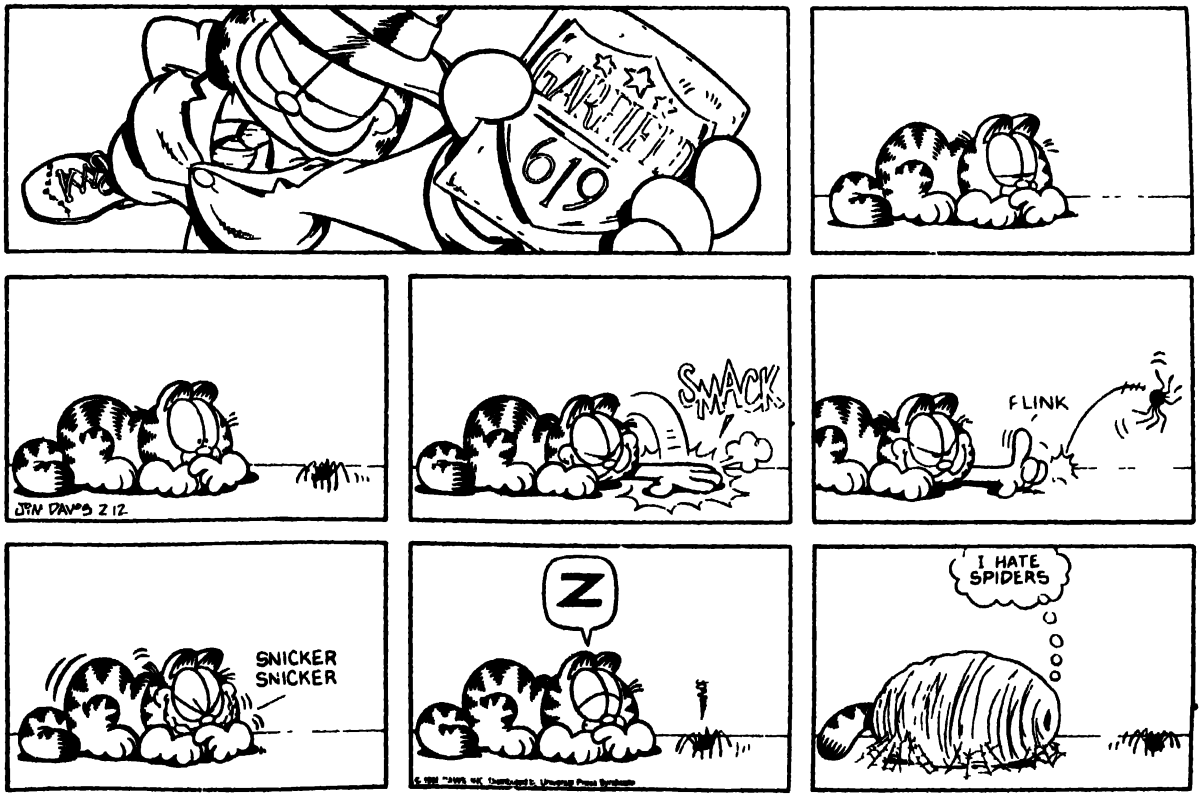
THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

Try to score at least 50 points

Possible twosome Rude elk

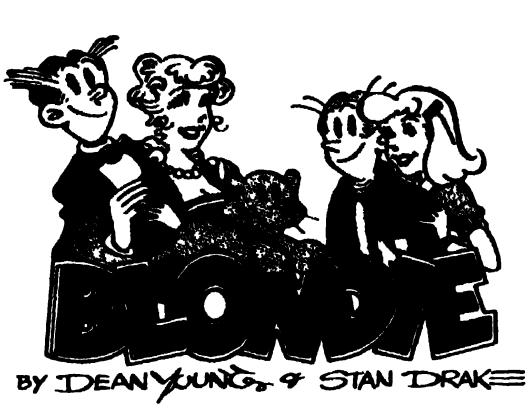


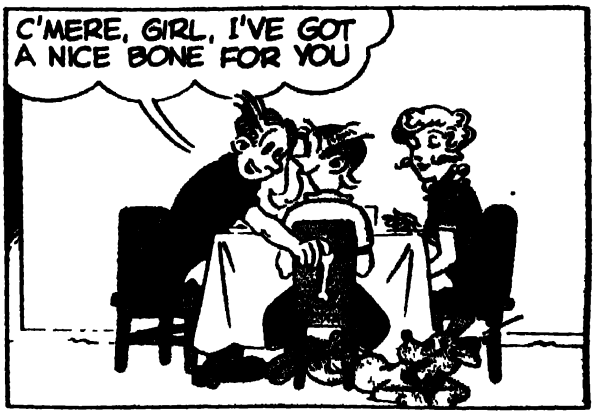
ARCHIE



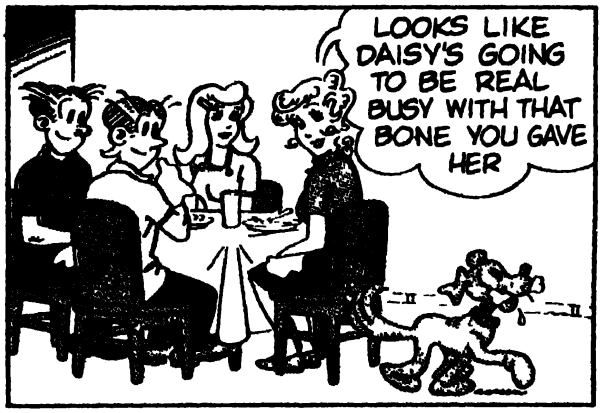
CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON

THE LOCKHORNS

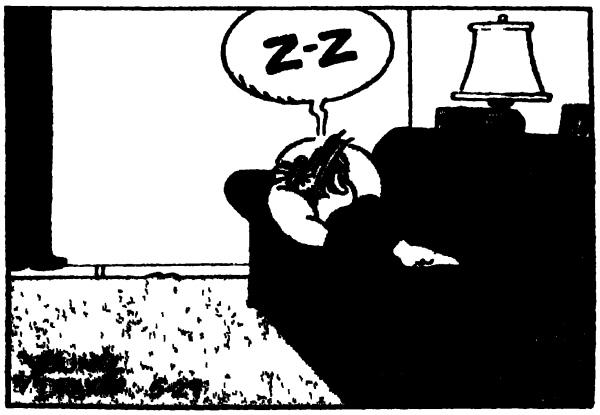




GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS



THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP



©1994 by King Features Syndicate Inc. World rights reserved

Madhuri Dixit gets a pat on the back by B.R. Chopra

EVENT

TIME TO PREEN

The Bombay film industry earned itself a prestigious honour· the Screen-Panasonic Awards

It was a star-studded night all right A night to rejoice and celebrate A night to dance and sing as winners took all For the losers there was a consolation the next time This was, after all, the inaugural Screen-Panasonic Awards for cinema, television and music, in Bombay

End January, the Indian film industry, perhaps the largest in the world, was given recognition and judged for the very best they had to offer in the past year

The process of nomination and final selection was left to titans like Dilip Kumar, B R Chopra, Gulzar, Khayyam, Ramesh Sippy, A K Bir, Kiran Shantaram and others

After the invocation dance by the shapely actress Gauthami, came the roll call of winners Nana Patekar added one more feather to his already loaded cap when he bagged the Best Actor Award for the film, Krantiveer

For the beautiful belle Madhuri Dixit the Best Actress award for her role in the film, Hum Aapke Hain Koun ! was just another way to say she's still the best. And at the top The 28-year-old Sooraj Kumar Barjatya, whose Maine Pyar Kiya proved to be a runaway success some years ago, won the maximum number of awards for the Madhuri-Salman starrer, Hum Aapke Hain Koun !— Best Director, Best Film, Best Playback Singer (Female), Best Screenplay, Best Editing and what not With the success of two films behind him, Barjatya is a happy man today and has plenty of reason to be

The cultural magazine, Surabhi, on DD-1 is soon to present its 150th episode! A

Gauthami: A good way to start

Ramanand Sagar presents the TV award to Siddharth Kak

Ashok Kumar and Nana Patekar: The old and the young travelogue of sorts, with quizzes, lessons in history and culture all rolled into one, Surabhi, was adjudged the Best TV Production for 1994 And walking away with the trophy was a beaming Siddharth Kak, the programme's host

There was a special Lifetime Achievement Award for veteran actor Ashok Kumar who has been in the film industry for six long decades

National Panasonic, the international giant in consumer electronics and entertainment, initiated two exclusive awards on the occasion — one was the Panasonic Outstanding Musical Debut of the Year (M Mahesh) and the Panasonic Discovery of the Year (Sonali Bendre)

Some of the other winners: Kumar Sanu (Best Male Playback Singer for 1942 A Love Story), Javed Akhtar (Best Lyricist for 1942), Nitin Desai (Best Art Director for 1942), Anupam Kher (Best Outstanding Performance in a Featured Role in 1942), R D Burman (Best Music Director for 1942), and of course, the queen of melody, Lata Mangeshkar (Best Female Playback Singer in Hum Aapke Hain Koun !)

Her niece, Radhika Mangeshkar, collected the trophies on behalf of both Lata and R D

It was a night to remember, maybe a little too long drawn-out and not the greatest, by Screen's own modest admission, but worth it nevertheless.

Susmita Banerjee
Photographs:
Courtesy, Screen

Sharon Prabhakar giving voice to the model of the trophy

RASOI

JIGGS KALRA

We conclude this series on Balti cooking with three recipes which belie the stereotype image of kadhai cooking as a strictly lamb and chicken fare

According to authoress Shehzad Husain, the technique—which is both "convenient and speedy"—can be applied to a whole range of wonderful dishes You can, like her, let your imagination play around with wonderful and attractive new ideas and combinations of ingredients to create—and put a personal stamp—on any number of delicacies

In the meanwhile, three more recipes from the Subhash Arora published Balti Cookbook

BALTI FRIED FISH

INGREDIENTS
675 g / 1 1/2 lb Sole* or any other firm white fish
1 Onion (medium)
15 ml / 1 tbs Lemon juice
Salt
10 g / 1 3/4 tsp Garlic paste (strained)
3 g / 1 tsp crushed dried Red Chillies
4 5 g / 1 1/2 tsp Garam masala
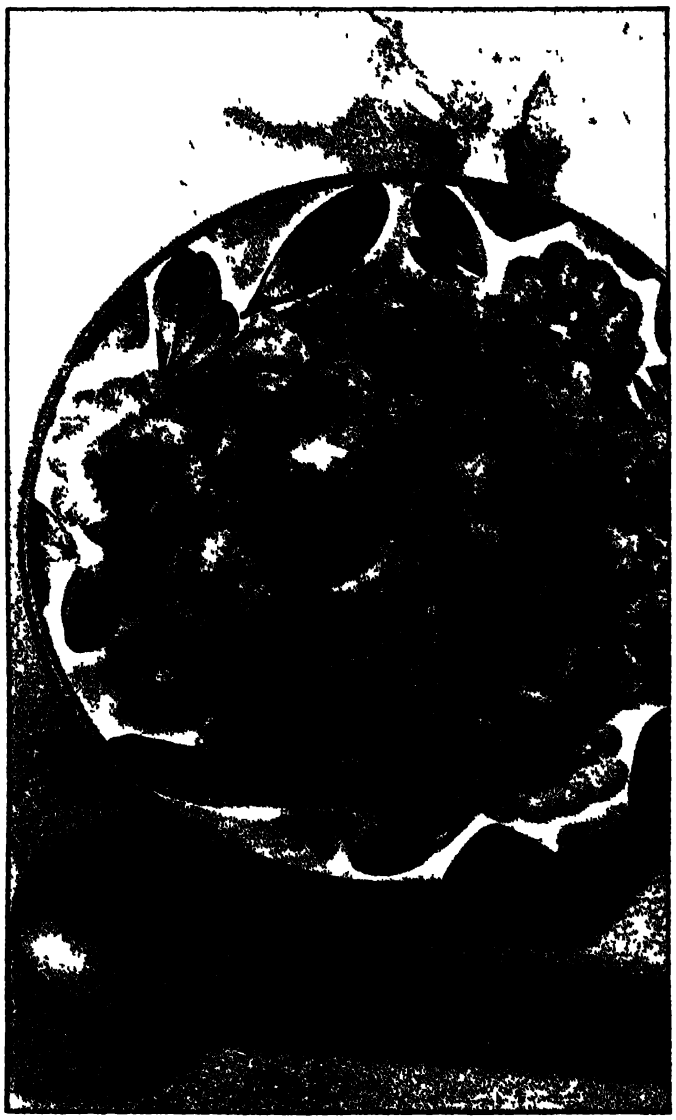
6 5 g / 2 tbs Coriander
2 Tomatoes (medium)
12 5 g / 2 tbs Cornflour
Corn oil to deep fry

Serves: 4-6
Preparation Time: 45 minutes
Cooking Time: 5 minutes for each lot

PREPARATION
The fish: Clean, remove the skin, cut into small cubes, wash, pat dry and refrigerate to chill
The vegetables: Peel, wash and slice onion, remove eyes and skin tomatoes, blanch for a few seconds, drain and roughly chop Clean, wash and chop coriander



The masala: Put onions in a bowl, add lemon juice, salt, garlic paste, red chillies, garam masala and coriander, mix well, add tomatoes, mix, transfer to a food processor and blend for 30 seconds Remove the fish from the refrigerator and pour the blended masala over the fish and mix well Add the cornflour and mix again until the fish is evenly and well coated

COOKING
Heat oil in a kadhai or deep round-bottomed frying pan, lower the heat slightly, add the fish pieces, a few at a time, and deep fry, turning carefully with a slotted spoon (they tend to break easily) for approximately 5 minutes or until the fish is lightly browned Drain and remove to absorbent paper to drain excess fat

TO SERVE
Transfer to a service platter and serve with parotha and apricot chutney

* The author recommends cod

Balti Fried Fish

SPICY BALTI POTATOES

INGREDIENTS
6 Potatoes (new, medium)
2 Onions (medium)
45 ml / 3 tbs Corn oil
1 g / 1/2 tsp Cumin seeds
1 25 g / 1/2 tsp Fennel seeds
A pinch of kalonji (onion seeds)
A pinch of Mustard seeds
A pinch of Fenugreek seeds
3 g / 1 tsp crushed dried Red Chillies
3 flakes Garlic
2 5 g / 1/4" piece Ginger
4 Curry leaves
Salt
3 25 g / 1 tbs Coriander
1 fresh Red chilli
1 Green chilli

Serves: 4
Preparation Time: 15 minutes
Cooking Time: 20 minutes

PREPARATION
The potatoes: Peel, wash and cut into 1/4"/5 mm thick roundels
The remaining vegetables: Peel, wash and slice onion Peel garlic flakes Scrape, wash and shred ginger Clean, wash and chop coriander Remove stems, wash, slit, deseed and slice fresh red and green chillies

COOKING
Heat oil in a kadhai or deep round-bottomed frying pan, lower the heat slightly, add cumin, fennel, kalonji, mustard and fenugreek seeds, garlic, ginger, red chillies and curry leaves, bhunno/stir-fry for a minute Then add onions, bhunno/stir-fry until onions are golden, add potatoes and salt, stir, add coriander, fresh red and green chillies, stir until well mixed Reduce to very low heat, cover tightly with a lid or foil, ensuring that the foil does not touch the food, and cook for 7 minutes or until the potatoes are tender Remove, uncover and adjust the seasoning

TO SERVE
Transfer to a serving platter and serve hot

Spicy Balti Potatoes and Okra with Raw Mango and Lentils

OKRA [illegible] RAW MANGO [illegible] LENTILS

[illegible]IENTS

450 g / [illegible]kra
115 g / 4 oz Toor Dal
45 ml / 3 tbs Corn oil
1 5 g / 1/2 tsp Kalonji (onion seeds)
2 Onions (medium)
10 g / 1 3/4 tsp Ginger paste (strained)
10 g / 1 3/4 tsp Garlic paste (strained)
4 5 g / 1 1/2 tsp Red chilli powder
3 g / 1 tsp Coriander powder
1 5 g / 1/2 tsp Fenugreek powder
0 75 g / 1/4 tsp Turmeric powder
1 raw Mango
salt
6 5 g / 1 tbs Coriander
2 fresh Red chillies
1 Tomato (medium)

Serves: 4
Preparation Time: 45 minutes
Cooking Time: 10 minutes

PREPARATION
The okra: Wash, pat dry, remove caps and tips, cut into 1/2"/1 cm pieces
The lentils: Pick, wash in running water, drain, put in a saucepan with enough water to cover, bring to a boil, reduce to low heat and simmer until cooked but not mushy Drain and keep aside
The mango: Peel, halve, remove the stone and slice
The remaining vegetables: Peel, wash and slice onion Clean, wash and chop coriander Remove stems, wash, slit, deseed and slice fresh red chillies Remove eye, wash, quarter, remove the pulp and slice tomatoes

COOKING
Heat oil in a kadhai or deep round-bottomed frying pan, lower the heat slightly, add kalonji, stir, add onions, saute until onions are translucent and glossy, add the ginger and garlic pastes, bhunno/stir-fry until onions are golden brown Then add the coriander, red chilli, fenugreek and turmeric powders— all dissolved in 2 tbs / 30 ml of water— bhunno/stir-fry until the moisture has evaporated, add okra, mangoes and salt, stir Now add coriander and fresh red chillies, bhunno/stir-fry for 3 minutes or until the okra is well cooked Finally, add the cooked lentils and tomatoes, and cook for a further 3 minutes Remove and adjust the seasoning

TO SERVE
Transfer to a service platter and serve hot

NOTE: All weights are nett, that is post preparation, and not gross ■

SHIAMAK DAVAR, the trend-setting dancer-singer, has scaled the pinnacle of popularity and is a must item nowadays at almost every high-profile fashion show, musical extravaganza, not to leave out Cinema Cinema 100 or the Miss India shows. Not one to rest on his laurels, Shiamak joined the television bandwagon some time ago with an excellently produced series on dance, Body 2 Body, Soul 2 Sole. He has also come up with an audio cassette, Survive. The last ace up his sleeve was Roshni, a musical inspired by the Miss India contest

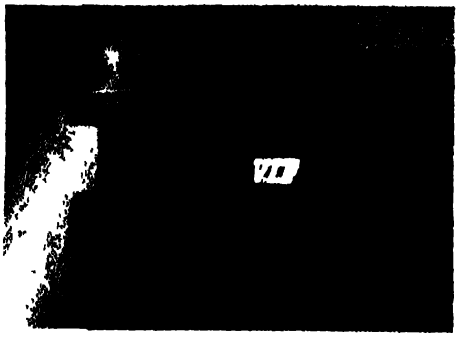
What is your idea of perfect happiness?
Peace of mind, love and success in my work and personal life
What is your greatest fear?
Lizards
Who or what has been the greatest influence in your life?
My parents and the Bhavnagris, Vispi and Ratoo
What do you dislike most in others?
Inquisitiveness, lying and slimeballs
What do you dislike most in yourself?
I cannot be a nasty son of a  People thus take advantage of me I give in too easily (Actually, not anymore)
What is your most precious possession?
My God-given talent! I hope I can be successful in my mission
What objects do you always carry?
Nothing
What makes you most depressed?
Someone I love, getting hurt
What do you dislike most on your appearance?
My nose!
What is your favourite word?
Really?
What is your favourite journey?
Life
What is your favourite dream?
Me on a tree-house with my loved ones and lots of animals
What is your nightmare?
Nature reacting adversely because we tamper with it too much
What or who is the greatest love of your life?
God and my family
What is your source of sustenance?
Faith and patience
On what occasions do you lie?
When I'm fooling around! All of us lie, but I would not get into those mean, vicious ones

What is your favourite dream?

Me on a tree-house with my loved ones and lots of animals

What is your greatest regret?
Nothing
What has been your happiest moment?
No idea
What brings tears to your eyes?
Animals, specially pups playing
How do you relax?
Singing, listening to music and watching old movies
What do you envy most in others?
Nothing Why should I?
How would you like to be remembered?
As talented and warm
How would you like to die?
Any way God has chosen for me

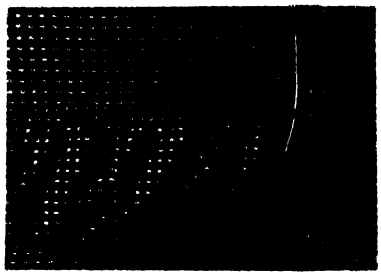


ARE YOUR CLOTHES UJALA WHITE?

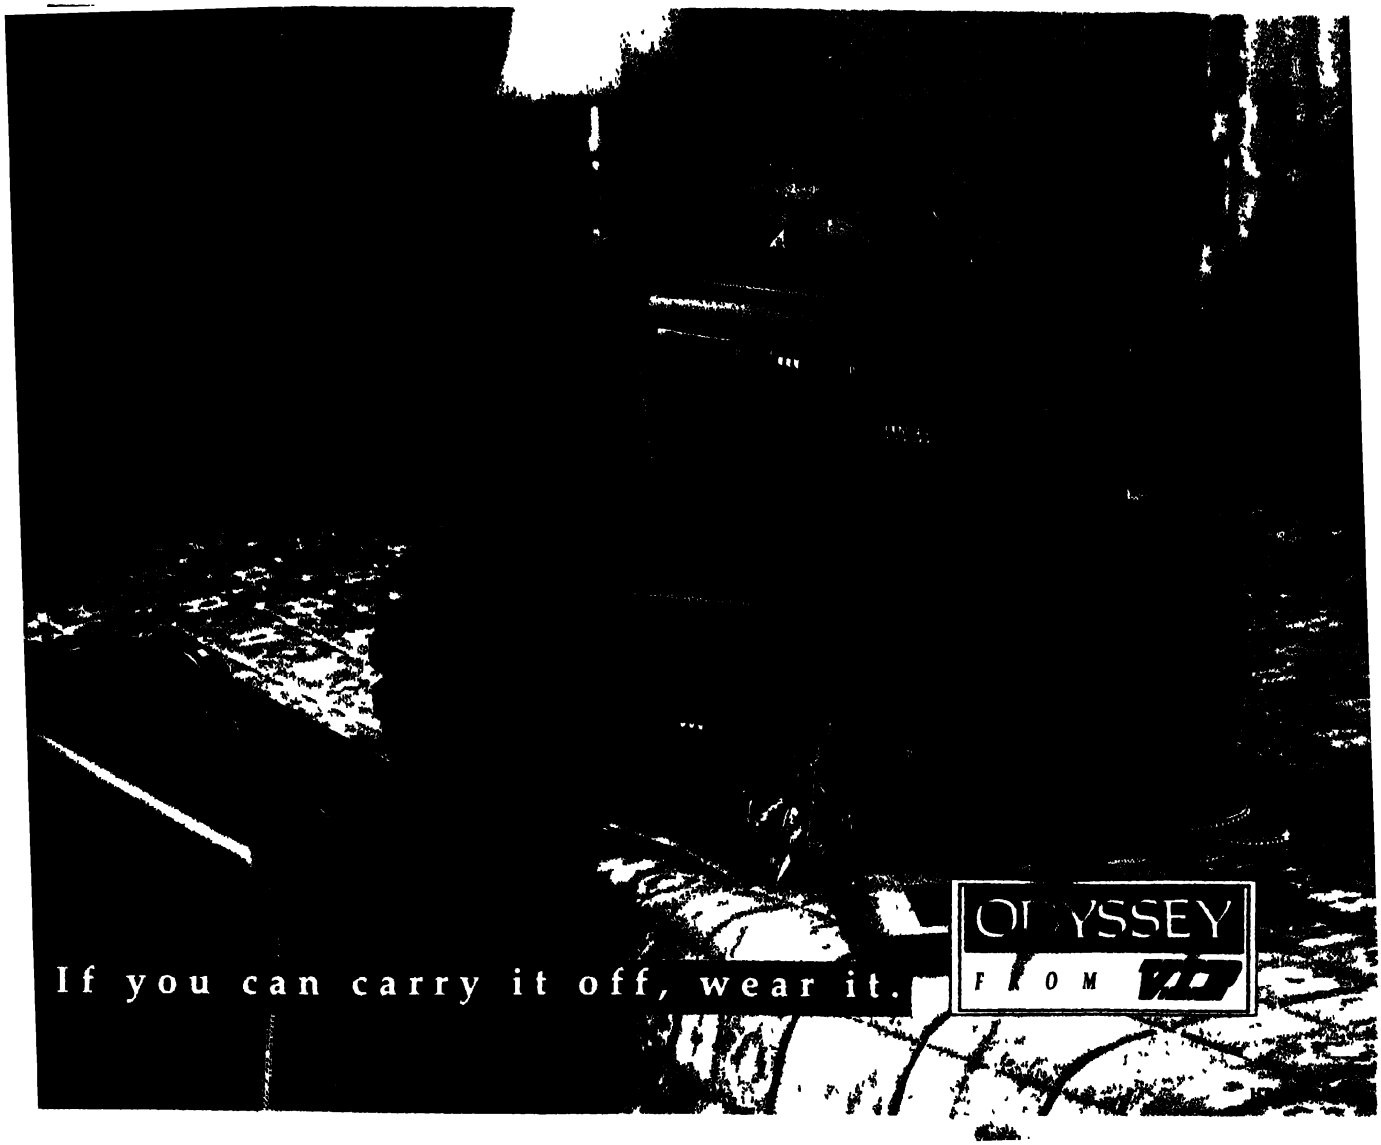
They know Ujala isn't a blue (or 10 to 12 drops in half a bucket of water), they can get brilliant, dazzling whiteness Be like them That means that with just 4 drops per litre Scientific Ujala's instant microdisperson formula delivers unmatched whiteness to every fibre of your wash — making your clothes look like new

Try it for yourself–seeing is believing.

UJALA Supreme



SUITABLE TRAVEL WEAR FOR A PALACE-ON-WHEELS HOLIDAY



Pack in the lifestyle of a Maharaja With Odyssey From VIP

It's more than just luggage It's a symbol of luxury

The smoothest ride on wheels Check the plush interiors The impeccable finish The unexpected details When you are travelling first class, you've got to wear the style to match

Suitcases Rs 1445/ onwards Briefcases Rs 1125 onwards Vanity Cases Rs 1245/

The Telegraph

POST MORTEM

Khan Saheb

■ It was delightful reading about the heart and mind of Imran Khan, one of the greatest cricketers Southeast Asia has produced ('King Khan', February 5).

Imran's criticism of Pakistani politicians and the wealthy upper class is a futile attempt to usher in a social change in a theocratic and feudalistic set-up

Imran will be remembered by his countrymen for the cancer hospital he is building This is no less an achievement than his colourful cricketing records He has splurged much of his personal wealth on the project The Rs 45 lakh he earned from the World Cup 1992 all went into the hospital Are any of our cricketers watching?

Politics is not Imran's forte If he wants to remain honest and serve the people he should steer clear of it Instead, he can cash in on his popularity in social service

Manoranjan Das,
Jamshedpur

■ What Imran says about Pakistani politics is true of India, too Political corruption is rampant, whether in Pakistan or India Imran lambasts the system of parliamentary democracy as the party in power is never criticised

He feels pained that the capitalists of Pakistan do not feel for the poor What about our capitalists? Do their hearts bleed for the poor?

Prasanta Kumar Ghosh,
Barasat (W B)

■ I was impressed by Imran's views on politics, the West, women and Islam I agree with him that without self-respect no one can attain success in life

Imran's latest passion to uplift the poor and the downtrodden is very noble Imran loves the limelight, too

He wants to live life to the full He's not just a brilliant cricketer, there's more to his personality — and the most noticeable trait is his philanthropic nature

His mission to help the poor will help Pakistan greatly I wish the king success

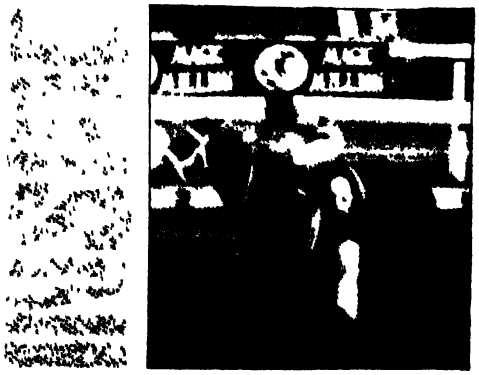
Md. Anwar Hussain
Calcutta

Imran Khan: Noble in deed

■ To Pakistanis, Imran is a political messiah His views on politics and Islam are quite intrepid The only apprehension that remains about him is, will he, like others before him, make India the scapegoat for the adversities suffered by Pakistan?

Devraj Singh Kalsi,
Kanchrapara (W B)

■ There is little doubt the Sultan of Swing has charisma and an aura which have catapulted him to the pinnacle of popularity



I do appreciate his concern for the wretched of the earth, but I hope he's not just paying lip service to a cause for we all know the cancer hospital is Imran's biggest hobby horse

Bharat Jalan,
Calcutta

■ I really like the way the Magazine tells us about Imran Khan and his cancer hospital, and now, his political thoughts

How about giving us his views on why the earth is not flat?

Shobhit Sinha,
Hindmotor (W B)

Anil Grover

PAGE 4

THE INDIAN Turf Invitation Cup returns to Calcutta after five years this afternoon A report on what this most prestigious race of the year means to the city

PAGE 28

THINGS ARE getting steamier with the KS ad, even though they have opted for lesser known models

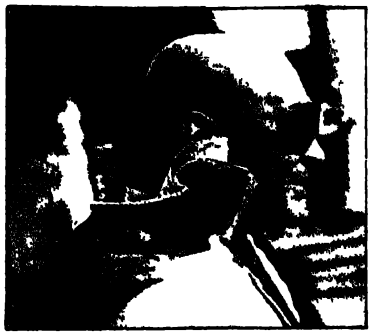
Calcutta racing

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
18 RUSKIN BOND
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
26 RASOI

Cover Anil Grover

Desert Warrior hits the wire first (Invitation Cup, Calcutta, 1990)



Taste the THUNDER!

Pesi Shroff astride Desert Warrior with (l-r) owners Mrs and Mr R.B Jain, Dr Cyrus S. Poonawalla, Mrs Villoo C. Poonawalla and trainer Altaf Hussain

The Invitation Cup weekend will be topped with the Derby of Derbys' this afternoon. Rohit Bose gives the Calcutta slant to the most prestigious event in the racing calendar, held in the city this year

Photographs by Anil Grover

THE CLASSIC INDIAN TURF INVITATION CUP MAY BE CONSIDERED the crown which rests atop the crest of the Indian racing season It is a rich race run over the Derby distance of 2,400 metres

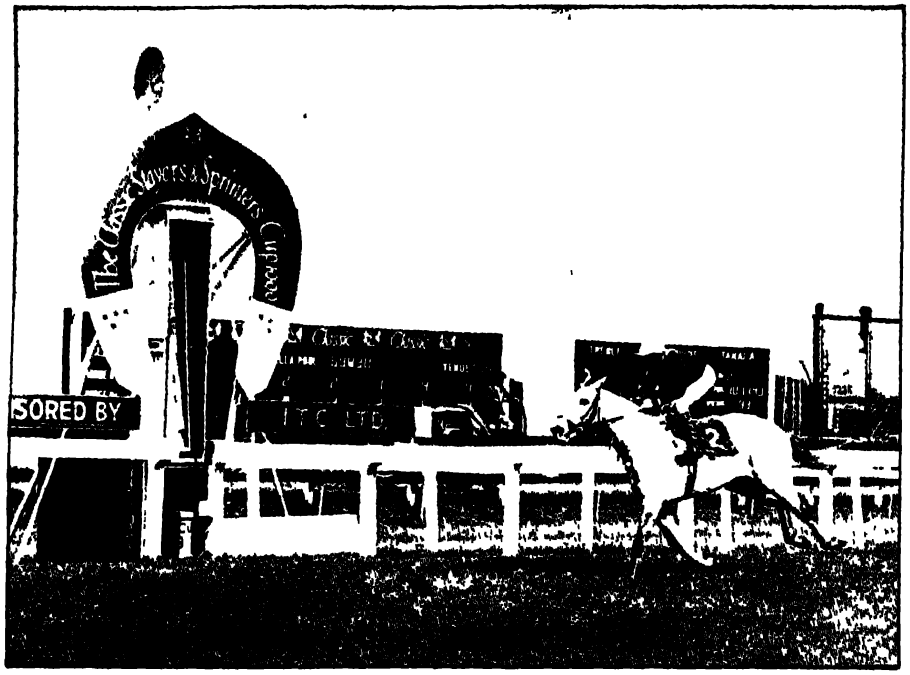
To comprehend just how difficult it is to conquer the peak, one would have to have a little understanding of the system of nomination

A good three-year-old performer is normally entered to run in the classic races which are considered the ultimate test of speed and stamina for a thoroughbred.

The five classic races run at the five major racing centres in India help in picking out the creme de la creme Of these five classics, it is the Oaks (commonly known as the Ladies' Derby) and the Derby, considered to be the blue riband at every centre, to which the most importance is attached. The five or so nominees from each racing centre are more often than not horses which have performed well in these two classics

As a horse is four years old when it competes in the Derby, the Invitation Cup is restricted to the same age group

ITC chairman J.N Sapru welcomes Jyoti Basu, 1990



The nominees from each centre are invited by the host city to participate in this, the most glamorous and prestigious event in the racing calendar The race could be termed 'the Derby of Derbys'

Each of the five major racing centres in the country — Madras, Bangalore, Hyderabad, Bombay and Calcutta — host the Invitation Cup annually by rotation. Thus, today, it is the turn of the Royal Calcutta Turf Club to host this great race after five years.

Between 1983 and 1988, the Indian Turf Invitation Cup was sponsored by Charminar cigarettes. Subsequently, ITC Ltd has been the sponsor of this premier event Accordingly, it is called the Classic Indian Turf Invitation Cup.

Just about everybody who is anybody in the world of Indian racing will ensure

Brave Dancer (Robin Corner up) outlasts the others in the Stayers' Cup, Calcutta, 1990

THE CHAMPS IN CALCUTTA

Year	Winner	Trainer	Rider	Owner
1964	Hovercraft (2 mins 36 secs)	M Galstaun	Faggotter	Rani P K Devi Rana
1967	Prince Regent (2 mins 39 6 secs)	McPherson	Faggotter	Mrs C K Mahtab
1971	Bright Hanovar (2 mins 36 6 secs)	S M Shah	McGarth	Mr M D Mehta and Mrs Laxmi P Lala
1975	Midnight Cowboy (2 mins 36 6 secs)	Capt Fownes	R Alford	Maharani Gina Narayan of Cooch Behar
1980	Everynsky (2 mins 34 4 secs)	Byramji	A Barclay	Mr and Mrs S C Khatau C M Khatau and K C Khatau
1985	Revelation (2 mins 34 2 secs)	Chenoy	P Shroff	Mrs Zeenia S Lawyer, Mrs B B Chenoy, Maj P K Mehra and the Estate of Late N M Irani
1990	Desert Warnor (2 mins 40 9 secs)	A Hussain	P Shroff	Mr and Mrs R B Jain, Dr Cyrus S Poonawalla and Mrs Villoo C Poonawalla

Year	Winner	Trainer	Rider	Owner
1980	Guindy Girl (1 min 13 4 secs)	Sajjad	Nasir Baig	S Satyamurti and S Badrinath
1985	Bergamo (1 min 11 secs) Record	Todywalla	Antia	Sardar H S Brar, Miss Bubli Brar and Mr and Mrs A K S Brar
1990	Star Style Girl (1 min 14 secs)	Byramji	V Shinde	Mr Suresh Mahindra
1985	Aztec (3 mins 13 3 secs) Record	Byramji	P Cook	Mr J P Goenka
1990	Brave Dancer (3 mins 22 4 secs)	Vijay Singh	R Corner	Mr Ranjit Nobis

he or she is present at the Calcutta racecourse whether or not he has a runner in the 'great race'

Apart from the leading professionals, the VIPs who are likely to be spotted at the Calcutta racecourse this afternoon are south India's barons of the turf Dr M A M Ramaswamy, who features in the Guinness Book of World Records as the only man to win over 100 classics, and Vijay Mallya who needs no introduction in the corporate world

Mallya's companies sponsor some of the biggest classics and Mallya has also etched his name in the history of the Indian Turf Invitation Cup by doing a hattrick with Delage (1991), Bugs Bunny (1992) and Adler (1993)

The only other owner to have done it in the Invitation Cup is Ranjit V Bhat with Commanche, Squanderer

The nominees from each centre are invited by the host city to participate in this [Invitation Cup], the most glamorous and prestigious event in the racing calendar. The race could be termed 'the Derby of Derbys'

and Manitou between the years 1976 and 1978

Also seen at the racecourse will be the Poonawallas at whose immaculate stud farm stand the three most successful sires of contemporary classic crops in India – Malvado, Riyahi and Sovereign Silver

Media magnate S Rangarajan (of Hindu fame), a sporting owner and a keen racing enthusiast may also be seen

Last but not the least, Calcutta's very own Deepak Khaitan, whose enormous investments in quality horseflesh in recent years has left the racing fraternity awestruck

Khaitan is certain to make his presence felt in more ways than one. Khaitan's wonder colt, Elusive Pimpernel, has yet to lose a race after eight starts and this progeny of Wattlefield out of Right Step is certain to close as the piping hot on-money public choice for the Invitation Cup this afternoon

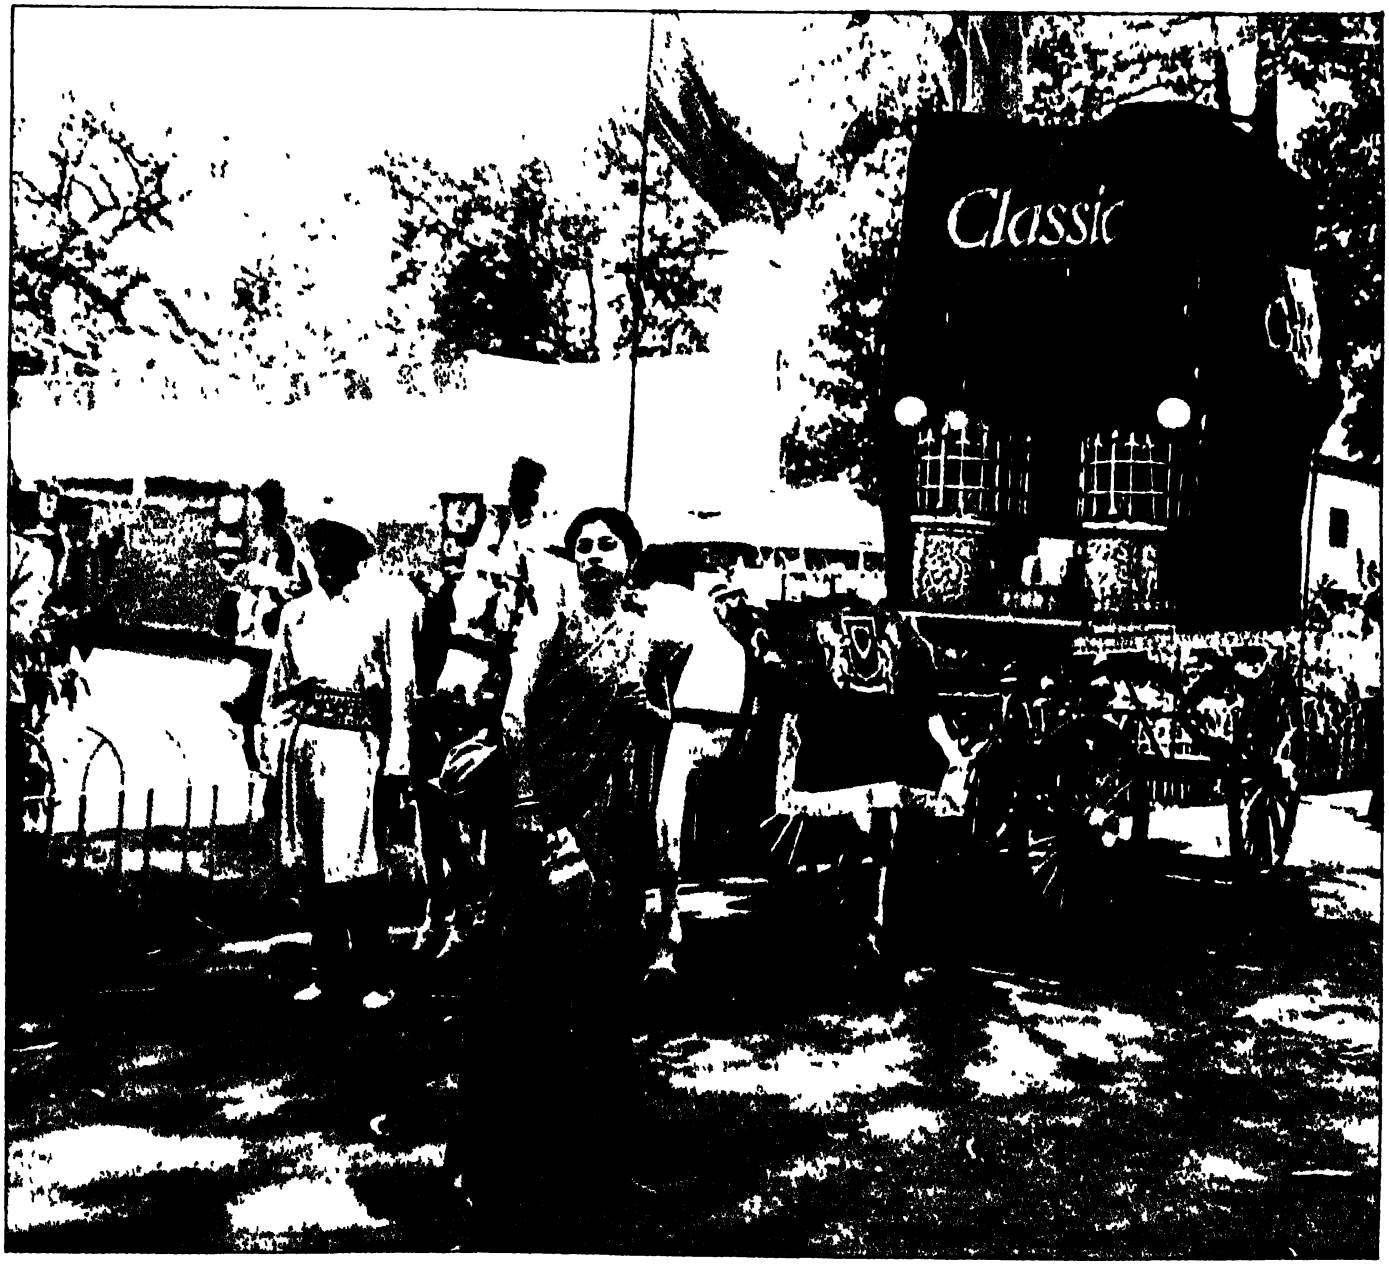
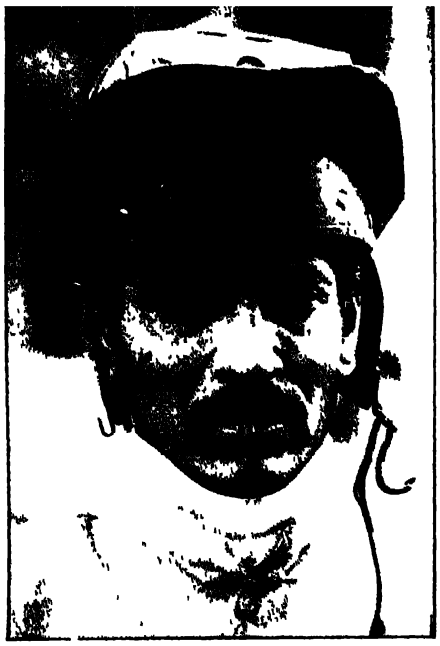
Though Khaitan relished his maiden triumph in the Invitation Cup at Bombay last year with Super Brave, he greets the thought of an Invitation Cup victory in Calcutta with more than a gleam in his eye "The thrill of winning at Calcutta is always much greater," says Khaitan, displaying sentimental attachment to this metropolis

According to Mukund Mahadeshwar, who was a senior official with the RCTC for three decades before his retirement last year, the finest horse to win the Invitation Cup in Calcutta was Midnight Cowboy The Cowboy was also the winner of two Queen Elizabeth Cups The fact that he was a horse owned by Maharani Gina Narayan of

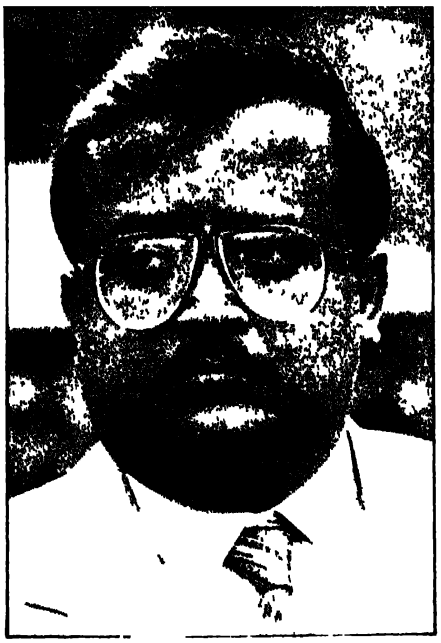


Though popular local rider Robin Corner has yet to win this piece de resistance, he has a staggering count in the Stayers' Cup/Classic, having won the marathon run over 3,000 metres on the eve of the Invitation Cup, a record six times

Cooch Behar, trained by Captain Fownes and ridden by Richard Alford — all from Calcutta — obviously made his triumph that much sweeter to local turfites



Perhaps, the most dramatic of all Invitation Cup victories at Calcutta was that of a dark bay filly called Hovercraft in 1964 In the 10-horse field that was to face the starter that year was one of the greatest front-running machines of all times — a colt from Bombay called Prince Pradeep His tearaway tactics fetched him many a glory



Backed to the exclusion of all other runners, Prince Pradeep shot away into a commanding lead but with his

The RCTC All dressed up for the occasion

Byramji (with Star Style Girl) Aslam Kader and Deepak Khaitan Banking on Elusive Pimpernel

RASHID BYRAMJI: TURF MIDAS

Year	Winner	Racing centre	Rider	Owner
1972	Prince Khartoum	Madras	Wally Swinburn	Mr and Mrs Sanjay Khan
1974	Topmost	Bombay	N Reuben	Mr D K Das
1976	Commanche	Madras	Jagdish	Ranjit V Bhat and Yogesh M Shah
1977	Squanderer	Bangalore	V Shinde	Ranjit V Bhat and I S Mirchandani
1978	Manitou	Hyderabad	V Shinde	Ranjit V Bhat and Yogesh M Shah
1980	Everynsky	Calcutta	A Barclay	Mr and Mrs S C Khatau, C M Khatau and K C Khatau
1981	Track Lightning	Madras	A Barclay	Mr and Mrs S C Khatau, C M Khatau and K C Khatau
1982	Almanac	Bangalore	P Cook	Mr J P Goenka
1991	Delage	Madras	L Piggott	Mr Vijay Mallya and Z.S Poonawalla
1992	Bugs Bunny	Bangalore	P Shroff	Mr Vijay Mallya, Kr Raghuvendra Singh and Kr Yadvendra Singh
1993	Adler	Hyderabad	P Shroff	Mr Vijay Mallya

PESI SHROFF: BLAZING SADDLES

Year	Winner	Racing centre	Trainer	Owner
1985	Revelation	Calcutta	Chenoy	Mrs Zeenia S Lawyer, Mrs B B Chenoy and the Estate of Late N M Irani
1986	Amorous Knight	Madras	S S Shah	Mrs A L J Talib, A A Ahmedbhoy, Abbas V Jasdanwalla and J F Tapia
1989	Exhilaration	Bombay	I Sait	Dr Cyrus S Poonawalla, Dr M A M Ramaswamy, Z.S Poonawalla and Solomon F Sopher
1990	Desert Warrior	Calcutta	A Hussain	Mr and Mrs R B Jain, Dr Cyrus S Poonawalla and Mrs Villoo C Poonawalla
1992	Bugs Bunny	Bangalore	Byramji	Mr Vijay Mallya, Kr Raghuvendra Singh and Kr Yadvendra Singh
1993	Adler	Hyderabad	Byramji	Mr Vijay Mallya

Byramji has notched up 11 Invitation Cup triumphs in a little over two decades and looks all set for a 12th this year with his unbeaten colt, Elusive Pimpernel. Crack rider Aslam Kader, who is retained by Deepak Khaitan, will be astride this big-made chestnut colt hapless jockey, Raghunath, finding one foot out of the stirrup iron Faggotter on the Mac Galstaun-trained Hovercraft watched Raghunath's plight as he gradually improved his mount's position

With his rider having lost control on him, the Prince' began to drift out in the straight while Faggotter and Hovercraft made a beeline for the finish The winner was available in the ring at eight-to-one and only those close associates of Mac Galstaun in whom the latter had confided about the filly's potential had dared to stake their money on her

SOME MARKERS IN HISTORY

While racing began to be organised in England as early as the first quarter of the 17th century, it was not until over a 100 years later that Calcutta witnessed its first horse race. Given below is a brief history of racing in the city in chronological order.

1769: Racing first took place at Akra farm towards the southern part of Garden Reach.

1788: Racing took place intermittently at Barasat. The most important race was the Barasat Welter, a forerunner of the Calcutta Welter, which was the most prestigious race of the early Calcutta programmes and continued till 1847

1803: The Bengal Jockey Club was formed. This put an end to irregular racing which had taken place hitherto

1806: Racing was first held in Barrrackpore which, as the name implies, was a cantonment of Calcutta It was also the country residence of the Governor General. The last Barrackpore meeting was held as late as in 1948

1809: The course was shifted from Akra to its present site at the Maidan under Bengal Jockey Club rules

1820: A stand was erected approximately where the present 1,000-metre marker stands. The newly erected stand backed on to the jail which was situated where Victoria Memorial now stands

1842: An event of considerable importance took place, namely the institution of the Calcutta Derby It was confined to Maiden Arabs and carried a winners purse of Rs 5,000. The race was run over two miles

1847: The year which saw the formation of the Calcutta Turf Club

1856: The Viceroy's Cup replaces the Calcutta Derby This race is currently known as the Queen Elizabeth II Cup Great names like Myall King, Mayfowl, Orange William and Baqlava won the Viceroy's Cup in the years to follow

1869: J.C. Galstaun lands on Indian soil He was destined to become one of the biggest owners of his time and one of the most fearless punters that the Bookmakers Ring has known

1871: The steeplechasing started in Calcutta

1880: The racecourse was turned around (as it is now) and a new stand built between the present Members and Grand enclosures

1960: Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II makes the presentation of the Queen Elizabeth II Cup to Mrs Billimoria owner of the winner Pa Bear.

1966: Fifth Asian Racing Conference held in Calcutta

1975: Inter-venue betting introduced at Calcutta covering races at Bombay Bangalore Hyderabad and Madras

1993: Totalisator at Calcutta is computerised

Only one other filly has won the Invitation Cup at Calcutta till date She is Revelation, sired by the highly successful prolific sire of the mid-Eighties, Grey Gaston Revelation was out of Monica who happens to be a daughter of Prince Pradeep Thus, it appears that breeding inevitably has a large say in all classic races

While local turfites hailed the Calcutta Derby winner of 1985, Robin Hood, as that year's winner of the Invitation Cup, Naresh Engineer on the latter had no answer as Pesi Shroff smoothly slipped Revelation along the rails to win in record time

Shroff's exploits in the Invitation Cup arena are not unknown to racegoers all over the country This young and dashing rider from Bombay has won this classic race no less than a record six times

Equally astounding is the record of maestro Rashid Byramji, a schooler par excellence The wizard has notched up 11 Invitation Cup triumphs in a little over two decades and looks all set for a 12th this year with his unbeaten colt, Elusive Pimpernel

Crack rider Aslam Kader, who is retained by Deepak Khaitan, will be astride this big-made chestnut colt

Till date Byramji has tasted success in the Invitation Cup only once at Calcutta This was in 1980 with a dark colt called Everynsky Known to come with a late burst of speed, Everynsky was ridden to perfection by that master of pace, Sandy Barclay Everynsky collared runaway Aristocrat after the distance post

Hovercraft, owned by Rani P K Devi Rana, being led in by trainer Mac Galstaun, Faggotter up

Though popular local rider, Robin Corner, has yet to win this piece de resistance, he has a staggering count in the Stayers' Cup/Classic, having won the marathon run over 3,000 metres on the eve of the Invitation Cup, a record six times

Corner's triumphs have been achieved astride Calibre (1986), Ardiles (1987 and 1988), Brave Dancer (1990), Star Contender (1992) and Flirting Vision (1993)

Calcutta witnessed a great stayer in Aztec in 1985 The horse by Jandaar out of Purita won in record timing The same year saw another great horse in Bergamo who won the Spinsters' Cup and the Super Mile Stakes the following day — both in record timing

One can only speculate whether the likes of Elusive Pimpernel will make 1995 a memorable year for Calcutta's racing fraternity Known to possess a amazing turn of foot much in the mould of his predecessor, Squanderer, from the same stable, Aslam Kader is certain to ride the colt for eventual speed

All he has to be wary about is Calcutta's notorious final hairpin bend and the short straight which has caught many a rider napping ■

EXTRACT

Fire and BRIMSTONE

There was a lot of talk about [Warren] Beatty and Madonna, and whether their affair was just a stunt to promote Dick Tracy. It was and it wasn't. Aides in the Madonna camp would report a continuing and steamy relationship. But the intent of the hype was deep and calculated, and the extent of it — especially on Madonna's part — would only emerge in the months leading up to the release of the movie. It was extraordinary.

Madonna threw herself into a sensational worldwide orgy of self-expression that left Beatty himself breathless. It was a slow-burn build-up that began in the dying weeks of 1989 and gathered pace early in the new year, when gossip writers were analysing their relationship. They were a curious pairing. Madonna was always frank and loud and controversial about her men. She admitted to looking at the bulge in their pants before wasting any time on potential lovers and she liked them strong and butch, young and virile. Beatty's adventurous love making was hardly in the S and M category that Madonna flirted with in her stage acts. She, on the other hand, was the absolute bumping and grinding opposite to some of the women who had populated his life, who were genteel in comparison.

Neither did Beatty seem put off by the regular presence of Madonna's closest friend, Sandra Bernhard, who was always somewhere close, and often travelled with her. They used to taunt him by disappearing into the powder room and returning having swapped clothes.

It was a disjointed romance, he was still engaged on the editing of Dick Tracy, working day and night through the early months of 1990 to prepare for a June release, while she was putting the final touches to plans for her Blond Ambition world tour. In the weeks before she left, they made a point of being seen around Hollywood and New York.

The affair was no stunt, but that did not stop them from turning it into one. The hype was all that mattered, and they pursued that aim as if the whole relationship had been carefully and meticulously planned for the purpose. Some nights they would dine in two places, taking a main course in one and a dessert in another. Actress, author and television presenter Elisa Celli, wife of Hollywood-based British producer Trevor Wallace, said "They were the talk of the town for weeks. It seemed everywhere you went Warren and Madonna were there — Spago, Adriano's, La Scala, the Citrus — and they weren't sinking away in some dark corner. They were there for all to see."

And everyone saw. Beatty and Madonna made sure of that. She attracted attention with her sexy clothes, adorned with lots of black lace and high skirts, and her playful teasing, sitting on Beatty's lap. Then they would dash off to one of the Sunset Boulevard night spots, where they might find Jack Nicholson nightclubbing while Rebecca Broussard was at home waiting for the birth of their baby, which arrived in April.

Jack was languishing in the success of Batman, which brought him personally upwards of $50 million. Nicholson, who had achieved massive publicity and acclaim for his portrayal of the Joker, was a hard act to follow. Dick Tracy was a different kind of film, but it was still being viewed as in the same mould, and would be judged as such.

Beatty knew better than anyone by now that if he hadn't got it right, then Dick Tracy could face a massacre by the critics and he personally would be crucified. Batman, which Disney executives had taken a great interest in as a precursor to their own movie, was a stunning commercial success. It quick-

Extracted from Warren Beatty: The Last Great Lover of Hollywood* by John Parker, Headline, distributed by IBD, £6.99

BY JOHN PARKER

ly zoomed into the realms of blockbuster status, taking $200 million in domestic grosses in the first four weeks alone, and the merchandising operation round the world was being talked of in terms of producing a $1 billion bonanza, from which Nicholson would benefit by tens of millions

So he could justifiably smile that killer smile when he saw Beatty at the Roxberry night spot — it was a grin that said, "Hey, Warren, follow that!" They gathered some companionship and retired for a party at Jack's place But Jack knew that Warren had a secret weapon in his armoury of promotional activity for Dick Tracy It was Madonna herself, at her most sexy, shockingly outrageous best (or worst) Beatty had seen a preview of the new stage act for her world tour and he was amazed by it He had seen her final rehearsal in Los Angeles for the Blond Ambition show, which was to open in Tokyo on 13 April, the first leg of the sell-out world tour Nine concerts in Japan alone secured ticket sales in excess of $4 million, without the merchandising that was part of the circus

At the first gig, 35,000 screaming, shouting, ecstatic fans gave a foretaste of what was to follow Newsreels picked up on her stage performance in Tokyo as she burst on to the stage in her ivory corset with its gold conical breasts and dangling suspender belt and performed an act which simulated every sexual possibility She tantalised her audiences with references to sado-masochism, with lines like "When I hurt people, I feel better — know what I mean?" and following her rendition of the Dick Tracy number, Hanky Panky she added, "You all know the pleasures of a good spanking."

The promotion of Dick Tracy was a built-in facet of the tour She performed three numbers from the movie, which was also linked to her new album entitled, I'm Breathless Beatty was there in spirt, if not in person, when she performed a duet with a tape of his voice in the number, Now I'm following you, and her team of male dancers were adorned in Dick Tracy-style yellow overcoats A specially prepared movie trailer was flashed on to big screens in the auditorium and the audience went into raptures when they heard her reciting the gems, "Dick that's an interesting name" and "My body hurts just thinking about it"

Around the world and back again, Madonna was promoting the movie. At her first concert in America, on 4 May, at the Summit Arena, in Houston, Texas, Beatty should have been in the wings Madonna had even sent a private jet to collect him When start time came and he hadn't arrived, she was pacing around, angry and screaming at anyone who got in her way "Jeez, where's that m____t____? Where is he?" She delayed the start for 20 minutes before going on

He telephoned afterwards and apologised He explained he was busy with the final arrangements for the release of Dick Tracy There were a thousand last-minute details to attend to, and he hoped she was not angry Madonna hung up and let out a loud scream She made only a brief visit to a party thrown in her honour and then went back to her hotel room, locked herself in and refused all calls

She ploughed on with the tour, city after city, until Beatty finally caught up with her on the opening night in Los Angeles She was still angry "M____f____!" she bawled as she came off after the first set "Who put those a__h___s in the front rows? All I've got is three rows of fat f ____s leering up at me" She was moaning that the front seats appeared to have been commandeered for some corporate outing of ageing, balding,

The most talked-about duo in showbiz for a while ogling males.

Then she spotted Beatty, who was standing at the back of the wings and she yelled, "Don't stand back there, Warren Come over here See this, this crap can you believe it, what I have to do every f _ ing night of my life? Are you going to be nicer to me now, Warren?"

Who was she doing it for? It was principally for Madonna Beatty's movie was a vehicle for her She badly wanted a success in a major movie, but it was just a small part of one massive commercial operation which was now swamping Beatty's own position Her spin-offs were immense The world tour was netting millions of dollars, the ablum, I'm Breathless, which had been acclaimed as the best she had produced, had been kept out of the deal she struck with Beatty and Disney studios. She had the songs produced on her own label for Time Warner, and the album stood to make her well in excess of $12 million She had also hammered a tight percentages deal with Disney on box-office receipts,

And everyone saw. Beatty and Madonna made sure of that. She attracted attention with her sexy clothes, adorned with lots of black lace and high skirts, and her playful

Beatty's lap

merchandising and video sales Even before the picture came out, she was looking at potentially $20 million It was little wonder she had agreed to make the picture for union scale of $1,440 a week

On her own admission, she was hyping the movie for all she was worth, and she was doing it of her own volition In her usual frank style, she said, "Disney did not ask me to market the movie Let's say I'm killing 12 birds with one stone it's a two-way street I'm pushing everything Sure I have to Most people don't associate me with movies but then, I also have a much bigger following than Warren does A lot of my audience have never heard of him"

Prompted by his own need to talk about the picture — and the absolute certainty of being overshadowed by Madonna — Beatty came out of his shell for the first time in almost a decade Apart from a few modest interviews he gave for Ishtar before retreating back into his self-imposed seclusion, Beatty had said nothing of note to the press since the late 1980s. In May, while Madonna was attracting huge publicity from the tour, he went on the Barbara Walters Show It was classic Beatty — apparently shy, and blinking without his glasses, he was slow in answering and often gave the air of mystery

Next, he agreed to one of those long and searching Rolling Stone interviews which had been compared variously by subjects to having teeth pulled or spending half a day on a psychiatrist's couch It would be virtually impossible for him to stick to his normal routine of saying nothing in particular In fact writer Bill Zehme admitted in his preamble to the piece that to "interview Warren Beatty is to want to kill him"

The long pauses between his monosyllabic replies were recorded and it was easy to imagine the interviewer shuffling in his seat waiting for the reply to come or was it Beatty who was shuffling?

Zehme OK, you and Madonna the truth?

Beatty Art is truth

Zehme That's all You want to go with that?

Beatty OK by me

Zehme Describe the qualities she possesses that convinced you to cast her as the sexpot temptress, Breathless Mahoney How does she qualify?

Beatty Madonna is (21 seconds pause) simultaneously touching and more fun than a barrel of monkeys (11 seconds) She's funny and she's (21 seconds) gifted in so many areas and has a kind of energy as a performer that can't help but make you engaged

Zehme You mean sexual energy?

Beatty (47-second pause) Um, she has it all

But the man from Rolling Stone had heard that it was over between Beatty and Madonna Beatty would not answer on the record He had retained the right to go off the record when he felt so inclined It was a favourite trick that he had injected into newspaper interviews years ago to get out of answering questions of a personal nature This was one of them, and the question of his continuing relationship with Madonna was fudged, though the interviewer drew the conclusion that it was still on

By and large reviewers enjoyed the film, although several tempered their comments with the observations that Beatty had turned in a sweet-natured picture that gave his Dick Tracy an aesthetic look and which low-keyed Madonna to the extent that none of her electrifying stage presence came across Such comments were wholly deserved It was an excellent movie technically, with the superb photography and set designs of two Beatty stalwarts, Vittorio Storaro and Dick Sylbert, respectively The music was excellent, the whole presentation was rich in colour and ideas, but the dead hand of Disney-fication lay over it, so that there was a serious lack of excitement

Madonna, too, had moved on after some heated exchanges She found a new boyfriend whom she met at her birthday party, given by her brother in mid-July, and had a role with Beatty over his seeing other women but he not expecting her to see other men Bang! The phone went down and so did her relationship When the movie was over so was the single most important bond Love? There surely was none As one of her close associates described it, Madonna "screwed his brains out" and left

She did not want maturity in a man and made that abundantly clear when she went public with a new man, a handsome male model named Tony Ward, five years her junior, who had appeared in pin-up poses in male gay magazines The message to Beatty was as effective as a punch in the face

Also her own sharp business acumen had creamed off millions from the whole Dick Tracy exercise, which she had wrapped up and incorporated into her own worldwide marketing operation of concerts, videos and albums Madonna danced off into the sunset ready to make her next killing, which would include the release of her own documentary of exhibitionism, initially titled, Truth or Dare On the Road, Behind the Scenes and in Bed with Madonna, which was filled during her Blond Ambition tour.■

POETRY

Selected by Jayanta Mahapatra

A Season of Homecoming

The season of rains has set out for distant lands
The canopy of the sky looks like the face of my mother

I see a woman of seventy seated on the porch of her cottage.
A child crying on her lap

The guava tree in the yard has broken into delicate blossoms

This is the season of homecoming

Years back I was born And I will celebrate that birthday now

Bhagya Mondal

Flashback

After all these days,
those times rise clear,
straight-ironed, smooth,
no knots nor creases,
the picture of a past

The crowd of faces, voices that mingled
in a deep-toned murmur
Air carried melodies of laughter and giggles, and wrinkled walls blushed at teenage jargon
Yet each was different
Each had eyes that watched,
met other eyes,

Ears which listened,
A tongue that gave Worth to a voice,
yet each had a face

Through clouds and rainbows, tears and smiles,
Over pages of calendars
—I rest my eyes—
while the album nestles on my lap

Annapurna Dutta

And Then — Words Only Words — And Then?

Setting words in order, year after year,
thousands of words, what good does it do?
When the words at last run out — in the end —
your question will still be there,
'And then?'

What will I give you for Puja this year?
What can I give you? Cracked earth, water with a briny taste, heavy marks of weeping
What will you give me for Puja this year?
Will it be golden dreams of lights?
Colours fade with waiting Whenever I look
I see faces, shadowy faces drifting

Give me dreams of light this year, lots and lots of dreams of light
For life in its wholeness has fled from the breast of the sun scorched plain

Turn me in some other direction this year lead me away else where, away, away —
There is a long way to go yet, a long way

As I measure the distance with my steps
I hear autumn calling in the colours of a mynah's breast feathers and I inhale the sweet-scent of light, breathing deeply
A golden hawk shrills the news in my ears.

No words There are no words.
We have none
Words are stored away, pushed aside for thousands of years

The shephalika flowers fall softly now
Gently the rain flows down
Here and there a half spoken word is partly heard in somebody's breast.

All are still A hush envelop us

The shephalika flowers fall softly now

Softly Slowly

Abhijit Ghose

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

WILD GARDEN

As with many who love gardens, I have never really had enough space in which to create a garden of my own A few square feet of rocky hillside has been the largest patch at my disposal All that I managed to grow in it were daisies — and they'd probably have grown there anyway

Still, they made for a charmingly dappled hillside throughout the summer, specially on full-moon

I like a garden to be a little untidy, unplanned and full of surprises, rather like my own muddled mind, which gives me a few surprises at times nights, when the flowers were at their most radiant

For the past few years, here in Mussoorie I have had to live in two small rooms on the third floor of a tumbledown building which has no garden space at all

All the same, it has a number of ever-widening cracks in which wild sorrel, dandelions, thorn apples and nettles, all take root and thrive You could, I suppose, call it a wild wall garden

Not that I am deprived of flowers I am better off than most city dwellers because I have only to walk a short way out of the hillstation to see (or discover) a variety of flowers in their wild state, and wild flowers are rewarding because the best ones are often the most difficult to find

But I have always had this dream of possessing a garden of my own Not a very formal garden — certainly not the stately home type, with its pools and fountains and neat hedges as described in such detail by Bacon in his essay, Of Gardens

Bacon had a methodical mind and he wanted a methodical garden I like a garden to be a little untidy, unplanned and full of surprises — rather like my own muddled mind, which gives me a few surprises at times

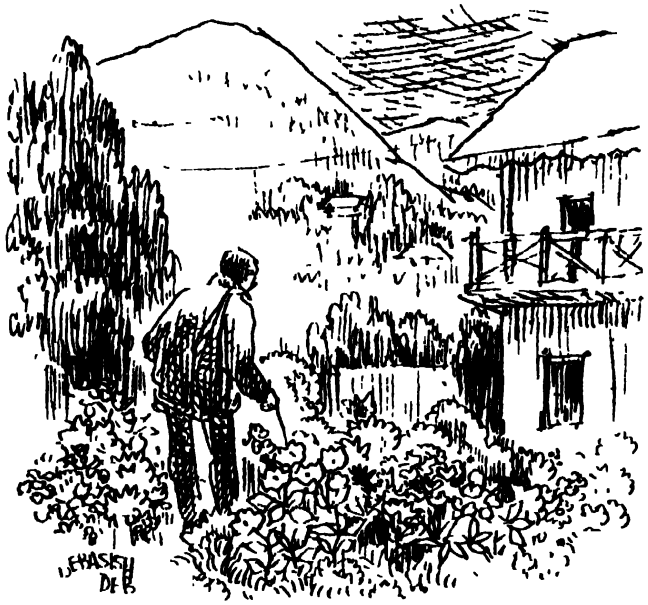
My grandparent's garden in Dehra, in north India, for example, Grandmother liked flowers, and she didn't waste space on lawns and hedges There was plenty of space at the back of the house for shrubs and fruit trees but in the front garden was a maze of flower beds of all shapes and sizes and everything that could grow in Dehra (a fertile valley) was grown in them — masses of sweet peas, petunias, antirrhinum, poppies, phlox and larkspur

Scarlet poinsettia leaves draped the garden walls while purple and red bougainvillea climbed the porch, geraniums of many hues mounted the verandah steps and indoors, vases full of cut flowers gave the rooms a heady fragrance

I suppose it was this garden of my childhood that implanted in my mind a permanent vision of a perfect garden so that, whenever I am worried and down in the dumps, I close my eyes and conjure up a picture of this lovely place, where I am wandering through forests of cosmos and banks of rambling roses It does help to soothe an agitated mind I wouldn't call it meditation Contemplation rather

I remember an aunt who sometimes came to stay with my grandmother, and who had an obsession about watering the flowers She would be at it morning and evening, an old and rather lop-sided watering can in her frail hands

To everyone's amazement she would water the garden in all weathers, even during the rains



"But, it's just been raining, aunt," I would remonstrate "Why are you watering the garden?"

"The rain comes from above," she replied "This is from me They expect me at this time you know"

Grandmother died when I was still a boy and the garden soon passed into other hands I've never done well enough to acquire anything like it and there's no point in getting sentimental about the past

Yes, I'd love to have a garden of my own — spacious and gracious and full of everything that's fragrant and flowering But if I don't succeed, never mind — I've still got the dream

Yes, I'd love to have a garden of my own — spacious and gracious and full of everything that's fragrant and flowering. But if I don't succeed, never mind — I've still got the dream

(Santuary Features)

INNER EYE ❑ Bejan Daruwalla

Aries

March 21 - April 20

Introspection and a reaching out to people and places, are exact opposites but both will find a place in your mental makeup A trip or a journey is very likely, so get your travel-kit ready March 7-9 are favourable for getting work done, so give it your best shot

Taurus

April 21 —May 20

True, there will be pressures on the emotional and material frontiers But you will be able to cope with them It will be a tight squeeze, nevertheless March 5-6 will be rather crucial for you Tuesday through Thursday will be important for buying/selling/socialising and so on

Gemini

May 21 - June 20

You will be forced to pull out all the stops if you want to succeed, says Ganesha This holds particularly true for March 8-10 Many of you could be changing horses mid-stream and this change appears almost inevitable and necessary You will have the energy to go ahead

Cancer

June 21 - July 20

You will have to move fast, very fast to get the goodies, as competition will be tremendous Two things are evident Finances, inclusive of loans, funds, joint-finances and investment play a vital part Foreign ties, inspirational moves and a certain sadness constitute the second part

Leo

July 21--August 21

The Sun-Jupiter aspect/formation could make life a bit difficult healthwise Otherwise, your success in putting your message across will be simply phenomenal Many Leons must have made a fesh start in the last six months and now is the time to renew that pledge

Virgo

August 22--September 22

While there could be opposition to plans and even a falling out, it could be temporary and a patching up is possible Employment opportunities and house or property development schemes keep you active Pay particular heed to your personal appearance March 8-10 is best for work

Libra

September 23 -October 22

Once again, changes and overhauling on the job sector are indicated Health could call for special care and attention In matters regarding children, research, creative pursuits, film-making, painting, TV commercials, writing and teaching, your luck holds well

Scorpio

October 23--November 22

It would be best to distance yourself a little and not be totally involved, says Ganesha Renovation/alteration decoration of house, office or shop is foretold For funding, loaning and investment, Tuesday through Thursday will be of vital importatnce

Sagittarius

November 23--December 20

The health and well-being of family members is suspect it could cause tensions Many Sagittarians will be communicating at, literally, break-neck speed Contracts should be on the anvil Visits, interviews and tests seem ordained for you Prepare for a trip, or even a long-distance journey

Capricorn

December 21 - January 19

You have a chance to really grow and be praised for it The going may be tough which is undeniable But it will be well worth it and that's most important Letters, calls, posters and other modes of communiacation will entice you Read all contracts and letters twice

Aquarius

January 20 - February 18

Keep a leash on family and finances, as both could get out of hand The trick is to know when and where to draw the line Despite difficulties, you will have the nerve and the verve to do what you have to It would be best to put across your ideas clearly and briefly without overdoing it

Pisces

February 19--March 20

Avoid depression and melancholia and be sure your mood will change for the better shortly Help from strange places, secret powers, friends and God will be there for you Prepare for a trip or even a long-distance journey It is best for you to be diplomatic

BIRTHDAYS

March 5: Moon squares Uranus and that means there could be unpleasant changes in your lifestyle and people could be a bit overbearing.

March 6: A year of mixed blessings. Your tears and laughter will both come from large organisations. A major move, be it in matters of house, office or work, is likely.

March 7: Pay heed to legal complications, notices and news Perks and promotions are possible for you. You will be signing leases and contracts.

March 8: Moon-Venus excellent juxtaposition leads to lucky situations, comforts and riches Those in arts and crafts do extremely well

March 9: Mars-Jupiter fine formation could lead to good luck, energy and a lot of publicity A change in the nature and scope of your work is possible.

March 10: You will be heading towards a lot of happiness. Family matters will be unusually important Children, romance and journeys are foretold.

March 11: For you too, children, romance and journey form a triumvirate. Thanks to Saturn, whatever you accumulate will be lasting and permanent

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ● MONDAY ● TUESDAY ● WEDNESDAY ● THURSDAY ● FRIDAY ● SATURDAY ● SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AGARTALA
IC-741	0710	3 5	IC-742	0940	3, 5
IC 743	0920	daily	IC-744	1150	daily
PF 701	1130	1 3 5 7	PF-702	1610	1, 3, 5, 7
AHMEDABAD
M9304109	0855	1 3, 5	M9110301	1900	1, 3, 5
AIZAWL
PF-705	0730	2 4, 6 7	PF-706	1510	2, 4 6 7
BAGDOGRA
PF-735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1
PF 737	0730	3, 5	PF-738	1740	3, 5
IC 721	1300	1 3, 5	IC-722	1540	1 3, 5
BHUBANESWAR
IC-771	0800	daily	IC-772	1140	daily
BHUBANESWAR
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC-769	1525	1 3 5	IC 770	2120	1 3 5
BOMBAY
IC 676	0730	daily	IC 675	0820	daily
D2 102	0905	daily	D2-101	0835	daily
9W-202	0920	1, 2 3, 4 5, 6	9W 201	0840	1 2 3 4, 5 6
IC 273	1945	daily	AI 306	1840	5
9W 212	1945	daily	IC 274	1850	daily
D2-104	2005	daily	9W 211	1910	daily
AI-309	2035	6	D2 103	1935	daily
AI-681	2350	1
DELHI
			IC 262	0815	2, 4 7
IC 263	0700	daily	M9-303	0825	daily
M9-304	0855	daily	AI 682	0950	1
IC 812	1515	1, 3 5	4S-806	1115	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC 402	1715	daily	IC 401	1155	daily
4S-805	1745	1 2 3 4 5 6	M9-301	1900	daily
IC-261	1900	2 4 7	S2 005	1900	1, 2, 3, 4 5, 6
M9-302	1930	daily	IC 811	1930	1 3 5
S2 006	1940	1 2, 3, 4, 5, 6	IC-264	2210	daily
DIBRUGARH
PF 737	0730	3 5	IC-704	1430	3 5
IC-703	0800	3 5	D2-181	1620	1 3 5 7
D2-181	1135	1 3 5, 7	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2-183	1135	2 4 6	IC 702	1630	2 4 6 7
4S 815	1145	1 2 3 4 5 6	4S-816	1705	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC-701	1240	2 4 6 7	PF-738	1740	3 5
DIMAPUR
C 257	1150	4 7	IC 258	1650	4 7
GUWAHATI
PF 735	0730	1	IC 712	1410	2 6
PF 737	0730	3 5	IC 704	1430	3 5
PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	IC 708	1430	1 4 7
IC 703	0800	3 5	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
IC 707	0800	1 4 7	D2 181	1620	1 3 5 7
IC 711	0800	2 6	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2-181	1135	1 3 5 7	IC 230	1650	daily
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	4S-811	1705	1 2 3 4 5 6
HYDERABAD
IC-777	1600	2, 4, 7	IC-778	2100	2, 4 7
IC 769	1525	1, 3, 5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5
IMPHAL
IC-707	0800	1, 4 7	IC-256	1320	3 5
IC-255	0830	3, 5	IC-708	1430	1 4 7
IC 253	1100	2 6	IC 254	1550	2 6
JORHAT
IC-213	0910	2, 4, 7	IC-213	1315	2 4 7
KHAJURAHO
PF 735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1
KHOWAI
IC-812	1515	1, 3, 5	IC-811	1930	1 3 5
MADRAS
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC-765	1720	daily	D2 171	1045	daily
D2 172	1740	daily	IC 766	2220	daily
NAGPUR
IC-769	1525	1 3 5	IC 770	2120	1 3 5
PATNA
IC-249	1430	2 4 7	IC-249	1805	2 4 7
IC-812	1515	1 3 5	IC 811	1930	1 3 5
PORT BLAIR
IC 285	0640	3 5 7	IC 286	1100	2 4 6
RAIPUR
IC-249	1430	2 4 7	IC-249	1805	2 4 7
SHILLONG
PF-705	0730	2, 2 6 7	PF-706	1510	2 4 6 7
SILCHAR
IC 255	0830	3, 5	IC 260	1110	1 7
IC 259	0830	1 7	IC 256	1320	3 5
IC 253	1100	2 6	IC 254	1550	2 6
IC-211	1240	4 6	IC 212	1740	4 6
TEZPUR
IC 213	0910	2 4 7	IC 213	1315	2 4 7
TEZU
PF 735	0730	3 5	PF 738	1740	3 5
VISAKHAPATNAM
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
ZERO
PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1
4S-812	1145	1 2, 3, 4 5 6	PF 736	1730	1
IC 257	1150	4 7	PF 738	1740	3 5
IC 211	1240	4 6	IC-258	1740	4, 7
IC-229	1310	daily	IC-212	1740	4 6

FLIGHTS — INTERNATIONAL

KATHMANDU
RJ-185	1445	4	RJ 184	0705	4
KUALA LUMPUR
KL-876	0420	7	KL-875	0235	7
SINGAPORE
IC 731	0855	2, 4, 6, 7	KB-106	1115	3
			KB-108	1215	5
KB-105	1125	2, 6	TG-313	1240	1, 3, 6
TG-314	1355	1, 3, 6	IC-732	1505	2, 4, 6, 7
AI 306	1950	5	AI-309	1925	6

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[illegible]
RO-076	2040	5, 7	RO-075	1035	5, 7
[illegible]
IC-225	1200	1	IC-226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2, 5	BG 697	1655	2, 5
[illegible]
BG-092	0850	4 5	BG 091	0810	4, 5
BG-092	1150	1, 2 3, 6 7	BG-091	1110	1 2 3 6 7
IC-723	1250	1 2, 3 5 6	IC 724	1520	1, 2, 3, 5 6
BG-094	1905	1 2 3 5 6 7	BG-093	1825	1 2, 3, 5 6, 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1 5	BG 095	2020	1 5
[illegible]
IC-747	1115	1 3, 5	IC-748	1455	1 3, 5
RA-214	1400	4 7	RA-213	1315	4 7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
LONDON
BA 142	2050	3 7	BA-143	1525	3, 7
MOSCOW
SU-538	1855	4	SU-537	1655
PARO
KB 106	1200	3	KB-105	1040	2 6
KB 106	1300	5
SINGAPORE
SQ-415	2200	2 5	SQ 416	2040	2 5
SOFIA
LZ 504	1750	4	LZ 503	1650	4
TOKYO
AI 306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
2311	19-15	Delhi Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19 20	Amritsar Mail	7 55	3006
3003	20 35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13 00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat	16-15	2382
2303	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun	16-15	2304
2301	16 30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun	10 45	2302
2305	13 45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat	12 50	2306
3073	23 00	Himgiri (Jammu Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat, Arr Tues Wed & Sat	11 35	3074
5047	13 00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon Wed & Fri	4 30	5048
3009	20 30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9 45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18 15	3008
3049	13-20	Amritsar Express	15 30	3050
3039	21 00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5 20	3040
3019	16-05	Gorakhpur Express	11 55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5-00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6 30	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17 11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18 20	Asansol Express	8 45	3036
3031	21 05	Danapur Express	5-50	3032
3025	23 00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday Arr Friday	11 35	3026
3071	22 30	Jamalpur Express	5 10	3072
3015	9 55	Santiniketan Express	15 40	3016
1159	15 25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tues & Wed	6 50	1160
1171	15 25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed Arr Fri Sat & Sun	6 50	1172
3327	14 30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4 50	3328
1181	15 25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6 50	1182

Up	Time	Sealdah	Time	Dn
3141	13 40	Teesta-Torsa Express Dep Mon Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues, Wed Thurs Fri Sat & Sun	6 35	3142
3143	19-15	Darjeeling Mail	8 45	3144
3111	20-15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7 15	3112
5657	6 25	Kanchanjunga Express	20 35	5658
3153	22-00	Gour Express	5 15	3154
5663	20-00	Katihar Express	4-15	5664
3151	11-45	Jammu-Tawi Express	15 50	3152
3133	20-55	Mughal Sarai Express via SBG Loop	12 55	3134
3103	16 20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express	10-25	3104
5185	12-40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues Thurs & Sat	4-25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6 50	6004
8002	19 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15	2859
8034	20-40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12 00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	19 40	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sunday Arr Sunday	13 45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8014
8011	6-15	Ispat Express	22 05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5 00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5 30	8008
8409	19-00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8-25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00	8046
8017	16 45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2421	16 40	Bhubaneswar New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday	16 10	—
—	11 05	New Delhi Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15	–
–	14 05	Trivandrum Central Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 45	6321
	14 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13 45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15	-
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapanam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13-45	6315
6520	22 35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15	—
—	14 05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains, please dial 2203545 54 for in coming trains, 2203535-44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains, dial 2203466-3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition, dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running), 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535-37

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S COLUMN

LONELY CRUSADER

Life as a sanitary inspector is not generally thought to be exciting But it is employment, and government employment at that So Zafar Hussain was proud to have passed his middle school exams and to have entered, about the end of World War II, what was then called the Royal Sanitary Institute in Bombay

It wasn't a long course and perhaps not too demanding By 1946 he had returned to Bhopal state, and was grappling with the problems of controlling public health in the cities and towns of Madhya Bharat

Very much away from any public gaze he saw plenty of plague and cholera It was his job to control it, as it is still the job of junior government employees to control dangerous diseases today But for years now they have not had the chance to participate in any great succes — to wipe out a whole disease

Plague, or rather what masquerades as plague, cholera, malaria, polio — even polio — are still with us But we musn't forget what can be done, what Zafar and his colleagues did

In 1962, Zafar began to specialise in a way that was going to change his life completely and put enormous strains on his marriage, leaving his wife to bring up their children for many years more or less singlehanded Specially now, when he sees his sons grown up and doing well, he makes sure to say, "It is all her tolerance and hard work that has made this family, and let me do all that I did "

What he did was to oppose a remarkable mother — Bari Mata in fact, otherwise known as variola major or smallpox It was endemic and epidemic Spread by face-to-face contact it particularly affected children, A chart produced by the WHO shows its progress By the third day of high fever the spots or pustules are bursting out from under the skin, by the fifth, full of liquid and white like maggots, they have expanded and are joined one to another, making the face a swollen mask By the tenth, they are a mass of black scabs and nearly four weeks after the fever starts, the last scab falls

It is a common saying that money given to a miser and an eye taken by smallpox never come back Pustules would cover the eyelids and take the sight of one or two eyes, some children never lived to open their eyes again, and at the very least they are scarred for life

Zafar became very well acquainted with Bari Mata He participated with thousands of others in a huge national and international exercise in failure — mass vaccination The more they vaccinated, the more cases of smallpox there were The virus always escaped and there were always some unvaccinated places for it to go It was only in the Seventies when Zafar turned into a detective and jailor that Bari Mata was finally put on the run

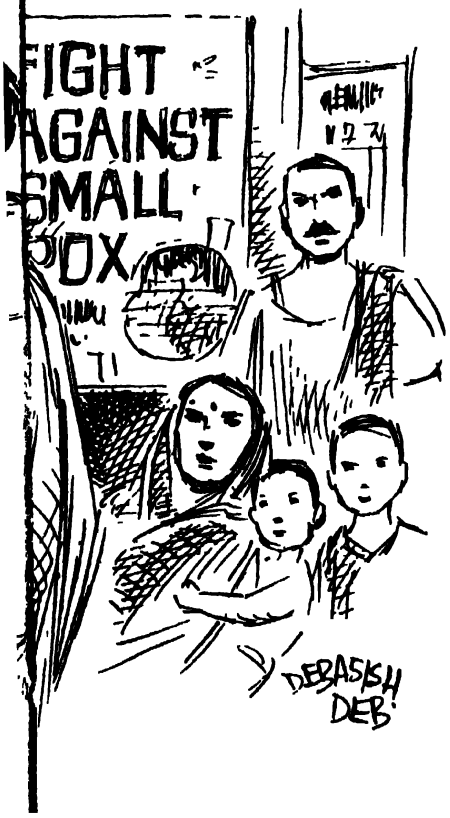
"Search and contain," says Zafar, "search and contain " This was his mantra and he believes in it with a passion From 1973 Zafar was deputed to work with WHO in the last great effort against Bari Mata Smallpox was tracked down case by case, senior epidemiologists working side by side with paramedics and vaccinators walked miles down muddy paths to villages deep in the countryside

Zafar enjoyed working with senior

From 1973 Zafar was deputed to work with WHO in the last great effort against Bari Mata. Smallpox was tracked down case by case, senior epidemiologists working side by side with paramedics and vaccinators walked miles down muddy paths to villages deep in the countryside

Indian and foreign doctors — many of whom he was introducing to real cases of smallpox for the first time "Then there were real team-work, no high, no low, and we could work day and night"

The team was always on the move Once they surrounded a mela in Amarkantak, standing at the roadsides with small pictures of an infected child and asking, "Have you seen a child like this?" The rumours of the disease were entered in a book and checked out one by one Zafar is very proud that his team was the first to introduce a reward — Rs 10 for the person who reported smallpox It was a victory of money over faith The reward was instituted to overcome the natural fear of Bari Mata's anger For many, the pustules were the Goddess and it was unnatural and risky to come in Her way



"You had to break the chain," says Zafar Breaking the chain meant sitting guard on the victim's door and stopping anyone coming in unless they were vaccinated It meant noting in a register the nearest 500 people and vaccinating them It meant tracing all those who had been in contact with the patient — young children, young sisters-in-law from neighbouring villages — and vaccinating them

"Once a woman spat on my face when I vaccinated her," said Zafar "But I didn't mind Until then no one in that village would be vaccinated, but that one woman's bad behaviour shamed them all into coming forward

"But the worst was Bihar, the last epidemic in 1974 Around Jamshedpur I couldn't find children to vaccinate Practically everyone I saw had already had, or was having, smallpox There were many deaths No searching had been done properly Then the doctor I was working with, Dr Larry Brilliant, went and told Tatas that they were the main exporters of smallpox to the rest of India Then they decided to help And then we worked without stopping"

Hundreds of volunteers — Tata staff, medical students — had to be trained for eradicating the disease In

'Once a woman spat on my face when I vaccinated her,' said Zafar. 'But I didn't mind. Until then no one in that village would be vaccinated, but that one woman's bad behaviour shamed them all into coming forward'

Jamshedpur and Ranchi, the main centre of the 1974 epidemic, Zafar trained all of them — taking them to the field to demonstrate how to deal with outbreaks These were the grandest and most rewarding moments of his life He was at the heart of something very exciting, very big and very successful

In 1974 there were some two lakh smallpox outbreaks in India India had 86 per cent of the world's smallpox cases By the end of 1975 there was no smallpox Zafar himself slept for 15 nights on a pile of straw outside the door of the house of a young boy called Manju in a village of Balrampur block in Katihar District This was the last indigenous case of smallpox in India and, after 12 years of effort, Zafar at last saw victory as Manju's last scab fell

"I knew then that no child would ever be scarred, or blinded, or killed by this disease again Still I can't believe how it was done, it must be the greatest medical miracle of this century"

(Sanctuary Features)

poems regularly.

JAYANTA MAHAPATRA

selects the poems All contributions should be sent directly to him at Tinkonia Bagicha, Cuttack 753001 and not to The Telegraph Poems should be typewritten in double space, on one side of the paper Please retain copies of submitted poems as they will not be returned. All published poems will be paid for at our regular rates No enquiries will be solicited.

Fill in the coupon below and send with your contribution

___ Block letters please .

Name_____

Age_

Address_

COMPUTERS
THE
NEW QUALIFICATION
CHANDRA DATA SYSTEMS
A complete house of Computer Education
Prepare you for Today
29/B Tarachand Dutt Street
Calcutta 700 073
Opp Mohammed Ali Park
Ph 238-7505/ 231-2445

The Telegraph Classifieds

Admission On

Fashion Designing Certificate Course

APRIL '95 Batch
Fees· Rs 4,600/-
(2 instalments)

Stitch Kraft Designer Center
11, Mahendra Road
Cal-25,
Ph: 475-1031
(Lansdowne Motor Vehicles Stop)

CAREER DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

Adv. Diploma in Computer Sc. & Management (18 months) •
Course Contents
Windows, FOXPRO, Clipper, UNIX, C/C++, LAN, VISUAL C++, Hardware Maintenance & others
Eligibility H S / Graduate
Fees Rs 10,000/- payable in instalments

NSCT
National School of Computer Technology
2, Raja Basanta Roy Road
(Between Rashbehari Crossing and Lake Market)
Cal-26, Ph 473-4113
Opening shortly at Dum Dum
Cut this and bring to get a special offer.

INSTITUTE OF ADVANCED MANAGEMENT
HOTEL MANAGEMENT COLLEGE
ANNOUNCES
DIPLOMA IN HOTEL & CATERING MANAGEMENT

THE INSTITUTE : IAM, affiliated to Confederation of Tourism, Hotel & Catering Management, United Kingdom, is ranked as one of the best "Hotel Management College" in the country The Institute has a wide industry acceptance both in India and abroad The Institute's infrastructure, teaching faculty and human resource support is one of the best in the country The Institute is shortly expected to get the affiliation of WORLD TOURISM ORGANISATION (W T O), the world's highest tourism body
COURSE DURATION : THREE YEARS, FULL TIME COURSE
CLASS TIMINGS : 10 AM to 5 PM, 6 days a week
INDUSTRIAL TRAINING : 6 months compulsory industrial training in top 5 Star & Deluxe hotels in India & Nepal
PLACEMENT : The Institute till date has achieved a clean 100% placement record through Campus Interviews in top Indian and International hotels
REQUIRED MINIMUM QUALIFICATION : Passed or appeared in Class 12 level Examination from a recognised Board.
Age Limit : 22 years as on 01.07.1995.
ADMISSION PROCEDURE : Candidates have to appear for a Written Test on 13.5 95 to be held at different centres of India Candidates qualifying in the Written Test would be called for group discussion and personal interview at Calcutta at their own cost
COURSE COMMENCING FROM : July 1995 (8th Session)
PROSPECTUS : Can be collected from College or City Office on cash payment of Rs 250/- Outstation candidates have to send Rs. 270/- through M.O. only to Executive Director (Admission), IAM, AE-486, Salt Lake, Calcutta-700 064
INFORMATION : For further information and prospectus contact at

IAM
COLLEGE : IAM, AE-486, SALT LAKE CITY, CALCUTTA-700 064. (Kwality Bus Stop),
Phone· 37-7726, Fax: 74-8172.
CITY OFFICE : 37/1E, HAZRA ROAD, (2nd Floor) CALCUTTA-700 029, Phones· 475-9237 & 74-8132

TAKING INDIA AHEAD IN HOTEL MANAGEMENT

Join Quest's
Interactive
MULTIMEDIA
ANIMATION
2D-3D GRAPHICS
LAN/DTP/CAD
COMMERCIAL APPLICATIONS
Courses
- Highly Rated Faculty
- Placement Assistance
- 100% Practical Time
- Avail upto 40% in Scholarships

Contact
QUEST INSTITUTE OF ADVANCED COMPUTING
Suite- 2A 12A Camac St
Cal-17 Ph 242-1134

We take your international career as seriously as you do.

- International Airline
- Travel, Tourism and Hotel Management
- Airhostess & Flight Purser Course

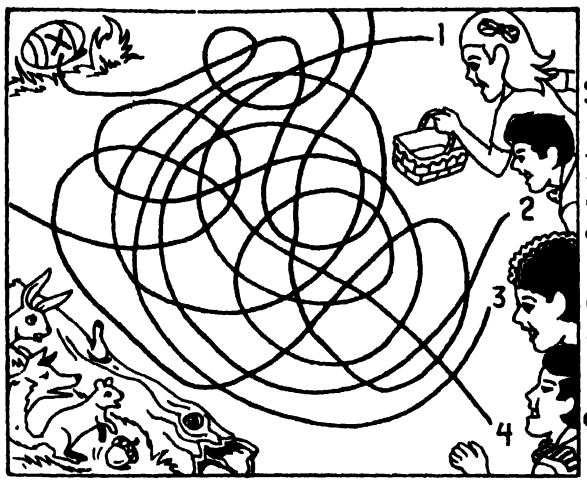
HAWAN
HOTEL INSTITUTE MONTREUX SWITZERLAND

Conducted by:-
INSTITUTE • OF • MANAGEMENT

Calcutta· 1, Crooked Lane, Room No 108, 1st floor, behind Great Eastern Hotel, Cal-69, Ph 243-0625/0415 Fax 91-33-2487825



Asansol: 1st floor Mritunjoy Bhawan 56/2, West Apcar Garden Asansol-713304 Ph 20-5701 / 2532

Also Centre Opening from April '95 at Garlahat: 1/1, Dover Lane, Calcutta — 700 019 Ph 440-6356

ADMISSION OPEN

JUNIOR WHIRL

HAL KAUFMAN

ON THE RUN! Who will be first to reach the hidden egg? Take a guess, then trace through lines to check answer

LEGGING IT! Bet someone that you can go out of the room with two legs and come back with six To win simply pick up a chair and carry it with you when you return to the room Or return with a cat or dog

PACK-IT-IN EXERCISE

YOU can be a leader of the PACK in this word square exercise Object is to find three words to be used in conjunction with letters in the word PACK so that all four words read the same both across and down

Definitions

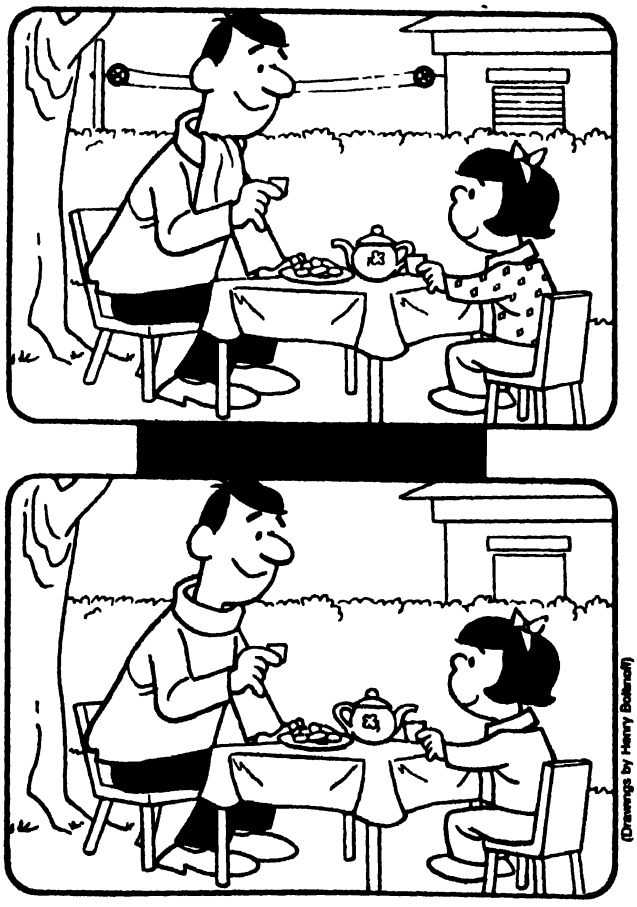
1 Fill that suitcase (PACK, in place)
2 Automobile part
3 A fingerprint, perhaps
4 Castle's inner tower

Time limit 1 minute

After you've finished, see if you can make up another PACK based word square There are numerous possible variations

1 Pack 2 Axle 3 Clue 4 Keep

FOUR OUT! Four numbers that complete the sequence from 1-16 are missing from the diagram below You are asked to insert these numbers so that amounts therein add up to 34 in all directions That is, horizontally, vertically, and diagonally



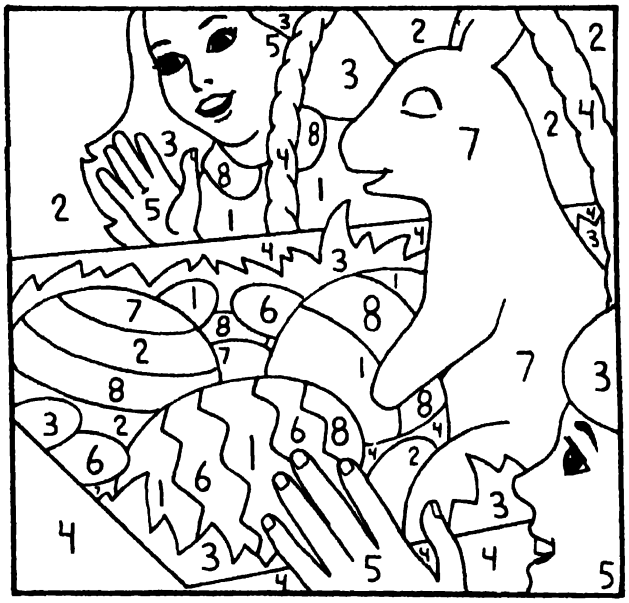
How quickly can you discover the four numbers and position them correctly in the blanks?

It may take some patience Remember, the total is 34

Top two answers 7 and 10 bottom two — 2 an 15

9	11	8	6
5			12
4			13
16	14	1	3

HOCUS-FOCUS



(Drawings by Henry Boltinoff)

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below

DIFFERENCES 1 Clothesline is missing 2 Chair is lower 3 Napkin is missing 4 Teapot is reversed 5 Blind is missing 6 Sweater design is missing

FUNSPOT

BUNNY STUFF! Well, what have we here —a bunny surprise! Add these colors by number 1—Red 2—Lt blue 3—Yellow 4—Lt brown 5—Flesh tones 6—Green 7—Dk brown 8—Purple

SPELLBINDER

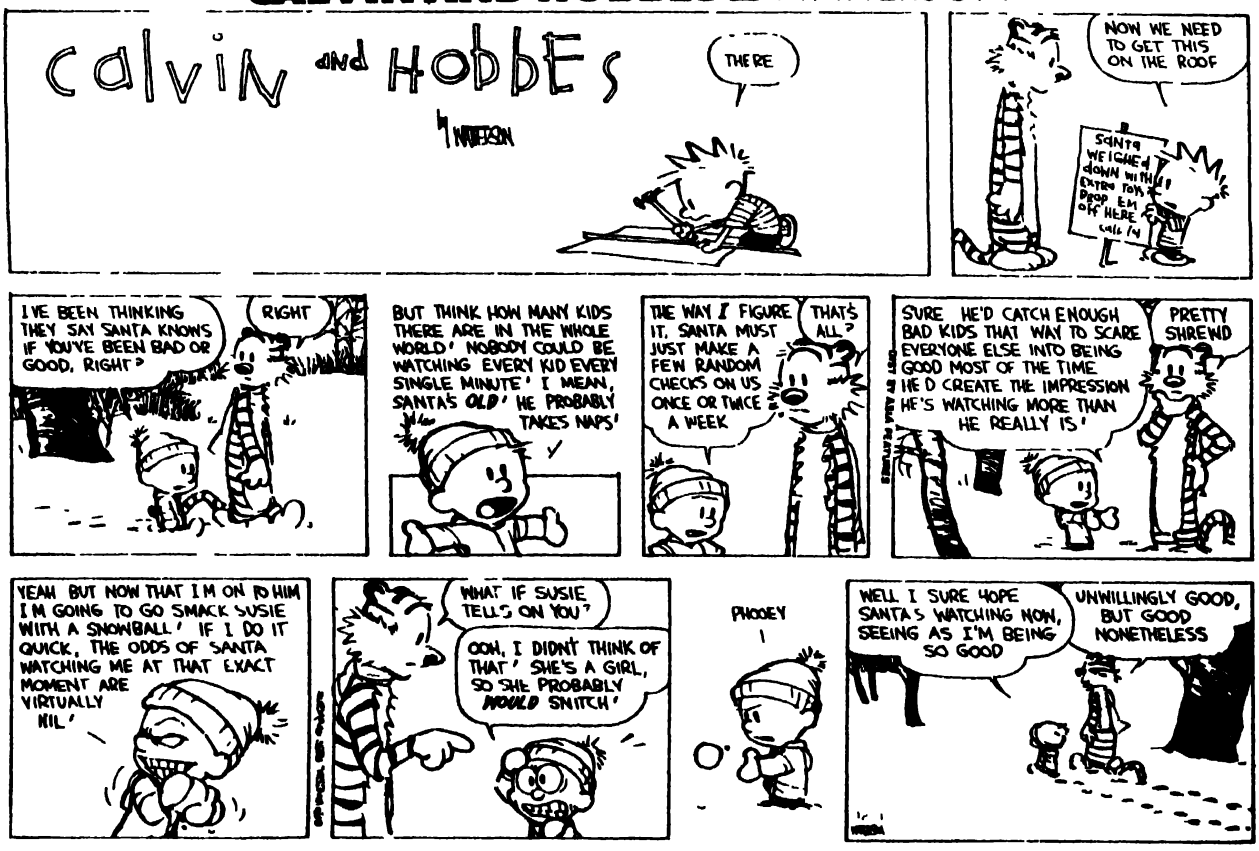
SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

SEARCHER

- - - - - - - - -

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

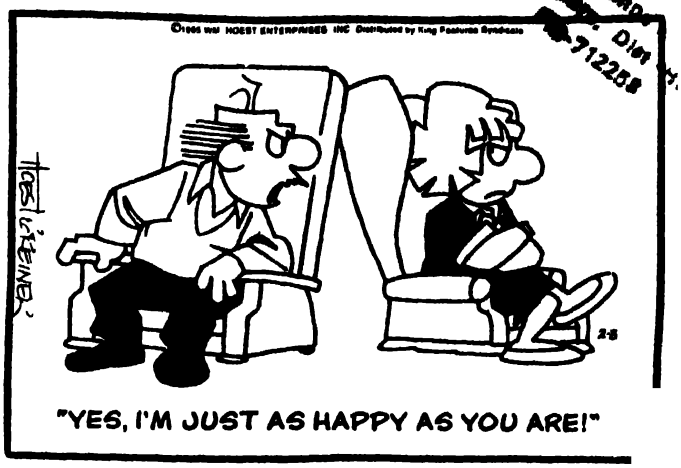
Try to score at least 50 points

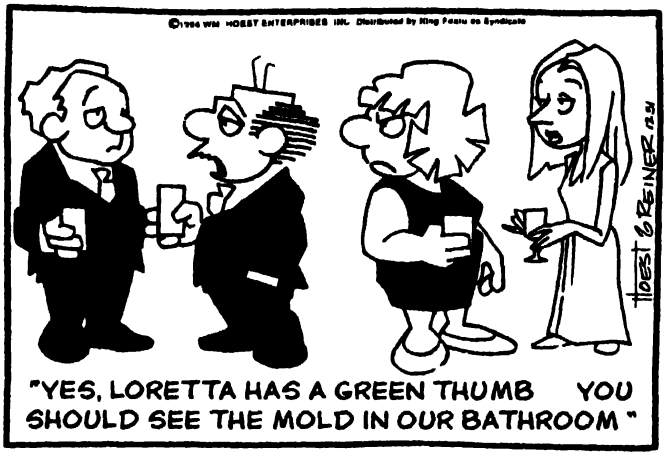


Possible twosome Arch seer

COMICS

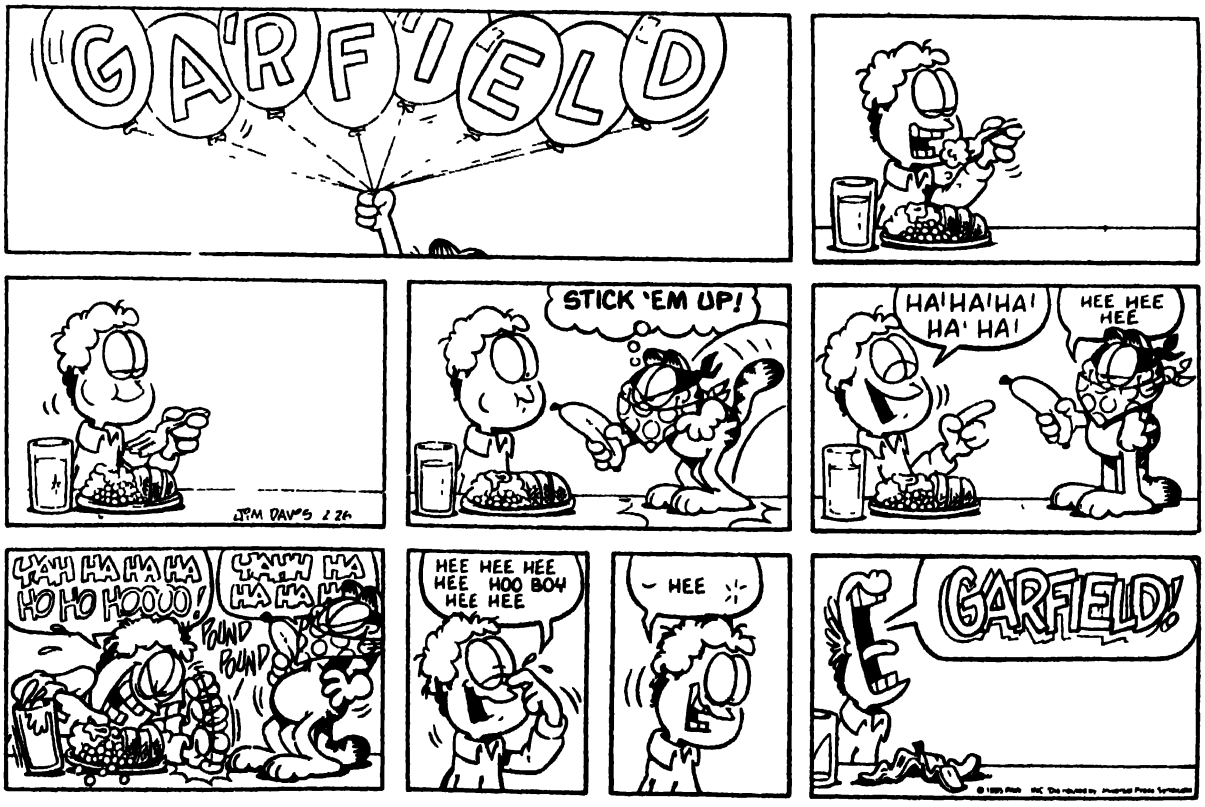
ARCHIE

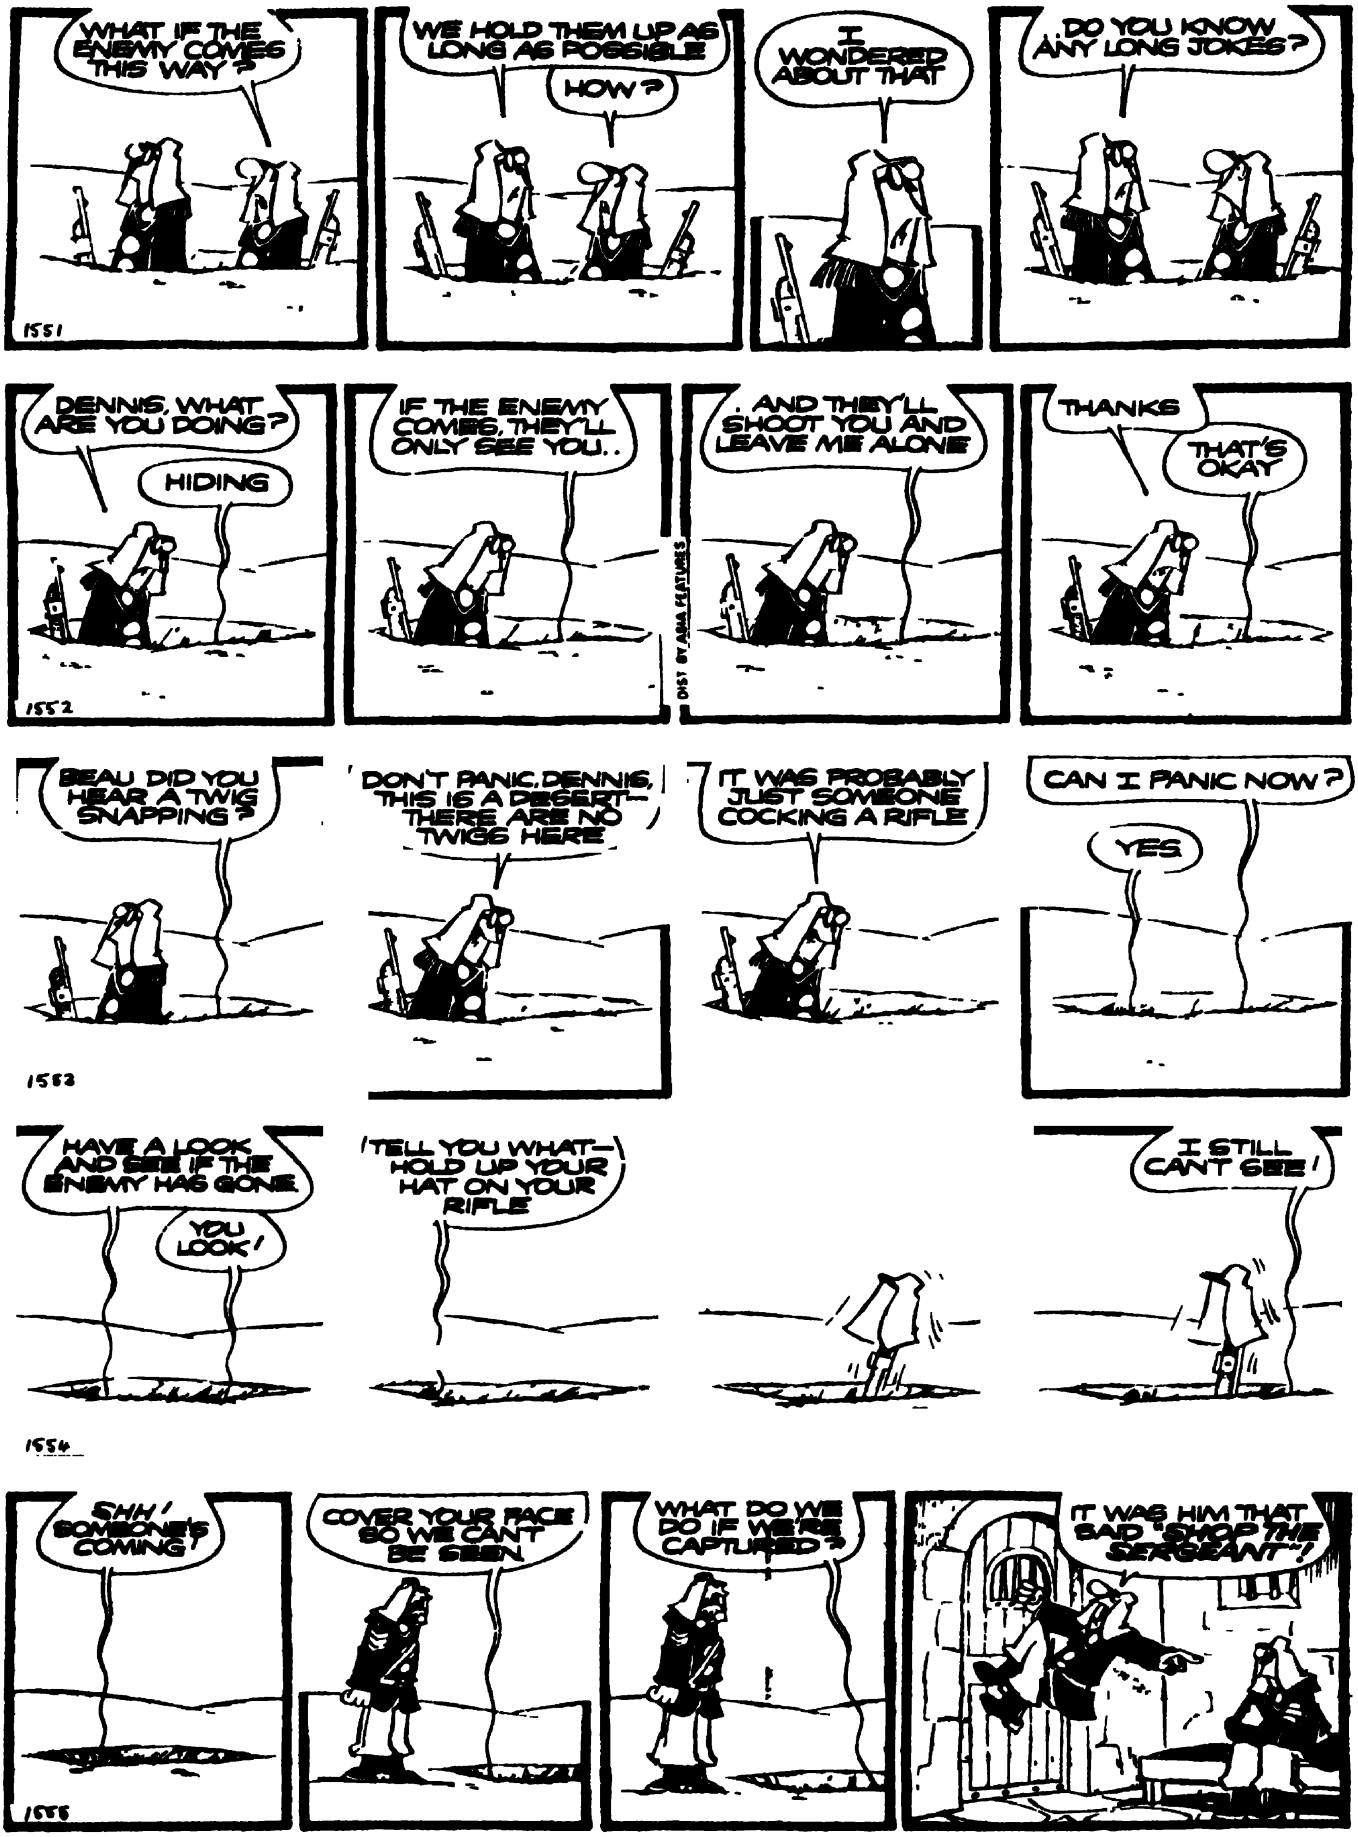


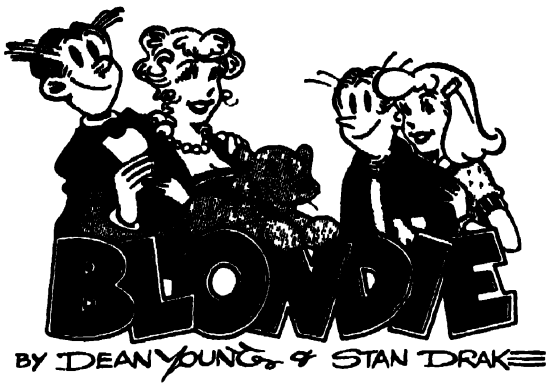


CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON

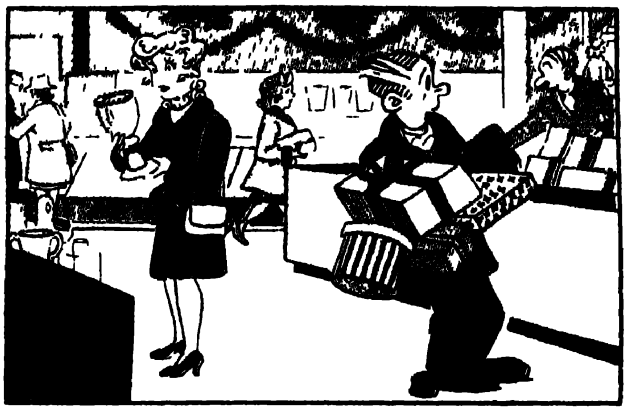
THE LOCKHORNS



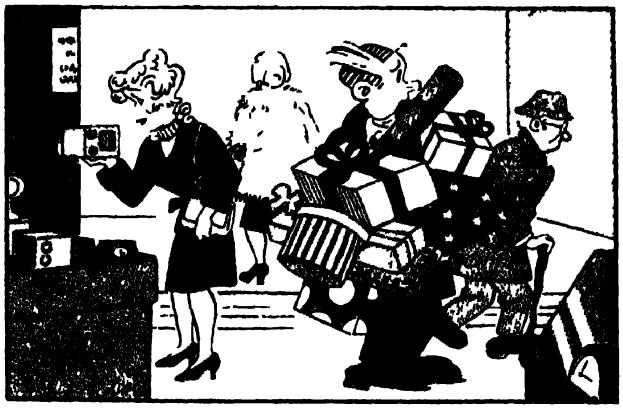


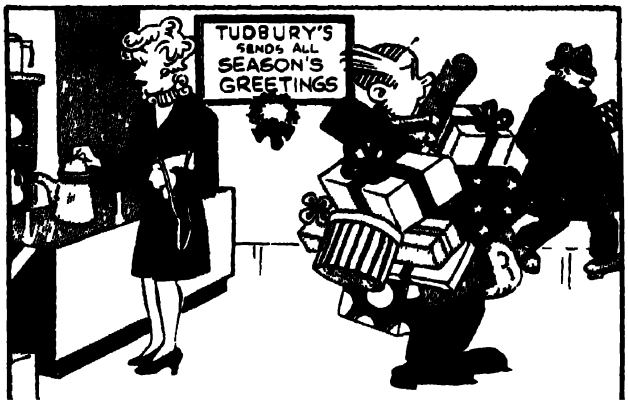


GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS

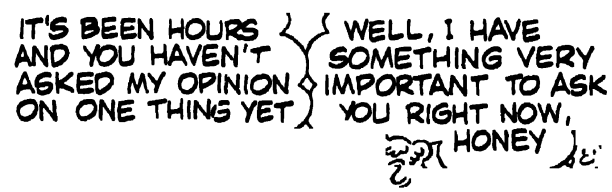


THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP

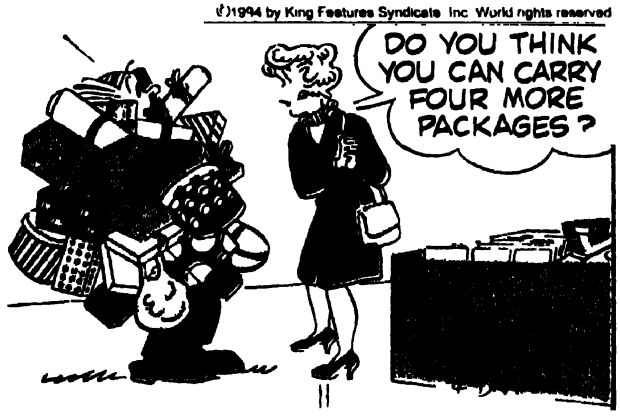




BLONDIE
BY DEAN YOUNG & STAN DRAKE



IT'S THAT TIME OF YEAR AGAIN
OH NO! YOU'RE TAKING ME CHRISTMAS SHOPPING!



I DON'T SEE WHY I HAVE TO GO CHRISTMAS SHOPPING WITH YOU!
BECAUSE I NEED YOUR OPINION ON SOME VERY IMPORTANT DECISIONS

TUDBURY'S SENDS ALL SEASON'S GREETINGS

IT'S BEEN HOURS AND YOU HAVEN'T ASKED MY OPINION ON ONE THING YET
WELL, I HAVE SOMETHING VERY IMPORTANT TO ASK YOU RIGHT NOW, HONEY

©1994 by King Features Syndicate Inc. World rights reserved
DO YOU THINK YOU CAN CARRY FOUR MORE PACKAGES?

RASOI

JIGGS KALRA

'Ingenuity' and 'innovation' are key words in the evolution of cuisine This is especially true of the food of the Subcontinent Here there are two kinds of cooks Those who live in the past — their mantra authentic and traditional And those who use the words in quotes as licence to distort the very basis of Indian cuisine There are masters, like Imtiaz Qureshi, who have created a number of wonderful delicacies including the prawn dish — this one for Dum Pukht at the Maurya Sheraton — below Rasoi has taken some liberties with the Dum Anaari Gone are some of the vegetables which we felt were detracting from the flavour of the 'foiled' treat and in comes a homemade tarragon vinegar

There are also youngsters like Raminder Malhotra — he runs a successful barbeque, Swaad, on Delhi's Shankar Road — who have no blinkers He worked with Team Rasoi on the chicken dish, which is a creation based on our interaction with Hakeem Satdar Nawab of Lucknow

JHEENGA DUM ANAARI

INGREDIENTS
4 Jumbo prawns
Cooking oil to grease tray

The Marination
30 ml / 2 tbs White wine (dry)
30 ml / 2 tbs Vinegar
15 g / 1 tbs Tarragon
30 ml / 2 tbs Lemon juice
5 g / 1 tsp Garlic paste (strained)
5 gms / 1 tsp Ginger paste (strained)
1 5 g / 1/2 tsp Red chilli powder
Salt

The Filling
60 g / 2 oz Pomegranate (fresh)

30 g / 1 oz Tomatoes
5 g / 1/2" piece Ginger
2 Green chillies
1 5 g / 1 1/2 tsp Coriander
15 ml / 1 tbs Lemon juice
15 ml / 1 tbs Cream
2 5 g / 1 tsp Shahi jeera
A few Dill leaves
Salt

Serves 4
Preparation time 1 20 hours
Cooking time 12-15 minutes

PREPARATION
The prawns With a sharp knife, carefully make a deep cut in the prawn (without removing the shell), spread like a butterfly, wash in running water to devein and pat dry
The marination Reserve the tarragon in a sealed bottle of vinegar for at least a week Then decant into a bowl, add the remaining ingredients, mix well, evenly rub the prawn meat with this marinade and

Jheenga Dum Anaari

reserve for an hour
The filling: Remove the eyes, wash tomatoes, quarter, remove the pulp and cut into tiny dices Scrape, wash and cut ginger into tiny dices Wash green chillies, slit, deseed, cut into fine juliennes, and discard the stems Clean, wash and finely chop coriander Put these and the remaining ingredients in a bowl and mix well Divide the filling into 4 equal portions
The stuffing: Spread a portion of the filling on each of the marinated prawns, wrap in individual pieces of foil and arrange on a greased roasting tray
The oven Pre-heat to 275° F

COOKING
Put the tray in the pre-heated oven and roast for 12-15 minutes Remove and keep aside

TO SERVE
Remove to a platter, unwrap at the table and serve as a platter

MURGH TANGRHI QORMA

Murgh Tangrhi Qorma

INGREDIENTS
12 Chicken Drumsticks
180 g / 3/4 cup Yoghurt cheese
60 g / 2 oz Fried onion paste
30 g / 1 oz Fried garlic paste
1 5 g / 1/2 tsp Red chilli powder
90 ml / 6 tbs Cream

The Marination
20 g / 3 1/2 tsp Garlic paste (strained)
20 g / 3 1/2 tsp Ginger paste (strained)
30 ml / 2 tbs White wine (dry)
30 ml / 2 tbs White vinegar
1 5 g / 1 tbs Marjoram (dried)
Salt

The Paste
30 g / 1 oz Almonds
20 g / 2/3 oz Poppy seeds

The Masala
10 g / 5 tsp Coriander seeds
5 pods Green cardamom
3 Cloves
2 sticks Cinnamon (1")
24 Black peppercorns
4 blades Mace
1/8 Nutmeg
1 5 g / 1 tbs Marjoram (dried)
12 dried Rose petals

Serves 4
Preparation time 1 30 hours
Cooking time 25 minutes

PREPARATION
The chicken Clean, wash and trim the drumsticks
The marination Reserve the marjoram in a sealed bottle of vinegar for at least a week Then decant into a bowl, add the remaining ingredients, mix well, evenly rub the drumsticks with this marinade and reserve for 20 minutes
The almond paste. Blanch almonds in boiling water for 2 minutes, cool and peel Soak poppy seeds in lukewarm water for 10 minutes Put both the ingredients in a blender, add 180 ml / 3/4 cup of water and make a smooth paste Remove and keep aside
The masala Put all the spices in a grinder and make a fine powder Sift and reserve
The qorma paste Mix yoghurt cheese, the fried onion and garlic pastes, the prepared paste, four-fifths of the masala, red chilli powder and salt Hold aloft the chicken drumsticks to drain the excess marinade, rub the drumsticks with this paste, arrange in a large handi/pan with a suitable gap between each drumstick and pour on the excess paste Then evenly spread the cream on top
The oven: Pre-heat to 300°F
COOKING
Put the handi/pan on the stove and cook over medium heat for 5 minutes, stir for a minute, cover, seal with atta/wholewheat dough, transfer to the pre-heated oven and cook on dum for 15 minutes

Remove, break the seal, remove the drumsticks and keep aside Return the gravy to heat, bring to a boil, reduce to low heat and simmer, stirring occasionally, until of sauce consistency Sprinkle the remaining masala and stir Remove and adjust the seasoning

TO SERVE
Arrange 3 drumsticks on each of 4 individual plates, pour on equal quantities of gravy and serve with accompaniments and a bread of your choice

NOTE All weights are nett, that is post-preparation, and not gross ■

LIFESTYLE

SAFETY IN NUMBERS

From using a popular face to a new one, from the sensational to the really steamy, the KS campaigners have been using harder sell than ever before Shameem Akhtar tries to get to the root of the controversy

From courtship to consummation From ennui to arousal, and finally, to ecstasy

Orgasmic words? But, yes For Jayant Bakshi these have become an everyday mantra After having been so long associated with the KamaSutra ads, he couples and interweaves his sentences with like words with unflappable equanimity

Interspersing these are the more staid and stock management phrases such as "the market pulse" and the "true value of brand signals" — phrases which he smoothly uses to explain the transition that the blue-tinted, oomph-full KS campaigns have undergone since their launch that provoked a lot of hoopla

The nation's conscience keepers beat their breasts over the provocative ads Well, and they are continuing to beat their breasts as the latest ad enters the realm of the truly risque with the relatively unknown model, Malavika Singh, turns on more heat than even her predecessors, Pooja Bedi and Anu Aggarwal

Why was Aggarwal whisked off the campaign? And why was she replaced by a rank newcomer at that? Did the young and small ad agency, Heartbeat, headed by Bakshi suddenly wise up to the fact

Malavika Singh: Coming on strong

Jayesh Sheth

THE BLUE TINT GIRL

The label has stuck. The KS girl is finding it difficult to shake off the 'sexy siren' tag that came along with the ad campaign.

Malavika Singh wouldn't mind shooting for a toothpaste for a change.

But everybody takes one look at her portfolio and keeps her aside for glamorous and sizzling products "Consumer products is where the moolah is," says this waif-like, dusky beauty, whose first major campaign was for the Kama-Sutra condoms

Nobody will believe that among the less known ones by her is the Max Pharma healthcare campaign where she actually played a mother, holding a wriggling, struggling babe in arms

On the KS ad itself, she says that it was among the most comfortable shoots in her short, but event-filled career. "Even the spot boys were hand-picked and acted like perfect gentlemen Whenever I had to change, they would move 25 kms away so that I was never made to feel uncomfortable," she recalls.

What also helped was her comfortable relationship with her ad partner Rahul Dev. "The modelling community in Delhi is a tight-knit group, so I was constantly bumping into Rahul during shoots Then we were paired together for many shoots. I suppose we two just looked great together Maybe, that is why we were paired for the KS, too

'The KS people also wanted a pair who were acquainted with each other so that there was no stiffness during the sessions,' she [Malavika] explains. The whole mood on the set was comfy, family-like

"The KS people also wanted a pair who were acquainted with each other so that there was no stiffness during the sessions," she explains. The whole mood on the set was comfy, family-like. Rasna Behl, Malavika's coordinator, hovered around protectively.

The Heartbeat agency headman's wife, Suman Bakshi, was also around. Mickey Contractor, the makeup wizard, knew Mallavika's bone structure well enough to inspire confidence.

Malavika also knew that the blue tint in the photographs would give her a modicum of protection from roadside Romeos. "Just imagine if these kids know that I am the KS girl — they will run after me making all sorts of catcalls," says the model, with a delicate shudder.

But, in a way, the tints have also hidden the actual potential of her face. Whenever people compare her colour portfolios with her KS shot they find it difficult to connect the two. Convincing her parents that the campaign was really harmless demanded the best in her arsenal of arguments.

But it worked All is hunky-dory with her parents again "When you are into modelling you have to wear all sorts of clothes on the ramp. So, why not for shoots, too? After all, it is all part of the profession," says this wise little girl who still cannot understand what the media hype over the ad is all about.

that known faces (even has-beens) cost a lot of moolah?

And why was the locale changed — from the sanitised beach of Mauritius to a somewhere-in-India site?

Bakshi waves off these questions and takes refuge behind the argument that the 'transition stage' of KS is a product allowed him to experiment with a new face, a new site and a new expression

If a Garden Vareli can create new models who shoot into the limelight and storm the ramp, why not KS try a similar stunt, too? Also, he explains, the product was new when Bedi was used to titillate consumer interest

"Condom was still associated with family planning when KS was launched, and we needed to get out of that association We needed a known face With Anu, too, the product was trying to beat that stereotype But now the product is seen not as a pregnancy-stopper, but as a pleasure-giver We can afford to use a newcomer In fact, a fresh face livens up the campaign and prevents it from becoming stale"

The combination of a known face and a known product would be a real no-go situation It would dull the impact "And," continues Bakshi relentlessly, with his reasoning that would make a prude blush, "we have also moved the campaign from the courtship stage to a true love-making experience

"When the launch campaign was planned, we had to keep in mind the Indian sexual ethos — that the woman was passive and the man, the selfish one

"From here we have had to move on Even marriages can get stale, no? So, we shifted focus from a relationship to a sensual, pleasure-giving experience"

And Bakshi has been satisfied with the response that the latest campaign

Rahul Dev on the ramp (with Pooja Batra)

'When the launch campaign was planned, we had to keep in mind the Indian sexual ethos — that the woman was passive and the man, the selfish one'

with Malavika Singh and Rahul Dev evoked At one end the moral-keepers continuedwith their ineffectual cacophony while the "market response continued to show that the campaign is a success" (Bakshi's words)

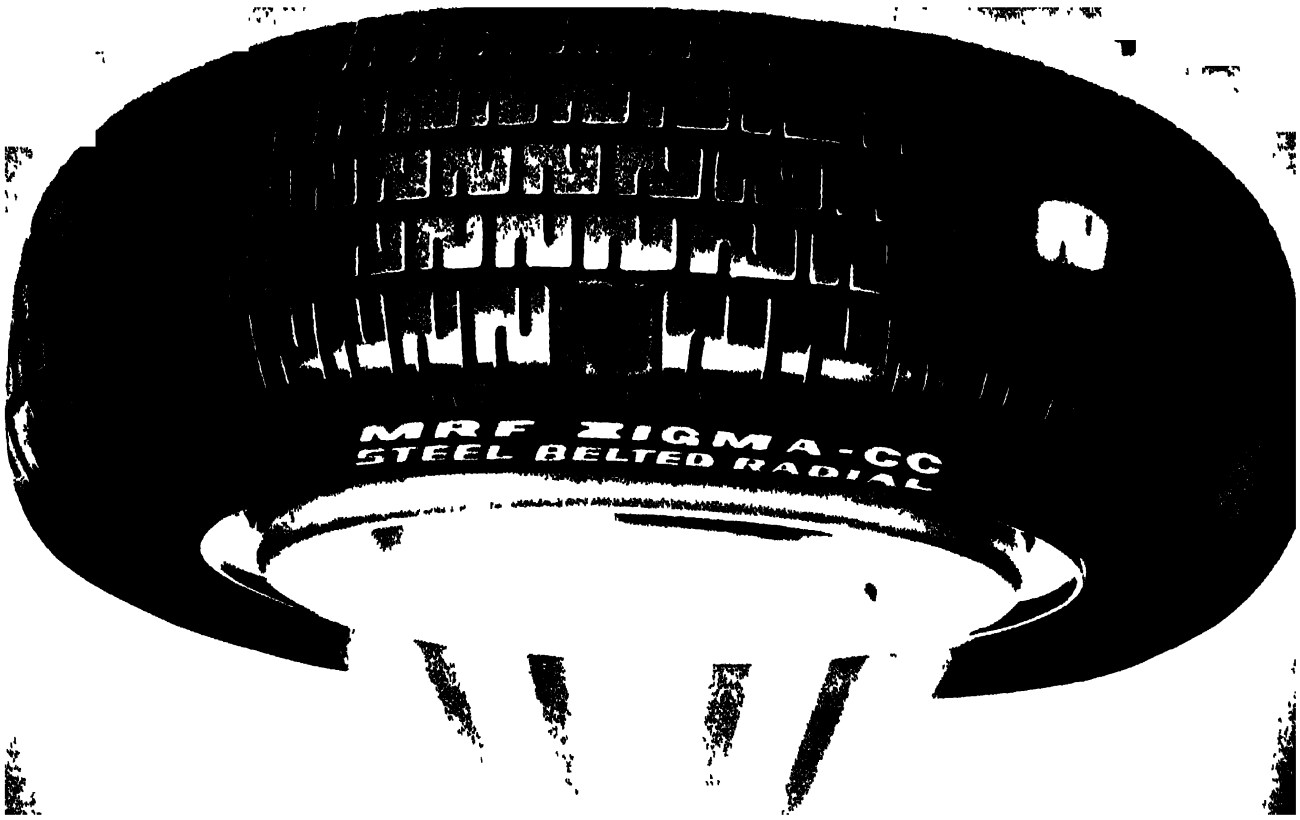
And people continue to "just ask for KS"

Anu Aggarwal loyalists will be happy to hear that the lady is not out o. the KS ad At least not yet, not the way the Channel [V] blinked her off the BPL Oye show "Anu will continue to be our contracted model She will continue on the packaging But our campaign girls will change," Bakshi promises the KS watchers

The basic concept will also remain unchanged as long as the 'market pulse' remains sturdy So will the brand signals — the blue tint, the red background, the KS symbol impersonated by squiggles which, Bakshi observes, have been equated with squirming spermatozoa(!) and, of course, the look of utter concentration on the faces of the lead models in the campaign

The KS account had changed hands a few times — though it started with Bakshi and ends with him now Initially, it was a Lintas team, under Bakshi which took on the campaign The second campaign was with Lintas, though with a different head And finally, it is with Heartbeat, with Bakshi in the lead again

"Initially, model Marc Robinson was photographed with both Pooja and Anu But you see (and never mind, if you don't), it was thought that it was unfair to Anu that the male model continued when the female lead changed So we switched to Rahul"



And now, if the male model changed, it is unfair to him if the female model remains the same So, there is Singh in Anu's shoes (or should we say, whatever they individually wore — or didn't) And so on And so forth

And though Bakshi is quite forthcoming about his models, when it comes to the new locale it is still all hush-hush He is only willing to disclose that it was not Sun City (the South African Mecca for new shoots since the Miss World contest) "For one, we thought that it was a real sin to fly to Mauritius for a shoot After all, all along India's coastline there are exquisite, clean beaches"

And with the emphasis in the latest campaign being on moisture and more moisture they could have settled for a pool, instead, no?

'Actually, one of our options was to try to shoot at the poolside But then we could not have ensured total privacy" So, a beach it had to be And ace photographer Atul Kasbekar outdid himself in re-focusing the campaign from the dryness of the previous shots to the moisture in the current one Or, didn't you notice?

After all the ballyhoo that the campaign raised, the pretty Singh has gone into hiding Or so Bakshi will have you believe But, he promises with the aplomb of a true maestro, there will be other KS girls to look forward to ■

MRF ZIGMA STEEL

THE SPACE AGE RADIAL

MRF ZIGMA STEEL The Space Age Radial The tyre with muscles Of steel And the rage of the Maruti owner Slide into the driver's seat Start the car Hit the road Race away And feel the strength of MRF Zigma Steel As it takes control like no tyre has ever done before Accelerate . You'll discover that taking off was never so smooth Manoeuvre The unique 'Z' old tread pattern unravels a new force in road-hugging Brake · Feel the broad tyre base hold the road in a tight grip Park · The tough, wide tyre base and the sensational raised lettering announce your arrival-in style! MRF ZIGMA STEEL It's an out-of-the-world driving experience

NOW ALSO AVAILABLE FOR YOUR MARUTI 1000cc

FOR SOME COMPANIES, IT IS A SIGN OF CELEBRATION. TO US, IT IS THE BEGINNING OF PHASE II.

For some companies, annual report time is the time to celebrate It is the time when you declare dividends, and announce the achievements of the past year

Colour-Chem, however, believes in a different occasion for celebration It is not just when we achieve goals set in the past, but when we identify new challenges for the future Because we are not a Company content to rest on our laurels

When Colour-Chem records a substantial increase in earnings from exports, it is satisfying And when our concerted efforts in indenting result in an increase in Company profits – it is gratifying

But it is projects that are still on the anvil that hold out the real promise at Colour-Chem Such as the manufacture of speciality chemicals and intermediates for local markets and exports to affiliates of Hoechst AG, Germany New business opportunities that will help Colour-Chem contribute to the country's economy by creating capacities and generating wealth through added value

These plans symbolise our commitment to the service of Indian industry And represent the new, emerging future They are the real cause for celebration in Colour-Chem

Colour-Chem

Subsidiary of Hoechst AG
194 Churchgate Reclamation, Bombay 400 020

Hoechst

HTA 2482 95

12 MARCH 1995

The Telegraph

POST MORTEM

Another Ace: Beauty

■ It has been boom time for Indian beauties ('Beauty Tall, Dark and Asian', February 12)

Of course, it would be wrong to say Sushmita Sen and Aishwarya Rai were the first two Indians to be recognised abroad in beauty pageants Reita Faria won the world beauty title in 1966

But the period 1992-94 saw the emergence of Indian beauties who could challenge Western looks, style and fashion Madhu Sapre laid the foundation with her Miss Universe III title in 1992

Her intelligence coupled with her very Western looks helped her to edge past her competitors

In 1993 Namrata Shirodkar came close to winning the title But it was Sushmita and Aishwarya, a year later, who made history with their Oriental charm and grace

Shome Mukherjee,
Calcutta

■ The story rightly talks about the changing concepts of beauty and the fact that a country's economic prosperity often becomes a deciding factor for winning international titles

Mehr Jesia: Boom time

■ Have things come to such a pass that our country has to be introduced to the world as Sushmita's or Aishwarya's India?

Rajib Chatterjee,
Asansol (W B)

More should have been said about Reita Faria, one of the shining examples of high achievers in international beauty contests

She was a third year medical student when she won her title in 1966 She went on to complete both her graduate and post-graduate medical degree courses and since then has been successfully practising as a child specialist in Dublin, Ireland

In fact, a couple of years ago, during a world medical congress, I met a renowned specialist from Dublin who spoke very highly of this former Miss World

What a unique combination of beauty and brain

Maitrayee Mitra,
Jamshedpur

■ Please do not print photographs of semi-nude beauties in the Magazine

You can launch another magazine, if you so desire, on fashion so that lovers of beauty are not deprived of their right to voyeurism

Utpal Ray,
Kalna (W B)

■ The concept of beauty cannot be defined by a few judges Beauty is not simply physical — what international models lay emphasis on

Can a set formula be applied to 'measure' beauty internationally? The desire of Indian girls to have oval faces or Chinese girls to have small feet are notions of beauty confined to particular regions

Manoj K. Jain,
Shyamnagar (W B)

INSIDE

Ranjit Lal

PAGE 10

ON THE occasion of his 75th birth anniversary, a look at the man, Sahir Ludhianvi, and his 'magical' poetry

PAGE 4

AN EXTRACT from the eminently readable book by Ramachandra Guha on the great Indian tradition of spin bowlers

Indian spinners

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
18 RUSKIN BOND
20 GILLIAN WRIGHT
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
26 FOCUS
28 RASOI
30 FIRST PERSON

Cover Anup Ray

EXTRACT

Taking TURNS

Jayanta Sett

Venkatraghavan
Possibly the greatest

Extracted from Spin and Other Turns Indian Cricket's Coming of Age by Ramachandra Guha, Penguin India; Rs 100

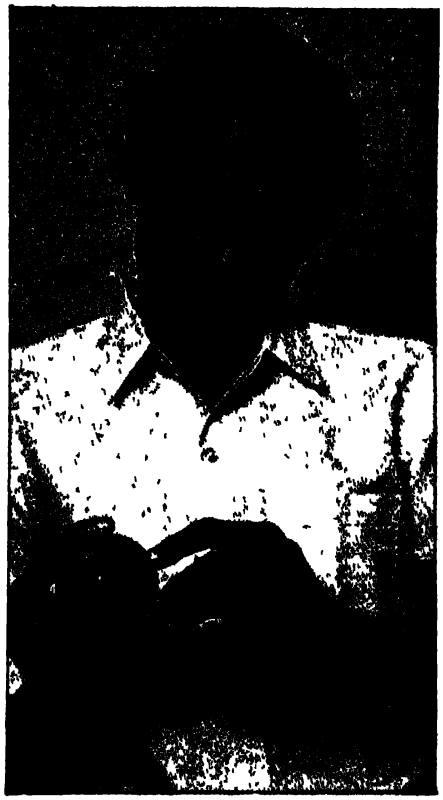
BY RAMACHANDRA GUHA

While they presented a sharp contrast to the pace-dominated attacks of other countries, in the context of Indian cricket the Holy Trinity were torchbearers of a long, almost unbroken line of artful slow bowlers Spin is truly the Great Tradition of Indian criket, a tradition astonishing in its depth, persistence and richness of individual variation

The Australian cricket writer Ray Robinson once joked that the googly should have been invented in India, for the very word rhymed with 'Hooghly', while the popular term for that delivery, 'bosie', might as well have commemorated Netaji Subhas Chandra Bose as it does B J T Bosanquet Writing in the Fifties, Robinson was perhaps the first to highlight the elective affinity between Indians and slow bowling, an affinity that has since been the subject of much speculation The England fast bowler Bob Willis, a contemporary of the Holy Trinity, believes that the subcontinent's hot climate helps foster the patience and philosophical detachment so crucial to the slow bowler For the scholar and cultural critic, T G Vaidyanathan, it is their proclivity towards the feminine that predisposes Indians in favour of spin, a quintessentially nonviolent form of attack And anthropologists of India, looking (as is their wont) for a caste-based explanation, have interpreted spin bowling as the expression on the cricket field of the craftiness of the Brahmin and the cunning of the Bania



The first great Indian spinner — Mahatma Gandhi excepted — was in fact an Untouchable, Palwankar Baloo Born in the town of Dharwad in 1875, as a boy Baloo moved up the Deccan to settle in Poona His first job was with the ground staff at the Poona Gymkhana, where the English members sometimes allowed him to bowl at the nets Baloo took as his model one Major Barton, a slow left-armer with a graceful, smooth action Another member of the Poona Gymkhana was the well-known Hampshire batsman, J G ('Jungly') Greig, who offered the ground boy eight annas for each time he got him out, an arrangement which must have maintained Baloo and his family for the eight months of the year when it was too hot or too wet to play cricket Word of his prowess got around, and a strong movement arose for his inclusion in the Hindu team for the annual Quadrangular, played in Bombay and at the time the premier cricket tournament in India (the other participating teams were the Muslims, the Parsis, and the Europeans) But his selection was at first resisted by the conservative members of the P J Hindu Gymkhana of Bombay, the club which selected the community's cricket team But class will out, and the Hindus did want to beat the Europeans and the Parsis, not to speak of the Muslims After a protracted controversy Baloo was finally picked, with the Gymkhana members who chose him risking expulsion from their own, high caste councils The slow bowler led the Hindu attack for years, leading them to some famous victories in the Quadrangular In time he was joined by his younger brothers Vithal, Shivram and Ganpat, all of whom played with distinction for the Hindus

Following his performances in the

Quadrangular, Baloo was chosen for the All India team that toured England in the summer of 1911 This side, captained by the Maharaja of Patiala, was in effect the first truly representative cricket team to leave Indian shores In England, the All India side lost over half its matches, but for Baloo the tour was 'one long success' In the opinion of a leading critic, E H D Sewell, most English counties would have been glad to have Baloo in their eleven Despite a persistent back strain, he took 114 wickets (at an average of 18 86 runs per wicket) on the tour and according to Sewell, "With better management and better fielding would perhaps have taken 150 wickets and might even have headed the first-class averages "

I recently came across the scorecards of that 1911 tour Three early matches were played against Oxford University at The Parks, the MCC at Lord's, and Cambridge University at Fenner's Lord's is of course the most famous of cricket grounds, while at the time of which I write Oxford and Cambridge were the great nurseries of English cricket, producing Test cricketers and Test captains by the bagful On these three great grounds, redolent with cricket history, came an Untouchable from Poona, who knew only two words of English ("How's that!") and who in terms of social background was as far removed from the High Table as one could possibly be But he could play cricket In these two-day, two-inning matches Baloo got to bowl only once, for throughout the summer All India's opponents rarely needed to bat a second time Against Oxford Baloo took 5 wickets for 87 runs, against the MCC he took 4 for 96 (his wickets including G N Foster and J Daniells, both county captains, as well as the England Test cricketer, J T Hearne), while at Cambridge he had the exceptional figures of 8 for 103 in a University score of 424 all out

Later in the tour All India played Staffordshire, where Baloo was pitted against Sydney (S F) Barnes, who is generally regarded as the greatest bowler in cricket history The scores tell their own story All India, 74 all out (Barnes' figures being 15/9/14/5) and 57 all out (Barnes, 12 3/6/15/9), lost to Staffordshire, 77 all out (Baloo's figures being 19 4/3/35/6) and 55 for 5 (Baloo, 13/1/23/2), by five wickets This is a story, of Indian bowlers being let down by Indian batsmen, that we have come to know all too well On behalf of the Holy Trinity, Bishen Bedi recalls begging his batsmen to get 200

Chandrasekhar Unmatched nip

to 225 runs — a total he reckoned would be enough for them to work with (the batsmen most infrequently obliged) Baloo's expectations were more modest still, for he apparently was satisfied with a hundred runs to his side's credit before he began to bowl Even these he would not get that summer of 1911

Baloo's presence on the tour was itself an extraordinary occurrence, for this was a time when the movement for the emancipation of Untouchables had scarcely begun That he was the first great Indian slow bowler is beyond dispute, but Palwankar Baloo also has claims to being the first Untouchable public figure Proof of his status, in his own community and in Indian society as a whole, is provided by his membership of the three-member committee of the Depressed Classes, which negotiated the famous Poona Pact with Mahatma Gandhi in September 1932 The other members of that delegation were M C Rajah, a leader of the Depressed Classes in the Madras Presidency, and, of course, Dr B R Ambedkar But where Rajah and Ambedkar had come to prominence on account of their social work for the community, Baloo could represent the Untouchables in the public arena solely on account of his record on the cricket field

Palwankar Baloo must indeed have been an exceptional cricketer The Parsi all-rounder, Dr M E. Pavri, who often batted against him, said Baloo "possessed both breaks, a curl in the air, and a lot of spin on the ball," adding that he was "the most deadly bowler on a sticky wicket" As with Bishen Bedi, there was a beguiling innocence about his bowling, at least when viewed from the boundary — thus a Calcutta writer wrote of a Baloo over that it contained "six deliveries — each a different menace — yet looking as harmless as the morning dew on a grass blade" Another Bengali critic's description of his methods reads almost like a compendium of the cardinal virtues of slow bowling Baloo, wrote H C Muckerjee in his book on the 1911 tour, was

A fine left-hand bowler, who possesses marvellous stamina Breaks from both sides Has the easiest of deliveries Seldom tires Can bowl all day long Keeps an excellent length Never sends down a loose delivery Understands the game thoroughly Paces the field to a nicety, catches come to [the fielders]), they have not to go in for them Decidedly a 'head' bowler

Baloo's last years as a player in the Bombay Quadrangular overlapped with the early career of R J Jamshedji, a Parsi from the other end of the social hierarchy who also bowled slow left-arm, and was the foremost spinner of his generation A little man who turned the ball a mile, Jamshedji was once told by the prince of slow bowlers, Wilfred Rhodes, that "if I had your power of spin, no side would get a hundred" (Jamshedji could well have answered "If I had your powers of flight, Wilfred, no side would get fifty") C K Nayudu, who played both against Rhodes and his great successor, Hedley Verity, regarded Jamshedji as the finest spin bowler he had batted against — high praise indeed His fellow Parsi, the well-known commentator A F S Talyarkhan, once described 'Jumsu' Jamshedji as a wizard who "made the ball twist and turn in the air" "It went round and round the seam as it came to you " Jumsu knew all the tricks of the trade — before a match he would obtain some rosin from a violinist friend, who used the substance on his bow This the spinner carried in his trouser pocket, dipping his left hand into it every few overs to get a better grip on the ball

In his History of Indian Cricket Mihir Bose has argued that if India has produced few good left-hand batsmen, the explanation lies in the subcontinen-tal custom of using the left hand to clear the trenches after bowel movement This puzzled me, for if this taboo did indeed spill over to the cricket field it would also affect the supply of left-arm bowlers, who use the offending hand rather more directly But Baloo and Jamshedji both emerged in violation of this history So have the fine slow left-arm bowlers who have followed in their wake Vinoo Mankad, Bapu Nadkarni, Salim Durrani, Ravi Shastri, Dilip Doshi, Maninder Singh and, above all, Bishen Singh Bedi

When I pointed this out in a review I wrote of Mr Bose's book, a correspondent insisted that the great Indian tradition of slow left-arm bowling could in fact be an indirect confirmation of the casual connection between a culture's pottying techniques and its preferences on the playing field The taboo, he remarked, could plausibly apply only to batting — i e one could not hold the bat the other way round When it came to the act of bowling, Indian cricket coaches would instead wish to encourage wronghandedness — for a projectile hurled with the left hand carried with it the danger and devilry associated with all polluting activities Let us not forget that the adjective 'sinister' (which must surely have come to mind as batsmen prepared to face Baloo or Jamshedji, Bedi or Mankad) is derived from the Greek for 'left-handed'

I leave that one for Mr Bose to work out At any rate, no Indian is known to have carried the obligatory lota of water in his left hand, to pour water in the right It is thus hardly surprising that in the generation after Baloo and Jamshedji, the leading Indian slow bowlers were all right-arm wrist spinners They included C S Nayudu and Amir Elahi, who also first made their mark in the Bombay inter-community tournament (which while they played had, with the inclusion of The Rest, been named the Pentangular), and Sadashiv Shinde and Chandu Sarwate, both of whom toured England with the Nawab of Pataudi's Indian side of 1946 Among the googly bowlers who played for India in subsequent decades were Chandu Borde (better known for his batsmanship), V V Kumar (a hopeless batsman and field, but a marvellous bowler), and preeminently, Subhas Gupte More recently, cricket lovers have followed the rapid rise and decline of L Sivaramakrishnan and Narendra Hirwani, and the emergence of the bespectacled Anil

Prasanna Guile personified

Kumble, who despite an apparent inability to spin the ball promises to be around a while longer

Compared to slow left-arm and wrist spin, the third great slow bowling variation — off-spin — took more time to root itself in Indian soil India's first Test captain, C K Navudu, while primarily a batsman of legendary six-hitting prowess, was a capable off-break bowler, usually operating (as W G Grace did before him and Sonny Ramadhin and the Australian Greg Matthews have done since) with his cap on However, the first full-time practitioner of the art to be capped for India was the Hyderabad maestro, Ghulam Ahmed A contemporary whom Ghulam usually kept out of the Test side was Jasu Patel, an off-spinner with a cleverly concealed but in the opinion of some, unfairly delivered leg-break Jasu, who died not long ago in his native Ahmedabad, disappeared from the cricket field shortly after spinning India to a famous victory against Australia in December 1959 at Kanpur At this time cricket captains of India could also call upon the very considerable bowling talents of Polly Umrigar and A G Kripal Singh, both batsmen-off-spinners in the tradition of C K Nayudu Then in the Nineteen Sixties Prasanna and Venkatraghavan came along, to carry off-break bowling to unprecedented heights Perhaps the best of the off-spinners since have been Shivlal Yadav — a flight-minded bowler in the mould of Prasanna — and his Hyderabad colleague Arshad Ayub, like Venkat flatter through the air and devastating on a crumbling wicket

This is an impressive roster of spin-bowlers, unmatched in the history of any other cricket-playing nation There is the odd Brahmin and the odd Bania here, but outstanding slow bowlers have in fact come from virtually all castes and communities If an Untouchable and a Parsi were its founding figures, the tradition has since been carried on by representatives of farming/pastoral castes (the Nayudus, Shinde, Patel and Yadav), Muslims (Elahi, Ghulam, Durrani, Ayub), Sikhs (Bedi, Maninder), and even a Christian (Borde) Here lies conclusive proof that spin bowling is, in the strict anthropological sense of being present everywhere and among all social groups, truly the Great Tradition of Indian cricket

It is tempting to regard the Holy Trinity as the glorious culmination of this long and uniquely Indian tradition But in the opinion of knowledgeable critics — or at any rate, of some knowledgeable critics above fifty-five — the tradition had peaked a decade earlier To my Trinity they counterpose one of their own "Mankad and the perilous art of his bowling bent to the assessment of batsmen, Ghulam Ahmed, tall and billowy as he moved to the bowling crease, an artist of effortless action and endless capacity for work, and the bantam-cock efficiency of Gupte, bustling with vagaries of the ball spun out of the edge of the right hand "

These words are taken from an essay published almost 40 years ago in the journal, Sport and Pastime — an essay, written by a Patna lad, that must rank as the first considered assessment of this Great Tradition of Indian cricket Starting with the early pioneers, Baloo and Jamshedji, the writer (Sujit Mukherjee) ended with an effervescent tribute to his Holy Trinity of slow bowlers There was Ghulam Ahmed the off spinner, "flowing effortlessly to the wicket with that delightful little hop prior to delivery, the arm coming over classically straight with palm and fingers cutting across the face of the ball" Then there was Vinoo Mankad, his left arm "an inexhaustible storage battery" that had "electrified batsmen to swift and unexpected demise all over the world " Where Ghulam had a long, graceful and rhythmic run-up to the wicket, Mankad preferred a short three-step approach, "soundless and unstriving" With this he bowled sharp turning leg-breaks, interspersed with an arm ball which drifted in "as unannounced as the breeze which springs up at midnight," or a faster ball which "scuttled from the pitch like a worried rabbit " Finally, there was the diminutive Subhas Gupte, only five feet four inches tall, "with his brisk six-yard run to the wicket and the vicious wrist-action that provoked some turn out of the most unresponsive of wickets"

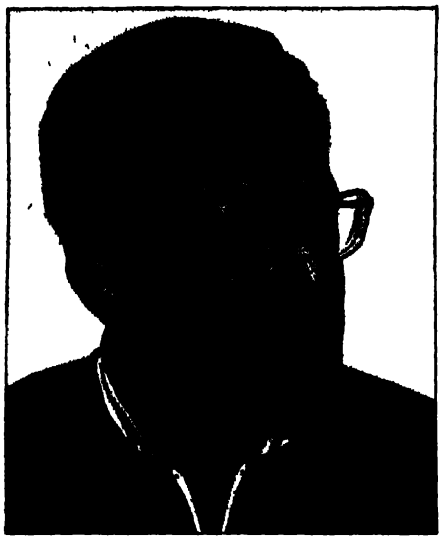
Even one who is too young to have watched them will recognise that Vinoo Mankad, slow left-arm, Ghulam Ahmed right-arm off-spin, and Subhas Gupte, right-arm leg-break googly, must have all been truly great bowlers Indeed, in purely statistical terms their record is not noticeably inferior to those who followed in their wake, whether reckoned in terms of runs per wicket or wickets per Test Thus Mankad had 162 wickets in 44 Tests (at an average of 32 32 runs per wicket) to Bedi's 266 in 67 (average 28 71) — Vinoo also scored more than 2,000 runs, with five Test hundreds, Ghulam Ahmed took 68 wickets in 22 Tests (average 30 17) to Prasanna's 189 in 49 (average 30 38), while Gupte collected 149 wickets in 36 Tests (average 29 55) to Chandrasekhar's 242 in 58 (average 29 74) And yet — speaking at least for my generation —in our imagination Mankad, Ghulam and Gupte do not quite constitute a Trinity in the manner in which Bedi, Prasanna and Chandrasekhar did

Perhaps this is only because India won Test matches rather less frequently in their time For one thing, Mankad, Ghulam and Gupte were more widely separated in age among themselves, and thus did not so often appear together for India Vinoo (born on 12/4/1917) was fully twelve-and-a-half years older than Gupte (11/12/1929) and five years older than Ghulam (4/7/1922) By contrast, Prasanna (date of birth 22/5/1940) was but six years older than the youngest member of his Trinity, Bedi (25/9/1946), with Chandresekhar who was in-between, being a year and a bit older than the Sardar (born on 18/5/1945) These respective age differentials, as much as the rather less crowded Test schedule of their time, explain why the first Trinity played but eight Tests together for India, whereas the second Trinity played as many as twenty-four

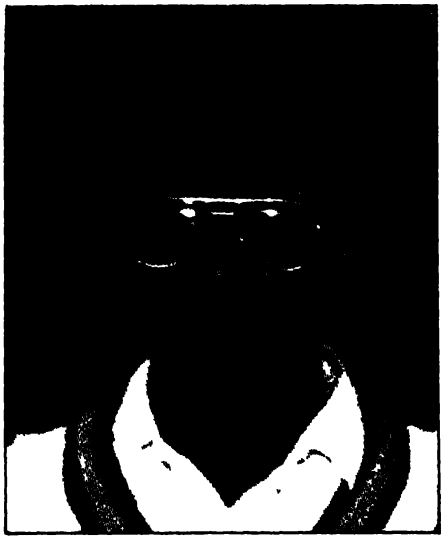
Then again, Mankad and company had nothing like the support in the field enjoyed by my Holy Trinity The England all-rounder, Tony Greig, once observed that with Eknath Solkar at short leg, the Indian side had in effect four strike bowlers As a fielder Solkar was out of this world, but the side of the Seventies could call upon, in addition, the skills of Wadekar at slip, Venkat at gully, and Abid Ali at leg slip — all marvellous catchers of the cricket ball Contrast this with the Indian teams in which Mankad, Ghulam and Gupte played, when (or so I was told by an old Test cricketer) you "were considered a good fielder if you caught a ball hit straight at you, waist-high, quite out of the question was the making of a catch by diving in front or leaping to the left or right "

For all this, were two men, aged 65 and 35, respectively, to sit down and choose an all time Indian Eleven, most contentious of all would be the three places reserved for spin bowlers Would it be Mankad or Bedi, Ghulam or Prasanna, Gupte or Chandrasekhar? When I put this question to the former Mysore, Services and India off-spinner, V M Muddiah, he refused to choose But I was able to persuade him

Bedi and Shastri: Devastating, if left to themselves



Utpal Sarkar



to discuss, one by one, the techniques of these three great pairs of spinners To this most glorious of comparisons Muddiah brought an impressive range of knowledge and experience He had played most of his cricket with or against the first Trinity, and in retirement had closely observed the second What more, as a retired officer of the Indian Air Force, he knew all about flight and turn

When I caught Muddiah on the phone, after weeks of trying, he told me he would give me, at best half-an hour But as we talked the half hour stretched to one, then to two full hours — the most enthralling cricket conversation I have had

We started with Mankad and Bedi, two left-arm slow bowlers with most dissimilar actions Bedi had of course

Doshi Was there

Kumble Still there

a classically high action, hand almost touching the ear, while Vinoo bowled slightly round arm, drifting the ball into the right-hander rather than looping it up With his action Bedi bowled the armer with no apparent change in pace or trajectory, whereas Mankad's arm ball was faster and flatter through the air — easier for the class batsman to spot and keep out, but most devastating to the rest Bedi had the greater deviation and sharper turn, said Muddiah, and Mankad slightly better control The Sardar was a poor fielder to his own bowling, both because of his bulk and his habit of running diagonally to bowl, between the umpire and the stumps Vinoo, who was a natural athlete, had a straight run-up and thus a fuller and more balanced follow through He darted about so quickly on delivering the ball, that at times he could even dispense with an orthodox mid-on and mid-off

An earlier conversation had brought out Muddiah's deep admiration for Ghulam Ahmed, whom he had then called "the greatest bowler in the world", only incidentally because he had kept the air force officer out of the Indian team for 10 years But as a native of Bangalore, and a connoisseur of flight, Muddiah also had a lot of time for Erapalli Prasanna In the air, he now remarked, Prasanna could outwit anybody, dragging the ball back in the flight almost 12 to 18 inches short of where the batsman expected it to pitch Ghulam, who was a taller man and bowled more side-on with a quick arm action, had nothing like the same loop But he had perhaps more variation, a better concealed straighter ball and leg-cutter Where the Karnataka man, owing to his marvellous control of flight, could get wickets on the best behaved pitches, Ghulam combined the roles of container and destroyer, and was devastating on a turning track

We came finally to the two wrist spinners At his pace and with his unique action, Chandrasekhar bowled the odd loose ball, whereas Subhas Gupte was tremendously accurate for one of his tribe, having in effect the control of a finger spinner Subhas really tweaked the ball, yet had great command over flight When his great contemporary, Richie Benaud, bowled his top-spinner, it was a rather obvious telegraph signal, to be immediately distinguished by the batsman as being much quicker through the air, whereas Gupte bowled this ball with the same flight and pace as his stock leg-break Chandra commanded less turn than Subhas, but had far greater nip off the wicket He was also more tough — Gupte could not take a thrashing, and got easily frustrated when he didn't get any wickets This was against the top order, but Subhas could dispose of tailenders with amazing swiftness, unlike Chandra, who often overwhelmed the class batsmen only to be held up by nine, ten and jack

As Muddiah talked I could picture, in my mind's eye, Mankad come in with his round arm action, and pick up a caught-and-bowled low on his follow-through, Ghulam, "tall and billowy", bowl an off-break that went 'srrr' through the air, and on pitching turned many a mile to end up in short leg's hands off the inside edge, and the whimsical Subhas, with his angular approach and side-on action, send up a gorgeous googly that curved away late in the flight, but came back after pitching to bowl the batsman through the gate Through a long afternoon Muddiah had played Sanjaya to my Dhritarashtra, helping me see our gods through his eyes

There is an uncomfortable caveat I have been dodging all this while, but I can dodge it no longer Was 'my' trinity actually a quartet? The Sardar of Spin, its most vocal member, certainly thought so When queried by an interviewer about his "effortless action", Bedi answered "The basis of the fluent action was the movement of the hip, shoulder and pivot But I would rather talk of the four Indian spinners of my time collectively Technical correctness was our biggest asset, our side-on bowling action, the delivery stride and follow through were all rhythmical We were proud of this and were collectively thrilled when any of us got wickets Each was different from the other and there was no hint of arrogance among us "

By contrast, I have in this study followed those two wise men, Trevor Bailey and Fred Trueman, who called Bedi, Prasanna and Chandrasekhar the 'Three Musketeers' of Indian spin, in terms of sheer quality to be distinguished from the man the Sardar, and some other commentators, consider to be the fourth member of what might instead be considered a quartet I follow Bailey and Trueman in the belief that the man we have left out was a superior batsman and fielder, but not quite in the same league as a spinner But let us now honour that great slow bowler and most selfless cricketer, S Venkatraghavan mind in a healthy body) He was tall and handsome, with a brilliant academic record — little wonder that the popular press in Madras had married him off to the dancer and actress Hema Malini (also a Tamil Iyengar) without the two having met Or so, I was told by my two closest friends in college, who were Tamils from the Madras localities of Kilpauk and Gopalpuram, respectively Both worshipped Venkat, their adoration made more complete when, on a winter holiday down South, one of them had been told by an uncle that Venkat held the season ticket next to his at the Music Academy's annual concerts This was a man who had obtained a first-class-first engineering degree from MIT (the Madras not the Massachusettes Institute of Technology), this was a man who won Test matches for India, and this was a man who found time to keep time at a concert by Semmangudi Srinivasa Iyer I understood their sentiments, but as a Tamil domiciled in Karnataka and, more importantly, as an off-spinner myself I could not bring myself to agree that Venkat should be chosen for the next Test match ahead of Erapalli Prasanna

Of all Indian cricketers Venkat perhaps best fulfilled the classical ideal of Men's Sana in Corpore Sano (a healthy

That disagreement aside, I remained a great admirer of Venkat's bowling In fact, there was no reason - except the presence of Bedi and Chandrasekhar, and that there are only 11 places in a cricket team — why the two off-spinners could not have played more often together for India, as they did for so many years for the South Zone in the Duleep Trophy Venkat's greater height made him a quite different bowler from Prasanna He was much quicker through the air, with less appparent variation in flight He was a less spectacular but, in some respects, a more subtle bowler To the batsman, wrote the critic and commentator, Rajan Bala, Venkatraghavan was like a dentist, "poking, pushing, hedging, provoking" as if getting him out was like "the extraction of a stubborn tooth" I best appreciated this particular quality one afternoon at the Karnail Singh Stadium in New Delhi, that most desolate and unattractive of cricket grounds In a Ranji Trophy quarter-final, Tamil Nadu had conceded the first innings lead to the Railways and with time running out, needed to win outright Venkat declared on the morning of the last day, setting the home side a bare 220 to win With the support of the veteran leg-spinner Vaman Kumar, Venkat started prising out the batsmen one by one On a wearing wicket he varied his angle of delivery by now going over the wicket, now round the wicket (He was in fact a supremely effective bowler from round the wicket, a skill so sorely lacking in our presentday off-spinners) He got six wickets, and Tamil Nadu won

Vinoo Mankad All-rounder, actually

Venkat's most frequent wicket-taking ball, at least on a good pitch, was his cleverly concealed straighter one This either trapped the batsman leg-before-wicket or, if it landed on the seam, moved away off the pitch to take an edge to slip I can recall my teammate Kirti Azad travelling to Madras to make his Ranji Trophy debut for Delhi against Tamil Nadu Kirti is now a politician, currently serving in the Delhi Assembly as the Honourable Member from the Gole Market, but even as a lad he talked big Now he had visions of doing to Venkat what he liked to do to the college off-spinner (the present writer) in the nets When Kirti came out to bat at Chepauk, Venkat was bowling The maestro, who had done his homework, served up a short one, which was easily hit away to square leg for four A similar ball came along the next over, but as the batsman made to pull, it fairly fizzed off the pitch, to make a mess of the off and middle stumps When Kirti came back to St Stephen's I consoled him with the thought that far greater batsman had fallen to that particular ball — not least G R Viswanath, whom Venkat repeatedly had lbw or bowled in matches between Karnataka and Tamil Nadu

In Indian cricket's coming of age Venkat had something more than a walk-on part When India beat the West Indies for the first time, at Port of Spain in March 1971, he had figures of 5 for 95 in the second innings While Chandrasekhar claimed 6 for 38 to win the Oval Test against England, four months later, it was actually Venkat who sent back the two best English players of spin, both classic off-spinner's dismissals First Basil D'Oliveira tried to hit him over the top, but was deceived in the flight and fell to a fine running catch by the substitute K Jayantilal at mid-on Then Alan Knott got one that turned and lifted, and was brilliantly picked up by Solkar at short leg In between, Venkat had himself caught a blinder at slip to get rid of the obdurate Brian Luckurst

On his showing in 1971 Venkat was given a contract with Derbyshire in the English County Championship It was an offer he could not refuse, but he was to pay dearly for it Playing six and sometimes seven days in the week, Venkat drastically reworked his action, adopting less of a follow through to conserve energy through the summer Sadly, he was never quite the same bowler again

There is a goodly sized volume waiting to be written on the history of Indian spin This book would of course have chapters on the pioneers, Baloo and Jamshedji, on the two triumvirates and on Venkat, on spinners with extraordinary Ranji Trophy records who never quite made it in Test cricket — such as C S Nayudu Amir Elahi and C S Sarwate, on the great batsman-bowlers — Polly Umrigar, Chandu Borde, Salim Durrani and Bapu Nadkarni, on those the Holy Trinity (or Quartet) kept out — Padmaker Shivalkar, Rajinder Goel, C G Joshi and Uday Joshi - - and on those who followed in their wake — Dilip Doshi, Shivlal Yadav, Arshad Ayub, Ravi Shastri and Maninder Singh, and finally, a chapter on the One-Test wonders — Jasu Patel, Laxman Sivaramakrishnan and Narendra Hirwani

This is a task worthy of a cricket historian with more skill and more diligence than this one But having supplied a chapter outline, I might as well supply a title too The book shall be called The Slow Men of India, with a foreward by the slowest of them all, Prime Minister, P V Narasimha Rao ■

COVER STORY

TIMELESS

Sahir Ludhianvi's 75th birth anniversary was on March 8 An assessment of his poetry, that lives on, by B.P. Berry

Sahir 'The Magician'

IT WAS IN THE LATE THIRTIES WHEN A TEENAged undergraduate of Government College, Ludhiana, started to express his inner agony in Urdu verse. Not in his wildest dreams could he have imagined that immortality would soon be writing odes to his verse.

In early 1940, his poems appeared in the book, Talkhian (Bitter Experiences). The couplet on the fly-leaf itself explains his point of view: Duniya ne tajurbaton hawadas ki shakl mein/Jo kuchh mujhe diya hai woh lauta raha hoon main (What the world has given me by way of experiences/I give back in like vein).

Overnight, the author had Peshawar to Kanyakumari under his magic spell [Sahir = magician]. It was a new experience for the connoisseurs and critics of literature.

The son of a zamindar, Abdul Hayee was born on March 8, 1921. As all zamindars of that time, his father's autocratic ways forced his mother to separate. Her son went along with her.

Soon after this, Abdul Hayee discarded his name and picked up the nom de plume, Sahir Ludhianvi. It was a name that cast its spell on both Hindi and Urdu literature for all time to come.

Talkhian contains some of the classic touches of Sahir's poetry, focusing essentially on his intense desire to highlight the devastating anguish of the poverty-stricken masses and the soul-stirring pain of women, specially the 'fallen'.

If on one side his poem on the Taj Mahal demolishes the centuries-old awe of one of the seven wonders of the world, on the other Chaklay takes us to the flesh trade streets and the obnoxious nature of man.

Even after half a century or more, these verses, written at a tender age, remain timeless, unmatched in intensity and expression. There is also no other example in any literature on the Bengal famine of 1944 as in Sahir's Kehte Bangal.

It appears that the poet continued to give vent to his piercing perception of the cynical world around him He had abundantly made clear his attitude when he said: Mere sarkash taranon ki haqeeqat hai to itni hai/Ke jab main dekhta hoon bhookh ke maare kisanon ko/Garibon, muflison ko, bekason ko, besaharon ko/Siskati naazninon ko tadaphte naujawano ko/Hakumat ke tashdad ko, amaarat ke takbar ko/Kisi ke chithdon ko aur shahenshahi khazanon ko/To dil taabe nashate bazmen ashrat la nahin sakta/Main chahoon bhi to khawbaawar tarane gaa nahin sakta

If he talked about love, it was that of the ordinary man And his idea of misery, too, in human life was a reflection of the misery which besets the common man Thus he wrote Ek shahenshah ne daulat ka sahara le kar/Hum garibon ki mohabbat ka udaya hai mazaak

Or, when he exhorts the oppressed to rise above himself Ponchh kar ashk apni aakhon se/Muskurao to koi baat bane/Sar jhukane se kuchh nahin hoga/Sar uthao to koi baat bane

Similarly, the poet had an intense feel for human emotions and could convey that in a language which ran deep — Pyaar par bus to nahin hai mera lekin phir bhi/Tu batade ke tujhe pyaar karoon ya na karoon/Tu ne khud apne tabassum se jagaya hai jinhein/Un tamannaon ka izhaar karoon ya na karoon

But even his love lyrics retained his touch with reality Tumhare gham ke siwa aur bhi to gham hai mujhe/Nijaat jin se main ek lahza pa nahin sakta

Humanism was so profoundly engraved in his philosophy of life that he took upon himself to ruthlessly destroy the creaking customs of hardened bigots

Caste, creed, colour held no meaning for him Rang aur nasl, zaat aur mazhab/Jo bhi ho aadmi se kamtar hain;/Is haqeeqat ko tum bhi meri tarah/Maan jaao to koi baat bane

In the same way, he elaborates Maalik ne har insaan ko insaan banaya/Hamne use Hindu ya Mussalman banaya/Nafrat jo sikhaye woh dharm tera nahin hai/Insaan ko raunde woh kadam tera nahin hai.

In the process, Sahir did not ignore the presentday destructive mentality of youth and he applied logical persuasion to emphasise the point.

Ye watan teri meri nasl ki jaagir

Mother Sardar Begum· His obsession

nahin/Saikron naslon ki mehnat ne sanwara hai ise/Jis se dehkaan ko rozi nahin milne paati/Main na doonga tujhe wo khet jalaane ka sabak/Fasal baaki hai to takseem badal sakti hai/Fasal ki khaak se kya mangega jamhoor ka haq/Patriyan rail ki, sadkon ki busein, phone ke taar/Teri aur meri khataaon ki saza kyon bhugtein

He saw Lord Krishna from an angle which further stressed his point Krishna ek zaat nahin, ek amal hota hai/Aaj hota hai koi uska na kal hota hai/Krishna har daur mein aata hai naya roop liye/Krishna har daur ke armanon ka phal hota hai

Sahir did not believe in quantitative output, but kept himself completely confined to quality Till his last breath, Sahir remained consistent

He stayed on the same wavelength throughout his life be it for literature or for films In fact, even during his 30 years in the industry, he penned down the best of poetry which subsequently poured forth Aao ke koi khwab bune and Parchhaiyan Besides, he added quite a few fragrant poems in Talkhian like Khubsoorat mod, Teri awaaz (an ode to Lata Mangeshkar) and Intezaar

Having edited the most prestigious Urdu magazines, Adbe Latif, Savera, and Shahrah, the 'Magician' arrived in Bombay in 1950, intent upon spreading his message far and wide

Irony of ironies, the industry bigwigs acknowledged his literary standing with dignity and respect, but were loathe to accept his style and substance which they felt would not suit the commercial needs of cinema

Moments of frustration plagued Sahir's initial buoyancy, but the man was made of sterner stuff He stuck to his literary strains and started his innings with a flourish

In Guru Dutt's Baazi, he came out heavily on the frustration of human nature and reminded the people, Tadbeer se bigri hui taqdeer bana le/Apne pe bharosa hai to yeh daav laga le/Tute huye patwar hai kishti ke to gham kya/Haari hui baahon ko hi patwaar bana le

Then came Taxi Driver, Naujawan and Jaal The poetic message of Sahir was in full flow It was again in Guru Dutt's Pyaasa that Sahir cast aside his initial hesitation to expose the nakedness of false values Society was stunned, respectability maimed

He thundered Jawani bhatakti hai badkar ban kar/Jawan jism sajte hai bazaar ban kar/Yahan pyaar hota hai vyopaar ban kar/Yeh duniya agar mil bhi jaye to kya hai /Yeh duniya jahaan aadmi kuchh nahin hai/Wafa kuchh nahin, dosti kuchh nahin hai/Yeh duniya agar mil bhi jaaye to kya hai

And thundered again Yeh purpech galiyan, ye badnam bazaar/Yeh guminaam raahi, yeh sikkon ki jhankaar/Yeh asmat ke saude, yeh saudon pe takraar/Jinhe naaz hai Hind par woh kahan hai/Kahan hai kahan hai kahan hai

As if that wasn't enough, he reiterated his strong condemnation towards the male-dominated society as he wrote Aurat ne janm diya mardon ko, mardon ne use bazaar diya/Nangi nachwayi jaati hai, ayyashon ke darbaron mein/Jis kokh mein inka jism dhala,/Us kokh ka karobaar kiya

It is said that Lata Mangeshkar recorded this six-minute-long lyric at one go and left the studios speechless It was again Lata who commented on the death of the poet saying there will never be another Sahir

He often experimented and took extensive liberties with the language and thought, the result was unbelievably historic! Parchhaiyan, his only long poem, is an instance in point

A story in verse with a clarion call for every sane man, it concludes on this beautiful, dream-like note Kaho, ke aaj bhi hum sub agar khamosh rahe/To is damakte hue khakadan ki khair nahin,/Junoon ki dhhali silayon se zameen ki khair nahin,/Aasman ki khair nahin,/Guzashata jung mein ghar hi jale magar iss baar/Ajab nahin ke yeh parchhaiyan bhi jal jayain,/Tasavarat ki parchhaiyan ubharti hain

This poem was India's contribution

Lata Mangeshkar recording for Anil Biswas, behind them are Sahir and K A Abbas to world literature on international peace Khwaja Ahmed Abbas translated it into English as Shadows Speak in 1958

In Aao Ke Koi Khwab Bune, Sahir carried the optimism for the coming generations and also the futility of the destructive element pervading the mind and thought of present times

A politically conscious person, Sahir had no friends or foes when it came to writing He deeply believed in the Nehruvian philosophy What he wrote was an honest, though often harsh, portrayal of what he saw

During his stay of a couple of months in Pakistan after Partition, he felt around him the maddening fundamentalism, giving vent to his thoughts, when he questioned, Mera ilhaad to khair ek laanat tha, so hai ab tak/Magar is alam-e-vahshat mein imaan pe kya guzri? (My convictions were a curse, they are still so, But what have the believers undergone in this reign of terror?)

Chalo woh kufr ke ghar se salamat aa gaye lekin/Khuda ki mamlaqat mein sokhtajanon pe kya guzri (It is good that they are safely back from the land of non-believers/But what about the sufferings of the diseased in the kingdom of God [Pakistan])

The consequence was obvious An arrest warrant was issued by the authorities of Jinnah's Pakistan and the poet, in the dark hours of the night, slipped back into his motherland

He was the only intellectual whose pen during the Emergency (in 1975) was not stilled as it lashed out against the Establishment Lab pe paabandi to hai disgraced)

Jhoot to katil thehra uska kya rona/Sach ne bhi insaan ka khoon bahaya hai

Similarly, he had no qualms about telling so-called Leninists and Marxists about the bankruptcy of their thoughts and actions in his poems written on the centenary of Lenin in 1970 Woh log jinhein kal tak daawa tha rafaqat ka/Tazlil pe utre hain apne hi ke naamon ki (Those who the other day were claiming loyalty/Have disgraced the label of their own affiliations Kya jaane teri umt kis haal ko pahunchegi/Badhti chali jaati hai tadad imamon ki (Who knows where this crowd of yours will end up/The number of leaders continues to increase)

To analyse the writings of Sahir, it is important to understand life at the grassroots Throughout, he stressed the need for man to come up from the depths of evil by which he is surrounded to steer the world on a different course so that life is worth living

While recording the Indian Army marching song; at right is Lt Gen S H Chopra

ehsaas par pehra to hai/Phir bhi ahal-e-dil ko ahwal-e-bashar kehna to hai (The lips are sealed, the feelings are suppressed/Still the sincere ones have to express the sufferings of the people

Apni gairat bech daalen, apna maslak chhod dein,/Rehnumaaon mein bhi kuchh logon ka yeh mansha to hai (Some leaders have a desire to sell their self-respect and balanced attitude)

Hai jinhe sab se zyada dawa-e-hubb-e-watan/Aaj un ki wajah se hubb-e-watan ruswa to hai (Those who claim to be the most patriotic/It is at their hands that patriotism has been

The poet, however, was not spared brickbats from the critics' arsenal, incapable as they were, of comprehending the extent of his genius, calling him, 'the poet of teenagers'

Fortunately, the literary giants and the masses held a different view Literatti of the likes of K A Abbas, Kaifi Azmi and Firaq Gorakhpuri acclaimed Sahir's writings and said they were near prophetic His books ran into several editions in Indian languages as in Russian, Polish, Czech, Persian and Arabic

Being honoured by the then President Zail Singh

After Ghalib in verse and Premchand in prose, Sahir remains the only other writer of substance in Indian literature Perhaps, he was aware of the impact of his thought when he said, Main har ek pal ka shaayar hoon,/Ho ek pal meri kahani hai

Sahir's graph in films can best be adjudged from the 30 long years he reigned peerless in that world

His name became a guarantee for a film's box-office He was the only poet-lyricist ever known to have his own team of music directors The stength of his lyrics could alone convert a tune into a masterpiece, at times, without background music

A few of his well-known lyrics bear testimony to the fact Jaayen to jaayen kahan, Jaane woh kaise log they jinke pyaar ko pyaar mila; Yeh raat yeh chaandni phir kahan, Aaj sajan mohey ang laga lo, Jeevan ke safar mein raahi, Tu Hindu banega na Mussalmaan banega, Main zindagi ka saath nibhaata chala gaya, Sansar se bhage phirte ho, Bhagwan ko tum kya pao ge

And there's more Raat ke raahi thak mat jana, Saathi haath badhana, Abhi na jao chhod kar ke dil abhi bhara nahin, Na munh chhupa ke jiyo aur na sar jhukake jiyo

He wrote for about 80 films and often the producers had to create situations befitting the superior quality of the lyrics

The Sahir-S D Burman duo did incredibly well However, in Pyaasa, the poet's ego got in the way and he insisted that tunes be provided to his pre-composed lyrics and not vice versa as custom would have it

Guru Dutt supported Sahir The senior Burman was hard put, but somehow managed to go along According to reliable sources, till then he was well equipped to adapt Tagore's songs and Bengali folk tunes to his own musical scores

Subsequently, S D Burman claimed the musical success of the film which Sahir dismissed with contempt, perhaps, rightly so, because the mainstay of Pyaasa was the lyrics—a fact accepted by one and all

In the words of Shyam Benegal, Pyaasa was an essay in poetry Therefore, a fallout was inevitable For a change, Sahir chose Roshan and once again ensured the box-office success of Barsaat Ki Raat

In another incident, it was again Sahir's ego which led to a tiff with Lata Mangeshkar, though that was thankfully short-lived Lata was known to have revered Sahir's poetic genius as apparent from Shraddhanjali Volume I where she selected three of his lyrics (and ironically only one of Phalke awardee, Majrooh Sultanpuri)

The poet in his lifetime has been the recipient of many national awards like the Padma Shri, the Sahitya Akademi, Nehru Land, Maharashtra, U P and Punjab state awards

He had been specially requested by the Indian Army to pen the lyrics of their marching song In gratitude they named a few advance posts after him In Ludhiana, a thoroughfare is known as Sahir Avenue He was unanimously elected the president of the Film Writer's Association for almost a decade

The lyricist had two childhood obsessions which remained with him throughout His intense love for his mother was the single sustaining factor in his life After her death in 1975, the poet just existed for another five years before he bade farewell to the world

Sahir's other weakness was Ludhiana, his birthplace He expresses his emotional feelings for this city through a couplet Nazar karta hoon in phizaaon ki/Apna dil, apna rooh, apna kalaam

On the night of October 25, 1980, the poet ended his eventful journey He had compromised neither with life nor death His exit was instantaneous

The heart, which breathed life into many, stopped Perhaps, death held no meaning, as he had himself commented, Jism ki maut koi maut nahin hoti hai/Jism mit jaane se insaan nahin mar jaate

Additional inputs by Poonam Berry

The finest Diamond and 22/22K Gold Jewellery at:

Nemichand Bamalwa & Sons,

Jewellers

16-A, Shakespeare Sarani, 3rd Floor Calcutta 700071; Phone: 242-3388

The melting or refining purity of our 22/22K ornaments is 22 Karat (91.67%)

Sahir's Spell

MA

Main kitni khush-kismat Ma hoon,
Meri god mein panap rahe
Dharm ka aur imaan ka sangam,
Mera chhota sa aanchal hai,
Gita aur Quran ka sangam,
Main kitni khush-kismat Ma hoon

Do tehzeebon ki dhaarein,
Ek saanche mein dhalte dekhoon,
Akbar aur Ashok ka sapna,
Ghar aangan mein palte dekhoon,
Main kitni khush-kismat Ma hoon.

Sadiyaan jis vardaan ko tarsein,
Mujh ko woh vardaan mila hai,
Pyaar ki ek dori mein lipta,
Kal ka Hindustan mila hai,
Main kitni khush-kismat Ma hoon.

Seene par zakhmon ke tamge,
Lab par azaadi ke naare,
Is saj-dhaj se mere bete,
Aaj aaye hain Ma ke dwar,
Main kitni khush-kismat Ma hoon

Meri god ke paalon par,
Kal sara Bharat maan karega,
Mujh si Ma kehlaane ko,
Har Ma ka dil armaan karega,
Main kitni khush-kismat Ma hoon

Ek bete ki laash idhar hai,
Ek bete ki laash udhar hai,
Is ka khoon us ke sar par hai,
Us ka khoon is ke sar par hai,
Pehle kis par phool chadhaaoon,
Pehle kis ko kafan odhaaoon,
Maut ke vyapaari netaon,
Main diwani samajh na paaoon,
Main kitni khush-kismat Ma hoon

First published in late 1993, in Bazm-e-Fikro Fann, courtesy Anwar Sultana

MOTHER

How
In m
Two
The hood of my
Confluence of Gita and
How blessed a mother I am.

I witness two cultures flow
Into one mould and become one.
The dreams of Akbar and Ashoka,
I witness crystallising in my backyard,
How blessed a mother I am.

For which others yearn for centuries,
I have that blessing bestowed upon me,
Entwined in a single thread of love,
The blessing of a Hindustan,
How blessed a mother I am.

Their breasts emblazoned with wounds,
And their lips ablaze with slogans of freedom,
With such decoration, my two sons
Have arrived at their mother's door,
How blessed a mother I am

The two nurtured by me,
Will be the pride of India,
To be a mother like me,
Every mother will aspire,
How blessed a mother I am

The corpse of one son lies hither,
The other corpse lies thither,
One head smeared with the blood of the other,
The other smeared with this one's blood,
On whom should I place the wreath first,
On whom should I first place the shroud,
Purveyors of death, you politicians,
Can you explain to me,
How blessed a mother I am

Translated by Anil Grover

INNER EYE ❑ Bejan Daruwalla

Aries
March 21—April 20

Secret deals and negotiations for Ariens, asserts Ganesha You could be travelling, commuting and moving Enemies and expenses do multiply But you will most certainly cope with these inimicalities Dreams, visions, religious experiences, make this week quite remarkable

Taurus
April 21—May 20

Buying, selling, and shopping make a useful triumvirate You will be working at full steam However, it would be ideal to socialise, have a grand ball You will find sweet satisfaction and good money there March 14-18 should be eventful in this regard Expect visitors

Gemini
May 21—June 20

Once again, you will have to strive with might and main, put your sinews to the test, if you want to get the maximum out of the week It depends upon your ability and desire to entertain Be sweet and talk your way into the minds and hearts of people Loans and funds will be secured

Cancer
June 21- July 20

As long as you have your eye on the main chance and are practical, success attends your efforts There is a strong possibility of trips and ties Many of you will be making a blueprint for the year this week and the next That's for sure You could go in for changes

Leo
July 21—August 21

While a few pin-pricks and health upsets are possible, these should not be allowed to hold you down and cramp your style February through April, particularly April, favours an official engagement, birth of children, a marriage or a collaboration Health caution is essential

Virgo
August 22—September 22

Though you could be passing through a lot of rough weather, you should be recovering by now and well on your way to calmer waters Meditation, therapy, yoga and prayers should really help you March 15-16 should be quite critical Be hopeful while preparing for trouble and tension

Libra
September 23—October 22

There are two distinct trends in simultaneous operation Job, health and the keeping of pets comprise one trend Appointments, interviews, meetings, conferences and a very tight and busy schedule constitute the second trend All of this could affect you physically Therefore, relax

Scorpio
October 23—November 22

The highs and the lows will both be yours, as emotions and moods take over Financial juggling and wizardry will be required You can expect help from known as well as unknown quarters and that's the saving grace of the week March 17-18 could well provide conditions of relief

Sagittarius
November 23—December 20

You may have to expect some flak and opposition and that could cause psychological and health complications, if you are not careful Partnerships of all sorts, be they personal, professional, or business will be highlighted Trips are foretold

Capricorn
December 21—January 19

You will come into your own and recover lost ground with long strides Promotion and perks are possible You will perform your task intelligently and diligently The buying and selling of goods and property will be a marked feature of the week However, do be careful of what you eat and drink

Aquarius
January 20—February 18

Your charm and finesse will take you to the end of the world It would be best to veer round tricky situations and direct uncalled-for opposition Get your travel-kit ready Many of you will think clearly, act promptly and thus win the day Keep contacts buzzing

Pisces
February 19—March 20

You should be moving at a brisker pace from mid-week, thanks to Mercury Home will be of particular significance for you A major move here is more than possible Many Pisceans will be getting over a trauma or loss, or a sense of dissatisfaction

B I R T H D A Y S

March 12: Moon-Sun trine means glory and grandeur. No matter how tough the going may be, be sure it will get easier and by July-November, you should be on your way to triumph.

March 13: Moon-Mars conjunction could lead to a change in the nature and scope of your work. Your services will be sought-after. But there could be a fall-out with colleagues.

March 14: Moon-Jupiter excellent formation means money and honey, points out Ganesha. One wish fulfillment will be granted to you, perhaps involving money and work. Be bold.

March 15: Venus Jupiter fine placing leads to luxuries and comforts, inspirational moments, good thoughts, words and deeds. Be precise in your correspondence.

March 16: Sun-Neptune lucky formation favours writers, teachers, astrologers, publishers and printers. But the bottomline is, it will trigger inspiration and imagination.

March 17: The full moon helps you to take important decisions. Many of you will be exploring new frontiers, perhaps even immigrating or homing in on foreign connections.

March 18: Moon-Jupiter excellent placing leads to enrichment of both knowledge and riches. New ventures could be started if you are really interested.

TIME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

AGARTALA

Departures Flt No	Time	Days	Arrivals Flt No	Time	Days
IC 741	0710	3 5	IC 742	0940	3 5
IC 743	0920	daily	IC 744	1150	daily
PF 701	1130	1 3 5 7	PF 702	1610	1 3 5 7

AHMEDABAD

M9 304/109	0855	1 3 5	M9 110/301	1900	1 3 5

AIZAWL

PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	PF 706	1510	2 4 6

BAGDOGRA

PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1
PF 737	0730	3 5	PF 738	1740	3 5
IC 721	1300	1 3 5	IC 722	1540	1 3 5

BANGALORE

IC 771	0600	daily	IC 772	1140	daily

BHUBANESWAR

IC 541	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC 770	2120	1 3 5

BOMBAY

IC 676	0730	daily	IC 675	0820	daily
D2 102	0905	daily	D2 101	0835	daily
9W 202	0920	1 2 3 4 5 6	9W 201	0840	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC 273	1945	daily	AI 306	1840	5
9W 212	1945	daily	IC 274	1850	daily
D2 104	2005	daily	9W 211	1910	daily
AI 309	2035	6	D2-103	1935	daily
AI 681	2350	1

DELHI

			IC 262	0815	2 4 7
IC 263	0700	daily	M9 303	0825	daily
M9 304	0855	daily	AI 682	0950	1
IC 812	1515	1 3 5	4S 806	1115	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC 402	1715	daily	IC 401	1155	daily
4S 805	1745	1 2 3 4 5 6	M9 301	1900	daily
IC 261	1900	2 4 7	S2 005	1900	1 2 3 4 5 6
M9 302	1930	daily	IC-811	1930	1 3 5
S2 006	1940	1 2 3 4 5 6	IC 264	2210	daily

DIBRUGARH

PF 737	0730	3 5	IC 704	1430	3 5
IC 703	0800	3 5	D2 181	1620	1 3 5 7
D2 181	1135	1 3 5 7	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	IC 702	1630	2 4 6 7
4S 815	1145	1 2 3 4 5 6	4S 816	1705	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC 701	1240	2 4 6 7	PF 738	1740	3 5

DIMAPUR

IC 257	1150	4 7	IC 258	1650

GUWAHATI

PF 735	0730	1	IC 712	1410	2 6
PF 737	0730	3 5	IC 704	1430	3 5
PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	IC 708	1130	1 4 7
IC 703	0800	3 5	PF 706	1510	4 6 7
IC 707	0800	1 4 7	D2 181	1620	1 3 5 7
IC 711	0800	2 6	D2 183	1620	4 6
D2 181	1135	1 3 5 7	IC 230	1650	daily
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	4S 811	1705	1 2 3 4 5 6
4S 812	1145	1 2 3 4 5 6	PF 736	1730	1
IC 257	1150	4 7	PF 738	1740	3, 5
IC 211	1240	4 6	IC 258	1740	4 7
IC 229	1310	daily	IC 212	1740	4 6

HYDERABAD

IC 777	1600	2 4 7	IC 778	2100	2 4 7
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC 770	2120	1 3 5

IMPHAL

IC 707	0800	1 4 7	IC 256	1320	3 5
IC 255	0830	3 5	IC 708	1430	1 4 7
IC 253	1100	2 6	IC 254	1550	2 6

JORHAT

IC 213	0910	2 4 7	IC 213	1315	2 4 7

LILABARI

PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1

LUCKNOW

IC 812	1515	1 3 5	IC 811	1930	1 3 5

MADRAS

IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC 765	1720	daily	D2 171	1045	daily
D2 172	1740	daily	IC 766	2220	daily

NAGPUR

IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC 770	2120	1 3 5

PATNA

IC 249	1430	2 4 7	IC 249	1805	2 4 7
IC 812	1515	1 3 5	IC-811	1830	1 3 5

PORT BLAIR

IC 285	0640	3 5 7	IC 286	1100	2 4 6

RANCHI

IC 249	1430	2 4 7	IC 249	1805	2 4 7

SHILLONG

PF 705	0730	2 2 6 7	PF 706	1510	2 4, 6 7

SILCHAR

IC 255	0830	3 5	IC 260	1110	1, 7
IC 259	0830	1 7	IC 256	1320	3, 5
IC 253	1100	2 6	IC 254	1550	2 6
IC 211	1240	4 6	IC-212	1740	4, 6

TEZPUR

IC 213	0910	2 4 7	IC 213	1315	2, 4 7

TEZU

PF 737	0730	3 5	PF 738	1740	3 5

VISHAKHAPATNAM

IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1, 3, 5

ZIRO

PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1

FLIGHTS — INTERNATIONAL

AMMAN

RJ 185	1445	4	RJ 184	0705	4

AMSTERDAM

KL-876	0420	7	KL 875	0235	7

BANGKOK

IC-731	0855	2 4, 6, 7	KB-108	1115	3
			KB-106	1215	5
KB 105	1125	2 6	TG-313	1240	1, 3, 6
TG 314	1355	1, 3 6	IC-732	1505	2, 4, 6, 7
AI-306	1950	5	AI-309	1925	6

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No.	Time	Days
[illegible]
RO-076	2040	5, 7	RO 075	1035	5, 7
[illegible]
IC-225	1200	1	IC-226	1420	1
BG-696	1735	2, 5	BG-697	1655	2 5
[illegible]
BG-092	0850	4, 5	BG-091	0810	4 5
BG-092	1150	1 2, 3 6 7	BG 091	1110	1 2 3 6 7
IC-723	1250	1, 2 3, 5, 6	IC-724	1520	1, 2 3 5 6
BG-094	1905	1 2 3, 5, 6 7	BG-093	1825	1 2 3 5 6, 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1 5	BG-095	2020	1 5
KATHMANDU
IC-747	1115	1 3 5	IC-748	1455	1 3 5
RA-214	1400	4, 7	RA-213	1315	4 7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
LONDON
BA 142	2050	3 7	BA 143	1525	3 7
MOSCOW
SU 538	1855	4	SU 537	1655	4
PARO
KB 106	1200	3	KB 105	1040	2 6
KB 106	1300	5
SINGAPORE
SQ 415	2200	2 5	SQ 416	2040	2 5
SOFIA
LZ 504	1750	4	LZ 503	1650	4
TOKYO
AI 306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure Up	Time	Howrah	Arrival Time	Dn
2311	19-15	Delhi-Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19-20	Amritsar Mail	7 55	3006
3003	20-35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13 00	3004
2381	9-15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat	16 15	2382
2303	9-15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues, Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun	16 15	2304
2301	16-30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues, Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon, Tues, Thurs, Fri & Sun	10 45	2302
2305	13-45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun, Arr Wed & Sat	12 50	2306
3073	23-00	Himgiri (Jammu-Tawi) Express Tri-Wkly Dep Tues, Fri & Sat, Arr Tues Wed, & Sat	11-35	3074
5047	13-00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun, Mon, Wed & Fri	4-30	5048
3009	20-30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9-45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18-15	3008
3049	13-20	Amritsar Express	15-30	3050
3039	21-00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5-20	3040
3019	16-05	Gorakhpur Express	11 55	3020
3021	21-45	Mithila Express	5-00	3022
5659	17-35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6-30	5660
3317	6-10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17-11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18-20	Asansol Express	8-45	3036
3031	21-05	Danapur Express	5-50	3032
3025	23-00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday, Arr Friday	11 35	3026
3071	22-30	Jamalpur Express	5 10	3072
3015	9-55	Santiniketan Express	15-40	3016
1159	15-25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri, Sat & Sun Arr Mon, Tues & Wed	6 50	1160
1171	15-25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon, Tues & Wed, Arr Fri, Sat & Sun	6-50	1172
3327	14-30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4-50	3328
1181	15-25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6-50	1182

Up	Time	Sealdah	Time	Dn
3141	13-40	Teesta-Torsa Express Dep Mon, Tues Wed Thurs, Fri & Sun Arr Tues, Wed, Thurs, Fri, Sat & Sun	6-35	3142
3143	19-15	Darjeeling Mail	8-45	3144
3111	20-15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7-15	3112
5657	6-25	Kanchenjunga Express	20-35	5658
3153	22-00	Gaur Express	5-15	3154
5663	20-00	Katihar Express	4-15	5664
3151	11 45	Jammu-Tawi Express	15-50	3152
3133	20-55	Mughal Sarai Express via SBG Loop	12-55	3134
3103	18-20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express	10-25	3104
5185	12-40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues, Thurs & Sat	4-25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure Up	Time	Howrah	Arrival Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6-50	6004
8002	19 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8-10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12 00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	19 40	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sunday Arr Sunday	13 45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8014
8011	6-15	Ispat Express	22 05	8012
8005	20-55	Titlagarh Express	5 00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
8007	22-15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5 30	8008
8409	19-00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8 25	8410
2821	6-05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21-30	2822
8079	23-20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8080
8045	10-30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15-00	8046
8017	16-45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2421	16-40	Bhubaneswar-New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10	-
—	11-05	New Delhi-Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati Howrah - Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15	-
–	14-05	Trivandrum Central Howrah - Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 45	6321
—	14 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13-45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15	-
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapanam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13 45	6315
6520	22 35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22-15
—	14 05	Bangalore City - Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South-Eastern Railway trains, please dial 2203545-54 for in-coming trains, 2203535-44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South-Eastern Railway trains, dial 2203498-3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition, dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running), 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535 37

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S COLUMN

PROBLEMS OF EVOLUTION

Sitting reading your newspaper and having breakfast, you may not be aware that you are evolving Modern scientists would say you are and have proof that the bacteria inside you are swopping genes like nobody's business

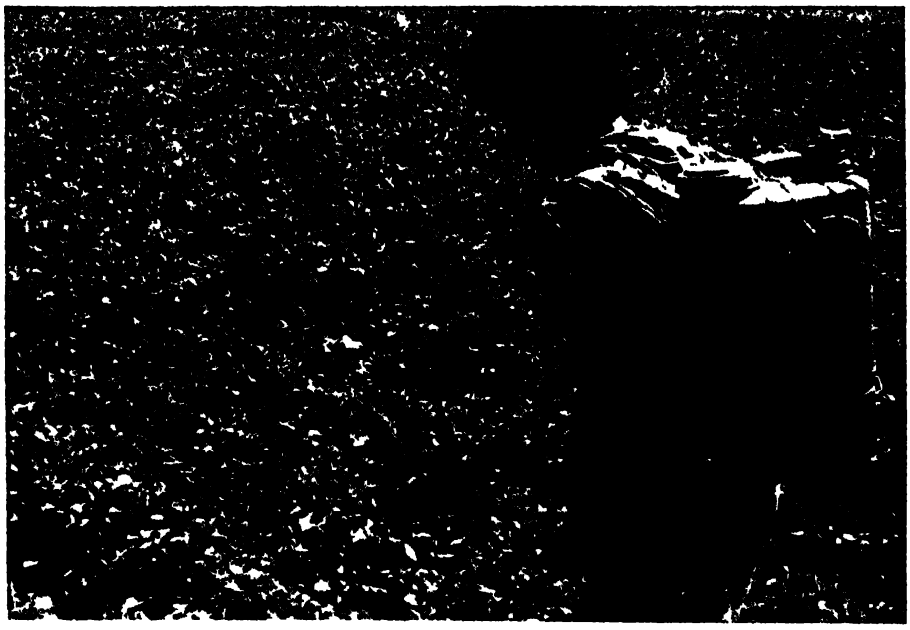
Evolutionary biology has become a new and fashionable branch of science In universities all over the world people are mapping natural selection — counting the spots on guppies or sticklebacks, measuring water fleas or even using their own digestive systems to monitor bacterial life

But there are problems abroad with evolution One stems from the great Western conflict between religion and science

Just mention evolution to tens of millions of Americans and they would splutter and go purple in the face A survey made in 1994 produced astonishing figures to show that nearly half the adult population of the United States do .iot believe in it

Many of them are Creationists, fundamentalist Christians for whom truth is literally what is written in the Bible — that God created the world and all the creatures in it in seven days

[This conflict between religion and science is alien to Indian tradition In Hinduism, for centuries, religion has been used to justify science Neem is worshipped, you can argue, for scientific reasons In Delhi at the Institute of Immunology, Dr Talwar hails it as a 'miracle tree' He is developing from it substances which can dissuade female mosquitoes from laying eggs, stop male humans making sperm or kill herpes



Science is not alien to Islamic tradition either Ilm, or knowledge, is one of the central concepts of Islam Akbar Ahmad, the Pakistani civil servant and academic, points out that, "The Holy Prophet urged his followers to go as far as China to acquire knowledge And let us keep before us the fact that to an Arab in the seventh century, China would have been at the outermost limits of the known universe."]

Ironically, it's in the areas of the United States where the Creationists are strongest — where many legislators would like to ban the teaching of evolution in schools — that there are the biggest problems with this branch of science

The economy in these areas depends largely on crops like cotton, and it's in crops like cotton that evolution is proceeding so fast you can see it Insect pests are doing the evolving Jonathan Weiner presents a convincing picture of their continuing rise in his book The Beak of the Finch which has to be one of the most thought-provoking books of 1994

One of the star evolvers he describes is a dull grey moth called helothis virescens It fluttered out of the forests in the Forties after cotton farmers had wiped their fields clean of insects and birds with huge doses of DDT Finding an empty environmental niche it set up house and its caterpillars munched happily through cotton balls The farmers assaulted it with larger and larger doses of DDT, and then dozens of more advanced brands of pesticides The caterpillars chomped on.

Then in the Eighties came a new family of chemicals called pyrethroids with macho names like Scout and Karate which chemists claimed no pest could survive According to Weiner in Arkansas in May 1987, only about 6 per cent of moths could live after a certain dose of

We are, it seems, placing huge pressures on species to evolve in certain directions, thereby achieving the opposite of what we want. If we kill pests with pesticides, only those resistant to pesticides survive and breed. These strong creatures have a different, mutant genes, and pass this pattern on to their descendants pyrethroids By September the same year 61 per cent survived the same dose

We are, it seems, placing huge pressures on species to evolve in certain directions — thereby achieving the opposite of what we want. If we kill pests with pesticides, only those resistant to pesticides survive and breed These strong creatures have a different, mutant genes, and pass this pattern on to their descendants

The ubiquitous housefly is a case in point It carries a series of mutant genes One makes it more resistant to DDT, another reduces its absorption of insecticides, and yet another two give it resistance to two other groups of poisons

Weiner tells us that flies and other insect pests evolve much more swiftly than scientists can produce new poisons The result is that late 20th century America, according to top ecologists, is not much better than medieval Europe when, with no poisons at all, pests were said to eat one grain out of every three produced

Crops aren't the only things we pour chemicals into What about ourselves? For bacteria and viruses a human being is what the whole world is to us Inside us they multiply and evolve freely And we push them into evolution by the drugs we take By taking antibiotics too easily, we too easily create diseases resistant to them

Many of the fastest evolving diseases are killers The battle against TB is difficult enough even without drug resistant bacteria Some anti-tubercular drugs are in any case so strong they make you mislay your sanity — a fact I discovered when I took a girl we thought was weak in the head to a psychiatrist

But the microbes are overcoming even these medicines About 8 million people a year are colonised by an adaptable, drug resistant TB bacillus According to Weiner, about one in three people in the planet carry it and each of them has a 10 per cent chance of developing it In the United States the cases of TB in children under five rose 30 per cent just in the three years between 1987-90

We now cannot cope with disease — whether in the fields or within ourselves — without becoming familiar with evolution With that familiarity we can at least have a better idea of where we're going We need sustainable development even at the most microcosmic level

(Sanctuary Features)

CLUB 7

HOLIDAYS '95

EUROPEAN BONANZA ON KLM

A fabulous air cum coach tour including the French Riviera & 4 days in Switzerland ! Easy paced itinerary covering 9 countries with comprehensive sightseeing and many entrance fees included unmatched by any other tour in the market. All but one (Sit down) dinners included Many other novel features

DEP 12, 21, 28 May, 4, 11 June, 16 July, 20 Aug 10, 29 Sept
Tour price Rs 41557 + USD 1157

Fantastic early bird bonus and group of 4 discount. We show you more

TRAFALGAR TOURS

Europe's No 1 for its sheer range of tours and quality and the price advantage Cruises in the Mediterenean, tours to Scotland, Scandinavia, New Europe, Morrocco etc ex London Weekly departures

MAURITIUS EXOTICA : On AI/MK.

A choice of 4 different hotel categories with 2 fullday sightseeing tours incl Ile Aux Cerfs (Top attraction) in a funfilled 7 day half board package. DEP Every Monday

Based on 4 persons travelling together Ex Bombay (From Rs 14397 + $ 307 to $ 597 For Hotel Ville Pointe Aux Biches to Hotel Le Mauricia. Lower fares in July, Aug)

Singapore extention : At a modest supplement with choice of 4 different hotel categories in Singapore as well DEP Every Monday

FAR EAST : On SQ/TG/IC

A choice of 4 different holiday propositions to Thailand, Singapore and Hongkong from Rs 9377 + USD 177 to Rs 19667 + USD 687 plus extention tours to Bali, Langkawi, Kualalumpur DEP Every Monday

AFRICAN SAFARI : ON KQ.

Visiting 5 game parks incl stay at the famous Tree Top hotels and the World famous Mt Kenya Safari Club Rs 22747 + USD 747 DEP 20, 27 Apr, 4, 11, 18, 25 May, 1, 8, 15, 22, 29 June Extentions to london at a supplement

CONNOISSEUR'S CIRCUIT :

To exotic destinations Cairo, Athens, Istanbul, French Riviera, Switzerland, Paris and London in a package designed for the repeat traveller to Europe easy paced and exclusive with several evening programmes truely for the connoisseur !

Rs 41597 + USD 1357 DEP 28 May, 04 June, 06 Aug, 01 Oct

USA :

Covering coast to coast for 15 days for Rs 48957 + USD 1257 + VUSA All tour prices based on current air fares Fantastic early bird bonus

DRUPA '95, ROTARY & LION'S CONVENTION TOURS

All tours are based on superior standard and first class hotels with more included sightseeings and meals

For details Contact at :

CLUB 7

111/A, Tivoli Court, Calcutta-700 019. Ph : 400 893/247-8504/404261

WE SHOW MORE, WE COST LESS...CHECK OUT AND BOOK.

Wavelength/95

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

BOOKS, BOOKS AND MORE BOOKS

The other day, when I was asked what profession I would have chosen had I not become a writer, I thought hard and long before replying, quite honestly, "A bookseller"

Of course, my choice was influenced by the fact that I feel perfectly at home among books So why not a librarian? I am not sure that I would enjoy being a librarian All that cataloguing, indexing, updating of library cards and sending out of reminders to absentminded borrowers — it would turn me into a dull fellow, I think

And then (natural enough in an author) I prefer to see people buying books rather than borrowing them People usually take care of the books they buy, and some even like to build up their own personal libraries

Oddly enough, it is now becoming quite fashionable to have books in the drawing room — a sign of breeding and culture no doubt Twenty years ago, folks were not too culture conscious A well-stocked bookshelf was a rarity, and if there was anything hanging on the wall, it was likely to be a calendar or a towel

I am so glad people are buying books again, and even reading them There was a time when I felt like a minority of one, the only browser in a bookshop, wondering if I had Rs 5 or Rs 10 spare for a paperback How ironical that when books were cheap there were few takers, and now that they are expensive, people buy several at one time

In one new bookshop in New Delhi, The Crossword, they will even provide you with a trolley to transport your books to the front door I think you have to leave the trolley behind, but still, it's a neat psychological ploy!

This sudden passion for books has grown in spite of the rival attractions of TV and video Or, perhaps, people are dissatisfied with the visual media and are returning to more thoughtful forms of entertainment

Reading has always been a minority pastime A long, long time ago, when I was a schoolboy, there were just two or three of us in a class of 30 who actually read the books we were obliged to borrow from the school library I think the ratio is much higher today I keep meeting teenagers who are familiar with authors I have never read!

At my school in Shimla we had a bursar named Ram Advani, who came from a family of booksellers His maternal grandfather ran a chain of bookshops called J Ray and Sons in Peshawar and Murree They lost everything at the time of Partition and had to migrate to India

After a couple of years at the school, he set up shop at Lucknow in 1948, and since then Ram Advani, Bookseller, has become an institution in that fair city Here is a man who is proud of his vocation, who is genuinely interested in selling good books, the sort of book seller I'd like to be Another institution was K B K Rao's Select Bookshop in Bangalore, which I visited a couple of times in the Sixties (It is now run by his son) He specialised in rare and secondhand books, old photographs, postcards, memorabilia of the 'Raj (Is that the word? I never heard it used during the time of British rule!) Booksellers should encourage browsers, as sooner or later most of them will become book-buyers And it was in Rao's bookshop that I became a collector of all postcards!

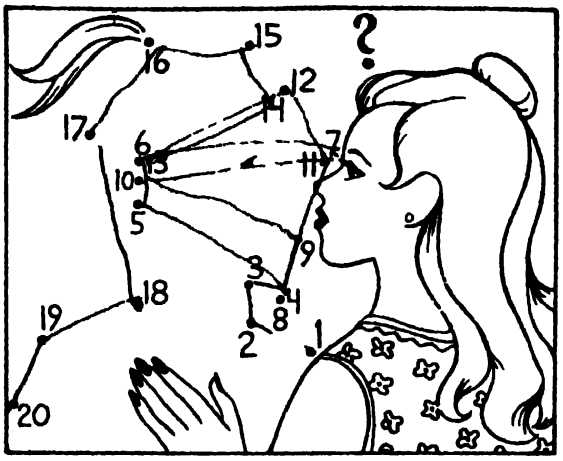
And I have a friend who, when he opens a book, always sniffs the paper before making a purchase. There are good book smells and bad book smells, he avers

What is it about books that turn some people into compulsive bookbuyers? I know someone whose eyesight is so poor that he can barely read with a magnifying glass, yet he cannot resist buying books, if only to add them to his already burgeoning shelves And I have a friend who, when he opens a book, always sniffs the paper before making a purchase

There are good book smells and bad book smells, he avers And if you are going to spend some time with a book, even live with it, it should smell good! He has a point, and his attitude goes some way to explaining why the books we possess simultaneously possess us

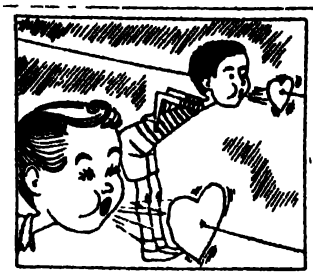
As a boy with limited resources I was, quite naturally more of a browser than a buyer One bookseller who encouraged me to browse was the owner (or, perhaps, it was the manager) of the Ideal Book Depot in Dehradun, it is no longer there The old gentlemen permitted me to borrow from his stock of old or shop-soiled titles and with my assistance set up a small lending library which (at a modest membership fee) proved to be quite popular with other readers who could not afford the latest titles on display



I became so familiar with his stock I can easily recall the names of publishers in conjunction with their titles and authors There was Herbert Jenkins (for almost all the Wodehouse titles), Heinemann (for Somerset Maugham), Macmillan (for Tagore's works), Collins (for crime and detection), Faber (for William Saroyan), and so on Such booksellers are not just passive vendors of merchandise, they help create readers who will one day value books enough to build up their own libraries which do not even exist in our smaller towns

Believe me, it is much more fun than depending on public libraries And so I say If there is a special heaven for good booksellers, may it always be well-stocked

(Sanctuary Features)



JUNIOR WHIRL

HAL KAUFMAN

BUSS STOP! A kiss is in store for someone above, but alas, the action s on hold Why is that? Draw lines dot to dot

LOVE STORY! It s Valentine's Day and there s romance in the stars Check the following sequence of letters and see if you don t agree tRhOeMsAtNaCrEs

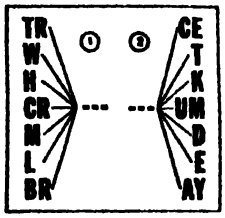
STRING-ALONG PARTY GAME

STRING along friends on Valentine s Day, or at any time, with this amusing party game

Use string to set up racing lanes across a room Place a paper heart 4to5 inches in diameter on each string

Divide guests into even teams Place a paper heart 4 to 5 inches in diameter on each string

At the word "Go , players blow the heart along the string to turning point where a teammate takes over and blows the heart back to the starting point, etc , until one team wins



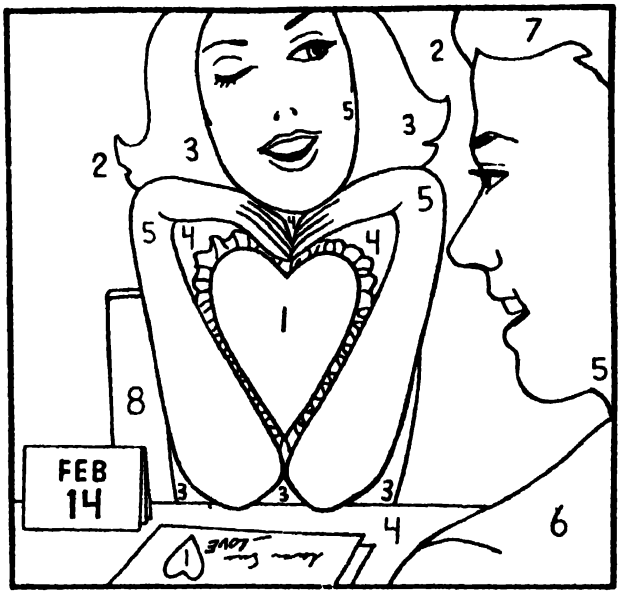
Use of hands to propel hearts is not permitted

appoint a judge to rule on close races

THREE OUT! A word of three letters is required to complete seven longer words in each of the posers below Example In No 1, add the word ill and you have trill, will, hill — but the string ends there with crill Similarly, in No 2, try pea and you have peace, peat, peak — and again string ends

Put on your thunking cap and see if you can find two words that fully comply

Time limit 2 min each



HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below

Differences 1 Poster is missing 2 Zipper is missing 3 Valentine is missing 4 Cloud is different 5 Purse is missing 6 Choker is different

FUNSPOT

HEART COPY! Hey, heartthrob, will you be my valentine? Apply colors by number neatly. 1—Red 2—Lt. blue. 3—Yellow 4—Lt. brown 5—Flesh tones 6—Dk. blue. 7—Dk. brown. 8—Purple

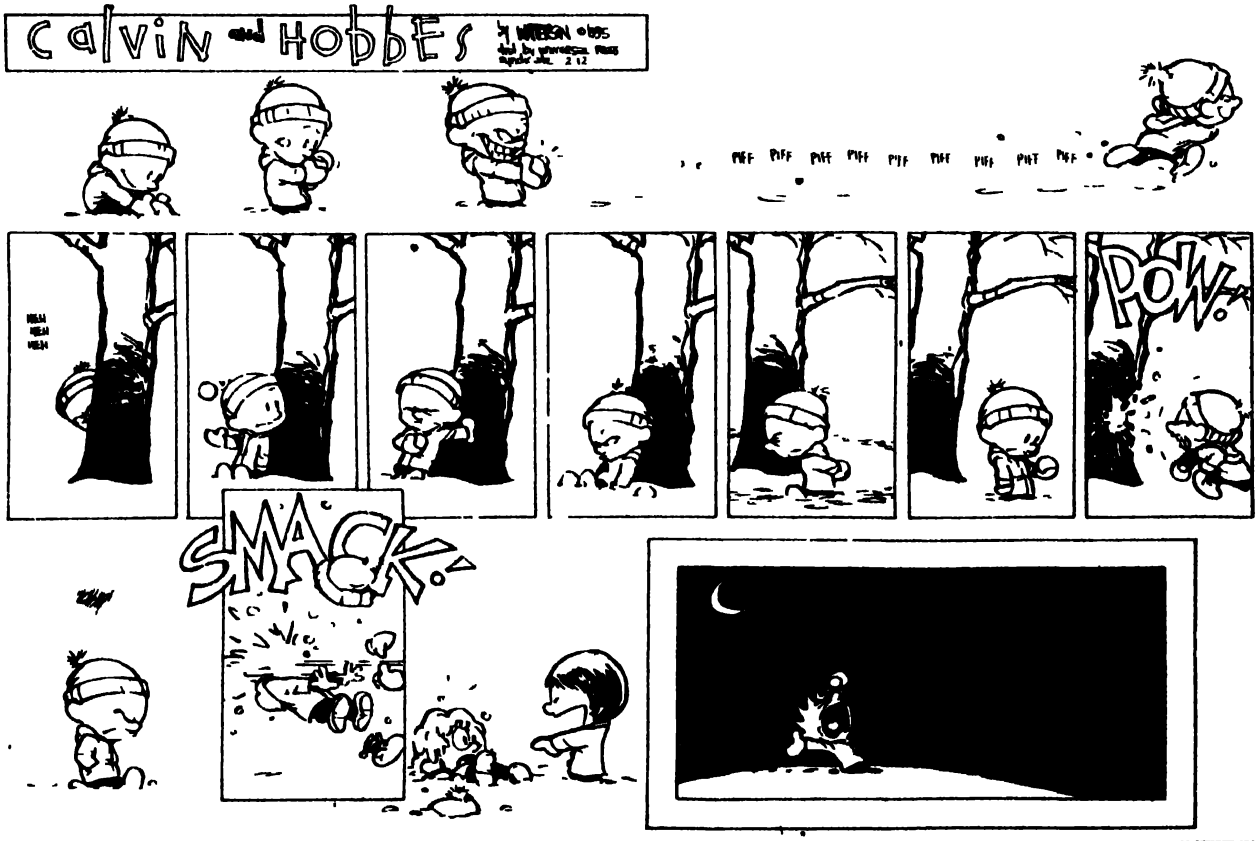
SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

SPLENDID

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

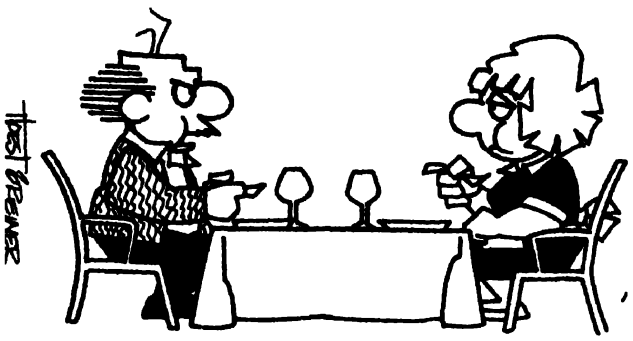
Try to score at least 50 points



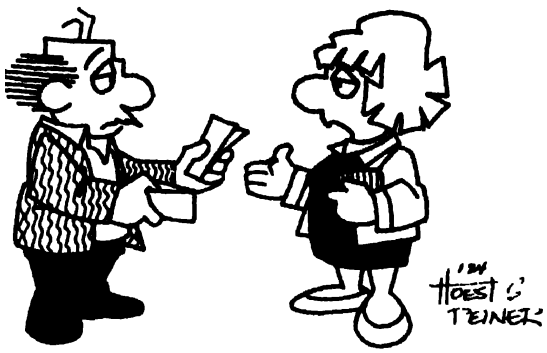
Possible twosome Lend dips

COMICS

ARCHIE

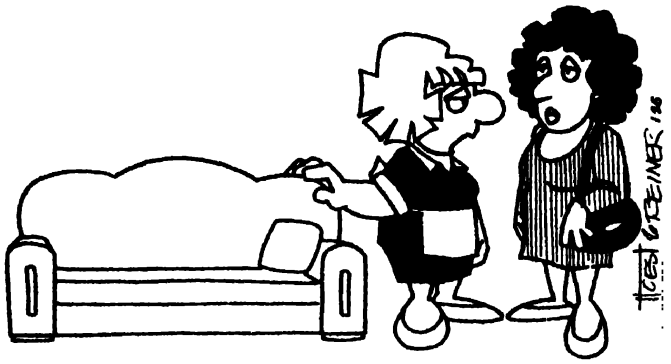


CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON

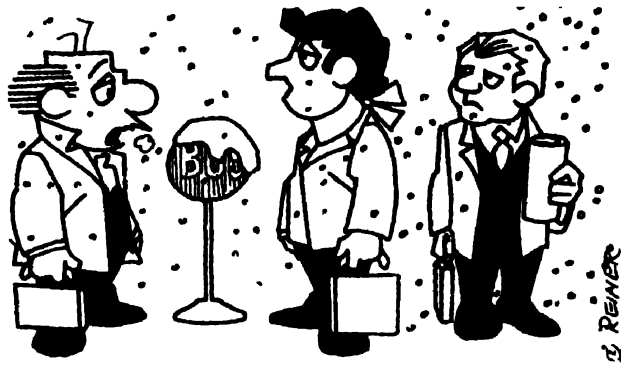


THE LOCKHORNS

©1986 WM HOEST ENTERPRISES INC Distributed by King Features Syndicate

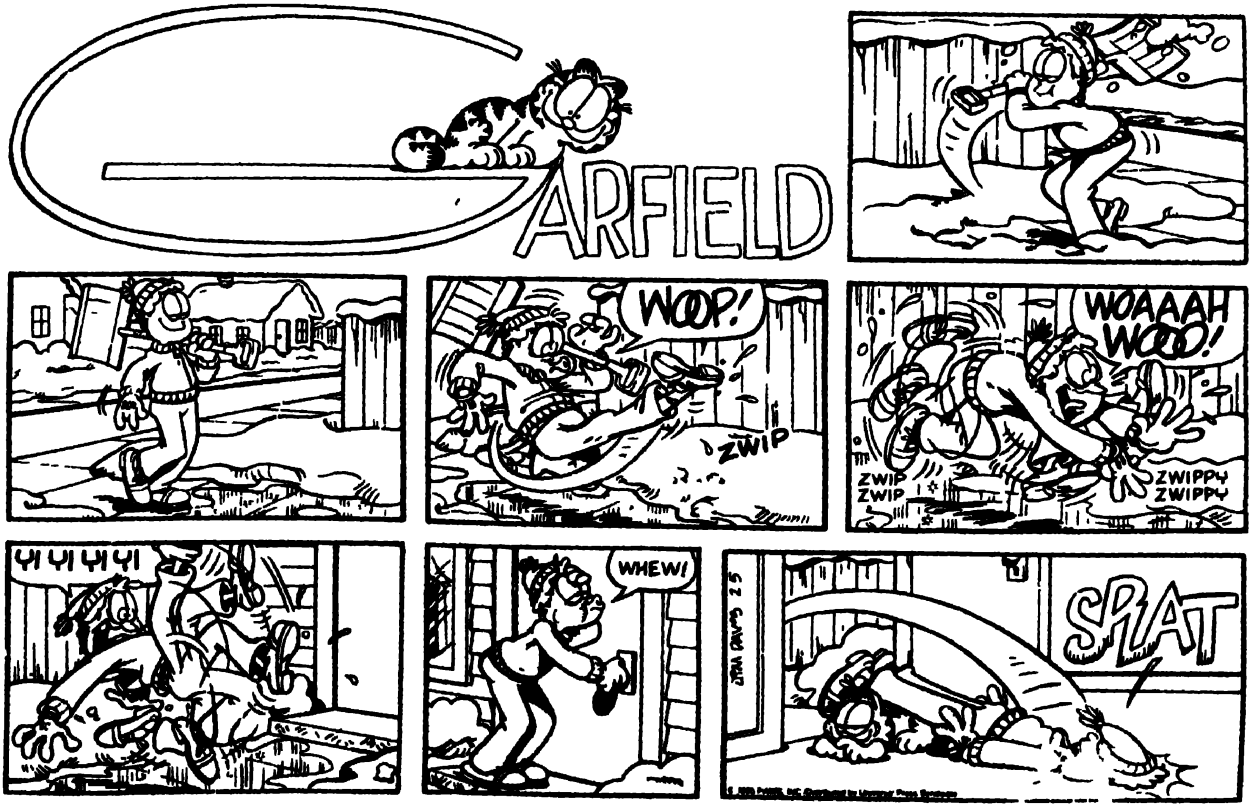


"THIS ISN'T PHEASANT-UNDER-GLASS, LORETTA IT'S CHICKEN UNDER-COOKED"

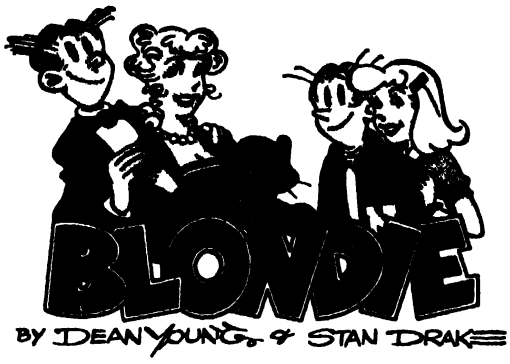


IS WM HOEST ENTERPRISES INC

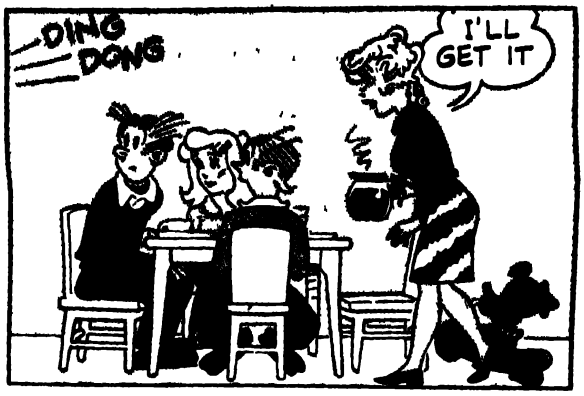
"YOU COULD TEACH THE MILITARY A THING OR TWO ABOUT POCKETS OF RESISTANCE."



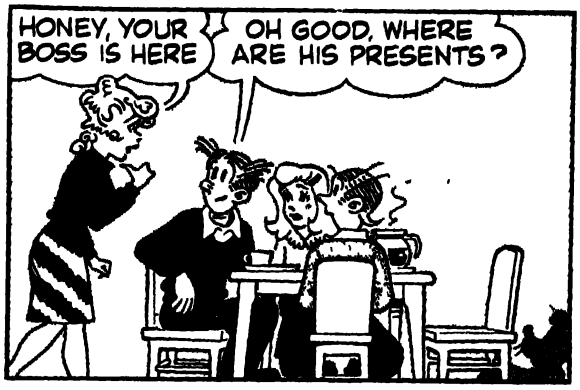
"TO LEROY, THIS IS MAN'S BEST FRIEND."



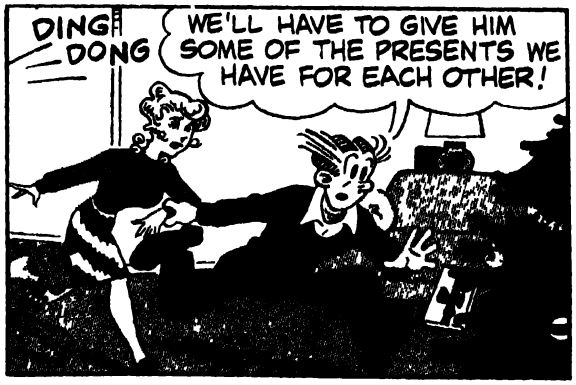
"RETIRE? ME? . . AND EAT LUNCH AT HOME, TOO?"



GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS



THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP



©1984 by King Features Syndicate Inc World rights reserved

FOCUS

SUITABLE GIRL?

When it comes to the crunch, would you give your brief to Anjali Kapur?

KHUSHWANT SINGH

Author, journalist, scholar, columnist and self-confessedly "not a nice man to know"

Yes, I would hire her as a lawyer if she is good at her work The fact that she looks good without clothes and whether she would be good as a lawyer are two different things

I think all this noise over her posing in the semi-nude and about overstepping her professional ethics as lawyer is useless She has every right to do what she wants and I don't think she had done this as a publicity gimmick

I don't think other men in the legal profession or any other field should get biased against her I am a male and I am not biased because I don't see any reason for it

MANU PAREKH,

Artist

Being a painter I would have hired her both for modelling and as a lawyer

If she is good and competent as a model, there is no reason why she would not be good as a lawyer

One should know and be good in his or her profession and that should be the criterion for judging someone's work What she did was her personal choice and should, in no way, be a reflection on her professional capabilities

I, for one, would not like to mix the two and sit on judgement over her

In our society, many times we need cultural shocks like this to galvanise us into focusing on and broadening our attitudes on certain issues There was a time when a career in films was not considered good for girls and they were looked down upon Today, girls from respectable families are the ones who are doing well on the silver screen So everything takes time to gain acceptance

SONAL MANSINGH

Dancer and woman of true grit

If I need a lawyer and if someone suggests her name I would certainly not overlook her just because she has posed for some soft-porn magazine

I have not met her or spoken to her so I do not know whether she is a good lawyer, but if she was, yes, I would consider hiring her

Anjali is not the first woman to do this Protima Bedi, too, had done something similar when she ran naked on a beach in Bombay more than 20 years ago Today, she has a Nrityagram, support and extended partonage

I feel that what Anjali did was her own private matter for which she may have her own reasons If she is good, brilliant and young, I don't see any reason why it should come in the way of her being a good lawyer as well

PROTIMA BEDI

Dancer, managing trustee of Nrityagram and original iconoclast

Why are they making a big noise about Anjali Kapur's posing? I think it's cruel to put the whole burden of morality on the shoulders of women, and men having no role at all to play

Nobody objects to men smoking, drinking or being lecherous, but anything a woman does, becomes a moral issue It's time women shrugged off this mantle and didn't care about what the others say

I have seen men lifting their dhoti and blowing their nose, displaying the crotch in the bargain But if an intelligent, educated smart woman decides to do whatever she wants for some reason, she is immediately hauled over the coals

I wish her plenty of energy and strength — that's if she needs it

AMIT CHAUDHURI

Author

If she were good, I would hire her

And I am not being tight-lipped or taciturn

MAHESH JETHMALANI

Lawyer, with accent on big causes

Her competence is what matters If I needed a lawyer to fight my case and I felt she could handle it competently enough, I see no reason not to employ her Her morals do not come into question in this case

Much as I wish I had seen the pictures, if Kapur did indeed pose in a lawyer's robe, it was not right If she posed in a bikini or whatever, it would be perfectly all right If she were a criminal lawyer — which are the kind of cases my firm handles — and could do her job well, I see no reason not to employ her in my firm

PRASAD BIDAPPA

Fashion designer and choreographer

Hats off to her After all, it is her body and she is free to do what she wants to do As a practising lawyer, she is obviously a very bright girl, who wants to do modelling as well

I have no qualms about Anjali taking up my brief, though people could be prejudiced against her I don't think there is anything wrong in her pursuing both the careers as she seems to be a combination of beauty and brains

G. R. KHAIRNAR

Ex-Bombay MunicipalCommissioner and crusader

My employing her as my lawyer would depend entirely on her merit However, since the matter is not socially acceptable in our country, she could have refrained from doing it

There are certain customs and traditions that are followed in our society and there is no point in changing the status quo just for the sake of it

DR PRAKASH KOTHARI

Sexologist who needs no introduction

I would definitely have employed Anjali Kapur as my lawyer if she could handle the case well and competently

It is her intellect that has to be judged here What she does with her personal life is entirely her business

MAITREYI CHATTERJEE

Author and women's rights activist

My criteria for hiring her would be her professional capability and personal integrity While hiring a lawyer one would obviously go for the kind who would be immune to bribes from the opposing side If Anjali Kapur has shown her comepetence as a lawyer, I would hire her

As a woman I would not be comfortable with the thought of another woman voluntarily posing in the nude for a tasteless magazine After all, it is a matter of shame that she should expose herself for the sake of titillating men No matter how beautiful her body, or how aesthetically satisfying, it is voyeurism at its best

On the other hand, the Bar Secretary has laid down that if a man has two wives, it is his personal affair Does it not violate the Hindu Marriage Act according to which a man is not entitled to having two wives simultaneously?

Just because a woman strips for a magazine, it becomes more than a personal matter, and to make things worse, her profession is dragged into it Our legal custodians have claimed she has tainted the noble profession of

PARITOSH SEN

Artist

As an average citizen, I believe in a certain amount of professional ethics By that I mean your profession does put you through some kind of restrictions If someone were to ask my opinion about the works of my colleagues, I would not venture to comment on them, for it would go against the grain, professionally

While I do enjoy looking at disrobed young females, it is again a separate matter, and has nothing to do with a model's profession, or my own Besides, I have a clinical interest in the nudity of the female figure

Were I to consider giving my suit to her, I'd have to find out whether it has any repercussions on my own life or profession Her nudity has really nothing to do with her capabilities as a lawyer At the same time, she has a weakness for publicity, not minding when it comes to exhibiting herself

I'd like to know whether she is a professional model or a professional lawyer, and these two things don't go together As a lawyer it was not necessary for her to bare herself If she were a professional model, I would have no objections

After all, one has to be committed to one's chosen field of activity -- at all cost.

RAHUL DEV

Model, including for condoms

As long as she was merely trying to prove a point, there was nothing wrong in what she did She has every right to take up modelling as a hobby even while continuing as an advocate and it was unjust of her colleagues to make such a big issue of her posing in the semi-nude

I am myself an electronics engineer with the UB group while simultaneously working as a model

I would have no hangups whatsoever were Anjali to handle my case, though in a male dominated society like ours, there would be prejudices against her

I feel it is entirely up to her to choose the profession she finds most lucrative, without being subjected to unfair comments

SUNIL GANGOPADHYAY

Author, poet and Smiling Buddha of Bengali literature and life

My hiring her would depend entirely on the lawsuit Were I to seek legal help, I would not be too concerned about the lawyer's personal life, or what she chooses to do in her spare time

I would judge her on the basis of her merit in the legal profession To my knowledge, Anjali Kapur has the capabilities of being an effective lawyer

And if I know that my lawyer is dauntless, capable of breaking barriers and established conventions, why, I would all the more root for her! She'd be my first choice

RITU BERI

Fashion designer who, perhaps, should have been model

I don't know much about her as a lawyer, but if she is good at her work and if I had a case, of course, I would hire her

As far as I am concerned she could have gone on and posed in the nude, and not just semi-nude That would not have affected my choice of her as a lawyer because it is Anjali Kapur as a lawyer that I would be hiring and would not sit on judgement over her personal life I think if she did what she she felt like doing by posing so, there is absolutely nothing wrong about it

ANANDA SHANKAR

Music and dance composer, and game for most things

I would have no objections really There are two sides to every person the personal and the professional What she chooses to do in her private life should not make any difference to the way she functions as a lawyer

Why do we have to create so much fuss over a woman who had courage? She could have even been a doctor If Anjali Kapur can put up a case properly, I'd respect her for it

Inputs from Rajlakshmi Bhattacharyya, Geeta Sharma, Ramakrishna Upadhyay and Vaishali Honawar

RASOI

JIGGS KALRA

When one thinks of a curry in the north, it evokes an image of a shorbewali/tarriwali dish, be it qorma, saalan or makhani The word 'curry' has become synonymous with a spicy gravy Few are aware that the word owes its origin to the Tamil kari, which, contrary to popular belief, doesn't always have to be a thin gravy

The wonderful aspect of the kari of the south is that they are usually made with the minimum of fuss The kari below are, in fact, made without even peeling the garlic The recipes are from what is arguably the finest Indian restaurant in the land, Dakshin

KOZHI UPPAKARI

INGREDIENTS
16 Chicken drumsticks

The Marination
200 g / 7 oz Ginger
3 g / 1 tsp Turmeric powder
Salt

The Masala
90 ml / 6 tbs Gingelly (or any other cooking) oil
8 whole dried Red Chillies
3 sticks Cinnamon (1")
2 25 g / 1/2 tsp Mustard seeds
7 5 g / 1 tbs Fennel seeds
7 g / 1 1/2 tsp husked Urad daal
10 flakes Garlic
165 g / 1 1/2 cups Onions
110 g / 1 1/4 lb Tomatoes
15 g / 5 tsp Coriander powder
4 5 g / 1 1/2 tsp Red Chilli powder
3 g / 1 tsp Turmeric powder
Salt
16 Curry leaves

Serves: 4
Preparation time: 30 minutes
Cooking time: 25 minutes

PREPARATION
The chicken: Clean, remove the sinews, wash, pat dry and make three incisions on each drumstick (for better marination)
The marination: Scrape ginger, cut into small pieces and extract the juice Mix with turmeric and salt, rub the drumsticks evenly with this marinade and reserve for 20 minutes
The Masala Wipe red chillies clean with moist cloth Crush garlic without peeling Peel, wash and chop onions Remove eyes, wash and chop tomatoes Clean, wash and pat dry curry leaves

COOKING
Heat oil in a kadhai/wok, add whole dried red chillies, stir over medium heat until they become slightly darker (approximately 15-20 seconds), add cinnamon, mustard and fennel seeds, urad daal and garlic, stir for a few seconds, add 60 ml / 1/4 cup of water and bhunno/stir-fry until garlic is light golden Then add onions bhunno/stir-fry for three-four minutes, add the marinated chicken, stir, add 60 ml / 1/4 cup of water and bhunno/stir-fry until the fat leaves the sides and the masala nappes the chicken Now add the coriander, red chilli and turmeric powders (all dissolved in 45 ml / 3 tbs of water), stir, add salt and bhunno/ stir-fry until the chicken is cooked Remove and adjust the seasoning

TO SERVE
Remove to an urli and serve with Idduappam

KAI KARI MANDI

INGREDIENTS
250 g / 9 oz Butter beans
200 g / 7 oz Okra
200 g / 7 oz Tamarind
A generous pinch of Asafoetida
90 ml / 6 tbs Gingelly (or any other cooking) oil
8 whole dried Red Chillies
3 sticks Cinnamon (1")
4 5 g / 1 tsp Mustard seeds
4 g / 2 tsp Cumin seeds
3 5 g / 3/4 tsp Fenugreek seeds
12 flakes Garlic
165 g / 1 1/2 cups Onions
110 g / 1/4 lb Tomatoes
15 g / 5 tsp Coriander powder
4 5 g / 1 1/2 tsp Red Chilli powder
3 g / 1 tsp Turmeric powder
Salt
16 Curry leaves

Serves: 4
Preparation time: 1 45 hours
Cooking time: 35 minutes

PREPARATION
The butter beans: Wash and then boil until cooked but not squishy
The okra: Wash, pat dry, remove caps and tips and then cut into 1" long pieces

The whole dried red chillies: Wipe clean with moist cloth
The remaining vegetables: Crush garlic without peeling Peel, wash and chop onions. Remove eyes, wash and chop tomatoes Clean, wash and pat dry curry leaves
The tamarind: Reserve in 2 litres / 8 1/2 cups of water in which rice has been washed for 90 minutes
The asafoetida: Reserve in 30 ml / 2 tbs of water

COOKING

Heat oil in a kadhai/wok, add whole dried red chillies, stir over medium heat until they become slightly darker (approximately 15-20 seconds), add mustard, cumin and fenugreek seeds, stir, add garlic and bhunno/ stir-fry until garlic is light golden Then add onions *bhunno/*stir-fry until onions are light brown Add tomatoes and bhunno/ stir-fry for three-four minutes Then add the coriander, red chilli and turmeric powders (all dissolved in 45 ml / 3 tbs of water), stir, add salt and bhunno/ stir-fry until the fat leaves the sides Strain the tamarind water into the kadhai/wok, add the reserved asafoetida alongwith the water, bring to a boil and continue to boil over high heat for 20 minutes or until the gravy is of a medium-thick sauce consistency Now add the okra, stir, reduce to medium heat, cook for 2-3 minutes, add the curry leaves and the boiled butter beans and cook for 2-3 minutes Remove and adjust the seasoning

TO SERVE

Remove to an urli and serve with Idd1appam

NOTE: All weights are nett, that is post-preparation, and not gross ■

UDUPI RAJAGOPALACHARYA ANANTHAMURTHY, the last winner of the Jnanpith Award for literature, is one of the foremost cultural ambassadors of the country. Currently chairman of the Sahitya Akademi, Dr Ananthamurthy has penned outstanding Kannada novels like Samskara, Bharatipura and Avaste which have been translated into many Indian and foreign languages. A poet of great calibre, he is also known for his short stories like Ghatashraddha and Mauni. A former chairman of the National Book Trust and vice-chancellor of the Mahatma Gandhi University in Kottayam, Dr Ananthamurthy is hugely popular in American universities, where he regularly lectures on both Indian and English literature.

Mushtaq Ahmed

What is your idea of perfect happiness?
Talking with very dear friends who can disagree with me and who can provoke me enough to change my views

What is your greatest fear?
Having to spend a long time alone with a cynic

Who or what has been the greatest influence in your life?
Two people have profoundly moved and provoked me Gopalakrishna Adiga, a poet who writes in my language, and Ram Manohar Lohia

What do you dislike most in others?
An egoistic arrogance, which is not necessarily ideological

What do you dislike most in yourself?
An absentmindedness which sometimes makes me forget what I owe to people who are very dear to me

What is your most precious possession?
Pen

What objects do you always carry?
Pen and a book, which I may not read

What makes you most depressed?
Many times my doing nothing and my feeling of helplessness in not being able to carry out my obvious duties

What do you dislike most on your appearance?
My boyish plumpness

What is your favourite word?
Two words in Kannada Aala and gahana (deep, and profound)

What is your favourite journey?
Back to my village near Thirthahalli in Karnataka, which I rarely visit

What is your favourite dream?
Wandering in the woods which I did as a child

What is your nightmare?
Failing in my mathematics paper

What or who is the greatest love of your life?
It's different at different times My father was a constant preoccupation in my life when he was alive and also after death

What is your source of sustenance?
A sense of surprise about myself when I do things I had not foreseen

On what occasions do you lie?
When I don't want to hurt an acquaintance I don't lie to friends

What is your greatest regret?
That I did not cultivate unsociability, a capacity to be alone sometimes

What has been your happiest moment?
When I have written a good story or a poem, and when I have made somebody I care happy

What brings tears to your eyes?
Bhakti (which I hide)

How do you relax?
Often listening to music or reading a book

What do you envy most in others?
Perpetual capacity for creativity like that of a musician But I have to wait for it

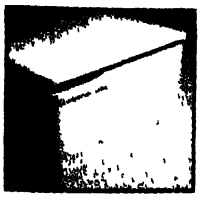
How would you like to be remembered?
As someone who didn't hesitate to ask the most inconvenient questions

How would you like to die?
Without much suffering, suddenly

What do you dislike most in others?

An egoistic arrogance, which is not necessarily ideological

How would you like to be remembered?



As someone who didn't hesitate to ask the most inconvenient questions

What is your nightmare?

Failing in my mathematics paper

Presenting the new Cold Gold Deluxe.

The idea is beauty with an accent on utility

The only 165 lt refrigerator in its class with a soft look and all white interiors From the flush recessed door handle to the crystal clear vegetable and butter trays this refrigerator says it all in terms of style Besides sporting a whole new host of flexible features like the new shelf-flap.

Soft looks.
All white interiors.
And very, very flexible.

That can be raised to create room for additional bottles Or even a tall jug A snugger. Which holds your bottles in place So they don t shake or tumble when you close the door

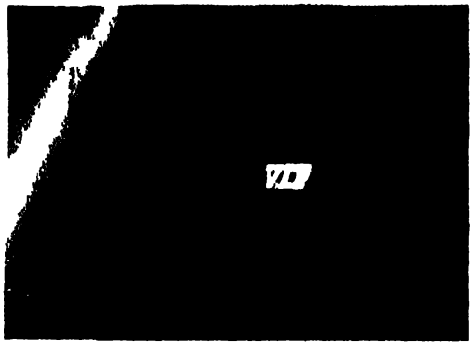
There s even an extra mini-shelf on the door To hold small items Or the odd chocolates

And the moisture control. Which lets you adjust the moisture level in your vegetable crisper So vegetables stay fresh Longer

Plus adjustable shelves that let you design the interiors of your Cold Gold Deluxe The way you want it

What s more, all this comes with the advantages of PU F

The new Cold Gold Deluxe from Godrej.

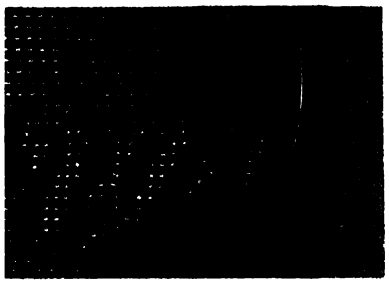


Any way you look at it, it s a winner

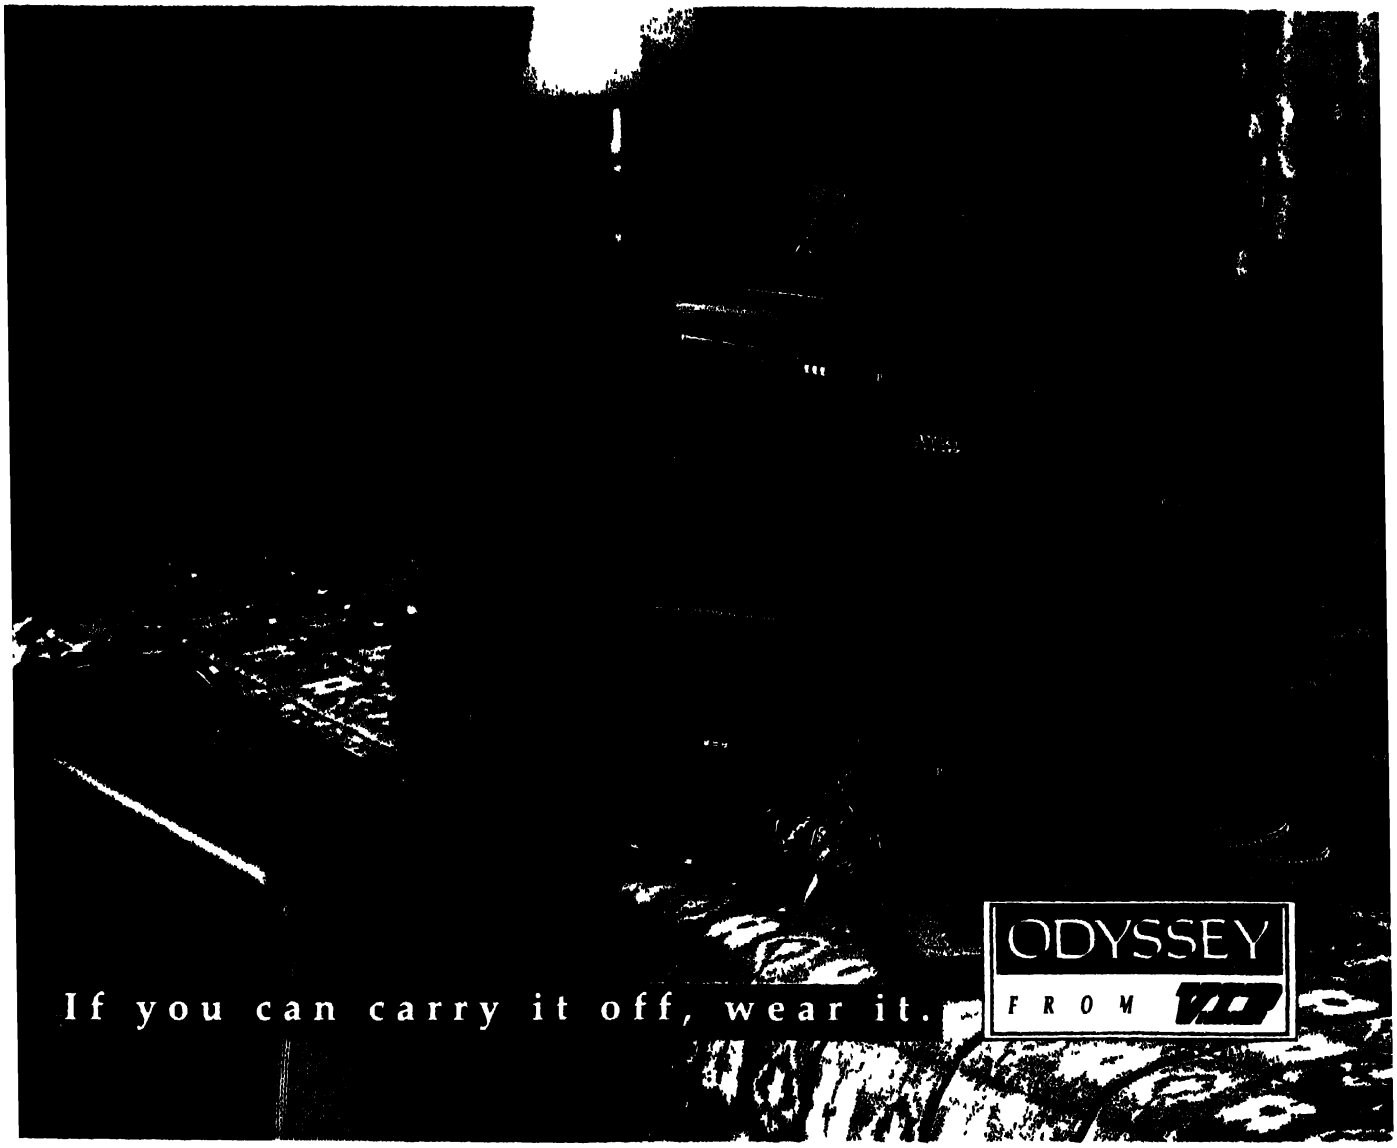
Godrej REFRIGERATORS
THE PROMISE OF GOOD LIVING

COLD GOLD
Deluxe
FLEXIBLE REFRIGERATOR

HTA 2446 95



SUITABLE TRAVEL WEAR FOR A PALACE-ON-WHEELS HOLIDAY



Pack in the lifestyle of a Maharaja With Odyssey From VIP

It's more than just luggage It's a symbol of luxury

The smoothest ride on wheels Check the plush interiors The impeccable finish The unexpected details When you are travelling first class, you've got to wear the style to match

Suitcases Rs 1445/- onwards Briefcases Rs 1125/- onwards Vanity Cases Rs 1245/-

The Telegraph

POST MORTEM

To Live Life Yet

■ 'Life at 80' (January 29) made delightful reading as it was peppered with R K. Narayan's ready wit.

It is true, old age to most brings visions of grey hair, wrinkled skin and suffering But to some it is also a time for enjoyment and relaxation, after retirement one can pursue one's hobbies

What is, however, frightening is the prospect of becoming useless in the eyes of society and family All their toils in life are forgotten — even by their own children — and they are left to themselves

Perhaps, a few more geriatric homes could take care of these helpless people

Debabrata Mohanty,
Balasore

■ Octogenarians are living symbols of the Tennysonian philosophy To strike, to live, to find and not yield

Old age is the beginning of a new life — with new hopes and new dreams They should serve as an inspiration to the idle youth of today.

It is people like Bhabatosh Dutta and others who make old age look like an adventure Their experiences make us appreciate the coming of old age.

Shabina Omar,
Calcutta

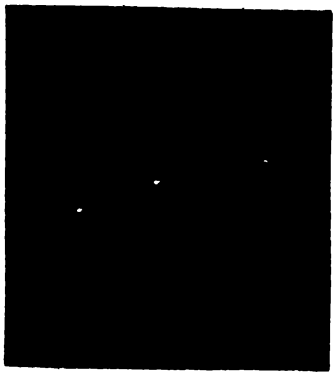
A symbol of hope

■ My grandfather is 92 and can still read the newspaper without his glasses, he writes a column for a local journal, walks miles with the aid of a stick and is full of life.

Such good health and vigour are possible only because of a disciplined life, regular exercise, a controlled diet and abstinence from alcohol and smoking

Md. Sajid Hossain,
Calcutta

■ It is sad the article did not mention Mother Teresa's name among the people above 80 although her contribution to society is incomparable It is a shame we forget such noble souls whose lives are dedicated for the betterment of society The active life of Mother is an example for others to follow



Manali Das,
Calcutta

■ In mentioning the names of some of the great personalities in their eighties, mention should have been made of Nirad C Chaudhuri who is as fit as a fiddle even in his nineties

Sanjiv Dutta,
Calcutta

■ R K. Narayan has woven a beautiful article on the autumn of his life Contrary to his views, respect for octogenarians is not for their old age, but for their wisdom they have gained

Manoj K. Jain,
Shyamnagar (W B)

Rupinder Sharma

PAGE 4

IT MAY not be that easy, but as they would say, throw away that old Ambi or Maruti and step into a Cielo, a Citroen, a Ferrari or an Opel Astra instead With the zooming in of foreign cars, the Indian market is being steered on another course altogether more style, more value for money

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
18 GILLIAN WRIGHT
20 RUSKIN BOND
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
28 RASOI
26 EVENT
30 FIRST PERSON

Cover Volkswagen, photograph by Rupinder Sharma

COVER STORY

Here They Are!

Foreign cars are parp-parping in, says Jayanta Roy Chowdhury*, much to the delight of the Indian market*

Photographs by Rupinder Sharma

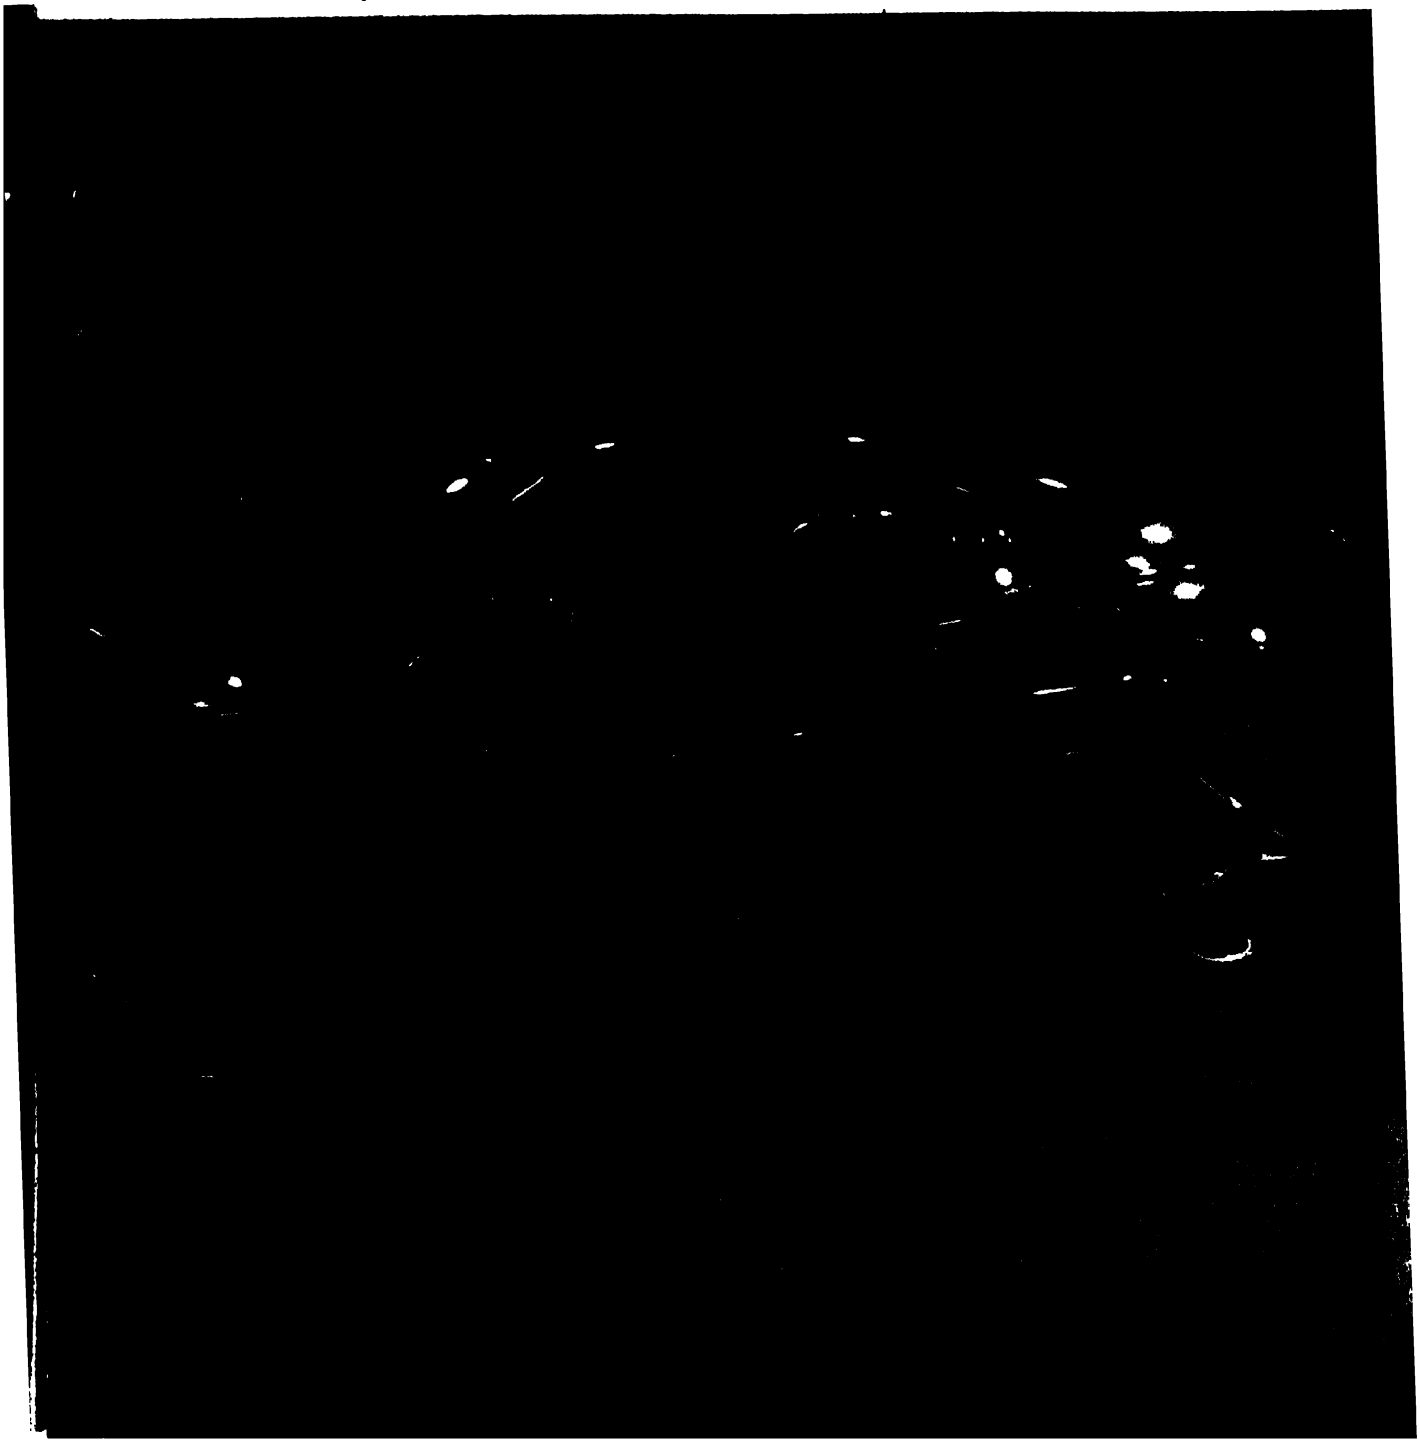
GLITTERING SLEEK AUDIS, MERCEDES BENZS AND PEUGEOTS will soon be vying for space with old, smoke-belching Ambassadors and Premier Padminis on Indian roads. By the turn of the century, say analysts, the Indian market will become the second largest car market in the world as more and more global car manufacturers make a beeline for the Indian market.

The Great Indian Car Bazaar that the big leaguers from Germany, the US, Japan and Korea wish to steer in, promises to be a marketing man's dream-come-true with about 16 new models being introduced in the country.

And a bewildering new range for the Indian consumer — used as he is to choosing from the few, outdated and overpriced models that are manufactured here.

Rising incomes, increasing urbanisation, easier financing and a breakdown of the public transport system have led to a boom in personal vehicles. The demand is expected to grow four-fold from a current 240,000 cars to over a million by the year 2001.

Mercedes The best in luxury



And the market size is slated to increase five-fold, from Rs 5,500 crore annually to k 25,000 crore by the turn of the century.

Studies conducted by the Association of Indian Automobile Manufacturers as well as by individual car makers like Daewoo, Mercedes and Peugeot, indicate that the market can be expected to grow by about 15 per cent in the next two years and then go steeply up to 33 per cent in 1997-98. Growth rates will remain between 20 per cent and 30 per cent thereafter.

Realising this, multinational automobile majors, which are facing stagnating demands in their home markets, are striking alliances with Indian partners to bring in their latest models And existing nervous domestic manufacturers are trying desperately to find ways

Ferrari: The new status symbol

Audi Smooth and sleek

POURING IT IN

Seven out of 10 buyers of new cars in this country purchase their automobiles with loans from a host of small and big financiers The reasons are obvious — Indians traditionally are low savers and they lack the hard cash needed to splurge on life's luxuries

"Cars were the exclusive preserve of the rich till the Eighties, when car financing really came into this country," says Dhruv Prakash, chief of DCM Finance Limited "We made cars a middle class necessity by providing ordinary people with loans to buy their dream cars " Obviously in the process the financiers made a neat packet

Financiers will give car loans to anybody whose income is three times the monthly instalment payable and who has a record of financial stability The interest rates are, of course, extremely high Financiers say they charge a flat rate of 10-12 per cent on the loaned amount But the innocuous words "flat rate" mean that the interest charged works out to a compounded rate of 19-23 per cent!

Financiers give out car loans worth Rs 3,000 crore every year and this is expected to go up six-fold to Rs 18,000 crore by the beginning of the next century

Car financing has acted as a catalyst in fuelling demand in the automobile market, a fact which every car manufacturer admits readily "Without them, Maruti would not have been a success story," admits a Maruti spokesperson

But what made these financiers come forth in such large numbers suddenly? A change in the law which permits financiers to repossess the vehicles they finance in case a borrower refuses to pay back Earlier this was possible, but a financier had to go through a very difficult and cumbersome legal procedure At one stage financiers like Citibank reportedly had to use muscle gangs to get back defaulters' cars to survive

With such a large number of models coming in, marketeers will try every possible tactic to expand and sustain the market A price war in the car market is certainly on its way A Suzuki or a Maruti 800 which sells for Rs 1 80 lakh in India sells for about a lakh in West Asia Though taxes and duties account for about a third of an Indian car's price, it is still over-priced compared to similar cars abroad

The coming war will not only bring down prices, it will also eat into the profit margins of car companies and force them to find ways to make even cheaper cars, feel analysts They predict that there will be an eventual shake-out in the automobile industry "and quite a few players will take a tumble just as they did in Europe and the US in the Seventies and Eighties, when big companies like Chrysler and General Motors virtually collapsed"

Several car models such as the perennial favourite Ambassador are expected "to become history" One logical fallout will be the creation of well-defined segments

"The new market will be segmented into four basic sections — budget cars, family coupes, luxury cars and super-luxury salons," says R C Bhargava,

chairman of Maruti Udyog, the country s largest car maker

Market analysts expect Maruti 800 to continue to rule the roast in the budget car segment, which accounts for the largest chunk of the market, despite the car's price graph increasing sharply over the years And that is simply because of a lack of a viable competitor

The only competitors who have announced their decision to move into this segment are Telco which plans to go in for an indigenous design, Bajaj which is still scouting around for a partner and Uno, which Premier Automobiles hopes to make in collaboration with the Italian car maker, Fiat

Unconfirmed reports, however, say Renault too may bring in its Twingo model in collaboration with the Hinduja-owned Ashok Leyland company The European small car is, however, currently facing stiff competition from cheap Japanese cars in its own home market

Waiting in the wings and checking out what the Indian market has in store are big names like Ferrari, Daihatsu and Fuji But so far the two door 1000 cc Uno may pose the only real threat to the Maruti hegemony Bhargava does not feel threatened "Competition will not overwhelm Maruti We will remain the market leaders"

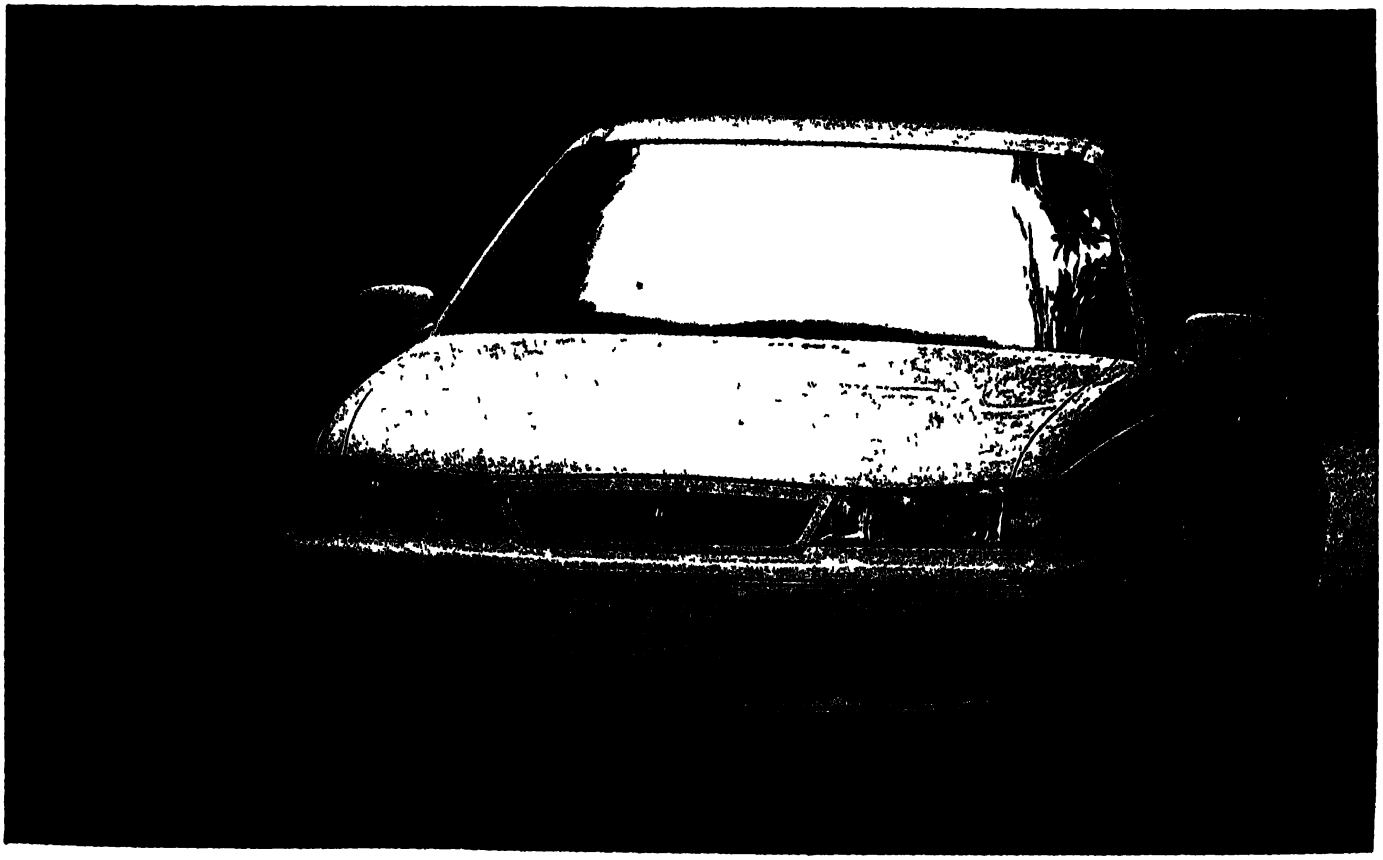
An industry analyst, S K Ghosh, adds "Perhaps, the term 'budget cars' is a misnomer in the Indian context With Maruti making virtually everything needed to turn out a car here in India, it will be very difficult for any other car maker to beat them in terms of costs, specially if they try to import parts and assemble here"

If rival car manufacturers wish to duplicate the Maruti model of building everything here, then they will have to invest heavily But with global interest rates going up this will prove to be a 'prohibitively costly affair'

Realising this quite a few well-known budget car makers, including Citroen and Volvo, backed out at the last moment after making quite a few preliminary studies and holding long-winded discussions with Indian business leaders

Most car makers have consequently targeted the family and luxury segments There is, of course, another reason for foreign car makers to target the costlier family segment where prices are expected to range between Rs 3 5 lakh and Rs 5 lakh

Projections prepared by DC M Daewoo and Escher Motors estimate that the maximum growth would be in this segment from some 45,000 cars annually to about 3 lakh, a more than six-fold rise in just five years



Entering the family segment are Peugeot 309 to be made by Premier Automobiles, Cielo from DCM Daewoo and Volkswagen Gl to be made by Volkswagen AG and Escher Motors These cars are expected to pose a tough challenge to Maruti's Esteem and Hind Motor's Contessa which at present are the only cars available in this segment

Says Murad Ali Baig, a former automobile marketeer and currently columnist for a leading Bombay-based newspaper chain, "Each of these new cars is an engineer's delight and extremely popular abroad I would not give much to a bookie asking for bets on the survival of cars like the Contessa"

However, even the manufacturers of Contessa are fighting hard to face the challenge Market sources say they are tying up with Mitsubishi to remodel and retool their unwieldy car into a sleeker, more powerful machine to be sold at the same price Contessa, which has the body of the Seventies' model Vauxhall and Eighties' Isuzu engine has been badly hit ever since a host of cars in this range started coming into the market

The costlier luxury segment with prices between Rs 5 and Rs 7 5 lakh, will feature Opel Astra to be

Cielo Move over, Maruti 1000

Jogindar Chawla

Maruti manufacturing unit and (inset) R.C Bhargava, chairman, Maruti manufactured jointly by General Motors and Hindustan Motors and Audi 1800 cc to be made by Eicher But the true blooded Indian industrialists, vying for a place in the Asian Fortune 500 list will of course, book one of the cars which are being dubbed 'super-luxuries'

The Goenkas, the Singhanias and Chhabrias will get the opportunity to buy Mercedes Benz E-220, Audi 6 (1800 cc) and Rover Montegos by the middle of next year when the first batches of these cars will roll out of their factories in India

At prices over Rs 8 lakh and reaching upto Rs 20 lakh, these cars will have every amenity conceivable A total electronic system to control everything from push-back seats to winding up windows, anti-lock braking systems and dashboards which open up on impact and, of course, an air-conditioned interior and a travelling mini-bar

Manufacturers say special add-ons can be ordered that will add up to the final price by anything between Rs 2 lakh to 10 lakh Special lighting, Bose speaker systems, collapsible beds, in-built televisions, videos, word-processors and even tiny computers which fold into the armrest are among features which can be ordered

But besides the huge domestic market most car makers from the West feel they can use their low cost Indian operations to take on competition in the Bhargava does not feel threatened. 'Competition will not overwhelm Maruti. We will remain the market leaders'

Asia-Pacific region from cheaper cars made in the Far East Volkswagen vice-president, Lutz Wagner, in fact goes to the extent of saying, "India is our number one priority operation "

However, most car manufacturers are merely trying to set up assemblyline operations taking advantage of the new government policy which permits import of knocked-down kits at a 50 per cent duty Investment in kit assembly operations can be as low as a few crores of rupees This explains why car dealers like Sai and Autoriders are thinking of going in for assemblylines

This, perhaps, is another reason why the newcomers are going in for the upper-end of the market At a 50 per cent duty, assembled budget cars will simply not be able to take on the Maruti 800, in which something like 85 per cent of the components are

MARUTI REVS UP

With a host of state-of-the-art cars entering the Indian market, automobile giant Maruti Udyog Limited is readying itself to take on the challenge.

Next month, Maruti chief R.C. Bhargava will be meeting directors of the Suzuki company, which has a 50 per cent stake in Maruti, to discuss future strategies.

Maruti wants another Rs 1,500 crore and new car designs to set up a second factory which will churn out Suzuki's latest models for Indian roads in a bid to shake off the threat posed by Uno, Peugeot, Telco and Volkswagen

Maruti knows its market share (at present about 60 per cent) is bound to slip. Even the company chief admits. "By the turn of the century we will have lost some of our share. .the incoming competition is tough, very tough."

Analysts estimate Maruti will lose about 15 to 20 per cent of its share of the market within the next five years and be forced to lower prices as well as scrap controversial schemes like 'Takal' which provide for on-the-spot delivery of cars on payment of a premium of Rs 30,000.

The signs are showing already With the introduction of Cielo, reports indicate that several thousand customers have cancelled earlier bookings of Maruti Esteem. Nevertheless, it will remain the biggest single entity in the Indian car market and continue to affect every single decision taken by rival car makers. As Rahul Bajaj, chief of the Bombay-based Bajaj Autos, said recently, "Most car makers are unwilling to take on Maruti."

The company which was the brainchild of the late Sanjay Gandhi has to date faced a protected market with government licensing norms not allowing any other vehicle manufacturer to enter the budget car segment

THE DRIVING FORCE

Uno	Premier Auto & Fiat of Italy	Rs 5 lakh	Two door, 1000 cc, robotised engine, five-speed synchronised engine, spacious body	Popular in West Europe, specially with the younger generation, will compete with Maruti 800
Peugeot 390	Peugeot & Premier Auto	Rs 4 8 lakh	Four cylinder, 1360 cc engine, excellent shock absorbers, tough body	Should do well on bumpy Indian roads, good buy for money, a challenge to Esteem, 118 NE and Contessa
Cielo	Daewoo & DCM	Rs 4 59 lakh	Adjustable seats, microprocessor controlled fuel injection system A deluxe version offers power steering and automatic transmission	Will compete with Maruti Esteem and Maruti 1 000
Opel Astra	Hindustan Motors & GM	Rs 6 7 lakh	1600 cc car, split folding seat, extra large boot, solid body Slightly dated model is not doing particularly well abroad	Will compete with Zen and Audi A4
Rover Montego	Sipani and Rover	Rs 10-11 lakh	Power steering, good suspension system, turbo-charged engine and big boot	Styled on Austin Montego model of the 1980s, considered over-priced by market analysts, will be a poor match to Mercedes Benz and Audi 6
Mercedes Benz E 220	Mercedes Benz and Telco	Rs 12-18 lakh	Electronically adjustable seats, anti-locking brakes, catalytic converters, airbags on wheels and dashboards which open out on impact	Possibly the best buy in the super-luxury segment according to automobile engineers, will compete with Audi 6

made in India and hence are cheaper

However, industrialists realise that despite the plethora of choice being unleashed on the Indian consumer, their assemblyline operations or even the more ambitious indigenisation programmes will not really put India on the global automobile map.

As a top executive from Pinninfarina, the Italian car design company, said, "Till you actually design or develop your own car nobody will take your automobile industry seriously. For us you will remain just a large licensed market, not a feared competitor like the Koreans or the Japanese "

Most countries either try to develop their own cars through indigenous research projects or else shop for designs from European design houses Asian 'tigers' like South Korea, Malaysia and Indonesia, as well as several South American countries, started out by adopting the "shop for a car design" route and graduated to their own designs

The truly Indian car will probably remain a dream for quite some time as the country's industrialist community rushes to tie up with one or other global automobile giant But then as the Pinninfarina designer said, "With India possibly having some of the best brains in the world, can we really keep you down forever?" ■

PUFFING OUT THE HABIT

Shameem Akthar reports on the 'world's first herbal' cigarette which may wean a way tobacco addicts from the killer habit

A mouthful of herb-tanged incense and your lungs expand to suck in that last puff from Nirdosh—a cigarette that is packed with ayurvedic herbs, and the promise to dissuade you from tobacco smoking!

As a brand the fledgling Nirdosh or 'Not guilty' is less than a decade old But its ayurvedic components are intrinsic to the hoary medical texts of Sushruta Samhita and Charaka And, no, this is not an advertisement for the brand, but as an ayurvedic doctor, Dr R. Prabhu, who had never heard of Nirdosh, confirmed even vintage ayurvedic texts like Vagbhatt have copious references to a herbal smoking alternative which not only staves you off from an addiction to nicotine in the cell-killing tobacco, but also relieves chronic asthmatic patients from their tiresome breathing problems

On whether a herbal alternative may spawn addictive habits which in turn may seek out the soul destructive recourse to drugs, or even a life-dependence on branded cigarettes, Dr Prabhu says, "No! No! Herbal smoke is a well-known alternative and you will notice that its ingredients, such as tulsi, are safe, specially if instructions for preparation are adhered to with textbook precision

"Also, these ingredients are regularly used as a base in all ayurvedic medication which everybody, even in the West, is finding out is more effective than allopathy. So where is the question of addiction?" But, then, she worships all things ayurvedic

All along the western coast, particularly in the tribal and rural belt that snakes across the Konkan region, even women inhale the sweet-sharp smoke of Chadachi pana leaves It is a com-

Gautam Patole

As a brand the fledgling Nirdosh or 'Not guilty' is less than a decade old. But its ayurvedic components are intrinsic to the hoary medical texts of Sushruta Samhita and Charaka

mon practice to wrap up bodies with these medical weeds which, apart from the household tulsi, also include the common ajmo, yastimadhu, sugandhvala, haridra, tendu leaves, cinnamon, kustha and cloves.

Other ancient worthies who have made specific reference to these are Acharya Vagbhatt in his Astang Hradaya, Acharya Sarangdhar in his Sarangdhar Samhita and Pandit Bhavmishra in his Bhavparakash

The list runs on as the tradition is continued even today by other faithful practitioners of traditional Indian medicine many of whom have written lengthy, approbative testimonials to Natvarbhai Madhavlal Bhavsar, the brain behind the herbal filter Bhavsar was just like any other small-scale bidi manufacturer, who was content with steady business which would never have dried up as long as smokers puffed their money and life away

But then, he was hit by the incongruity of selling a product which warned buyers from itself — the ineffectual tag that said 'smoking is injurious to health' And disturbed by selling a harmful habit to a gullible but willing public, he decided to switch over to a product that now alluringly suggest that "you enjoy smoking, the Nirdosh way" Well-known smokers who had puffed their lungs away like Bal Thackeray and writer Dom Moraes are said to have decided to shift allegiance to the herbal filters

All along the western coast, particularly in the tribal and rural belt that snakes across the Konkan region, even women inhale the sweet-sharp smoke of Chadachi pana leaves

Even doctors like J R Goril, who did not practise what he preached in that he was a chain smoker, has now embraced the herbal habit He maintains that these filters have weaned him away from smoking tobacco altogether This herbal devotee, however, insists that the smouldering ashes of Nirdosh be "carefully deposited" Since the product has crushed herbs wrapped in the form of an ungainly bidi, the manufacturers, too, caution that "burning fragments may fall while smoking"

Other ayurveds buttress Bhavsar's claims on his dream product which is marketed purely by word-of-mouth. A dean of the Gujarat Ayurvedic University at Jamnagar recommends these bidis for controlling chronic bronchitis

Another medicine-man, Dr P. Shah, recalls the experience of a group of mountaineers on a Himalayan expedition He relates how his associates, die-hard smokers, found out the hard way that smoking tobacco at 12,000 feet above the sea-level can make one feel giddy and uneasy. Nirdosh, apparently, offered the much-needed psychological relief to them

But Dr Mayank Shah, a naturopath, points out that a herbal alternative may soothe the needs of mild smokers whose dependence on the cigarette is limited to the sensual pleasure they derive from feeling the burning smoke rush into their lungs or just see the white rings swirl away at each puff.

It may not be the perfect panacea for the dyed-in-the-tobacco chain

WHAT THE WISE MEN SAID

Vinitha Mathur, director of the Health Food Stores, which has tickled people's palate by stocking natural, wholesome food, also markets Nirdosh.

She recalls that some years ago there was a mild flurry among the medical fraternity, with a few doctors questioning its efficiency and wondering if people were being taken for a ride, even if it was only an inexpensive one at Rs 6 a packet.

She confesses, "I withdrew the product from the shelves for a short period. But it's back, since a section of doctors had tested it on their patients and testified that herbal filters were mentioned in ancient medical texts."

And here is what the authoritative texts on ayurveda have to say: Sushruta Samhita, which is placed around 1,000 BC, and which translator K.L. Bhisagratha says, relates the "origin of medicine as disclosed to the holy Dhanvantari to his disciple Sushrut" instructs that "properly administered dhum pana or herbal smoking is followed by a distinct alleviation of diseases, while its excessive use is followed by aggravation or non-amelioration of the disease and is ate and the throat and a burning sensation in the body, thirst, fainting fits and vertigo and infection of the ear, nose and the eye and unparalleled weakness of the body."

The venerable Sushruta also firmly and explicitly instructed on the three methods of inhaling smoke, even suggesting how the smoke should sit And he issued a loud hands-off for those "afflicted with anger, fear, bereavement, fatigue and in a heated state of the body and after fasting...in cases of poisoning, haemorrhage, alcoholism, burning sensation of the body, thirst, jaundice, dryness of the palate, vomiting, head disease, eructation, urinary complaints, abdominal enlargement with dropsy, inflation of the abdomen and in respect of infants, old, enfeebled persons, as well as those treated with purgatives. It is also forbidden to ancient women, those suffering from insomnia or parallel condition of the body as well as to those suffering from any kind of cachexia."

You may have rightly gleaned that the ancients ruled out against smoking per se.

Charaka Samhita, another book revered by ayurveds translated by P.V. Sharma, painstakingly lists the ingredients to be used in the herbal stick — patlika, kuphaja, flower stalk, and so on to be powdered together and rolled into a piece of linseed cloth, smeared with ghee followed by an intake of milk or water added with jaggery. Charaka too cautions against any form of smoking with even a little kapha in the body.

Maybe the manufacturers should highlight these factors even if it means cleaving their already small band of loyalists into sceptics and devotees.

Mega-size cigarettes being burnt to protest the introduction of a special brand for women smokers whose blood may contain a high nicotine-level accumulated after years of sucking on cigarette butts

By the time a cigarette addict reaches for help, often after his health baulks at the incessant nicotine intake, his dependence on tobacco has become a physiological need Weaning a tobacco lover from his killing habit can trigger off withdrawal symptoms such as lack of sleep, bowel disturbances, extreme nervousness, irascibility

Shah recommends a programme culled from 24 natural remedies which takes off with a homeopathic solace and an ear acupuncture to scale down the patient' anxiety He is also put on an anti-acid diet to neutralise the poison accumulated in the blood followed by herbal and floral medications

Where the motivation to keep off cigarettes is strong, the anti-smoking course boasts a success rate of 90 per cent

Well-known smokers who had puffed their lungs away like Bal Thackeray and writer Dom Moraes are said to have decided to shift allegiance to the herbal filters

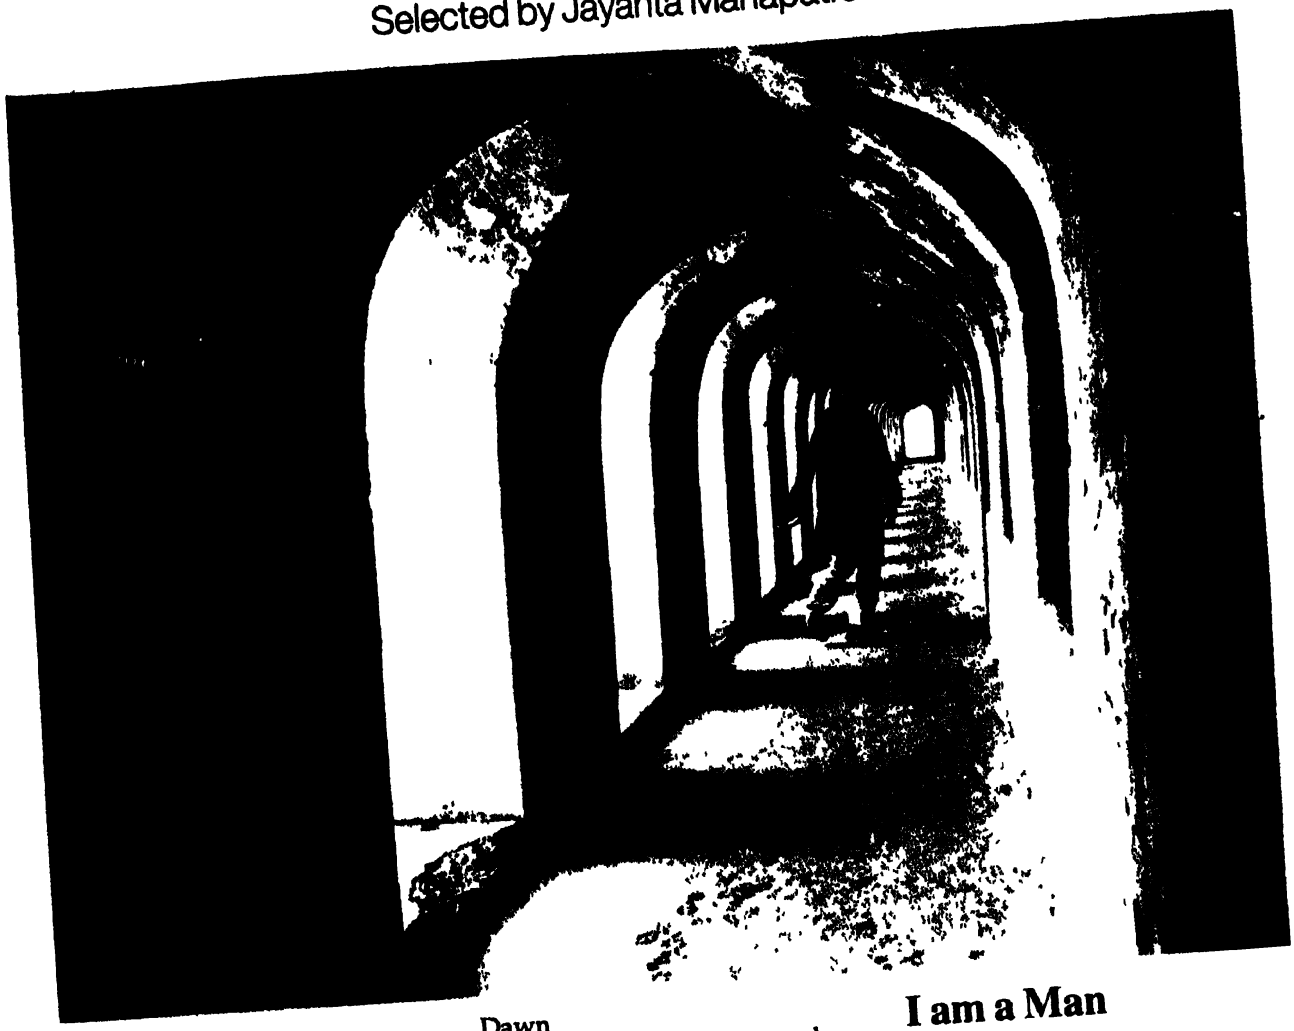
Shama Dalal, a homeopath, agrees with Dr Shah's estimation of Nirdosh's limitations as an anti-smoking alternative "It really will not offer relief to a hard-core smoker because smoking tobacco is a disease Homeopathy has various regimens to cure people of it "

She is reluctant to mention the drugs used in these programmes since it might set off health freaks on a binge of self-medication "But," she offers, "variations of tabacum and nux vomica are used "

Meanwhile, Bhavsar continues to experiment with his dream product which is concocted from a list of 22 herbs which have been mentioned in the medical scriptures Interestingly, apart from offering routine relief from cold, cough, gastric trouble, bad breath, respiratory problems, the use of Nirdosh is also said to offer relief for the wear and tear of a stressful lifestyle

Bhavsar's pamphlets also insist that apart from whipping up a good appetite, Nirdosh actually induces in smokers an active dislike for cigarettes To vouchsafe this claim, Bhavsar produces the results of a pilot study conducted by Shalya Shalakya Department of the Akhandnagar Ayurvedic College which states that Nirdosh contains all the herbs mentioned under the chapter, Dhoompan, in ayurvedic text and that it does turn smokers off from tobacco

Vinitha Mathur, director of the prestigious health food shop in Bombay who has helped create a fad for natural and herbal habits, says she has a small band of loyal buyers An occasional mention in the press spurts its sales, indicating that at least some smokers want to give up their lung-burning habit



Mathur thrust a few packets of Nirdosh on her reluctant father who was an avid smoker A fortnight after smoking Nirdosh, he was off tobacco But he reverted to his habit after throwing off the Nirdosh packets

Since, as Mathur wryly notes, his motivation to give up smoking was not strong enough

Nirdosh has seen many changes since its birth — from a sharp medicinal flavour to a milder one now Even the pruned herbs within this filter bidi which Bhavsar proudly calls the world's first herbal filter puff inhaler, have changed on and off And Bhavsar continues to tinker with his creation as his band of loyal herbal smokers continues to grow steadily ■

POETRY

Selected by Jayanta Mahapatra

Dawn

Dawn
A rosebud sleeps, petals tightly furled,
Sepal fingers cupping it gently, Protectingly,
Until
Roused by the soft warm flush of morning,
A faint stirring signals its awakening

Dawn
The woodland's purple plumage turns anew
Slowly to olive and brown,
Mad red,
Land sienna,
Meadow green comes peeping out of grey haze
Into the sun and sleep-encrusted view

Dawn
The light wind drifts the smoke from tiny huts,
While beyond, a lazy stream glints Emerald.
Tall reeds .
Like criss-cross bayonets stand rigid guard
With the sun on each serpentine bend

Centuries cascade on,
Another day dawns
Alone, unnoticed —
City-hands bound to perpetual agitation
These sweeps of light cannot undo
'Where, O where are the tears of the world?'
The whistle of money beckons me on ..
Dawn?

Nandini Das

I am a Man

I have written a petition full of grievances
all the grievances I could form
all that I felt and met — those were the hurdles I had to stop at

Were I a horse
I would have jumped come back to my stable would stand erect jerk my flank
strop my hooves
and nonchalantly browse.

But I am a man

Utpal

COMPUTERS
THE
NEW QUALIFICATION
CHANDRA DATA SYSTEMS
A complete house of Computer Education
Prepare you for Today
29/B Tarachand Dutt Street
Calcutta 700 073
Opp Mohammed Ali Park
Ph 238-7505 / 231-2445

The Telegraph Classifieds

Admission On
SESSION 1995-96
From Classes NURSERY TO XII (ALL STREAMS)
(CBSE — Delhi Board)
We provide
- English Medium Co-ed
- Trained, Experienced, Motivated Teachers
- Individual Care
- Transport Facilities
- Computer Education
- Hostel Facilities

 Transfer Cases Accepted

Contact Dr. Pandey
Salt Lake Collegiate School
BG-101, Salt Lake City,
Cal-91 Ph 37-1916

EXECUTIVE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM
- Certificate in Adv. Computer Applications

Course Contents
Computer Fundamental, MS-DOS, Windows, Word perfect, MS Excel (Spreadsheet), Foxbase (DBMS)
★ Specially designed for office uses
★ Extensive Practicals.
Fees Rs 1950/-

NSCT
National School of Computer Technology
2, Raja Basanta Roy Road (between Rashbehari Crossing & Lake Market), Cal-26,
Ph 76-7610(Office)
Opening shortly at Dum Dum
Classes 7-30–9 a m
6-30–8 p m
Sundays Open

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE OF HOTEL MANAGEMENT

ANNOUNCES
DIPLOMA IN HOTEL & CATERING MANAGEMENT
(1995-98 SESSION)

THE INSTITUTE : International Institute of Hotel Management (I.I.H.M) is formed with the object of imparting international standard of 'Education & Training' in Hotel & Catering Management. The Institute has an impressive infrastructure including an eminent faculty team. I.I.H.M. is one of the best Institutes of its kind in India.

COURSE DURATION : 3 YEARS FULL TIME (Monday to Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.)

INDUSTRIAL TRAINING : The students would be put on Industrial Training in 5 star hotels in India & Nepal for 6 months.

PLACEMENT : The Institute would arrange for campus interview by the top Indian and International hotel chains.

MINIMUM QUALIFICATION : Pass or appeared in class 12 level Examination from a recognised Board. Age limit : 23 years.

ADMISSION PROCEDURE : Candidates have to appear for a written Test to be held at Calcutta, Bhubaneswar, Asansol, Siliguri, Patna, Bombay, New Delhi, Madras and Kathmandu. Candidates qualifying in the written test would be called for group discussion and personal interview at Calcutta at their own cost.

HOSTEL : I.I.H.M. has seperate well maintained hostels for boys and girls close to the campus.

COURSE COMMENCING FROM : JULY 1995

PROSPECTUS & FORM : Prospectus is available on payment of Rs. 100/- (Rs. 120/- by M.O. only) from the Institute.

I I H M
INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE OF HOTEL MANAGEMENT
CF–192 Salt Lake City, Calcutta–700 064
(near Swimming Pool) Ph: 359-6065

Join Quest's
interactive
MULTIMEDIA
ANIMATION
2D-3D GRAPHICS
LAN/DIP/CAD
COMMERCIAL APPLICATIONS
Courses
- Highly Rated Faculty
- Placement Assistance
- 100% Practical Time
- Avail upto 40% in Scholarships

Contact
QUEST INSTITUTE OF ADVANCED COMPUTING
Suite- 2A, 12A Camac St
Cal-17 Ph 242-1134

We take your international career as seriously as you do.

DIPLOMA IN
- International Airline
- Travel, Tourism and Hotel Management
- Airhostess & Flight Purser Course

HOTEL INSTITUTE MONTREUX SWITZERLAND

Conducted by:
Trade-wings
INSTITUTE • OF • MANAGEMENT

Calcutta: 1, Crooked Lane, Room No 108, 1st floor, behind Great Eastern Hotel Cal-69, Ph 243-0625/0415 Fax 91-33-2487825

Asansol: 1st floor Mritunjoy Bhawan 56/2, West Apcar Garden Asansol-713304 Ph 20-5701 / 2532

Gariahat: 1/1, Dover Lane, Calcutta — 700 019 Ph 440-6356

ADMISSION OPEN

INNER EYE ❑ Bejan Daruwalla

Aries
March 21—April 20

Ganesha says, work pressures and demands upon your time and money will be simply stupendous Get ready to serve selflessly if you want to be happy, or, you could be enmeshed in all sorts of complications Those in collaborations and alliances could have a breakthrough

Taurus
April 21—May 20

Matters related to children, hobbies, entertainment and amusement have top priority You will absorb tensions and go right ahead and that's the best thing to do Rendezvous, secret alliances and behind-the-scene activities keep you mighty busy

Gemini
May 21—June 20

There are two trends working at maximum potential The home or office could be in for renovation/decoration/alteration/buying/selling/leasing/renting and so on You will also go all out in your work to make new inroads, bag a contract, please the boss and so on

Cancer
June 21—July 20

Be sure to communicate and contact correctly and vibrantly, as, practically, everything will depend upon it Those in business can expect new deals and contracts The professionals can look forward to more clients and work Next two weeks are even better

Leo
July 21—August 21

The focus will be on family, finance, income and taxes You will have to hurry your strokes, so to say, because so much will have to be done in so short a time Health safeguards are imperative if you want to make the best of this week March 20-21 are outstanding for getting work done

Virgo
August 22—September 22

The personal and the professional now clash and also converge, making matters quite difficult for you, as well as others So many things are going on Being objective but not cold, should be your guiding principle, though it would be undoubtedly difficult

Libra
September 23—October 22

You could well be in an introspective mood and could turn the searchlight within A journey is indicated in the next 30 days or so Many Librans will be attending to issues on health and happiness Old skins will be shed and new relationships could take over March 24 is lucky

Scorpio
October 23—November 22

Ganesha says changes in your job are likely Try to enlist support and sympathy of well-wishers and colleagues That's a trump card for you Many of you will be finalising plans as well as testing them out for real use The next week is definitely better for you

Sagittarius
November 23—December 20

Your chance to make a discovery starts now and continues right through 1995 So, if in research, discovery or invention, give it your best shot Creativity will be at white heat. Passions will cross the shore of no return. A plethora of activities and plenty of sustained action

Capricorn
December 21—January 19

It is certain that you are coming into your own, having learnt from past mistakes and disappointments, attending to the home and outside world, gaining in confidence and knowledge March 23-26 will be absolutely vital for you News from a distant place and a journey is likely

Aquarius
January 20—February 18

You do see light and love at the end of the tunnel Get finances in order and be prepared to take out time and energy for it Family affairs should receive top priority Many Aquarians will be trying out new ideas, schemes, plans, projects and the chances of success are good

Pisces
February 19—March 20

This is certainly a stock-taking time, making a balance-sheet of your life, coming to terms with it, but above all, getting ready to push ahead with all your might Friends and foes see a lot of you now Buying and selling will require discretion and bargaining of research, marriage and journeys.

BIRTHDAYS

March 23: The moon's last quarter enables you to [illegible] hand. You will have success. This is a good time to [illegible] decision of any sort.

March 24: Moon-Saturn sextile suggests prolific [illegible] and achievement. That should give you the confidence [illegible] right ahead.

March 25: Moon conjuncts Uranus-Neptune and [illegible] shows ambition, talent and triumph. It is time you will have [illegible] struggle for it.

TIME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code. ① MONDAY ② TUESDAY ③ WEDNESDAY ④ THURSDAY ⑤ FRIDAY ⑥ SATURDAY ⑦ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[redacted]
IC-741	0710	3, 5	IC-742	0940	3, 5
IC-743	0920	daily	IC-744	1150	daily
PF-701	1130	1 3 5 7	PF-702	1610	1, 3, 5, 7
[redacted]
M9 304/109	0855	1, 3, 5	M9 110/301	1900	1, 3, 5
[redacted]
PF-705	0730	2, 4, 6, 7	PF-706	1510	2, 4, 6, 7
[redacted]
PF-735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1
PF-737	0730	3, 5	PF-738	1740	3, 5
IC-721	1300	1, 3 5	IC-722	1540	1, 3 5
[redacted]
IC-771	0800	daily	IC-772	1140	daily
[redacted]
IC-544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2 7
IC-769	1525	1 3 5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5
[redacted]
IC-676	0730	daily	IC-675	0820	daily
D2-102	0905	daily	D2-101	0835	daily
9W-202	0920	1, 2, 3 4, 5, 6	9W-201	0840	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6
IC-273	1945	daily	AI-306	1840	5
9W-212	1945	daily	IC-274	1850	daily
D2-104	2005	daily	9W-211	1910	daily
AI-309	2035	6	D2-103	1935	daily
AI-681	2350	1
[redacted]
			IC-262	0815	2, 4, 7
IC-263	0700	daily	S2-025	0810	1, 2 3, 4 5 6
S2-026	0845	1, 2, 3, 4 5, 6	M9-303	0825	daily
M9-304	0855	daily	AI-682	0950	1
IC-812	1515	1, 3 5	S2-015	1015	1, 3, 5
S2-016	1555	1, 3 5	4S-806	1115	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6
IC-402	1715	daily	IC-401	1155	daily
4S-805	1745	1, 2, 3 4, 5, 6	S2-005	1855	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 7
IC-261	1900	2, 4, 7	M9-301	1900	daily
M9-302	1930	daily	IC-811	1930	1, 3 5
S2-008	1930	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 7	IC-264	2210	daily
[redacted]
PF-737	0730	3 5	IC-704	1430	3 5
IC-703	0800	3, 5	D2 181	1620	1, 3 5, 7
D2-181	1135	1, 3, 5 7	D2-183	1620	2, 4 6
D2-183	1135	2 4, 6	IC-702	1630	2, 4 6 7
4S-815	1145	1 2 3, 4 5 6	4S-816	1705	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6
IC-701	1240	2, 4, 6, 7	PF-738	1740	3, 5
[redacted]
IC-257	1150	4, 7	IC-258	1650	4 7
[redacted]
PF-735	0730	1	IC 712	1410	2 6
PF-737	0730	3 5	IC-704	1430	3 5
PF-705	0730	2 4 6 7	IC-708	1430	1 4 7
IC-703	0800	3 5	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
IC 707	0800	1, 4, 7	D2-181	1620	1, 3 5 7
IC-711	0800	2 6	D2 183	1620	2, 4, 6
D2 181	1135	1 3 5 7	IC-230	1650	daily
D2-183	1135	2 4 6	4S 811	1705	1 2 3, 4, 5, 6

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
4S-812	1145	1, 2 3 4, 5, 6	PF-736	1730	1
IC-257	1150	4, 7	PF 738	1740	3 5
IC-211	1240	4, 6	IC 258	1740	4 7
IC 229	1310	daily	IC-212	1740	4 6
[redacted]
IC-777	1600	2, 4 7	IC 778	2100	2 4 7
IC 769	1525	1, 3, 5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5
[redacted]
IC-707	0800	1 4 7	IC-256	1320	3 5
IC-255	0830	3 5	IC-708	1430	1 4 7
IC-253	1100	2, 6	IC-254	1550	2 6
[redacted]
IC-213	0910	2 4, 7	IG-213	1315	2 4 7
[redacted]
PF-735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1
[redacted]
IC-812	1515	1 3, 5	IC 811	1930	1 3 5
[redacted]
IC-542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
IC-544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2, 7
IC-765	1720	daily	D2-171	1045	daily
D2 172	1740	daily	IC 766	2220	daily
[redacted]
IC-769	1525	1 3, 5	IC 770	2120	1 3, 5
[redacted]
IC-249	1430	2 4 7	IC-249	1805	2, 4 7
IC-812	1515	1 3 5	IC-811	1930	1 3 5
[redacted]
IC-285	0640	3 5 7	IC-286	1100	2 4 6
[redacted]
IC-249	1430	2 4 7	I.. 249	1805	2 4 7
[redacted]
PF-705	0730	2, 2, 6 7	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
[redacted]
IC-255	0830	3 5	IC-260	1110	1 7
IC-259	0830	1, 7	IC-256	1320	3 5
IC-253	1100	2 6	IC 254	1550	2, 6
IC-211	1240	4 6	IC 212	1740	4, 6
[redacted]
IC-213	0910	2 4 7	IC-213	1315	2 4, 7
[redacted]
PF-737	0730	3 5	PF-738	1740	3, 5
[redacted]
IC-542	1115	1, 3, 5	IC-541	1030	1 3, 5
[redacted]
PF-735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1

FLIGHTS — INTERNATIONAL

[redacted]
RJ-185	1445	4	RJ 184	0705	4
[redacted]
KL-876	0420	7	KL-875	0235	7

[redacted]
IC-731	0855	2, 4, 6, 7	KB-106	1115	3
			KB-106	1215	5
KB-105	1125	2, 6	TG-313	1240	1, 3, 6
TG-314	1355	1, 3, 6	IC 732	1505	2, 4, 6, 7
AI-308	1950	5	AI-309	1925	6

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No.	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[illegible]
RO-078	2040	5, 7	RO-075	1035	5, 7
[illegible]
IC-225	1200	1	IC-226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2, 5	BG-697	1655	2, 5
[illegible]
BG-092	0850	4, 5	BG-091	0810	4 5
BG-092	1150	1, 2, 3, 6, 7	BG-091	1110	1 2, 3, 6, 7
IC-723	1250	1, 2, 3, 5, 6	IC-724	1520	1, 2, 3, 5 6
BG-094	1905	1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7	BG-093	1825	1, 2, 3, 5 6, 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1, 5	BG-095	2020	1, 5
[illegible]
IC-747	1115	1, 3, 5	IC-748	1455	1, 3, 5
RA-214	1400	4 7	RA-213	1315	4, 7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No.	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
■ [illegible]
BA-142	2050	3, 7	BA 143	1525	3, 7
■ MOSCOW
SU-538	1855	4	SU-537	1655	4
■ [illegible]
KB-106	1200	3	KB-105	1040	2, 6
KB-106	1300	5
■ [illegible]
SQ 415	2200	2 5	SQ-416	2040	2, 5
■ SOFIA
LZ 504	1750	4	LZ-503	1650	4
■ TOKYO
AI 306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure				Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah		Time	Dn
2311	19-15	Delhi-Kalka Mail		7-20	2312
3005	19-20	Amritsar Mail		7 55	3006
3003	20 35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad		13-00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya-Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat		16-15	2382
2303	9-15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun		16-15	2304
2301	16-30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues, Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun		10-45	2302
2305	13-45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat		12 50	2306
3073	23-00	Himgiri (Jammu-Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat, Arr Tues Wed & Sat		11 35	3074
5047	13-00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon Wed & Fri		4 30	5048
3009	20-30	Deen Express via Grand Chord		7 00	3010
3007	9-45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line		18 15	3008
3049	13-20	Amritsar Express		15-30	3050
3039	21-00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line		5 20	3040
3019	16-05	Gorakhpur Express		11-55	3020
3021	21-45	Mithila Express		5 00	3022
5659	17-35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express		6-30	5660
3317	6-10	Black Diamond Express		21 25	3318
3029	17-11	Coalfield Express		10 30	3030
3035	18-20	Asansol Express		8 45	3036
3031	21-05	Danapur Express		5-50	3032
3025	23-00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday Arr Friday		11-35	3026
3071	22-30	Jamalpur Express		5-10	3072
3015	9-55	Sentinlistan Express		15-40	3016
1159	15-25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri, Sat & Sun, Arr Mon Tues & Wed		6-50	1160
1171	15-25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon, Tues & Wed, Arr Fri, Sat & Sun		6-50	1172
3327	14-30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express		4-50	3328
1181	15-25	Chambal (Agra Cantt.) Express Thursday only		6-50	1182
Up	Time	Sealdah		Time	Dn
3141	13-40	Teesta-Torsa Express Dep Mon, Tues, Wed, Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed, Thurs, Fri Sat & Sun		6-35	3 12
3143	19-15	Darjeeling Mail		8-45	3144
3111	20-15	Jaipur Express via Main Line		7 15	3112
5657	6-25	Kanchanjunga Express		20-35	5658
3153	22-00	Gour Express		5 15	3154
5663	20-00	Katihar Express		4 15	5664
3151	11-45	Jammu-Tawi Express		15-50	3152
3133	20-55	Mughal Saral Express via SBG Loop		12-55	3134
3103	18-20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express		10 25	3104
5185	12-40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues, Thurs & Sat		4-25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6-50	6004
8002	19 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10	8001
2860	17 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15-15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5-15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16-20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12-00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19-40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	19 40	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sunday Arr Sunday	13 45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10-20	8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express	22-05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5-00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6-10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5-30	8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8-25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21-30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15-00	8046
8017	16-45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2421	16 40	Bhubaneswar New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10	—
—	11-05	New Delhi-Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati - Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15	—
—	14 05	Trivandrum Central Howrah - Guwahati Express Saturday only	13-45	6321
—	14-05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13-45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati - Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15	–
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapanam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13-45	6315
6520	22 35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15	—
—	14-05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13-45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South-Eastern Railway trains, please dial 2203545-54 for in-coming trains, 2203536-44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South-Eastern Railway trains, dial 2203498-3508 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition, dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running), 131 (regarding train operations) and 136 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503536-37

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

AS FAR AS THOSE LEGS CAN CARRY

All my life I've been a walking person Up to this day, I have neither owned nor driven a car, bus, tractor, aeroplane, motorcycle, truck or steamroller

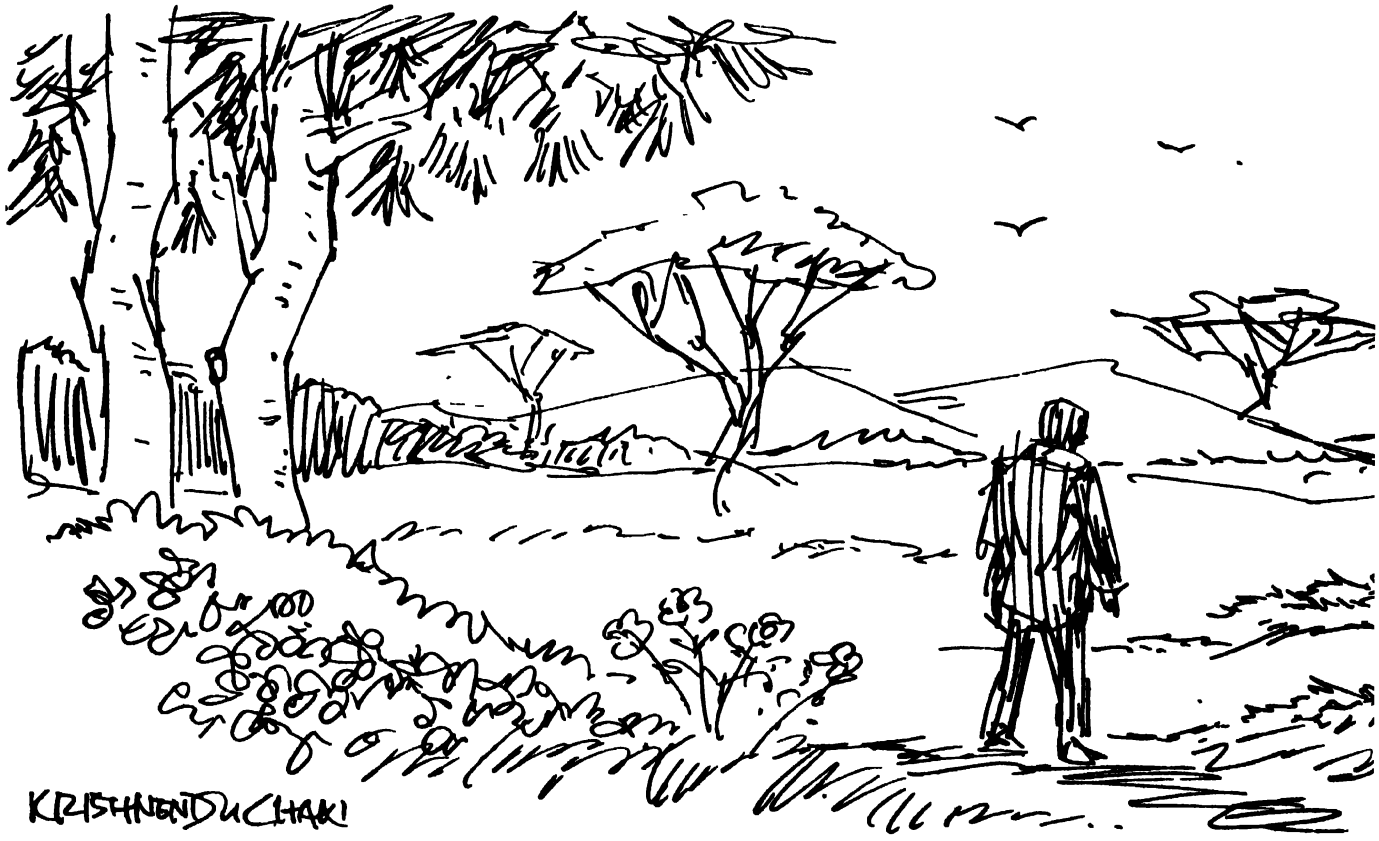
Forced to make a choice, I would as soon drive a steamroller, because of its slow but solid progress and unhurried finality And also because other vehicles don't try hustling steamrollers off the road

For a brief period in my early teens I had a bicycle until I rode into a bullock cart and ruined my new machine The bullocks panicked and ran away with the cart, while a furious cart driver was giving me a lecture on road sense I have never bumped into a bullock cart while walking

My earliest memories are of a place called Jamnagar, a small port on the west coast of India, then part of a princely state

My father was an English tutor to several young Indian princes and princesses This was where my walking really began, because Jamnagar was full of spacious palaces, lawns and gardens

By the time I was four, I was exploring much of the territory on my own, with the result that I encountered my first snake



Instead of striking me dead as snakes are supposed to do, it allowed me to pass Living as it did so close to the ground, and sensitive to every footfall, it must have known instinctively that I presented no threat, that I was just another small creature discovering the use of his legs

Envious of the snake's swift, gliding movements, I went indoors and tried crawling on my belly But I wasn't much good at it Legs were better.

My father's school-room and our own residence were located on the grounds of one of the older palaces which was full of turrets, staircases and mysterious passages

Right on top of the building I discovered a glass-covered room, each pane of glass stained with a different colour This room fascinated me as I could, by turn, look through the panes of glass at a green or rose pink or orange or indigo world It was nice to

The adventure is not in arriving, it's the on-the-way experience...not the expected, it's the surprise. You are not choosing what you shall see in the world, but are giving the world an even chance to see you be able to decide for oneself what colour the world should be!

My father took his duties seriously and taught me to read and write long before I started attending regular school. However, it would be true to say that I first learned to read upside down.

This happened because I would sit on a stool in front of three princesses, watching them read and write and so the view I had of their books was an upside down view

I still read that way occasionally, specially when a book becomes boring

There was no boredom in the palace grounds We were situated in the middle of a veritable jungle of a garden where marigolds and cosmos grew rampant in the long grass

An old, disguised well was the home of countless pigeons, their gentle cooing by day contrasting with the shrill cries of the brain fever bird (the hawk cuckoo) at night "How very hot it's getting!" the bird seemed to say And then in a rising crescendo, "We feel it! We feel it! We feel it!"

Walking about a nearby beach, collecting sea-shells, I got into the habit of staring hard at the ground, a habit which has remained with me all my life Apart from helping my thought processes, it also results in my picking up odd-objects — coins, keys, broken bangles, marbles, pens, bits of crockery, pretty stones, feathers, ladybirds, sea-shells! Not to speak of old nails and horseshoes

Looking at my collection of objects picked up on these walks, my friends insist I must be using a metal detector But it's only because I keep my nose to the ground, like a bloodhound

Occasionally, of course, my habit results in my walking some way past my destination (if I happen to have one) And why not? It simply means discovering a new and different destination, sights and sounds I might not have experienced had I ended my walk exactly where it was supposed to end

And I am not looking at the ground all the time Sensitive like the snake to approaching footfalls, I look up from time to time to take note of the faces of the passerby, just in case they have something interesting to say

A bird singing in a bush or tree has my immediate attention, so does any familiar flower or plant, particularly if it grows in an unusual place such as a crack in a wall or rooftop, or in a yard full of junk — where once I found a rose-bush blooming on the roof of an old abandoned Ford car

I like to think I invented the zig-zag walk Tiring of walking in straight lines, or on roads that led directly to a destination, I took to going off at tangents — taking sudden unfamiliar turnings, wandering down alleyways, following cart tracks or paths through fields instead of the main roads and in general, making the walk as complicated as possible

In this way I saw much more than I would normally have seen Here a temple, there a mosque, now an old church, a railway siding follow the railway line and here's a pond full of buffaloes, there a peacock preening itself under a tamarind tree and now I'm in a field of mustard Soon I am walking along a canal bank and the canal leads me back into the town and I follow the line of mango trees until I am home.

The adventure is not in arriving, it's the on-the-way experience It is not the expected, it's the surprise You are not choosing what you shall see in the world, but are giving the world an even chance to see you

It's like drawing lines from star to star in the night sky, not forgetting many dim, shy, out-of-the-way stars which are full of possibilities

The first turning to the left, the next to the right! I am still on my zigzag way, pursuing the diagonal between reason and the heart

(Sanctuary Features)

The finest Diamond and 22/22K Gold Jewellery at:

Nemichand Bamalwa & Sons,

Jewellers

16-A, Shakespeare Sarani, 3rd Floor Calcutta 700071; Phone: 242-3388

The melting or refining purity of our 22/22K ornaments is 22 Karat (91.67%)

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S  COLUMN

SHEPHERD, WEAVER AND FIGHTER

Every year the Ganga cuts a course closer to Sherpur, a village of Ghazipur district larger than many small towns Chakbandi took place decades ago, but here surplus land has not been redistributed The main street of the Harijan basti seems strangely straight That is because it had to be rebuilt after the basti was burnt to the ground by Bhumihar landlords in 1975

The houses of the gadariyas or shepherds stand close by Once or twice a week, an elderly blind man with a long lathi as a stick feels his way through the alley and comes and sits with his old friends in the Harijan basti He wears a rough khadi kurta and dhoti, a gumchha wound round his neck

From childhood he suffered from night blindness and now he is sightless during the day too He is not well known outside his village — even the DM had never heard of him — but he is one of this backward district's few recipients of the Padma Shri

Sita Ram Pal received this honour in 1981 for his efforts to improve the income of shepherds through blanket weaving A weaver and shepherd himself, through persistent hard work and struggle with government bureaucracy, he managed to organise others and establish first a co-operative society and then a manch to sell blankets to charities like CASA

One night, when he was in the middle of an oil massage, an anxious lekhpal arrived outside his mud house, calling out, "Palji, Palji, come quickly The magistrate is here" As Sita Ram was led to the road where the official's jeep stood, he was convinced he'd been implicated in some crime to do with the continuing Harijan-Bhumihar tension in the village But when the magistrate shook his hand in greeting, Sita Ram's spirits revived

"Why have you called me?" he asked

"To see if you would accept a Padma Shri"

"What does that mean?"

"Izzat and money," came the reply

Sita Ram went to Delhi for the first time in his life to receive the award, wearing a blanket-wool waistcoat he had woven himself

But cottage industry had never been his main mission in life As a child he had stayed in Samastipur with his grandfather who in 1911 had managed to pass his High School exams and had eventually risen to the rank of sub-inspector of police

In 1942, his grandfather retired and they returned to Sherpur There the young Sita Ram was called over by a landowner, whom he respectfully greeted and whose feet he touched before sitting down on the charpoy beside him Later his grandfather reprimanded him for sitting next to a Bhumihar That ate at him "What lack is there in us," he asked, "that we can't sit on the same level?"

His reaction was to right matters by fighting the first Panchayat elections held in 1949, and encouraging the best among the dalit castes to fight too The result was that they were beaten, their houses were burnt down and they were denied water Then he reached the conclusion that there was no way forward without education Boys must study and get out of the village to earn — only when people went out would they be able to improve matters within

"I couldn't study much because of my eyes," he says, "So I turned to social service Then not a single Harijan or Yadav was literate here There was a Chamar called Kusahr I began to teach him at my gate at a time when no one would touch water he drew I had him enrolled in primary, then in the middle school and then in Mohammadabad in high school He joined the Army

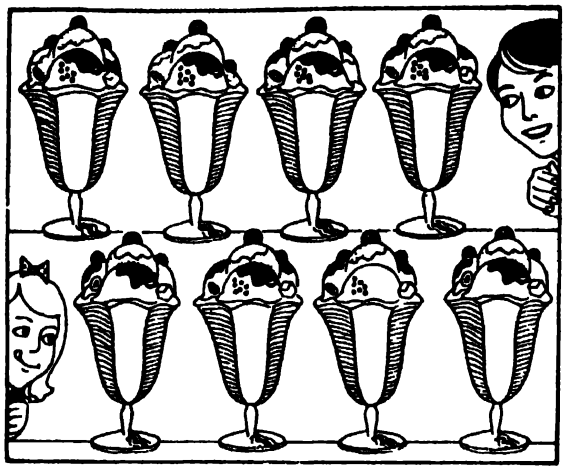
Then there was Dev Narayan Singh, a Yadav, he became a schoolmaster And Shivnath, a Harvaha's son, he became a friend and a master too

"Why did the zamindars despise us? We were dirty, so perhaps that was reason enough But education is the best soap Now if you look around the basti, I am sure you will see how smart some of the young people are When one member of the family has education the whole family goes forward"

The process he started has gained its own momentum There are now 11 graduates and postgraduates in the Harijan basti waiting for jobs In the meantime they work for the Bhumihars, labouring and moving earth, but nowadays they are paid cash

Uma Shankar, BA, B Ed, is about to apply for government teaching jobs and his ambition is to open an Ambedkar vidyalaya in the basti to make sure every child there studies and studies well "I will work even for little money," he told me, "And I know I can do it I have guts"

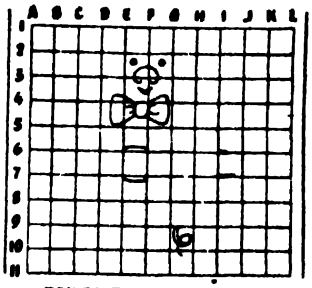
The men from the basti have petitioned a local MLA and lain down in the road in front of Mulayam Singh Yadav's car to make sure their deamnds for development are met Now they have electricity, handpumps, and a half-built road, and the land for redistribution, says the DM, has been earmarked



However the Padma Shri-winning weaving venture failed once Sita Ram went blind Now Sita Ram's son, afflicted with the same night blindness, is following in his father's footsteps It's even more difficult than before to maintain flocks as grazing land has been turned into irrigated fields

With no sheep of his own, he has to buy wool, but he spins it on the same primitive wooden wheel and weaves it into the same strips of coarse blanket Every weaver needs a good vyopari — a trader to do business with He still hasn't found one, but he is a determined BA-pass with strong ideas of where to look in the outside world

(Sanctuary Features)



JUNIOR WHIRL

HAL KAUFMAN

DOUBLE DIP! Two of eight sundaes above are enough alike to be twins Which two? Take note of details carefully

AGE PAGE! Jot down your age add 7 double the result and add 16 Double the result again divide by four and subtract 15 Answer will be your age Give it a try

QUICK DRAW CANVAS

HEY, we know you're in there But why are you all dressed up? To complete the picture, simply draw lines in accord with letter-number coordinates as follows

Draw from E-1 to D-3, to D-4, to C-4, to A-6, A-7, C-5, D-5, D-8, E-9, D-11, E-11, F-9, I-9, J-11, K-11, I-5, J-5, L-7, L-6, J-4, I-4, to G-1

Add D-6 to I-6

Add D-7, to I-7

Add D-2, to E-1, to G-1, to H-2.

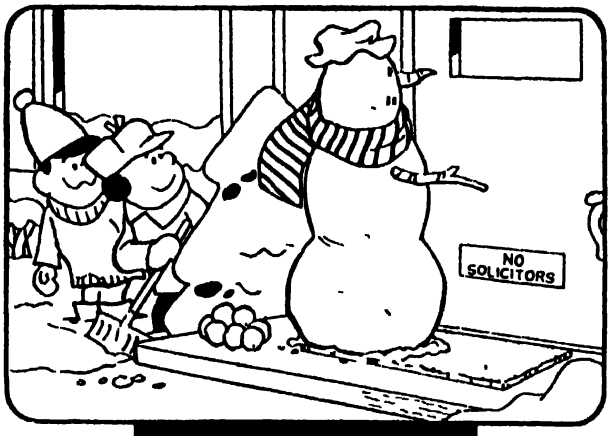
Draw straight lines, using a sharp pencil

Be sure to draw lines in keeping with letter and number coordinates

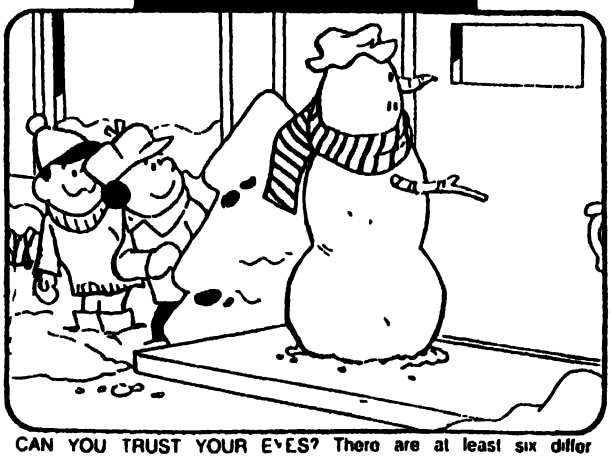
Colour finished figure, if crayons are handy

PROPER NOTE! When leaving the cafeteria-restaurant, the story has it, a well-mannered gent indicated to the cashier that he was suffering from laryngitis and was unable to talk Whereupon he handed her a note containing the numbers 1 0 2 0 0 4 1 8 0

Without a word of protest, the cashier permitted him to depart, obviously having understood his message



What did the note say?



Answer in 30 seconds

It said I ought to owe nothing for I ate nothing

HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below

Differences 1 Cap is smaller 2 Shovel is missing 3 Snowballs are missing 4 Scarf is different 5 Sign is missing 6 Doorknob is missing

FUNSPOT

BY GEORGE! Martha knows best, or does she? Apply colors neatly to the scene Colorcode 1—Red 2—Lt. blue 3—Yellow 4—Lt. brown 5—Flesh tones 6—Maroon 7—Dk brown 8—Dk. blue 9—Gray

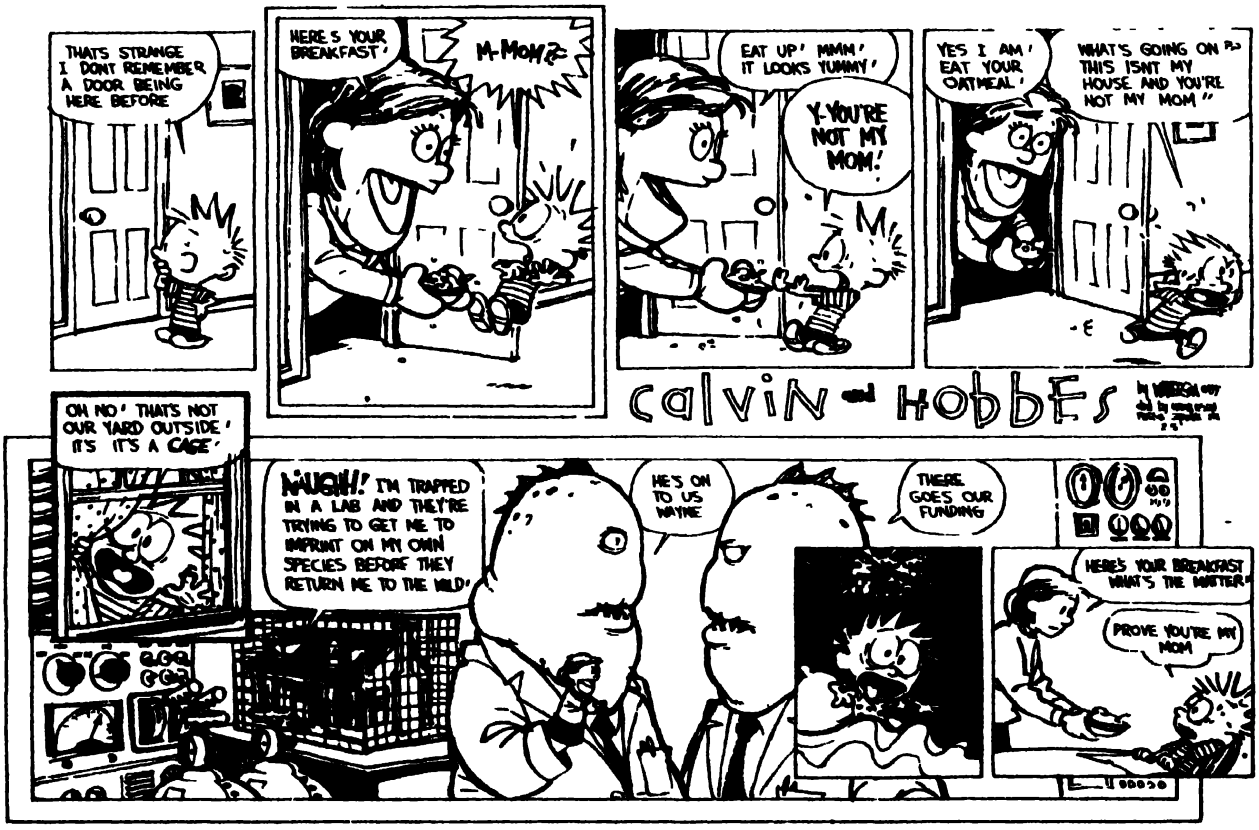
SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

ENTREATY

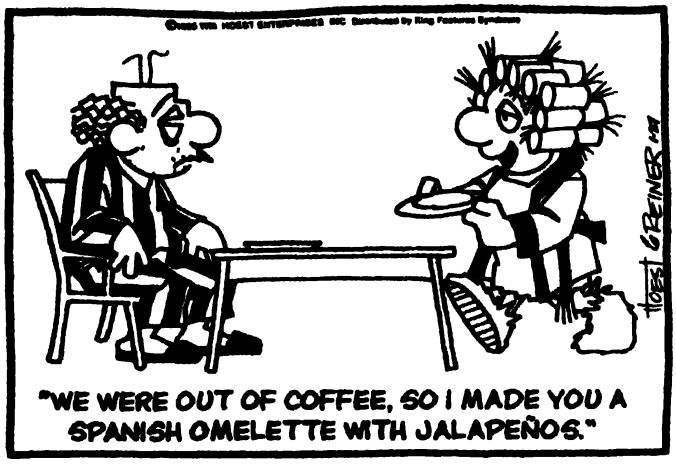
THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

Try to score at least 50 points

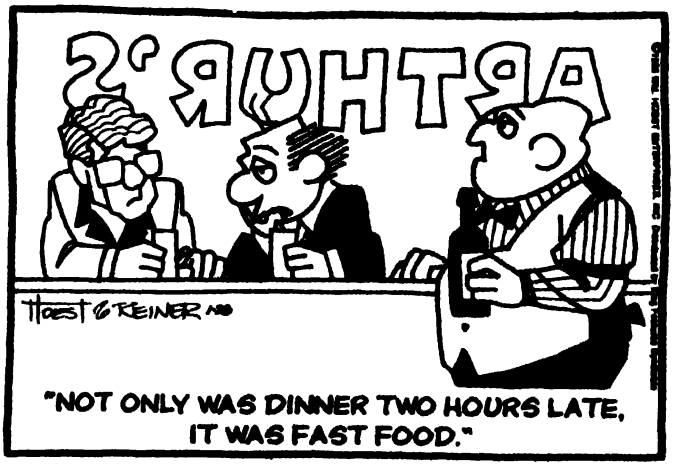


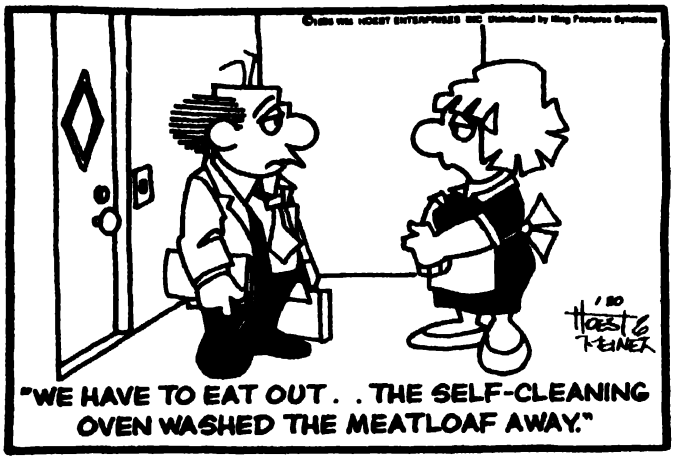
Possible twosome Tent year

COMICS

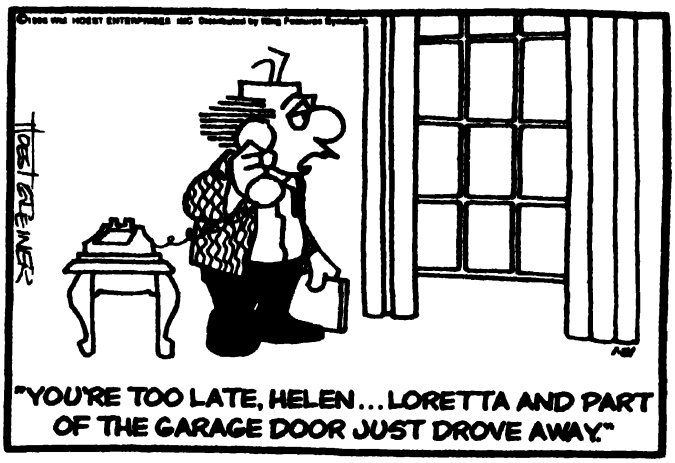


ARCHIE

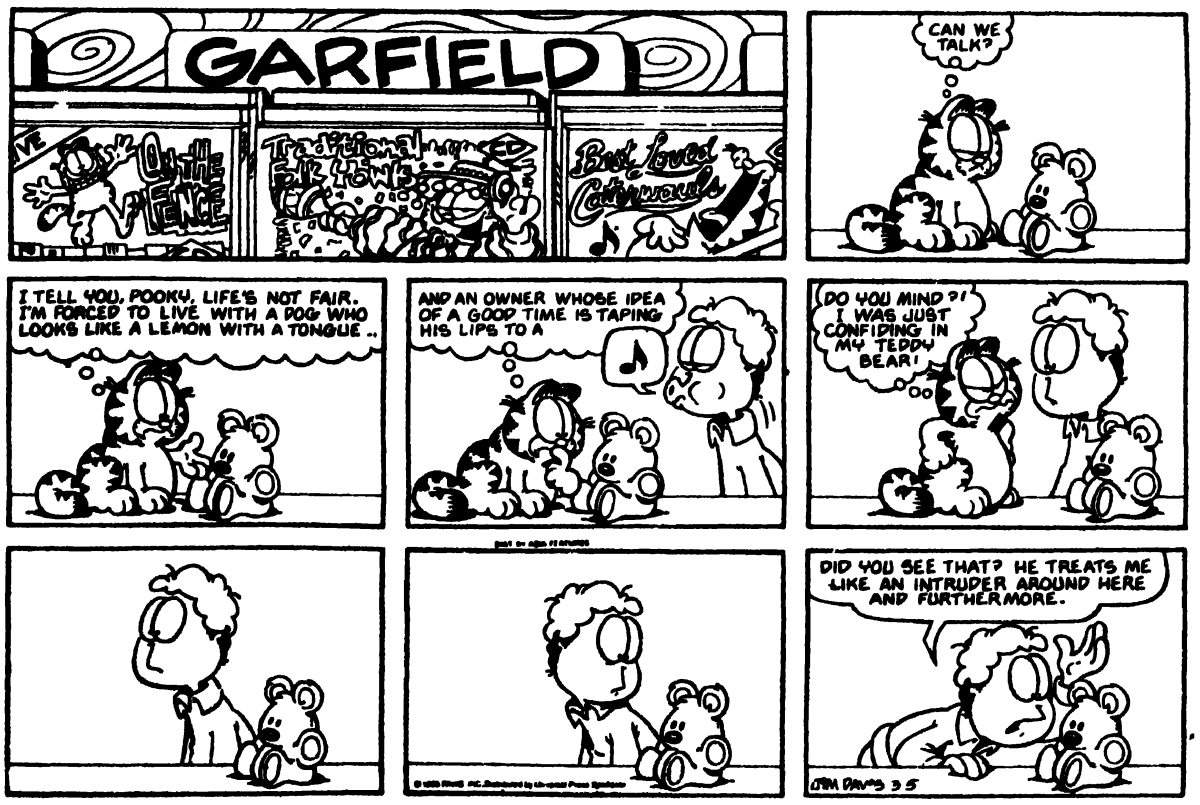


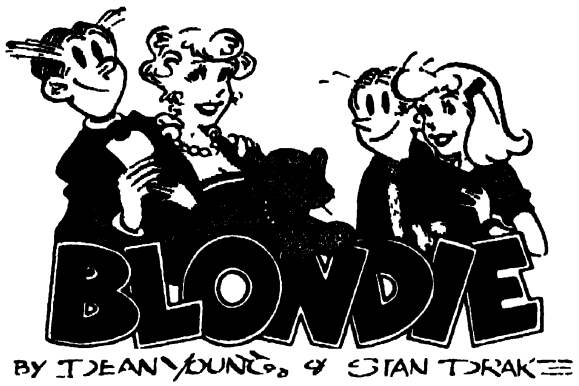


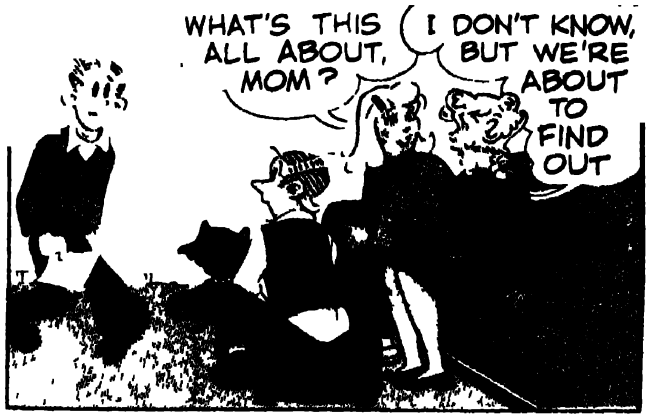
CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON



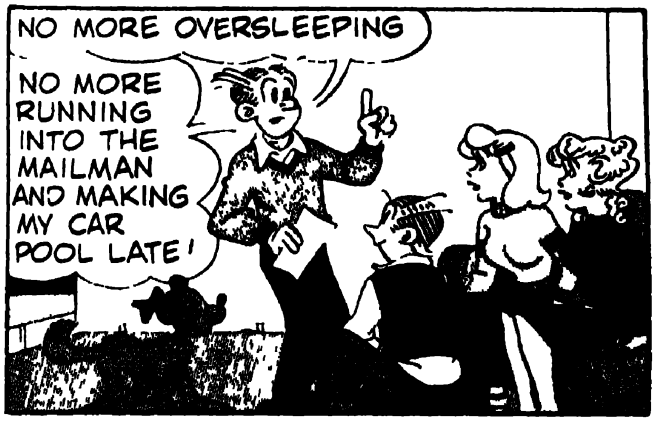
THE LOCKHORNS



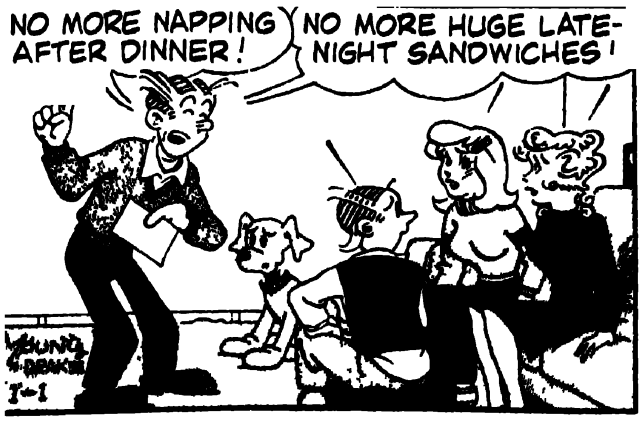




GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS



THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP



©1994 by King Features Syndicate Inc. World rights reserved

'THE ALL-TIME LOOK'

Ritu Beri's fashion show in Delhi recently held out against all odds

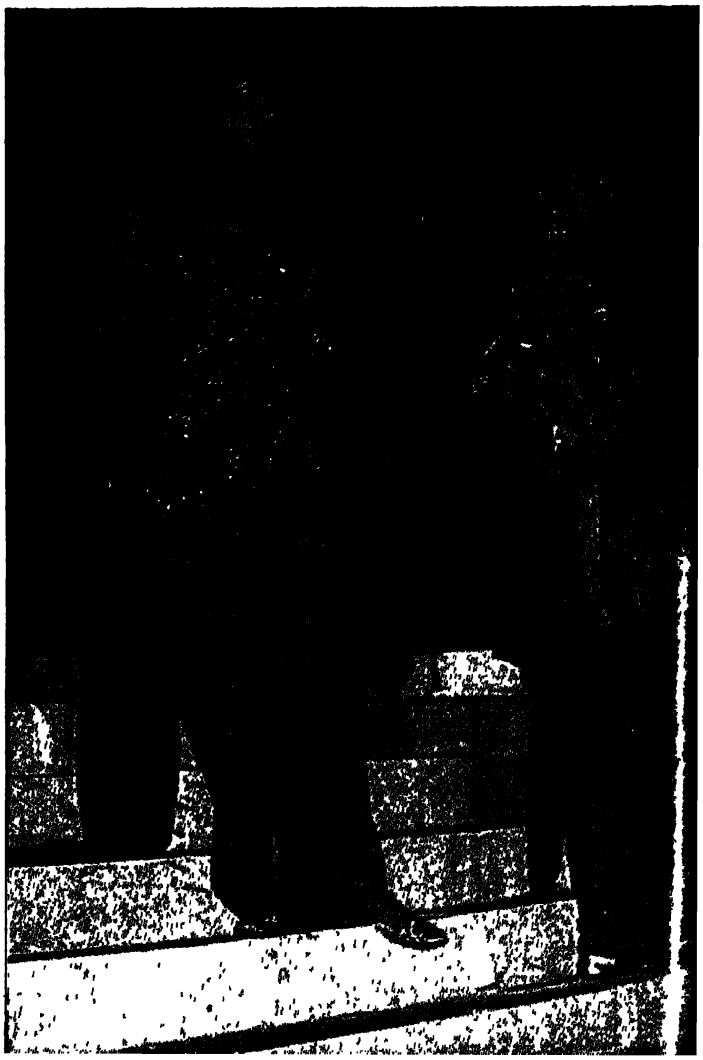
It was more than just a light drizzle As the heavens opened, the invitees scampered for cover An hour later, they returned to their soggy seats quite unsure whether the show — which appeared jinxed from the outset — would get under way at all

Despite the fact that the controversy-ridden venue for Ritu Beri's 'Sanskriti' show was shifted from the exotic backdrop of the tombs in Lodi Gardens to a farmhouse some 20-odd kms off town, and that it poured through the day and an hour into the show as well, 'Sanskriti' had a good turnout

A short vote of thanks from model Arjun Rampal to the sodden guests for caring enough to have waited for the rain to let up, a 15-minute clean-up job, and Ritu Beri was on

Her usual poise visibly rattled, she said, "I can design clothes, but I have no control over the weather Hope you are able to see at least the first part of my collection for I can see it's drizzling again "

But the rain gods granted Beri her 90 minutes before it came down heavily once again, just after the show-stopper at the end had left the audience dazed The grand finale, a vision in endless yards of silk, bronze lace and encrusted Swarovsky crystal The intricate gold embroidery on the blouse and voluminous lehnga making the bridal creation worth all of Rs 1,25,000!

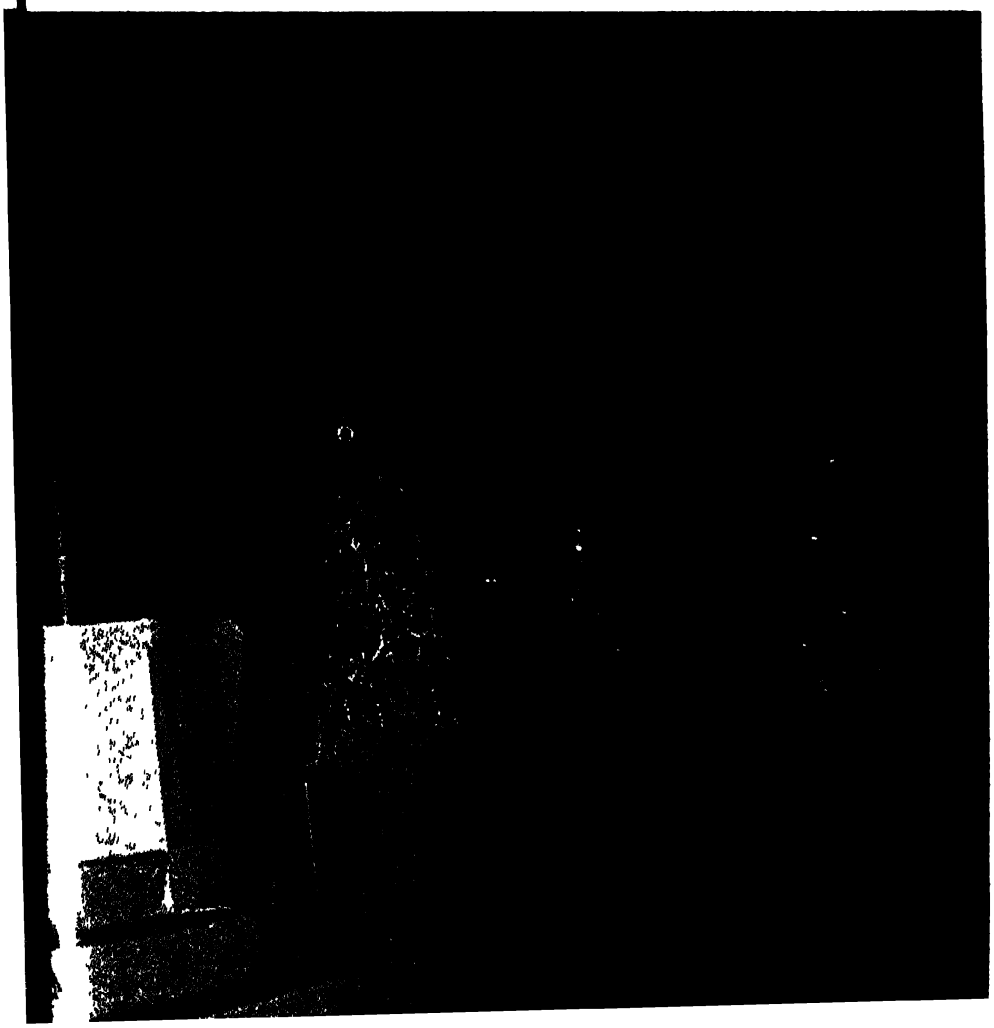


Lightning flashed, thunder clapped and the ramp was bathed in an electric blue light lending a dramatic backdrop to the 156 ensembles, brought to life by the country's top models Anu Ahuja, Pooja Batra, Karminder Kaur, Colleen Khan-Robinson and Marc Robinson were there So was the evergreen Anna Bredemeyer, Farheen Khan, Noyonika Chatterjee, Tehiya and Sonalika Oberoi

Divided into four sequences, the designs were not intended as a forecast collection for the coming summer or Ritu's winter collection but "an all-time look" that she spent two years working out An inspiration stemming from the different periods India went through — Ancient,

The British Collection

The Ancient Collection



The Contemporary Collection

The Medieval Collection

Medieval, British and Contemporary

"Even though the inspiration is from eras past, it's a statement on the look of today Of how a modern woman can dress, taking cues from history Essentially, I've visualised a woman who doesn't care a whit for the opinion of others and dresses to please herself," explains Ritu

Some techniques of embroidery that embellished all the four collections were different and untried The Ancient collection mirrors the society of the Vedic period, the role played by the samskaras, the mysticism The Medieval was inspired by the opulent grandeur of the Mughal era with the Persian influence, clearly reflected in the heavy, exquisite embroidery The British collection has taken hues of the Raj days — the first steps of the Indian woman towards emancipation Finally the Contemporary collection, "a celebration of the woman of today"

Samita Bhatia

RASOI

JIGGS KALRA

Hazaron saal nargis apni benoori peh roti hai/ Barrhi mushqil seh hota hai chaman mein deedawar paida

Translated, it says that narcissus laments its ugliness for a thousand years and more It is only rarely that a connoisseur is born to appreciate its beauty If we — Pushpesh Pant and I — may flatter ourselves, this verse inspired Khumb ke Nargisi The original Nargisi, deriving its inspiration from the flower nargis or narcissus and akin to Scotch Eggs, prided itself for its yellow iris — the yolk of the egg Our recipe has a filling of a humbler hue but far surpasses the traditional Nargisi Kofta in the subtle symphony of flavour

Tired of the now ubiquitous Harra Kebab made with channa daal, we decided to give spinach and the lentil the heave-ho and bring in something — the far more exotic broccoli to combine with musoor daal Bon Apetit !

KHUMB KE NARGISI

INGREDIENTS

The Kofta

450 g / 1 lb Kid/Lamb Mince (10 per cent fat)
12 flakes Garlic
10 g / 1" piece Ginger
2 Green chillies
3 25 g / 1 tbs Kaali Tulsi/Basil (fresh)
1 5 g / 1/2 tsp Black Peppercorns (freshly crushed)
Salt
Cooking oil to deep fry kofta

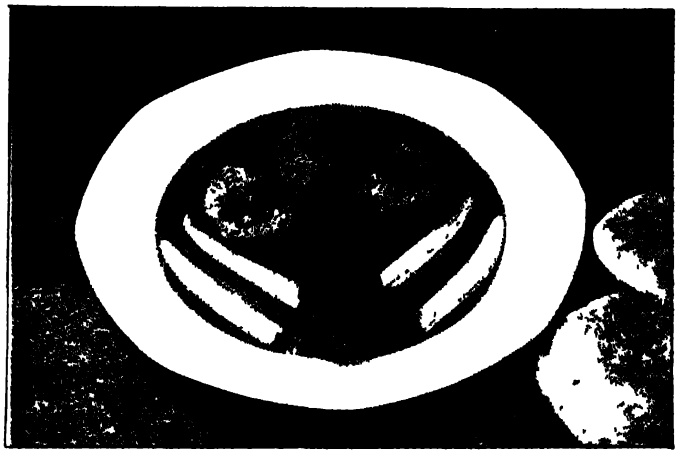
The Filling



8 Morels (large)
30 g / 1 oz Oyster Mushrooms
60 g / 2 oz Button mushrooms (fresh)
25 g / 2 tbs Butter
5 g / 1 tsp Sugar
1 5 g / 1/2 tsp Black peppercorns (freshly crushed)
Salt
10 ml / 2 tsp Lemon juice
5 g / 1/2" piece Ginger
1 75 g / 1/2 tbs Kaali Tulsi/Basil (fresh)
16 roasted Pistachio

The Stock

1 litre / 4 1/4 cups clear Kid/Lamb stock
1 75 g / 1/2 tbs Kaali Tulsi/Basil (fresh)

The Gravy

60 ml / 1/4 cup Cooking oil
8 Green cardamoms
5 Cloves
2 Bay leaves
3 Black cardamom
2 sticks Cinnamon (1")
200 g / 7 oz Onions
30 g / 5 1/4 tsp Garlic paste (strained)
15 g / 2 1/2 tsp Ginger paste (strained)
125 g / 1/2 cup Yoghurt
75 g / 2 1/2 oz Fried onion paste
30 g / 1 oz Fried garlic paste
15 g / 1 tbs Almond paste
15 g / 1 tbs Chaar magaz paste
3 g / 1 tsp Kashmiri deghi mirch
Salt
1 5 g / 1/2 tsp Black peppercorns (freshly crushed)
0 75 g / 1/4 tsp Green Cardamom powder
0 375 g / 1/8 tsp Mace powder
0 375 g / 1/8 tsp Clove powder
0 375 g / 1/8 tsp Cinnamon powder
0 375 g / 1/8 tsp Rose petal powder
0 5 g / 1 tsp Saffron
1 drop Ittar

Khumb Ke Nargisi

Serves: 4
Preparation time: 2 15 hours
Cooking time: 45 minutes

PREPARATION

The Kofta Peel and finely chop garlic Scrape, wash and finely chop ginger Wash green chillies, slit, deseed, finely chop and discard the stems Clean, wash and finely chop basil Mix these and the remaining ingredients with the mince in a bowl, divide into 8 equal portions and make balls

The filling Soak morels and oyster mushrooms in hot water for 10 minutes, drain, wash in running water to remove grit and soak again in hot water for 5 minutes or until soft and fully swollen Drain, squeeze out excess water, remove stems, cut morels into thick juliennes and tear oyster mushrooms into small pieces with your hands Slice earthy lower bit of stalks, reserve button mushrooms in water and slice at the time of cooking Scrape, wash and cut ginger into tiny dices Clean, wash and finely chop basil

Melt butter in a frying pan, add sugar and 30 ml / 2 tbs water, stir over low heat until mixture is of syrup consistency Then add mushrooms, stir, add pepper and salt, stir for 3-4 minutes or until glazed Remove, sprinkle lemon juice, stir, add ginger, basil and pistachios, mix well, adjust the seasoning and divide into 8 equal portions

The Stuffing: Flatten each ball between the palms, place a portion of the filling in the middle, make balls again and shape into oval kofta Refrigerate for

30 minutes Then heat oil in a kadhai/wok and deep fry over medium heat until golden brown Remove to absorbent paper to drain the excess fat

The Stock: Clean basil Put stock in a large handi/pot, add the basil, bring to a boil, reduce to low heat and simmer until reduced by a third

The Gravy: Peel, wash and finely chop onions Whisk yoghurt in a bowl Crush saffron with a pestle, soak in 15 ml / 1 tbs of lukewarm water for 15 minutes and then make a paste with the back of a spoon

COOKING
Heat oil in a handi/pan, add the two cardamoms, bay leaves, cloves, cinnamon and stir over medium heat until the cardamom begins to change colour, add onions, saute until light golden, add the garlic and ginger pastes, saute until onions are golden Remove from heat, stir-in yoghurt, return handi/pan to heat and bhunno/stir-fry until the fat leaves the sides Then add the fried pastes, bhunno/stir-fry for one-and-a-half to two minutes, add the almond and chaar magaz pastes bhunno/stir-fry until the fat leaves the sides, add Kashmiri degha mirch, stir for 30 seconds, add the stock and salt bring to a boil, reduce to low heat and simmer until reduced by half Remove and pass the gravy through a fine mesh soup strainer into a separate handi/pan Return gravy to heat, bring to a boil, reduce to low heat, add kofta and simmer for 4-5 minutes, constantly pouring the gravy over the kofta Sprinkle the freshly crushed black peppers, green cardamom, mace, clove, cinnamon and rose petal powders, stir, stir-in saffron, remove and adjust the seasoning

TO SERVE
Arrange two koftas in the middle of each of 4 individual plates, pour on equal quantities of the gravy, arrange a garnish of your choice and serve with phoolka or tandoori roti

SUBZ KE KEBAB

INGREDIENTS
200 g / 7 oz Broccoli
100 g / 3 oz Potatoes
200 g / 1 cup Musoor daal
8 Green cardamom
5 Cloves
3 Bay leaves
3 Black cardamom
2 sticks Cinnamon (1")
Salt
2 g / 1 tbs Vanajwain/Thyme (dried, freshly crushed)
1 5 g / 1/2 tsp Black peppercorns (freshly crushed)
1 5 g / 1/2 tsp Green cardamom powder
0 75 g / 1/4 tsp Mace powder
50 g / 1/4 cup unsalted Butter
Equal quantities of Butter and Groundnut oil to shallow fry

The Filling
60 g / 3 oz Paneer
30 g / 1 oz Cheddar Cheese
16 Chilgoza/Pine Nuts (roasted)
2 Green chillies
5 g / 1/2" piece Ginger
3 25 g / 1 tbs Ginger
3 25 g / 1 tbs Coriander
Salt
Serves. 4 (2 patties/portion)
Preparation time: 1 20 hours
Cooking time: 4-5 minutes/set

PREPARATION
The Broccoli Paste: Clean and wash Boil enough water in a handi/pan, add salt, stir, add broccoli, boil until cooked (approximately 3-4 minutes) Drain, pat dry, cool and then grind into a smooth paste in a food processor/blender Peel potatoes, boil until cooked but not squishy, drain, cool and mash Mix well with broccoli Melt 12 5 g / 1 tbs of butter in a kadhai/wok, add the broccoli and potato mixture, bhunno/stir-fry until the moisture has completely evaporated and the mixture becomes like a khoya ball (Only then would the strong aroma of the two vegetables dissipate) Remove and spread on a flat surface to cool immediately

Subz Ke Kebab

The Daal Paste Pick, wash in running water, drain and then soak in water for at least 30 minutes Drain, put in a handi/pan, add the two cardamoms, cloves, bay leaves, cinnamon and water (approximately 480ml/2 cups), boil until cooked (approximately 10-12 minutes) Drain, cool, remove the whole spices and grind into smooth paste, preferably with a sil-batta (grinding stone), otherwise in a food processor-blender Melt 12 5g/ 1 tbs of butter in a kadhai/wok, add the lentil paste and *bhunno*stir-fry until the moisture has completely evaporated and the lentil becomes of a grainy texture (Only then would the strong aroma of the lentil dissipate) Remove and cool

The Vegetable-Daal Mixture Put the two pastes in a bowl, add the remaining ingredients (including the remaining butter), mix well, divide into 8 equal portions and make balls
The Filling. Grate paneer and cheese in a bowl Wash green chillies, slit, deseed, finely chop and discard the stems Scrape, wash and finely chop ginger Clean, wash and finely chop coriander Mix these and the remaining ingredients and divide into 8 equal portions
The Stuffing Flatten each ball between the palms, place a portion of the filling in the middle, make balls again and flatten into 3/4" thick patties

COOKING
Heat butter and oil on a tawa/griddle and shallow fry the patties over medium heat until a crisp layer is formed on both sides Press with a spatula and remove to absorbent paper to drain the excess fat

TO SERVE
Arrange the julienne salad in the middle of each of 4 individual plates, place two kebabs on top, arrange the lettuce — lollo rosso and lollo bianco — as shown in the photograph, pour on the dressing of lemon, oil and chaat masala and serve with khasta roti or a bread of your choice and a fruit — in this case guava and blue berry — or any other chutney

NOTE All weights are nett, that is post-preparation, and not gross ■

CORONATION. A RANGE CRAFTED FROM SUPER 70^{s} EXTRAFINE MERINO WOOL RICH AND SOFT FOR ALL THOSE SPECIAL MOMENTS

Raymond

SINCE 1924

SUITINGS FOR THE COMPLETE MAN

The Telegraph

POST MORTEM

What a Century!

■ It was an abundantly rewarding experience reading the life and thoughts of the great surviving Gandhian, Morarji Desai, who turned 100 recently ('A Great Long Life', February 26)

The writeup could be treated as an extension of an earlier cover story, 'Summer of the Patriarchs' (January 29)

A disciplined life, strict vegetarian diet and avoidance of any kind of alcohol are the three prime factors responsible for the former Prime Minister's enviable good health and eventful long life

Sukla Das,
Jamshedpur

■ Morarji Desai was never a towering figure in the realm of Indian politics Yet, during his Prime Ministership, Indian foreign policy saw some light at the end of an otherwise dark tunnel For relations between India and Pakistan, no matter for how brief a period, began to show signs of cordiality

But his successors could not keep up the tempo and this gave rise to greater hostility between the two neighbours The possibility of the situation improving in the near future looks dismal

Apart from the political stunt of celebrating his 100th birthday, the government should come out with some worthwhile foreign policy that will reduce tension between the two South East Asian countries This will be a better way of paying tribute to this veteran politician

Choton Banerjee
Calcutta

Gautam Patole

Morarji Desai: Good innings

■ It was surprising that a magazine steeped in fashion, glamour and sex should publish a story on Morarji Desai

Swadhin Kumar Dutta,
Sonarpur (S 24-Parganas)

■ A remarkable century from Desai! Hope he continues his innings smoothly

Biswajit Kar,
Kharagpur

Bikini Beauties

■ It baffles me how a family magazine can print bikini beauties on its pages ('Beauty Tall, Dark and Asian', February 12)

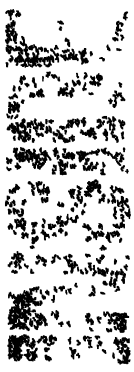
Such license, only to show how Indian models have emulated the prurience of the West in fashion/modelling is beyond the pale of decency

Suman Kar,
Calcutta

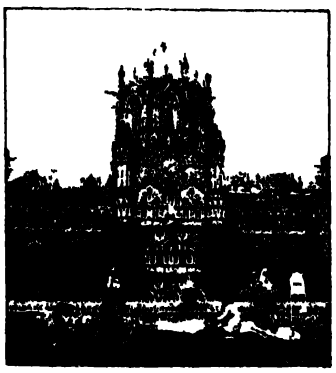
Enough of Food

■ Jiggs Kalra has served us enough of his rasoi by filling two pages of the Magazine every Sunday for quite some time It is more than we can digest Could we have something else now?

Virendra Shah,
Calcutta



■ In the absence of a bigger Anglo-French dictionary, the word 'Ceviche' (Rasoi, January 15) remains an enigma



Rangin Banerji,
Calcutta

Common Sense

■ The First Person interview of R K Laxman (January 15) was an excellent treat to lovers of the 'common man' His answer that he would not be remembered after his death was quite in keeping with his witty and simple personality

Debabrata Mohanty,
Balasore

PAGE 4

RAGHUBIR SINGH's photographic tribute to the undying spirit of Bombay And an essay on what it is that makes the great cosmopolis a jewel in the sea

PAGE 10

PRESENTING THE top women mystery writers

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
26 EVENT
28 RASOI
30 FIRST PERSON

Cover Irani restaurant, photograph by Raghubir Singh

COVER STORY

Spirit of Bombay

A journey into the heart of Bombay, which twinkles like a diamond in the sea By Shameem Akthar. With a photofeature by Raghubir Singh

As a blazing sun dips into the rippling Arabian Sea and the hooting vehicles jam both eardrums and sensibilities, the night's dew settles on the omnipresent dust in Bombay's thick air and weaves a surreal pattern of magic

A dense fog trails the foam-rimmed sea and all of Bombay's concrete skyline is viewed through this translucent veil It shrouds the grime, the nerve-killing crowds, the garbage and the crime

Only the city's soul seems to shine through this veil And how lovely this is

Ask television personality Siddharth Kak just what it is about this city that grips him and he can tick off a few million things that make it special

For this man from the hills of Kashmir, the romance of Bombay lies in its dun-coloured skyscrapers When the twinkling lights suffuse the concrete with gold, the dusk begins to glow with an inexplicable mystery that makes this city tick

"The whole city seems to visually come alive Oh, there are people on its streets throughout the day But in the evening, when you see them under the evening's glow, you wonder really as to who they are And where they are all going The bright lights against the black sky The city becomes different," he says

Undertakers, Mahim

Photographs extracted from Bombay Gateway of India photographs by Raghubir Singh, Conversation with V S Naipaul, The Perennial Press, Rs 1,264

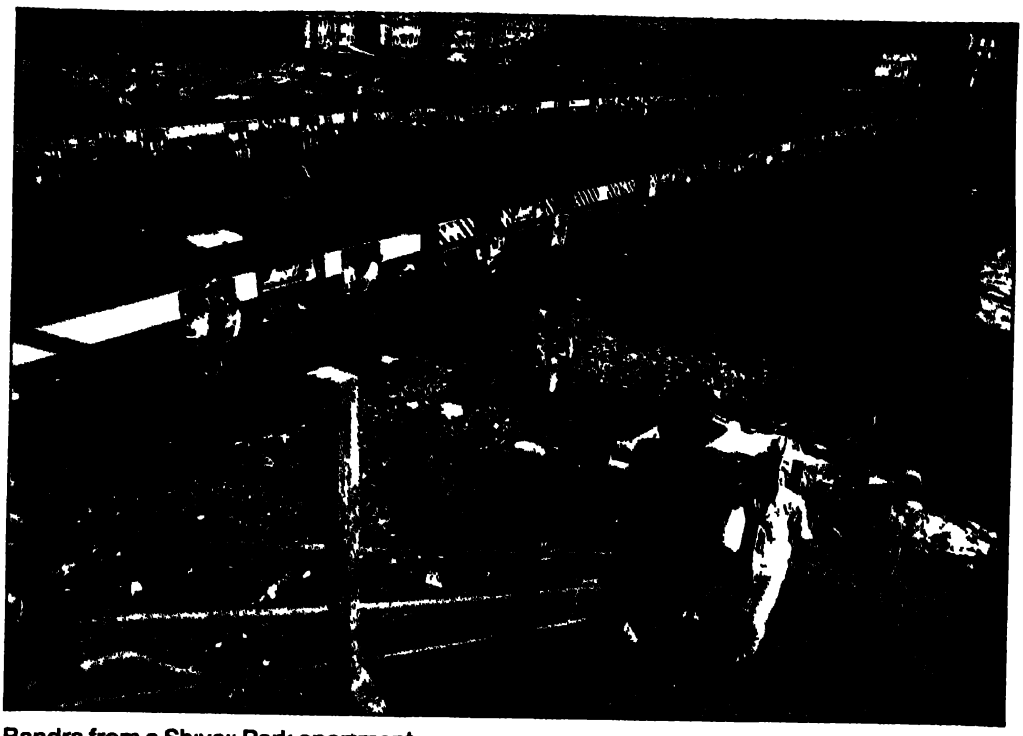
Chauffeur and a Mercedes, Malabar Hill
Fisherwomen, Versova

Kilachand House, Napean Sea Road

Siddharth Kak explains as eloquently as only the deep-throated Surabhi man can, Bombay's pull on him. 'Bombay cannot compare in true beauty with the state I come from [Kashmir],' he says. 'But it compares in soul. And that is what matters'

Then there is another Bombay that is lesser known The coastal Bombay where the sea laps incessantly "Unfortunately it does not lap against a clean shore But that is another thing Yet, it is picturesque," he points out



And, of course, the winding coastline where the fishermen still live off a rich

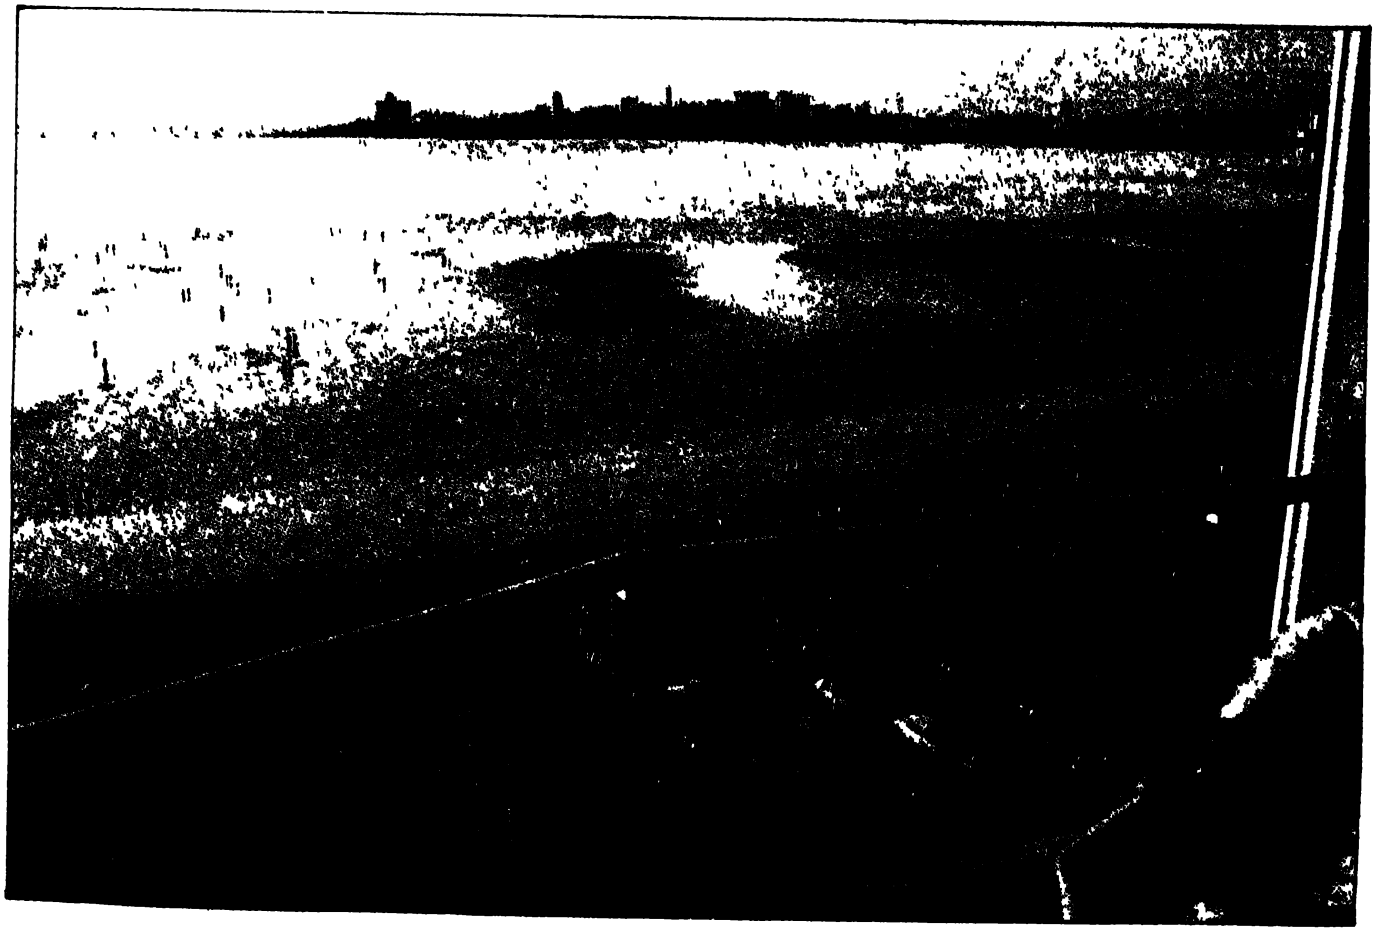
Chawl housing, Girgaum sea And the beaches still retain their pristine prettiness "An hour's drive away from south Bombay, if you go to Madh Island you could experience the Bombay that was I stayed at the lovely Retreat resort over a weekend And that is another face, a lovely face, of Bombay "

Where the night's slow,



Commuters, Mahim

'Look at Marine Drive in the night. The large hotels sparkling and lighting up a night sky. It is other worldly. It is almost European,' says Michael Ferreira

Bandra from a Shivaji Park apartment

Mario Miranda loves Bombay because it is the only city where one can make a choice to be alone or with the crowd. A city where you can never be alone. Yet, a crowded city that has the heart to let you be soft winds blow away yesterday's dirt. And the cleansed morning shines clearly through. The mind's eye captures an image that remains etched for long — of flamboyantly dressed fishermen pushing their moss-covered vessels into the rushing waves, the softly lilting boats against a clear horizon, the warm sun on clean sand.

Father and child, Kamathipura

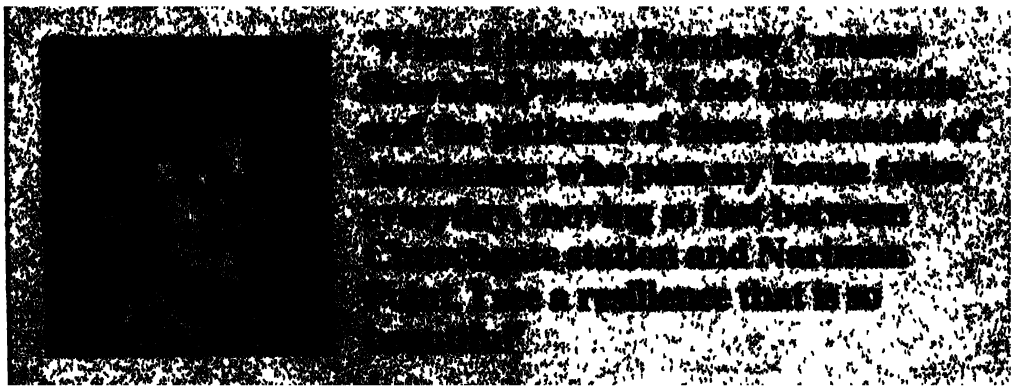
"The whole image is so soft, scenic," Kak rhapsodises

Then, he explains as eloquently as only the deep-throated Surabhi man can, Bombay's pull on him. "Bombay cannot compare in true beauty with the state I come from. But it compares in soul And that is what matters"



Unlike him, billiards champion Michael Ferreira, who was born and brought up in Bombay, finds his city incomparable "I am, of course, prejudiced," he admits, "but there is a vitality about this city that is so appealing Take Delhi, for instance. Despite its overt beauty it is not a city I would choose to live in. Bombay is truly cosmopolitan There is no consciousness of status But in Delhi everything hinges around one's position and the power that one wields"

He concedes that there is a grimy, ugly side to his beloved city. But he insists that there are sides to it that are so heart-tuggingly beautiful. "Look at Marine Drive in the night. The large hotels sparkling and lighting up a night sky It is other worldly. It is almost European."

Somehow this image of the Queen's Necklace (as Marine Drive is perfectly known), with the bejewelled lights pulsating against a moving mass of restive humanity, embodies the soul of this city. "For me, this is linked to the instinct of Bombay itself. The commuting workaholics who are surviving under enormous strain. Everyone in this city withstands so much pressure. But they are so modern in their outlook. Aware of what is happening in the rest of the world," Ferreira observes

For him every other Indian city is parochial More so a city like Delhi, which he dubs xenophobic And despite all his globe-trotting, Bombay is where Ferreira's heart is And where his hearth is He would not live anywhere else. It is so exhilarating, he explains

Sharada Dwivedi, author and conservationist, would agree; her partiality for this city has resulted in many books on it — the latest one a coffee-table rendition of the many faces of Bombay, with over 360 photographs titled, Bombay — the Cities Within, which she has coauthored with conservation architect, Rahul Mahrotra.

Her partiality for this city is well known. She quantifies it· "When I think of Bombay I see the sunset on the western horizon. I see the beauty of the flame-red gulmohur trees, the sharp pink accacias in April and May I see the fortitude and the patience of these thousands of commuters who pass my house twice everyday — moving so fast between Churchgate station and Nariman Point. I see them walking under my window everyday. I see a resilience that is so beautiful. I see the children playing with abandon on the beaches."

And she sees hope for the city when she spots the leaf-green parrots chirping on the trees, the butterflies winding their fragrant way back to shrubs on the marble-shored traffic islands and the ferns pushing their way through rocks at fountains spouting cool water.

"For me these are symbolic — the increasing greenery, the birds and the insects returning — they symbolise hope," she adds

This city-lover plans to set aside 10 per cent of the sale proceedings on her latest book towards conservation efforts, the focus of which will be the sprawling maidans (both Oval and Cross maidans) trampled by lakhs of commuters everyday

The publishers, India Book House, have offered to contribute an equivalent amount for the same purpose. Industrial houses would also be invited to contribute towards shoring up the conservation effort with financial support.

And then, maybe, Dwivedi's hope will be realised And she will succeed in her efforts to unravel the palinpsest that makes this city so rich and different "The city has so many different layers acquired over decades — it has so many cultural layers that make it fascinating and different," Dwivedi eulogises.

Unlike her, artist and cartoonist Mario Miranda, who has reproduced the changing faces of this city a million times with his eloquent pen, fumbles with words to explain its magic.

Could it be the Gothic structures looming against a dust-laden sky, or the mint-new traffic islands with their frolicking fountains? Or is it the crowded fort area which is now-cleaned, now-dirtied granite stone facade?

Or is it the new craze to light up the old buildings which shine with renewed vigour now? Or, perhaps, it is just the cosmopolitan nature that everybody talks about and loves in this city that makes it so special? He is not so sure

But love it, he does. It is a friend where all his loved ones are The gang that understands his needs

"There is a side to it that is bad And there is a side to it that is good"

But the best side of the city is the one that allows him to choose his friends.

And then, again, it is a city where cinema is. And he loves cinema. And the movie halls where his sharp ear can distinguish a good sound system from a bad one. The beloved Sterling theatre where he has spent many a movie hour, escaping into the special, fantasy that only cinema can weave.

And he loves Bombay because it is the only city where one can make a choice to be alone or with the crowd. A city where you can never be alone. Yet, a crowded city that has the heart to let you be ■

TOUGH NUTS

Female sleuths gain ground as women mystery writers in England and America make inroads in a genre long dominated by men.
Arthur J. Pais unravels the facts*

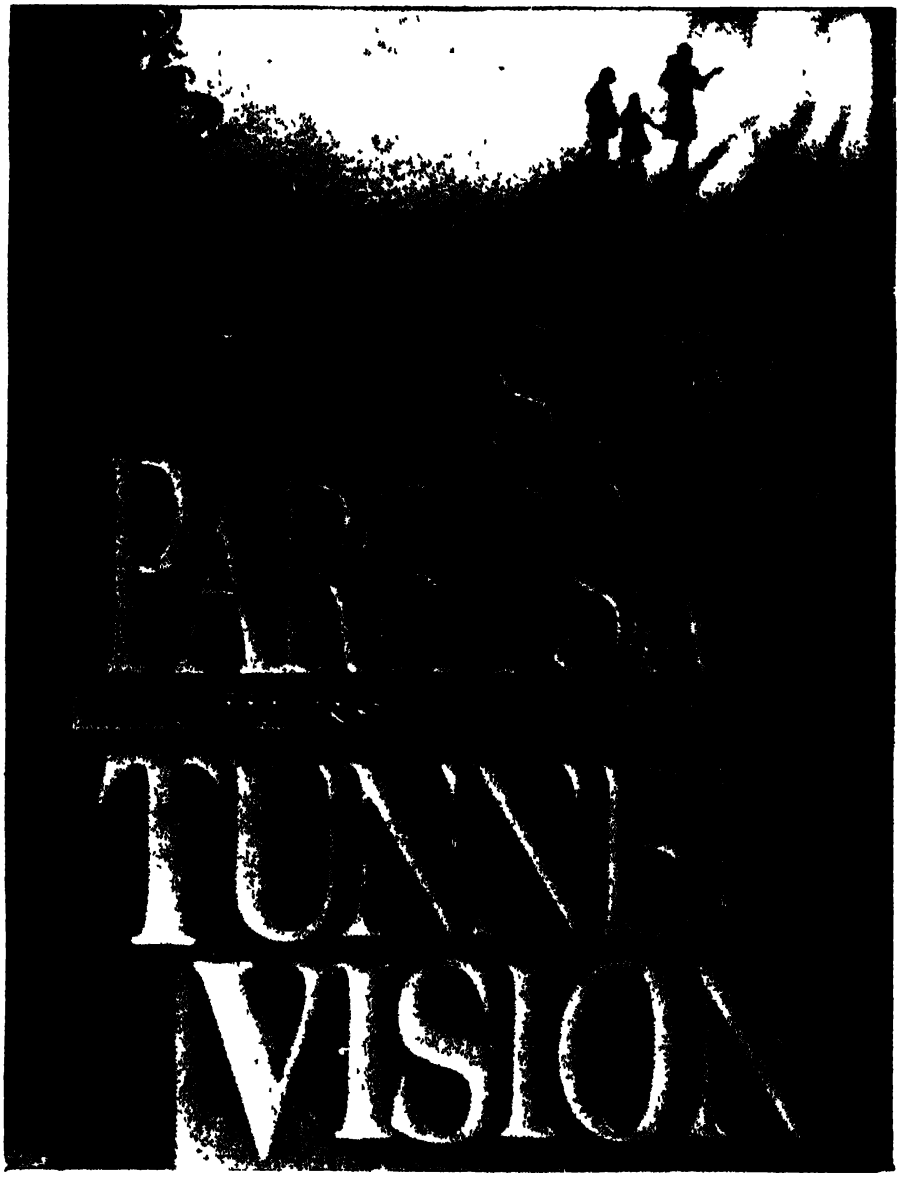
Long before Sara Paretsky's Bold Vic' began investigating mysteries triggered by Chicago's bedroom deals and backroom politics, before Carolyn G Hart's feisty 60-plus journalist-turned-amateur detective exposed evildoers in seemingly blissful and idyllic southern parts of America, and before Anne Perry's upper class heroine joined her commonplace husband Pitt in exposing deceit and murder in Victorian England, there were Nancy Drew and Miss Jane Marple

It was 64 years ago that teen sleuth Nany Drew began to solve the mysteries in dark houses, secret passages, and underground caves and that the novels by Carolyn Keene became immediate, huge hits among teenagers around the world About the same time, the gentle-mannered Miss Marple also began her fabled career as a sleuth, like the Nancy Drew novels, the Marple mysteries sold in millions



Sara Paretsky

Yet female sleuths remained a rare species for many years Agatha Christie, for instance, was better known for her Hercule Poirot mysteries than for those featuring Miss Marple Female sleuths were a rare sight even in 1964, when Carolyn G Heilbrun, writing as Amanda Cross, created Kate Fessler, a professor of literature who doubled as an amateur detective

It was not until the early Eighties when female sleuths began to appear in significant numbers, gingerly following the footsteps of Sharon McCone the gutsy, cerebral character Marcia Muller created in 1977.

Tunnel Vision*: Explosive thriller set in Chicago

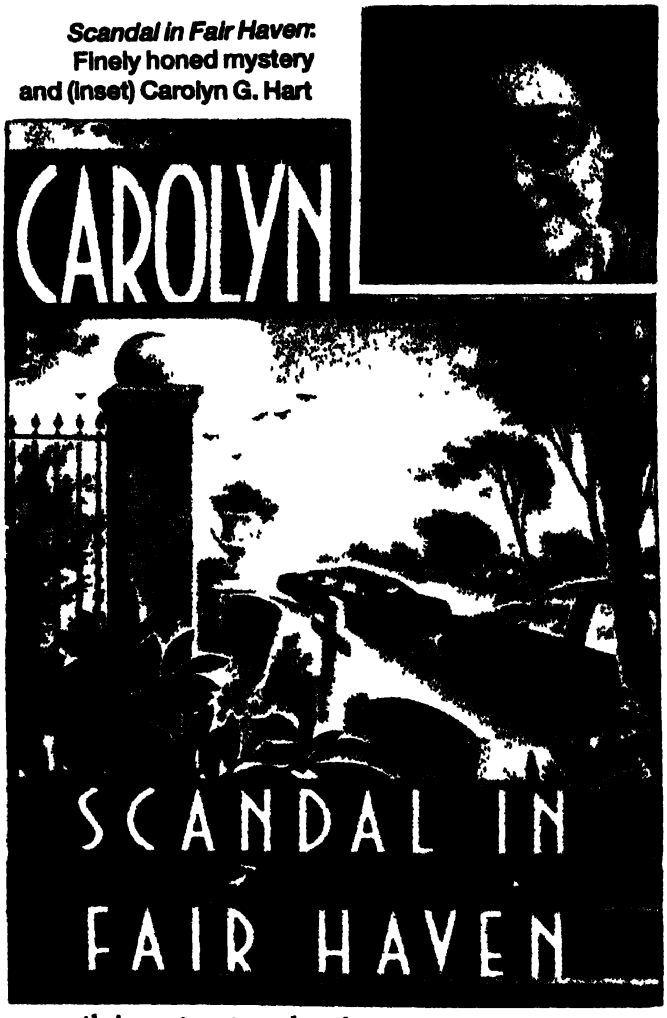
McCone, among the first independent private investigators in American literature, is not a "superwoman", says Muller, but "a person with day-to-day problems with which most readers can identify. And she also must deal with the increasingly complex issues every woman faces while making a way for herself in modern society"

Partly inspired by the women's movement and partly spurred by the need to fill a niche, American women ravaged Alaskan parks. American female gumshoes such as V I Warshawski (Bold Vic) would solve complex mysteries, often overcoming the cynicism of male peers and superiors. There are women sleuths who are karate experts, who not only eschew alcohol, but also meat and fish

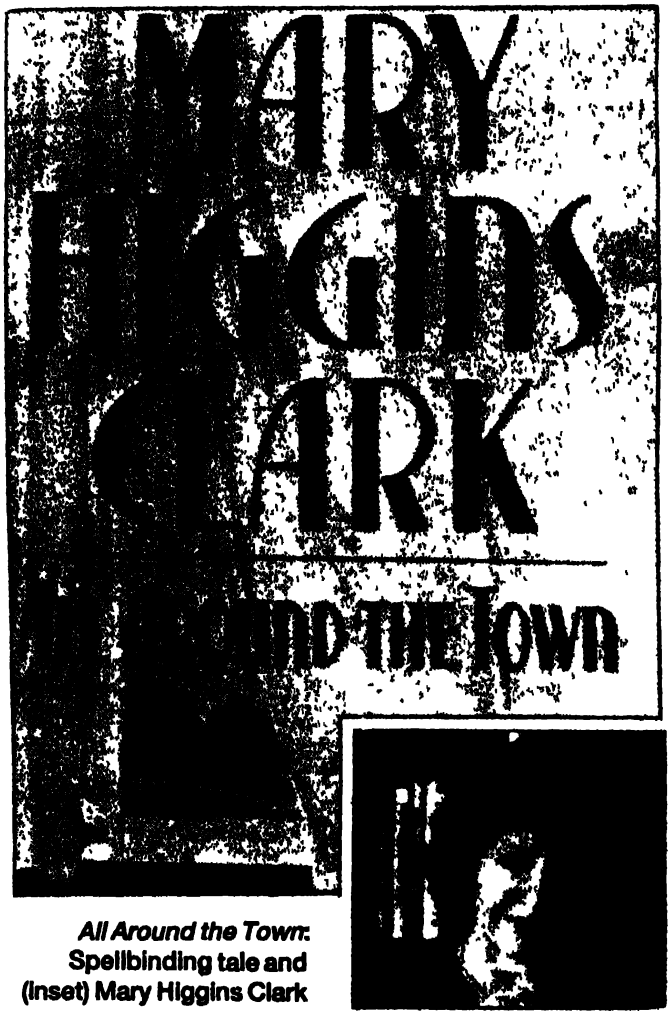
Self-sufficient, strong-willed, street-smart, generally optimistic and endowed with senses of humour, these women sleuths were a far cry from the male detectives made famous by Dashiell Hammett, Raymond Chandler, Robert Parker and scores of others They were also totally different from the macho James Bond-like characters portrayed in many men's books.

As author Margaret Maron says "Unlike the hard-boiled, hard-drinking men sleuths who were often scornful of society, women sleuths were tied to the community from where they came from."



The women characters in the mystery books by most women writers are not prone to brute force: Wit being their most versatile weapon, they were more likely to shoot from their lip rather than from their hip, use brains rather than their brawn.

But they aren't saints either. As Carolyn G. Hart, the bestselling writer of such finely honed mysteries as Fair Haven, says: "These were realistic women characters confronting tangled personal relationships."



The American women gumshoes were on the march by the mid-Eighties Yet some leading women mystery writers were worried. Crime, they felt, did not pay enough.

Many women were underpublicised by publishers and ignored by the reviewers "Reviewers were utterly necessary for our survival," says Maron "Libraries do not buy books unless they are reviewed by two publications."

The grievances spurred bestselling novelist Paretsky to gather a small group of women writers, editors and readers at the annual world mystery conference in Baltimore, the Bouchercon, for a breakfast meeting. The group expressed an urgent feeling that women mystery writers needed an organisation to promote their work, wring better deals from publishers, and capture the attention of reviewers

Scandal in Fair Haven: Finely honed mystery and (inset) Carolyn G. Hart

All Around the Town: Spellbinding tale and (inset) Mary Higgins Clark

across the country started crafting mystery novels featuring female protagonists. And soon their English sisters would follow them.

While most of the British sisters, including Ruth Rendell and P D. James, continued to create male sleuths, American women explored new territory.

Their female sleuths would soon unravel intricate mysteries in such varied settings as New England university towns, New York's financial district, southern mansions haunted by memories and guilt, and winter-

The finest Diamond and 22/22K Gold Jewellery at:

Nemichand Bamalwa & Sons,

Jewellers

16-A, Shakespeare Sarani, 3rd Floor Calcutta 700071; Phone: 242-3388

The melting or refining purity of our 22/22K ornaments is 22 Karat (91.67%)

TWIST, TURNS AND DECEITS

Fourteen years ago, Sara Paretsky, then a middle-level manager at a major insurance company, and who had a doctorate in history from the University of Chicago, decided to switch careers. She was tired of mystery novels in which only roles women characters played were as punching bags, helpless waifs or sly seductresses.

It was this situation that led her to write Indemnity Only, which shook the establishment. "What? A female detective who works alone," said a male competitor. "And uses not only her wits but her fists as well?" Paretsky has written seven more mysteries that have made her a bestselling writer in more than 12 countries.

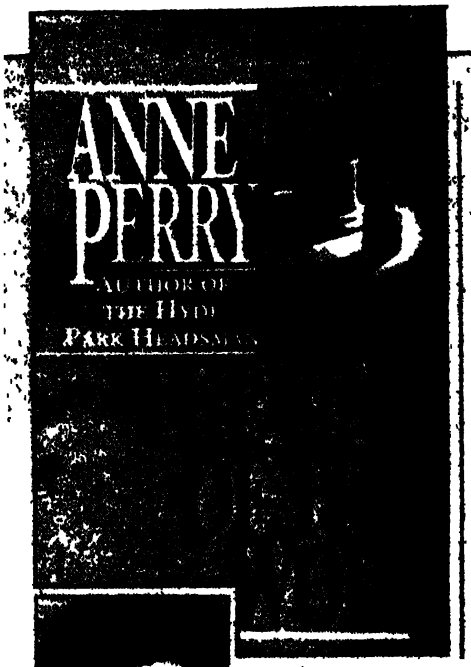
Four years ago Ms magazine named her one of the Women of the Year, Paretsky's latest mystery, Tunnel Vision, takes a hard look at the exploitation of immigrants.

"The novel really started with the idea of homeless people living in the underground tunnels of Chicago." Paretsky, whose family has long been associated with social causes, says, "A contractor friend was called in to do some work on a ventilator shaft of a building that was damaged during Chicago's underground flood in 1992. In the course of his work, he found 16 people living in the bottom of the air shaft, which I found totally shocking."

"Also, a few years ago when I was investigating the neighbourhood where I set a lot of action in my sixth novel, Burn Marks, I saw a truly gut-shattering, sad experience. There were these couple of guys, who after looking around furtively, squeezed through a narrow, basement window of an abandoned building to go shoot up drugs. I also found out that it was their home. And I found out that there were many places in Chicago where the homeless people went down as much as 50 below the surface of the city so that they could have a' home'"

Paretsky says that life in American cities is like a nuclear explosion. And yet she does not despair much because that means you stop acting.

She says that the contractor she mentioned earlier had started his own job programme for local gang members. "He is training them with skill but he is finding that it takes dozens of kids, perhaps 50 or 60 before he can find five who actually come and stay on the job all day. Many of these kids have grown up without seeing anyone work; they have no job culture. And many of them would not work outside three blocks radius of their



At the end of the day Sisters in Crime (Sin C) was born "Among our aims were creating a visibility for women mystery writers, encouraging them to make personal efforts to publicise their books and produce an annual catalogue," says Sara Paretsky, whose recent bestseller, Tunnel Vision, exposes how some of Chicago's powerful bosses lure and exploit illegal immigrants "We have been doing all this and much, much more"

Sin C today has over 1,600 members in 12 countries, at least 15 per cent of the members are brothers in crime—writers, publishers, booksellers, editors and readers The annual catalogue, listing books by members, reaches at least 7,000 wholesalers, bookshop owners, reviewers and readers A glossy 20"×30" map providing information about the settings of Sin C mysteries is mailed widely and being displayed in the front of windows of many bookshops.

Sin C sponsors gatherings at major mystery conferences It also offers a manual of specific tips on how to promote books effectively, and encourages its members to appear as guest speakers in libraries and schools

One achievement that Sisters in Crime takes some credit for is a recent willingness among publishers to arrange promotional tours for writers who are not in the big leagues. "That is because we are indeed selling very well," Hart says "Mystery books by women mean big dollars"

None of the Sin C members is yet to

The Sins of the Wolf. Portrait of secret evil and (inset) Anne Perry

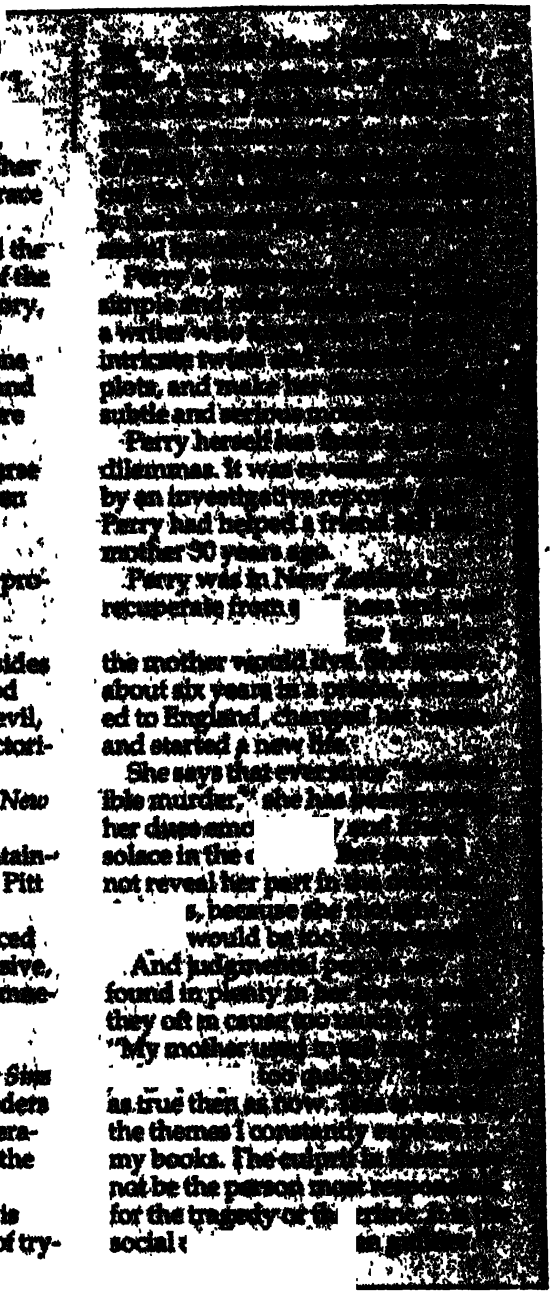
homes because that was their gang territory and they were not going to work on the buildings that a rival gang member would benefit from."

Paretsky says that through her books and personal involvement she is contributing her little bit to improving the city of Chicago. "The enormity of the problems is so great that some of the things that might have worked 30 years ago — fixing educational system, ending segregation — are not going to work now."

Anne Perry sets her mystery novels in the Victorian period. "It

cs, specially involving honesty, compassion and courage, whether a person under stress has the grace to face up to the truth and act honourably," Perry says. "And the Victorian age, which was one of the most prosperous in British history, had a great deal of hypocrisy.

"Appearances and reputations mattered intensely in that age and so much was hidden. There were great many situations where people did not have legal recourse to help or justice. Blackmail often provided perfect excuse for murder.



"Unfortunately many of the problems from the Victorian age have continued with us."

Perry is a favourite on both sides of the Atlantic. "Give her a good murder and a shameful social evil, and Anne Perry can write a Victorian mystery, that would make Dickens' eyes pop," raved The New York Times book review.

Her first set of mysteries containing 14 titles, features Inspector Pitt and his gutsy, inquisitive wife Charlotte; her second, introduced four years ago, presents an elusive, enigmatic William Monk, an amnesia victim, and a former police officer.

In her newest bestseller, The Sins of The Wolf, Perry takes her readers away from London to the venerable Edinburgh, the 'Athens of the North'

Investigator William Monk is saddled with a daunting task of try-

Perry

simple and a writer who intricate plots, and subtle and

Perry

dilemmas. It

by an investigative

Perry had helped mother 30 years ago.

Perry was in recuperate from the mother

about six years

ed to England,

and started a new life.

She says that

ible murder," she has her diaries and solace in the not reveal her part in s, because would be

And judgmental

found in plenty in they oft in cause

"My mother

as true then as now.

the themes I constantly

my books. The culprit not be the person most for the tragedy of social

match the success achieved by their sister, Mary Higgins Clark, who began writing in her mid fifties, even as she was completing her bachelors degree, her studies having been interrupted years ago by her husband's death and the onus of bringing up half a dozen children

But many Sin C members have not only found a place in the bestseller lists, but also seen their books being made into movies Rochelle Majer Krich, the writer of five bestselling mysteries, sold the movie rights of her Where's Mommy Now last year, the film stars Terri Garr Hart says that more than 1 million of her books have sold in hardcover and paperback Recently, she has created a new series involving Henrietta O'Dwyer Collins, a retired newspaperwoman with a zest for life and a talent for trouble.

"Carolyn G Hart is America's Agatha Christie," fellow-writer Susan Dunlap notes "Her Dead Man's Island, the first Henrietta mystery is a tightly-plotted page turner with an array of delightfully wicked suspects on a vacation island."

Recently titles by Paretsky and Sue Grafton have remained in the New York Times bestseller list for more than three months and their paperback rights have been purchased for more than $1 5 million.

"Women mystery writers are hot as hell," says Steve Rubin, long been associated with Doubleday and a respected publisher and editor And their success "has been fuelled by the terrific-ness of their female sleuths". He adds that women mystery writers are read in significant numbers by men. "Otherwise, writers like Paretsky and Grafton would not be international bestsellers."

Rubin says, with some exaggeration of course, that the male, Anglo-Saxon private eye, always drinking, always after women, and always cynical of the world around him, may soon become extinct.

Meanwhile, says Hart that if Keene, the writer of Nancy Drew mysteries, and Christie, the creator of Miss Marple "could see what has happened to women sleuths and women mystery writers today, they would be more than delighted

"They would be very proud." ■

POETRY

Selected by Jayanta Mahapatra

Rajib De

Wanderer

Lay down tracks, rails your feet can follow.

Essentially alone,
Playing with the deaths of many years.

The face of this clock is yours
Lonely and unrecognisable even to yourself.

Gargoyles leave your brain alone.
Bagpipes screech into your womb.

You are the winged car whose reflection
Is mirrored in every pool

Ghost towns blow dust into your eyes,
Moss on brick walls are corners in your mind

You eat lilies on toast, with roseberry jam,
They build memorials in every spot you pass,
Anterions spring up in the ones they miss

You walk a thousand miles
To shed this skin.

You do not uncoil, settle down and set root,
You are a unicorn, chasing the wind
Your hoofs beating a staccato
On every tin roof

You are the summer
That walks into the arches
Of the avenue of stone.

Mishta Roy

Down the Skyline

The window refuses to sleep.
Pale eyes of the moon
Are wide awake in infatuation.
Blue of the horizon keeps the moon
Awake by nightlong dialogue.

Sometimes it seems worth living
Even without the endeared person beside.
We are always in quest of a meaning
That sometimes makes the living meaningless.

Now the moonshine is lying on my bed
And I am at my desk.
Searching for reasons
For my being here.
Irreversible night flows down the skyline.

Pronab Kumar Majumder

INNER EYE ❑ Bejan Daruwalla

Aries

March 21—April 20

Ganesha says focus on work as well as personal affairs, both of which will please you and tax you Now is the time to seek new pastures, if interested Also, you can add a second string to your bow In matters of the heart, a little caution is advisable March 30-31 show the way, so to say

Taurus

April 21—May 20

Thanks to the moon's placing, a journey or a collaboration is likely You could be visiting pilgrimages in 1995-1996 Publicity, ceremony, functions and meets keep you exceptionally busy Many Taureans will be looking for new avenues in their business or profession

Gemini

May 21—June 20

As the sun turns very favourable, you will socialise, converse brilliantly, have friends, win over people, entertain, be amused and thus have a ball March 26-27 is for news, views, ideas, messages, calls, communication, ties and trips Romance is in the air

Cancer

June 21—July 20

A terrific heave-ho for Cancerians and the results will fully justify all your efforts, so go ahead bravely and silently Partnerships, or, at least, the opinion of others, deserve your sympathetic listening Statuswise and moneywise, you do go up a notch or two on and after March 30

Leo

July 21—August 21

Mars regains direct motion in your sign, according to Western astrology That should help you to come down hard and flat on opposition, thus, crushing it, or, at least, crippling it It would be best to work out a plan, as distractions and diversifications will be numerous

Virgo

August 22—September 22

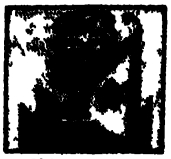
It seems that you will be changing tracks as others change their clothes Ties and connections are suggested by your planetary ruler, Mercury, and these could result in a trip Mars is indicative of expenses, but these will be for a worthy cause

Libra

September 23—October 22

Kicks, kisses, bricks and bouquets sum it up sweetly There are two major influences here Change in the home front right from mere innovation to outright buying, selling, leasing or renting could be one trend Marriage, official engagement, business or collaborations could be the other trend

Scorpio



October 23—November 22

Ganesha says, loans, funds, taxes, legacy, lottery, hypothecations, leases and insurances, should have a noteworthy impact on your life Health may not be at its best and an operation could be necessary Pay heed to news and messages now, as these could lead to contracts and big deals

Sagittarius

November 23—December 20

The luck of the draw should be with you Go in for a lottery, a football pool or games of chance, if you feel inclined Many of you will be engaging yourselves in new/different activities and shifting mental and work gears very rapidly Romance beckons you bewitchingly

Capricorn

December 21—January 19

While you will be moving fast, organising superbly, managing home as well as office with flair and artistry, see that you do not neglect yourself Health will need attending to and there's a strong possibility of a surgery Many of you will be renovating, buying or selling house

Aquarius

January 20—February 18

Take the long shot, be it a job, a loved one, a project in limbo which can be revived and be bold about it Trips and visits are very likely March 30-31 are important in this regard March 26-27 will be highly significant—for personal matters You will receive important news, too

Pisces

February 19—March 20

You will have to pull yourself together and make a very concentrated effort at that It will spell success There are chances of a promotion, socialising, buying, selling and leasing for the next 22 days So be alert for opportunities Time for entertaining and socialising

BIRTHDAYS

March 26: Moon-Jupiter happy placing leads to journey, ceremony, inspirational moves and [illegible] says Ganesha.

March 27: Moon-Venus conjunction [illegible] of beauty, enough money to enjoy [illegible] lifestyle will be [illegible].

March 28: Moon against Pluto [illegible] of [illegible] August 23. December [illegible]

March 29: Moon conjoining [illegible]

your work will finally be done, as Mercury is the negotiator.

March 30: Mercury sextile Neptune making for inspiration, intuition and insight—three exceptionally useful attributes for a grand success in life and love.

March 31: The new moon is excellently placed with Jupiter making you to be an optimist. You will be successful and [illegible]

April 1: Jupiter, the good luck planet, is at a static position; a little time will be required to set things in motion, to [illegible] and thus be satisfied.

IME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No.	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[redacted]
IC-741	0710	3, 5	IC-742	0940	3, 5
IC-743	0920	daily	IC-744	1150	daily
PF-701	1130	1, 3, 5 7	PF-702	1610	1, 3, 5, 7
[redacted]
M9-304/109	0855	1, 3, 5	M9-110/301	1900	1 3, 5
[redacted]
PF-705	0730	2 4, 6, 7	PF-706	1510	2, 4 6 7
[redacted]
PF 735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1
PF-737	0730	3, 5	PF-738	1740	3, 5
IC-721	1300	1, 3, 5	IC-722	1540	1, 3 5
[redacted]
IC-771	0600	daily	IC 772	1140	daily
[redacted]
IC-544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2 7
IC-769	1525	1, 3 5	IC-770	2120	1, 3, 5
[redacted]
IC-676	0730	daily	IC 675	0820	daily
D2-102	0905	daily	D2-101	0835	daily
9W 202	0920	1, 2, 3, 4 5 6	9W-201	0840	1, 2, 3 4, 5 6
IC-273	1945	daily	AI 306	1840	5
9W-212	1945	daily	IC-274	1850	daily
D2-104	2005	daily	9W-211	1910	daily
AI-309	2035	6	D2 103	1925	daily
AI 681	2350	1
[redacted]
			IC-262	0815	2, 4, 7
IC-263	0700	daily	S2-025	0810	1, 2 3, 4, 5, 6
S2-026	0845	1, 2, 3 4, 5 6	M9-303	0825	daily
M9-304	0855	daily	AI 682	0950	1
IC 812	1515	1 3, 5	S2 015	1015	1, 3, 5
S2-016	1555	1 3 5	4S-806	1115	1, 2 3, 4, 5, 6
IC-402	1715	daily	IC-401	1155	daily
4S-805	1745	1, 2, 3, 4, 5 6	S2-005	1855	1, 2 3 4 5 7
IC-261	1900	2 4, 7	M9-301	1900	daily
M9-302	1930	daily	IC-811	1930	1, 3, 5
S2-006	1930	1 2 3 4 5 7	IC-264	2210	daily
[redacted]
PF-737	0730	3, 5	IC-704	1430	3 5
IC-703	0800	3, 5	D2-181	1620	1 3, 5 7
D2-181	1135	1 3, 5, 7	D2-183	1620	2, 4, 6
D2 183	1135	2, 4, 6	IC-702	1630	2, 4, 6, 7
4S-815	1145	1 2 3 4 5, 6	4S-816	1705	1, 2 3 4, 5, 6
IC-701	1240	2 4 6 7	PF-738	1740	3, 5
[redacted]
IC-257	1150	4, 7	IC-258	1650	4, 7
[redacted]
PF-735	0730	1	IC-712	1410	2 6
PF 737	0730	3 5	IC-704	1430	3 5
PF 705	0730	2, 4, 6, 7	IC-706	1430	1, 4 7
IC-703	0800	3, 5	PF 706	1510	2 4, 6 7
IC 707	0800	1, 4, 7	D2 181	1620	1, 3 5 7
IC-711	0800	2 6	D2-183	1620	2, 4, 6
D2-181	1135	1 3 5, 7	IC-230	1650	daily
D2-183	1135	2 4, 6	4S-811	1705	1, 2, 3, 4 5, 6
4S-812	1145	1 2 3, 4, 5, 6	PF-736	1730	1

FLIGHTS

[redacted]
RJ-185	1445	4	RJ-184	0705	4
[redacted]

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No.	Time	Days
IC-257	1150	4, 7	PF-738	1740	3, 5
IC 211	1240	4, 6	IC-258	1740	4, 7
IC-229	1310	daily	IC-212	1740	4, 6
[redacted]
S2-023	1045	1, 3, 5	S2-024	1525	1, 3, 5
IC-777	1600	2, 4, 7	IC-778	2100	2, 4, 7
IC-769	1525	1, 3 5	IC-770	2120	1, 3, 5
[redacted]
IC-707	0800	1, 4, 7	IC-256	1320	3, 5
IC-255	0830	3, 5	IC-708	1430	1, 4, 7
IC-253	1100	2, 6	IC-254	1550	2, 6
[redacted]
IC-213	0910	2, 4, 7	IC-213	1315	2, 4, 7
[redacted]
PF-735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1
[redacted]
IC-812	1515	1 3 5	IC-811	1930	1, 3, 5
[redacted]
IC-542	1115	1, 3, 5	IC-541	1030	1 3 5
IC-544	1115	2, 7	IC-543	1035	2 7
IC-765	1720	daily	D2-171	1045	daily
D2-172	1740	daily	IC-766	2220	daily
[redacted]
IC-769	1525	1, 3 5	IC 770	2120	1, 3, 5
[redacted]
IC-249	1430	2, 4, 7	S2-015	1015	1, 3, 5
S2-016	1555	1 3, 5	IC-249	1805	2, 4, 7
IC-812	1515	1, 3, 5	IC-811	1930	1, 3, 5
[redacted]
IC-285	0640	3, 5 7	IC-286	1100	2, 4, 6
[redacted]
IC-249	1430	2 4, 7	IC 249	1805	2, 4, 7
[redacted]
PF-705	0730	2, 2, 6, 7	Pf-706	1510	2, 4, 6, 7
[redacted]
IC-255	0830	3, 5	IC-260	1110	1, 7
IC-259	0830	1 7	IC-256	1320	3, 5
IC-253	1100	2, 6	IC-254	1550	2, 6
IC-211	1240	4 6	IC-212	1740	4, 6
[redacted]
IC-213	0910	2, 4, 7	IC-213	1315	2, 4, 7
[redacted]
PF-737	0730	3, 5	PF-738	1740	3, 5
[redacted]
S2 016	1555	1, 3, 5	S2-015	1015	1, 3, 5
[redacted]
IC-542	1115	1, 3, 5	IC-541	1030	1, 3, 5
[redacted]
PF-735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1

[redacted] INTERNATIONAL

[redacted]
IC-731	0855	2, 4, 6, 7	KB-106	1115	3
			KB-108	1215	5
KB-105	1125	2, 6	TG-313	1240	1, 3, 6
TG-314	1355	1, 3, 6	IC-732	1805	2, 4, 6, 7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[illegible]
RO-076	2005	5, 7	RO-075	1005	5, 7
[illegible]
IC-225	1200	1	IC-226	1420	1
BG-696	1735	2, 5	BG-697	1655	2, 5
[illegible]
BG-092	0850	4, 5	BG-091	0810	4, 5
BG-092	1150	1, 2, 3, 6, 7	BG-091	1110	1 2, 3, 6, 7
IC-723	1250	1, 2, 3, 5, 6	IC-724	1520	1, 2, 3, 5, 6
BG-094	1905	1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7	BG-093	1825	1 2, 3, 5, 6, 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1, 5	BG-095	2020	1, 5
[illegible]
IC-747	1115	1, 3, 5	IC-748	1455	1, 3, 5
RA-214	1815	1 4	RA-213	1715	1, 4

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
LONDON
BA-142	2050	3, 7	BA-143	1525	3 7
MOSCOW
SU-538	1855	4	SU-537	1655	4
PARIS
KB-106	1200	3	KB 105	1040	2 6
KB 106	1300	5
SINGAPORE
SQ-415	2200	2, 5	SQ-416	2040	2 5
SOFIA
LZ 504	1750	4	LZ-503	1650	4
TOKYO
AI 306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure Up	Time	Howrah	Arrival Time	Dn
2311	19 15	Delhi Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19-20	Amritsar Mail	7 55	3006
3003	20 35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13-00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya-Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat	16 15	2382
2303	9-15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues, Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun	16-15	2304
2301	16-30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed, Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun	10-45	2302
2305	13 45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun, Arr Wed & Sat	12-50	2306
3073	23 00	Himgiri (Jammu-Tawi) Express Tri-Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat, Arr Tues, Wed, & Sat	11 35	3074
5047	13 00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun, Mon, Wed & Fri	4-30	5048
3009	20-30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9-45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18-15	3008
3049	13-20	Amritsar Express	15-30	3050
3039	21-00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5-20	3040
3019	16-05	Kathgodam Express	11-55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5-00	3022
5659	17-35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6-30	5660
3317	6-10	Black Diamond Express	21-25	3318
3029	17-11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18-20	Asansol Express	8-45	3036
3031	21-05	Danapur Express	5-50	3032
3025	23-00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday, Arr Friday	11-35	3026
3071	22-30	Jamalpur Express	5-10	3072
3015	9-55	Santiniketan Express	15-40	3016
1159	15-25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tues & Wed	6-50	1160
1171	15-25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed, Arr Fri, Sat & Sun	6-50	1172
3327	14-30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4-50	3328
1181	15-25	Chambal (Agra Cantt.) Express Thursday only	6 50	1182
		Sealdah
3141	13-40	Teesta-Torsa Express Dep Mon, Tues Wed, Thurs, Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed Thurs, Fri Sat & Sun	6-35	3142
3143	19-15	Darjeeling Mail	8-45	3144
3111	20-15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7-15	3112
5657	6-25	Kanchanjunga Express	20-35	5658
3153	22 00	Gaur Express	5 15	3154
5663	20-00	Katihar Express	4-15	5664
3151	11 45	Jammu-Tawi Express	15-50	3152
3133	20-55	Mughal Saral Express via SBG Loop	12 55	3134
3103	18-20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express	10-25	3104
5185	12-40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues Thus & Sat	4 25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure Up	Time	Howrah	Arrival Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6 50	6004
8002	19 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15-15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 20	8029
2841	14-10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12 00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri, Arr Mon & Thurs	1940	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13 45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express	22 05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5-00	8006
8015	21-40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
8007	22-15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5-30	8008
8409	19-00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8-25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30	2822
8079	23-20	Tirupati Express	4-15	8080
8045	10-30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00	8046
8017	16-45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2421	16-40	Bhubaneswar-New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10	—
—	11 05	New Delhi-Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15	—
—	14 05	Trivandrum Central - Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 45	6321
—	14-05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13 45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15	—
6316	22-35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13 45	6315
6520	22-35	Guwahati - Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22-15	—
—	14-05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains, please dial 2203545-54 for in-coming trains, 2203535-44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South-Eastern Railway trains, dial 2203496-3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition, dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running), 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535-37

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

THAT BEAUTIFUL DRAGON

The first time I saw a train, I was standing on a wooded slope outside a tunnel, not far from Kalka Suddenly, with a shrill whistle and a great burst of steam, a green and black engine came snorting out of the blackness I turned and ran to my father

"A dragon!" I shouted "There's a dragon coming out of its cave!"

Since then, steam engines and dragons have always inspired the same sort of feelings in me — wonder and awe and delight I would like to see a real dragon some day — green and gold — and because I have always preferred the reluctant sort — rather shy and gentle But till that day comes, I shall be content with steam engines

In India the steam engine is still very much with us In 1855 the East India Railway was opened between Calcutta and Raniganj, a distance of 122 miles By the turn of the century, India had one of the most extensive railway systems in the world Today, the hundreds of trains that criss-cross the subcontinent, panting over desert and plain, through hill and forest, are still pulled by these snorting monsters who belch smoke by day and scatter red stars in the night

Even now, when I see a train coming round the bend of a hill, on a crossing or bridge, or cutting across a wide flat plain, I feel the same sort of innocent wonder that I felt as a boy

Where are all the people going to and where have they come from and what are they really like? When children wave to me from carriage windows, I wave back to them It is a habit I have never lost And sometimes I am in a train waving and the children from nearby villages come running out of their mud huts to wave back to me — well, not to me exactly, it is really the train they are waving at

Small, wayside stations have always fascinated me Manned sometimes by just one or two railway employees, and often situated in the middle of a damp subtropical forest or clinging to the mountainside on the way to Shimla or Darjeeling, these little stations are for me, outposts of romance, lonely symbols of the pioneering spirit that led man to lay tracks into the remote corners of the earth

I remember such a stop on a line that went through the Terai forests near the foothills of the Himalayas At about 10 at night the khalasi or station watchman, lit his kerosene lamp and started walking up the tracks into the jungle

"Where are you going?" I asked

"To see if the tunnel is clear," he said "The Overland Mail comes in 20 minutes"

I accompanied him a furlong or two along the track, through a deep cutting which led to the tunnel Every night the khalasi walked through the dark tunnel and then stood outside to wave his lamp to the oncoming train to signal that the track was clear If the engine driver did not see the light, he stopped the train It always slowed down near the cutting

Having inspected the tunnel, we stood outside waiting for the train It seemed a long time coming There was no moon and the dense forest seemed to be trying to crowd us into the narrow cutting The sounds of the forest came to us — the belling of a sambar and cry of a jackal told us that perhaps a tiger or leopard was on the prowl

It charged straight at the tunnel and into it, thundering past us like the beautiful dragon in my dreams. And when it had gone, the silence returned and the forest breathed again. Only the rails still trembled with the passing of the train

There were strange nocturnal bird sounds and then silence

The khilasi stood outside the tunnel, trimming his lamp, listening to the faint sound of the jungle — sounds which only he could identify and understand Something made him stand very still for a few moments, peering into the darkness and I knew that everything was not as it should be

"There is something in the tunnel," he said

I could hear nothing at first, but then there came a regular sawing sound, just like the sound made by someone sawing through the branch of a tree

"Baghera!" whispered the khilasi He had said enough to make me recognise the sound of a leopard trying to find its mate "The train will be coming soon We must drive the animal out or it will be run over!"

He must have sensed my surprise because he said, "Do not be afraid I know this leopard well We have seen each other many times He has a weakness for stray dogs and goats, but will not harm us " He gave me his small hand axe to hold and, raising his lamp high, started walking into the tunnel, shouting at the top of his voice to try and scare away the animal I followed close behind him

We had gone about 20 yards into the tunnel when the light from the lamp fell on the leopard which was crouching between the tracks It bared its teeth in a snarl and went down on its stomach, its tail twisting I thought it was going to spring The khilasi and I both shouted together Our voices rang and echoed through the tunnel And the leopard, uncertain as to how many humans there were in the tunnel, turned swiftly and disappeared into the darkness ahead

The khilasi and I walked on till the end of the tunnel without seeing the leopard again As we returned to the entrance of the tunnel the rails began to hum and we knew the train was approaching

I put my hand down to one of the rails and felt its tremor And then the engine came round the bend, hissing at us, scattering sparks into the darkness, defying the jungles as it roared through the steep sides of the cutting It charged straight at the tunnel and into it, thundering past us like the beautiful dragon in my dreams

And when it had gone, the silence returned and the forest breathed again Only the rails still trembled with the passing of the train

(Sanctuary Features)

CLUB7

HOLIDAYS '95

EUROPEAN BONANZA ON KLM

A fabulous air cum coach tour including the French Riviera & 4 days in Switzerland ! Easy paced itinerary covering 9 countries with comprehensive sightseeing and many entrance fees included unmatched by any other tour in the market. All but one (Sit down) dinners included Many other novel features

DEP 12, 21, 28 May, 4, 11 June, 16 July, 20 Aug 10, 29 Sept

Tour price Rs 41557 + USD 1157

Fantastic early bird bonus and group of 4 discount. We show you more

TRAFALGAR TOURS

Europe's No 1 for its sheer range of tours and quality and the price advantage Cruises in the Mediterrenean, tours to Scotland, Scandinavia, New Europe, Morrocco etc ex London Weekly departures

MAURITIUS EXOTICA : On AI/MK.

A choice of 4 different hotel categories with 2 fullday sightseeing tours incl Ile Aux Cerfs (Top attraction) in a funfilled 7 day half board package DEP Every Monday

Based on 4 persons travelling together Ex Bombay (From Rs 14397 + $ 307 to $ 597 For Hotel Ville Pointe Aux Biches to Hotel Le Mauricia Lower fares in July, Aug)

Singapore extention : At a modest supplement with choice of 4 different hotel categories in Singapore as well DEP Every Monday

FAR EAST : On SQ/TG/IC

A choice of 4 different holiday propositions to Thailand, Singapore and Hongkong from Rs 9377 + USD 177 to Rs 19667 + USD 687 plus extention tours to Bali, Langkawi, Kualalumpur DEP Every Monday

AFRICAN SAFARI : ON KQ.

Visiting 5 game parks incl stay at the famous Tree Top hotels and the World famous Mt Kenya Safari Club Rs 22747 + USD 747 DEP 20, 27 Apr , 4, 11, 18, 25 May, 1, 8, 15, 22, 29 June Extentions to london at a supplement

CONNOISSEUR'S CIRCUIT :

To exotic destinations Cairo, Athens, Istanbul, French Riviera, Switzerland, Paris and London in a package designed for the repeat traveller to Europe easy paced and exclusive with several evening programmes truely for the connoisseur !

Rs 41597 + USD 1357 DEP 28 May, 04 June, 06 Aug, 01 Oct

USA :

Covering coast to coast for 15 days for Rs 48957 + USD 1257 + VUSA All tour prices based on current air fares Fantastic early bird bonus

DRUPA '95, ROTARY & LION'S CONVENTION TOURS

All tours are based on superior standard and first class hotels with more included sightseeings and meals

For details Contact at

CLUB7

111/A, Tivoli Court, Calcutta-700 019. Ph 400 893/247-8504/404261

WE SHOW MORE, WE COST LESS...CHECK OUT AND BOOK.

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S  COLUMN

CHUGGING THROUGH THE VALLEY

One of my most prized possessions is a railway ticket, cardboard bound in cloth, which reads as follows AC Class Pass for Gillian Wright with Two Servants in 2nd class and 140 kgs of luggage, valid station to station over Pakistan Railways Available also for Brake-Vans of goods trains and All Locomotives Valid one month

This is the nearest I have ever come to having the freedom of any railways Unfortunately, I didn't have 140 kgs of luggage or two servants, and so could not make the fullest use of this ticket

But I was able to travel from Karachi to the Khyber — the excuse being to make a film about a railway journey For me, the most fascinating part of this journey was the passage through interior Sind to Baluchistan and the Afghan border at the poetically named frontier post of Chaman

It has to be said, railways in Pakistan have not been given the priority they have in India No new lines have been built and investment has gone into roads and air This means, trains don't run too fast to discard some beautiful, though antiquated, remnants of the Raj These are the solid teak saloons, complete with bathrooms, bedrooms and sitting rooms which are allocated to the seniormost in government and the railways

It was in one of these that I was privileged to have a berth But I didn't start my journey there

We left Karachi on the One-Up Khyber Mail which takes two nights and a day to reach Peshawar 1,700 kms away The station was dimly lit, and the guard swung his lantern high as we pulled out away from the city and into the Indus valley

This was the time when other passengers were settling down to sleep But the film crew and I were in the mail van where the railway mail service was in full swing Throughout the night bulging mail bags were emptied on to the floor of the carriage, the staff picking up letters by the handful and sorting them into pigeon holes

I stepped down for tea at Kotri station, where petromax lamps lit stalls and cries of garam chae made plain one thing still held in common between the railways of India and Pakistan

The next exchange of mailbags was at Hyderabad Sind before our sleeper was uncoupled, shunted into a siding

The journey from Hyderabad, through mango orchards and date palm groves, to Rohri was undertaken in daylight once our carriage had been attached to the Awam Express

At Rohri, hundreds of passengers were making their way out of the station by ignoring the footbridges and climbing over the tracks

Rohri is the junction for Quetta, and stands right on the bank of the great Indus river. On the bank opposite is the twin city of Sukkur, and downstream, the barrage opened in 1932 which feeds 10,500 kms of canals and irrigates over three million hectares of land

I made my way down to the river past hundreds of buffaloes proceeding for their morning bath, before taking a boat trip to the islands midstream Just oppsite the dust-coloured houses of Rohri, is the fortified island of Bukkar to one end of which is the island shrine of Shri Sadhbela

Sind is famous for its many shrines of pirs and saints, but I had never before been to a functioning Hindu shrine in Pakistan The priest there was also far from accustomed to seeing foreign visitors

The central shrine was devoted to an alabaster statue of Baba Ban Khandi, the holy man who had settled and died there He was garlanded with gold tinsel, draped in pink silk and surrounded by spiralling tinsel decorations and fairy lights Copies of the Gita and Guru Granth Sahib were also on display, as were images of Annapurna Mata and Durga

Outside in a small shrine the priest was proud to show me a new innovation Instead of an earthenware pot full of holy water, directly above the Shiv lingam was a tap

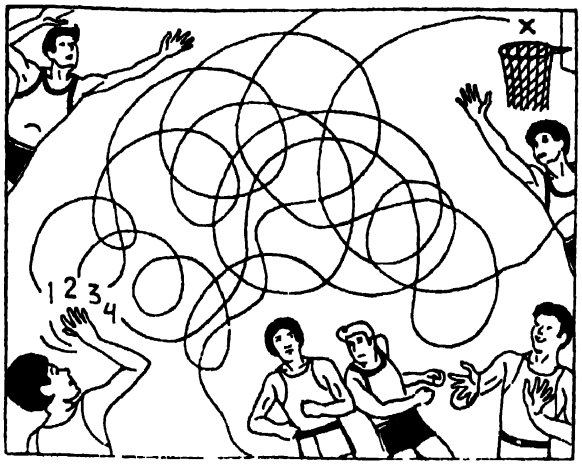
The shrine seemed empty but the priest told me that there was a large Hindu population in Sukkur and that on Fridays, the weekly holiday, families bought their children to the island

The Indus at Rohri is spanned by two magnificent bridges The pale grey, single span Ayub bridge is the present railway bridge The other, The Lansdowne, can no longer be used by trains as it is over 100 years old There are several widely believed legends about this impressive "monstrosity in steel"

One say that the engineer who made it had his hands cut off by the British so that he could never design another

The second is that there is a key which fits into the middle of the bridge and can be turned to make it split in two The engineer, however, is said to have thrown away the key into the Indus

Until the Lansdowne bridge was built in 1889, all rail goods and passenger traffic between Karachi and the Punjab had to be ferried across the river During the years the railway itself was coming into being a magnificent floating institution, the Indus Flotilla, steamed up the Indus from Kotri to Multan, over 1,000 kms away, taking 34 days to complete the journey



Now barrages have made the Indus only locally navigable I only saw small boats carrying firewood working up and downstream In turn, the railways are being overtaken by roads The cotton and red chillies that were once transhipped on to the meter gauge at Rohri now go by truck

The lines from Karachi through Sind to the Punjab were commercial lines, giving the prosperous province a port for its produce. But the line leading northwards across the Ayub bridge through desert and mountain to Baluchistan was built to guard the Bolan Pass — with the Khyber, one of the two overland gateways to India

[To be continued]

(Sanctuary Features)

JUNIOR WHIRL HAL KAUFMAN

YES, OR NO! Which route does the ball take to reach the net? Choose 1, 2 3 or 4 Trace line through for answer

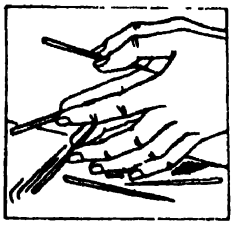
BOO-BOO CUE! I am a word of two syllables My first is the result of a poor shot My second is the opposite of give My all is an error in the making What word am I? No fair peeking below

I am the word mistake — mis (miss) take

RUN OF MILL LOG WORDS

TIMBER! A group of six words ending in LOG are incomplete above You are asked to puzzle them out in accord with the following

1 Sales brochure often found in the mail
2 Stand-up comedian's routine
3 Free up a drain-pipe
4 Accumulation of unfinished business
5 A language used in the Phillipines
6 Film associated with distant places



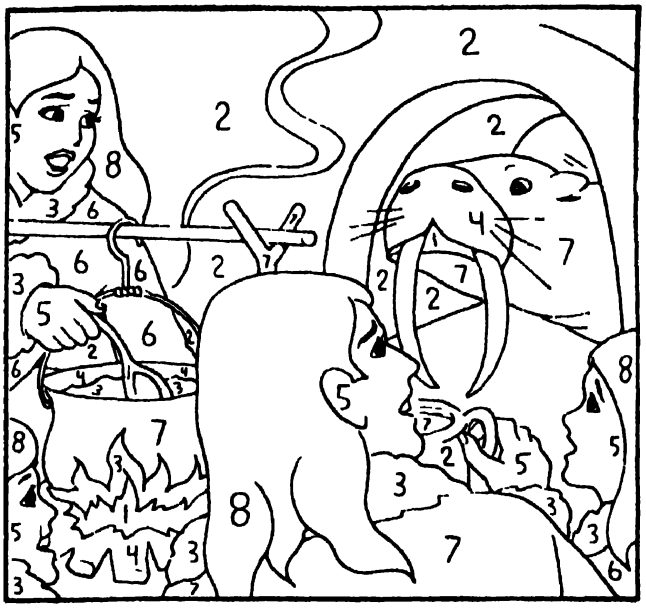
Words range from six to eight letters long Remember, all of them end in letters LOG

1 Catalog 2 Monolog 3 Unclog 4 Backlog, 5 Tagalog 6 Travelog

HANDS ON! Let your fingers do the walking in this dexterity test Object is to pick up toothpicks (or paper clips) using fingers of both hands thusly Pick up toothpicks between two little fingers, grasp next toothpick between two third fingers, continue with middle fingers, index fingers, and finally thumbs

Time limit Two minutes

If another person is present, try having a race



HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below

Differences 1 Tree limb is missing 2 Towel is missing 3 Cuffs are missing 4 Collar is different 5 Club is shorter 6 Hole is missing

FUNSPOT

TUSK, TUSK! Oops, we've an unexpected visitor. Apply colors by number neatly Code. 1—Red. 2—Lt. blue. 3—Yellow. 4—Lt. brown 5—Flesh tones. 6—Lt. green. 7—Dk. brown. 8—Black.

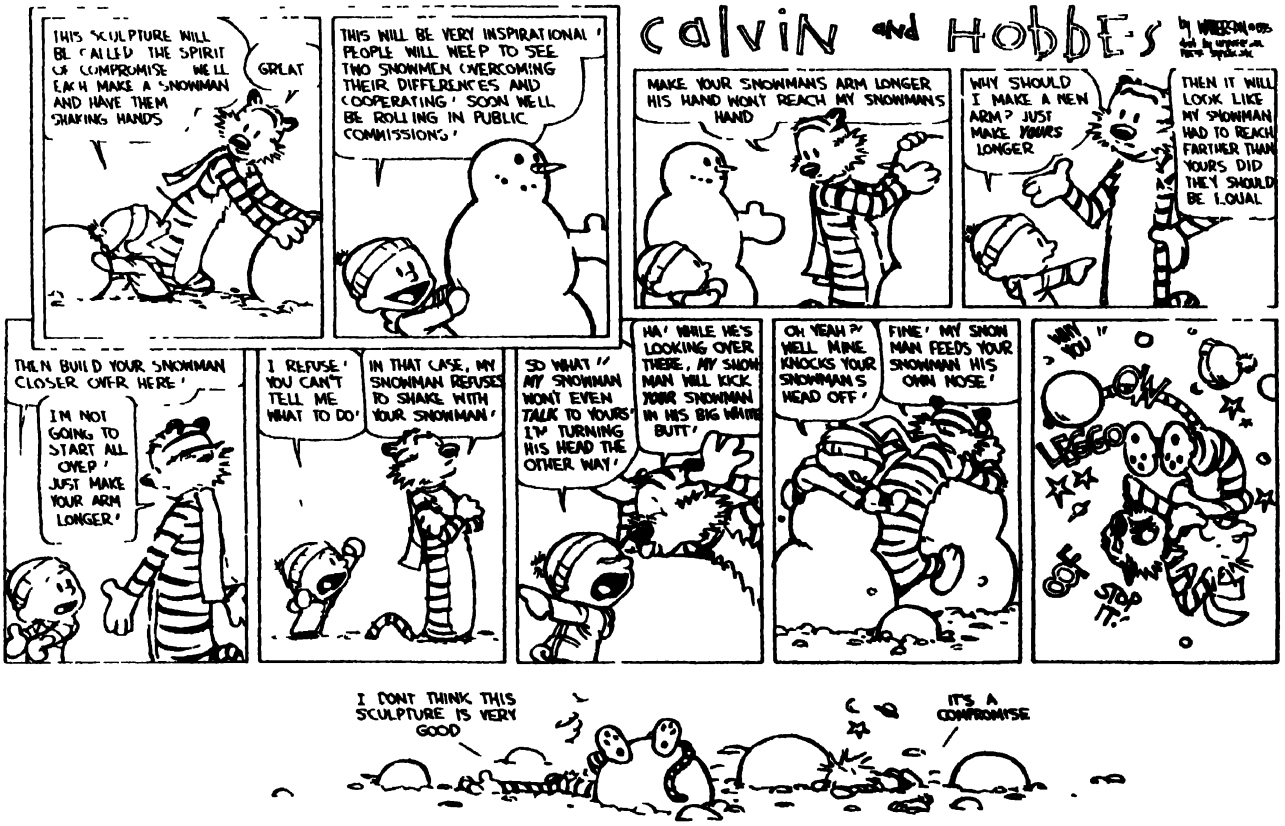
SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

ESCHEWAL

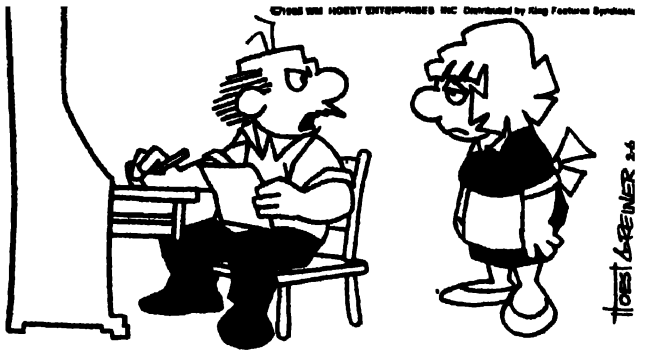
THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

Try to score at least 30 points

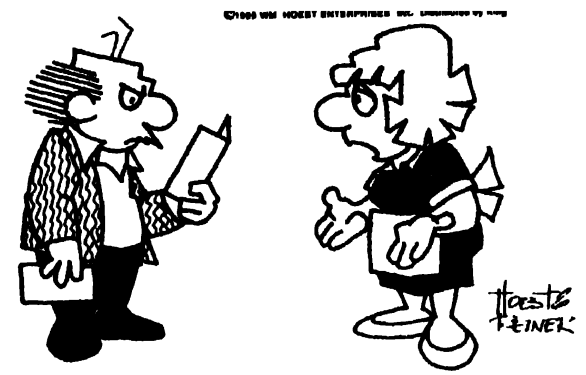


Possible twosome Chew sale

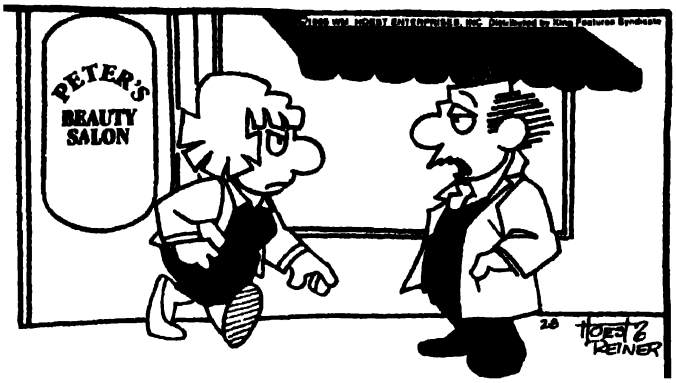
COMICS



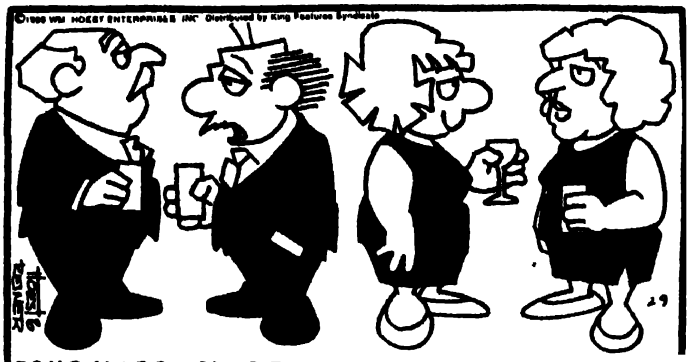
ARCHIE



CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON

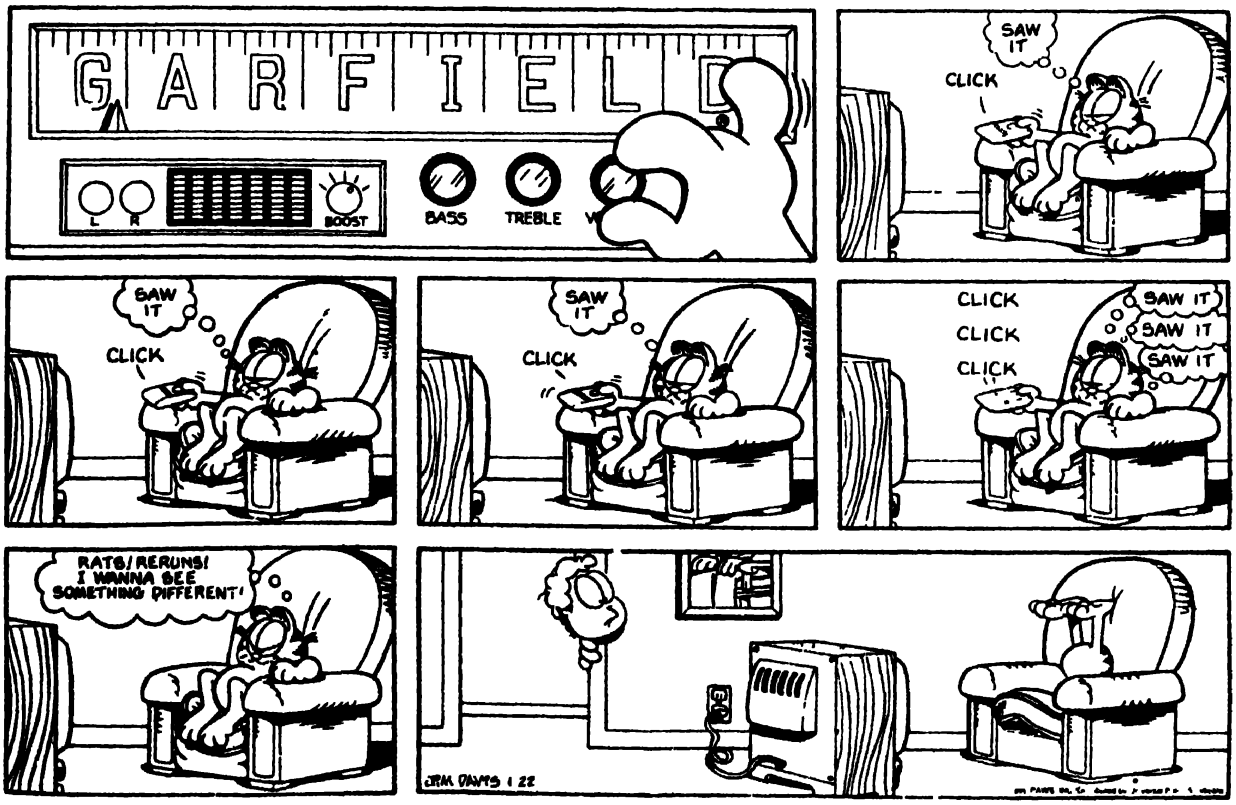


THE LOCKHORNS



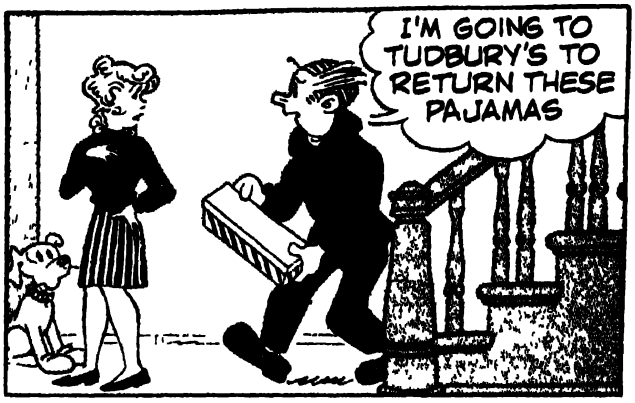
"YOU KNOW, IF YOU'D JUST SPENT $23.17 MORE THERE LAST YEAR, WE COULD HAVE TAKEN THE MALL AS A DEPENDENT."

"'THERE'S NO FOOL LIKE AN OLD FOOL' IS MOTHER'S WAY OF WISHING YOU HAPPY BIRTHDAY."

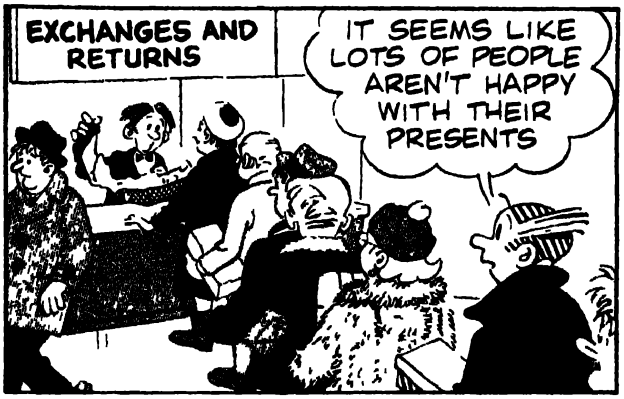


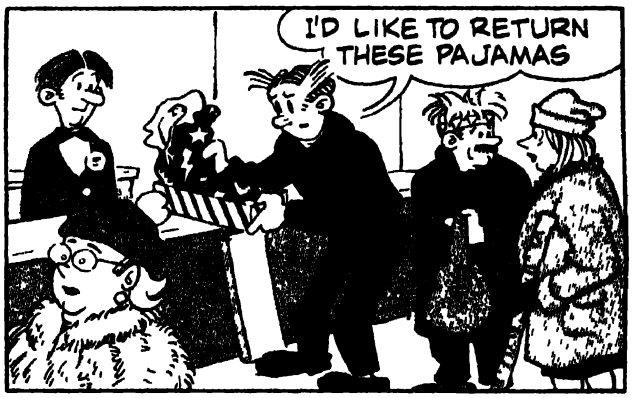
"I'LL SAY ONE THING FOR PETER HE'S NO QUITTER."

"OUR MARRIAGE IS 50-50 LORETTA SPENDS HALF THE TIME TELLING ME WHAT TO DO AND THE OTHER HALF WHAT NOT TO DO"

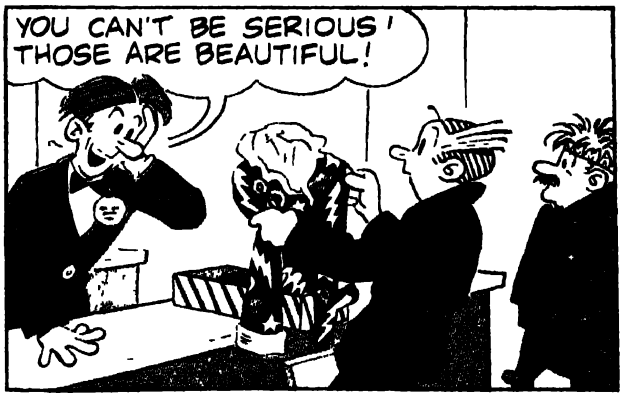


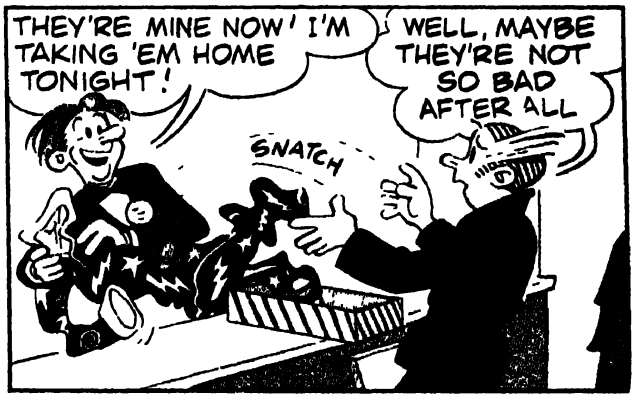
GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS

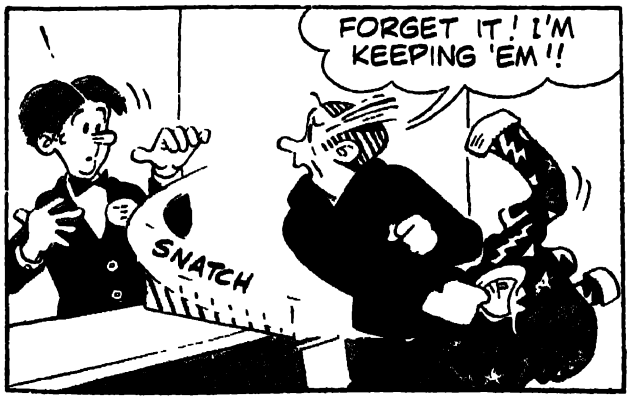


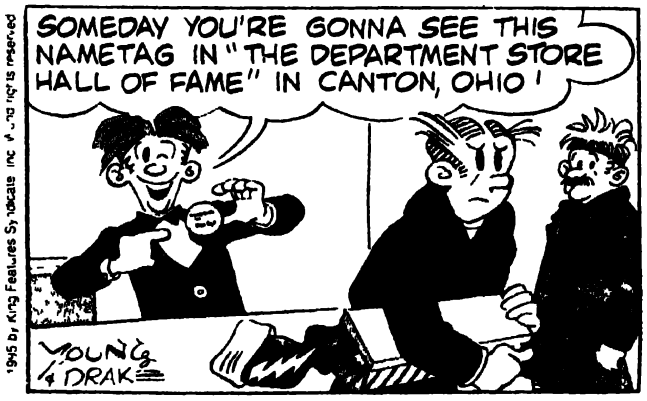


THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP









1995 by King Features Syndicate Inc. World rights reserved

EVENT

And this award (yawn) goes to...

They only forgot to give one more award to the person who wound up the show. A show by a group of publications which has begun putting a silent ban on the press itself! Vaishali Honawar sneaked in anyway for a review

Photographs by Vikas Khot/Bombay Times

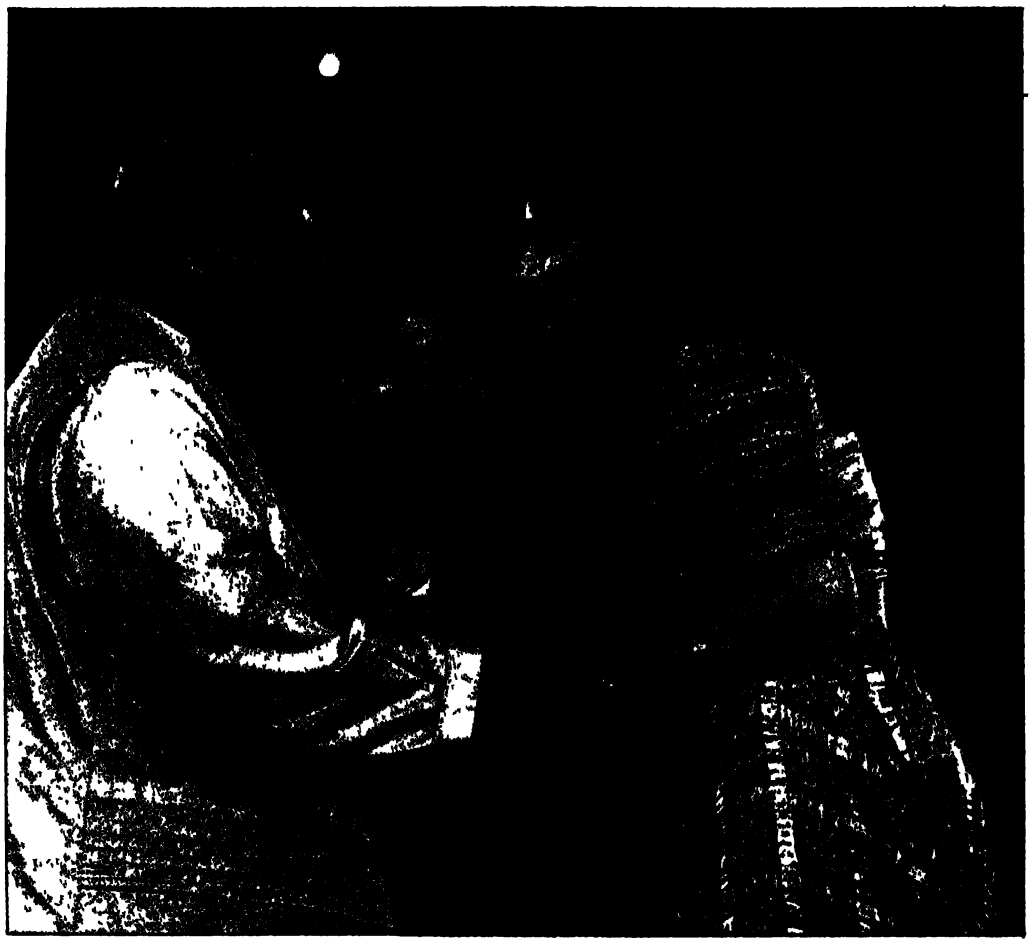
The starry, starry Filmfare Awards night had all the ingredients of a Hindi potboiler



There was sadistic violence wreaked by none other than cult hero Shah Rukh Khan, jhatkas aplenty provided by mast mast Raveena Tandon, a drippy message for Sunjay Dutt with love from Anil Kapoor (trying to ease your guilt about replacing Sunju in Trimurti, Anil?) and a daring stunt on a tightrope by Akshay Kumar

So why was it that the audience at the SNDT grounds at Santacruz that Saturday night seemed to prefer watching the glittering planes flying overhead?

The Filmfare Awards presentation was described by the organisers as "an Oscar-style function"

What one saw, however, after managing to squeeze into the venue, despite a virtual 'ban the press' by one of the country's largest publication houses, and past hordes of rude security guards, was a function that left one hoping one had stayed back home and watched Santa Barbara on Star Plus, instead

The awards presentation itself seemed to meander from the onset First came the Marathi awards which were revived this year The entire section was wrapped up in five minutes with hosts Siddharth Basu and Tara Deshpande announcing the winners faster than a bullet train

T N Seshan does not need Madhuri Dixit's identity card; and Shatrughan Sinha is pleased

They couldn't possibly have been short of time as the evening dragged on for almost five hours, ending only at 1 30 in the morning Maybe they ran out of awards to give after that

The much-needed respite was provided by a versatile Shatrughan Sinha doing an excellent bit of mimicry, and a lively acrobatic dance by a Kenyan group calling themselves the Safari Cats

When T N Seshan, the ace up Filmfare's sleeve, came on stage to announce the Best Actress award for Madhuri Dixit, the audience shook off its slumber long enough to listen to his delightful Hindi which, he said, is a language he has never learnt

He also voiced what many others in the audience seemed to feel — why the function was being con-

Jaya Bachchan does the 'Guddi' bit after honouring Lata

Raveena and Akshay Kumar do their 'mast mast' thing

ducted in English when the awards were for Hindi films

That an actor/actress can work his/her way to the Filmfare Award simply by screaming at the top of the voice was proved twice over that evening by Nana Patekar and Dimple Kapadia who won the awards for Best Actor and Best Supporting Actress, respectively for the film Krantiveer

Madhuri Dixit in the chocolatey Hum Aapke Hain Koun ! seemed an obvious choice for the Best Actress award simply because of lack of any serious competition other than from Sridevi in Laadla

Shah Rukh Khan walked away with the Best Villain award after throwing a dummy from the top of the set a la Baazigar and smashing up a car a la Darr before being sent to the gallows

Saif Khan to Dimple Kapadia Remember me?

Shakti Kapoor's crude slapstick in Raja Babu paid off, bringing him the Best Comedian award It was only Jackie Shroff, R D Burman, Kavita Krishnamurthy and Nitin Desai, winners of the Best Supporting Actor, Best Music Director, Best Female Singer and Best Set Designer awards for the film 1942 A Love Story, who seemed to truly deserve their awards

Also, the lifetime achievement award for the graceful Waheeda Rehman (and Shammi Kapoor) and the special award for Lata Mangeshkar were welcome and well deserved ones

Mangeshkar, incidentally, had withdrawn from the competition for the Filmfare Award 25 years ago, leaving the field open to fresh talent

The rest of the time, however, emotion seemed to rule over all other criteria Sonali Bendre, who earlier this year bagged the Screen Panasonic Award for Best New Face, won the same award at Filmfare, too

Even as the compere wondered if she would be coming to receive it, having been in a car accident just days before, she made an appearance and gushed about how important the occasion was and how she couldn't possibly have missed it She had a limp walk and a little bandaid on her chin to prove the point!

Those watching the function on television missed a lot, however, with the so-called 'live' telecast (beginning an hour-and-a-half after the function had actually begun), a repeat of the Femina Miss India telecast fiasco The televised version was also grossly edited and went on into the early hours of the morning, up to 3 am

So much for a 40-year-old function that refuses to grow up ■

RASOI

JIGGS KALRA

Lagoons are as much a part of Kerala as Kathakali, rice boats, swaying coconut palms, tharavadu and the ubiquitous Chinese fishing nets A recent trip to Kerala reminded us of the significant role fish and fishing play in the cuisine of the state Some fishermen really dive deep to garner the ultimate culinary treasure — the pearl fish — so cherished by the gourmet

We had our heart's content of the delicious karimeen — pearl fish in the vernacular — and other fruits of the water world at the Coconut Lagoon, a wonderfully tranquil heritage resort on the banks of the Vembanadu Lake, an hour-long road 'n' boat trip from Kochi

Although there is only one restaurant at the Coconut Lagoon, you don't really miss anything The spread is rich and varied enough to let you savour the different culinary streams — be they coastal or from the hinterland — that enrich the Kerala cuisine

Frankly, Coconut Lagoon is more than a resort that serves great khaana The place is a veritable feast for the eyes Every tharavadu — a traditional Kerala dwelling — is steeped in history and legend Some like the reception and the restaurant are 300 years old The youngest is much older than Morarji Bhai — the Gandhian leader who just 'bashed' a century!

These tharavadu have been lovingly dismantled from their original sights and painstakingly reassembled — like a jigsaw puzzle — at the Coconut Lagoon — by traditional craftsmen according to the canons of Kerala architecture

It is probably the location which inspires chef Murugaiah to dish out delectable fare like the goodies recipied below

LAGOON CRAB CHILLI FRY

INGREDIENTS

800 g / 1 lb 14 oz Crab (cooked)
90 ml / 6 tbs Cooking oil
400 g / 14 oz Onions
20 g / 2" piece Ginger
2 Green chillies
24 Curry leaves
15 g / 5 tsp Coriander powder
6 g / 2 tsp Turmeric powder
3 g / 1 tsp Red chilli

Lagoon Crab Chilly Fry powder

Salt
45 ml / 3 tbs Lemon juice

The Tempering
10 ml / 2 tsp Cooking oil
2 25 g / 1/2 tsp Mustard seeds
2 25 g / 1/2 tsp Fenugreek seeds

The Garnish
10 ml / 2 tsp Cooking oil
2 Green chillies

Serves 4

PREPARATION
The crab Run your fingers through the meat to remove pieces of shell
The onions. Peel, wash and slice
The ginger Scrape, wash and cut into juliennes
The green chillies Wash, slit, deseed, cut into juliennes and discard the stems
The curry leaves Clean, wash and pat dry

The tempering Wash green chillies, slit into half and deseed

COOKING
Heat oil in a frying pan, add onions, saute over medium heat until translucent and glossy, add ginger, saute until onions are light golden, add green chillies and saute until onions are golden Then add curry leaves, saute until onions are golden brown, add coriander, turmeric and red chilli powder — all dissolved in 60 ml / 1/4 cup of water — and bhunno/stir-fry until the liquid evaporates Now add the crab and salt, bhunno/stir-fry for 3 minutes, sprinkle lemon juice and stir until fully incorporated Remove and adjust the seasoning

To prepare the tempering, heat oil in a frying pan, add the mustard and fenugreek seeds, stir over medium heat until they begin to crackle Pour the tempering over the crab and mix well

Karimeen Pollochadu

To prepare the garnish, heat oil in a frying pan, add green chillies, stir for a few seconds and remove

TO SERVE
Remove to a service dish, garnish with green chillies and serve with a bread of your choice

KARIMEEN POLLOCHADU

INGREDIENTS
8 Pearl spot (250 g / 9 oz each)
8 Banana leaves

The Marination
60 ml / 1/4 cup Lemon juice
Salt
30 g / 1 oz Garlic paste (strained)
15 g / 2 1/2 tsp Ginger paste (strained)
4 5 / 1 1/2 tsp Red chilli powder
16 Curry leaves
60 g / 2 oz Buttton onions
60 ml / 1/4 cup Coconut oil

Serves 4
Preparation time: 20 minutes

PREPARATION
The Fish: Clean, trim, wash and pat dry
The Marination: Peel, wash and crush button onions Put in a bowl, add the remaining ingredients, mix well, evenly rub the fish fillets with this marinade and reserve for 15 minutes
The Banana Leaves: Wash and pat dry
The Wrapping: Wrap a fish in each banana leaf, fold the sides and keep aside

COOKING
Heat the tawa/griddle, sprinkle water and clean thoroughly Then spread a little oil on the tawa/griddle, arrange the wrapped fish fillets on top and grill for 5-7 minutes, turning 2 to 3 times, adding a little oil each time you turn the sides

TO SERVE
Arrange 2 pearl fish on each of 4 individual plates, garnish with fresh grated coconut and serve with poolu

NOTE: All weights are nett, that is post preparation, and not gross ■

FIRST PERSON

S ABHU DEVA, the southern sensation who has rocketed into national attention is now dancing his - o superstardom if one goes by his last couple of box-office hits, specially Kaadhalan Born with his dan- s shoes on, he has given special flavour to catchy film ditties with his superlative dancing skills — and h of his dance numbers has been a resounding hit, even if his debut as a hero was a flop But this 2-year-old has bounced back with his seamless movements and indian ubber fluidity

What is your idea of perfect happiness?
Working
What is your greatest fear?
Everything frightens me Particularly small and sudden sounds They make me jumpy
Who or what has been the greatest influence in your life?
My father
What do you dislike most in others?
[No comment]

What is your greatest fear?

Everything frightens me. Particularly small and sudden sounds. They make me jumpy

What do you dislike most in yourself?
Nothing
What is your most precious possession?
My smile
What objects do you always carry?
I am not attached to any particular object
What makes you most depressed?
Seeing vibrant people (like late Tamil actor and former chief minister M G Ramachandran and international dancer Gene Kelly) being reduced to a vegetable existence due to old age
What do you dislike most on your appearance?
My eyes They are too small
What is your favourite word?
Okay
What is your favourite journey?
I hate journeys I hate leaving Madras
What is your favourite dream?
To win international recognition for my dancing
What is your nightmare?
Growing old
What or who is the greatest love of your life?
Dancing
What is your source of sustenance?
My Ganesha
On what occasions do you lie?
Oh, I lie a lot Can't remember, but it's mostly as jokes and pranks that I play on my friends
What is your greatest regret?
My greatest regret is for the future That I have to grow old one day and will be unable to dance
What has been your happiest moment?
Every time the cameraman says, "Pack up" Particularly, when the day's shoot gets over in half a day!
What brings tears to your eyes?
Old people
How do you relax?
By not doing anything
What do you envy most in others?
Dancing skills of experts like Kamalahasan and the genius of many people in this industry
How would you like to be remembered?
As an international dancing sensation
How would you like to die?
By not knowing that I am dying In my sleep

What is your favourite word?

Okay

Presenting the new Cold Gold Deluxe.

The idea is beauty with an accent on utility

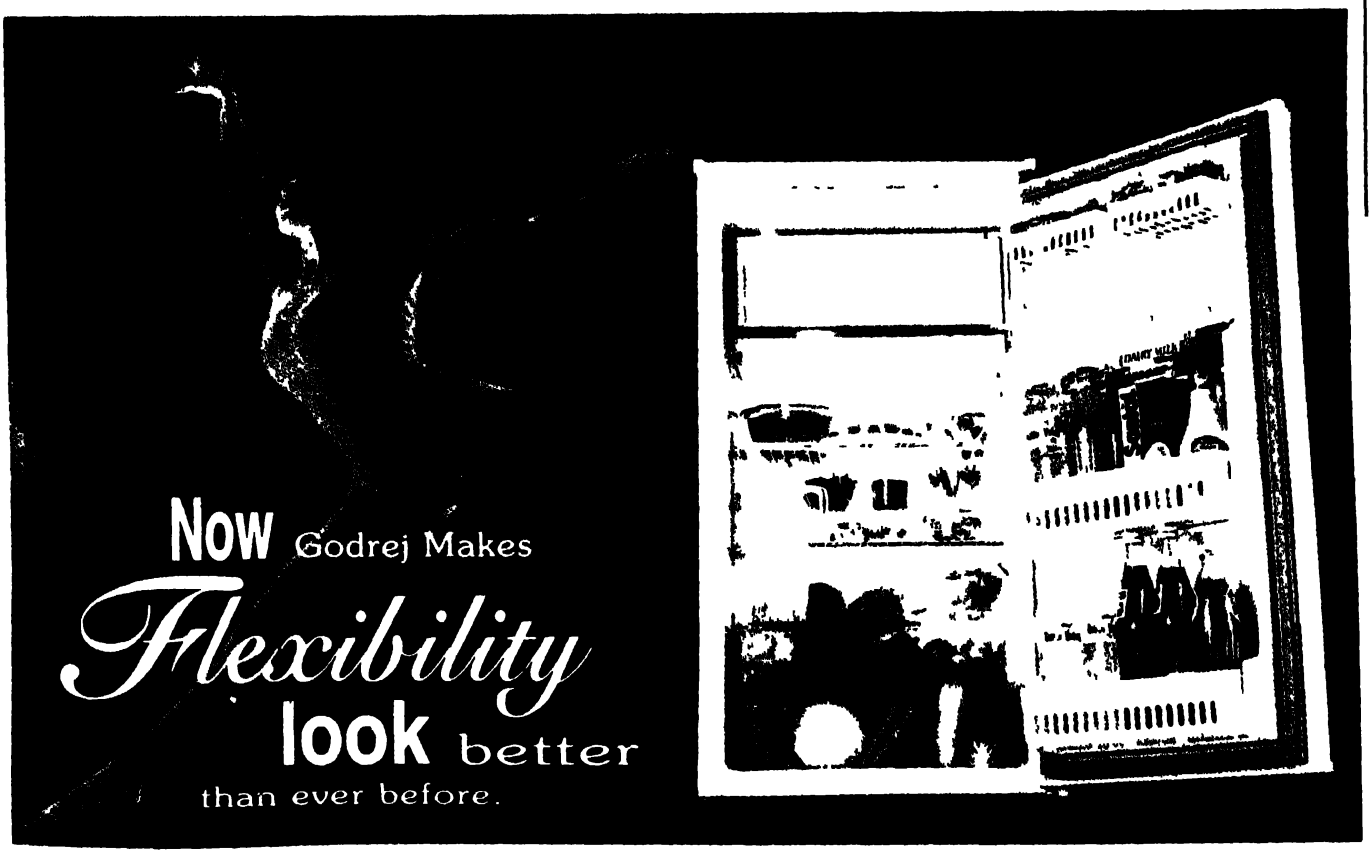
The only 165 lt refrigerator in its class with a soft look and all white interiors. From the flush recessed door handle to the crystal clear vegetable and butter trays, this refrigerator says it all in terms of style. Besides sporting a whole new host of flexible features like the new shelf-flap.

Soft looks.
All white interiors.
And very, very flexible.

That can be raised to create room for additional bottles. Or even a tall jug. A snugger. Which holds your bottles in place. So they don't shake or tumble when you close the door.

There's even an extra mini-shelf on the door. To hold small items. Or the odd chocolates.

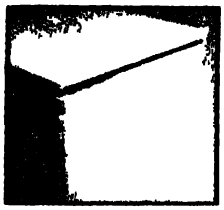
And the moisture control. Which lets you adjust the moisture level in your vegetable crisper. So vegetables stay fresh longer. Plus adjustable shelves that let you design the interiors of your Cold Gold Deluxe. The way you want it.



What's more, all this comes with the advantages of PUF.

The new Cold Gold Deluxe from Godrej.

Any way you look at it, it's a winner.



Godrej REFRIGERATORS
THE PROMISE OF GOOD LIVING

COLD GOLD
Deluxe
THE FLEXIBLE REFRIGERATOR

Presenting the new Cold Gold Deluxe

Flexibility beauty with an accent on utility

The only 165 lt refrigerator in its class with a soft look and all white interiors. From the flush recessed door handle to the crystal clear vegetable and butter trays, the refrigerator says it all in terms of style. Besides sporting a whole new host of flexible features like the new shelf-flap.

Soft looks. All white interiors. And very, very flexible.

That can be raised to create room for additional bottles. Or even a tall jug. A snugger. Which holds your bottles in place. So they don't shake or tumble when you close the door.

There's even an extra mini-shelf on the door. To hold small items. Or the odd chocolates.

And the moisture control. Which lets you adjust the moisture level in your vegetable crisper. So vegetables stay fresh. Longer. Plus adjustable shelves that let you design the interiors of your Cold Gold Deluxe. The way you want it.

What's more, all this comes with the advantages of PUF.

The new Cold Gold Deluxe from Godrej.

Any way you look at it, it's a winner.

Godrej REFRIGERATORS

THE PROMISE OF GOOD LIVING

COLD GOLD Deluxe

THE FLEXIBLE REFRIGERATOR

The Telegraph

2 APRIL 1995

POST MORTEM

Turning Serious

■ Thank you for regaling us with Imran Khan's wide-ranging views on Islam, politics, the West and women ('King Khan', February 5) However, most of his utterances reek of chauvinism and arrogance so typical of this cricketer

It seems Imran has traversed a long way from a star at the crease to an orator on the political pulpit It is heartening to learn he has finally woken up to his origins and identity

If he is really patriotic and altruistic he should make use of his tremendous popularity to effect certain social changes in his country

Instead of merely harping on the demerits of corruption, capitalism and the nefarious influence of the West, he should translate his thoughts into action and work for the social, if not political, amelioration of his country

Shabina Omar,
Calcutta

■ Imran Khan's political statements and increasing popularity show that he is emerging as Pakistan's new godfather

Imran cleverly manages to stay in the limelight with his fiery views which he makes public from time to time

He says in Islam when a couple divorces, the husband leaves the house to the wife But does it actually happen in reality? Feminists must think about this

He has been very firm about not joining politics Yet he never spares an occasion to make a political statement It is to be seen how he deflects the political bouncers in his country and succeeds in swinging them in his favour

Debjyoti Das,
Calcutta

■ I appreciate Imran's views on women and motherhood What are we actually doing in the name of women's emancipation? Permissiveness and immorality have become synonymous with women's lib even in conservative societies like India

Niraj Kumar,
Patna

■ Handsome, charismatic and noble That is how Imran's fans like to remember him Politics is a different and dirty game altogether Should Imran venture into it and lose the goodwill of millions of his admirers?

Tania Chakrabarty,
Kharagpur

■ The cover story showed why the playboy cricketer is adored and idolised the world over Despite his Westernised background and urbane upbringing he has not been influenced by the West's mores

Debabrata Mohanty,
Balasore

■ It was encouraging to see a cricketer like Imran, born and brought up in a most Westernised, affluent ambience, still harbouring respect for his faith, culture and nation

His views on the West, Islam and women should be an eyeopener to Indian youth who spurn Indian culture, heritage and values, and swear by everything American

Supratik Biswas,
Durgapur

Jitender Gupta

PAGE 4

RAVI SHANKAR, the Sultan of the Sitar, turns 75 this Friday Some leading music exponents reintroduce the maestro to us A Ravi Shankar Special

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
18 RUSKIN BOND
20 GILLIAN WRIGHT
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
28 RASOI

Cover Jitender Gupta

COVER STORY

Alaap

Pandit Ravi Shankar turns a handsome 75 this Friday. Three music exponents, who have known him personally, reintroduce the maestro

IT SEEMS JUST LIKE YESTERDAY THAT I GARLANDED PANDIT Ravi Shankar at the celebrations marking his 70th birthday. Five years seem to have flown in a blink.

There is a bond of love and affection between Pandit Ravi Shankar and me, despite the fact that we meet infrequently and are deeply involved with our individual musical pursuits. Indian traditions lead us to believe that the given name sets the future path for the individual.

Ravi, or surya, is synonymous with spreading light. So, too, Panditji whose artistic fame has spread through the

Jagdish Yadav

By

Jitender Gupta

Ravi Shankar: Spreading light

world just like sunlight And, quite significantly, the different dimensions of his music can be likened to the rays of the sun Surya jaise hi shakti hai un mein

Panditji becomes more admirable considering that he only learnt to play the sitar after he turned 18, but established himself as the symbol of the sitar and of Indian music worldwide Today he is the most successful musician of the country, which speaks volumes of his talent and dedication

So much so that the sheer magic of his sitar has created the famous Ravi Shankar style of instrument and the Ravi Shankar style of playing the sitar

Ravi Shankarji is among the most disciplined musicians the country has known He is very alert and continues to infuse new dimensions into his music It is his great spirit that enables Panditji to create something new at each concert, unlike so many other artistes who tend to take their fame and popularity for granted

The sitar and sarod are Persian words meaning mausiki, naghma or tarranam, or simply music It is history that passes down generations Panditji's greatest achievement has been that despite the fact that the sitar had been played for decades before him by great musicians, his andaaz of playing the instrument has been completely different

There are many prodigies who fade into obscurity though they appear to have a very bright future I have great respect for those students and musicians who have determination and grit And Ravi Shankarji is the classic example of such an artiste who did not play the instrument till he was 18 For he was a dancer in his brother Uday Shankarji's world renowned dance troupe

Panditji is always prepared and immaculately plans all his recitals Before a performance one always finds him tense Concentration, which is an inherent and integral part of an artiste's personality, is ever pervasive in his performance Panditji gives a lot of respect to each occasion and great thought and planning goes into all his concerts So it is not surprising that out of 100 performances, at least 95 were extremely successful

I respect Panditji very much as my dada (elder brother) His guru, Ustad Allauddin Khan Saheb, and my guru and father, Ustad Hafiz Ali Khan, were contemporaries and both popularised the sarod Though we may appear to hail from different gharanas, we actually belong to the same gharana

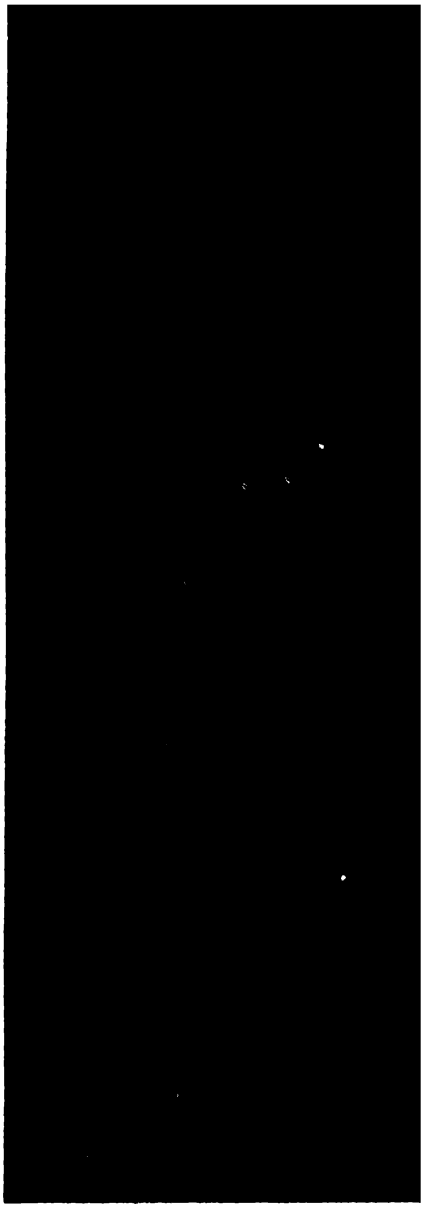
Panditji's contribution to Indian music has also been his untiring effort in propagating music internationally and introducing the world to the sitar, almost acting as India's cultural ambassador And in doing so he has had to struggle hard and against odds

Ravi Shankarji has added a new dimension to our music with his pioneering work and zeal and his experiments and fusions have met with phenomenal success

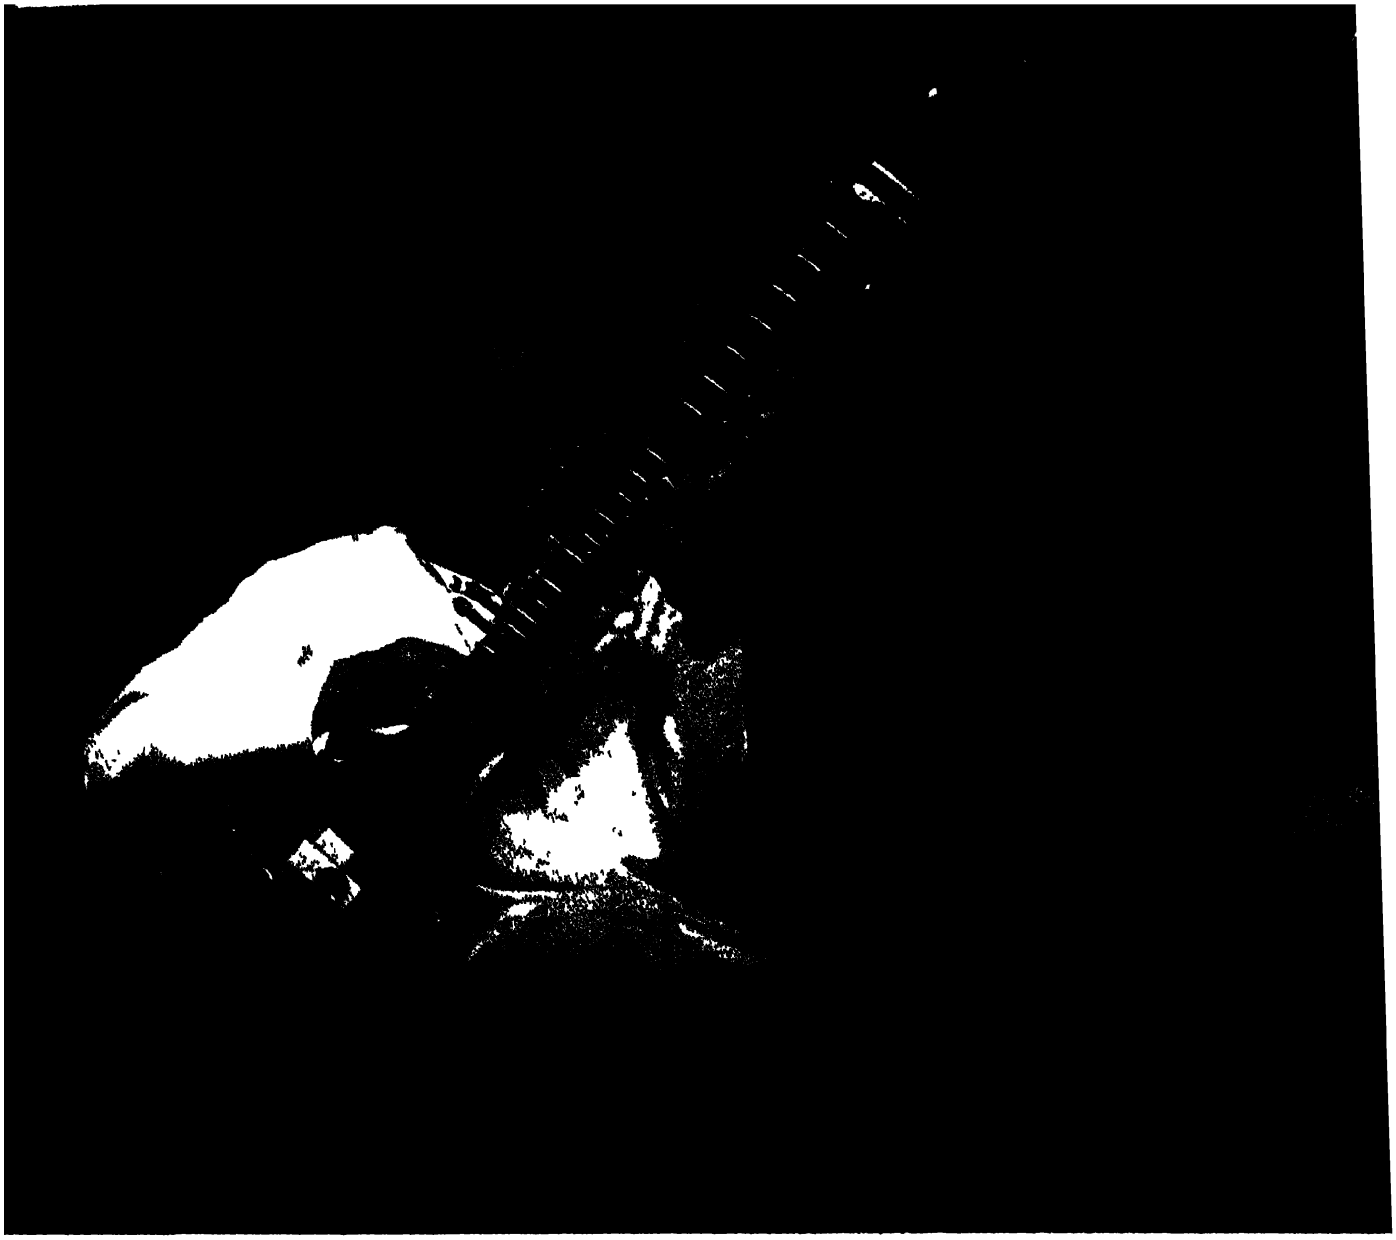
He had made an optimum use of his talents in a manner that is beyond an artiste's imagination. He also manages to keep abreast of things connected to his art and performances — the media, auditorium, lights, microphones, management and organisation



In response to criticism levelled by some that somewhere down the line the essence and purity of Indian music have been lost, I categorically state that this is not true

It appears to me that those people who know little about laya and taal discuss music the most And it is these people who form their baseless and damaging opinions For instance, we musicians have frequently been accused of playing to the gallery when we indulge in layakari in a concert Layakari or layakari is, in fact, an ancient form of dhrupad, which is something that these people do not realise

I have great admiration for Panditji and his capability to successfully handle so many different aspects of his life He had made an optimum use of his talents in a manner that is beyond an artiste's imagination He also manages to keep abreast of things connected to his art and performances — the media, auditorium, lights, microphones, management and organisation



I have heard many recitals of Panditji, in practically every city — Delhi, Calcutta, among others And likewise I recall Panditji having sat through many of my performances I recall an occasion when Panditji made an effort to attend one of my recitals in Birmingham

Another event etched in my memory dates back to 1964 It was an unforgettable night in Calcutta when I played a jugalbandi with him The Sarva Bharatiya conference, had as many as 10,000 people thronging the pandal and since I had only just begun my career, the memories of the night are vivid

Jitender Gupta

'Immaculately planned recitals'

Among the most memorable recitals I have given was also one that was part of a festival organised by Panditji himself The festival was held under the auspices of an institution opened by Panditji in Varanasi which had brought under its fold all the great musicians our country has known Ustad Bismillah Khan Saheb, Ustad Alla Rakha Saheb, Pandit Kishan Maharaj, Pandit Bhimsen Joshi and Ustad Zakir Hussain were all there That was, perhaps, the most memorable recital that comes to mind

On another occasion Pandit Kishan Maharajji had a small all-night musical function way back in 1966 at his residence when he unveiled a huge statue of Ganesh that he had crafted himself He had invited Pandit Ravi Shankar, Pandit Bhimsen Joshi and me to perform at this udghatan The audience was very inspiring and attentive

After Panditji had played for 15 to 20 minutes, much to his annoyance, Kishan Maharajji came into the room and asked Panditji to stop playing That was an occasion when I saw Panditji really very angry as he wondered what message it was that could not wait for him to complete his performance

But this was before we were told that Lal Bahadur Shastri had passed away But everyone was very disappointed not to have been able to hear the end of the recital

Yeh badi yaadgaar batein aur kisse hain

Today, all eyes and hopes are pinned on his youngest daughter, Anoushka What is more, she even looks like a replica of her father It is a matter of great joy that she is following in his footsteps Recently she performed with him in a rare get-together in the Capital

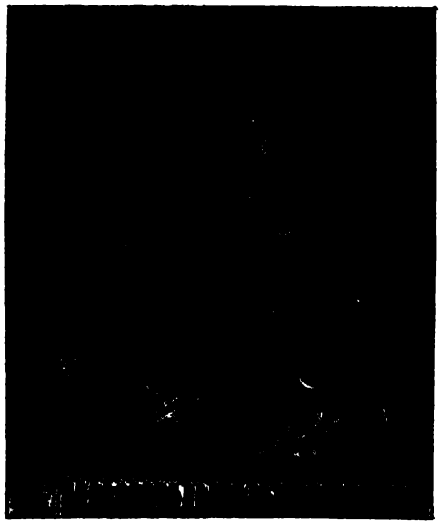
Ravi Shankarji is a Bengali and the Bengali mind in itself is very sharp -- there is a great shakti in it His daughter Anoushka is a combination of the south and the east and I am sure that she will be even more energetic and talented than her father

It was destiny that the country has produced an artiste of Panditji's calibre I am hopeful that our tradition, which is so rich and vast, will bring forth more talent

Besides having a great fan following, Panditji has also taught many aspiring musicians, his shagirds

It can only be said that a person who puts in a back-breaking effort, gives himself up to his work almost as an act of surrender, has the true blessings of his guru and adheres to the guru shishya parampara will find the success that he seeks

(As told to Samita Bhatia)



The first time I met Pandit Ravi Shankar and heard him play was in my hometown, Jammu. It was 1955 and not many people had heard of the santoor, leave alone listened to it.

Pandit Ravi Shankar, who was already a big name in Indian classical music, had heard that there was this new instrument and this new performer and was curious to know more.

Incidentally, I learnt to play the tabla and vocal music before I began to play the santoor, and when Pandit Ravi Shankar came to Jammu to perform for All India Radio, I had been commissioned to play the tabla at his concert.

Later on, after coming to Bombay sometime in 1961-62, I gave up playing the tabla. My association with Pandit Ravi Shankar continued, however, and I used to meet him often as he too was living here. In 1968, Pandit Ravi Shankar organised the festival of Indian classical music. He invited me to join him and we toured the US together.

Then again, in 1974, I joined him on another tour of the festival of Indian music. Ustad Alla Rakha was playing with him at the time and we were on tour for nearly three to four months.

By Shiv Kumar Sharma

Phal S Girota

With daughter Anoushka: 'A combination of the south and the east'

About his music, I would say that Pandit Ravi Shankar is a great authority on the system of raga and tala. On hearing him play, one realises that he strives to maintain the purity of the raga he is rendering. He has a complete mastery over the intricate rhythm cycles. To put it simply, he is a master musician.

As a person, he is equally great. He has lived abroad quite a lot and this has inculcated in him an attitude towards life that is not limited.

He has had a wide exposure, but is also very traditional at the same time. He is a very refined and cultured person. He has brought sophistication to the world of music and musicians. Even his style of talking and living are exemplary.

His greatest contribution to the world of Indian classical music has been, in my opinion, the fact that he has taken it to every corner of the world.

In India itself, Pandit Ravi Shankar has played all over the country. Today, his name is well known all over the world.

I have now known Pandit Ravi Shankar for nearly 40 years and watched him perform numerous times. But each time what has amazed me has been the freshness of his approach. I particularly remember one concert, around five years ago, which I saw in Calcutta.

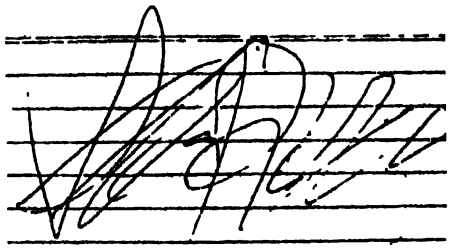
He must have been over 70 then, and had been playing for over 50 years. At that age and with so much experience, any other musician might have taken his performances lightly. But not Pandit Ravi Shankar.

That day in particular it was an experience to watch him play. He was like a young man on stage, trying to give his best. There was no weakness in his hands, considering his age, nor any flaw in his tayyari or the tone of his instrument.

That is the sort of dedication he has, the seriousness he shows towards his music. That spirit is still intact in him.

The only two other musicians in India whom I would put on par with Pandit Ravi Shankar are Ustad Ali Akbar Khan and Ustad Vilayat Khan. They are the three pillars of our music belonging to one generation. Each one has his own identity, his own personality and each has contributed a great deal to the world of music.

The only two other musicians in India whom I would put on par with Pandit Ravi Shankar are Ustad Ali Akbar Khan and Ustad Vilayat Khan. They are the three pillars of our music belonging to one generation



In the present generation, the sitar player who could be said to be following in Pandit Ravi Shankar's footsteps is Shahid Parvez, the nephew of Ustad Vilayat Khan. He has the potential to become a great sitarist and his music, too, has a great deal of balance and rhythm.

I would like to conclude with my best wishes to Pandit Ravi Shankar on his 75th birthday. We pray for his long life and may God give him many more years of active participation in Indian classical music and the energy to continue this tradition for a long time to come.

Ajay Kumar

By

He is perhaps one of the major reasons why people respect Indian music so much today all over the world. He was the first musician to take it around the world, make it intelligible to the masses. That is his yogdaan to music

For 25 years, since we met in 1963, Pandit Ravi Shankar and I have been inseparable like brothers And though we have not been performing together for almost eight years now, the love and friendship we share is as strong as ever

I first met Ravi Shankar when he was a struggling artiste for All India Radio. In 1938, we were to play together At that time itself I could sense that he would go places, and he too, in return, respected me and my art

After that we played together on and off, at several places The first major world tour we undertook together was to Japan in 1958 Following that we toured the US and Europe together.

Throughout the length of our association, we have been more like brothers — Ravi Shankar is like a younger brother to me, being one year younger. I believe this sort of love and understanding is very important to create the right atmosphere for art to flourish. If there is no love between the artistes performing together, the art becomes an orphan

We toured the world together, taking Indian classical music to every corner There was no place in the world where the names of Ustad Alla Rakha and Pandit Ravi Shankar were not known Indeed, I don't think there is any other duo in the world of music that has stuck together the way we have for 25 years Most associations just break off after four to five years

The greatest thing about Pandit Ravi Shankar's music is the fact that he has great knowledge about it — his handling of the raga and the tala is impeccable What is equally important is the way he manages to take it to the masses When we used to organise lecture demonstrations, I used to watch him establish a rapport with the public He knew exactly how to use his music, so to say

He is, perhaps, one of the major reasons why people respect Indian music so much today all over the world He was the first musician to take it around the world, make it intelligible to the masses. That is his yogdaan to music

As far as his memorable performances are concerned, I would say that almost each and every one has been memorable How many can I name? But the one I would say was the most striking was our performance together at Woodstock in the Seventies — I don't remember the exact year

Three million peeople were attending the concert and there was no way we could get to the venue by road So what the organisers did was to take us to the venue from the hotel in a helicopter We landed on stage in a helicopter and left in a helicopter after the performance It was truly an experience

I cannot say there is any young artiste today who can follow in Pandit Ravi Shankar's footsteps He has many good students, but it is up to them to prove themselves A guru is better known through his students, I feel But a genius like Pandit Ravi Shankar is not born in a 100 years

(As told to Vaishali Honawar)

FOCUS

PRIVATE PERSON

Annapurna Devi, the former wife of Pandit Ravi Shankar and daughter of Ustad Allauddin Khan, remains incommunicado for most part. Swapan Kumar Bondyopadhyay meets her husband, Rooshikumar Pandya, for a glimpse of the great artiste who lives in Bombay with her music and school

Meet Professor Rooshikumar Pandya — middle-aged, stockily built management consultant, conductor of 'executive seminars' in India and abroad Known as a 'trainer's trainer' in the corporate world, author of several audio and video cassettes on assertive management, stress management, body language, self-hypnosis, interpersonal communication and an exponent of the 'art of relaxation', the executive's nirvana

Prof Pandya is a Fulbright Scholar and a recipient of the Golden Eagle award for his film, The S 'ar (New York, 1974) A musicologist and a writer, he is at present the patron of Acharya Allaud din Music Circle, Bombay He was awarded the honorary title of Fellow of the College of Human Sciences (FCHS) by the International Institute of Integral Human Sciences, Montreal, Canada, 1982, "in recognition and appreciation of an outstanding contribution to the cause of human psychophysical and psychospiritual awareness"

But for the present writer, above all, and beyond everything, he is the husband of Padma Bhushan Annapurna Devi, the former wife of Pandit Ravi Shankar, one of the greatest instrumentalists of our times

Annapurna Devi, the daughter of Ustad Allauddin Khan Sahab, is an enigma shrouded in mystery She is out of bounds in her sixth floor flat in Bombay She has her own reasons for the self-imposed exile No one has been able to penetrate the iron curtain around her

The telephone — if it exists at all — is an anathema to her Even Ustad Ali Akbar Khan Sahab, it is said, rings up S Vyas to pass on any information to her The few who brave the way up to the door bell find it mostly unanswered The door opens only to the genuine seeker of music with a lifetime involvement She has been uniform in her stubborn refusal to meet the rest of the world

But she is a fascinating study both as a musician and an individual It is now universally acknowledged that she has imbibed, absorbed and retained Ustad Allauddin Khan Sahab's taalim in all its purity since she has refused to commercialise it by playing to the gallery or for the cassette companies for a livelihood She played solo and in duet with Pandit Ravi Shankar in a few concerts in the Forties and Fifties whetting music lovers' desire to listen to her more frequently specially at a time when there is an all-pervading disenchantment with stereotyped and soulless concert recitals from the senior as well as the junior artistes

The little of her baj that has been filtered through her taalim to artistes like late Pandit Nikhil Banerjee and Pandit Hariprasad Chaurasia speaks volumes about her virtuosity

As an individual, she is a wonderful combination of sincerity, devotion and Brahminical austerity Her granite-like exterior, however, hides an acutely sensitive mind prone to tears at the slightest context

Now that is what has been gleaned from people who are, though, out of touch with her for the last 30 years It would be more profitable to talk to one who has been by her side since 1982, I thought

So, the ne :t day I found myself waiting for Rooshiji at Bhargava's music shop near Haji Ali Circle, Bombay, in an attempt to see 'her' through his eyes Rooshikumarji sailed through the glass panel like a character walking straight out of the mirror in a Bunuel film

"This [China Garden at Kemp's Corner] is my favourite Chinese restaur-

I think her techniques are a means to an end — she has transcended all techniques. The essence of her supreme musicianship is her application of the techniques. Her complete command over the surbahar makes the instrument a medium for the expression of her feelings. It is a heart-to-heart communion

With Ravi Shankar: A file picture

ant in town," Rooshiji said with a gentle smile rippling through his lips, "whenever Ustad Ali Akbar Khan Sahab happens to visit, we spend a few quiet hours here."

I shared Korean rice in red chillies and button mushroom in garlic with him With a plateful of soft prawn sizzling on the plate before me (Rooshiji is a vegetarian), I plied through my queries about Annapurnaji:

Where were you before you met her? And how did you meet her?

I was born in a middle-class Hindu family in Ahmedabad in 1940 I left for America in 1964 on a Rotary Fellowship I was studying American literature there, I was also a student of the sitar I met Ustad Ali Akbar Khan Sahab in California in the Sixties I started learning the sitar under him. But then I was frequently out of America, visiting Bombay to do 'executive seminars' at the invitation of the Indo-American Society So it is he who suggested that I take taalim from his sister in Bombay And I met her here

When did you get married?

On December 9, 1982

How did it come about?

In my life everything has happened by accident My going to the US, my coming back to India for lectures . This marriage also was a happening without any design or any plans.. . As you say, to others it might appear to be a 'phenomenon', but to me it was just a vagary on the part of nature.... Maybe, there is some master plan up there But for me the marriage was just a happenstance We got married quietly in our drawing room by a simple Arya Samaj ceremony

Subsequently I resigned my post as a member of the Humanities Faculty, John Abbott College, Montreal, closed my consultancy firm there, became an Indian resident and settled in Bombay in 1983...all as a matter, of course.

What is special about her as a person?

Her fantastic 'feel' for others Her ability not only to survive, but also to bounce back She is extremely resilient Despite everything, she has remained intact and full, allowing us a tremendous insight into human psyche

What was her source of income during the lean period, when she was estranged from Panditji?

I am not aware I never asked her how she survived But I am told that Panditji used to send her some money .and she also received an honorarium from the National Centre for Performing Arts, Bombay, where

As a teacher she is very patient and exacting. She will sit for hours working out each phrase, each nuance and getting it perfected in her student. She teaches one to one. By singing. There is no time limit. But each phrase has to be perfect.

she was teaching Masters classes

What about her technique or style of playing on the surbahar?

I think her techniques are a means to an end — she has transcended all techniques The essence of her supreme musicianship is her application of the techniques Her complete command over the surbahar makes the instrument a medium for the expression of her feelings It is a heart-to-heart communion

There is something very unique about her music Even when she plays a single straight note without any arty embellishments, it touches your very being When you listen to her play you, too, transcend the mundane and apprehend the divine

How do you find her as a teacher?

Phenomenal One of her qualities is that she can guess the level and the requirement of the disciple almost by intuition and then give him/her as much as needed Next, she is very patient and painstaking as a teacher

Unless the phrase is perfectly imbibed by the student she never relents She goes on and on She compels the student to play it over and over till it is perfectly executed I also profited much by listening to her teach stalwarts like late Pandit Nikhil Banerjee and Pandit Hariprasad*ji*

As a teacher she is very patient and exacting She would sit for hours working out each phrase, each nuance and getting it perfected in her student She teaches one to one By singing There is no time limit But each phrase has to be perfect She takes up one major raga and then proceeds systematically through alaap, jod, jhala, vilambit gat and drut gat The process might take years

Why is it that she keeps herself aloof and away?

I think it is only partially true to say that she keeps aloof and away from people While it is true that she does not meet people socially, as far as music is concerned, she is very much involved with her students and their progress

She has a number of students whom she teaches regularly and she is very committed to spreading Baba's music Teaching music takes most of her time The rest of the time she spends doing her puja, riaz and household work and all this does not allow her the luxury of socialising This is her choice, her chosen lifestyle, and she is comfortable and content with it

Her present students?

They are Ustad Aashish Khan (sarod), Pandit Hariprasad Chaurasia (flute), Dr Vinay Bharat Ram (vocal), Nityananda Haldipur (flute), Shashwati Ghosh (sitar), Amit Hiren Roy (sitar), Amit Jotin Bhattacharya (sarod), Sudhir Phadke (sitar), Sandhya Apte (sitar), Suresh Vyas (sarod), Dr Hemant Desai (sitar), Daniel Bradley (sitar), Peter Van Gelder (sitar), Basant Kabra (sarod), Pradeep Barot (sarod), Stuti Dey (sarod), Uma Guha (sarod), Prabha Agarwala (sitar) and myself (sitar)

How does she spend her day?

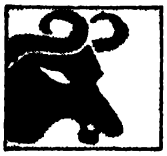
She is very meticulous about everything She does all the washing and cleaning herself I also help her She spends a part of her time praying Then she plays on the surbahar That takes up a lot of her time She also spends a lot of time teaching her students And she reads a lot She is always up-to-date, alive to all that is happening around her Then she has her own garden on the balcony She waters the plants, tends them She has green fingers, you can say

And feeding the pigeons...

Yes, they come in hordes That is a regular habit Almost a ritual She has a fixed time for feeding them And then she is completely engrossed, completely oblivious of what is happening outside ■

INNER EYE ◻ Bejan Daruwalla

Aries



March 21--April 20

Ganesha says, journey, ceremony and luck of the draw characterise the week Your popularity reaches a new high, and very possibly, you will be offered a position of responsibility in social circles, public events, job, profession, and status in business associations

Taurus

April 21 -May 20

Negotiations, secret and open deals, a lot of commuting and travelling make this an interesting week You will be tying it all, collecting loose ends and that should stand you in good stead Expenses will zoom, but your income will keep pace with it

Gemini

May 21--June 20

An excellent chance to make a fast buck, build contacts, win friends and influence people Make the best of these positive influences by going all out to get what you want Socialise, converse sweetly and enlist in clubs and organisations Promotion, perks, profit and pleasure are foretold

Cancer

June 21- July 20

You can fly to the moon if you set your mind on it, so good and grand is this week A period of outstanding success and glory Work with a will, keep fit and go about it in the right way with complete dedication and imagination Sunday through Wednesday are highlighted

Leo

July 21—August 21

Like the Aries, the luck of the draw will be with you and this luck should apply to practically everything you do Those in arts, research and creative pursuits will have an edge on all others That children will play an important part in your life one way or another is absolutely certain

Virgo

August 22—September 22

Financially, this could be a very important week If seeking a loan, capital investment, playing the stock market, buying or selling house, office or vehicle, you may get the deal you want Also, do get ready to welcome visitors strangers or relatives who may descend in droves

Libra

September 23—October 22

Wedding bells, official engagement, collaborations, ties, and close connections are the highlights of this week Brokers, lawyers, politicians, actors, editors, and those dealing with the public as such hit the high spot Be sure, the week will be opposition free

Scorpio

October 23—November 22

Those in employment could get a promotion, a pat on the back and perks of office, says Ganesha Your prestige and status will soar A job-hop is possible, if that interests you The outlets of making money will multiply At the same time, taxes, rentals, penalties may have to be paid too

Sagittarius

November 23--December 20

Romantic impulses and play will possess you Poems, paintings, music, research, new and varied media of communication could fascinate you Time to explore, innovate and execute your plans This is also the week to make the most of travel opportunities and to socialise

Capricorn

December 21--January 19

Help is at hand, so do not worry overmuch The hand of God is on your head in a mysterious way A home away from home, renovation, decoration, a major move in terms of house or office are foretold This is a week when events and happenings shape your life

Aquarius

January 20--February 18

Happy days are here again Love blooms Friends rally for support Teachers guide you You in turn will be in a mood to help and let bygones be bygones That would be a good new way of looking at things Marriage, business connections, trips and ties give joy

Pisces

February 19--March 20

An influx of money, or, to be more precise, opportunities of making money come your way It will also include lottery, loans, funds, stocks, investments and fixed deposits Venus in your sign, according to Western astrology, helps you to be attractive to the opposite sex of good times. Buying, distributing, [illegible] foretold.

B I R T H D A Y S

[illegible] Moon-Saturn happy placing leads to [illegible] gain planning, success in [illegible] or a factory.

[illegible] Sun-Mars fine positioning leads to [illegible] ventures, says Ganesha. This is a good time to [illegible] A go-ahead year.

[illegible] Sun-Jupiter placing leads to power, [illegible] the style your work will be done. [illegible] business alliances are definitely on the cards.

[illegible] You will be the master of your destiny, at least, up to a point. Marriage and travel are definitely foretold for you this year.

[illegible] Moon-Venus in good placing leads to joy and [illegible] Trips will be beneficial. It could mean a

[illegible] quarter helps you to get used to a different [illegible] which means there could be changes in your

POETRY

Selected by Jayanta Mahapatra

Fear

Is it a black dog with white spots
And monstrous paws clutching the earth
Or black sky with white clouds
With no sun like a summer's hearth

Is it fish trapped in blue eyes
Where water is only tears
Or the anguish of a live body
With soul dead in the gone years

Is it painful separation of mother and child
Whom nature throws out of the womb
Or the hapless look of the emperor
Crying over the mistress' tomb

Is it the plight of the archer
When teacher asks for a right thumb
Then the world claims the remaining fingers
In barter for bread crumbs

Or is it the painter's distress
Whose blood contaminates his colours
Or the fear in the poet's eyes
When words disappear in the mirrors

Vasudha Chhotray

Hunted

My severed head
stares among host of others, preserved in a subterranean vault,
by a savage huntress,
after each conquest
and a barbaric ritual.

Only my decapitated trunk stalks the city pavements unnoticed

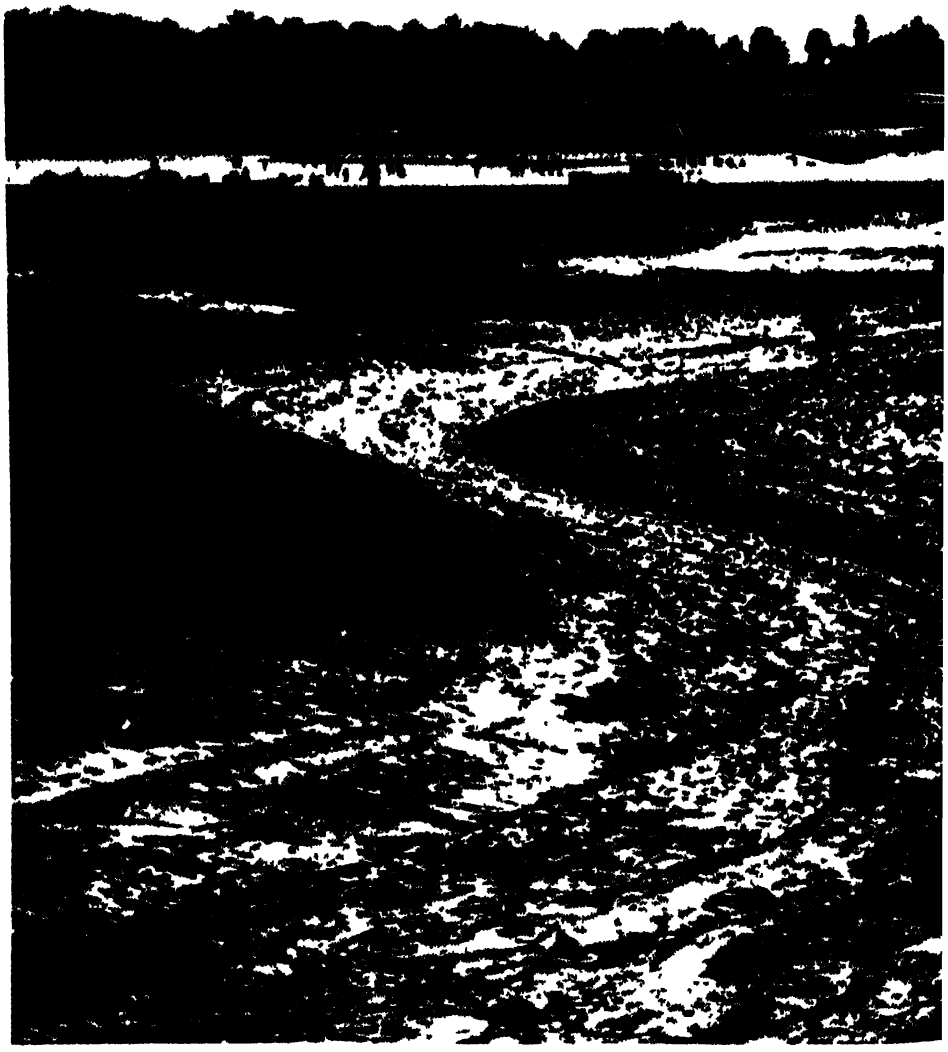
Soumitra Sinha



The Dream

"Him the sun does not illumine, nor the moon "
Katha Upanishad 2/2/15

And then you realise that you had been dreaming all along that the sun which kindles the sky is an ordinary star
a mere speck of the unalloyed Light that radiates Within—that the fair moon
is but one of the infinite celestial bodies that orbit the Self—

And yet the imagination conceives no fire greater than the sun no beauty greater than the moon!

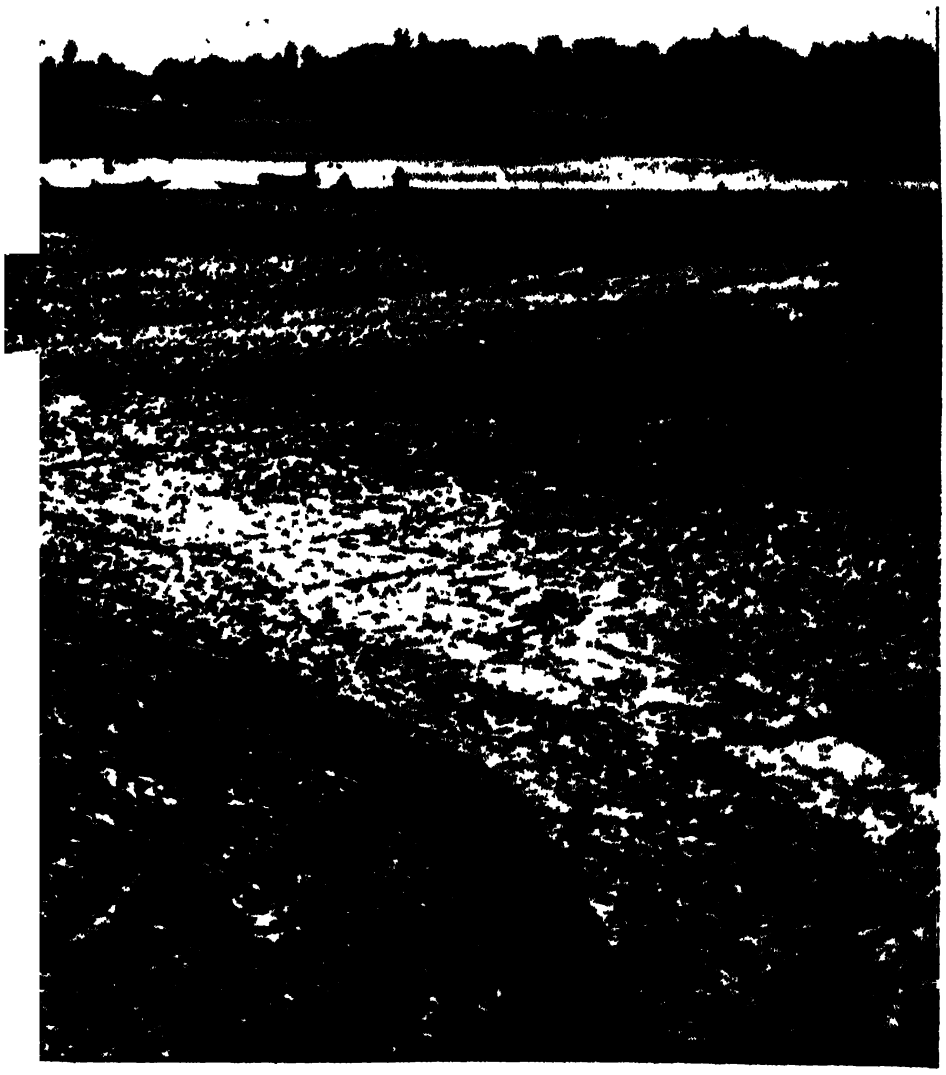
Anirban Mahapatra

The Dark Continent



When all is asleep on mother earth,
Only sleepless is the nightqueen,
And the moon wanes above the silent city,
A lion roars in the jungle,
Beware of cubs birth.

Sleeping is the beautiful land of Africa,
The hills and lakes are quiet,
The walls of slavery cracks,
The night gives way to day.

Those who ruled still the state with chain in hand,
With rifles and bombs, bullet and guns.
Never knew that slaves will fight for their native land,
They thought it was all joke and fun.

When the birds were sleeping in their nest
Only the sleepless was the night-queen and the moon
The rulers did not know that the day was near
When a hungry lion roared in the jungle

Narayan Sen

Goutam Kumar Sen

Material Girl

The red phallic-symbol lipstick grabs at her lips, sucking them dry
The powder, like an evil wind,
Blows away the spring from her cheeks,
Leaves behind the wrinkly desert
The mask takes longer everyday

Practising her walk in vast empty rooms
Her eyes linger on the cobwebs in the corners
Her thirsty, narcissistic self breaks up
Into a hundred splinters
In the mirrors of her bedroom
The mask takes longer everyday

She grows old, she grows old,
A faded maneater with dentures of gold.
Will she have to dye her hair? Do a face lift?
The withered old hag in the moon beckons,
"Come away sister, I am the future"
She hides behind the marble pillar
But the marble is cold
In her dreams she hears the applause
But then the silence awakens her
And she cries
(While crowsfeet form round her eyes)

Sucharita Bagchi

Seasonal

I touch upon the season
Amidst the rustle
Of faraway things
That haunt my memory

Velvet
The voice of the weather
Carrying the song of my soul.
A new meaning breaks out
Of its seventh season

I am
An equation
In the infinity of stars
A speaking sentence
In a book of remembrances

Soubhagyabanta Maharana

TIME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ① MONDAY ② TUESDAY ③ WEDNESDAY ④ THURSDAY ⑤ FRIDAY ⑥ SATURDAY ⑦ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AGARTALA
IC-741	0710	3, 5	IC-742	0940	3, 5
IC-743	0920	daily	IC-744	1150	daily
PF 701	1130	1, 3, 5, 7	PF-702	1610	1, 3, 5 7
[illegible]
M9-304/109	0855	1, 3, 5	M9-110/301	1900	1, 3, 5
[illegible]
PF 705	0730	2, 4, 6, 7	PF-706	1510	2 4, 6 7
[illegible]
PF-735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1
PF-737	0730	3, 5	PF-738	1740	3, 5
IC-721	1300	1, 3, 5	IC-722	1540	1, 3 5
[illegible]
IC-771	0800	daily	IC-772	1140	daily
[illegible]
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2, 7
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5
[illegible]
IC-676	0730	daily	IC-675	0820	daily
D2-102	0905	daily	D2-101	0835	daily
9W-202	0920	1 2, 3 4 5 6	9W 201	0840	1 2 3, 4 5 6
IC-273	1945	daily	AI-306	1840	5
9W-212	1945	daily	IC-274	1850	daily
D2-104	2005	daily	9W-211	1910	daily
AI 309	2035	6	D2 103	1935	daily
AI-681	2350	1
[illegible]
			S2-025	0810	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC 263	0700	daily	IC-262	0815	2, 4, 7
S2-026	0845	1, 2 3 4, 5, 6	M9-303	0825	daily
M9-304	0855	daily	AI-682	0950	1
IC-812	1515	1, 3 5	S2-015	1015	1 3, 5
S2 016	1555	1 3, 5	4S-806	1115	1 2 3 4, 5 6
IC-402	1715	daily	IC-401	1155	daily
4S 805	1745	1 2, 3 4 5, 6	S2-005	1855	1, 2, 3 4 5 7
IC 261	1900	2 4, 7	M9-301	1900	daily
M9-302	1930	daily	IC-811	1930	1, 3, 5
S2-006	1930	1 2 3 4 5 7	IC-264	2210	daily
[illegible]
PF-737	0730	3, 5	IC-704	1430	3, 5
IC 703	0800	3 5	D2-181	1620	1 3 5 7
D2 181	1135	1 3 5 7	D2-183	1620	2, 4, 6
D2-183	1135	2 4 6	IC-702	1630	2 4 6 7
4S 815	1145	1 2 3 4 5 6	4S-816	1705	1, 2, 3 4, 5, 6
IC 701	1240	2 4 6 7	PF 738	1740	3 5
GORAKPUR
IC-257	1150	4 7	IC 258	1650	4 7
GUWAHATI
PF 735	0730	1	IC 712	1410	2 5
PF-737	0730	3 5	IC 704	1430	3 5
PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	IC 708	1430	1 4 7
IC-703	0800	3, 5	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
IC 707	0800	1 4 7	D2 181	1620	1 3 5 7
IC 711	0800	2, 6	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2-181	1135	1 3 5 7	IC 230	1650	daily
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	4S 811	1705	1 2 3 4 5 6
4S-812	1145	1 2, 3, 4 5 6	PF 736	1730	1
IC 257	1150	4 7	PF 738	1740	3, 5
IC 211	1240	4 6	IC 258	1740	4 7
IC 229	1310	daily	IC-212	1740	4 6
HYDERABAD
S2 023	1045	1 3 5	S2-024	1525	1, 3 5
IC 777	1600	2 4, 7	IC-778	2100	2, 4, 7
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC 770	2120	1, 3, 5
IMPHAL
IC 707	0800	1 4 7	IC-256	1320	3, 5
IC-255	0830	3 5	IC 708	1430	1 4 7
IC-253	1100	2 6	IC 254	1550	2, 6
JORHAT
IC 213	0910	2, 4 7	IC 213	1315	2 4 7
LILABARI
PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1
LUCKNOW
IC-812	1515	1 3 5	IC-811	1930	1, 3 5
MADRAS
IC-542	1115	1, 3 5	IC-541	1030	1 3, 5
IC-544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2, 7
IC 765	1720	daily	D2 171	1045	daily
D2 172	1740	daily	IC-766	2220	daily
NAGPUR
IC-769	1525	1, 3, 5	IC-770	2120	1, 3 5
PATNA
IC 249	1430	2, 4, 7	S2-015	1015	1, 3 5
S2-016	1555	1, 3, 5	IC 249	1805	2 4, 7
IC-812	1515	1, 3, 5	IC-811	1930	1 3 5
PORT BLAIR
IC 285	0640	3, 5 7	IC 286	1100	2, 4 6
RANCHI
IC-249	1430	2, 4 7	IC-249	1805	2 4, 7
SHILLONG
PF 705	0730	2 2 6 7	PF 706	1510	2 4, 6, 7
SILCHAR
IC 255	0830	3 5	IC-260	1110	1, 7
IC-259	0830	1 7	IC-256	1320	3 5
IC 253	1100	2 6	IC-254	1550	2, 6
IC 211	1240	4 6	IC 212	1740	4 6
TEZPUR
IC 213	0910	2 4 7	IC-213	1315	2, 4, 7
TEZU
PF 737	0730	3, 5	PF-738	1740	3 5
VARANASI
S2-016	1555	1 3 5	S2-015	1015	1, 3, 5
VISHAKHAPATNAM
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC-541	1030	1 3, 5
ZERO
PF 735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1

FLIGHTS — INTERNATIONAL

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AMMAN
RJ-185	1445	4	RJ-184	0705	4
AMSTERDAM
KL-876	0420	7	KL-875	0235	7
BANGKOK
IC 731	0855	2, 4 6, 7	KB-106	1115	3
			KB-106	1215	5
KB 105	1125	2 6	TG-313	1240	1, 3 6
TG-314	1355	1 3 6	IC 732	1505	2, 4, 6, 7
AI-306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[illegible]
RO-076	2005	5, 7	RO-075	1005	5, 7
[illegible]
IC-225	1200	1	IC 226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2, 5	BG-697	1655	2, 5
[illegible]
BG-092	0850	4, 5	BG-091	0810	4 5
BG-092	1150	1 2, 3 6, 7	BG-091	1110	1, 2, 3, 6, 7
IC-723	1250	1, 2, 3, 5, 6	IC-724	1520	1, 2, 3, 5, 6
BG-094	1905	1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7	BG-093	1825	1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1 5	BG-095	2020	1 5
[illegible]
IC-747	1115	1, 3, 5	IC 748	1455	1, 3, 5
RA-214	1815	1, 4	RA-213	1715	1 4

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
LONDON
BA 142	2050	3 7	BA 143	1525	3 7
MOSCOW
SU 538	1855	4	SU 537	1655	4
PARO
KB-106	1200	3	KB 105	1040	2 6
KB 106	1300	5
SINGAPORE
SQ-415	2345	2, 5	SQ 416	2230	2, 5
UDPA
LZ 504	1750	4	LZ 503	1650	4
TOKYO
AI 306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure Up	Time	Howrah	Arrival Time	Dn
2311	19 15	Delhi Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19-20	Amritsar Mail	7 55	3006
3003	20 35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13 00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat	16-15	2382
2303	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues, Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun	16-15	2304
2301	16 30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs, Fri & Sun	10 45	2302
2305	13 45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun, Arr Wed & Sat	12-50	2306
3073	23 00	Himgiri (Jammu Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat Arr Tues Wed & Sat	11 35	3074
5047	13 00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon Wed & Fri	4 30	5048
3009	20 30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7-00	3010
3007	9 45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18-15	3008
3049	13 20	Amritsar Express	15 30	3050
3039	21 00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5-20	3040
3019	16 05	Kathgodam Express	11-55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5-00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6-30	5660
3317	6-10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17 11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18-20	Asansol Express	8-45	3036
3031	21-05	Danapur Express	5-50	3032
3025	23-00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday, Arr Friday	11-35	3026
3071	22-30	Jamalpur Express	5 10	3072
3015	9 55	Santiniketan Express	15 40	3016
1159	15 25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tues & Wed	6 50	1160
1171	15 25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed Arr Fri Sat & Sun	6-50	1172
3327	14 30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4 50	3328
1181	15-25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6 50	1182
		Sealdah
3141	13 40	Teesta-Torsa Express Dep Mon, Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed, Thurs Fri Sat & Sun	6-35	3142
3143	19-15	Darjeeling Mail	8 45	3144
3111	20-15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7 15	3112
5657	6 25	Kanchanjunga Express	20 35	5658
3153	22-00	Gour Express	5 15	3154
5663	20 00	Katihar Express	4 15	5664
3151	11 45	Jammu-Tawi Express	15 50	3152
3133	20 55	Mughal Saral Express via SBG Loop	12-55	3134
3103	18 20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express	10 25	3104
5185	12 40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues Thus & Sat	4 25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure Up	Time	Howrah	Arrival Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6 50	6004
8002	19 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12 00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	1940	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13 45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express	22 05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5 00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5 30	8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8 25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8080
8045	10-30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00	8046
8017	16 45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
7421	16 40	Bhubaneswar New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10	-
--	11 05	New Delhi Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15	--
	14 05	Trivandrum Central - Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 45	6321
-	14 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13 45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15	--
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13 45	6315
6520	22 35	Guwahati - Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15
--	14 05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains, please dial 2203545 54 for in coming trains, 2203535 44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains, dial 2203406-3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running), 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535 37

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

A NIGHT AT SAVOY

On a wet and windy night last January, I was sitting at the Savoy Bar, warming my feet with the memory of old fires (firewood being scarce and expensive), when in walked the Man from Sail, shaking snowflakes and dandruff from his coat

He was followed, minutes later by Heaven-Born the actor and Heaven-Sent the publisher, both well-preserved men in their late fifties

Great buddies all of them, their wives had better things to do than prop up the Savoy Bar Heaven-Sent usually had one or two ex-Cabinet ministers in tow (he owned a newspaper at the time) but on this occasion he was mercifully free of his entourage

Heaven-Born had left his purple robe at home (you can see it in the famous picture taken by the Man from Sail), which meant that he was wearing the off-white ummer suit that he had worn to such effect in his big hit Two Tickets to Howrah

Heaven-Born has this wonderful idea for a period movie set in the Savoy which of course was the ideal sort of place for a Far Pavilion-type epic Heaven-Born was to act and direct, while the Man from Sail, who is something of an all-rounder, was to help with the script, the casting, the props, the catering, the still photography and the make-up

Nandu and I were offered bit parts as decadent nawabs Heaven-Sent was to provide financial backing Or, at least, that was the idea

Nandu wasn't too happy about the whole thing, specially as the climax of the film (as envisaged in the script) showed the hotel going up in flames The old hotel with its rhododendron beams, pinewood panelling, walnut wood doors and deodar floorboards, was really quite vulnerable and it wouldn't have taken much to turn a studio fire into the real thing

"You're insured, aren't you?" said Heaven-Born, determined to override Nandu's protests He loved a good fire — the next best thing to a good funeral "Or we could use a model," he added

"Your house should do," said Nandu "It's small enough for a model"

I steered the conversation away from arson and incendiarism to the traditional Savoy Queen dinner and dance held every summer Next year's winner was to receive a free trip to the Andamans, one way only

Nandu asked Heaven-Born if he would like to officiate as a judge for the Beauty Contest and he graciously consented

Heaven-Sent felt that there sould be several judges and more names were proposed — Tom Alter, Prem Chopra, Hugh and Colleen Gantzer, Prince This and Princess That, Khushwant Singh and Sunderlal Bahuguna

Heaven-Born looked a little put out and said he could manage without so much help Heaven-Sent proposed the name of one of his ex-Cabinet ministers I suggested the local coffin-maker — a good judge of shape and size — but was shouted down

The discussion was at this interesting stage when in walked three old Doon School boys, vintage 1950s, all known to Nandu They went to a table not far from where I was perched and the conversation went something like this

"Remember old Suri?"

"Hyderabad House wasn't he?"

Everyone remembered Nandu. He was in Tata, of course, or was it Jaipur? Anyway, they chatted amiably about old Housemasters — Holdsworth and Huges, Hensman and Gurdial — and someone recalled old...who had a beautiful daughter, the only girl in the school

"No, Tata"

"I must be confusing him with Hari"

"Hari was Kashmir House We were in the same dorm"

"Oh, I thought you were in Jaipur House with Ritu"

"No, you're confusing me with Chuckles Ritu was in Hyderabad, weren't you in Kashmir?"

"No, Jaipur"

Nandu strolled over to take part in this stimulating conversation

Everyone remembered Nandu He was in Tata, of course, or was it Jaipur? Anyway, they chatted amiably about old Housemasters — Holdsworth and Huges, Hensman and Gurdial — and someone recalled old who had a beautiful daughter, the only girl in the school

Of course, it was drinks on the house for the Old Boys, as a result, I went one drink short as Nandu was running out of whisky and gin and wasn't about to serve his VSOP cognac

Heaven-Born had been eyeing the cognac bottle for some time It was his favourite, indeed his only drink, except when times were bad But the glint in his eye had been detected by the Man from Sail, who whisked the bottle way in the interests of justice and fair play

Heaven-Sent had been a silent but appreciative spectator and now, always a man who struck while the iron was hot (even if he got singed in the process) announced his intention of publishing a book on the public schools of India

"A surefire bestseller," I said Just take 50 schools and you'll have tens of thousands of old boys and girls queueing up for copies!"

The old boys in our midst met this proposal with frosty silence Were there really other public schools in the land, they wondered? Well, possibly Mayo, Jack Gibson had gone there after leaving Doon, hadn't he?

Nandu looked across at me and asked, "And where did you do your schooling Ruskin?"

"Greyfriars," I said without hesitation

They took it quietly There was a familiar ring about Greyfriars A place of strong traditions, no doubt, tucked away in the heart of old England, it had of course been the physical and spiritual home of Billy Bunter, Fat Boy of the Remove, but I did not tell them that Why spoil the good impression I had made! And, of course, Heaven-Sent was hellbent on getting me to write his book

(Sanctuary Features)

JAYANTA MAHAPATRA

selects the poems. All contributions should be sent directly to him at Tinkonia Bagicha, Cuttack 753001 and not to The Telegraph. Poems should be typewritten in double space, on one side of the paper. Please retain copies of submitted poems as they will not be returned. All published poems will be paid for at our regular rates. No enquiries will be solicited.

Fill in the coupon below and send with your contribution

___ Block letters please ___

Name_____

_____

Age_____

Address_____

_____

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S  COLUMN

DEEP INSIDE SIND

The elite of Islamabad do not find interior Sind attractive It is said, there is nowhere to stay in Jacobabad, which is populated by huge mosquitoes, while Sibi, they say, is the hottest place on earth You must have heard of the man from Sibi found shivering in hell

But despite warnings of bedlessness, malaria and heat, here I was, with a small team of foreigners and railway officials, chugging northwards from the Indus towards the mountains of Baluchistan

On both sides were paddy fields irrigated by the great river So far we were surviving This was Sukkur division, the most accident-prone of Pakistan Railways If you ask officials why, they will tell you that it is increasingly difficult to maintain old standards of discipline, specially when employees get their positions through sifarish

One of my companions, Shah Sahib, was still a stickler for discipline In his younger days, his night-time surprise inspections had been the terror of his division Once he had found a lone woman operating a signal box "My husband is not feeling too well," she told him, "so I am handling the points for him"

Shah Sahib was shocked and told her she could cause an appalling accident "But I know all the work," she explained and proceeded to tell him exactly what each handle in the signal box did Perhaps, what Sukkur division needs is signal women

It was evening as we drew to a halt in Jacobabad, the town which has refused to change its name Lyallpur may have become Faisalabad, but so far Jacobabad remains loyal to the man who brought back its prosperity

John Jacob was the rebellious son of an English parson, who warned of 'the Mutiny' long before it happened, and who dedicated his life to this town — negotiating peace between Baluch tribesmen and locals, building roads and reopening canals

The mosquitoes here did not match expectations and in the yellow light of the new day, Jacobabad was revealed not as a one-horse, but as a multi-donkey frontier town Past the sweepers with their faces covered against the dust and the bhisties sprinkling water on the road, trotted innumerable donkey carts carrying people, goods, and water Their passengers were mainly men, rather lined and unshaven and wearing finely embroidered caps inlaid with dozens of glinting glass pieces

The self-effacing SDM, Ramesh Kumar, took us through the market to the centrepiece of the town, the Victoria Tower As we climbed to the top of this Gothic edifice, Khaksaar volunteers led by a blind, octogenarian bagpiper, Ghaus Baksh, piped for all they were worth

We were given a warm reception too at the tomb of John Jacob, now looked after by Bashir Ahmad Sumroo who doubles as the additional chief sanitary inspector of the Municipal Committee "We all believe Jacob Sahib was a faqir, a holy man," he said "He never married and he died here Now everyone visits his grave to prevent or cure fever, or childlessness A thread measured around his grave and worn around the neck is specially effective against disease," he continued, planting a handful of agarbattis at the head of the grave, and sprinkling rose petals over it

By this time the steam-hauled goods train at Jacobabad was impatient to cross the great stretch of desert to Sibi I travelled on the footplate as we hissed and puffed up the track which runs parallel to the road

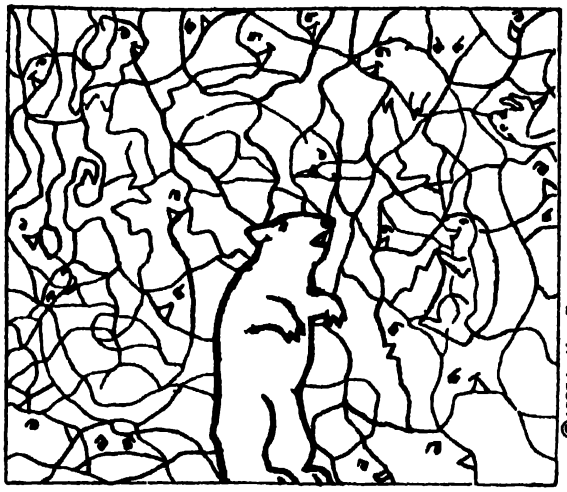
This was the stretch of track built between 1879-1880, 214 kms were laid in 101 days across the sandy waste, where 5,000 men and animals had to be fed and watered The water was very low in our boiler by the time we reached our destination at the foot of the Bolan Pass

The diesel-hauled 24 Up Quetta Express was the train we rode through the Bolan Pass, the railway built by the British to bring troops and supplies to the Afghan border The calculation was that one train a day would do what 2,500 camels could do in a fortnight This is the less famous of the two main passes into Afghanistan, the other being the Khyber That, too, has a railway, but it was built later and proved less easy to maintain

The Bolan Pass is 96 kms long and rises from 137 to 1,830 metres above sea level A straight track from the plain leads directly into the wall of barren mountains ahead, and the train shoots through saw-tooth ridges in quick succession before entering the long Panir Tunnel which cuts through into the valley of the Bolan river

The railway crosses ravines and runs along cliffs at the side of the wide, dry stony river bed which is flanked by earth-coloured mountains At Ab-i-Gum we crossed the riverbed and began the ascent to Mach, notorious for its prison

From Mach the gradient is 1 in 25, and soon the track had to negotiate the narrow gorge of the upper Bolan, crossing the river nine times in six kms before the station of Kolpur, named after local coal mines From Kolpur we coasted downhill over the barren plateau, dotted with green irrigated patches, to Quetta



We were still some way from the Afghan border at Chaman The route there is the most famous in Pakistan simply because on it lies the twin-turretted, 4-km-long Khojak Tunnel, the longest in the country It appears on the back of every five-rupee note

From here to Chaman the train does not need an engine, just brakes, as it runs steeply down the mountainside on to the plain of Afghanistan beyond And is there a garden in Chaman? No It is a tiny trading town, which sits like a dusty oasis in the desert, waiting for wars to end so that it can once again become prosperous

(Concluded)

(Sanctuary Features)

JUNIOR WHIRL HAL KAUFMAN

CHUCKFULL! While a lone woodchuck is in sight above, five more whole woodchuck figures are hiding Can you find them?

EGG NOGGER! "A — lays thousands of eggs without anyone knowing, but when a — lays an egg, the whole country is informed" — Malaysian proverb Fill blanks

Turtle hen respectively

ANAGRAM WORD TO PONDER

LETTERS of many words may be anagramatised (rearranged) into other words or phrases PUNISHMENT into NINE THUMPS, for instance Just for fun, try rearranging letters of capletter words below to complete two-word anagram answers to questions

1 If a rabbit won't sit for a PHOTO, what else might it be prompted to do?

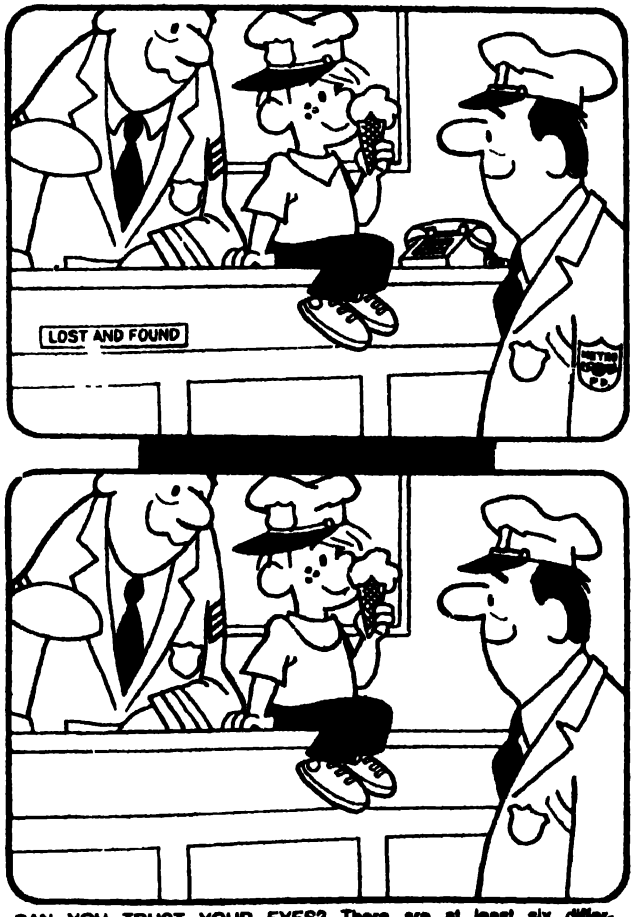
2 If POSTAGE won't stick to a letter, what can the sender do?

3 If an ELEPHANT won't walk through a puddle, what might its trainer suggest?

Limit Two min each

1 TO HOP 2 CO PASTE 3 THEN LTAP

SUM MAZE! Study this arrangement of 16 numbers (see below) and then, beginning with the number in the square marked START, draw a line through 12 numbers, ending at the square marked FINISH, so that a total amount of 50 is achieved

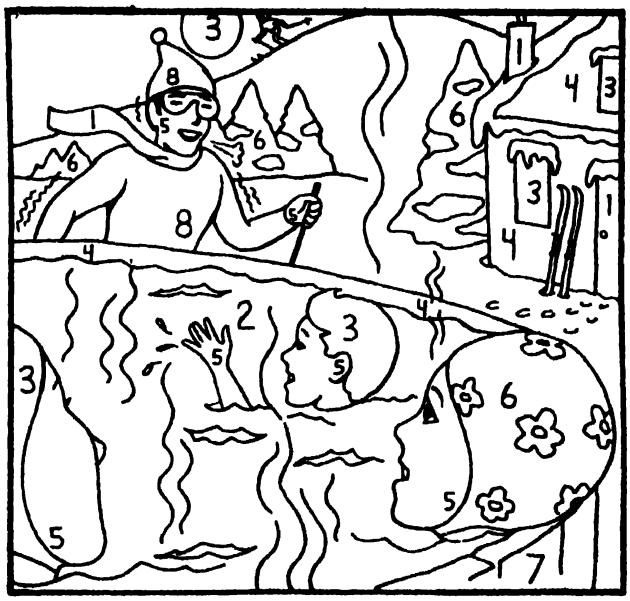


Line may be drawn horizontally, vertically or diagonally It may not cross itself at any point

Remember, sum of 12 numbers is to be exactly 50

Numbers 5221526792631 in that order will do if Other answers may be possible

5 START	3	2	4
2	6	9	3
2	1	7	6
3	4	5	2



HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below

Differences 1 Collar is missing 2 Sign is missing 3 Neckline is different 4 Phone is missing 5 Cap is different 6 Arm patch is missing

FUNSPOT

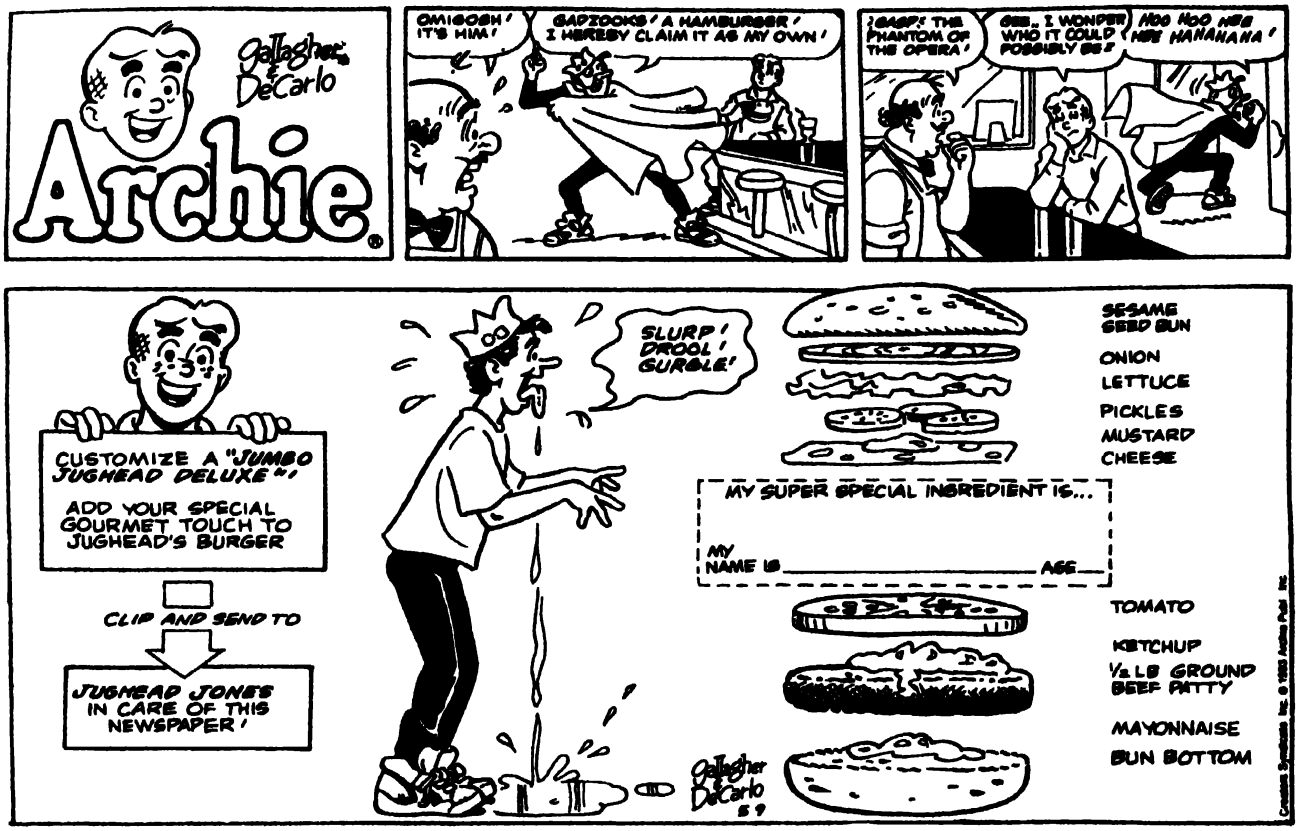
HOT SHOT! Come on in, the water's fine. Apply the following colors neatly by number: 1—Red. 2—Lt. blue. 3—Yellow. 4—Lt. brown. 5—Flesh tones. 6—Lt. green. 7—Dk. brown. 8—Purple.

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

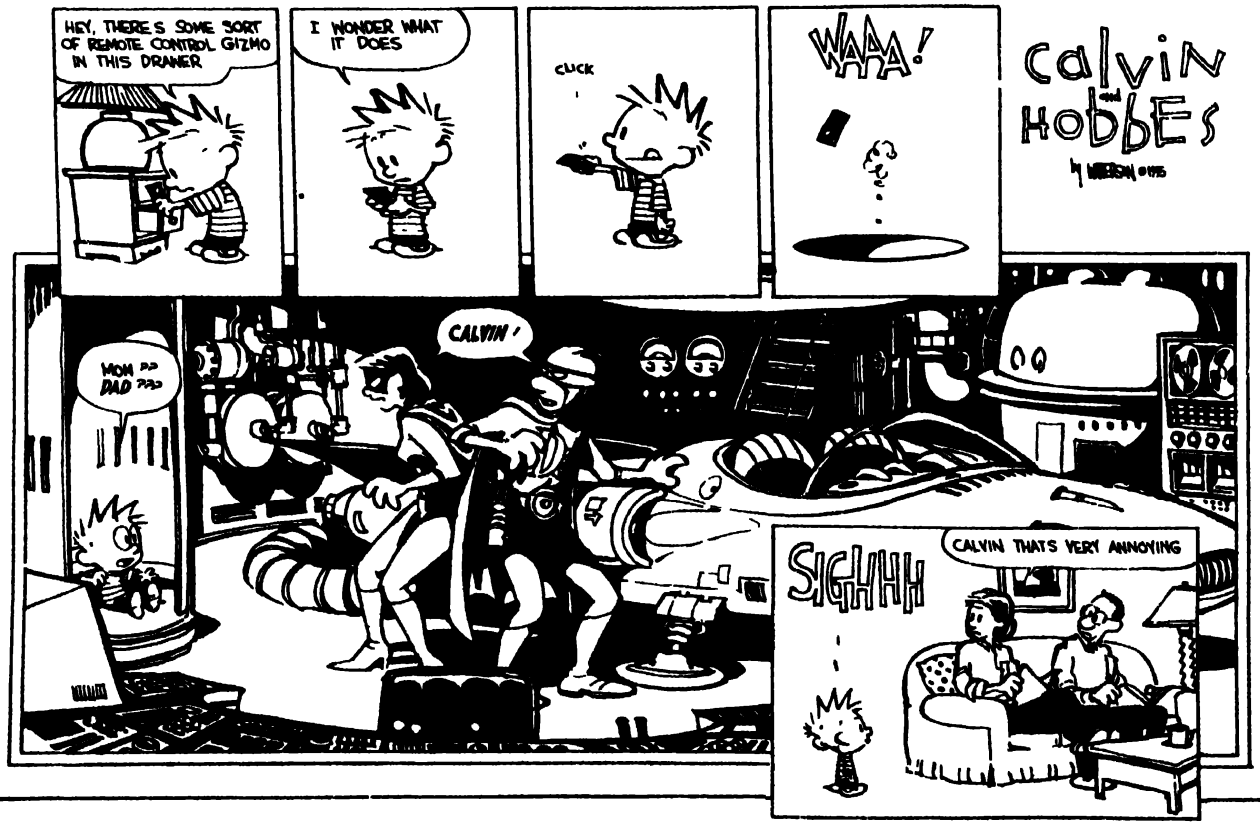
INTEREST

- - - - - - - -



THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

Try to score at least 30 points



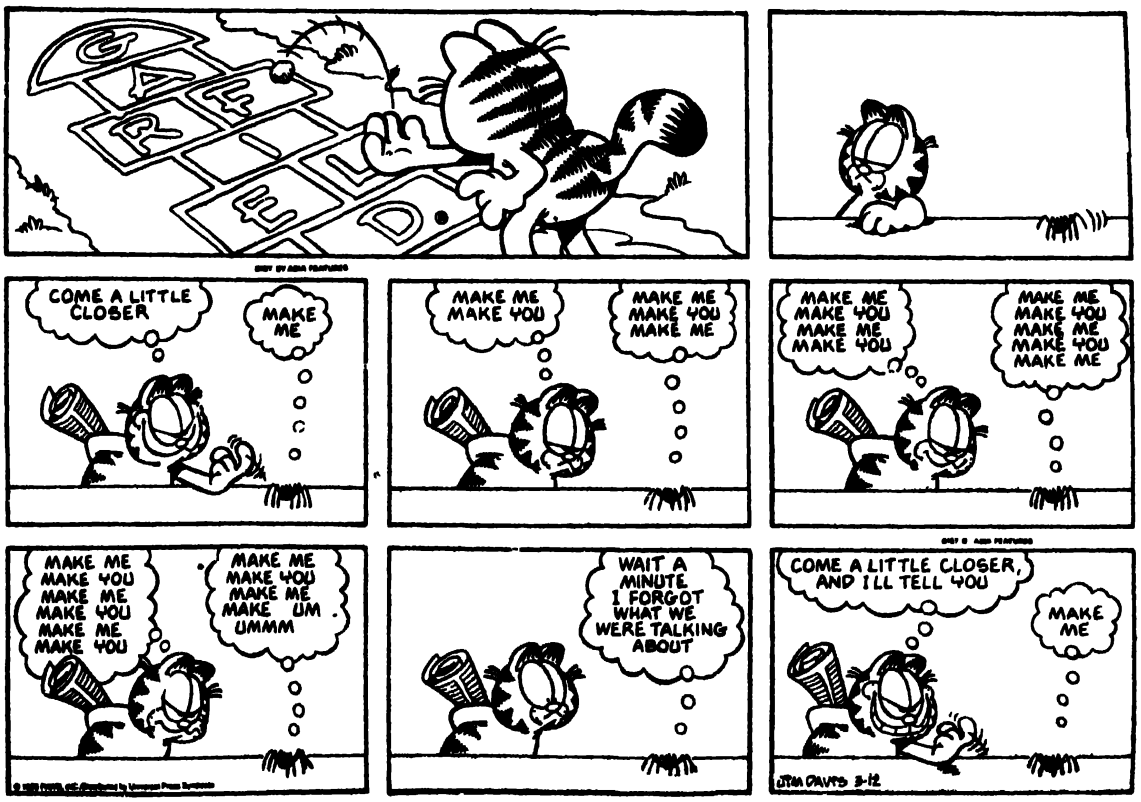
Possible twosome Rent, ate

COMICS

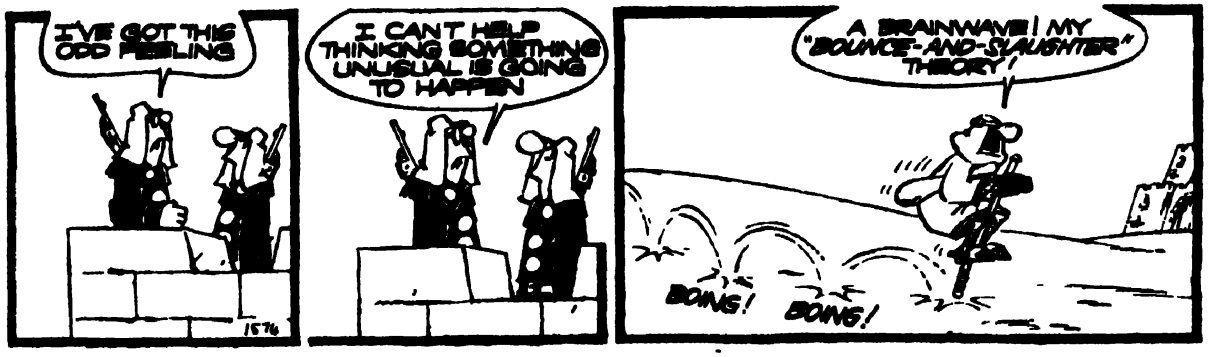
ARCHIE

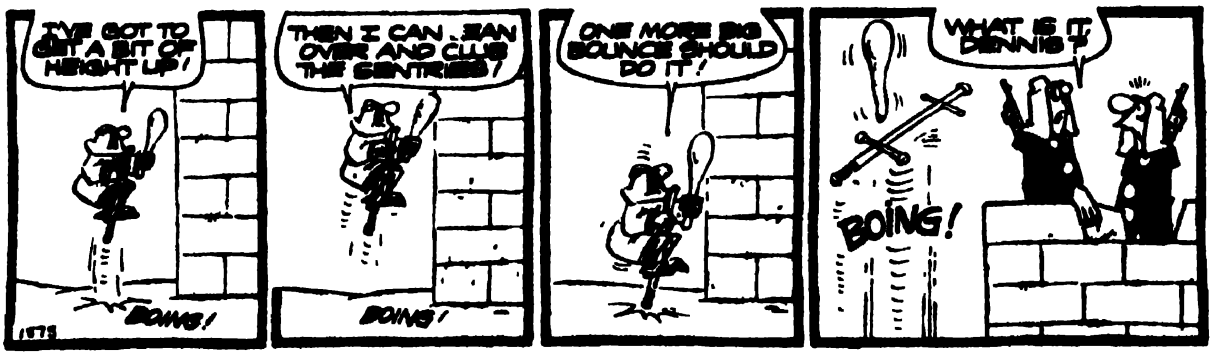
CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON

THE LOCKHORNS

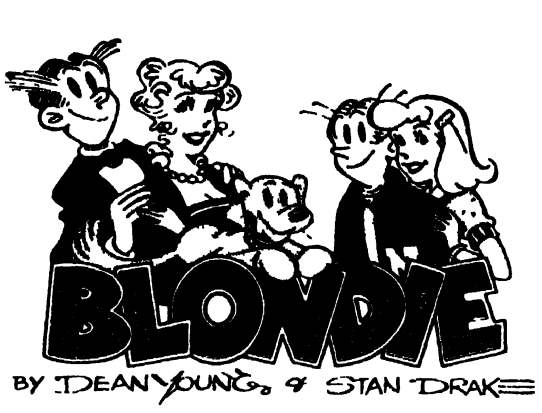


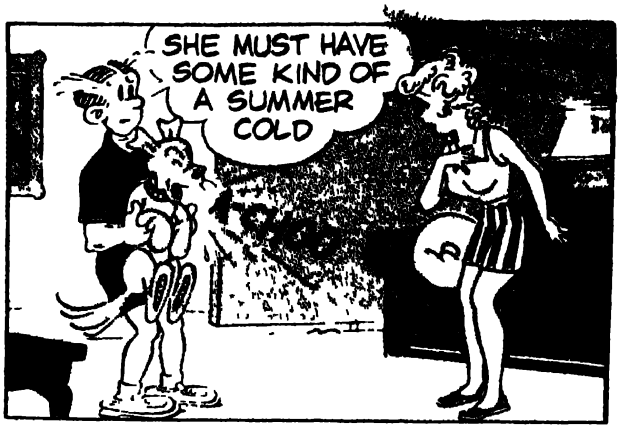
GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS

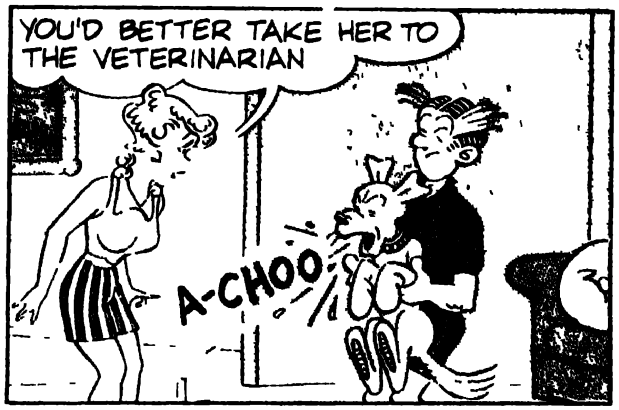


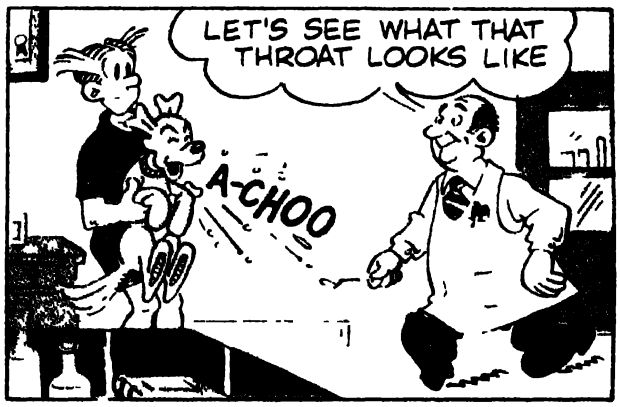


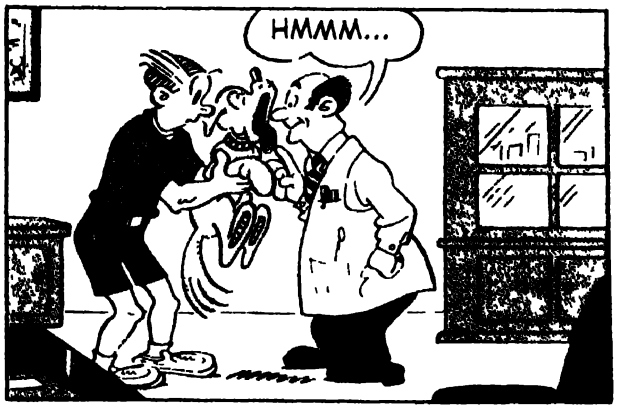
THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP

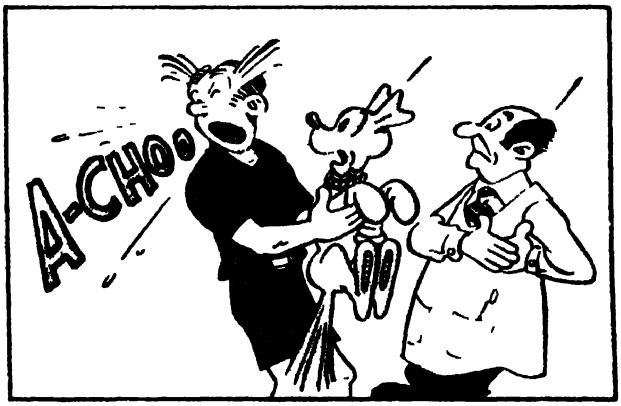


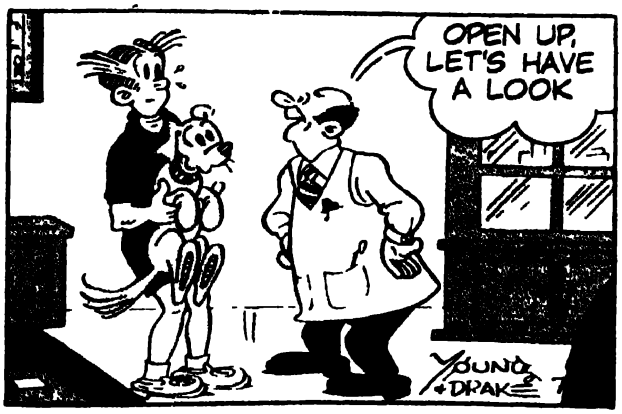


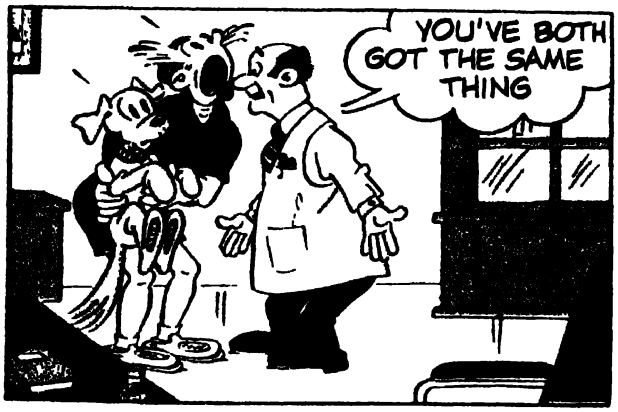


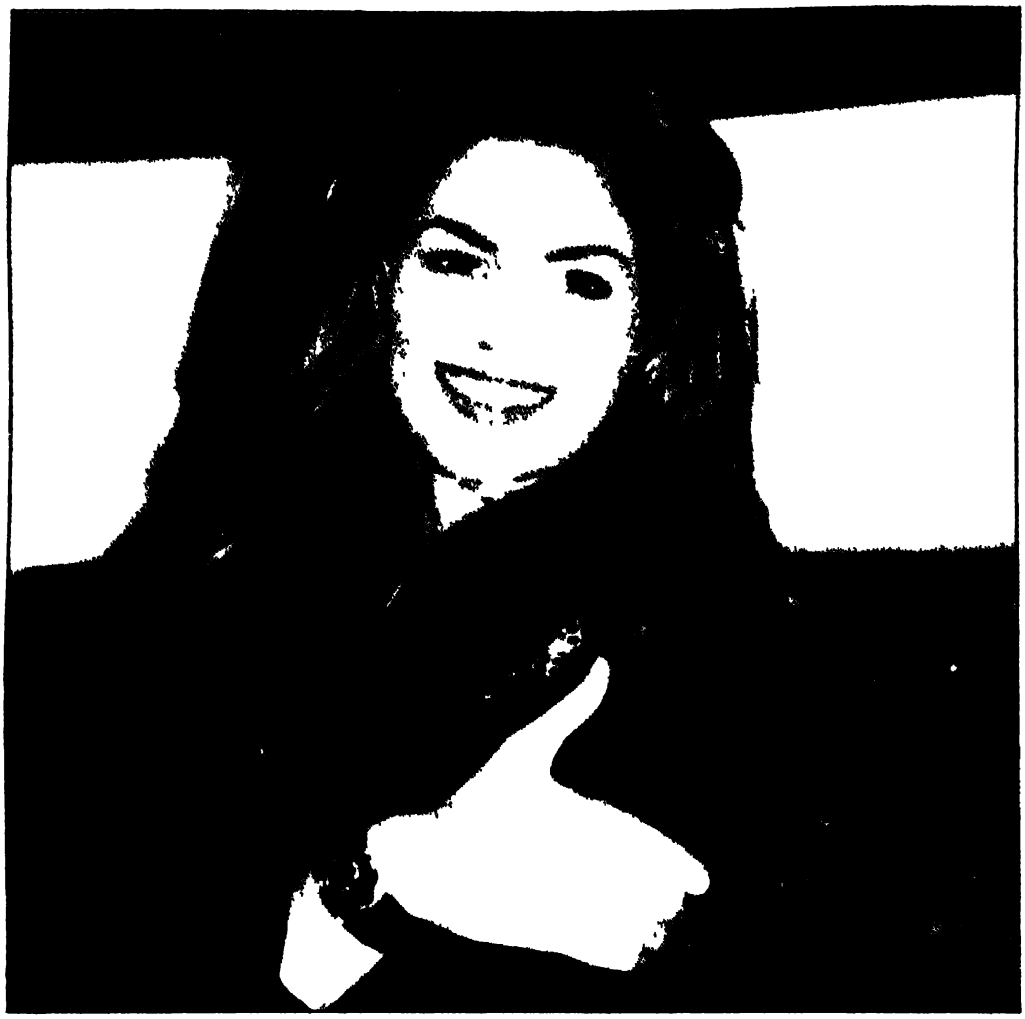












©1984 by King Features Syndicate Inc World rights reserved

PIN UP

Beauty Plus Plus Plus

Call her the sultry siren Call her exotic Call her sexy Or simply ex-Mrs Richard Gere

She's the world's most celebrated supermodel who's been posing before the cameras since her teens and who's graced the covers of over 300 magazines (including Vogue)

She's Cindy Crawford, the 28-year-old, 5'9" American glamour girl who's recently been declared the wealthiest beauty in the world by Forbes

Cindy, who earns anything between $ 2 million and $ 15 million annually, is reported to have accrued $ 6 5 million in 1994 alone from her innumerable modelling and other assignments

The quality for which she is better known apart from her ravishing good looks is her incredible marketing savvy which has not only helped her mint millions of dollars, but also earned her the sobriquet 'Cindy Inc'

She's always been enterprising Between her junior and senior years in high school, Cindy was earning $ 1,000 a day modelling for Chicago's Elite Model Management

She is rumoured to be collecting a fat cheque for $ 1 million from Revlon annually from her contract which will extend upto her 30th birthday

"Revlon liked the whole package," says Michael Hammond, president of Revlon, North America, explaining why the cosmetics company chose her as its corporate spokesperson "She has the looks that allow her to transcend all age groups"

Cindy has been the corporate spokesperson for Pepsi, too And add to that her fashion show for MTV, House of Style, and fitness video Shape Your Body Workout which sold 2 million copies in 1993 alone, and she doesn't really need much college degree

But it's not her good looks this Midwest-born beauty solely relies on She's hardworking and professional and ambitious, say friends Very ambitious "I like to call the shots," says Cindy "In modelling women have more power than men"

And that's one reason why she loathes Hollywood, because "it's really boys town out there" After two unsuccessful attempts with Singles and Flintstones, Cindy is trying another comeback with Fair Game

Although she has everything to make her a supermodel — the look, the SA, the elegance — she is candid about her appearance and career "I'm made to look better than I'm"

She's aware also that her popularity will wane some day But then, "I don't want to be beautiful all the time" ■

Other Top-Paid Models

Thus is the Forbes list of other top-paid models· Germany's Claudia Schiffer, 24, $ 5.3 million, America's Christy Turlington, 26 $ 4.8 million; Canada's Linda Evangelista, 29, $ 3 million; Australia's Elle Macpherson, 30, $ 3 million, America's Niki Taylor, 20, $ 2.4 million; Italy's Isabella Rossellini, 42, $ 2.3 million; Britain's Kate Moss, 21, $ 2.2 million, Britain's Naomi Campbell, 24, $ 2.1 million and America's Bridget Hall, 17, $ 2 million.

In

THE PICK OF THE WEEK

VIDEOS

Before Sunrise The film, by Richard Linklater, takes off with strangers on a train

One is a young American guy Jesse (Ethan Hawke) galivanting around the Continent on a Eurail pass, the other is Celine (Julie Delphy), a French student travelling to Paris

Their chance meeting sets them talking on the train humming its way towards Vienna where Jesse is due to disboard

It would mean never seeing Celine again His suggestion sees them spending the next 14 hours wandering around Vienna

They have a great evening together and promise to meet in a year's time The movie ends in the wee hours of the morning as Jesse and Celine are going their own separate ways, all smiles, leaving one to wonder if it wasn't a dream they fancied after all

FASHION

Leave it on Louise: The Pierre Cardin hype and hoopla ended in a debacle. So where does it leave international labels aspiring to make inroads into the Indian fashion scene?

It leaves them to contend with Indian designers and label hounds sceptical about their intentions, no matter how inspired their collections.

Yet, they continue to forge alliances confident of wooing the fashion-conscious Indian.

Come September, enter another living designer, Louise Feraud. The painter-colourist-turned-couturier lends every collection his indelible hallmark.

Elegance, extraordinary vivid colours and blazing vitality of designs are a regular feature of his creative style.

Brought to the country courtesy J.KL'Atelier whose strategic alliance ushers in a retail venture to manufacture and retail the Louise Feraud couture* and accessories for men and women through a chain of stores all over the country.

LIFESTYLE

Instant Bond Loctite, USA is here to create an everlasting bond

Superwiz universal is a cyano based adhesive which bonds almost anything to anything instantly!

Use a drop of this non-messy brand to bond paper, wood, metals, leather, plastic and whatever you want to join and fix

Superwiz is available in 3 gm tubes with a specially designed easy-to-use, non-clog nozzle

Priced at Rs 33 the tube contains 200 drops powerful enough to fix 200 different items!

Peachy Schnapps If you are spirited enough to go for a heady mix of real peaches and crisp, clean Schnapps, Archer's is here to fill your shooter glass!

Taking off from 'Fuzzy Navel' – a cocktail of peach spirit and orange juice – Archer's managed to soften the classical European recipe and replace the harsh flavours with luscious peaches

International Distillers (India) Limited has launched this 'New Generation' Schnapps at Bombay

Essentially a light drink, Archer's has an alcohol content of 23 per cent Packaged in an attractive tall, frosted screen printed bottle it is priced at Rs 280 for a 750 ml pack

FUN

Breaking the Ice: Wall's frozen desserts, the lip-smacking and nutritious fun products might soon lick out ice creams altogether!

Under the Unilever umbrella, the goodies are set to make a cool capture of India's leading metros.

One could 'go solo' with delicious ice lollies or 'paddle pop' in chocolate or strawberry. Their 'split', a favourite among the young adults, has the twin taste of vanilla wrapped in fruity lime and pineapple ice shells.

'Feast' on the hard core chocolate-within-chocolate or nibble at the Cornettos crisp and crunchy sugar cones topped with vanilla, chocolate and nuts or strawberry-laced sauce.

The 'top ten' takes you on a chocolacious treat while the smoother 'classic' comes in cups and take-home packs of 1/2 litre, 1 litre and 4 litres.

Based on vegetable oils, the delicious desserts could satisfy a fitness freak's sweet desires. And take the heat off summer!

RASOI

JIGGS KALRA

It is true of food that the more cooking methods you use, the tastier the dish becomes It is also true that most chefs — steeped as they are in theory – tend to shy away from 'extra' work, experimentation and innovation

Once the blinkers are removed, creative use of multiple techniques becomes easy and results in wonderful new delicacies Rasoi has firmly believed that this is how food evolves

The results of our recent endeavours are offered below

MEEN URULLA

INGREDIENTS

12 fillets Sole/Pomfret (large)
12 Banana leaves (8 " square)
Coconut oil to grease banana leaves
Cooking oil to grill wrapped paupiettes and grease tawa/griddle

The Marination

60 ml / 1/4 cup Lemon juice
30 ml / 2 tbs Toddy vinegar
30 g / 5 tsp Garlic paste (strained)
20 g / 3 1/2 tsp Ginger paste (strained)
3 g / 1 tsp Red chilli powder
Salt

The Filling

90 g / 3 oz Prawns
60 g / 2 oz Crab meat (cooked)
60 g / 2 oz Squid
60 g / 2 oz Fish trimmings
30 ml / 2 tbs Coconut oil
100 g / 3 oz Madras onions
5 g / 1/2 " piece Ginger
2 Green chillies
12 Curry leaves
3 g / 1 tsp Coriander powder
1 5 g / 1/2 tsp Turmeric powder
Salt
24 Green peppercorns
10 ml / 2 tsp Lemon juice

The Gravy

45 ml / 3 tbs Gingelly (sesame) oil
4 whole dried Red chillies
7 5 g / 1 tbs Fennel seeds
8 flakes Garlic
2 sticks Cinnamon (1 ")
165 g / 1 1/2 cups Madras onions
110 g / 1/4 lb Tomatoes
9 g / 1 tbs Coriander powder
3 g / 1 tsp Turmeric powder
3 g / 1 tsp Red chilli powder
30 g / 1 oz Tamarind pulp
720 ml / 3 cups Fish stock
Salt
1 5 g / 1/2 tsp Green cardamom powder
1 g / 1/3 tsp Mace powder

The Tempering

6 25 g / 1 1/2 tsp Butter
7 5 ml / 1 1/2 tsp Gingelly (sesame) oil
2 25 g / 1/2 tsp Mustard seeds
12 Curry leaves

Serves 4
Preparation time 1 45 hours
Cooking time 25 minutes

PREPARATION

The fish fillets Clean, wash, pat dry and trim Coarsely chop and reserve 60 g / 2 oz of the trimmings for the filling
The marination: Mix all ingredients, evenly rub the fish fillets with this marinade and reserve for 15 minutes

The filling Shell prawns, devein, wash, pat dry and coarsely chop Run fingertips through crab flakes to ensure there are broken shells Clean squid, wash, pat dry and coarsely chop Peel, wash and chop onions Scrape, wash and chop ginger Wash green chillies, slit, desced, chop and discard the stems Wash curry leaves Wash green peppercorns and pat dry If using canned peppercorns, drain and pat dry

Heat oil in a kadhai, add onions, saute over medium heat until translucent and glossy, add ginger, saute until onions are light golden, add green chillies and saute until onions are golden Then add curry leaves, saute until onions are golden brown, add coriander and turmeric powders — dissolved in 30 ml / 2 tbs of water - - and bhunno/stir fry until the liquid evaporates Now add the seafood and bhunno/stir fry for 1-1 1/2 minutes Transfer to a food processor/mincer and make a coarse mousse Remove to a bowl, add the remaining ingredients, mix well and divide into 12 equal portions
The stuffing Wash banana leaves, pat dry, spread on the work surface and grease with coconut oil Remove fish fillets, hold aloft to allow excess marinade to drip off and place on the banana leaf Spread a portion of the filling on each fillet and roll to make a paupiette (ensure that the fillet does not break, nor the filling spill out) Then wrap a stuffed fillet in each of the greased banana leaves, tucking in the edges and secure with string and keep aside
The gravy Wipe dried red chillies clean with moist cloth Do not peel the garlic Peel, wash and slice onions Remove eyes, wash and roughly chop tomatoes

Meen Urulla

COOKING
To cook the fish, heat the tawa/griddle, sprinkle water and clean thoroughly Then spread a little oil on the tawa/griddle, arrange the wrapped fish fillets on top and grill for 3-4 minutes, turning twice or thrice, adding a little oil on each occasion Remove and keep aside

To prepare the gravy, heat oil a handi/pan, add whole dried red chillies, stir over medium heat until they become slightly darker (approximately 15-20 seconds), add fennel, garlic and cinnamon, bhunno/stir-fry until garlic is light golden, add onions and bhunno/stir-fry until onions are light brown, then add tomatoes bhunno/stir-fry for 3-4 minutes, add coriander, turmeric and red chilli powders —all dissolved in 45 ml / 3 tbs of water — and bhunno/stir-fry until the moisture evaporates Now add tamarind pulp, stir, add fish stock, bring to a boil, reduce to low heat and simmer until of coating consistency Remove and pass the gravy through fine muslin into a separate handi/pan Return the gravy to heat, unwrap the paupiettes, gently add to the gravy and simmer until the gravy is of sauce consistency (approximately 3 minutes) Sprinkle cardamom and mace powders, stir carefully Remove and adjust the seasoning

To prepare the tempering, heat the butter and the oil, add the mustard seeds and curry leaves, stir over medium heat until the seeds begin to crackle Remove and keep aside

TO SERVE
Mentally divide the gravy into 8 portions, spoon out two thirds of a portion on one side of each plate (as shown in the photograph) to make a bed, arrange three paupiettes on top, and pour on the remaining one third of the gravy to cover a third of the paupiette (as shown in the photograph) Place a savarin of steamed rice (as shown) on each plate, pour in the remaining portions of the gravy, garnish with the fried chillies (as shown) and pour on equal quantities of the tempering on the fish and the rice

NOTE We intended to stuff the fish with spinach but decided to switch to a seafood mousse Do not go by the green seen in the photograph

MEAT PISTEYANWALA

INGREDIENTS
900 g / 2 lb shoulder of Kid/Lamb
90 g / 3 oz Desi ghee (clarified butter)
5 Green cardamom
5 Cloves
2 Black cardamom
2 sticks Cinnamon (1 ")
1 Bay leaf
220 g / 2 cups Onions
20 g / 3 1/2 tsp Garlic paste (strained)
15 g / 2 1/2 tsp Ginger paste (strained)
9 g / 1 tbs Coriander powder
3 g / 1 tsp Turmeric powder
3 g / 1 tsp Kashmiri deghi mirch
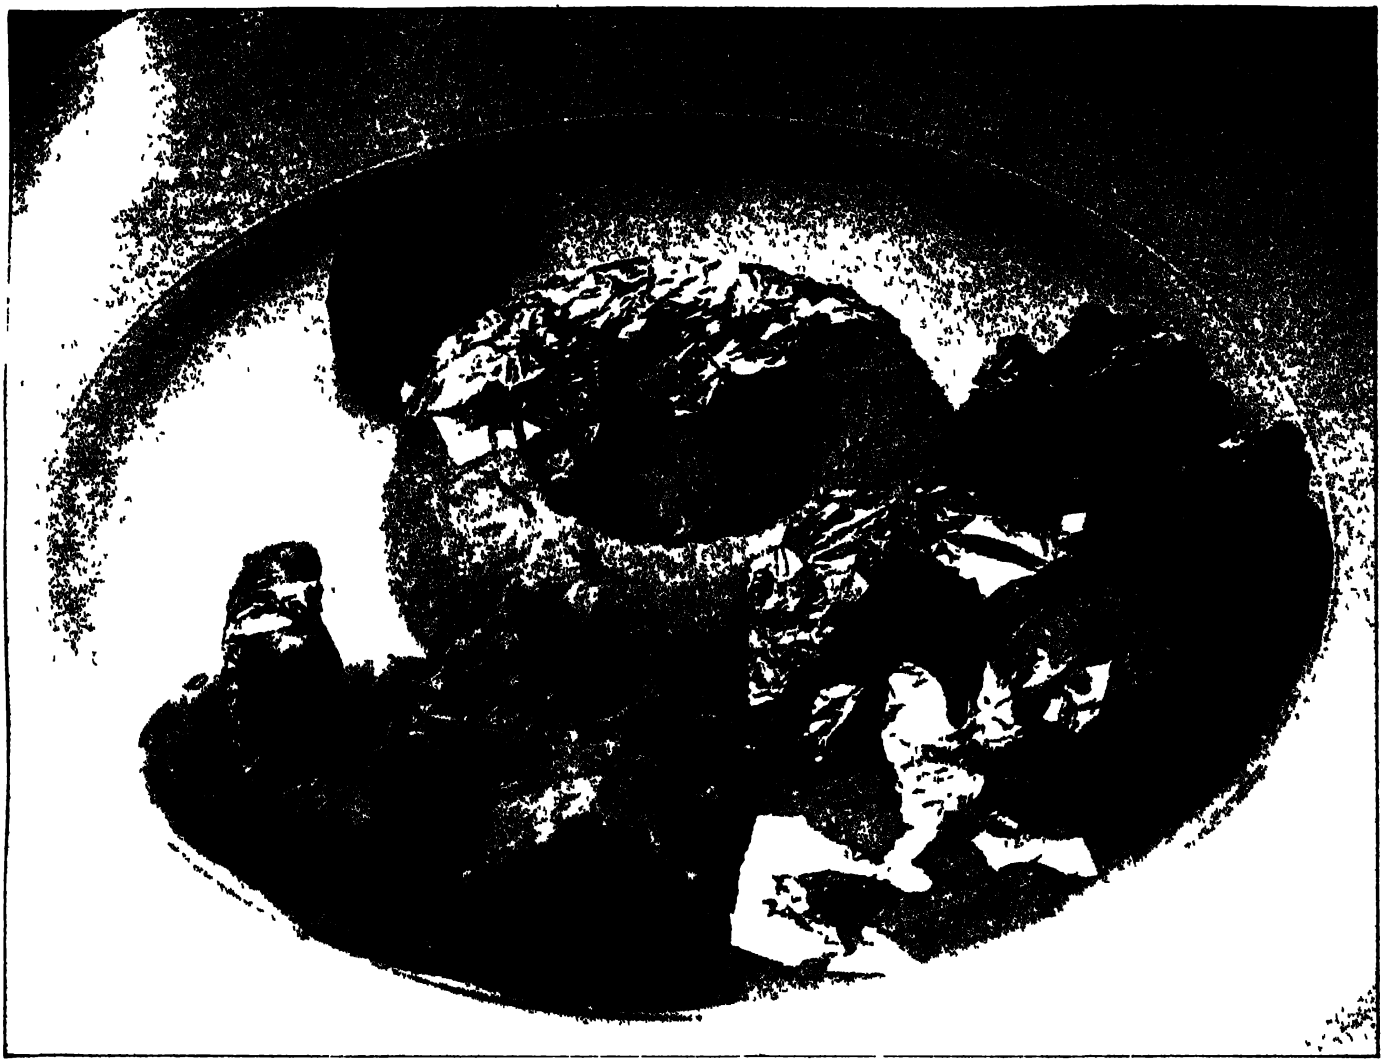
120 g / 1/2 cup fresh Tomato puree
Salt
1 g / 2 tsp Saffron
1.5 g / 1/2 tsp Black pepper powder
1.5 g / 1/2 tsp Green cardamom powder
0.75 g / 1/4 tsp Clove powder
0.75 g / 1/4 tsp Cinnamon powder
0.375 g 1/8 tsp Mace powder
0.375 g / 1/8 tsp Nutmeg powder



The Marination
250 g / 1 cup Yoghurt
30 g / 1 oz roasted Pistachio paste
15 g / 2 1/2 tsp Garlic paste (strained)
10 g / 1 3/4 tsp Ginger paste (strained)
3 g / 1 tsp Kashmiri deghi mirch
Salt

The Stock
1.5 litres / 6 1/2 cups Kid/Lamb stock
10 g / 3 tbs Tulsi/Basil (fresh)

The Garnish
36 roasted Pistachio
Chandi ka varq

Serves: 4
Preparation time: 3.30 hours (plus time taken to make stock)
Cooking time: 1.30 hours

PREPARATION
The kid/lamb. Clean, wash and pat dry, debone and cut into 24 1 1/2" cubes
The marination Whisk

Meat Pisteyanwala

yoghurt in a large bowl, add the remaining ingredients and mix well Evenly rub the cubes with this marinade and reserve for 3 hours

The gravy Peel, wash and slice onions

The stock Clean, wash and pluck the tulsi/basil leaves Put kid/lamb stock in a handi/pan, bring to a boil, add tulsi/basil, reduce to low heat and simmer for 3-4 minutes Remove pass the stock through a fine mesh sieve into a separate handi/pan and keep aside

The saffron Crush the threads with pestle or the back of a spoon, reserve in 15 ml / 1 tbs of lukewarm water for 15 minutes and then make a paste

COOKING

Heat ghee/clarified butter in a handi/pan, add both the cardamoms, cloves, cinnamon and bay leaf, stir over medium heat until the green cardamom begins to change colour, add onions, saute until light brown, add the ginger and garlic pastes, saute until onions are golden brown Remove the meat from the marinade add to the masala, increase to high heat, bhunno/stir-fry for three minutes, reduce to low heat, cover and cook, stirring occasionally, for 20 minutes (add a little stock to prevent sticking, if necessary) Uncover, bhunno/stir-fry until the liquid has evaporated, add coriander powder and one fourth of the marinade, bhunno/stir-fry until the liquid has evaporated, add another fourth of the marinade and keep repeating the process until the marinade is used up Now add turmeric and deghi mirch (dissolved in 30 ml / 2 tbs of water), stir for a minute, reduce to low heat, bhunno/stir-fry until the fat leaves the sides, add tomato puree, bhunno/stir-fry until the fat leaves the sides again, add the stock, bring to a boil, reduce to low heat, cover and simmer, stirring occasionally, until the meat is cooked Uncover, remove the meat and keep aside Pass the gravy through a fine muslin into a separate handi/pan, return gravy to heat and reduce over low heat to sauce consistency Remove and adjust the seasoning Now add saffron, stir, sprinkle green cardamom, black pepper, clove, cinnamon, mace and nutmeg powders, cover and keep aside

TO SERVE

Mentally divide the gravy into 8 portions, spoon out a portion on one side of each plate (as shown in the photograph) to make a bed, arrange 6 cubes of meat on top Place a savarin of steamed rice (as shown) one each plate, pour in the remaining portions of the gravy, garnish with pistachio and chandi ka varq (as shown) and

NOTE: All weights are nett, that is post-preparation, and not gross ■

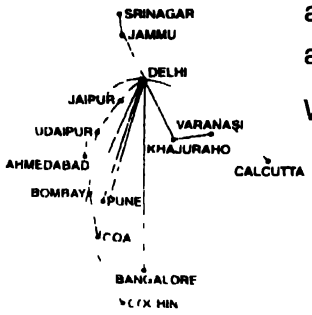
FOR SOME, SUCCESS IS A WAY OF LIFE.

Rs.
FOR

Great Taste.
Great Satisfaction.

IGARETTE SMOKING IS INJURIOUS TO HEALTH

Any airline can fly you economy. Only ModiLuft flies you Silver Class.



Silver Class A cut above the rest

Economical, yet uncompromising in comfort
Delicious cuisine A choice of soft drinks and juices
Efficient and caring service

All this with our on-time performance, which other airlines keep talking about, and our frequent flyer programme, Miles & Smiles, make flying on ModiLuft a world class experience Which is why we've been adjudged India's best domestic airline Thrice

Welcome aboard ModiLuft

ModiLuft
In partnership with Lufthansa

Fly World Class

POST MORTEM

Turf Fever

■ Although a sport of the rich, horse racing is popular the world over ('Taste the Thunder!', March 5)

This hangover of the Raj is today a money-spinning entertainment Liquor and tobacco companies have found a lucrative advertising vehicle in this sport

Vijay Mallya's UB Group sponsored a spectacular show at Bombay's Mahalaxmi race course which was even shown live on Doordarshan

Calcutta has also caught the turf fever The Classic Indian Turf Invitation Cup has become an annual racing ritual for the elite This time, too, it was telecast on Doordarshan

Manoranjan Das,
Jamshedpur

■ The cover story had an elitist touch Only bookies and owners of horses have an interest in racing

Debabrata Mohanty,
Balasore

■ Horse racing is not everybody's cup of tea The cover story must have been read only by a select group

Despite its immense popularity and the fact that it means real big money, horse racing is yet to attain respectability

The temptation to win, and win more, has often been the cause of many people's ruin

Sunil Banerjee,
Calcutta

Anil Grover

Vijay Mallya (left) Liquid cash for races

Extraordinary and 80

■ 'Life at 80' (January 29) was a fitting tribute to octogenarians The story would have had a wider appeal had it included the views, sentiments and remembrances of some commoners in their eighties instead of highlighting the often-read-about achievements of a few celebrities

Sourav Ghosh Choudhury,
Calcutta

■ The cover story was brilliant Could you do a story on thespians like Ashok Kumar and Raaj Kumar who are in their eighties?

Prabal Guha,
Jamshedpur

Star Persons

■ First Person would become more interesting if the star sign of the person interviewed is also included

Chanchal S Dudhoria,
Calcutta

Dream Prose

■ Ruskin Bond's columns are the most exquisite pieces of writing in the Magazine 'Wild Garden' (March 5) provided not just 12 minutes of reading ecstasy, but the mood the thought and the simplicity of the writing enveloped me like sweet fragrance

He reminded us of our tragic urban existence, of the vast treasures we give away for a little materialistic comfort

Subhojit Roy,
Calcutta

Will to Win

■ When the cancer hospital was being built many in Pakistan jeered at Imran Khan ('King Khan', February 5) Even his bowling partner, Sarfraz Nawaz, accused him of spending the funds garnered from the public for the hospital on himself

However, Imran was undeterred and went on to show to the world that with will and determination one could overcome all hindrances

Khandakar Mohidul Haque,
Calcutta

INSIDE

PAGE 8

KASHMIR STILL smoulders And there are many down the years who have picked up the wages of war An extract from Tavleen Singh's account of the hell that the Valley has become And the inhuman errors that led to it

PAGE 4

A REPORT on the Berlin film festival

Kashmir

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
19 RUSKIN BOND
20 GILLIAN WRIGHT
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
26 RAINBOW
28 TRIBUTE
30 FIRST PERSON

Cover Gulmarg photograph by Soumitra Sinha

Eclipse

FOCUS

BEARABLE NO LONGER

That's what Swapan Kumar Ghosh felt about the recently held film festival in Berlin and its 'Bear' awards

It is the same thing at all film festivals the world over the decision by the jury sets off a spontaneous chorus of dissension

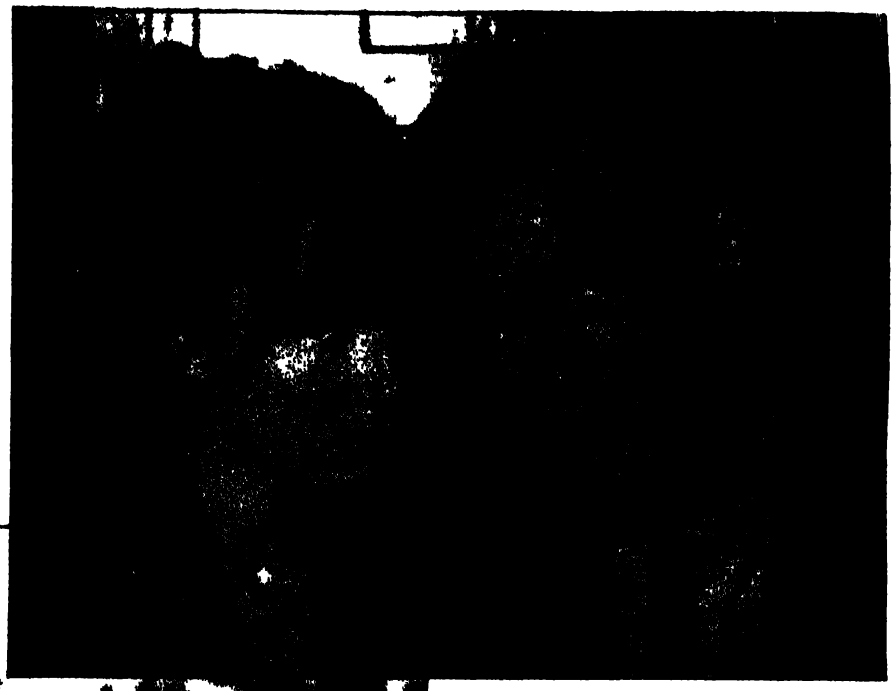
No festival, it must be understood, can kick off with only creative forces at work There are other factors to be considered, not the least of them being political

Since the festival is conducted on an enormous scale, the government or the film industry has always to be roped in A government funding a festival will, in most cases, mean political pressure ruling the roast

And the industry would demand the promotion of mainstream cinema as its just desserts

The film which stirred up the greatest controversy guided the trend of the Berlin film festival

It was quite unlike Cannes, for Berlin in those days never quite patronised Hollywood for raking in the profits Now, of course, it's a pretty kettle of fish



The market for films has been fast hotting up in Berlin ever since Moritz De Hadeln took over as the head of Berlinale in 1980, snatching better films and bigger names to compete with Cannes

This year, what one witnessed was a dismal picture at Berlin Though Hollywood hardly created much of a sizzle, the standards of the festival have crashed beyond compare — ringing in the irony of the fall of Berlin

In an attempt to usher in a new era of trade relations between the US and European film industries, Berlinale last year flagged off with a UK-US entry, its official section flooded with a plethora of Hollywood films

The selection of the awards, too, reflected a definite slant towards US entries as Jack Valenti, chief of the Motion Pictures Association of America, promised all-out aid to European filmmakers

The Promise

A Boy Called Hate

Amanda Plummer in Butterfly Kiss

Some were of the opinion Valenti had dropped the free-trade rhetoric in the hope of cornering some 'Bears' or laurels

So this year, Berlinale got off to a fitting start by screening The Promise, a German film by Magarethe Von Trotta Shot in Berlin, Prague, and Babelsburg, the film confronts recent German history with an indepth exploration and objectivity born out of geographical distance

The plot revolves round the time when the Berlin Wall came up A group of teenagers which includes a couple, Sophie and Konrad, make an escape bid through the sewers, from East Berlin to the West

Sophie manages to flee, but Konrad stumbles and stays behind Germany's gigant edifice leads them to meet just ir times in 28 years!

But th ave a child who keeps their lov d hopes alive When the wall br their 21-year-old son sees his pa united for the first time in his l t questions remain Of the wa it lie within — and of those th insurmountable ta has made a comeback to Berli- after Heller Wahn was shown in Her recent film, The Promise, is this year's official German entry the foreign language Oscar As the focus of most reviews, The Promise bagged critical acclaim Peter Buchka of Zeitung remarked, "Rarely has a major film festival started in such a meaningful and convincing way and with such a fitting reference to its location"

Only 27 out of the 430 feature films lined up gained entry at the festival, 19 of which had their world premiere Bertrand Tavernier's I 'Appat walked away with the Golden Bear

The film deals with a trio of juvenile delinquents (two boys from a privileged background and a girl who has a deprived one) They plot cold-blooded murder for the sake of their premature ambitions — to launch a chain of ready-to-wear stores in the US

The film probes unrelentingly into the psyche of the two boys and the girl Based on the book by Morgan Sportes and scripted by Colo Tavernier O'Hagan and Bertrand Tavernier, it seems like a rehash of If, one of the all-time British classics made by Lindsay Anderson in 1968 I 'Appat' would compare less favourably with If for If delved deeper in its quest for roots

A really swashbuckling hit with critics and audiences alike was Wayne Wang's Smoke, the US entry which stood out as the strongest contender for the grand prize But the 10-member jury chaired by Israel's Lea Van Leer could not agree on account of the film's documentary style in parts

So Smoke received the Silver Bear Auggie Wren's Christmas Story, a holiday tale written for the New York Times by novelist Paul Auster, provides the storyline It is about a tobacconist in Brooklyn and a Black youth brought together by destiny

Wang scored a double with two films in the official section of the festival, the second being Blue in the Face which is co-directed by Paul Auster Though both received rave reviews, it was Smoke, finally, which warmed up the rather frigid atmosphere of the festival

A number of stories in Smoke are knit together by Wang to form a multicultural patchwork of Brooklyn Though the film seems to tell an endless number of stories at once, it remains as clear as the world around the tobacco shop

The Wang-Auster team continued their stints together by shooting Blue in the Face, an instant movie about Brooklyn which has half documentary spliced with fictional scenes, interviews with neighbours and famous people from Brooklyn Le Monde's film critic, Pascal Merigeau, while rounding off this year's festival waxed eloquent about Wayne being the saviour of the festival from the clutches of mediocrity into which it had apparently fallen

Shocks and surprises, too, were in store The formidable British entry, Butterfly Kiss, went without a prize, or so much as a mention by the jury Michael Winterbottom who makes his debut with this film might, one feels, be the one to resuscitate the sagging state of British cinema today

The film has the passionate and impulsive Eunice (Amanda Plummer) as its central character journeying all across northern England on her desperate search for Judith In the course of her sojourn, Eunice meets Miriam (Saskia Reeves), a lonely and naive introvert who works at a gas station and takes care of her infirm brother

The two continue the search for Judith which finally ends up disclosing Eunice as a murderer What Winterbottom succeeds in doing, is to create a balance between the funny and the macabre

But strangely enough, the best actress award went not to Amanda Plummer, but to Josephine Siao for her role in Ann Hui's Summer Snow

One could, however, foresee Paul Newman winning the best actor award for his sterling performance in Robert Benton's Nobody's Fool An average film, it speaks about an ordinary man's struggle for survival and his need to keep his dignity with humour

A regular feature of all major film festivals is the recognition given to Chinese, Taiwanese, Korean and Russian films Lately, the spotlights have also shifted to Hongkong-made Chinese films This may explain why Blush (pro-China/Hongkong) by Li Shaohong won a Silver Bear for visual effects and The Play for a Passenger, a Russian film won the Silver Bear for its remarkable style and theme

Both Blush and The Play for a Passenger are propaganda films though the latter is a little too weak in its depiction of realistic paradoxes

Diplomatic links with Israel justified Lia van Leer's designation as chair person of the jury No wonder Sh'chur was accorded a special mention for its special blend of magic and reality

As Shumel Hasfari's debut film, Sh'chur is all about sins, sins and more sins But one tries in vain to search for its social and contemporary relevance

The Mexican entry, Midaq Alley, by Jorge Fons was nothing short of a tearjerker sans cinematic effects But there it was, laying claim to the jurist's special mention for exceptional storytelling

The selection of Richard Linklater

Maddening Noise

as best director for Before Sunrise, a US/Austria joint venture evoked amusement, if not surprise The film seemed like a pale imitation of Andrej Wajda's minor masterpiece, Innocent Sorcerers

Though modelled as a conventional love story, the man-woman relationship was much too superficial And Linklater's nomination confirmed sneaking suspicions of the jury's inability to ignore American entries for a major award

A great dampener was Alain Robbe-Grillet's Maddening Noise with its clumsy use of complex images to explore a story of love, hate and death Robbe-Grillet, one of the pioneers of Nouveau Roman who has been proving his directorial talent since the Sixties, seems to have petered out at this festival

The same can be said of German filmmaker, Herbert Achternbusch, who tries to capture the mood of our times in an absurdly critical though satirical fashion and fails miserably in the attempt

There were two films earmarked for celebrating the centenary of cinema One of them, The Night of the Filmmakers, by German director Edgar Reitz (of Heimat fame) carries assorted interviews of the new breed of German filmmakers from Kluge to Detler Buck

The other, A Hundred and One Nights, is by well-known French filmmaker, Agnes Varda It is about the old Mr Cinema (Michael Piccoli) almost a 100 years old, an actor, producer, and director who engages the young Camille (Julie Gayet) as an expert cineaste

Camille's task is to bring order to his confused memory Agnes Varda tries in vain to give a life-like, amusing and ironic picture of the evergreen urge to make films For the outcome sadly

Song of the Siren

lacks punch

The festival also saw the decline of Spanish filmmaker, Manuel Gutierrez Aragon, who in the early Seventies was in excellent form US-based Australian filmmaker Bruce Beresford's Silent Fall lived up to its name and made a quiet exit

It deals with the history of US television presented by the charismatic actor-director Robert Redford

Running parallel to the competition section in Berlin, is the Forum of Young Cinema where films are selected with greater imagination Director Ulrich Gregor with his team works round the year in promoting young filmmakers of all countries

One was struck by the total absence of any Indian films in the competition or in the Panorama section of the festival The Forum chose two Indian films of which one was Anand Patwardhan's two-hour documentary, Father, Son and Holy War, and another was the almost ancient classic, Sant Tukaram, to commemorate 100 years of cinema

Patwardhan's documentary, which is based on a sensitive collection of facts, was well accepted by critics who hailed it as a landmark in Indian documentary for its concern with the communal violence ravaging India since Independence

But to an Indian present in Berlin, the documentary was an eyeopener on blind faith, superstition and illiteracy that still sells well in Indian films in the West

At festivals in Cannes, Berlin and Venice, there is a tendency to look condescendingly at the cinematic landscape which is vastly unknown or has just started to develop

Indian films, for instance, are now ignored for their non-Indianness The selectors could not envisage that characters in an Indian film could face predicaments that go beyond the roti kapda aur makan level of thought It is always the Third World concept which is sought after in Third World films

The Forum director, Ulrich Gregor, has promoted in the recent past, Indian filmmakers Mrinal Sen, Buddhadeb Dasgupta, Adoor Gopalkrishnan and Goutam Ghose — at a time when they were all out to portray the surface reality without much introspection

Now, it is China, Hongkong and Taiwan which are the areas to watch out for, feels Gregor, because of the sudden upsurge of a 'tremendous energy' arising from these regions Or, is it, one wonders, mere lust for Oriental exotica! ■

COVER STORY

A HELL ON EARTH

An extract that deals with the inhuman errors in Kashmir

BY TAVLEEN SINGH

Sumit Sinha

Shalimar Garden, Srinagar
How green was my valley

The militant face of Kashmir

AFTER THE BRIEF FLURRY OF EXCITEMENT that the Ekta Yatra created Kashmir was forgotten again Chronic problems are easily ignored and by the time Narasimha Rao came to the end of his first year as Prime Minister Kashmir had become a chronic, thereby a forgettable, problem As long as there were no major massacres, no serious incidents of kidnapping, no successful attempts to blow up government buildings, Kashmir could be ignored Nobody had any ideas, anyway, about what kind of policy would work, so simply forgetting about Kashmir seemed to be the best way out

My next visit to Srinagar was in the middle of 1992 when I went to investigate a story about militant pressure on local journalists to report the news the way they wanted them to. This kind of pressure had always been there but now the militant groups were virtually ordering journalists to obey an unwritten code of conduct which forbade them from carrying stories about differences between the various groups or about any of their alleged misdemeanours Nothing, for instance, on the rumours that now abounded about extortion in the name of azadi, nothing about timber smuggling, which was also being talked about, or about girls being raped. Yusuf Jameel of the BBC reported that two militant groups had fought over Id goats and were in trouble

Extracted from Kashmir: A Tragedy of Errors* by Tavleen Singh Viking (Penguin India), Rs 295

Militant terror was so great by now, however, that in most cases warnings were not even necessary Local correspondents avoided writing anything that would offend militant groups because that was the only way they could have stayed on in Srinagar Despite the massive paramilitary deployment, despite the constant presence in Srinagar's streets of army trucks mounted with machine- guns, it was the militant writ that ran

The situation was a peculiar mixture of massive government presence and a complete absence of government control The government seemed to be doing nothing at all, not even repairing the roads or keeping Srinagar clean so, despite it being a perfect, balmy summer's day the city looked unattractive, dust-filled and unkempt

On our way into town I noticed smoke rising from the hill of the Shankaracharya temple I pointed it out to my taxi driver, but he did not seem either surprised or perturbed "This is normal," he said in a bored voice "There is at least one rocket attack a day I heard on my way here that they had fired a rocket at the TV tower " He did not even think it was worth going up to see the damage that the rocket had caused "This is normal," he said again, but I insisted on going up

So we drove along the Dal Lake with its empty houseboats and its Boulevard filled with hotels that had been turned into bunkers The lake gleamed in the late afternoon sun and if you closed your eyes to the sandbags and the military vehicles, and concentrated instead on the shikaras and the houseboats, it was easy to remember the Srinagar of holiday postcards and Hindi films The impression deepened as we drove up the winding road, filled with wild foliage and soft shadows, to the temple There were a handful of soldiers on the way who stopped us for a quick check but they waved us on without too much trouble

Their way of fighting a 'holy war'

Journalists have been killed, often without anyone knowing why. The only compensation, if you learned how to survive, was monetary. Kashmir had become an international story but since it was also in a state of chronic, rather than acute, trouble editors were reluctant to send correspondents unless something really big happened, so most reporting came out of stringers like Khayal and Yusuf Jameel

The rocket missed the TV tower by a few yards and landed on the hillside causing more smoke than fire Several firemen and spectators had gathered to stare but they, like my taxi driver, treated the incident as 'normal' "Nobody killed No damage done," said one of the officers "Just a small incident " What kind of rocket was it, I asked Had it become normal for rockets to be fired in broad daylight at prominent government installations? Nobody knew Had they caught anyone, were there any witnesses?

Again nobody knew and my questions seemed to puzzle them Why should there be any questions asked at all about such a small incident There were incidents like this every day It was well past 4 o'clock by the time we got to the Broadway Hotel so I decided that it would be better to check in and eat a quick sandwich before going off to meet anyone From the outside the hotel, which is built of grey concrete, looked pretty much as it had always done and almost welcoming in the sunlight But from the moment I entered the lobby I realised that things had got much worse in the few months since I had last been here The air smelled musty and stale and the single attendant manning the reception desk was also acting as telephone operator and general dogsbody They did have a room, he said, but they had now closed most floors and there was only one other guest besides me My room smelled even mustier than the lobby and the bathroom looked as if it had not been cleaned for weeks The carpets and upholstery had the same grimy, unclean look about them

Room service was available but I decided that it would be less depressing to eat in the restaurant There was a large sign outside it saying that wazwan was available but the restaurant was closed and I was directed instead to the coffee shop overlooking the pool

It was surprisingly full and had clearly become the local lovers' retreat Most of the tables were occupied by young Kashmiri couples, the youths with movie star hairstyles and in jeans and the ladies demure with their heads covered Kashmiri style to do it because the telephones at the Broadway no longer worked except as intercoms.

Khayal lived in one of those soulless, grey housing estates that various Kashmir governments had permitted to be built either because some professionals, in this case journalists, wanted them or because they themselves needed them for their officials Minimum imagination had been used and the houses were always identical but the one good thing that had been insisted on was that the houses resemble local architecture So instead of imitating suburban Delhi as other state capitals tended to, in Kashmir even government housing retained the sloping aluminium roofs and the double storeyed bungalow that was typically Kashmiri In the villages the houses were red brick and wood and in the cities there was usually more stone and concrete but the style remained almost

Most of them [former government officials] were drawn to the militants by their idealism, a commodity that had become extremely rare in Kashmir. They were also attracted to the militant leaders by their patent love for Kashmir, which was another thing that had become rare among Kashmiri politicians of what was considered the 'mainstream'

None of the couples looked married and the cafe was probably the only place where they could meet discreetly in these Islamic times

The pool was empty but for some stagnant rainwater and some dead leaves and the garden was overgrown and unkempt I decided, nevertheless, to eat my chicken sandwiches at the little white tables outside because the lovely sunshine provided about the only cheer that there was at the Broadway Hotel

Night curfew was by now routine in Kashmir so I needed to be out as fast as possible to catch what was left of the day I wolfed down my sandwiches and coffee and set off to meet Ghulam Nabi Khayal, a veteran journalist who covered Kashmir's unfolding troubles for foreign newspapers and agencies If he was not at home, I thought, I could simply go and meet someone else There was no other way exactly the same

Next to Khayal's house was the closed and shuttered home of a Kashmiri Pandit journalist who had fled once the trouble worsened Even in his absence the house retained its Hindu character due to the names that had been painted on one of the outside walls during some family wedding – Ajit Weds Anjali Srinagar was full of empty Hindu homes by now Some had been burned down, allegedly by militants, others were being used by the security forces and still others were simply left empty

Khayal was home and invited me upstairs for tea and a chat on his small, sunny verandah Plastic and aluminium chairs were brought out and a table filled with plates of sponge cake, biscuits and Kashmiri bread quickly appeared along with a steaming thermos of sweet, sweet tea Kashmiri hospitality had not been affected by the troubled times And, Khayal himself

Guarding the Hazratbal shrine

appeared to have positively benefited from them

I had known him since the early Farooq Abdullah days, when I first started to cover the Valley, and for most of that time he remained a small time stringer who, at one point, even abandoned journalism for a more lucrative government job He looked the same as I remembered him — tall, with a reddish tinge to his complexion, spectacles that he kept pushing back over the bridge of a hooked, Kashmiri nose and a middle-age heaviness around the waist He was always looking for foreign papers to string for Once he had asked me to speak to UPI, another time it was some other foreign wire service, but now he was clearly in clover The house had been spruced up and refurbished and he himself looked contented with life despite the troubles Kashmiri journalists had learned to beat curfew and danger by simply sitting at home and doing nearly all their reporting on the telephone

Information was gathered on the telephone, rechecked with government sources on the telephone and finally sent to Delhi, London, Lahore or New York in the same way It was one of these telephonic exercises in news reporting that had got Yusuf Jameel into trouble Khayal told me when I explained the reason for my current visit, "Some weeks ago there was trouble between two groups over Id bakras (goats) somewhere near Avantipora's," he said "There was some shooting and a couple of youths were killed Yusuf reported that the trouble had been over the goats and they did not like this It made them look bad He did not go to the spot, nor could he cross-check and this is what made the militants angry It is very difficult We walk the razor's edge"

He could not have put it better If any community was caught permanently in the crossfire of Kashmir's ugly little war it was local journalists They were under constant attack from the government for giving 'too much importance' to the militant point of view and under equally constant attack from the militant groups/for stepping out of line for some imagined reason or other Journalists had been killed, often without anyone knowing why

The only compensation, if you learned how to survive, was monetary Kashmir had become an international story but since it was also in a state of chronic, rather than acute, trouble editors were reluctant to send correspondents unless something really big happened, so most reporting came out of stringers like Khayal and Yusuf Jameel And since international news agencies paid in foreign exchange, stringers managed to make small fortunes out of the war One of the newspapers that Khayal's stories appeared in was the Nation of Lahore and Pakistani diplomats in Delhi often joked about how his stories for the Indian press were quite different from those he wrote for Pakistan Militants immediately became 'freedom-fighters' and the story was nearly always told from an angle that sympathised with the Kashmiri cause

The Indian government made him pay for this by impounding his passport at Delhi airport while he was en route to Pakistan "I have written to the home minister, the Prime Minister, the Press Council," he complained, "and I've still had no answer" Khayal was no secessionist, in fact he was probably less sympathetic to the militants than to the government, but he was a typical victim of crossfire We went on to talk about the situation and he said things had got worse

People always said that in Kashmir, so I asked him whether he was being specific about the period in which they had got worse or merely talking generally He said he was being specific "Since June 15 (we were now in July) there have been 372 attacks on government buildings, about 20 to 25 incidents a day A total of 31 people killed of which there were 20 civilians, five soldiers, five militants and 109 injured Those are the official figures Unofficially, they are saying that more than 100 soldiers have been killed in this period "

He attributed the escalation in violence to statements from Delhi about elections in six months and to the recent visit to the state of the Union home minister "Mr Chavan did not put foot on the soil of Kashmir He flew by helicopter wherever he went, even from the airport into town, he met almost no Kashmiris but his statements made the militants go out of their way to prove that the situation in Kashmir was not ready for elections " According to Khayal, neither Delhi nor the local administration had done anything at all to find ways of restarting the political process All they did was talk about it and this did more bad than good

By the time we finished talking a soft, yellow-grey dusk was beginning to descend and I realised I had better get back

Before it got completely dark I wanted to look in on one of my bureaucrat friends in Gupkar Road My notebook records the gist of my conversation with him and the mood of the city 'Went to see H The houses in Gupkar Road are still as charming as ever but there is high security He said there was no chance of the situation improving until there was a proper policy and there is no sign of that as long as the Cabinet secretary (Naresh Chandra) and his brother, the Governor, are in collusion According to him nobody else even gets asked what to do

'The state is bankrupt with a deficit of Rs 1,200 crores in the past two years Even salaries cannot be paid What ever improvements exist have happened because of the militants and not the government

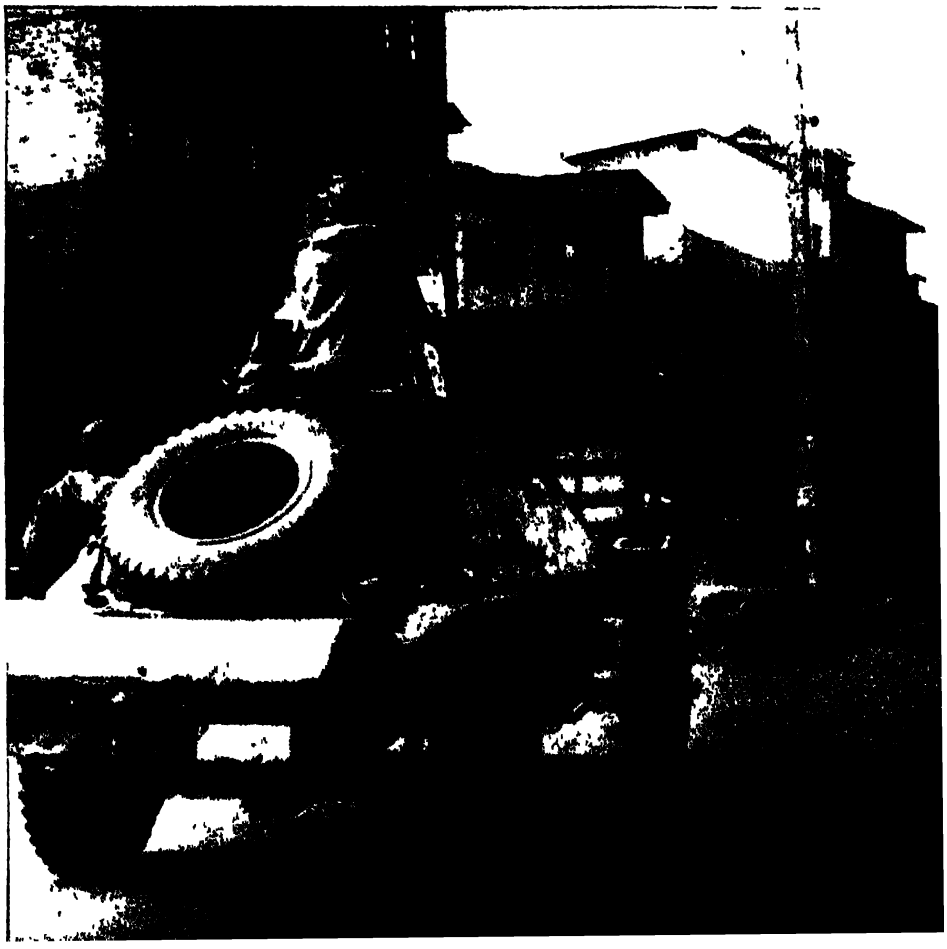
'He was very depressed and admitted that it was hard to live in Srinagar without letting things get to you Everything seemed so pointless, so futile and everyday government, administration, just basic normal functioning seemed to become more and more a thing of the past

'It was dark by the time I left H's house and my driver was very nervous He had to get back to the old city before curfew so he raced back to the Broadway and raced off again Then the eerie silence of the Srinagar night descended

'Broken only by the sound of gunfire, vehicles speeding off in the direction of the shots and dogs barking in panic'

The next morning we set off for Baramulla where there had been an alleged massacre during a crackdown The word crackdown was now so commonly used by everyone that it had become almost a Kashmiri word Khayal wanted to come with me as he had been unable to go up to Baramulla himself so I picked him up on the way Once he got into the car he said he had managed to make contact with the number two man in the Hizbul Mujahideen and he had agreed to meet us in Sopore This was on the way to Baramulla and he said it would be worthwhile to stop

It was yet another perfect summer's day and our conversation sounded strange to me in such idyllic surroundings We drove past backwaters concealed by weeping willows and avenues of tall poplars and talked all the while of massacres and bloodshed Around us the sun glinted off the leaves of the trees and lit up the dark green streams that ran between the swaying willows



Khayal said that more than anything else, it was the brutal massacres of innocent civilians that had convinced Kashmiris that there was no hope for them in India The crackdowns and the crossfires were getting to everyone

We saw few military vehicles along this route and encountered no disturbances except briefly in Pattan, a small town on the edge of Srinagar, where we found a mob in the bazaar forcing shops to down their shutters because the militants had declared a strike

'We asked why and were told that Ahsan Dar, a former HM leader, had been kidnapped by another faction of the HM and this was his stronghold The differenees between the militant groups were clearly becoming harder and harder to conceal

When we got to Sopore we drove through the bazaar to a quiet back-

Paramilitary forces keep vigil in Srinagar street where we stopped Khayal got out of the car and made a few inquiries in Kashmiri Then a middle-aged gentleman appeared and led us into his house which was behind the usual large corrugated iron gate The living room, furnished in the usual Kashmiri style with white sheets and bolsters on the floor and a handful of chairs on one side, was empty but for a young man who turned out to be the middle-aged gentleman's son

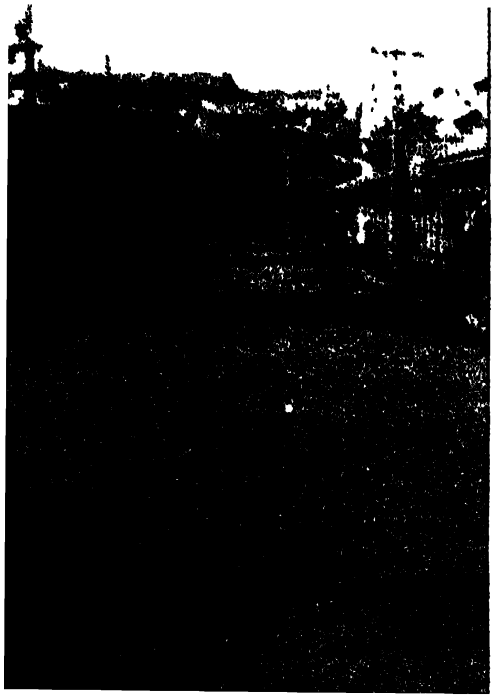
We were introduced to him but no names were mentioned While I sipped kahwa, Khayal and our host conversed in Kashmiri Our host kept looking out of the window nervously Khayal said that we would be meeting Abdul Majeed Dar, adviser general of the HM



We had to wait, however, because he had to be contacted in his hideout and would come only when it was safe Meanwhile, we drank our tea, ate our biscuits and talked Our host turned out to be a former forest officer who had become so embittered by the corruption that he had seen in his years in government service that he had become a supporter of the militants I asked him for some example of corruption and he poured out a long tale about how Kashmir's forests had become the main source of money during Farooq Abdullah's time He said there was a complete ban on cutting trees except for those trees that were either diseased or dying and he was quite scrupulous about not allowing any other trees to be touched Then they caught a forest contractor who was cutting young trees as well and he took the matter right up to Farooq Abdullah himself

Like a lot of other Kashmiris, [Abdul Majeed] Dar had fooled himself into believing that it was India's hostility that had made Kashmiris want freedom instead of it being the other way around. On the one hand he readily admitted that he had always wanted the right of self-determination but at the same time he seemed to need an excuse to explain why Kashmiris were unhappy in India

That was a mistake, he said, because it turned out that the contractor was in 'collusion' with the chief minister "So, I resigned, what else was there to do? They made crores of rupees out of the forests and it was all done with complete support from the politicians"

The story was not unusual In fact, it had by now become quite common to meet former government officials who had joined the movement for similar reasons

Most of them were drawn to the militants by their idealism, a commodity that had become extremely rare in Kashmir They were also attracted to the militant leaders by their patent love for Kashmir, which was another thing that had become rare among Kashmiri politicians of what was considered the 'mainstream' During one of my meetings with Farooq Abdullah I had mentioned this, saying that each and every one of the militant leaders I had met had been a better man than his ministers He simply said, "I know" The difference was so stark that when the stories of corruption among the militants began to spread it was hard for most people to believe them

About an hour after we arrived we saw two bearded youths walk past the window through which our host had been staring He stood up as soon as he saw them and rushed to open the door

They were tall, well-built young men and both carried Kalashnikovs They said something to our host in Kashmiri and then settled themselves against the bolsters on the floor and stared silently at us Our host came back to Khayal and me and said that Abdul Majeed Dar was on his way

Fifteen minutes later there was more movement outside the window and about five or six more armed youths entered and sat down on the floor

Then Dar himself arrived, accompanied by two men who appeared to be his bodyguards He was a bearded, scholarly man of about 35 who looked like a teacher or a doctor He was armed but unmasked and, greeted me courteously before sitting down in one of the chairs The room was now full of armed youths, sitting in a sullen, silent circle on the floor but Dar looked so mild-mannered and polite, in comparison, that I asked him if he were by any chance head of the HM's political wing, thereby not a genuine militant "There is no political wing," he said quietly "We are all militants" I explained that I had asked only because he looked very un-militant and he smiled saying that everyone had become a militant only because peaceful means had failed

Dar's story was a pretty typical one except that his personal struggle for an independent Kashmir began long before the azadi explosion came Sopore was a traditional Jamaat-e-Islami bastion and as a young boy growing up in the town he was quite influenced by the Islamic worldview that the Jamaat stood for

When he was 15 he participated in the Jamaat's anti-liquor agitation What had this to do with the freedom struggle, I asked and he explained that

What will they inherit?

many of these movements were, in fact, a cover for the self-determination demand

Did this mean, then, that ordinary people were not really interested in azadi in those days? This was something he was not prepared to admit and he came up with the usual excuses about how the desire for freedom had merely become dormant because leaders like Sheikh Abdullah had misled the people Realising that this was not a satisfactory answer he returned quickly to his own story

"After I participated in the anti-liquor agitation I was arrested and I went to jail between then and 1988 eight to ten times The police were always on my back and I was not even able to complete my education But I always felt Kashmir shouldn't be in India I always felt as if we were slaves of some other people, some other country"

His reasons for feeling this way, he claims, originated not in Jamaat brainwashing or plebiscite propaganda but in the emotions he felt when he first went to 'India'

"When I went to India I felt I was a member of some enemy country I remember that there was a fight once in Chandni Chowk, in Delhi, between some goondas and a Kashmiri friend and I were just standing around When they found out that we were Kashmiris they abused us Another time, I was going to Amritsar by train with some Kashmiri friends and we got off at a station on the way to eat something

"When we tried to get back on the train we found that the people inside had locked the doors The train was moving, and some of my friends had left their children on board We pleaded with them to let us on but they refused to open the doors Finally, I jumped onto the engine and stopped the train and the police were called The thing that disturbed us most, however, was the fact that even the police seemed to be against us and on the side of the people who had done this

"It was always like this whenever I visited India If people didn't treat us as enemies then they treated us as foreigners I remember, during visits to Aligarh and Meerut, being asked constantly if I were Irani or Pakistani

"I always felt as if I didn't belong, as if I were a second class citizen"

Like a lot of other Kashmiris, Dar had fooled himself into believing that it was India's hostility that had made Kashmiris want freedom instead of it being the other way around On the one hand he readily admitted that he had always wanted the right of self-determination but at the same time he seemed to need an excuse to explain why Kashmiris were unhappy in India ■

The lake gleamed in the late afternoon sun and if you closed your eyes to the sandbags and the military vehicles, and concentrated instead on the shikaras and the houseboats, it was easy to remember the Srinagar of holiday postcards and Hindi films

INNER EYE ❑ Bejan Daruwalla

Aries

March 21—April 20

House, home, office could well require a coat of paint, refurbishing, renovating, decorating, and in some instances, you could be buying/selling/moving, says Ganesha Expenses could get a bit out of hand unless you keep a tight hold April 8-13 is full of action and changes

Taurus

April 21—May 20

You will have to come to terms with life and yourself, and not rely heavily on relatives It is not that relatives and friends are bad for you It is just that certain things are best done by yourself A tremendous effort will be necessary This could be moving time for you

Gemini

May 21—June 20

The accent will be on finance and family and the chances are that you will gain Entertain well and do not worry if the response is not completely up to expectations Health of parents and elders will cause a few anxious moments See that you get off to a headstart the first three days

Cancer

June 21 July 20

Personal matters should not be allowed to cloud your judgment There will be many opportunities to make a fast buck, or steady income throughout the year Monday is your lucky day, so go all out then News, adventures are in store for you Be bold

Leo

July 21—August 21

Moon-Mars conjunction helps you to get your way, win battles But it would still be advisable to carry people with you in a campaign rather than ruffle their feathers Your magnetic charm should do it Personally and professionally, it is partnership time for you Great news that

Virgo

August 22—September 22

There's work to be done, services to be rendered, payments to be collected, love to be given and taken in ample measure—and that means a whirlwind week Group activities will give comfort, if not outright zip and joy April 12-14 will be of vital significance, one way or the other

Libra

September 23 October 22

Ganesha says, despite pressures and rivalry, much will be accomplished, and that's no mean achievement Those in governmental departments, foreign postings, large organisations, plants and complexes, show their true worth Plan ahead for future

Scorpio

October 23—November 22

Journey, ceremony, religious and spiritual impulses, genuine gift of prophecy, or at least, sharp intuition, are what you folks will have Service to others, and employment will also figure in your scheme of things You will have to buck up as many demands will be made upon you.

Sagittarius

November 23 - December 20

Loans and funds, family and home form one side of the coin The flip side consists of children, speculation and wild flings, of taking life as it comes, and a disregard for everything else It would be wise not be overimpulsive You get very important news around April 9-14

Capricorn

December 21 January 19

Too many things are going on at the same time, example house, home, partnerships, preparing for a trip, a change of scenery, applying for interviews, tests, preparing for a meeting/conference, to mention only the very prominent ones On top of all that, health needs safeguarding

Aquarius

January 20—February 18

"Warm in words," hot in love, cold in logic, will it be That means, you will be living in many different levels, planes, plateaus The two aspects which will be highlighted will be job and communication by all media of transport and publicity Also the financial situation will improve

Pisces

February 19—March 20

True that you will be under considerable pressure, maybe under a cloud, but it is also true, that you will come through Jobwise new opportunities, including the possibility of doing something new and different Avoid depressive thoughts

B I R T H D A Y S

April 9: Mercury-Mars fine placing suggests respect, status, honours and sweet justice being done to you. Around August, October, December matters will shape up for you.

April 10: Moon trine Jupiter indicates you will have the opportunities necessary for success. Do not be lazy. Work towards a goal Journeys and collaborations are likely.

April 11: A year of mixed fortunes. Children and creative pursuits keep you busy. Trading and import-export, law and medicine could be wonderful. Health of elders needs attention.

April 12: Mars-Jupiter fine formation leads to final triumph but it will not be without a struggle. A job change is more than possible. Take care of your health A year to attend to work

April 13: Usually Venus-Saturn conjunction is not lucky, but you will tide over it, given determination and faith, your imagination and inspiration, will help you to succeed.

April 14: Moon-Jupiter in happy formation suggests religiosity, learning, faith in God, good deeds and sacrifices Many Arians will reap the benefits of past efforts

April 15: The full moon could make matters tough and rough for you, unless you learn to adjust and accommodate, be pragmatic, adopt a more relaxed attitude Live in the real world.

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AGARTALA
[illegible]	0710	3 5	IC-742	0940	3, 5
IC [illegible]	0920	daily	IC 744	1150	daily
[illegible]	1130	1 3 5, 7	PF 702	1610	1 3 5 7
AHMEDABAD
M9 304	1090	855 1, 3 5	M9-110/301	1900	1 3 5
AIZWL
PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
BAGDOGRA
PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1
PF 737	0730	3 5	PF 738	1740	3 5
IC 721	1300	1 3 5	IC 722	1540	1 3 5
BAGDOGRA
IC 771	0600	daily	IC 772	1140	daily
BHUBANESWAR
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC 770	2120	1 3 5
BOMBAY
IC 676	0640	daily	IC 675	0820	daily
D2 102	0905	daily	D2 101	0835	daily
9W 202	0920	1 2 3 4 5 6	9W-201	0840	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC 2[illegible]	1945	daily	AI 306	1840	5
9W 2[illegible]	1945	daily	9W 211	1910	daily
D2 101	2005	daily	D2 103	1935	daily
AI 309	2035	6	IC-274	2050	daily
AI 681	2350	1
DELHI
			S2 025	0810	2 3 4 5 6
IC 261	0700	daily	IC 262	0815	2 4 7
S2 026	0845	1 2 3 4 5 6	M9 303	0825	daily
M9 301	0855	daily	AI 682	0950
IC 812	1515	1 3 5	S2 016	1015	1 3 5
S2 010	1555	1 3 5	4S 806	1110	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC 401	1715	daily	IC 401	1155	daily
4S 805	1745	1 2 3 4 5 6	S2 005	1855	1 2 3 4 5
IC 261	1900	2 4 7	M9 301	1900	daily
M9 302	1930	daily	IC 811	1930	1 3 5
S2 006	1930	1 2 3 4 5 7	IC 264	2210	daily
DIBRUGARH
PF 737	0730	3 5	IC 704	1430	3, 5
IC 703	0800	3 5	D2 181	1620	1 3 5 7
D2 181	1135	1 3 5 7	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	IC 702	1630	2 4, 6 7
4S 815	1150	1 2 3 4 5 6	4S 816	1710	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC 701	1240	2 4 6 7	PF 738	1740	3 5
DIMAPUR
IC 257	1150	4 7	IC 258	1650	4 7
GUWAHATI
PF 735	0730	1	IC 712	1410	2 6
PF 737	0730	3 5	IC 704	1430	3 5
PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	IC 708	1430	1 4 7
IC-703	0800	3 5	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
IC-707	0800	1 4	D2 181	1620	1 3 5 7
IC 711	0800	2 6	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2 181	1135	1 3 5 7	IC 230	1650	daily
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	4S 811	1710	1 2 3 4 5 6
4S 812	1150	1 2 3 4 5 6	PF 736	1730	1

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
IC-257	1150	4 7	PF-738	1740	3 5
IC-211	1240	4 6	IC 258	1740	4 7
IC 229	1310	daily	IC 212	1740	4 6
HYDERABAD
S2 023	1045	1 3 5	S2-024	1525	1, 3, 5
IC-777	1800	2, 4, 7	IC 778	2100	2 4 7
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5
IMPHAL
IC 707	0800	1, 4 7	IC-256	1320	3 5
IC-255	0830	3 5	IC-708	1430	1 4 7
IC 253	1100	2 6	IC-254	1550	2 6
JORHAT
IC-213	0910	2, 4 7	IC-213	1315	2, 4 7
LILABARI
PF 735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1
LUCKNOW
IC-812	1515	1 3 5	IC-811	1930	1, 3 5
MADRAS
IC 542	1115	1, 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
IC 544	1115	2, 7	IC-543	1035	2 7
IC-765	1720	daily	D2 171	1045	daily
D2 172	1740	daily	IC 766	2220	daily
NAGPUR
IC-769	1525	1, 3 5	IC 770	2120	1 3 5
PATNA
IC 249	1430	2 4 7	S2 015	1015	1 3 5
S2-016	1555	1 3 5	IC-245	1805	2 4 7
IC-812	1515	1, 3 5	IC-811	1930	1 3 5
PORT BLAIR
IC 285	0640	3 5 7	IC 286	1100	2 4 6
RANCHI
IC 249	1430	2 4 7	IC-249	1805	2 4 7
SHILLONG
PF 705	0730	2 2 6 7	PF-706	1510	2 4 6, 7
SILCHAR
IC-255	0830	3 5	IC 260	1110	1 7
IC 259	0830	1 7	IC 256	1320	3, 5
IC 253	1100	2 6	IC-254	1550	2, 6
IC 211	1240	4 6	IC 212	1740	4, 6
TEZPUR
IC-213	0910	2 4 7	IC-213	1315	2 4 7
TEZU
PF 737	0730	3 5	PF 738	1740	3, 5
VARANASI
S2-016	1555	1 3 5	S2-015	1015	1 3 5
VISHAKHAPATNAM
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
ZERO
PF-735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1

FLIGHTS — INTERNATIONAL

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AMMAN
RJ 185	1445	4	RJ 184	0705	4
AMSTERDAM
KL 876	0420	7	KL-875	0235	7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
BANGKOK
IC 731	0855	2, 4 6 7	KB-106	1115	3
			KB-106	1215	5
KB 105	1125	2, 6	TG-313	1240	1, 3 6
TG-314	1355	1, 3, 6	IC-732	1505	2 4, 6 7
AI-306	1950	5	AI-309	1925	6

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
■ [illegible]
RO-076	1950	5 7	RO-075	1055	5 7
■ CHITTAGONG
IC-225	1200	1	IC 226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2 5	BG-697	1655	2 5
■ DHAKA
BG 092	0850	4 5	BG 091	0810	4 5
BG 092	1150	1 2 3 6 7	BG 091	1110	1, 2 3 6 7
IC 723	1250	1 2 3 5 6	IC 724	1520	1 2 3 5 6
BG-094	1905	1 2 3 5 6 7	BG-093	1825	1, 2 3 5, 6
BG 094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG 096	2100	1 5	BG 095	2020	1 5
■ KATHMANDU
IC 747	1115	1 3 5	IC 748	1455	1 3 5
RA 214	1815	1 4	RA 213	1715	1, 4

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
■ LONDON
BA 142	2050	3 7	BA-143	1525	3 7
■ MOSCOW
SU 538	1855	4	SU 537	1655	4
■ PARO
KB 106	1200	3	KB 105	1040	3 6
KB 106	1300	5
■ SINGAPORE
SQ 415	2345	2 5	SQ 416	2230	2, 5
■ SOFIA
LZ 504	1750	4	LZ 503	1650	4
■ TOKYO
AI 306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

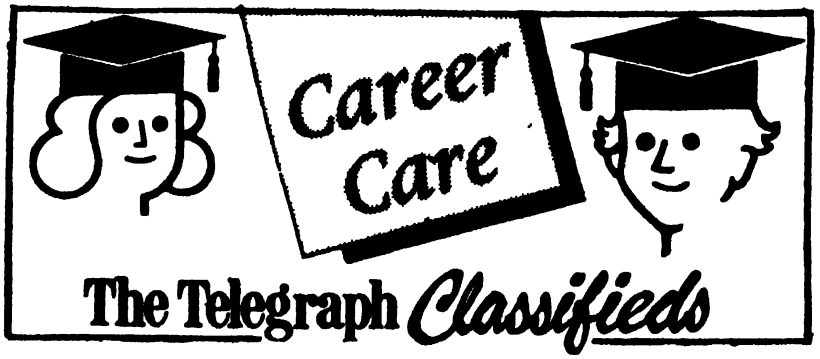
TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY



Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
2311	19 15	Delhi Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19 20	Amritsar Mail	7 55	3006
3003	20 35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13 00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tue Wed & Sat	16 15	2382
2303	1 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun	16 15	2304
2301	10 30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun	10 45	2302
2305	11 45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat	12 50	2306
3073	23 00	Himgiri (Jammu Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat Arr Tues Wed & Sat	11 15	3074
5047	13 00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon Wed & Fri	1 30	5048
3009	20 30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9 45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18 15	3008
3049	13 20	Amritsar Express	15 30	3050
3039	21 00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5 20	3040
3019	16 05	Kathgodam Express	11 55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5 00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6 30	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17 11	Coalfield Express	10-30	3030
3035	18 20	Asansol Express	8 45	3036
3031	21 05	Danapur Express	5 50	3032
3025	23 00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday Arr Friday	11 35	3026
3071	22 30	Jamalpur Express	5 10	3072
3015	9 55	Santiniketan Express	15 40	3016
1159	15-25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tues & Wed	6 50	1160
1171	15 25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed Arr Fri Sat & Sun	6 50	1172
3327	14 30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4 50	3328
1181	15 25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6 50	1182
		Sealdah
3141	13 40	Teesta Torsa Express Dep Mon Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed Thurs Fri Sat & Sun	6 35	3142
3143	19 15	Darjeeling Mail	8 45	3144
3111	20-15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7 15	3112
5657	6 25	Kanchanjunga Express	20 35	5658
3153	22 00	Gour Express	5 15	3154
5663	20-00	Katihar Express	4 15	5664
3151	11 45	Jammu-Tawi Express	15 50	3152
3133	20 55	Mughal Sarai Express via SBG Loop	12 55	3134
3103	18 20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express	10 25	3104
5185	12 40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues Thus & Sat	4 25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6 50	6004
8002	19 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 20	8029
2841	11 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12 00	2842
003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	1940	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13 45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express	22 05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5 00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5 30	8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8 25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00	8046
8017	16 45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2421	16 40	Bhubaneswar New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10
	11 05	New Delhi Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15	-
	14 05	Trivandrum Central Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 45	6321
	14 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13 45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13 45	6315
6520	22 35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15
-	14 05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains, please dial 2203545 54 for in coming trains, 2203535 44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains dial 2203496-3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition, dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running), 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535-37

COMPUTERS
THE
NEW QUALIFICATION
CHANDRA DATA SYSTEMS
A complete house of Computer Education
Prepare you for Today
29/B Tarachand Dutt Street
Calcutta 700 073
Opp Mohammed Ali Park
Ph 238-7505 / 231-2445

Admission On

Fashion Designing Certificate Course

Last Date 20th April '95

Fees Rs 6000/- (2 instalments)

Stitch Kraft Fashion School
11, Mahendra Road, Cal-25
Ph 475-1031
(Lansdowne Motor Vehicles Stop)

- Adv. Diploma in Computer Sc. & Management (18 months).

Course Contents
WINDOWS, FOXPRO, CLIPPER, UNIX, C/C++, LAN, VISUAL C++, HARDWARE MAINTENANCE & OTHERS
Min Eligibility
H S (Passed/ Appeared)
Fees Rs 10,000/- payable in instalments

NSCT
National School of Computer Technology
2, Raja Basanta Roy Road (between Rashbehari Crossing & Lake Market), Cal-26,
Ph 76-7610(Office)

Cut this and bring to get a special offer.

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL is promoted and sponsored by Institute of Advanced Management, the country's most premier centre for Management Education. IAM, formed in 1989, with global collaborations is ranked as one of the very best Hospitality Management Institute in India And now, IAM brings you the prestigious IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL with the mission of providing Management Education of international standard through state of the art methods of training and research. IAM's years of experience, solid infra-structure and close relation with the industry and business would make IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL, one of the leading Management Institute of the country

THE COURSE

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL offers the following courses for the Academic session 1995-96:
TWO YEAR POST GRADUATE DIPLOMA IN MANAGEMENT
(Full time Course, Monday to Friday, 10 AM to 5 PM)
THREE YEAR POST GRADUATE DIPLOMA IN MANAGEMENT
(Evening Course, Monday to Friday, 6 PM TO 8 PM)

ADMISSION PROCEDURE

Admission to the "Post Graduate Diploma in Management" Courses would be through a Admission Test conducted by IAM Graduates in any discipline with a minimum of 50% marks in aggregate are eligible. Students appearing for the Final Degree Examination may also apply. Upper age limit: 25 years as on 01 07 1995

PROSPECTUS & FORMS

Prospectus and forms are available from the Institute's office and also from the City Office on cash payment of Rs. 100/-. Outstation candidates have to send Rs. 120/- by M.O. Only to the Executive Director, IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL, AE-486, Salt Lake, Calcutta-700 064.

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL
AE 486, Salt Lake, Calcutta-700 064. Dial: 37-7726.
City Office: IAM, 37/1B, Hazra Road, 2nd Floor, Calcutta-700 029. Dial: 475-9237 & 74-8132.

Admission On

SESSION 1995-96
From Classes NURSERY TO XII (ALL STREAMS)
(CBSE -- Delhi Board)

We provide
- English Medium Co-ed
- Trained, Experienced, Motivated Teachers
- Individual Care
- Transport Facilities
- Computer Education
- Hostel Facilities

 Transfer Cases Accepted

Contact Dr. Pandey
Salt Lake Collegiate School
BG-101, Salt Lake City,
Cal-91 Ph 37-1916

We take your international career as seriously as you do.

DIPLOMA IN
- International Airline
- Travel, Tourism and Hotel Management
- Airhostess & Flight Purser Course

ASTA
American Society of Travel Agents

Conducted by:
Trade-wings
INSTITUTE • OF • MANAGEMENT

Calcutta 1, Crooked Lane, Room No 108, 1st floor, behind Great Eastern Hotel, Cal-69, Ph 243-0625 Fax 91-33-2487825

Asansol: 1st floor Mritunjoy Bhawan 56/2, West Apcar Garden Asansol-713304 Ph 20-5701 / 2532

Gariahat 1/1, Dover Lane, 1B, Kumudini Apartment, Cal-29. Ph 76-7727/ 440-6356

ADMISSION OPEN

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

HAMPERING THE JOG

It has been said that life begins at 40 But I have found it begins to sag a little after 45

The other morning, stooping to tie my shoelaces, I found myself out of breath Nothing like that had ever happened to me before It was due, of course, to my stomach getting in the way and pressing against my chest I was badly out of condition and I decided that the best solution would be a daily jog around the hill station where I live — Mussoorie

I bought a new pair of keds, but, unable to find a pair of shorts the right size, I gave a gallic shrug and decided to go jogging in my pyjamas — round the hill past the waterworks, the rickshaw shed and the cemetery

But I thought it would be unwise to jog on an empty stomach So I consumed a mini-breakfast of a soft-boiled egg and toast

At five in the morning, there was no one to watch me and it was a very slow jog On my return I was so famished that I ate a second breakfast of two fried eggs with several parathas — and felt as fit as an old fiddle But after a week of slow jogs accompanied by two breakfasts, I discovered that even my pyjamas were getting too tight

Finally, I came to the conclusion that my technique was all wrong So I cut out the jogging and stuck to the two breakfasts

Rai Singh, my milkman, thought it would be a good idea if I walked with him to his village, five miles from the station I fell in with the suggestion and packed a hamper with buns, boiled eggs, fried potatoes and two kinds of jam As an afterthought, I added three varieties of churan digestive powder

Rai Singh and I set out along the winding mountain path By noon, we had covered two and a half miles and I was feeling hungry Besides, the hamper, which I had insisted on carrying as a form of yoga, was getting heavier by the minute

So we sat down in the shade of a pine tree and prepared an attractive spread for both of us Rai Singh went off to wash his hands at a spring a short distance away As he seemed to be taking a long time, I went to see what had delayed him I found him gathering wild strawberries We filled a shoulder bag with wild strawberries and returned to the picnic spot

All the food had disappeared, the hamper had gone too Everything had been divided up equally by a band of monkeys Several of the young ones had their faces smeared with jam One large female had swallowed all the churan and I couldn't help feeling that she would be a very unpopular monkey by the end of the day

Rai Singh and I sat down on the grass and ate the wild strawberries "Never mind," he said, "I will prepare a meal for you as soon as we get to the village"

He was as good as his word and, after a heavy meal of rice and beans, I slept the afternoon away in Rai Singh's hut Towards evening, he brought me a jug of home-made wine It had been made (he assured me), from wild strawberries

After two glasses, I felt that all my problems had been solved I was ready to climb Mount Everest But Rai Singh put me to bed instead

Next morning, I breakfasted on curds, pickle and parathas and returned to the hill station with a milk can full of strawberry wine I'd got my juices flowing again

Rai Singh had promised me a can of the wonderful tonic every time I visited him and already I was planning a bi-weekly fitness trek to the village

(Sanctuary Features)

After a week of slow jogs accompanied by two breakfasts, I discovered that even my pyjamas were getting too tight. Finally, I came to the conclusion that my technique was all wrong. So I cut out the jogging and stuck to the two breakfasts

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S  COLUMN

FIGHTING INFERNO

Waiting is a difficult task But they wait in Connaught Circus for 72 hours at a stretch It's a child's dream A large empty parade ground big enough for a dozen young persons' cricket matches, and a line of smart, shiny fire engines in the background In the empty tower used for fire practice,hang giant snakes — rubber and canvas hoses, drying in the shade because they're allergic to sunshine

The children's parents keep an eye on their offspring from their yellow-washed quarters surrounding the parade ground All is quiet except for the thwack of bat on leather, high children's voices and the distant roar of traffic

An urgent voice makes contact with the duty officer A bell sounds A siren goes off Within a minute the firemen, officers and drivers are in a position Their tenders are primed with thousands of litres of water, their Super Snorkel has the latest technology — a ladder which shoots up to 60 meters and cost the fire department four crores of rupees

Another tender is stuffed full of carbondioxide fire extinguishers and foam A Japanese ambulance is packed with life-saving equipment The drivers rev their engines, sound their sirens and head off — or at least attempt to

Between the intention and the action falls the shadow

The fire station seems ringed by a chakravyuh of green contract buses, minus drivers, and one with only three wheels and a jack where the fourth should be Outside the station, outer Connaught Circus is partially dug up and four lanes deep in dirty traffic, representatives of the 2 3 million vehicles on the Capital's roads And this traffic does not give way

The Connaught Circus fire brigade has to reach fires over a huge area of New Delhi (from the Upper Ridge Road to New Delhi railway station, from Ajmeri Gate to the Indira Gandhi stadium, from Raj Ghat to the VIP residential areas of Pandara Road and Sunder Nagar)

They have to arrive in three minutes to nearby fires People curse them if they are late They are no good, lazy, incompetent, callous But the motorists of Delhi will not easily let them pass Roads are choked with traffic and Bowser carrying 22,500 litres of water can hardly be termed manoeuvreable Congestion means conflagration and is one of the main problems faced by the fire service not just in Delhi, but in Bombay, Calcutta, Madras and practically every large town of India

Any fireman will tell you no fire starts big, just as many elderly Gujarati ladies will repeat the saying "rather a robbery than a fire" Therefore everyone should know what to do when a fire breaks out, and the fire brigade must be able to move fast

Delhi's problems are the biggest because the city has more fire calls than Madras, Calcutta and Bombay put together The Capital's fire chief, S K Dheri, puts that down to a hot dry climate — but bad wiring also has a lot to do with it Fifty-eight per cent of fire start from electrical short circuits Now, the obvious thing to do in an electrical fire is to cut off electricity, but it's often not that simple

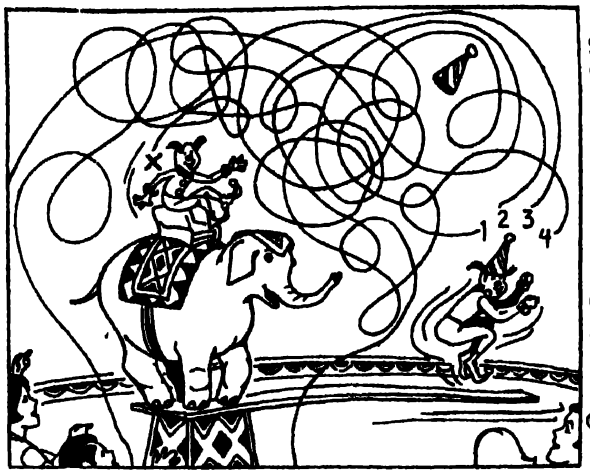
Suraj Bhan Sharma, now second in command at Connaught Circus, joined the fire service in 1962 and was once nearly killed when a portion of a burning building's eaves collapsed on top of him He has fought many fires in jhuggi colonies There eletricity connections are illegal and in a wind one spark landing on a roof is enough to start a blaze

According to Sharma, most so-called educated people are ignorant of fire control, and illiterate people even more so The only way to control such a fire is to demolish jhuggis in its path so that it has nowhere to go But residents don't know that, they also are unwilling to have much water to use and the fire brigade is crawling through traffic The result is often disaster

Shortcut economies can be equally damaging If you have a 45-metre high building, says the Delhi fire chief, then you have to have a sprinkler system installed throughout It's a once-in-a-lifetime investment But for many people fires are a joke, they can't see themselves being caught by one

New buildings stop short at the mysterious height of 44 85 metres to avoid regulations Even then pipes carrying pressurised water are mandatory — but they require maintenance All too often they are installed but then ignored Only recently in Delhi a fire broke out on the ninth floor of the new Environment Ministry building — within a few minutes of use the water pumps installed there ground to a halt

"We serve to save" is the motto of the fire department Lots of young men appear to be burning to do so — 65,000 applied for the last 200 vacancies in Delhi But they will have a difficult task



As the number of firemen has not increased in proportion to the population, they will join the men who remain on standby for 72 hours at a time They will form part of the force of only 2 000 men who look after 9 5 million people and their property spread over 1,484 square kms and who answer 13,000 emergency calls a year (The latest problem they have to tackle are 'malicious' calls People with grudges against their neighbour's illegal construction work make hoax calls in the hope that the firemen will report irregularities to the authorities)

Dheri was 11 years in Himachal fighting forest fires before he came to Delhi Then he dreamed of a manpower big enough to create firebrakes over the Himalayas Now he dreams of underground electricity cables that cannot be tapped illegally, and a ring-railway with bus connections — a public transport system which will keep roads clear enough for Delhi not to burn

(Sanctuary Features)

JUNIOR WHIRL

HAL KAUFMAN

ALLEY OOP! Which path does clown at right take to land on fellow clown's shoulders? Do you pick 1, 2, 3 or 4?

LIKE 1-4! Find numbers one through four hidden among words in the following sentence "Tests over and papers done every student wore a smile with reevaluation of our work completed." Numbers are in numerical order

1	I N _ _ _ _ _
2	_ I N _ _ _ _
3	_ _ I N _ _ _
4	_ _ _ I N _ _
5	_ _ _ _ I N _
6	_ _ _ _ _ I N

INS AND OUTS CHALLENGE

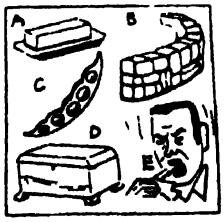
SIX seven-letter words above contain the word IN in progressive order. You are asked to find them in accord with the following clues

1. A kind of coffee
2. Partner of animal and vegetable
3. Popeye's secret weapon
4. Firehouse sight (pl.)
5. Up and down fashion feature
6. Buy that pleases a thrifty shopper

Time limit: 2 mins.

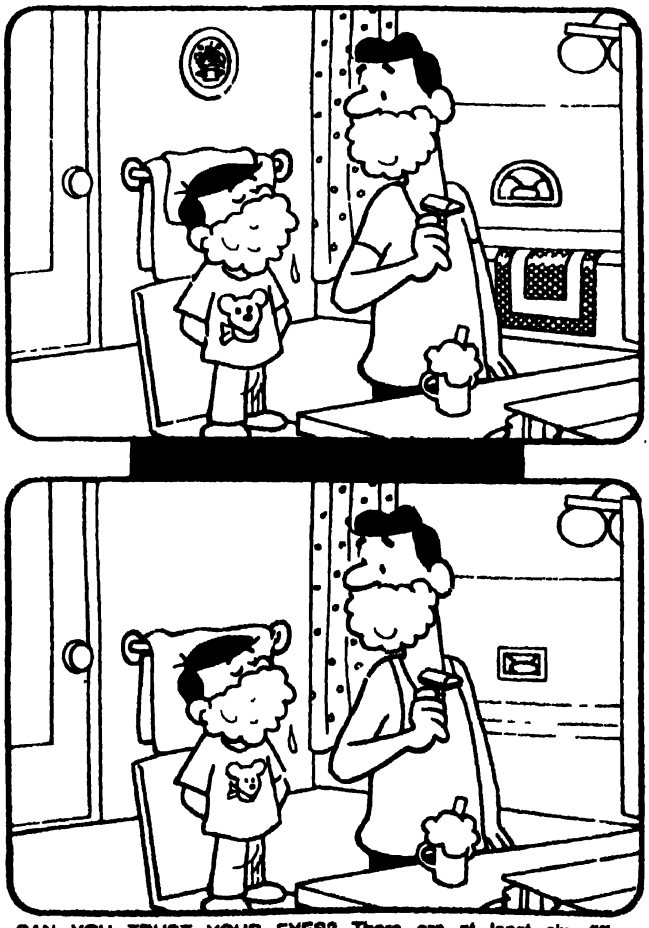
Afterwards, see if you can devise another list of progressive IN words.

No fair peeking below



1. Instant 2. Mineral 3. Spinach 4. Engines 5. Hemline 6. Bargain

NUT HATCH! Each of the five small drawings below is a picture clue to some kind of a nut. As a test, see if you can name all of these nuts. They are among the following possibilities: Almond, beechnut, Brazil nut, butternut, cashew, chestnut, hazelnut, peanut, walnut.



Let's see how quickly you can puzzle out the five nuts in question.

Time limit is no more than 30 seconds each.

A. Butternut B. Walnut C. Peanut D. Cashew E. Chestnut

HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Picture is missing. 2. Towel is missing. 3. Mouse figure is smaller. 4. T-shirt is different. 5. Soap holder is different. 6. Mat is missing.

FUNSPOT

READY, SET! Here's your hat, what's your hurry — it's time for the parade. Add the following colors by number: 1—Red. 2—Purple. 3—Yellow. 4—Lt. brown. 5—Flesh tones. 6—Green.

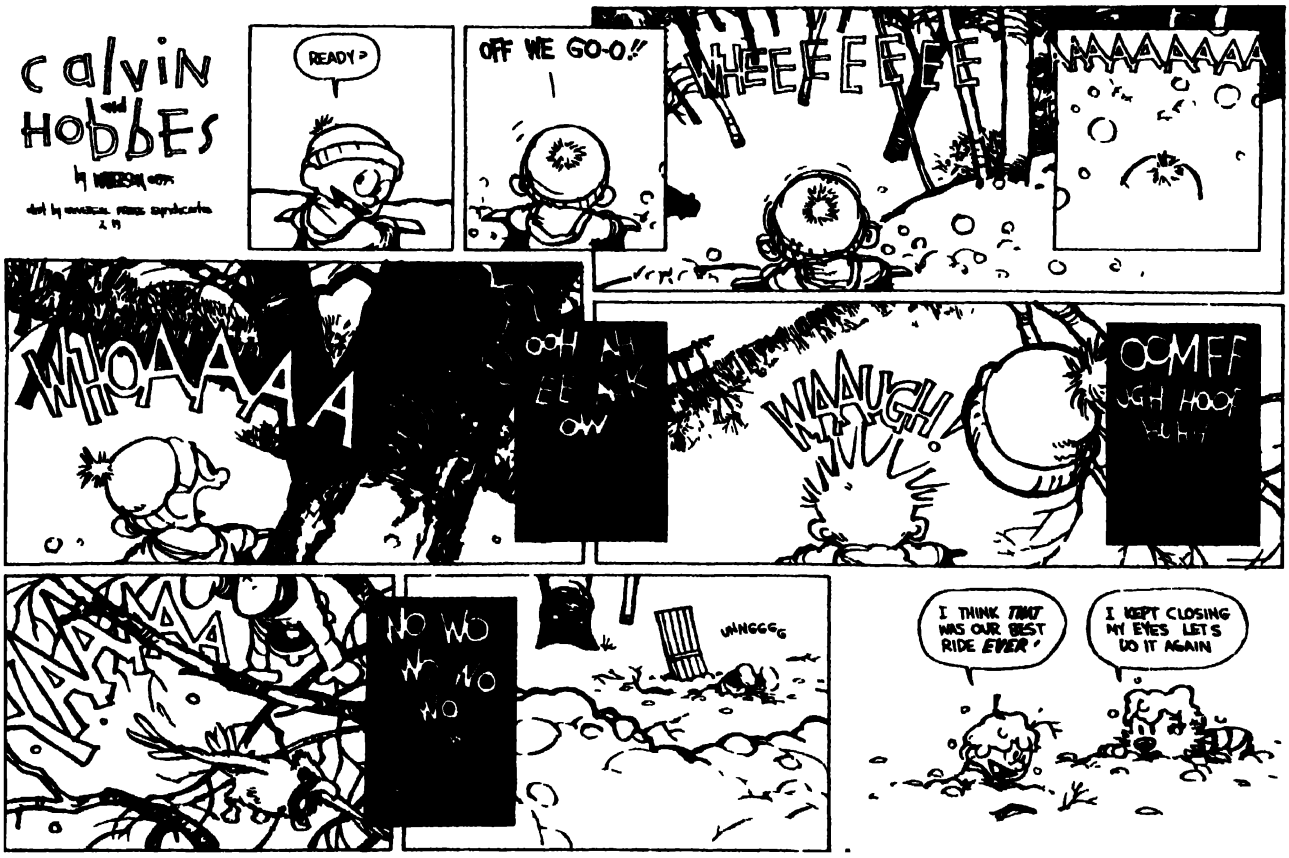
SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

REGIMENT

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

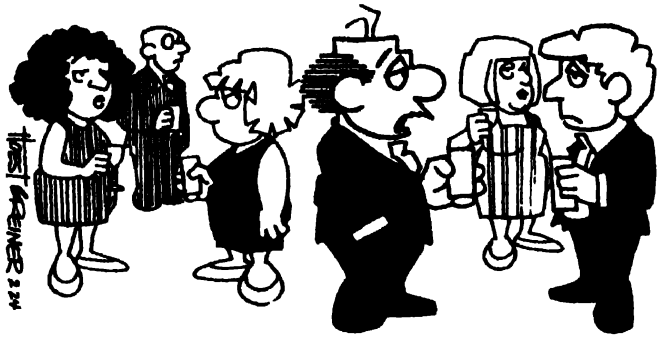
Try to score at least 50 points



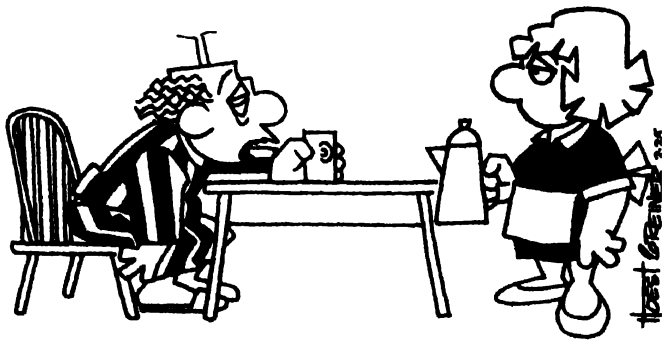
Possible two-word answer: Grin, stem

COMICS

ARCHIE

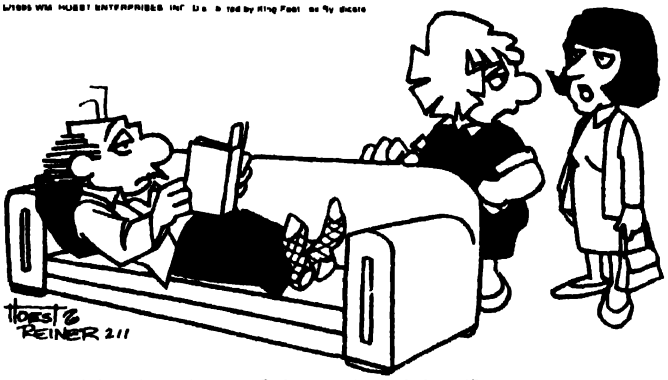


CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON



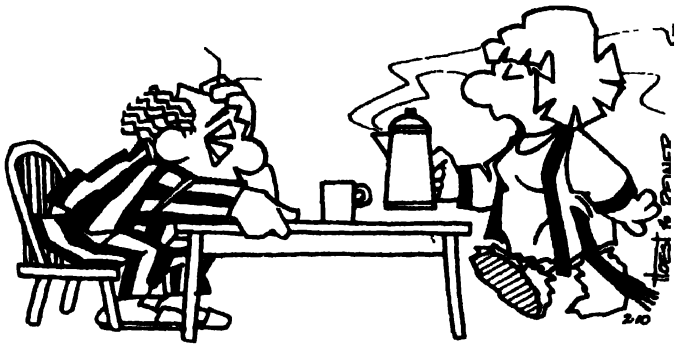
THE LOCKHORNS

©1986 Wm. HOEST ENTERPRISES, INC. Distributed by King



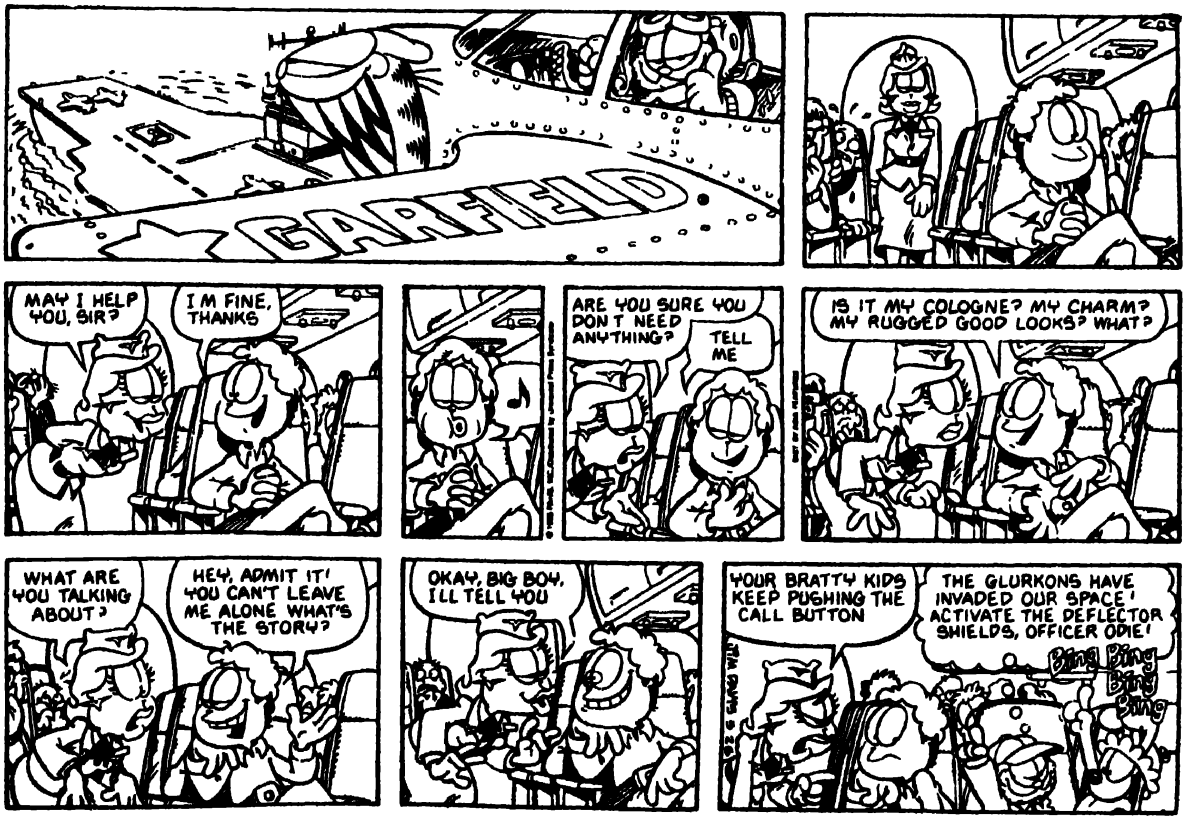
"IT'S EASY TO REMEMBER OUR ANNIVERSARY WE GOT MARRIED DURING THE TET OFFENSIVE."

©1986 Wm. HOEST ENTERPRISES

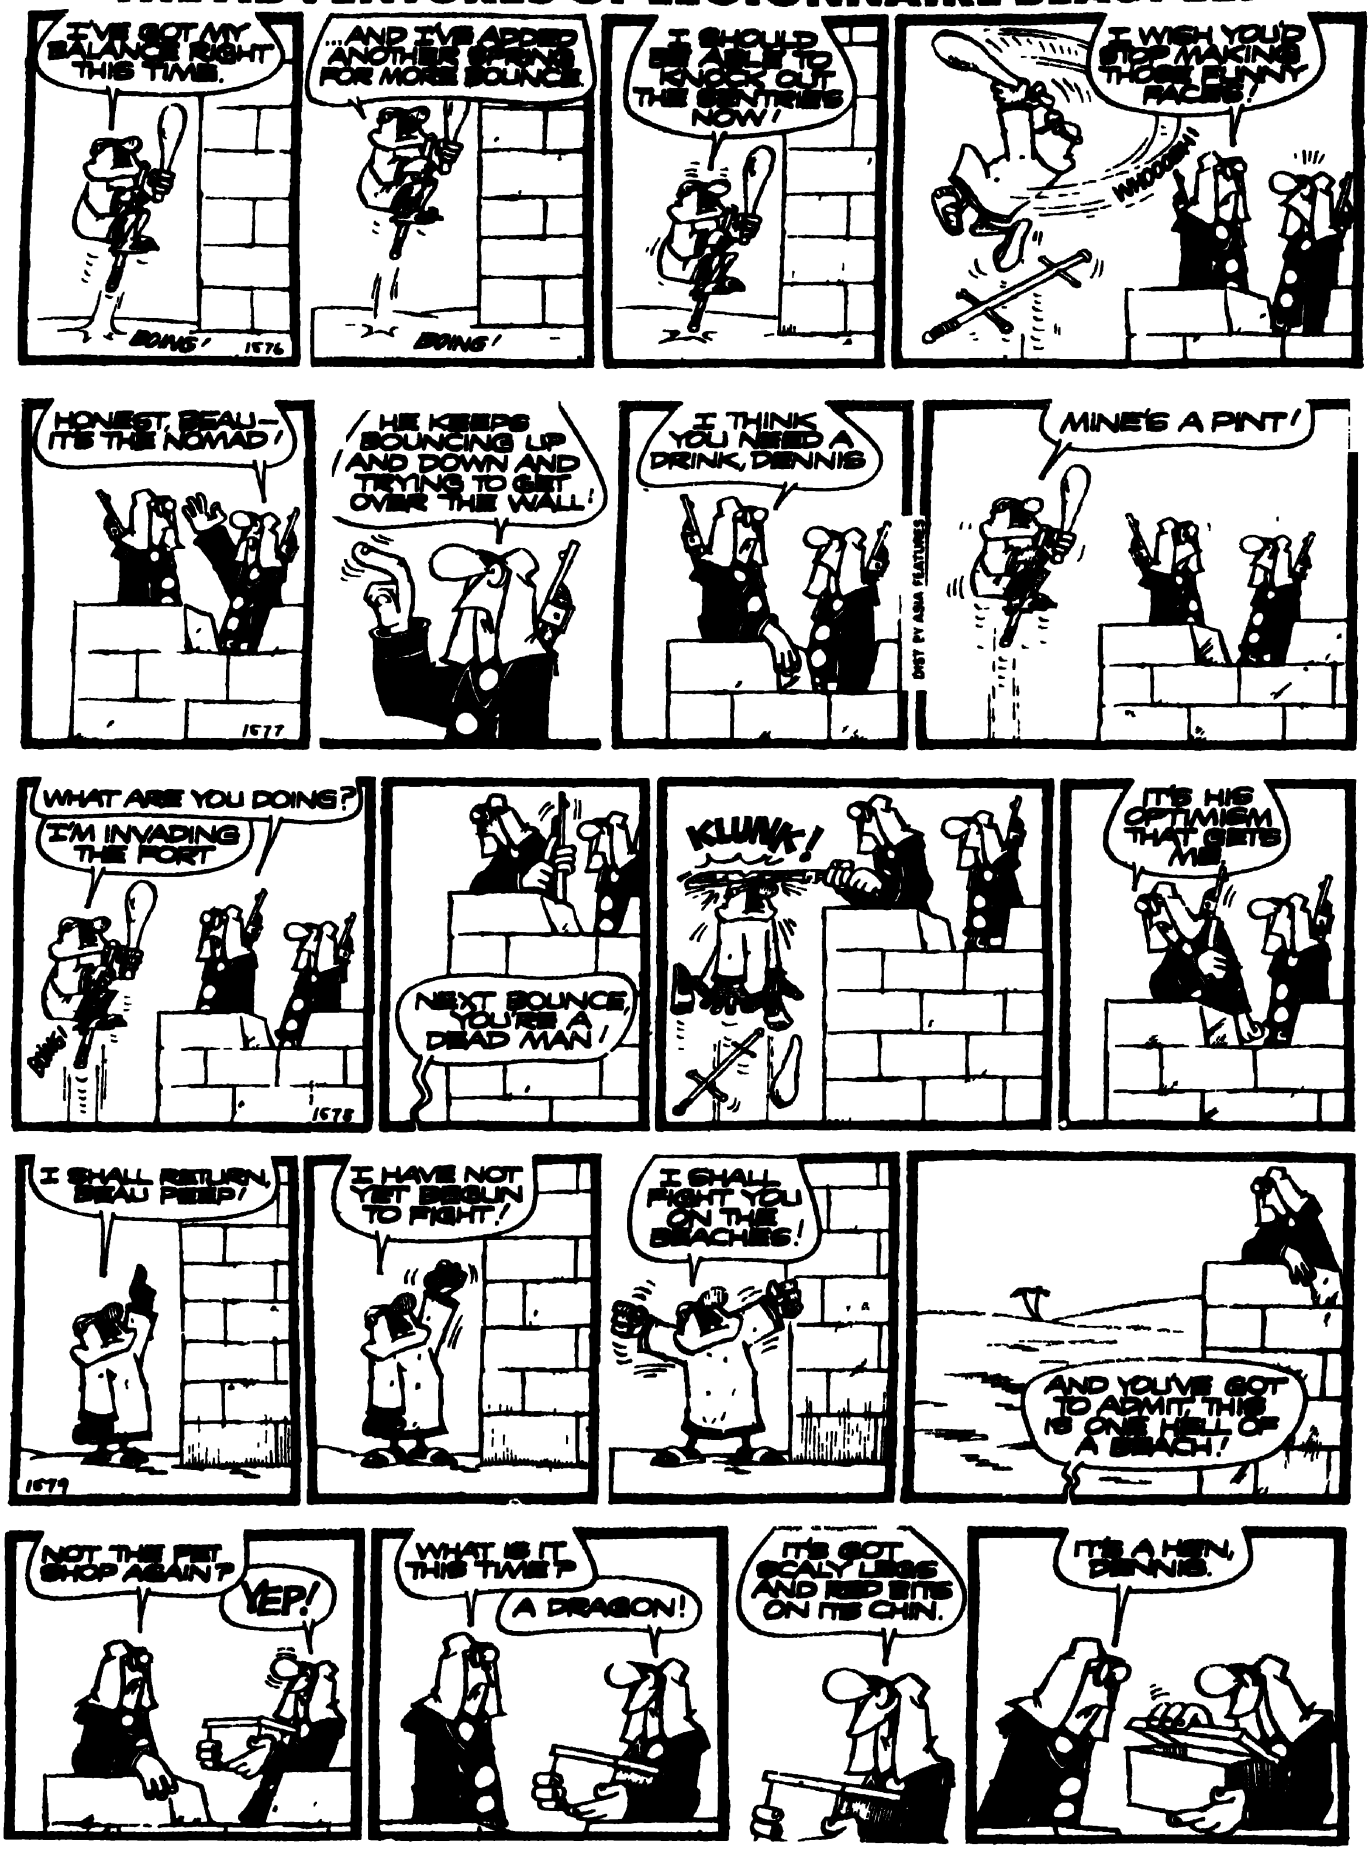


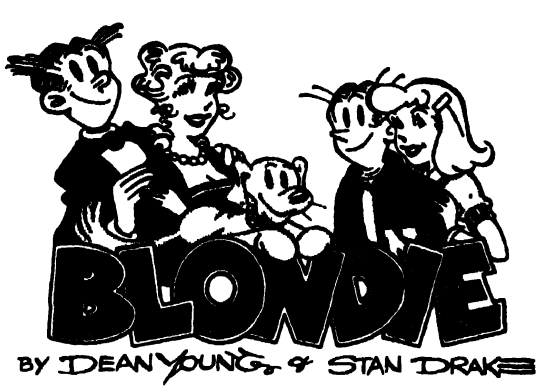
"I'LL TELL YOU WHERE I WAS LAST NIGHT IF YOU TELL ME WHERE WE ARE NOW"

©1986 Wm. HOEST ENTERPRISES, Inc. Distributed by King Features Syndicate

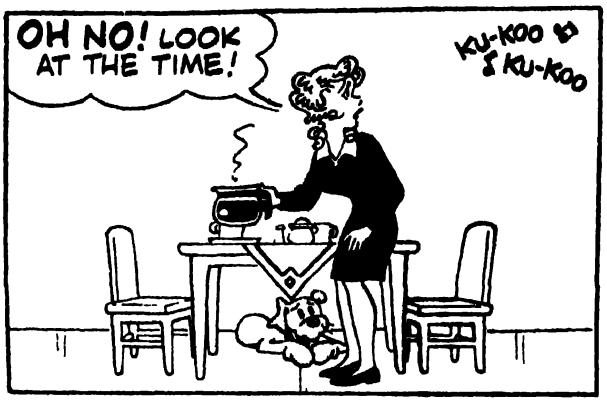


"LEROY'S A REAL DO-IT-YOURSELF MAN WHEN I ASK HIM FOR HELP, HE SAYS,'DO IT YOURSELF'"

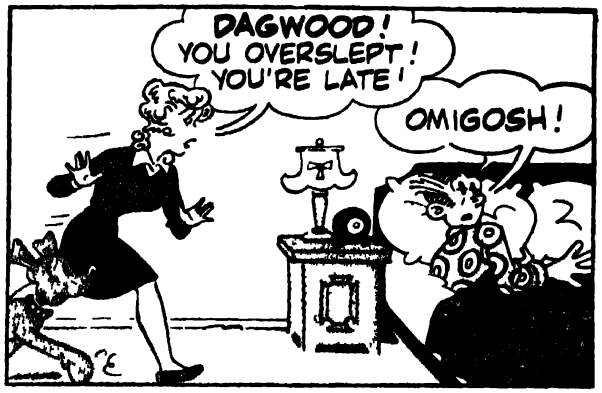


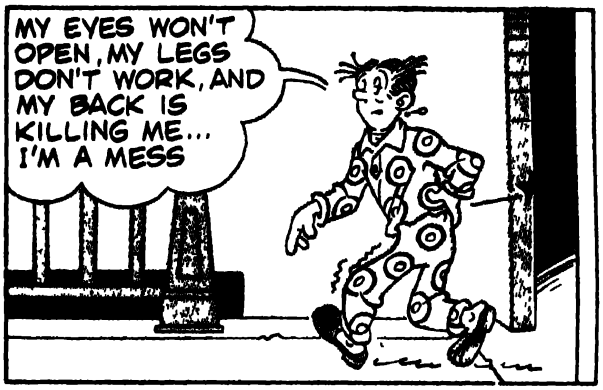


"I DON'T KNOW WHY YOUR HEAD SHOULD HURT, LEROY YOU CERTAINLY WEREN'T USING IT LAST NIGHT"

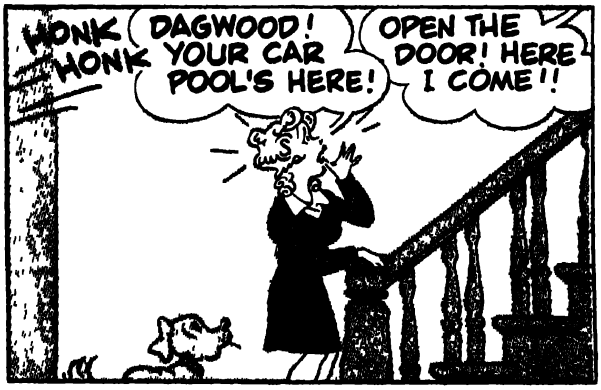


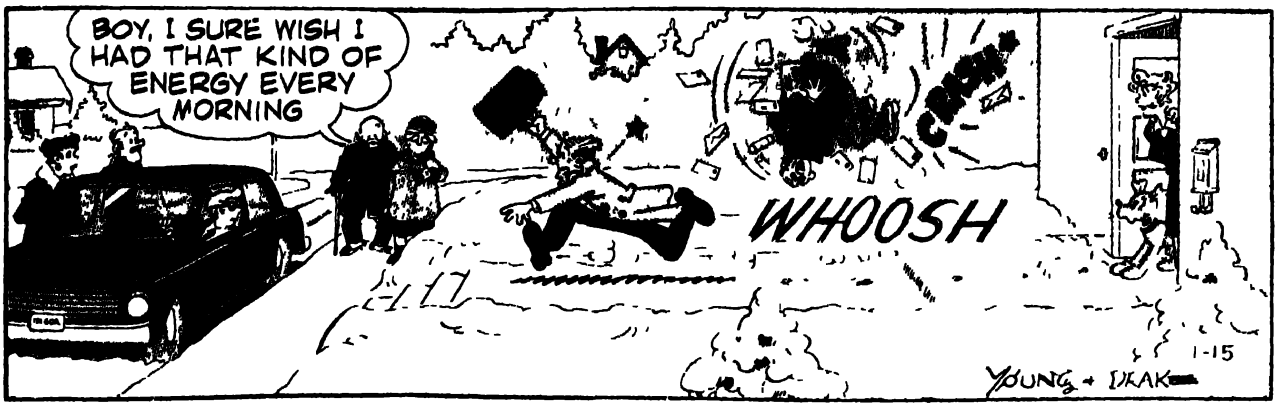
GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS





THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP





© 1995 by King Features Syndicate Inc World rights reserved

RAINBOW

THE FACES OF CO

OUR

Basanta Utsab, as only Santiniketan can celebrate it
Soumitra Sinha joins in the revelry with his camera*

TRIBUTE

ese poems of Shakti Chattopadhyay were translated from Bengali by Jayanta Mahapatra a few months before the poet's passing away at Santiniketan on March 23

Shakti Chattopadhyay

In the Colourful Arena of North Bengal

In the grip of webs of leaf and vine stands the two storeyed
bungalow and inside it,
who can tell who is the watcher,
who is being watched?
In the vast expanse of the distant jungle, man comes to sit in silence in the veranda's lap— -
to witness something the movements of an animal at liberty, sits on patiently to observe, the moon above his head,
the snare of salt laid across the grazing grounds,
in case some wild animal appears,
sees the salt
man has spread out, comes to nibble at the grain,
molasses and chickpea branches man owns —
Eagerly the watcher waits, but no one comes his way
Only some birds appear, calling out to one another,
leaving at dusk,
And all night long lies the jungle
swathed
in a sheet of dew, nothing else,
only the wide awake moon,
simply a tame snare is this dak
bungalow of Gorumara
Where man is prisoner, keen as man is to come here
Where malevolent eyes watch man from the dense jungle depths—
What a game of opposites goes on in the arena of North Bengal!

'ainful for Me to Walk the Road

Painful for me to walk the road, I sit down by the wayside
Like a dry leaf I lie beneath the tree's depths

Like a mere leaf, enduring pain, at the hands of the wind
Without a fear that I might fly off, or be burnt

Painful for me to walk the road, so
I sit down by the wayside

Lying like a mound or a longunstirred stone
Neither foolish nor an adornment, simply a rock without care

Not a useful stone, forsaking work, it lies on the road
But not right in the middle, a little to a side
Beneath the tree's deeps it lies like an abandoned stone

Painful for me to walk the road, so
I sit down by the wayside

In These Last Days

Hunger gnaws at the heart, after so long--
Wasn't the house habitable all this while?

Hunger gnaws at the heart, after so long a time

Here begins the day, the darkness
ends—

And you were here, inside and out, always

Here begins the day, the darkness
ends!

This last day too, floats the ash of love—
Lost and scattered once, how it is here beside?

This last day too, floats the ash of love!

You Have No Fear of Grief

You have no fear of grief, none at all, it loves you too
Do you ever fear the thought of love? Do you fear happiness too?
If noteworthiness takes one to the seashore
Do you have cause for fear? Is there joy there?

Rows of trees line the shore, there,
under the prostrate shadows
If you just sit down once, aping the stillness of stone,
Then, too, are you in fear? Is fear everywhere!
I find other meanings from your ignorant fear

I Just Want to Live

The riverbanks slip into the water,
the river grows wider,
on either side its swollen savage flow naws at man's dwellings, upsetting households--
The water swirls past, tearing down the banks,
flooding fields, felling trees flat,
from the islands in the river innumerable birds plunge into the skies -
I want salvation, I want to live, to go on living,
Only to live, among the constant ups and downs
of death, I want to live, just to go on living

I Stand with Hands Outstretched

A man stands alone with hands outstretched
in fields of golden corn,
his hands outstretched,

standing all day
in fields of golden corn

Mother Earth, fulfil our needs, he says
among these fields stretching end to end,
standing all alone
And his empty hands are slowly filled—

Owing to pressure on space, Jiggs Kalra's column has been withheld— Editor

SHA[illegible]D PAWAR, in or out of pow[illegible]ctains his imperiousness Th[illegible]n who would be king, or e[illegible]etter, a Prime Minister, has [illegible] been unseated by the saffron [illegible]e. But his opponents know [illegible]t the former defence minister [illegible]nd Maharashtra chief minister cannot do without power. And he is wily enough to wait and watch and topple just by not doing anything.

What is your idea of perfect happiness?
I feel very happy if I start a project and see that it has been executed well I like to see my irrigation projects completed well and see greenery as a result The happiness of villagers after the execution of my rural projects makes me happy
What is your greatest fear?
Communal hatred I fear it because of its impact on society Because hatred not only weakens society, it also destroys a nation
Who or what has been the greatest influence in your life?
My mother She had great vision She was courageous and could tackle any situation She was very progressive I have learnt everything from her
What do you dislike most in others?
Laziness
What do you dislike most in yourself?
I compromise I try to keep people happy and hurt myself because of this
What is your most precious possession?
My daughter, Supriya
What objects do you always carry?
Nothing
What makes you most depressed?
Women being mistreated by men — specially young girls And women being mistreated in society
What do you dislike most on your appearance?
I have never thought about this
What is your favourite word?
No particular word
What is your favourite journey?
I love travelling I love meeting people during my travel and chatting with them So there is no particular journey — I like all journeys
What is your favourite dream?
To see India as one of the most progressive, modern nations in the world It has enormous potential for this, enough natural resources, rich mineral wealth, land is rich What the country needs is good managers
What is your nightmare?
Nothing

On what occasions do you lie?

I lie when I know that it is good for the people. Immediately after the bomb blast when I was the chief minister, I had to make a public announcement. I knew there were 12 sites of bomb blasts. But I lied that there were 13, and included the Masjid area, too, so that there were no communal riots because of the blast

What or who is the greatest love of your life?
My mother and my daughter
What is your source of sustenance?
[No reply]
On what occasions do you lie?
I lie when I know that it is good for the people Immediately after the bomb blast when I was the chief minister, I had to make a public announcement I knew there were 12 sites of bomb blasts But I lied that there were 13, and included the Masjid area, too, so that there were no communal riots because of the blast And though I knew about Pakistan's involvement, I had made a statement implying that it was LTTE handiwork, because I did not want riots and did not want Muslims to be targeted
What is your greatest regret?
Nothing
What has been your happiest moment?
There have been so many
What brings tears to your eyes?
As I have said, women being mistreated
How do you relax?
By chit-chatting with people who do not discuss politics
What do you envy most in others?
Nothing
How would you like to be remembered?
As somebody who helped to make Indians win respect from the rest of the world.
How would you like to die?
I never thought about it But I would like to die in my sleep

Should I bake a cake for Priya's birthday?

Are you crazy?

Have you forgotten the fiasco when we invited the Sharmas? You took great pains to get it right and finally the cake turned out burnt and flat

I didn't have Brown & Polson Cake Mix then

Listen. Just buy the cake from the cake shop

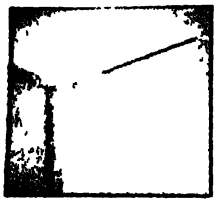
I don't need to. The other day I tried Chocolate Cake with Brown & Polson Cake Mix. Kids loved it.

Beginner's luck, I guess

I tried Vanilla Cake too. Twice. It was so soft and fluffy.

You mean, you'll get it right ten times out of ten?

Precisely. Brown & Polson Cake Mix takes the uncertainties out of baking. I just have to add three eggs with butter or margarine and whisk it. Everything else is pre-mixed in the right proportion. Even the baking powder. No tension. No niggling doubts. I simply can't go wrong.



You're sure we won't cut a sorry figure?

No silly, we'll just cut a perfect cake.

A perfect cake everytime you bake.

Presenting the new Cold Gold Deluxe

The ideal combination with an accent on utility.

The only 165 lt refrigerator in its class with a soft look and all white interiors. From the flush recessed door handle to the crystal clear vegetable and butter trays, this refrigerator says it all in terms of style. Besides sporting a whole new host of flexible features like the new shelf-flap that can be raised to create room for additional bottles. Or even a tall jug. A snugger. Which holds your bottles in place. So they don't shake or tumble when you close the door.

There's even an extra mini-shelf on the door to hold small items. Or the odd chocolates.

Soft looks.
All white interiors.
And very, very flexible.

And the moisture control. Which lets you adjust the moisture level in your vegetable crisper. So vegetables stay fresh longer.

Plus adjustable shelves that let you design the interiors of your Cold Gold Deluxe. The way you want it.

What's more, all this comes with the advantages of PUF.

The new Cold Gold Deluxe from Godrej.

Any way you look at it, it's a winner.

Godrej REFRIGERATORS

THE PROMISE OF GOOD LIVING

COLD GOLD Deluxe

THE FLEXIBLE REFRIGERATOR

The Telegraph

16 APRIL 1995

POST MORTEM

Lyrical Legend

■ The tribute to Sahir Ludhianvi on his 75th birth anniversary was engrossing ('Timeless' March 12)

This and an earlier cover story on Majrooh Sultanpuri ('The Metier of Majrooh', July 24) afforded us a journey into the romantic and magical world of Hindi lyrics

The likes of Hasrat Jaipuri, Shakeel Badayuni and Shailendra would be misplaced in today's world of rapid commercialisation of Hindi film music where "choli ke peechhey" and such other risque lyrics rule the roast

The difference between the two genres of creativity is obviously a matter of values and taste, one pursues beauty in one's verses, the other money

Sahir's Jo baat tujh mein hai from that all-time hit, Taj Mahal, remains as admired and beautiful as the exquisite monument itself The film, Barsaat Ki Raat, contains another of Sahir's jewels, Zindagibhar nahin bhulegi

It is surprising the Dada Saheb Phalke Award committee has overlooked this lyrical giant, after whose passing away in 1980, Bombay is still struggling to find a poet of his sensitivity

Sukla Das,
Jamshedpur

Sahir Ludhianvi Soul-stirring verses

■ Sahir's brilliant verses coupled with Sachin Dev Burman's lilting music made Guru Dutt's Pyaasa a runaway success All of Sahir's poetry has been converted into popular Hindi film songs

Can we find another lyricist of Ludhianvi's calibre in today's Bombay?

B N Bose,
Calcutta

■ The charm of Sahir's poetry is eternal His verses talk of social exploitation, the rich tyrannising the poor and love for mankind He is obviously being very cynical when he says, Yeh murda paruston ki duniya/Yeh duniya agar mil bhi jaye to kya hai

Extremely secular in his vision, he loved and respected all religions

It is a pity we do not have him among us any more

Javed Nehal Quraishi,
Calcutta

■ Sahir Ludhianvi was the only lyricist in the film industry to whom credit would be given without reservation for the success of a song, and not to the music director, as is the wont

Rebellion was in his blood As a human being he revolted against the set order and as an artiste he spurned the system of the lyricist working on the dictates of the music director

His rebellious nature is visible in some of his early poems like Ik shahenshah ne daulat ka sahara leka/Hum garibon ki mohabbat ka udaya hai mazaaq

Neeraj Anand,
Deoghar (Bihar)

Big Betrayal

■ I fail to understand how a writer like Shobha De, whose only claim to fame is a couple of cheap, pornographic novels, can get featured on the cover of the Magazine with such monotonous regularity

Devraj Chakravorty,
Calcutta

Give Us a Hand

■ According to Cheiro, a human being can live 110 years on this planet With Morarji Desai completing 100 years, the Magazine could publish his palm impression as it would be an interesting study for all palmists

B N Roy,
Calcutta

PAGE 4

ONE BEAUTIFUL face is reason enough, two beautiful faces are a fait accompli And what if they are sisters, too? Presenting the rage of today, Meghna Reddy, who was actually under scored as this year's Miss India (she didn't enter finally) And older sister Sushama, already being touted as the face of 1995

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
18 RUSKIN BOND
20 GILLIAN WRIGHT
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
26 PINUP
27 IN
28 RASOI
30 FIRST PERSON

Is she religious? "No, only grateful." Not surprising, considering her success story is something any other girl would give her eye-teeth for. Fifteen months ago, she walked into the office of model coordinator Sangeeta Chopra to try her luck and walked out with an offer to do a fashion show in Delhi along with 30 top models, including Mehr Jesia, Madhu Sapre and Namrata Shirodkar.

"I knew nothing about modelling — how to put on lashes, how to walk on the ramp," she remembers.

But, perhaps, she was a natural, for during that show itself she was booked for the Shalimar Paints and the Ravi Bajaj-Suneet Verma show. "Later I was booked for Ensemble, then for Glitterati," she says.

But while things seemed to be really looking up professionally, at home it was not all smooth sailing. "My father, a conservative south Indian businessman, didn't speak to me for three months! But my mother was very supportive because she feels every woman should be independent and should make her own money."

But he gradually came round to the idea and today is as proud as any papa could be about her success.

When Mangta Hai happened, Meghana was not too sure she wanted to take it up. "Channel V wanted a sophisticated, poised model to compere this requests show, so they went to an agency and picked up 12 models, including me. They had a script which we were supposed to follow, but while I can understand it today, at that time it seemed quite wacky and a lot of rubbish."

So she started mumbling her own thing instead. "I spoke of someone's T-shirt and someone's nose and, perhaps, they found me different, so they selected me," she laughs. In any case, she says, Mangta Hai is a programme where "you don't act but just have fun. We ad-lib most of the time. Now, however, we are concentrating on the letters, which is what the programme is all about."

She might be doing some other programme with Star TV or Channel V in the near future but 'nothing has been finalised yet'. "Whether I can do it will depend on what kind of programme it is. When I started doing television, people asked me why I was branching off so early. But I'm still modelling. A model's life is short and I want to enjoy myself as much as I can while it lasts," she says sagely. "I also want to make a lot of money now so I can fulfill my ambitions later."

The ambitions being "doing something behind-the-scenes for television, maybe something pre- or post-production or something creative, though I am not quite sure what it will be at this point of time. But television is what I want to get into, finally, because there is a massive market in India which is being tapped. Perhaps, if I'm around on television for four years I will learn enough to make my own programmes."

This will be "something different — perhaps, a programme on fashion, but nothing formatted, something that would let me be flexible."

She sounds like a girl with her head screwed right on to her shoulders, her decisions made, though she is quick to stress that whatever she says now is "how I feel at this point of time". "For all you know, I might just give up and become a kindergarten teacher."

Adding, "I used to think that when I have my babies -- girls, within two years of each other -- I would start a day-care centre combined with kindergarten teaching, because I can't imagine leaving my children alone until they are six or seven. Now I don't know what will happen, but I still might do it."

As of now, there are quite a few top modelling commitments keeping her hands full — the Vimal campaign, the Trupti Aaj ki nari campaign "for which they shot me in jeans, a bodysuit and an apron in the kitchen and in an off-shoulder mini blouse in the office," and the Peach Schnapps ad for Smirnoff.

So busy is she that she even gave the Femina Miss India contest a miss earlier this year after having been touted as the star candidate. "It was a last-minute decision as I had too many contractual obligations," she explains, adding that she can always contest next year.

Acting, however, is one field she would rather steer clear of, "though I am good at dramatics". "But I wouldn't like to do Hindi films the way they are now. I get offers for Hindi films everyday. Just yesterday someone called up with an offer for a film opposite Shah Rukh Khan. I'm sure that's just crap."

A "really beautiful" art film, however, might just make her change her mind. "Or maybe I'll get married in a couple of years and retire." Then, on a more serious note, she adds, "But I wouldn't get married before I'm 25. That would be unfair to me, to him and to my work. I would be neither here nor there."

On the personal front, she says, she has lost a lot of friends to work, "though I know they are still there for me" "Earlier, I would just get together with friends, party and have a good time But now, after a day of hard work, I want to come back home and be alone I simply don't have the energy to party I don't speak to my best friend for months I would rather just go for dinner and go to bed "

'I wouldn't like to do Hindi films the way they are now. I get offers everyday. Just yesterday someone called up with an offer for a film opposite Shah Rukh Khan. I'm sure that's just crap'

She recalls the days when she was "quite a couch potato" "If a friend called up during a television program me, I would ask her/him to call back during the commercial " she says But now, by the time she gets back from work, it is so late that she can't catch any of her favourites like Sherlock Holmes and courtroom dramas

"But I have been regularly following the O J Simpson trial,' she says adding that she once wanted to become a criminal lawyer "I read a lot too- courtroom cases, psychology, murder mysteries My childhood dream was to become a cat burglar I would plot the perfect robbery and the perfect murder," she laughs

She doesn't find much time to watch films and listen to music, though she does try to catch up on some Tamil music -- "A R Rahman is brilliant" -- and an occasional south Indian art film

And she watches commericals "to check out what could have been done, what has been done, and the little glitches"

She is also very critical about her own work "To date I have liked only two of the pictures I have shot, and I have shot quite a few After a shot, even if the director says I was good, I feel like doing it again and again because I'm never quite satisfied When I see myself on TV I think, this is what I should have done "

As a person, she feels, she has changed since she started working "I've been conned by people but I've also met some wonderful people who've taught me about work and life I was 18 when I started working, and very protected at home Suddenly, I found myself dealing with all my work - my taxes, my contracts, my legal papers, my payments, my dealings And it has helped me learn I have been meeting so many strange people and seeing different cultures I've been all over India after I started working and I've got to see,a lot of Indian culture which I never really bothered about earlier, living in Bombay It has been a learning experience "

Susha ma, a knock-out model herself and the 'face of 95', is also the elder of the Reddy sisters

Sha ma hates comparisons, particularly when they are drawn between herself and her little sister Meghana "People are always talking about who is better looking between the two of us, who is a better model, how different we are and what not," she says with an eloquent shudder "Tell me, how does it matter?"

It certainly does not matter to this soft spoken 22-year-old who makes it clear that she is not in competition with her sister and vice versa "Even today, after completing a year in modelling and with about 50 campaigns behind me, I don't see myself as a professional model," says Susha ma who "never thought in a million years" she would become a model

"I had finished my BA and was looking around for a job but nothing good came my way I was also trying to get into management, but for two years it eluded me So there I was, with a lot of free time on my hands and nothing to do, when Meghana, who was already into modelling, suggested that I try a hand at it, too

"My family found it a bit of a joke because I was a little plump to be a model," she says "Also, I was considered too academic to take up something like modelling " But yoga and aerobics took care of the first problem — she worked out "like a maniac" and shed 10 kgs - while her determination saw her over the other

"My first shoot was for La Mode I was ready to cry halfway through!" she remembers But immediately after she was lapped up for quite a few prestigious assignments Last month, Mid-Day declared her the Face of 95 — a business she describes as "much ado about nothing"

Despite her success in the field, however, she is quite firm that she would not like to take up modelling as a full-time profession "I like doing creative things and as a model you can not be creative beyond a certain point Striking the same pose again and again can become quite repetitive," she says "Also, to be a professional model, you have to do the ramp and designerwork whereas I have so far restricted myself to press and film "

She prefers doing ad films because she finds more scope for creativity in them "I am more comfortable with films because there is continuity and

'There is nothing wrong with them, but I don't think one can be very natural in Hindi formula films. I can visualise myself doing a film like Roja which is realistic, but not something like Mohra where you are jiggling and giggling all the time' movement there and you can be yourself," she says. "I enjoy acting in films, whether I'm playing a hip girl, a housewife or a mother.

"In press ads, on the other hand, you are just posing all the time I can never really work at it Meghana works like a maniac, though She practises and rehearses all the time and tries to improvise"

Indeed, Meghana is one of her role models, "without any bias", along with Malaika Arora whom she finds "a superb model who makes the most of what she has" and, "to a certain extent", Aishwarya Rai

"A model's life is very hectic," says Sushama, "and I get very angry when people wag fingers at them It's not an easy job A model deserves every penny she gets—she is paid for patience, tolerance, a lot of stamina and a little bit of creative talent You might get your makeup done at six in the morning and you might get your first shot at one in the afternoon Tempers run high when deadlines are not met and you need a lot of tolerance too," she says

Sushama's own notable ad campaigns so far include Wills, Ponds Dreamflower, Cerelac, Trupti, Co-optex and Indian Rayon (yet to appear) "I don't feel I should do only glamorous campaigns," she says with a practicality surprising in someone so young "There are only so many glamorous campaigns and a lot of girls wanting to do them On the other hand, there are a lot of ads for household products and nobody wants to do them because they're worried about their image But household ads can pay you upto twice the money that glamorous ads fetch I try to strike a balance between the two"

At the moment she is not doing any modelling assignments because her MA exams are round the corner and she also has her hands full with an acupuncture course "Practising acupuncture is my childhood dream and maybe I will do it someday," she says "I simply love holistic medicine and I feel acupuncture is very creative and interesting I am learning it from a Japanese teacher and while it is a very long, slow process, I am determined to see it through"

After beginning to learn acupuncture she has changed her lifestyle completely to adhere to its teachings—she has converted herself into a vegetarian ("a big problem" in a pucca non-veg family), has become a maniac about regular sleeping hours, and has given up milk products completely .

"As a child I wanted to study medicine," says Sushama who did brilliantly throughout her school and college years. "I even did my HSC with science, but after that I went to California and practicality took over dreams I realised I did not have a medical background as both my parents were not into medicine Also, I would have liked to practise abroad, but they do not allow more than a certain quota of students to come in every year So I decided to get into commerce instead"

She later found that commerce had been a wrong choice and returned to India where she took up arts Today she is quite happy with her decision "Modelling, economics and acupuncture are totally diverse, but each is very interesting by itself"

She has received offers for compering Hindi programmes, but has not taken up anything as "I am not very comfortable with my Hindi" However, she would love to compere a programme like Mangta Hai if it came her way "What is wonderful about Mangta Hai is that it allows Meghana to be exactly the way she is in real life It is a good forum for her to express herself," she says

But one thing she is quite certain she would not like to do is participate in a beauty contest "It makes no sense to me What do you do after becoming Miss India? Every year won't produce a Sushmita Sen or Aishwarya Rai I would rather participate in the Ford or Elite Supermodel contest and perhaps I will next year But before that I will prepare thoroughly When you participate in an international-level contest, you have to make sure you come up to their level or else you will not stand a chance A little extra fat here or there just will not do"

Hindi films are out for the moment at least "There is nothing wrong with them, but I don't think one can be very natural in Hindi formula films I can

MODEL SISTERS

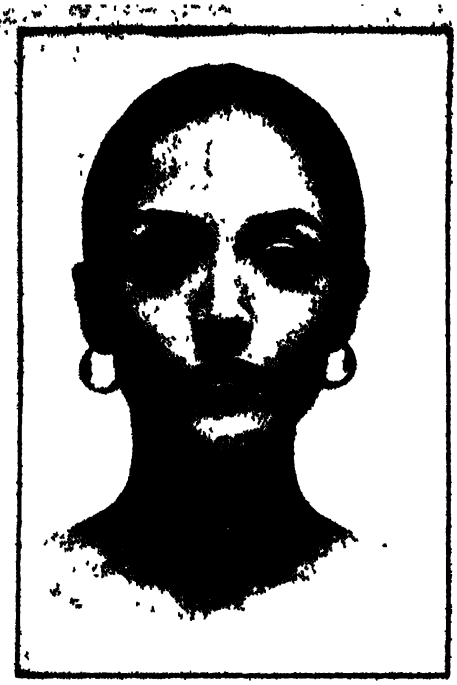
Like the Reddys, the Arora sisters, Malaika and Amrita, are creating ripples in the modelling world

Malaika Arora may have hit the headlines with the controversial ad for MR Coffee, but there certainly is a lot more to this 19-year-old than the ability to sizzle, as modelling professionals will agree.

"Fashion expert Meher Castelino, for whom Malaika did her first shoot, is full of praise for Malaika who, she says, "is fabulous in front of the camera". She adds, "Malaika also has a very good figure and gets into the mood of the outfit and photograph easily." In fact, she points out, Malaika is "truly a photographer's and designer's dream".

Indeed, for one who has been in the profession for just a year and a half, Malaika has certainly hit big time with such prestigious campaigns as Roopam, MRF Tyres, Thums Up and Pierre Cardin and others like Mafatlal, Palmolive, Shyam A and Panasonic come

"I certainly don't regret doing the MR Coffee ad," says Malaika who entered the modelling world after Society magazine declared her the 'Face of the Year'. "It was just a case of so much being made out of nothing. At that time everyone would say that now that she's done something so controversial, she will not be able to carry off another kind of product. But for me it was just another ad and it made no difference to my career whatsoever."



She is now studying psychology from Jai Hind college and regrets that she cannot give it as much attention as she would like to "because work takes up so much of my time". "But I would really like to finish my BA," she adds.

In the future she might join up with little sister Amrita, now also a model, to open a boutique "because no one can remain in the modelling profession for ever" "Also, I love the world of glamour and would like to do something related to it."

Amrita

Malaika

Meanwhile Amrita, who was recently one of the choices for Mid-Day's 'Face of 95', has found her way into the modelling world with such lucrative assignments as BPL TV and Whisper sanitary napkins.

"My mother has many friends in the advertising world and Malaika and I were always being asked, even as children, to model We would keep getting offers and after a while you decide to take something up," says Amrita who, as a child, did a couple of modelling assignments.

This apart, she has other achievements in the world of glamour, having been a compere on programmes such as Videocon Housefull and Gulaxan. She has modelled for Pepsi and Ravalgaon sweets and has "also done a bit of the ramp — three shows so far, to be precise," she says. When a helping hand is needed, big sister Malaika is always there to lend it

Having just given her 12th standard examinations in arts, this practical girl is now planning to go into fashion designing because "that is a line I would really love to get into". She is keeping her fingers crossed as she awaits her results which will determine if she can pursue her dream.

Says Castelino about this 17-year-old: "Amrita has a lot of potential. She's young and enthusiastic and poses very well. She has a lot of life in front of the camera."

visualise myself doing a film like Roja which is realistic, but not something like Mohra where you are jiggling and giggling all the time "

But she is quick to add that she admires those who do Hindi films "In modelling itself you need so much stamina, and to make a film over several months you must really need a lot of stamina " She has received offers to act in films, but does not want to take up anything now. "There is no point in doing something unless you are interested in it But if ever I set my mind on doing a film, I just might do it "

She doesn't much like watching Hindi films either, "but I do watch some English films I like sitcoms, action movies like True Lies, horror, comedy " She reads a lot, specially non-fiction "I read science magazines, criminal novels, cosmetology, astronomy The only fiction I read is Sherlock Holmes "

Her taste in music is wide and varied She loves Indian music, but draws the line at heavy metal and rave which "makes me feel drunk without even having a sip of alcohol Besides, acupuncture says bang-bang music is not good for the body "

Her busy schedule leaves her with hardly any time to socialise — something she admits she used to love doing in the past "I used to get together with friends and chat for ages But now I find I don't even have the energy to make a call when I come back after a busy day," she says "My friends have started calling me a sadhvi because of my strict regimen,' she laughs

Then, on a serious note she adds, "Actually I am a stuck case — neither totally conservative nor very liberal I usually get one big plan going, then I let go I don't know if I should do what my parents say, get married, or do my own thing, be wild, travel I would love to travel

"Sometimes I feel maybe it's practical to be all-Indian and do the right thing At other times I feel we lack the individualism they have abroad where everyone does what he damn well feels like doing I don't know where I stand Maybe I'll find out soon " ■

'Actually I am a stuck case — neither totally conservative nor very liberal.... Sometimes I feel maybe it's practical to be all-Indian and do the right thing. At other times I feel we lack the individualism they have abroad where everyone does what he damn well feels like doing'

EXTRACT

Little LAL

Extracted from Lal Bahadur Shastri Prime Minister of India (1964-1966), A Life of Truth in Politics* by C.P. Srivastava; Oxford University Press; Rs 495

BY C. P. SRIVASTAVA

A few days after Lal Bahadur's birth his mother returned with both her children to her husband's home in Allahabad One day, when Lal Bahadur was just a month old, his mother went to a mela—a fair on the banks of the Ganga (Ganges) She was carrying the child in her arms when she was suddenly pushed by the surging crowd, and Lal Bahadur fell out of her hands, disappearing in the confusion and bustle She tried her best to find the child but did not succeed The loss was reported to the police and, as if by a miracle, Lal Bahadur was shortly recovered from the hut of a cowherd in a neighbouring village and restored to his distraught parents I al Bahadur had fallen into the basket of a cowherd who had believed that the Almighty and the sacred river, Mother Ganga, had granted his fervent prayers for a son When the police explained the facts, the cowherd and his wife readily, though sadly, agreed to part with the child

In 1906, when Lal Bahadur was just 18 months old, his father suddenly died of the plague The breadwinner of the family was gone, leaving a young widow of 23 with two small children, one 18 months old and the other five Sharda Prasad, whose selection for the post of naib tahsildar, a subordinate executive position, had just been announced, left neither money nor property It was a disastrous situation for Ram Dulari Devi and her two children Normally, in keeping with the traditions of Hindu families, Sharda Prasad's father, Babu Nandan Lal, should have immediately gone to Allahabad and brought the distressed family to his house But that did not happen Babu Nandan Lal's second wife was Sharada Prasad's stepmother. She had no love for Sharada Prasad or his family and firmly declined to provide any succour whatsoever

★★★★

In the family of Munshi Hazari Lal and Munshi Darbari Lal, it was customary to initiate the education of a child under the personal charge and care of a maulvi, a learned man of the Muslim faith Initially, children had to learn Urdu, and the initiation into learning was quite a ceremony in itself When Lal Bahadur was four years of age his initiation—or, as it was called then, his Bismillah ceremony—was performed by Maulvi Budhan Mian of the neighbouring village of Padhza Under Maulvi Shaheb's tutelage, Lal Bahadur learnt not only Urdu but also tahseeb, a combination of social etiquette and cosmopolitan culture Thus was the first external formative influence on him and he imbibed everything that was given to him assiduously He developed a great interest in Urdu literature, especially Urdu poetry As we shall see later, one of Mirza Ghalib's poems became his lifetime favourite Maulvi Budhan Mian was a respected teacher in the Railway Boys' School, Moghalsarai, where Lal Bahadur studied up to Class VI

Lal Bahadur's childhood until the age of 12 was spent in Moghalsarai, with occasional visits to Mirzapur. During this period the care and affection from his mother and his maternal family—grandmother, grandfather and uncles—allowed him to pursue his education much as any other child of the family would have done. The passing away of his father did not therefore seriously affect his development, nor cause him serious mental stress.

There are three incidents from this period of his childhood which bring out certain innate qualities in Lal Bahadur's character. One summer evening, Lal Bahadur and his maternal uncle Lallan Mama went out for a stroll in Mirzapur. Near the bank of the Ganga they saw an old man with a loaded basket on his head, passing by. Lal Bahadur asked the old man what he was carrying in his basket. The old man stopped, put down the basket and answered the question "I have very nice mangoes. Here is one for you and another for your companion Taste it. You will like it Since it is evevning time and I would like to sell some of these before getting home, I'll sell you a 100 mangoes for just one anna" (one anna was then one-sixteenth of a rupee It consisted of four paisas)

Lal Bahadur and Lallan Mama tasted the mango it was delicious Lal Bahadur looked at Lallan Mama, who nodded approval They pooled their resources, two paisas each, and Lal Bahadur gave the money to the old man, who began to set apart and count the mangoes When he reached 50, Lal Bahadur intervened and told the man not to take out more The old man was puzzled He said "My boy, you've given me an anna and I have to give you another 50 mangoes to make up the 100 " Lal Bahadur replied "The money is yours Actually we don't need more than 50 mangoes Thank you very much " The old man looked at Lal Bahadur in disbelief, put the basket with the remaining mangoes on his head, and slowly walked away All this time Lallan Mama, himself a little boy of about 10 and only four years senior to Lal Bahadur, was watching the proceedings without intervening When the old man was gone, he said "That was very foolish of you We paid for a 100 mangoes but you've taken only 50 " Lal Bahadur explained "You remember the old man saying he was prepared to sell a 100 mangoes for just one anna? It was a distress sale Why take advantage of such a situation? In any case, we don't really need more than 50 mangoes for the family " For all his youth, Lal Bahadur's innocent conviction was persuasive What was it that impelled a six-year-old child to act as he did? He had not received lessons to infuse in him this exceptional sense of fair play It is a reasonable inference that Lal Bahaddur had a highly developed conscience nurtured in invisible ways by a moral family environment, which had manifested itself spontaneously on this occasion

The second incident is an even better indication of that innate strength of moral will. Lal Bahadur's maternal uncle, Bindeshwari Prasad, the head of the family was very fond of

With wife, mother and youngest son Ashok

good food He was especially fond of pigeon meat, and to ensure ready availability, he had reared a number of birds in his Moghalsarai house At his sweet will he would select one, have it killed, cooked and served up for dinner One day the particular pigeon selected by him flew off and hid itself on the tiles of the roof Bindeshwari Prasad asked Lal Bahadur to climb the rooftop and report on the pigeon Lal Bahadur obeyed and, having sighted the pigeon, reported accordingly to Bindeshwari Prasad Bindeshwari Prasad asked the boy to catch the pigeon and bring it down Lal Bahadur remained sitting, quite downcast, and did not move he was a strict vegetarian The conversation between them then proceeded on the following lines

Bindeshwari Prasad Nanku, go and get the pigeon at once

Lal Bahadur No I won't

Bindeshwari Prasad Why not?

Lal Bahadur Because I know you will kill the pigeon and eat it up

Bindeshwari Prasad That's what pigeons are for Now go quick and get it.

Lal Bahadur No, I won't You will kill it

Bindeshwari Prasad Alright, go and get it I won't kill it

Lal Bahadur, still a child, thought he had won over Mama Bindeswari Prasad He jumped up, caught the pigeon and brought it down But of course Bindeshwari Prasad did not keep his word He had the pigeon killed and prepared for the pot Lal Bahadur was doubly aghast His Mama had broken his pledged word, and 'his' pigeon had lost its life His conscience was up in revolt What could he do? Bindeshwari Prasad was a strong-willed man and head of the family Little Lal Bahadur could not carry on arguing But he would not give up either Even at that tender age, he did not act hastily or impulsively After due thought, he decided to do what Mahatma Gandhi was to do years later when seeking redress for grave injustice He went on a hunger strike and abstained from food all day, resisting all persuasion by his mother and the others in the household Lal Bahadur, being much loved by all the ladies of the family, was joined in his brave protest and they too refused to eat Next morn ing Bindeshwari Prasad found himself facing the combined remonstrations of all the ladies of the house When they had had their say, Bindeshwari Prasad summoned Lal Bahadur and addressed him firmly "You ate nothing yesterday I am sure you are very hungry You will certainly eat something today" Lal Bahadur looked at his uncle respectfully and responded without giving in "No I won't," he said "Why did you kill the pigeon when you told me you wouldn't?"

Bindeshwari Prasad had no answer. "Nanku, you are right," he said finally "I should not have done what I did I promise you I will not kill pigeons any more In fact, I won't eat pigeons ever again In fact, I promise I will become a vegetarian" Bindeshwari Prasad kept his word This was Lal Bahadur's first exercise in Satyagraha

These two events were obviously of no public importance They were mere happenings within a family And yet they indicate the nascent moral will and an extraordinarily lively conscience which were to manifest themselves more remarkably in Shastri's public and political life

★★★★

(In Benares) Nishkameshwar Misra was a remarkable person Besides being a good teacher he was humane and extremely patriotic, taking great interest in his students He organised special outdoor excursions on Sundays and holidays for the benefit of his pupils these were voluntary, and those who participated had to pay an anna each to cover expenses on transport and food Misra's purpose was to inculcate a wider interest in surroundings — in architecture, specially historic monuments, and in flowers and gardens — as well as generate a spirit of comradeship and fellow feeling amongst them

Misra found Lal Bahadur the most intent, devoted and disciplined student in his class and so appointed him class monitor In this capacity, it was one of Lal Bahadur's duties to prepare a list of volunteers for the next picnic and collect the requisite contributions On one such occasion Misra noticed that Lal Bahadur had not included his own name on the list Taking the boy discreetly aside he asked why Lal Bahadur replied with candour "Because I cannot pay the contribution, sir I need the money for essentials in the house" "Include your name on the list," said Misra "I will pay the anna for you" Misra had understood Lal Bahadur's financial situation: he was living with his mausa (maternal uncle), in whose house he was provided with meals as a part of the family but no regular cash allowance

That evening, after the picnic tour, Misra took Lal Bahadur to his house, introduced him to his wife and asked her to treat the new arrival as another son At first the lady protested, saying they had enough children in the house already. But she soon took to him and bestowed upon him unstinting affection and hospitality Lal Bahadur became a regular visitor to the house and almost a part of Misra's family In return he asked to be tutor to one of the small children in the house Misra was well pleased with this arrangement Being sensitive, noble-minded and magnanimous, he decided that Lal Bahadur's work as a tutor needed to be recompensed not merely by kind words, affection and the occasional meal but also by regular remuneration Knowing that Lal Bahadur would not accept cash payments, he found a way out Every month he put some money in a savings box earmarked for Lal Bahadur Years later, when Lal Bahadur's sister was about to get married, Misra gave the whole sum which he had thus accumulated to Lal Bahadur's mother

★★★★

Lal Bahadur went home and explained to his uncle Raghunath Prasad and other elders in the family what had happened at the meeting, and indicated his intention to respond immediately to the call of Congress and Mahatma Gandhi by withdrawing from Harish Chandra High School, a government-aided institution Furthermore, he wanted to become a Congress volunteer for national service The news was received in the family with utter bewilderment With the exception of his mother, all were furious They told Lal Bahadur in no uncertain terms to behave with a sense of responsibility He had a duty to look after his mother If he discontinued his education at this stage, without obtaining even the first recognised qualification easily achievable within the next few months, how would he find work? What would become of his mother and unmarried sister? Was it not his prime dharma to look after his mother? He was reminded that after his father's death his mother had brought him up with love and care, while herself suffering all the rigours of penury It was now his turn to behave as a dutiful son Lal Bahadur listened to all this unperturbed He then turned questioningly to his mother, Ram Dulari Devi, to whom he was greatly devoted Her advice was generous and clear "Son," she said, "think deeply about the right course of action, then make up your mind and hold firmly to your decision"

Lal Bahadur followed his mother's words and they were to become the abiding principle of his life He thought deeply that night, listened to his own inner voice and made up his mind At that moment, he concluded, his supreme loyalty was to Mother India, his higher dharma was to serve his country, regardless of the sacrifice involved It was a decision which added one more to the many qualities he already possessed, namely the will to make a sacrifice, however large, in order to pursue what he had clearly perceived as the right course of action Next morning he withdrew his name from Harish Chandra High School and joined the Congress Party as a volunteer From that day on he became a devoted follower of Mahatma Gandhi and dedicated himself to the Mahatma's ethical principles of truth and non-violence

★★★★

Even at 18, Lal Bahadur was attracted to the idea of detachment as time passed, renunciation was to become an integral part of his being

It is generally believed that Lal Bahadur spent his childhood in abject poverty Fanciful stories are told about his having to swim across the Ganga everyday, books tied on his head, because he did not have money to pay the boat fare This daily swimming acrobatics is hardly within the realm of possibility Nor was it necessary Lal Bahadur lived close to his school and as it happened, on the same side of the river, a few 100 yards from the school He personally told me he had only once swum across the Ganga That was when he wanted to go to Ramnagar to see his ailing mother and had no money for the boat fare "Poverty is not an ornament to be exhibited," his headmaster had once said Lal Bahadur had accepted it as good advice He neither demonstrated his poverty nor talked about it During the entire period I worked with him, only once did I hear him refer to the subject Addressing a massive public meeting in Calcutta in October 1965 he told his audience "No one knows more about the pangs of poverty than I do." That was all he said ■

INNER EYE ❑ Bejan Daruwalla

Aries

March 21—April 20

Ganesha says, the full moon reactivates your interest in the house and a spot of renovation/decoration could involve the office/shop as well Around April 17, both good and bad things happen breaking the boredom A touch of romance could prove interesting

Taurus

April 21—May 20

Though you are on a slightly choppy, changeful sea, expect things and matters to right themselves for you This holds specially true for finances, bank balances, loans, investments, buying and selling It is absolutely certain that either you will be corresponding or inviting visitors

Gemini

May 21—June 20

While finances and family posers are absolutely important, you will meet quite a few interesting and sexy people A little care in relationships is advisable as you should not hurt or be hurt by your loved one Buying and selling are focalised Many of you will be in for ties

Cancer

June 21—July 20

Despite rough going, rest assured you will find enough work to keep busy Also, you may expect some good news You are advised to reach out to people and places, as contracts and assignments await you by doing so April 20-21 will be very newsy Health safeguards are a must

Leo

July 21—August 21

Better gird up your loins and get work done While it will be incomplete, at least a start will have been made Romance blossoms and that should be most welcome Tuesday/Wednesday will be important for Leons Get all personal work done and resolve problems then

Virgo

August 22—September 22

Friends may not succeed overmuch, but at least they will try to help you The home situation should improve giving you a little satisfaction and contentment April 19-21 will be specially important for decision-making and coming to grips with emotional affairs

Libra

September 23—October 22

The home front, renovation decoration, and a move are quite likely on the cards, says Ganesha The full moon of April 15 in your sign makes it a highly paradoxical week and time in general You will be energetic and extroverted But you will be running into problems while helping others

Scorpio

October 23—November 22

Time for thrills, spills, joy, sorrow and change in the nature and scope of your work A temporary union/separation is the order of the day Many of you will be launching out on deals and projects and by August you should be well into them Be positive and pleasant

Sagittarius

November 23—December 20

The full moon will activate you which will thus lead you to give it your best shot The result will be victory Now is the time to marshal your forces and attack The trick is to have friends and make them want you April 17-18 and April 20-21 are the dates to go ahead Romance foretold

Capricorn

December 21—January 19

You will have to be a quick change artist as we say because you will be forced to play numerous roles with flair Your lucky days should be Monday, Tuesday and Friday Watch out for business openings and contracts Yet, the surprising part of it is, you will find the time to play a little

Aquarius

January 20—February 18

Gains will be registered More importantly, you will have the dash and the panache to go right ahead It is this fearlessness which is your forte Those in education, distribution, research, sales, films and travel agencies do a grand job. You will have the cutting edge of success.

Pisces

February 19—March 20

The moon's influence will result in wild mood swings You will be ultra-sensitive and every hurt will be a major wound Relationships will be extremely complex and fluid and therefore, you will have to give yourself time to understand what is happening

BIRTHDAYS

April 16: Ganesha says accidents and unexpected events could happen if you are not on your guard. Not a birthyear to take chances.

April 17: Moon conjuncts Pluto giving you a certain power and sway over others. Use it very wisely and compassionately. You will recover from grief.

April 18: Moon-Jupiter conjunction means good fortune. This good fortune will also affect your partner, children house or office.

April 19: A year of mixed fortunes but it would be wise to be optimistic as the sun gives enough power and confidence to ward away everything negative and unfruitful.

April 20: Despite the Sun-Uranus square or malefic formation, you should go ahead with plans, because from June 9, the aspect or formation will be over.

April 21: Moon sextile Saturn means long range planning, as well as grasping the opportunities which will come your way this year.

April 22: The moon's quarter could result in a false start or two but by August you should be on your way to success, whatever be your chosen field of activity.

TIME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[redacted]
IC 741	0710	3 5	IC 742	0940	3 5
IC 743	0920	daily	IC-744	1150	daily
PF-701	1130	1 3, 5, 7	PF 702	1610	1 3 5 7
[redacted]
M9-304/109	0855	1 3 5	M9-110/301	1900	1 3 5
[redacted]
PF-705	0730	2 4 6 7	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
[redacted]
PF-735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1
PF-737	0730	3, 5	PF 738	1740	3 5
IC-721	1300	1 3, 5	IC 722	1540	1 3 5
[redacted]
IC 771	0800	daily	IC 772	1140	daily
[redacted]
IC-544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC 770	2120	1 3 5
[redacted]
IC 676	0640	daily	IC 675	0820	daily
D2 102	0905	daily	D2 101	0835	daily
IC 273	1945	daily	AI 306	1840	5
9W 212	1945	daily	9W 211	1910	daily
D2 104	2005	daily	D2 103	1935	daily
AI 309	2035	6	IC 274	2050	daily
AI-681	2350	1
[redacted]
			S2 025	0810	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC 263	0700	daily	IC 262	0815	2 4 7
S2-026	0845	1 2 3 4 5 6	M9 303	0825	daily
M9-304	0855	daily	AI 882	0950	1
IC 812	1515	1 3 5	S2 015	1015	1 3 5
S2 016	1555	1 3 5	4S 806	1110	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC 402	1715	daily	IC 401	1155	daily
4S 805	1745	1 2 3 4 5 6	S2 005	1855	1 2 3 4 5 7
IC 261	1900	2 4 7	M9 301	1900	daily
M9-302	1930	daily	IC 811	1930	1 3 5
S2-006	1930	1 2 3 4 5 7	IC 264	2210	daily
[redacted]
PF 737	0730	3 5	IC 704	1430	3 5
IC 703	0800	3 5	D2 181	1620	1 3 5 7
D2 181	1135	1 3 5 7	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	IC 702	1630	2 4 6 7
4S 815	1150	1 2 3 4 5 6	4S 816	1710	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC 701	1240	2 4 6 7	PF 738	1740	3 5
[redacted]
IC 257	1150	4 7	IC 258	1650	4 7
[redacted] GUWAHATI
PF 735	0730	1	IC [illegible]	1110	2 6
PF 737	0730	3 5	IC 703	1130	3 5
PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	IC 708	1430	1 4 7
IC 703	0800	3 5	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
IC 707	0800	1 4 7	D2 181	1620	3 5 7
IC 711	0800	2 6	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2 181	1135	1 3 5 7	IC 230	1650	daily
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	4S 811	1710	1 2 3 4 5 6
4S 812	1150	1 2 3 4 5 6	PF 736	1730	1

FLIGHTS

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[redacted]
RJ 185	1445	4	RJ 184	0705	4
[redacted] AMSTERDAM
KL 876	0420	7	KL 875	0235	7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
IC 257	1150	4 7	PF 738	1740	3 5
IC 211	1240	4 6	IC-258	1740	4 7
IC 229	1310	daily	IC-212	1740	4 6
[redacted]
S2-023	1045	1 3 5	S2-024	1525	1 3 5
IC 777	1600	2, 4 7	IC-778	2100	2 4 7
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5
[redacted]
IC 707	0800	1, 4 7	IC-256	1320	3 5
IC 255	0830	3 5	IC-708	1430	1, 4, 7
IC 253	1100	2 6	IC-254	1550	2, 6
[redacted]
IC-213	0910	2, 4 7	IC-213	1315	2, 4 7
[redacted]
PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1
[redacted]
IC 812	1515	1 3 5	IC-811	1930	1 3, 5
[redacted]
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1, 3 5
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC 765	1720	daily	D2 171	1045	daily
D2 172	1740	daily	IC 766	2220	daily
[redacted]
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC 770	2120	1, 3 5
[redacted]
IC 249	1430	2 4 7	S2-015	1015	1, 3 5
S2 016	1555	1 3 5	IC-249	1805	2 4, 7
IC-812	1515	1 3 5	IC-811	1930	1 3 5
[redacted]
IC 285	0640	3 5 7	IC-286	1100	2 4 6
[redacted]
IC 249	1430	2 4 7	IC-249	1805	2 4 7
[redacted]
PF-705	0730	2 2 6 7	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
[redacted]
IC 255	0830	3 5	IC-260	1110	1, 7
IC 259	0830	1 7	IC 256	1320	3 5
IC 253	1100	2 6	IC-254	1550	2, 6
IC 211	1240	4 6	IC 212	1740	4 6
[redacted]
IC-213	0910	2 4 7	IC-213	1315	2 4 7
[redacted]
PF 737	0730	3 5	PF 738	1740	3 5
[redacted]
S2 016	1555	1 3 5	S2-015	1015	1 3 5
[redacted]
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC-541	1030	1 3 5
[redacted]
PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1

INTERNATIONAL

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[redacted]
IC 731	0855	2 4 6 7	KB-106	1115	3
			KB-106	1215	5
KB 105	1125	2 6	TG-313	1240	1 3 6
TG 314	1355	1 3 6	IC-732	1505	2, 4, 6 7
AI 306	1950	5	AI-309	1925	6

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[illegible]
RO-076	1950	5, 7	RO-075	1055	5, 7
[illegible]
IC-225	1200	1	IC 226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2, 5	BG 697	1655	2 5
[illegible]
BG-092	0850	4, 5	BG-091	0810	4, 5
BG-092	1150	1, 2, 3, 6, 7	BG-091	1110	1 2, 3 6, 7
IC-723	1250	1 2 3, 5, 6	IC-724	1520	1 2 3 5 6
BG-094	1905	1, 2, 3, 5, 6 7	BG-093	1825	1 2 3 5 6 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1, 5	BG-095	2020	1, 5
[illegible]
IC-747	1115	1, 3 5	IC-748	1455	1 3 5
RA-214	1815	1, 4	RA-213	1715	1, 4

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
LONDON
BA-142	2050	3, 7	BA-143	1525	3, 7
MOSCOW
SU-538	1855	4	SU-537	1655	4
PARIS
KB-106	1200	3	KB-105	1040	2, 6
KB-106	1300	5
SINGAPORE
SQ-415	2345	2, 5	SQ-416	2230	2, 5
SOFIA
LZ-504	1750	4	LZ-503	1650	4
TOKYO
AI-306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure				Arrival
Up	Time		Howrah	Time	Dn
2311	19 15	Delhi Kalka Mail		7 20	2312
3005	19 20	Amritsar Mail		7 55	3006
3003	20-35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad		13-00	3004
2381	9-15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat		16 15	2382
2303	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs, Fri & Sun		16 15	2304
2301	16-30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues, Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun		10 45	2302
2305	13 45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun, Arr Wed & Sat		12-50	2306
3073	23-00	Himgiri (Jammu-Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat Arr Tues, Wed & Sat		11 35	3074
5047	13-00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon, Wed & Fri		4 30	5048
3009	20 30	Deen Express via Grand Chord		7 00	3010
3007	9-45	Udyan Abha Tootan Express via Main Line		18 15	3008
3049	13-20	Amritsar Express		15 30	3050
3039	21-00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line		5 20	3040
3019	16-05	Kathgodam Express		11 55	3020
3021	21-45	Mithila Express		5 00	3022
5659	17-35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express		6-30	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express		21-25	3318
3029	17-11	Coalfield Express		10 30	3030
3035	18-20	Asansol Express		8-45	3036
3031	21-05	Danapur Express		5 50	3032
3025	23-00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday, Arr Friday		11 35	3026
3071	22-30	Jamalpur Express		5-10	3072
3015	9-55	Santiniketan Express		15-40	3016
1159	15-25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri Sat & Sun, Arr Mon Tues & Wed		6-50	1160
1171	15-25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed, Arr Fri Sat & Sun		6-50	1172
3327	14 30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express		4 50	3328
1181	15-25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only		6 50	1182
			Sealdah
3141	13-40	Teesta-Torsa Express Dep Mon Tues Wed, Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed, Thurs Fri Sat & Sun		6 35	3142
3143	19-15	Darjeeling Mail		8-45	3144
3111	20-15	Jaipur Express via Main Line		7 15	3112
5657	6-25	Kanchenjunga Express		20-35	5658
3153	22-00	Gour Express		5 15	3154
5663	20-00	Katihar Express		4-15	5664
3151	11-45	Jammu-Tawi Express		15 50	3152
3133	20-55	Magbai Saral Express via SBG Loop		12-55	3134
3103	18-20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express		10 25	3104
5185	17-40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues, Thus & Sat		4 25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure				Arrival
Up	Time		Howrah	Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail		6 50	6004
8002	19 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur		8-10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express		15-15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express		5 15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur		16-20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack		12-00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday		19-40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs		1940	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun		13-45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express		10-20	8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express		22 05	8012
8005	20-55	Titlagarh Express		5-00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express		6 10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack		5-30	8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj		8-25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express		21 30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express		4-15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express		15-00	8046
8017	16-45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday		11-25	8018
2421	16 40	Bhubaneswar-New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only		16 10	—
--	11-05	New Delhi-Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only		10-45	2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati - Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only		22-15	—
-	14 05	Trivandrum Central - Howrah - Guwahati Express Saturday only		13-45	6321
--	14 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only		13-45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati - Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only		22 15	—
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri		13-45	6315
6520	22-35	Guwahati - Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only		22-15	—
—	14 05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only		13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South-Eastern Railway trains, please dial 2203545-54 for in coming trains, 2203535-44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South-Eastern Railway trains, dial 2203466-3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition, dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running), 131 (regarding train operations) and 138 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535-37

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

CAT AND THE BROOMSTICK

Before the cat came, there had, of course, to be a broomstick In the bazaar of one of our hill-stations is an old junk shop, dirty, dingy and dark, in which I often potter about looking for old books or Victorian bric-a-brac Sometimes one comes across useful household items, but I do not usually notice these

I was, however, attracted to an old but well-preserved broom standing in the corner of the shop A long-handled broom was just what I needed I had no servant to sweep out the rooms of my cottage and I did not enjoy bending over double while using the common short-handled jhaaroo

The old broom was priced at Rs 3 I haggled with the shopkeeper and got it for Rs 2

It was a strong broom, full of character, and I used it to good effect almost every morning And there this story might have ended (or would never had begun) if I had not found the large black cat sitting on the garden wall

The black cat had bright yellow eyes and it gave me a long, penetrating look as though it were summing up my possibilities as an exploitable human Though it miaowed once or twice, I paid no attention I did not care much for cats But when I went indoors, I found the cat had followed me and was scratching on the pantry door

"It must be hungry," I thought and gave it some milk The cat lapped up the milk purring deeply all the while, then sprang up on a cupboard and made itself comfortable

Well, for several days there was no getting rid of the cat It made itself at home, merely tolerating my presence in the house It seemed more interested in my broom than in me and would dance and skittle around the broom whenever I was sweeping the room And when the broom was resting against the wall, the cat would sidle up to it, rubbing itself against the handle and purring loudly

A cat and a broomstick—the combination was suggestive, full of possibilities The cottage was old, almost a 100 years old and I wondered about the kind of tenants it might have had during that long time I had only been in the cottage for about a year. And

I saw Miss Bellows and the black cat to the gate, and returned pensively to my sitting room.... I made a half-hearted attempt to laugh at my fancies, but the laugh stuck in my throat: I couldn't help noticing that the broom was missing from its corner though it stood alone in the midst of a forest of Himalayan oaks, I had never encountered any ghosts or spirits

Miss Bellows came to see me in the middle of July I heard the tapping of a walking stick on the rocky path outside the cottage, a tapping which stopped near the gate

"Good evening," I said, dropping my hoe

"I believe you have my cat," said Miss Bellows

Though I had not met the lady before, I knew her by name and reputation She was the oldest resident in the hill-station

"I believe I have a cat," I said, "though it's probably more correct to say the cat has me If it's your cat, you're welcome to it Why don't you come in while I look for her "

Miss Bellows stepped in She wore a rather old-fashioned black dress and her strong, ancient walnut stick had two or three curves in it and a knob instead of a handle

She made herself comfortable in an armchair while I went in search of the cat But the cat was on one of her mysterious absences, and though I called for her in my most persuasive manner, she did not respond I knew she was probably quite near But cats are like that — perverse, obstinate creatures

When finally, I returned to the sitting room, there was the cat curled up on Miss Bellows' lap

"Well, you've got her, I see Would you like some tea before you go?"

"No, thank you," said Miss Bellows. "I don't drink tea "

"Something stronger, perhaps A little brandy?"

She looked up at me rather sharply Disconcerted, I hastened to add "Not that I drink much, you know I keep a little in the house for emergencies It helps ward off colds and things It's particularly good for er, well, for colds," I finished lamely

"I see your kettle's boiling," she said. "Can I have some hot water?"

"Hot water? Certainly " I was a little puzzled but I did not wish to antagonise Miss Bellows at our first meeting

"Thank you And a glass "

She held the glass while I held the kettle Then, from the pocket of her voluminous dress, she extracted two small packets, similar to those containing chemists powders Opening both packets, she poured first a purple powder, and then a crimson powder, into the glass Nothing happened

"Now the water please," she said

"It's boiling hot!"

"Never mind "

I poured boiling water into her glass and there was a terrific fizzing and bubbling as the frothy stuff rose to the rim It gave off a horrible stench The potion was so hot that I thought it would crack the glass, but before this could happen, Miss Bellows had put it to her lips and had drained off its entire contents

"I think I'll be going now," she said, putting the glass down and smacking her lips The cat, tail in the air, voiced its agreement Said Miss Bellows, "I'm much obliged to you young man "

"Don't mention it," I said humbly "Always at your service "

She gave me her thin, bony hand and held mine in an icy grip

I saw Miss Bellows and the black cat to the gate, and returned pensively to my sitting room Living alone was beginning to tell on my nerves and imagination I made a half-hearted attempt to laugh at my fancies, but the laugh stuck in my throat I couldn't help noticing that the broom was missing from its corner

I dashed out of the cottage and looked up and down the path There was no one to be seen In the gathering darkness I could hear Miss Bellows' laughter followed by a snatch of song

With the darkness round me growing,
And the moon behind my hat,
You will soon have trouble knowing
Which is witch and Witch's Cat

Something whirred overhead like a Diwali rocket I looked up and saw them silhouetted against the rising moon. Miss Bellows and her cat were riding away on my broomstick

(Sanctuary Features)

JAYANTA MAHAPATRA

selects the poems. All contributions should be sent directly to him at Tinkonia Bagicha, Cuttack 753001 and not to The Telegraph. Poems should be typewritten in double space, on one side of the paper. Please retain copies of submitted poems as they will not be returned. All published poems will be paid for at our regular rates. No enquiries will be solicited.

Fill in the coupon below and send with your contribution

___ Block letters please ___

Name_____

_____

Age_____

Address_____

_____

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S  COLUMN

BOUNTY OF THE AUTUMN MOON

Deep in the cold wave engulfing north India, it suddenly seems a long time since the onset of winter in the month of Kartik, when a strange kind of reverse osmosis takes place between Punjab and eastern UP

Of course, it is common knowledge that as the paddy ripens in Punjab, labourers from UP and Bihar head westwards to harvest it

What is less known is that once the rice harvest there is over, Sikhs climb on to their combine harvesters and trundle eastwards over the plains to the furthermost districts of UP where the rice is yet to ripen

This year two such combine harvesters ended up at the back of the cowshed of the former zamindars of Iliya — a village literally spitting distance from Bihar When I saw them, the Patiala Sikhs were listening to biraha songs on All India Radio and tinkering with the combines' engines They still had some time to wait

Although the rice had received its last watering and the canals had become suddenly dry — yielding another harvest of small fish — the paddy was still a green carpet in the fields

Even though the first rice of the season was being roasted in iron pans and poured into mechanised pounders to make chura, the main harvest would really get underway only after the full moon of Kartik And nobody seemed in a great hurry either

That is because the month of Kartik seems to cast a spell over the eastern districts around Varanasi Even after Diwali the holiday spirit lingers on and is most apparent in the sacred city itself, between the small rivers Varuna and Assi

When I arrived there from Iliya, the bazaars were doing a swift business in sugarcane — each shopper taking one or two sticks "Today is a festival," said my rickshaw wallah He could equally well have made that statement on most days of the month

Turning the corner of the road to Assi ghat, the stench from a rubbish-filled pond created by the corporation and the objectionable pink concrete of the little-used Sulabh Sochalaya did not seem to matter The real Assi on ekadashi was in another, more sacred dimension

Braving the cold, bathers had been walking barefoot to the river since well before dawn, young girls leading old ladies by the hand At a stall at the top of the river bank women poured Ganges water around anwala, banana and tulsi plants Others pressed their hands reverently on the trunk of a neem tree The peepul tree a little distance away was tied round with thread and small diyas at its base showed where worship had taken place

All the trees around the ghat were probably being worshipped, and all the shrines underneath them, too There could be no better example of religion being environmentally green at heart

"Tulsi is Lakshmi and so is anwala," a sadhu told me, "Peepul is Vishnu and banana is Guru Brihaspati — they are all worshipped in Kartik"

"And neem?"

"Neem is Sitala Devi" Naturally, the goddess of smallpox should be represented by the tree of healing

However, as this was ekadashi, tulsi had a special place of honour It was her wedding day Shashank Singh, whose old house overlooks Assi, was leaning over the parapet of his verandah watching and relishing the waves of wedding song rising from the groups of women sitting below

In his family, he told me, Tulsi was married to Bhagwan Shalagram and before the abolition of zamindari his mother had conducted the ceremony with a tulsi plant made of pure gold

The women of the ghats had real tulsi plants and other images of Vishnu — mainly it was Krishna who was the bridegroom

One small brass image was washed with turmeric as I watched, further down the ghat the kanyadaan was being offered Another group was singing of going to one's married home, and in yet another, bilva leaves and white datura flowers were being offered to the couple who were already almost invisible under piles of flowers

In the evening a more formal baraat was arranged A flotilla of boats, complete with divine bridegroom, shehnais, a uniformed brass band and a horrendous loudspeaker system chugged off downstream from Tulsi Ghat to Panchganga

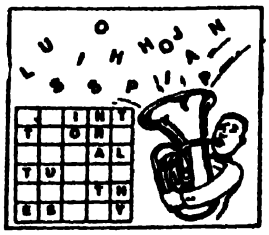
Here, high in a new pink building right on the ghat, waited the bride It was well past dark when the baraat arrived and the bridegroom — a tiny image — was carried inside shoulder high on a palanquin

With a fine disregard for the niceties of neat divisions within the Hindu pantheon, the crowd greeted Bhagwan Vishnu with shouts of "Hara, Hara Mahadev"

As the palanquin vanished upstairs, the Ganga began to come into her own in the light of the waxing moon Lights flickered in wicker-basket lamps, hoisted high on bamboo poles — the akashdeep that provide light for departed souls Worshippers set leaf-trays of diyas afloat at the river bank, while others took silent, black boats midstream to offer their lights to the river

On the riverside the feeling of goodwill and well being was immense, enhanced by the sure knowledge that the rice harvest, despite some flooding would be good Already preparations were underway for the next ritual celebration — Annakuta, the Mountain of Food festival

Soon the courtyards of the temples of Vishvanath and Annpurna would be filled with piles of milk sweets, arranged in the form of castles and temples — and there would be mountains of newly cut paddy, too, in celebration of the impending river.



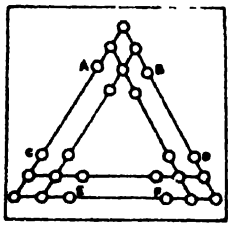
(Sanctuary Features)

JUNIOR WHIRL · HAL KAUFMAN

WHAT'S UP! Something is caught up in strong March winds above. What can it be? Draw lines dot to dot to find out.

BODY LANGUAGE! "I have something in my eye," said the needle. "My ribs are broken," said the umbrella. "Take my hand," said the clock. "My teeth are shot," said the gear. Can you think of any to add?

LINE OF MARCH BLOWOUT



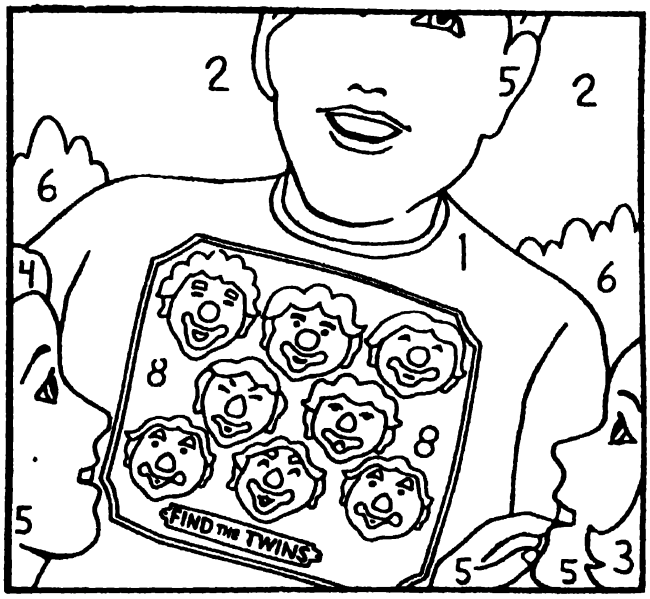
TAKE note of letters being expelled from the instrument above. They are to be used in blanks of the diagram to form words in accord with the following definitions (top down, respectively)

An elbow for one
Rose bush hazard
Medicine container
Spring garden bloom
One of the poles
A literary work

Alakazam, read in the order in which they are to appear these letters will spell the name of an American composer who is familiar to every marching band. Who's that?

Words top down: Joint thorn phial tulip south essay. Composer: John Philip Sousa

SIDE LINER! Study the configuration below carefully, and you will discover that only the outer equilateral triangle has exactly six circles per side, and only ther centre equilateral triangle has exactly four circles per side. Now, add three straight lines, A-F, B-E, C-D, draw circles at intersections, and you will devise an additional equilateral triangle having exactly two circles per side.



HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1 Sun is missing. 2 Bandanna is smaller. 3 Picture is missing. 4 Funnel is missing. 5 Water gun is missing. 6 Shorts are shorter.

FUNSPOT

DOUBLE DIP! Task No. 1: Find twins. Task No. 2: Add the following colors by number: 1—Red. 2—Lt. blue. 3—Yellow. 4—Lt. brown. 5—Flesh. 6—Green. 7—Dk. brown. 8—Purple.

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

VISCERAL

- - - - - - - -

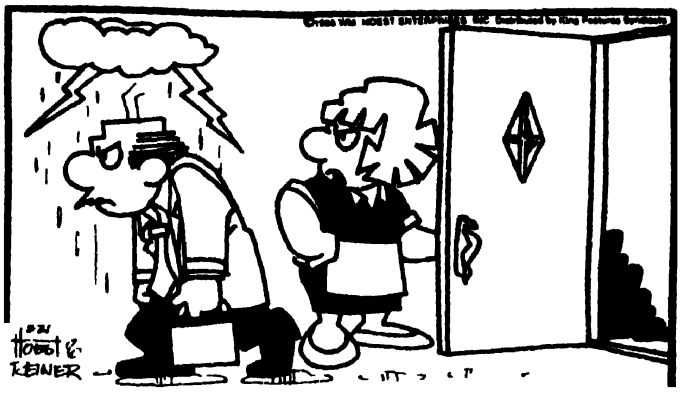
THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

Try to score at least 50 points

Possible lwoscome Evil, soar

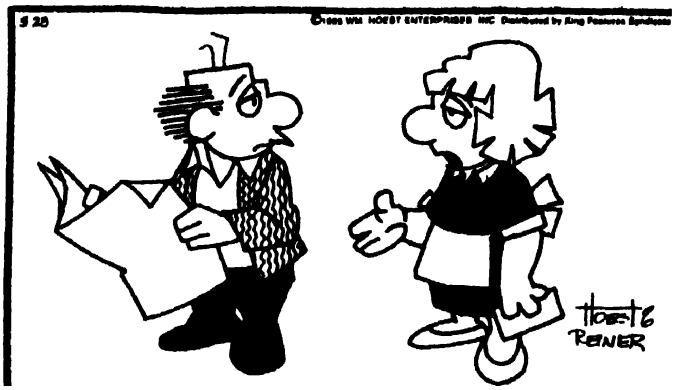
COMICS

ARCHIE



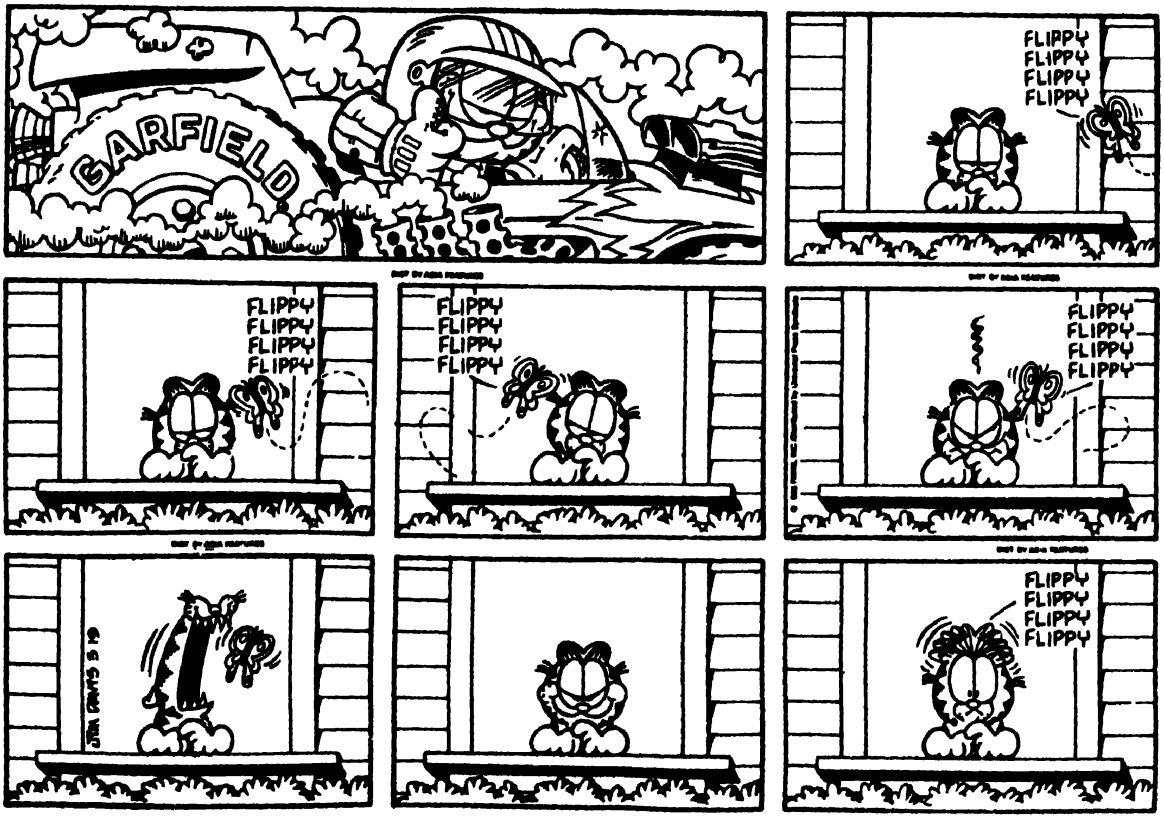
CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON

THE LOCKHORNS

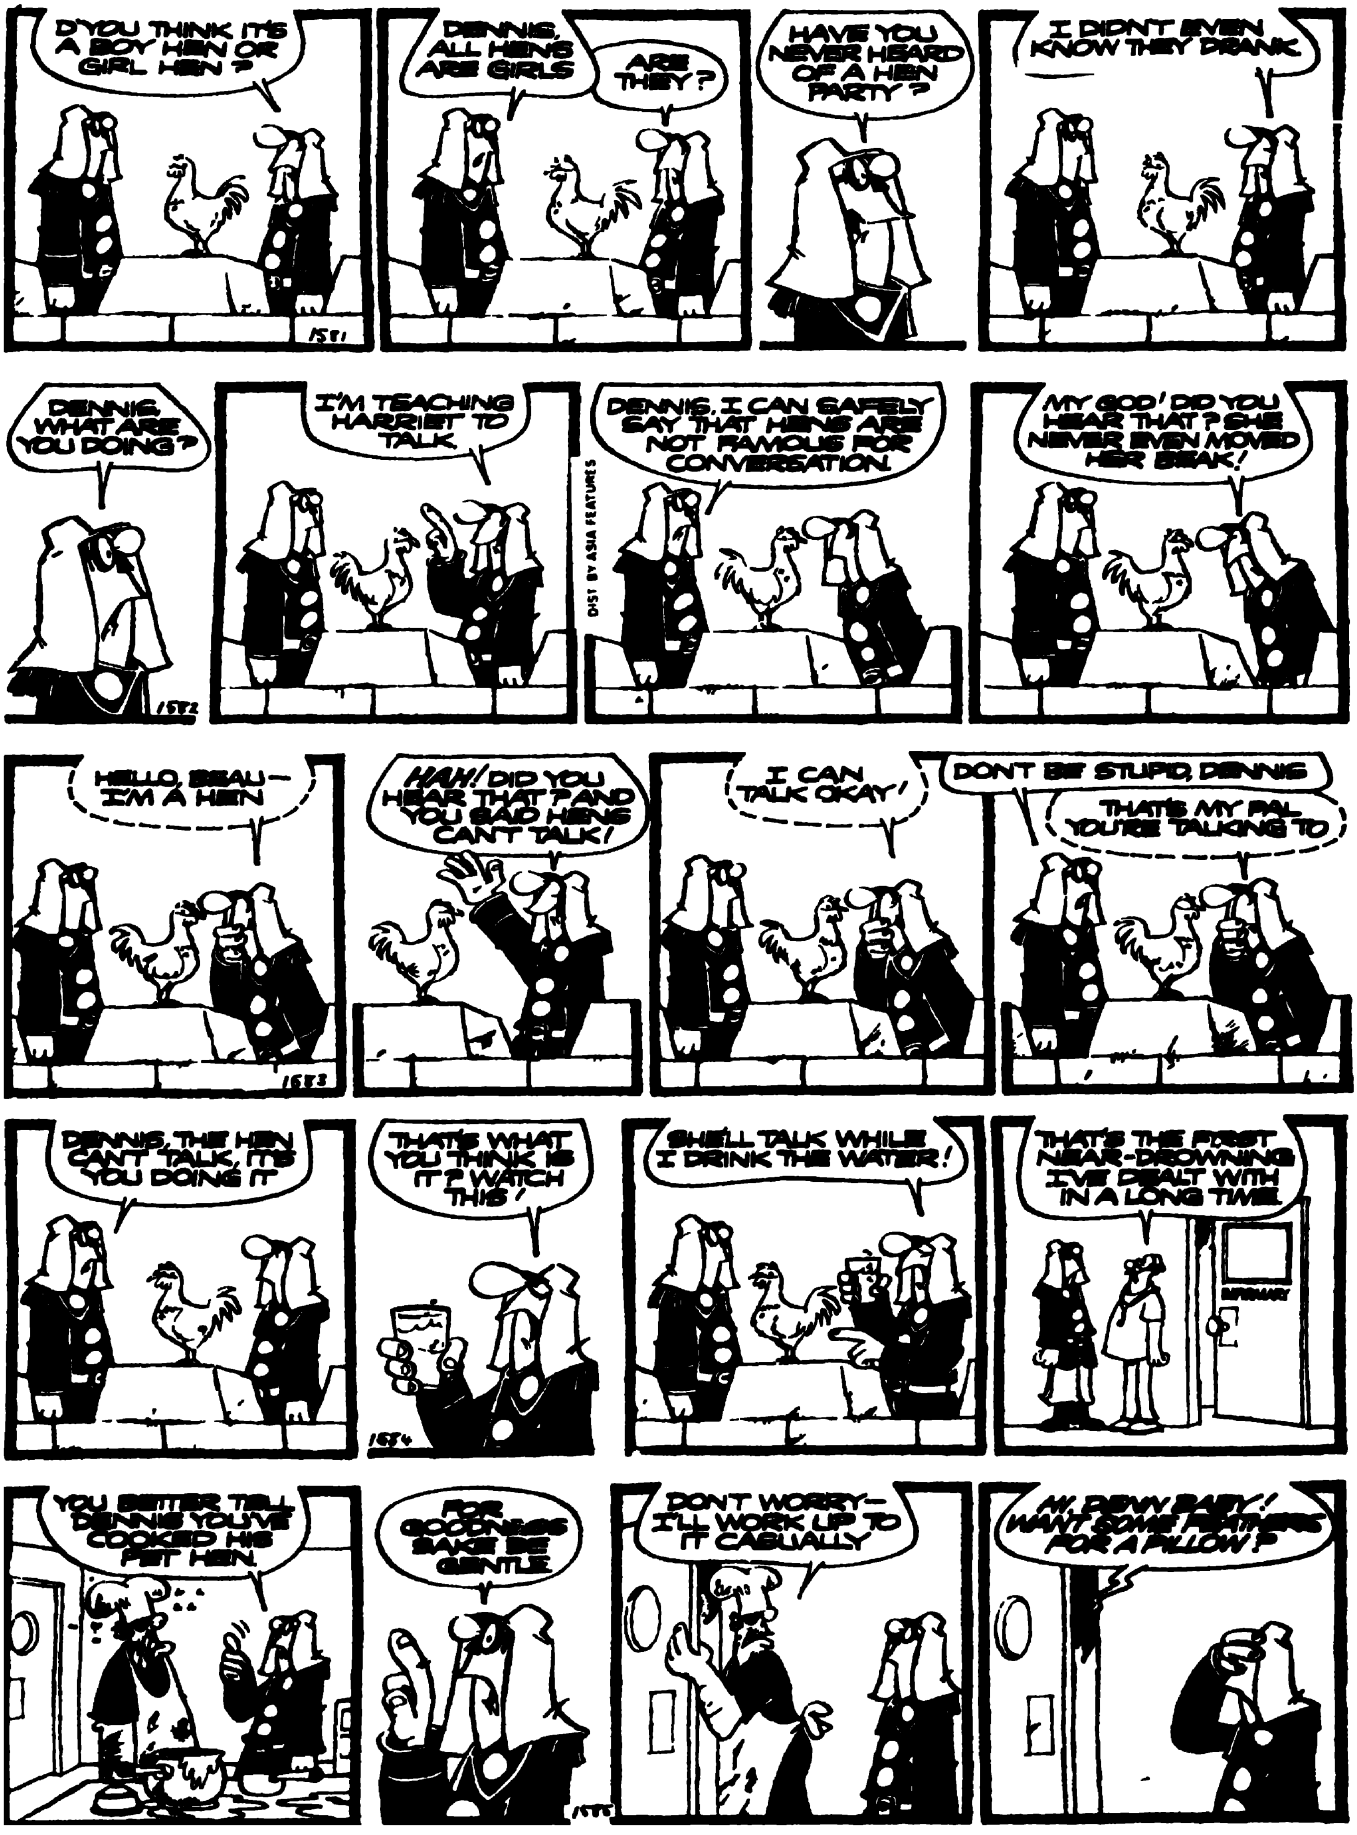


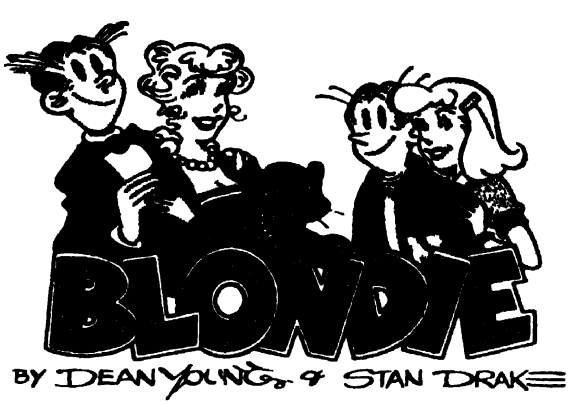
"WHAT GOOD IS SUFFERING LIKE THIS IF I DON'T REMEMBER WHAT A GOOD TIME I HAD?"

"I WISH YOU'D LEAVE YOUR WORK AT THE OFFICE."

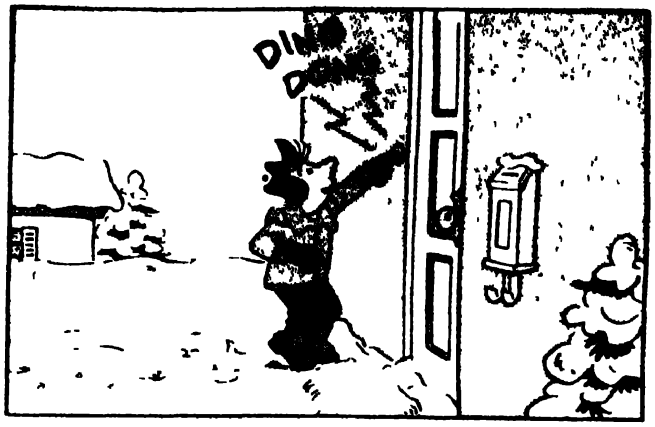


"IF YOU'RE LOOKING FOR THE LEFTOVER MEATLOAF I SENT IT TO 'UNSOLVED MYSTERIES.'"

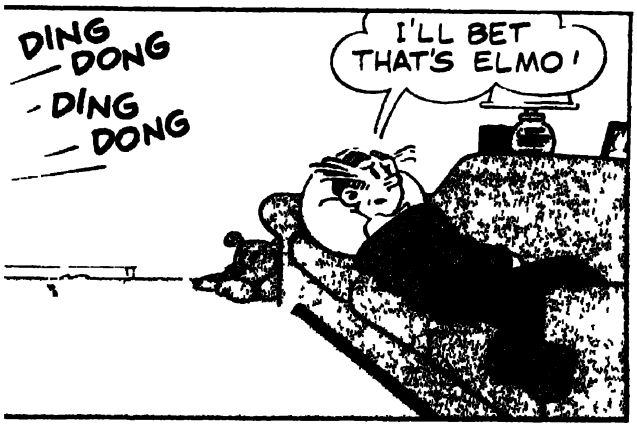


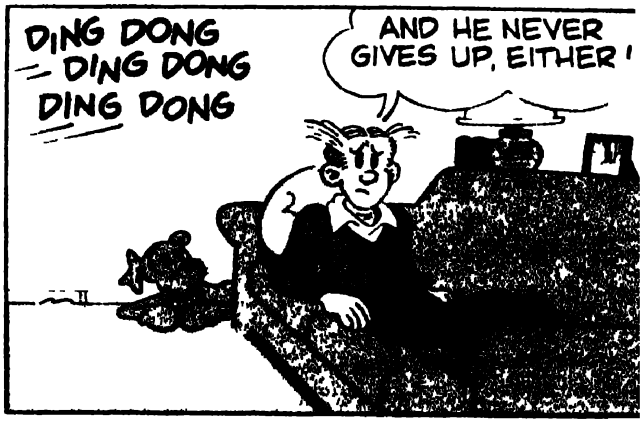


"I'M GOING TO NEED $3,000 FOR MY HIGH SCHOOL REUNION, LEROY ... FOR A FACE LIFT"

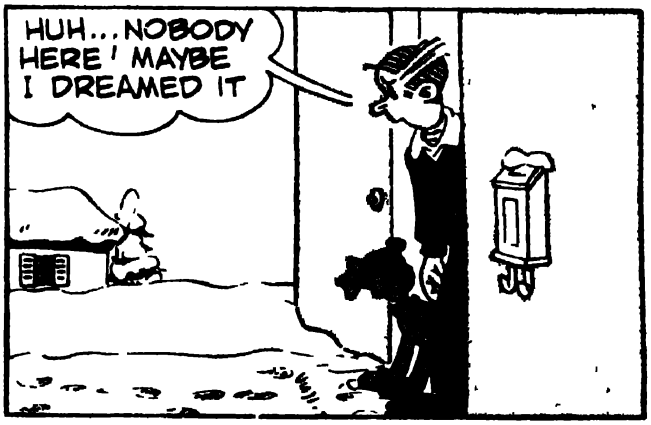


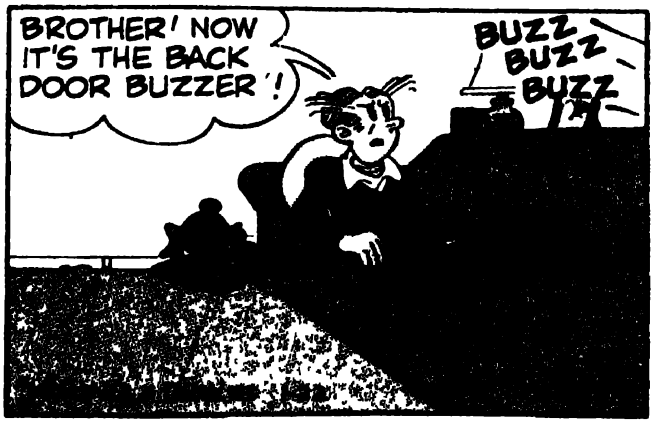
GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS





THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP





© 1993 by King Features Syndicate, Inc. World rights reserved

PIN UP

Moore and Moore

She has that uncanny knack of making stunning 'disclosures' and ones that have left even Hollywood reeling

For Demi Moore, one of celluloid's hottest selling divas, is out to make history, this time, as its highest paid actress

The film, Striptease, will pay her no less than a whopping £8 million for peeling her clothes off for the screen

There was a time when Demi Moore had ceased to figure in any casting director's list Her career nosedived with such superflops as St Elmo's Fire, The Seventh Sign and We're No Angels

But her 1990 starrer, Ghost, ensured Hollywood's forgiveness, shoving her indiscreet career moves firmly beneath the carpet Her popularity peaked when she appeared nude, all of eight months pregnant, on Vanity Fair's cover

Not one to harbour guilt pangs for her controversial foray, she put in a breathtaking performance in Indecent Proposal Demi, and Woody Harelson who played her husband, had to enact some of the hottest scenes ever filmed in Hollywood

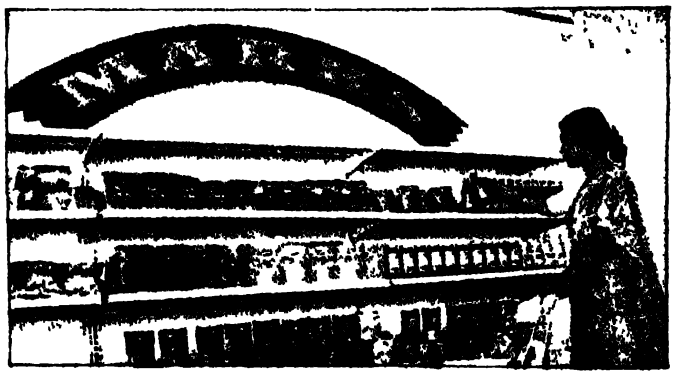
It put her in league with the Hollywood trinity of Sharon Stone, Geena Davis and Julia Roberts

Her spate of surprises continued with Disclosure which showed Demi playing a high tech boss-babe sexually harassing, and then pointing her finger at, a long-ago boyfriend turned present colleague

Her latest in a series of bold revelations, Striptease, where she is negotiating to star, is set in cheap girlie bars A controversy in the feminist camp could get them to carp about the exploitation of women 'or

But the pay packet is irresistible, in fact, double the money Demi got for Disclosure!

And if her tantalising striptease acts in the film are any indication, the film's bound to set the huge box-office on fire



On Your Marks...

If you are the window-gazing sort who would rather fantasise about shopping binges than wading through slushy bazaars and sweaty crowd, Marks Supermarket might make the ordeal less painful

The supermarket style of self-service has circled the globe and is now in Calcutta We had a very diluted version of self service shopping at the government-sponsored Samavayka chain

Marks provides a sleek outlet to quick one stop shopping in plush surrounding

The first in the chain is a 4,000 sq ft store near the crossing of Chowringhee and Elgin Road They flung their doors open to Calcuttans on March 22 after Ravi Shastri snipped the ribbon and sliced the inaugural cake The retired cricket-star took time off to explore the supermarket Marks offers a wide range of products from breakfast grub to detergents, from cosmetics and toiletry to fresh fruits and frozen delights — an impressive display of variety and quality

One need not sweat and trundle through cramped stores and resign oneself to the mercy of sullen salespersons Marks provides trollies and baskets, swift elevators, airconditioned ambience, free parking facility and promises 'personal care and attention'

If you can shop in style, pick, choose and buy from a place where you also pay less (as they always emphasise) market rate price, and with some gift scheme or the other going, Marks is a shopper's dream-come-true ■

In

THE PICK OF THE WEEK

VIDEOS

Nell Jodie Foster plays an innocent creature (Nell) raised in the wilderness. She speaks her own lingo and finally helps her new friends who are scientists towards a greater and more philosophical, understanding of the basic facts of life.

This child of nature (remember Shakespeare's Winter's Tale?) had been kept hidden by her hermit mother in a faraway Appalachian cabin, and her existence only comes to light when her mother dies.

Liam Neeson and Natasha Richardson play duelling doctors who camp out near Nell's cabin to observe her and fall in love.

At the end of the movie, Jodie makes a courtroom speech which Liam translates as how we all need to look into each others eyes and find more peace and tranquility.

BOOKS

Reado: The newly done up Oxford Bookstore on Park Street, Calcutta, has now a lot more to offer than just books to the bibliophile. It has, as its latest addition, an art gallery for alternative activities to boot.

Commemorating its 75th anniversary in February this year, Calcutta's premier bookshop is perhaps the first of its kind in India to incorporate the art gallery to its existing range of services.

There will be photographs, graphics, advertisement posters, calligraphy, sketches, cartoons and sculptures on display which would be launched over the next few years by a series of shows each unique in its own way and upholding a different medium.

The nostalgia of an event 100 years back in time will also be showcased. Add to this, the audio-video section with its grid of nine TV screens!

OXFORD
BOOKSTORE GALLERY

HEALTH

Oil of Olive There is more to olive oil than a pearly glowing skin.

As a mono saturated fat, it has, in times past, been considered healthier for the heart than other saturated fats.

And now, if recent reports are to be believed, olive oil could help reduce the susceptibility to breast cancer.

A survey carried out in Greece revealed that women who had the oil at least once a day reduced the risk of having breast cancer by 25 per cent. The Journal of the National Cancer Institute which published the study showed that women who ate fruits and vegetables were also the less likely victims of the killer disease.

LIFESTYLE

Microwave Magic. Getting fed up with your old cooking range? BPL is here to help those struggling in their kitchens.

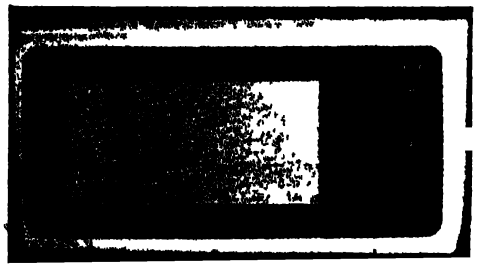
The company has already launched its state-of-the-art cooking systems. They come in two unique models the 37-litre 900 T Micro Convection cooking system and the 26-litre 700 T Microwave cooking system. Sounds complicated? Well, they are versatile and easy to use.

The microwave cooking system can be used for cooking, warming, simmering, baking and defrosting. Thanks to Sanyo technology, they have advanced features like a revolving boomerang turntable, an electronic timer, multistage cooking and many more. This joy of modern cooking is all yours for Rs 13,000.

The model 900 T Micro Convection cooking system has an added facility to circulate hot air inside the oven cavity. It also offers three cooking modes; microwave, convection and combination.

FASHION



West Side Storey! A touch of boldness is all that's needed to dress evening up this summer.

Very London, very Helen Storey, the couture in this season gives the impression of clothes that have been well worn and well loved.

A chequered flag dress with red, green and white boas lends itself to glamour with the addition of dark, glossy lips and sharply scissored hair.

A bare minimum button down, black, silk top with the bold black and white cheques of the ball skirt tops it all.

This dress was designed by Storey during the London Fashion Week at a London underground subway show, recently, featuring leading British designers.

RASOI

JIGGS KALRA

At Delhi Ka Aangan, where we consult, we have been striving to provide to restaurant diners the joys of home cooking. More and more people are dining out more frequently and yearning for food ma maasoo.

This column will never forget a discussion that almost degenerated into an argument with one of the nation's senior most not leading' chefs who insisted that when people go out they are looking for only rich, celebratory food. The verdict of the palate has made him eat crow. He's loathe to admit it though. Today, he is constrained to provide lighter food.

The real joy of home cooking is a light effervescent meal that does not make you burp, nor does it burn the taillights on the morning after!

We would like the recipes below to speak for themselves. Our teammates on these Chefde Cuisine Rajinder Rana and his deputy, Ilyas Mohammed.

AANGAN KA KHAAS GOSHT

INGREDIENTS

600 g / 1 lb 5 oz leg of Kid / Lamb
8 Kid / Lamb chops (single rib)
75 g / 5 tbs Desi ghee (clarified butter)
300 g / 11 oz Onions
Salt
1 litre / 4 1/4 cups clear Kid / Lamb stock
10 g / 1 3/4 tsp Garlic paste (strained)
10 g / 1 3/4 tsp Ginger paste (strained)
8 Green cardamom
5 Cloves
2 sticks Cinnamon (")
4 5 g / 1 1/2 tsp Coriander powder
3 g / 1 tsp Red chilli powder
2 25 g / 3/4 tsp Turmeric powder
10 g / 4 tsp Besan/gramflour
10 ml / 2 tsp Cooking oil
15 g / 1 tsp Cashewnut paste
1/2 Nutmeg
1/2 Kewra
2 drops Coriander
2 Green chillies

Serves 4
Preparation time 45 minutes
Cooking time 1 15 hours

PREPARATION

The Kid/Lamb. Clean, debone, wash, pat dry and cut into 1" chunks
The Chops Clean trim, wash and pat dry
The Vegetables Peel, wash and slice onions. Clean, wash and chop coriander. Wash green chillies, halve, deseed and discard the stems
The Yoghurt Whisk in a bowl
The Besan Heat oil in a kadhai/wok, add the besan/gramflour and bhunno/stir-fry over medium heat until it emits its unique aroma
The Nutmeg Grate in a bowl

COOKING

Heat ghee in a kandi/pan, add half the onions, saute over medium heat until light golden, add the meat, bhunno/stir-fry over high heat to sear for 2-3

Aangan Ka Khaas Gosht

minutes, add the remaining onions, salt and 120 ml / 1/2 cup of stock, stir add the garlic and ginger pastes, stir, add green cardamom, cloves and cinnamon, stir, add the coriander, red chilli and turmeric powders, bhunno/stir-fry until the fat leaves the sides Remove handi/pan from heat, stir-in yoghurt, return handi/pan to heat and bhunno/stir-fry until the liquid evaporates

Then add 120 ml / 1/2 cup of stock and bhunno/stir-fry until the liquid evaporates Repeat the process twice more Now add the cooked besan/gramflour, stir until fully incorporated, add cashewnut paste, stir until fully incorporated, add nutmeg, stir, add the remaining stock, bring to a boil, add keora and remove Cover the handi/pan with a lid, seal with atta dough,

Dum Ki Khumb

return handi/pan to heat and cook on dum (over very low heat) for 30 minutes Remove handi pan from heat, break the seal, uncover and adjust the seasoning

TO SERVE
Remove to a service dish, garnish with coriander and green chillies, serve with roomali roti* or *phulka

DUM KI KHUMB

INGREDIENTS
300 g / 11 oz Button mushrooms
50 g / 1/4 cup Desi ghee (clarified butter)
200 g / 7 oz Onions
480 ml / 2 cups Vegetable stock
20 g / 3 1/2 tsp Garlic paste (strained)
20 g / 3 1/2 tsp Ginger paste (strained)
5 Green cardamom
3 Cloves
2 Black cardamom
2 Bay leaves
9 g / 1 tbs Coriander powder
4 5 g / 1 tsp Kashmiri degh mirch
3 g / 1 tsp Turmeric powder
200 g / 7 oz Yoghurt
Salt
10 g / 1 tsp Besan/Gramflour
10 ml / 2 tsp Butter
30 g / 1 oz Almond paste
1 5 g / 1/2 tsp Green cardamom powder
0 75 g / 1/4 tsp Mace powder
0 5 g / 1 tsp kasoori methi

Serves 4
Preparation time 30 minutes
Cooking time 30 minutes

PREPARATION
The Mushrooms: Slice off the earthy base of the stalk and wash just prior to cooking
The Remaining Vegetables: Peel, wash and chop onions
The Yoghurt Whisk in a bowl
The Besan Heat oil in a kadhai/wok, add the besan/gramflour and bhunno/stir-fry over medium heat until it emits its unique aroma

COOKING
Heat ghee in a handi/pan, add half the onions, saute over medium heat until light golden, add the remaining onions and 120 ml / 1/2 cup of stock, stir, add the garlic and ginger pastes, stir, add green cardamom, cloves, black cardamom and bay laves, stir, add the coriander, degh mirch and turmeric powders, bhunno/stir-fry until the fat leaves the sides Remove handi/pan from heat, stir in yoghurt, return handi/pan to heat add salt and bhunno/stir-fry until the liquid evaporates Now add the besan/gramflour, stir until fully incorporated, add mushrooms, stir, add almond paste, stir until fully incorporated, add cardamom and mace, stir, add the remaining stock, bring to a boil and remove Cover the handi/pan with a lid, seal with atta dough, return handi/pan to heat and cook on dum (over very low heat) for 10 12 minutes Remove handi/pan from heat, break the seal, uncover and adjust the seasoning

TO SERVE
Remove to a bowl, crush kasoori methi between the palms and sprinkle on top Serve with phulka or tandoori roti

NOTE All weights are nett, that is post-preparation, and not gross ■

FIRST PERSON

MEGHANA REDDY, 20, is already somewhere at the top of the modelling world, having bagged such prestigious contracts as Vimal and Trupti She also hosts the programme, Videocon Mangta Hai on Channel along with Aneesh Trivedi. Meghana is now doing her third-year BCom from Bombay's Sydenham College, because she believes it is "nice to have a basic graduate's degree if you want to study further," though she thinks "commerce was the wrong choice of subject" for her

What is your idea of perfect happiness?

Finding my soulmate and being in love for the rest of my life Of course, lots of fights must be thrown in, it adds spice

What is your greatest fear?

Darkness, physically getting into a spot out of which I cannot move a single limb, and life without my mother

Who or what has been the greatest influence in your life?

My mother and God

What do you dislike most in others?

Dishonesty, mind games

What do you dislike most in yourself?

Laziness, temper, sensitivity, and non-punctuality (bad time management)

What is your most precious possession?

My loo and my high knee boots

What objects do you always carry?

Back-pack containing toilet paper, chocolates, money, cologne, talcum powder, change of underwear and hairbrush

What makes you most depressed?

When I put in my best efforts and things still go wrong

What do you dislike most on your appearance?

My nose and my monkey hairline

What is your favourite word?

Cow (stretched out as in c-o-o-w)

What is your favourite journey?

Into whichever novel I am currently reading It is a trip of its own, very exciting

What is your favourite dream?

To go travelling for two years all over or rather to as many places as I can

What is your nightmare?

The same as my greatest fears - to ever be left idle — I need to WORK

What or who is the greatest love of your life?

That is someone I have not found yet — but I will do, I am sure of it

What is your source of sustenance?

My capacity to say and believe that everything happens for the best and everything is a blessing in disguise

On what occasions do you lie?

Whenever necessary, which, thank God, is not often

What is your greatest regret?

Not realising what I had when I had it, and then, realising what it was all about after it had gone (shrouded in mystery)

What has been your happiest moment?

Every time a good meal is served to me — I love food and most of my thinking moments revolve round it and the next course

What brings tears to your eyes?

Movies that are dramatic and sad really get me going Also P M S [pre-menstrual symptoms]

How do you relax?

Tub of hot water with salts Driving - it is one of the most therapeutic things for me Reading a novel, too

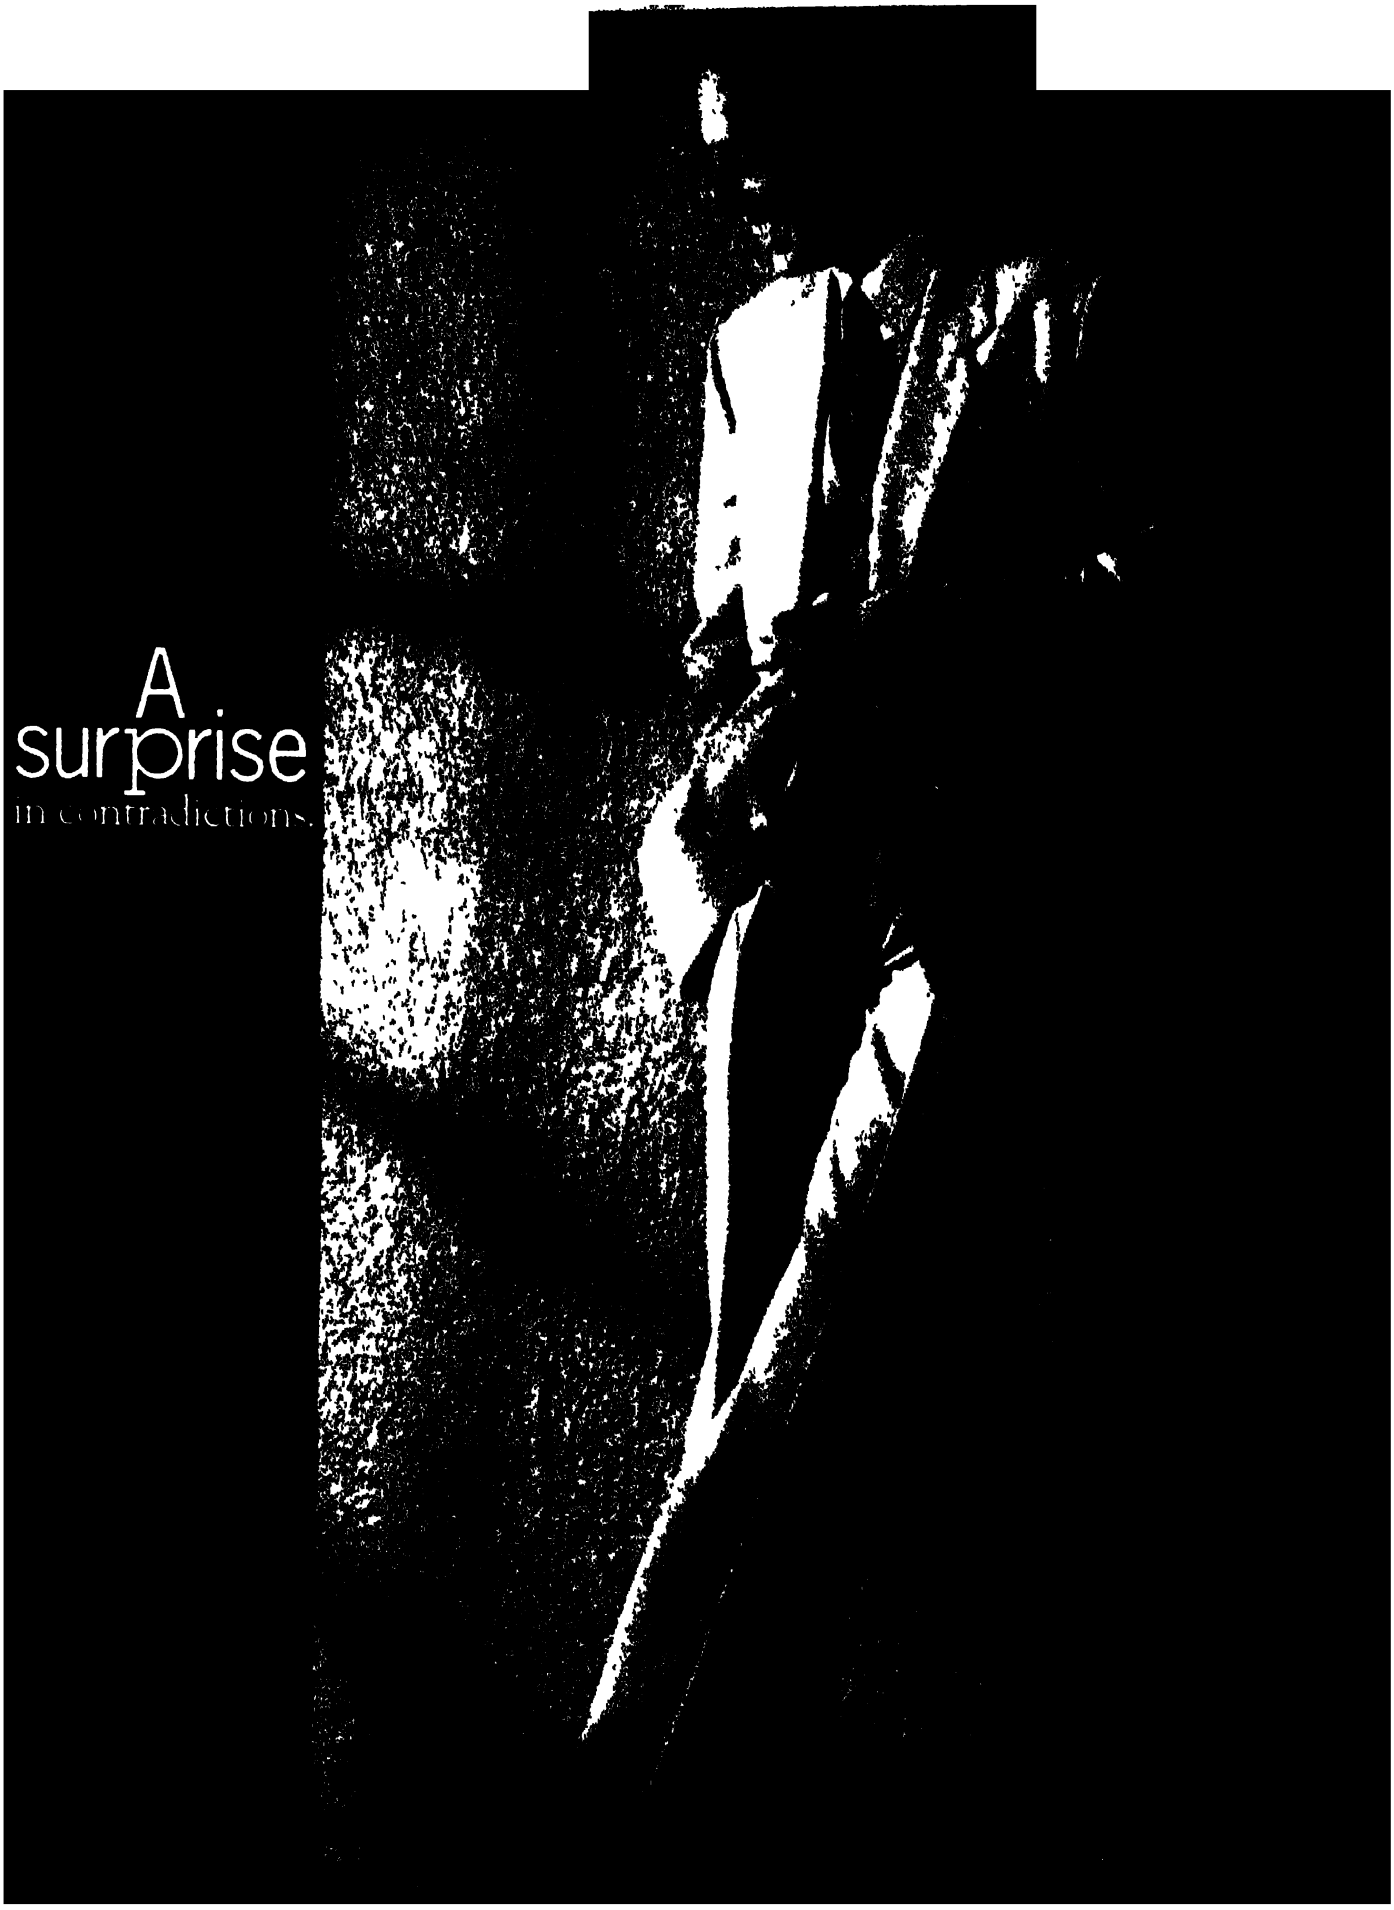
What do you envy most in others?

The layman's ability to do what he wants without other people prying into his affairs

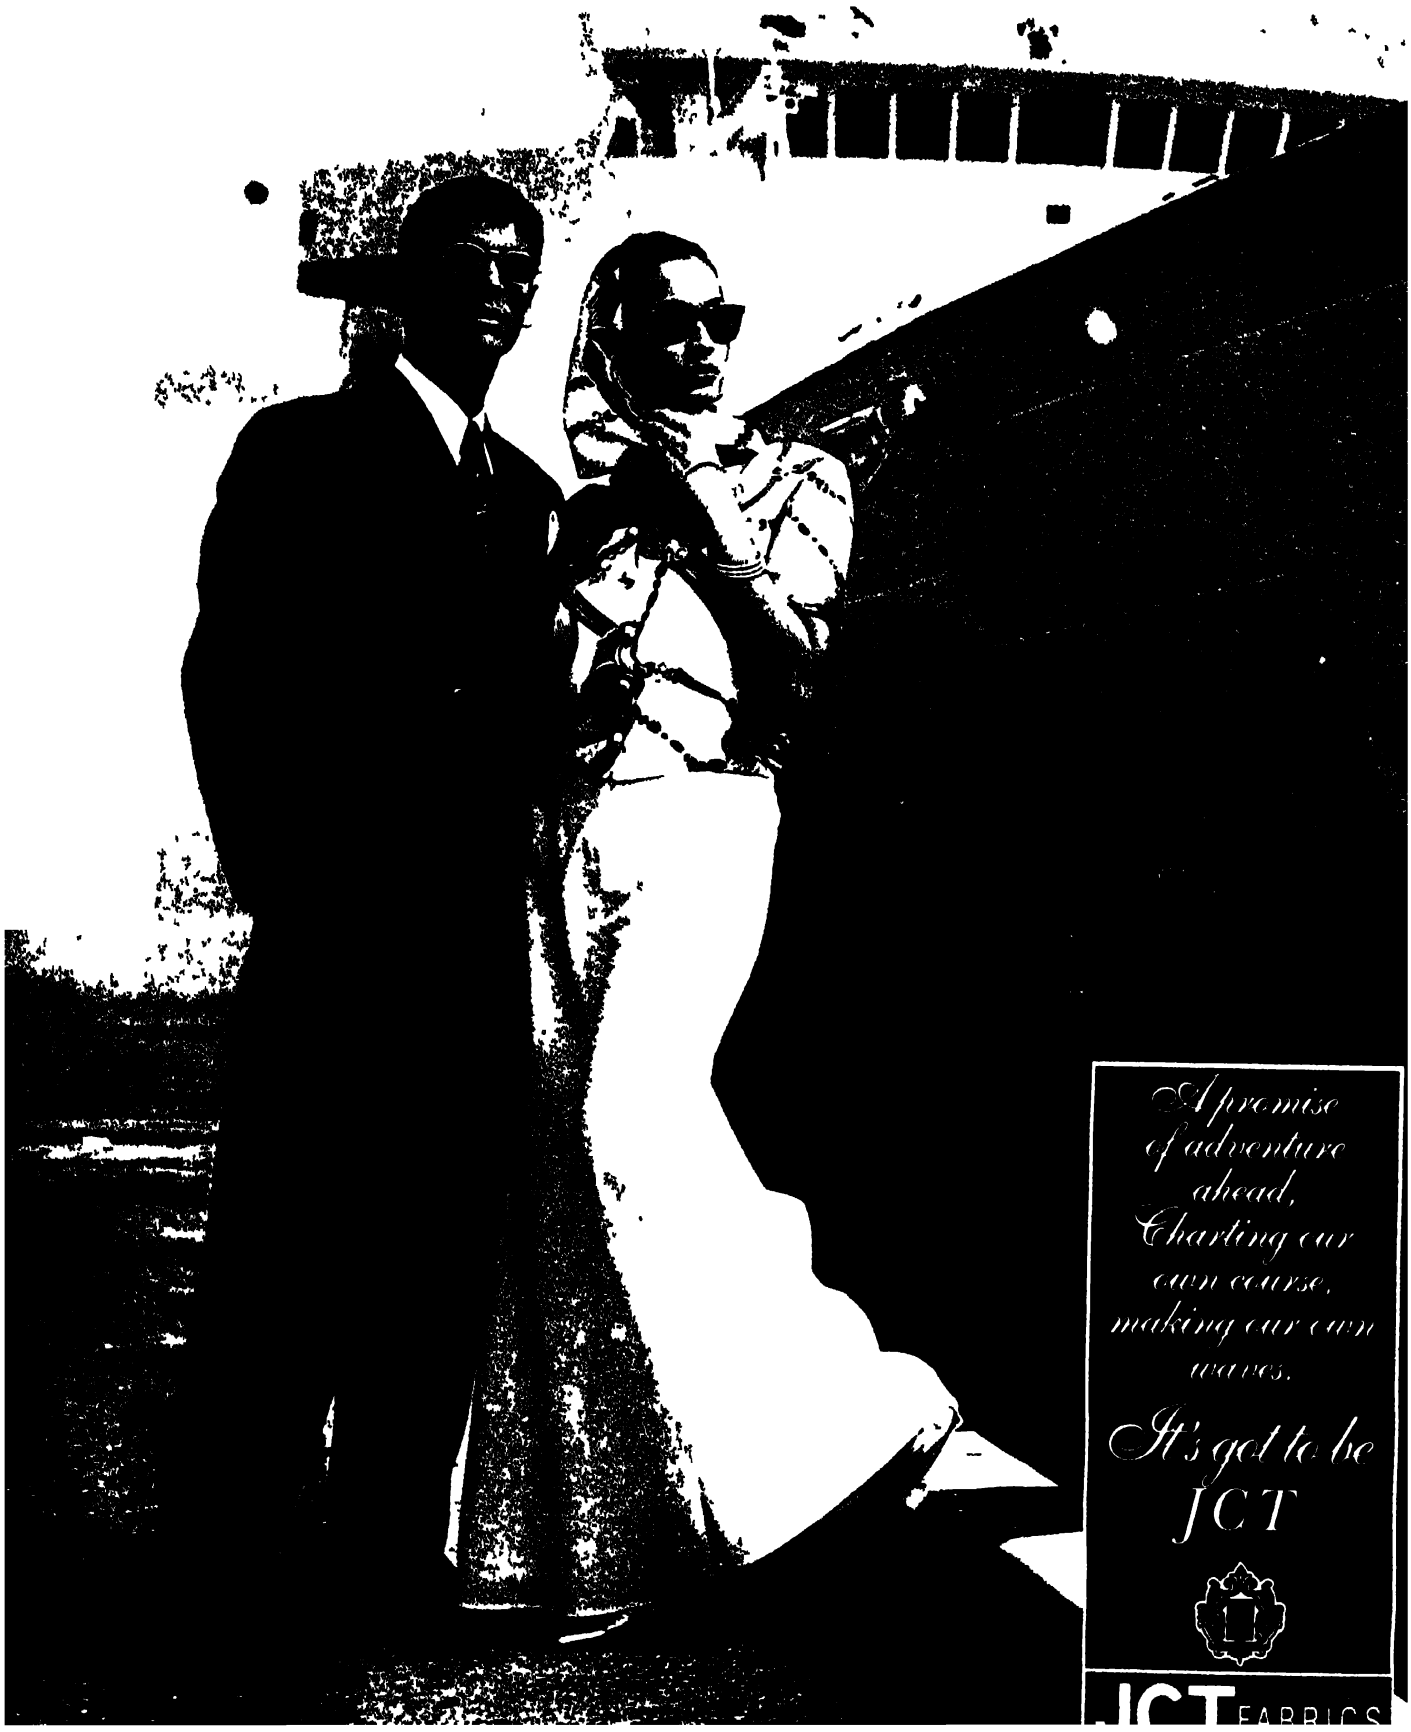
How would you like to be remembered?

When I am 45 years, as someone who started early in life and made her way singlehandedly up the ladder of success (if I do so by then)

How would you like to die?



A natural death, peacefully, with no regrets



What is your most precious possession?

My loo and my high knee boots

What is your nightmare?

The same as my greatest fears — to ever be left idle — I need to WORK

A surprise in contradictions.

A promise
of adventure
ahead,
Charting our own course,
making our own
waves.
It's got to be
JCT
JCT FABRICS

The Telegraph

23 APRIL 1995

POST MORTEM

Taken For a Ride

■ I wonder if it was a pragmatic decision on India's part to open up its market to foreign cars what with the country already neck-deep in debt ('Here They Are!', March 19)

India imports 55 per cent of its petroleum requirements Although shiny, sleek and smart, these gasoline guzzlers will prove to be a burden on the country's foreign exchange reserves

And diesel cars are more polluting than petrol-driven ones

The domestic automobile industry will now have to rev up, at least, to survive For the days of the Ambassador monopoly are about to be over

Priced at Rs 5 lakh and more, how many Indians can afford these cars? They are good as status symbols for the nouveau riche

Sukla Das,
Jamshedpur

■ The Maruti is not that poor a make of car that the Magazine can say, "Throw away that old Ambi or Maruti "

Maruti can compete with any foreign automobile R C Bhargava, the Maruti chief, rightly argues that competition from foreign dealers will not overwhelm Maruti

Arjun Jindal,
Calcutta

■ The cover story was like a colour television set being presented to a famished beggar

Shovanlal Bakshi,
Calcutta

■ In a country where roads are perpetually in a state of disrepair and villages remain alienated from cities because of lack of connecting roads, it is a dichotomy to have elegant Audis and Mercedes swishing past bullock carts and bicycles

What with pollution levels crossing the danger mark in most of the metros, is it advisable to add to the pollution by introducing more cars to the roads?

Debabrata Mohanty,
Balasore (Orissa)

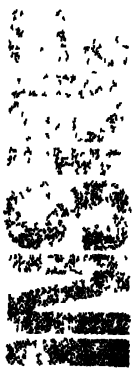
Prashant Arora

Shobha De: The reason why

■ It is nice to read about foreign cars, which one had so far only dreamed of, would enter the Indian market But how many Indians can afford them?

Panchanana Baskey
Baripada (Orissa)

Science, not Shobha!



■ It seems the Magazine has assigned itself the task of promoting every book Shobha De pens Very few people had heard of or read Shobha De till the Magazine featured her

On the contrary, it has been ages since you have published a science story on the cover I can assure you there will be more readers for stories on science than Shobha

Biswanath Mukherjee,
Jamshedpur

As you know, we have a weekly Science section called Knowhow which carries the finest stories on science. And they would never use Shobha De, to be sure!
— Editor

Jiggs Kalra's popular column, Rasoi, now appears in the Weekend section on Saturdays

Newsmen Features

PAGE 8

TWO SOCIAL statements Mike Tyson and Sunjay Dutt Tyson has just been released from jail, and people are wondering what he will smash next And how his term behind bars changed him And another kind of change altogether is what Sunjay Dutt is undergoing while still in jail

PAGE 4

WHAT WILL be 'in' this year? Basics, of course

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
19 RUSKIN BOND
20 GILLIAN WRIGHT
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
26 LIFESTYLE
29 POETRY
30 FIRST PERSON

J J Valaya's designs for 1995

For those that wear will have to be inspired by the back to the basics look. Sumita Chakraborty talks to the designers to find out what the accent will be on

Fashion, like art, is a barometer of social trends and translates all that happens onto clothes. The jungle prints and natural fibres, much in use in the last few seasons are an obvious throwback on growing environmental awareness

Similarly, this season many designers have gone back to the basics Fashions in 1995 will be gentler and easy on the eye and would largely be inspired by the ethnic look.

THIS

Though luxury fabrics — cashmeres, suede, alpaca — will be on display, the accent will be on the traditional fabric — cotton and its variations

From ethnic themes to sportswear fantasies, cotton power will be at its peak Just before his untimely death, India's best known designer, Rohit Khosla, had said somewhat prophetically, "The era of the grand fashion statement is over It is the basic philosophy of life which is changing Skirt lengths and shoulder widths are no longer the issues, it is the start of what is now known as the 'us' decade "

Khosla said that in the Nineties, women would want clothes that suit them during the day and look equally good in the night But the basic demand would be on high quality Dull clothes would be passe as Indians become more fashion-conscious than before

Says Ritu Beri, one of the country's top women designers, "A designer must remember clothes are meant to give an identity, not to take over your personality " She believes that the era of power-dressing, normally associated with yuppies, is now history.

Beri says the coming new year would be the "time for the rust and earthy colours" According to her, 1995 will herald back the demand for the traditional salwar kameez, ghagras and jackets for women.

On her part, she is using a lot of fabrics like organza, satins, silks and pure marble cotton. Her clothes in 1995 would wear a mellow or neutral look emphasising clean, straight lines and cuts. Her apparel would have a lot of embroidery and vintage motifs matched with an elegant simplicity.

A number of other designers are turning their sights to simple lines. Rohit Bal, one of India's best known designers, predicts an emphasis on traditional creativity and craftsmanship.

Just before his untimely death, India's best known designer Rohit Khosla had said somewhat prophetically, 'The era of the grand fashion statement is over. It is the basic philosophy of life which is changing. Skirt lengths and shoulder widths are no longer the issues

WILL BE IT

Poonam Bhogal's styles will be ethnic and eco-friendly

Bal's 1995 collections reflect the rich cultural heritage of India which is unique because it is a combination of mysticism and tradition Bal's winter collection is sensual and flowing for the women

The Romance of Romany is a collection of genuine antique shawls and coats from the heart of the desert. Unaltered, untouched classic, silhouettes, exquisite examples of the creativity and craft of the nomadic tribes The worn-over unicolour angarkhas provide a perfect foil, thereby, enhancing and offsetting the dazzling beauty of traditional needlecraft

Bal's 1995 menswear collection comprises a range of trendy daywear as also evening suits The classic and contemporary lines in navy blue, steel grey would lend sartorial elegance. The flashy ties would add a playful note for those with a spark of adventure

Bal's Indian collection is based on the timeless beauty of the crafts re-worked in new and unusual treatments. Kalamkari motifs in vegetable dye-prints are his stunning statement for 1995

The age-old craft of Naquashi is re-invented in a shimmering range of clothes that recall the glamour and the romance of the innocent Fifties But it is in his Kashmiri collection that Bal makes a grand fashion statement

In it, he has poured his memories of the lights,

A Ritu Ben creation

sounds, smell and magic of Kashmir "The Kashmir collection is not a return to roots but a clinging to ones roots," he says and adds, "it embodies a certain joy along with a sense of despair It's a collection that has been painstakingly created over months by craftsmen living under desperate situations "

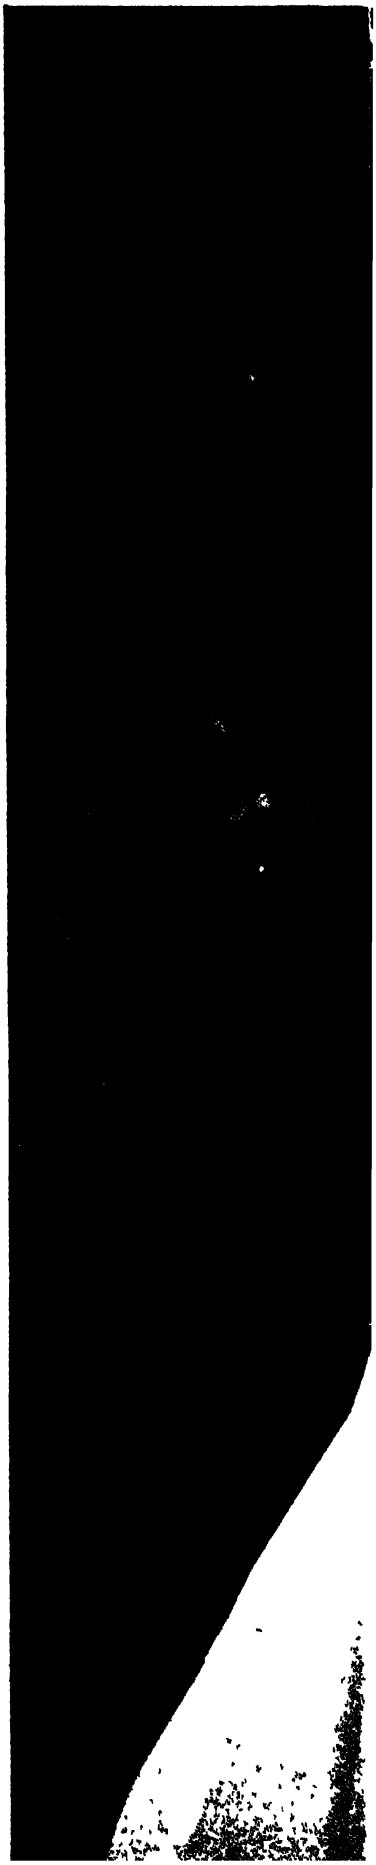
For men the black-grey off-white bandgala jackets will be the favourite evening dress in the coming year, he says The golden-silver thread work would add a definite touch of class to the otherwise drab-white cotton shirts

Adds Bal, "Indian fashions will be contemporary, yet classical Simple cuts and traditional values will re-define Indian classicism in the coming decade "

Payal Jain, the up-and-coming designer from Delhi, has created ripples in the country for the Western women's wear According to her, this year would be dictated by the fabric and styling

The new look of 1995 emphasises on "the modest silhouettes, neutrality would dominate the fashion scene," she says.

Payal's collections are variously called, Dream of the Lotus Eaters, Fountain of Joy, Sands of Time and La Cote d'Azur. Her designs present a blend of traditional ethnic element along with modernity She's created exquisite waist-coats and jackets for 1995



"I have gone for the classic wardrobe that's functional and visually elegant . My jacket colours are earthy rust, maroon and olive-green Simplicity marks all my styles "

If designs are going to be simple cuts spelling elegance, then fabrics will be no different In summer, cotton would be much in demand, with its near-variations running close Most fashion pundits feel that silk also will be extensively used But they feel that silk will be a winter fabric only, and would be in use more in the North where winters are well pronounced

Says a spokesperson for the leading Delhi boutique, Nalini "One is going to see a lot of new variations of the traditional salwar kameez in 1995 Subtle sensuality is going to creep into this age-old dress It will be a stunning merger as far as the 'Indian look' dresses are concerned "

Yet another young designer, Poonam Bhogal, says her ethnic style for this winter is in eco-friendly fabrics like cotton, linen and silk-linen blends Long tunics over crushed trousers are her favourites The tunics bearing crusty embroidery and applique work are inspired by the Turkish embellishment

Poonam glides her tails, block-prints and embroideries in order to give shape to her ideas Imagination is something which one can see in the clothes designed by her. The silks, crepes, tussers and sandwash silk, have vegetable colours splashed in good proportion in the outfits designed by her. Headgear, metallic jewellery, bright yellows, blues and reds are her favourite colours. "These may sound very outlandish but they will not stand out like a sore thumb."

Why have designers switched to simplicity and natural fabrics? For years silk and cotton have been treated as fabrics which lose gloss and shape as the day goes by.

But now with the emphasis more on the cloth itself and creative designs providing elegance, natural fabrics are on their way back. The new-found merger of East and West has opened up a whole new world of fashions for the Indian man and woman.

"It may sound ironical, but the positive attitude of the West towards Indian fashions has suddenly made Indian designers realise that ethnic is chic," says a leading Bombay exporter.

In the last couple of years, the basic buyers of designer clothes have undergone a sudden change. From bored, rich-rich, kitty-party types, the shopper profile has shifted to a result-oriented career women and professional men. And this new genre of buyers want clothes which spell confidence, because in contemporary urban India, confidence is the key to success.

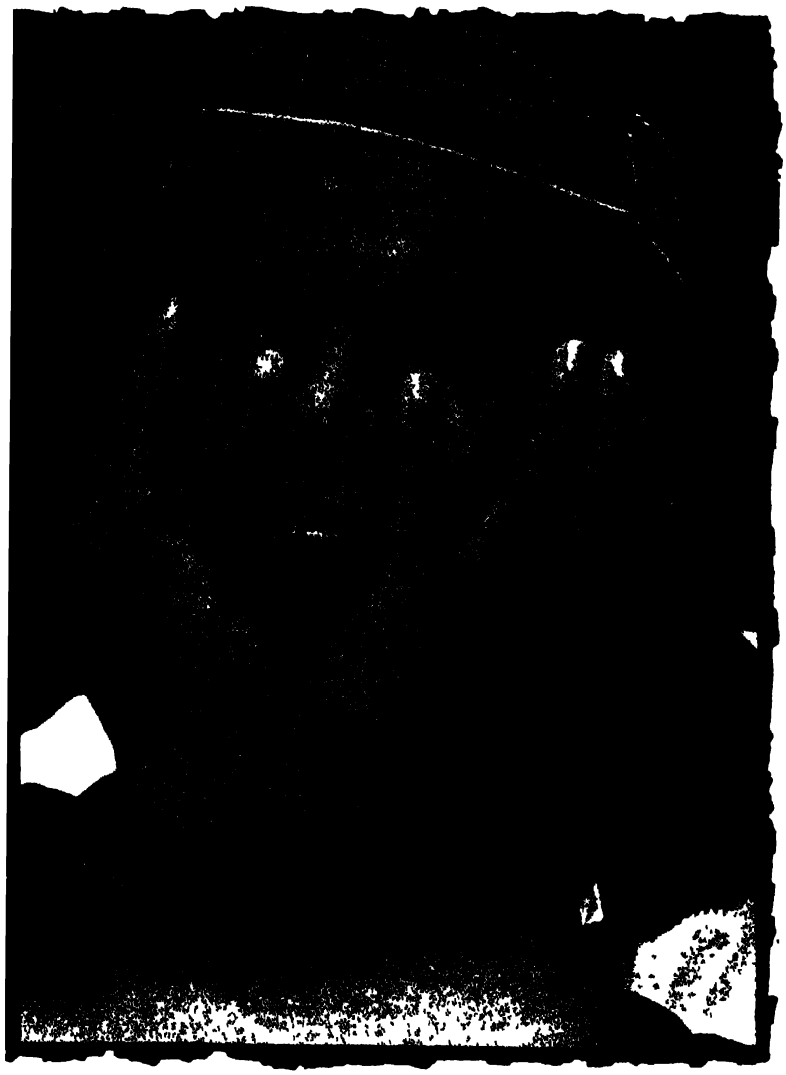
Unlike clothes, accessories would not be influenced by any one era. Tan is the shade this year. Crocodile-finish leather and sheepskin will be in vogue. Block heels and platforms are gradually wearing out and stilettos are the in thing. Even camel leather mujris and Rajasthani embroidered juttis would be in great demand on the hi-rash jet-set circuit surcharged with traditional glamour.

But, there is hardly any surprise for the conservative middle class or the upwardly mobile Indian male in 1995. The textures are mainly cotton and terry-cot in grey and black.

In apparel, too, according to most fashion retail outlets, it is the loose styles made of lighter stuff which move off the racks the fastest. For summers, it is cotton and khadi, and for winters, it is silk.

For daily wear, men are recommended to go in for thin pin-striped shirts and double-pleated trousers.

But despite fashion trends, the choice of colours depend on personal tastes. Some may like bright hues while others may go for earthen shades.



Says J J Valaya. "In the coming year, nothing spectacular will happen and most of the people will see a juxtaposing of clothes where pin-striped shirts with denims and Oxford shoes or cotton shirts and trousers would be as fashionable as the traditional suits."

(Newsmen Features)

In the last couple of years, the basic buyers of designer clothes have undergone a sudden change. From bored rich-rich, kitty-party types, the shopper profile has shifted to result-oriented career women and professional men

WHAT THE JAIL CAN DO TO A MAN

His success story appears straight out of an American thriller, his fall, swift and scandalous Robin Chatterjee gives a blow-by-blow account of Mike Tyson, the boxer, the rapist and the new man

ABOUT 15 MILES WEST OF INDIANAPOLIS, State Highway 40 moves through the neon shopping malls and weather-beaten homes in this town of 15,000 It snakes past the old village movie house on main street and Stacey's Cafe, then up a short hill. Suddenly, a narrow metal sign appears.

'Prison Area' it warns, 'Do Not Pick Up Hitchhikers.'

To the left, set back from Moon Road beyond dreary, empty fields in the flat farmland, a high chain-link fence topped with rolls of razor tipped barbed wire surrounds a thick beige-brick building.

'Indiana Department of Corrections,' a rustic sign reads, 'Reception and Diagnostic Center.'

Somewhere inside this correctional centre was Mike Tyson's grey and gloomy cell. A cell that had been his home for the last three years after he had been convicted as a rapist and sentenced to 10 years of prison. A sentence which was subsequently reduced to six years.

During these three years, the fearsome former heavyweight boxing champion of the world went through some of the most humiliating experiences of his life. When he went to jail, Tyson was

Muscle power

was only 25 years old and had the world at his feet

But to the warden and the guards of the correctional centre, he was not even Mike Tyson or the 'Champ' He was first, No 922335, in a blue shirt and blue jeans No 922335 whose swaggering stride irritated some of the guards and possibly a few other inmates

Then the time came for No 922335 to be assigned a prison job and the man who handed out knockout blows was seen behind the kitchen counter wearing a little jacket The champ served other inmates, three times a day

Humiliating

Being constantly counted out by the guards was an added humiliation Counted in his cell Counted to and from work or meals Counted to and from the yard Roll-called as many as 20 or 30 times a day

Besides there was the added frustration of living without money The millions Tyson made was useless here There was nothing to buy except candy, popcorn and potato chips on a once-a-week trip to the snack stand There were no thick steaks No liquor No cars No limos No discos No dates No sign of his former lavish lifestyle

More than anything else, Mike Tyson had to cope with the loneliness of prison Specially at night in the dark solitude of his cell

During the day he tried to keep himself busy Tyson's favourite time of the day was night But over the last three years, Tyson did not party at night Rather, he sat in his cell and took time off to reflect As he admitted, "I learned a lot while I was inside When they turned the lights out in prison, there was time to think back to what happened " To think about why he was there To think what he would do when he was released He thought about his pet pigeons and wondered if they would recognise him

Hell, if only he could watch old boxing films of Jack Johnson or Joe Louis or Sugar Ray Robinson or watch videotapes of his next opponent

Even though he still maintained that he was innocent, it was apparent that Tyson had resigned himself to his fate by deciding to spend quality time in prison. He started by embarking on an astonishing campaign of self-education

That would have to wait It would take some time for things to fall into place for Tyson, since his parole last month And till things sorted themselves out for this 29-year-old, convicted rapist, 'serial buttocks fondler' (Tyson claimed to have slept with 27 women in one night), and alleged sex maniac, No 922335 was going to be Tyson's main opponent

To say that Tyson's main problem is Tyson would be putting it mildly It is a verdict that most psychotherapists in America would not take long in pronouncing Why, even someone as immature as Tyson is not afraid of admitting that he messed up Like when he admitted in an interview to American magazine, Esquire, a month before he was released "I didn't even want to go to Indianapolis But I went I'm in town with the best girl (rap artist B Angie B) that everybody wants And I had to get this (jail sentence)

"Why'd I have to do that, huh, man?"

"Why'd I have to do that? I had a girl with me Why'd I have to make that call? Why'd I have to let her (Desiree Washington) come to my room?"

Judging by his statements it would be safe to conclude that Tyson is trying hard to exorcise the demons of his violent and enigmatic past His current admission of repentance reeks of a strong feeling of insecurity

Few people would believe that this was actually the same old arrogant and cocky kid, who, when asked to testify at his own trial, gave a 11-minute rambling statement that was variously defiant, a trifle remorseful and a little resigned

"I'm not here to beg for mercy," he said "Whatever happens, happens I'm not guilty of this crime, there were no black eyes, no broken ribs When I'm in the ring, I break their ribs, I break their jaws To me that's hurting somebody I expect the worst I don't know if I can deal with it, but I expect the worst"

This statement puts Tyson's personality into perspective For one thing, it reflects his life on the streets, a life that has formed his personality to what it is today and moulded itself along the profession that he chose boxing

Today, Tyson has stepped out of his prison cell and into the civilised world, finding that the spotlight is on him once more But, perhaps, there is a change in attitude A few days after his release, the media harped on the fact that he was a wronged man and was going to extract his pound of flesh from all those who had contributed to turning his world upside down

Everyone thought that Tyson could turn out to be what is known in prison terms as a 'touch off' guy Touch him and he explodes

But contrary to these reports, what emerged on that fateful day on March 25 was a humble, chastened, repentant (though still insecure) Tyson Even though he still maintained that he was innocent, it was apparent that Tyson had resigned himself to his fate by deciding to spend quality time in prison

He started by embarking on an astonishing campaign of self-education And till the day he was released, Tyson proudly claimed to have devoured everything from Machiavelli, Voltaire, Alexander Dumas and the biographies of Mao, Karl Marx, Genghis Khan and Herman Cortes

"I loved Voltaire's Candide," he claimed, projecting his new-found intellectual skills like a boxer who has just redefined the upper cut

'That was about the world and how you start out with one thing and end up with another, 'cause the world don't let you do the right thing most of the time"

Tyson also went far enough to identify with Alexander Dumas, aware that the grandmother of the French writer was a Black woman from Haiti

This was a stark personality change for the fighter whose tyranny became commonplace and whose ring victories had become ritual annd uneventful But now he ought to appear more interesting, now that he had portrayed himself to the public as a totally new concept altogether

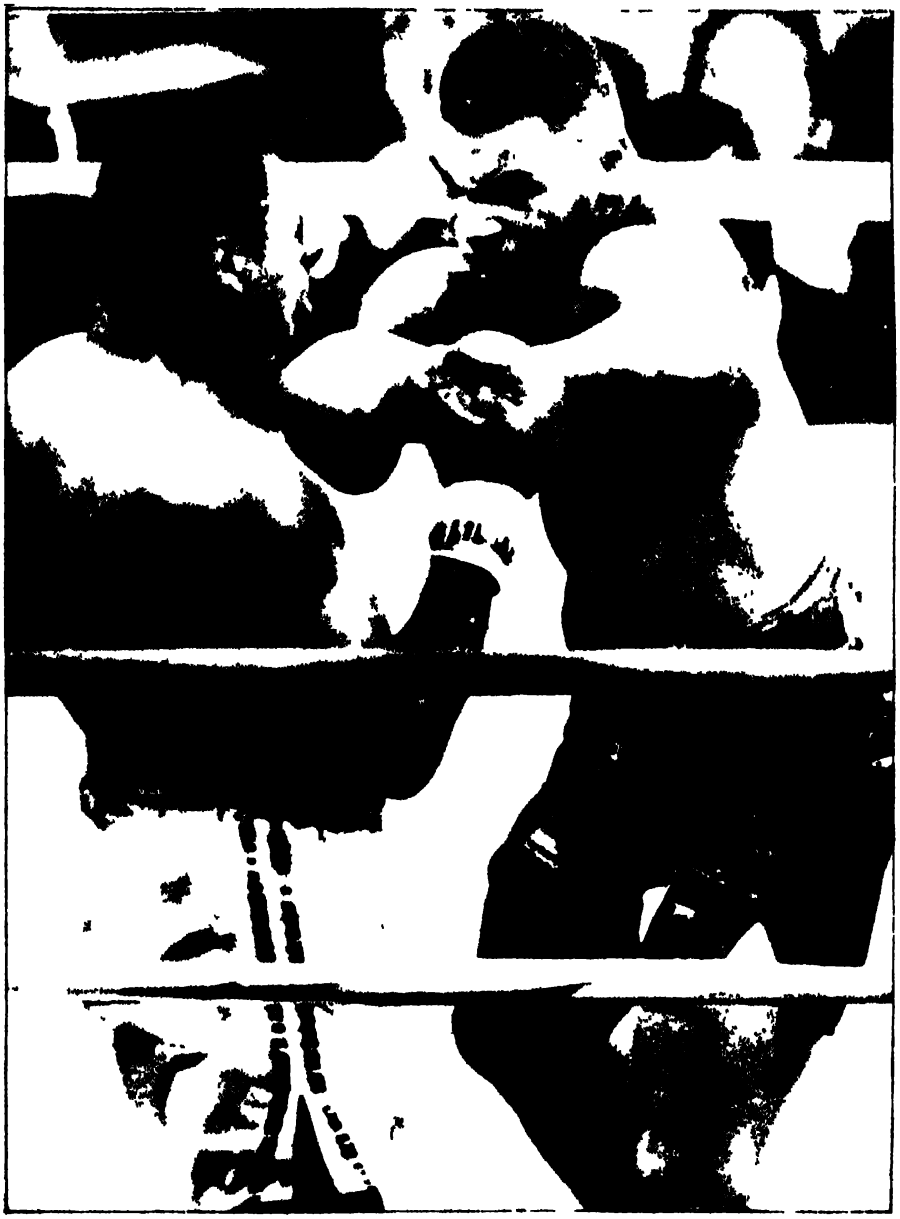
The laws of marketing are, perhaps, the most flexible and the rules of melodrama still hold And after Mike Tyson finishes airing his new-found priorities to David Letterman, Oprah Winfrey and Donahue, he will be perceived as a totally new product altogether, a highly marketable product

Tyson's 'Second Coming' will not only set the cash registers ringing, he will also be seen as some sort of saviour to the petty and fragmented world of professional boxing And irrespective of whether these bodies unite or not, every boxer will be waiting to have a shot at Tyson, because win or lose, it all translates down to some serious money

With his manager and promoter Don King

Tyson's 'Second Coming' will not only set the cash registers ringing, he will also be seen as some sort of saviour to the petty and fragmented world of professional boxing. And every boxer will be waiting to have a shot at Tyson, because win or lose, it all translates down to some serious money

Tyson, during his highly publicised three years in jail, borrowed emotional support from one Muhammad Sideeq The man who was baptised a 'born again Christian' by Rev Jesse Jackson just months before he went to prison, emerged from his cell as a 'devout' Muslim Sideeq made Tyson believe the deliverance from his problems lay in Islam



That was the spiritual angle There was another angle the commercial angle Tyson's conversion to Islam had a sort of marquee novelty value Perhaps he thought he could cash in on a bit of sensationalism following the example of a certain Cassius Clay

Let us consider these facts as a case in point with Tyson free, there are intense feeling and great curiosity about him either way This subsequently generates a great deal of interest and could be a catalyst for commercial success Financially, it means phenomenal amounts in prize money, gate receipts and revenues from pay-per-view on TV

Desiree Washington The girl behind the cause celebre

Fists of fury

But just what will the public get the second time around? Will Tyson be a watered-down version of Iron Mike Or will he be capable of recapturing his old fury and the laser focus that smashed his opponents?

From the boxing point of view, Tyson is still a young man considering the ages of some of his contenders His disadvantage, however, lies in the methods he has used to pursue his sport Tyson's style was based on strength and quickness, not finesse and reflexes He took boxing from the realms of sweet science to that of an abstract art portrayed by blood and thunder

Keeping his boxing style in mind, one must also accept that Tyson has spent three years of his boxing prime time in prison And it is possible that these three years may have robbed the best of Tyson

They have also taken away his peace of mind and replaced it with a deep sense of insecurity Tyson realises that those cronies and sycophants who filled his mind with a false sense of self-esteem are, today, all gone "I'm mad at a lot of people Where are all those guys I gave Rolex watches and gold rings? Where are these people?"

Friends from the original 'Team Tyson' speak of the former champion as being in a 'mental hole', unhinged by notions of vulnerability To make matters worse for Tyson, promoter Don King, the man he loved and respected, is said to have siphoned off a major portion of Tyson's wealth

It is alleged that members of King's family were paid fees that were charged to Tyson! A fee of $15,000 per fight for several fights to a son in-law, $52,000 a year to King's daughter who was president of the Mike Tyson Fan Club, consultancy fees of $50,000-$100,000 to King's sons and his wife Besides that Tyson bore substantial expenses in the operation of King's business, including a $750,000 deduction for overheads at Don King Productions

And, then, there were the phenomenal expenses that arose out of Tyson's trial But Tyson still illustrates his immaturity by retaining Don King as his manager and promoter

Today, Tyson is mad and intends to get even against society as a whole and the only way that he can channelise this anger is in the ring "I'm going to kill the first guy who gets in the ring with me Then they'll put me back in jail for murder instead of calling it a boxing contest"

These words reflect not just Tyson's anger, but his inherent fear of the legal system, which he believes will make him pay for any little misdemeanour on his part To add to this, Tyson is not really free he is on parole for the next four years, with an undertaking to put in community service But one thing is for certain one is not going to see Tyson with a blind date for a long time

It is evident that Tyson has no other option but to behave himself If he was just another misguided kid with a lot of aggression and little cash he might not have changed because he would have nothing to lose But the fact is that Tyson has a lot to lose -- more so financially

As it is, the last three years have deprived him of hundreds of millions of dollars and to earn all that back, Tyson will have to fight almost every other boxer who comes his way dangling a heavy purse

Friends from the original 'Team Tyson' speak of the former champion as being in a 'mental hole', unhinged by notions of vulnerability. To make matters worse for Tyson, promoter Don King, the man he loved and respected, is said to have siphoned off a major portion of Tyson's wealth

To get back his respect and his admirers, Tyson has to win his fights and subsequently his money But the Mike Tyson we will see in the ring may not be the 'real thing' It is doubtful whether Tyson will be able to regain his cocky, streetfighter's attitude after the events that have changed his life

The past, for Tyson, was a series of quicksilver moments The present, and his efforts to cope with it, will be a momentous effort

Tinsel town's macho star, Sunjay Dutt, may be guilty, he may not be But the nine months behind bars seem to have crushed him forever, feels Vaishali Honawar

Being led to the TADA court in Bombay

A few days back, newspapers reported a 'breakdown' by Bollywood's little boy lost, Sunjay Dutt, at a court hearing because he could not meet his lady love, model Rhea Pillai, on her birthday

While Sunjay himself denied it the next day, the agency report — fabricated or otherwise — was very much a reflection of how people have come to perceive this man who was once the numero uno in the Hindi film world as a broken person Broken by prison

It is not an image new to Dutt Junior The first-born of illustrious parents — the beautiful, gentle-mannered Nargis and the sincere, cultured Sunil Dutt — it would seem that in Sunjay s case, his 'high birth' has been more a liability than an asset as it has kept the spotlight firmly fixed on him and his escapades over his nearly 36 years of life

A dropout from Elphinstone College, Bombay, Sunjay made his debut at 19 as a hero in Rocky, a home production that fared badly The lanky Sunjay made news again when it was revealed that the sleepy look that had made many hearts skip a beat was actually induced by brown sugar

The death of his mother shattered him, he was said to be very close to her Indeed, in one of his interviews after Sunjay's arrest, Sunil Dutt was quoted as saying that so "blinded by love was his mother that she could see nothing wrong in her son"

Tearing down Sunjay's cutout from a cinema hall in Calcutta soon after his arrest

His many affairs with co-stars like Tina Munim, Rati Agnihotri, Kimi Katkar and Madhuri Dixit — with a childlike Sunjay almost always appearing to lean on his women for moral, near-maternal, support — did not do much for him Inevitably, it was the women who walked out on him, hurtling him into a new affair destined to doom

In between came his marriage to actress Richa Sharma and it would have appeared that they were to live happily ever after But shortly after, Richa was diagnosed as having a brain tumour A prolonged period of medical treatment in the US followed and by the end of it even their daughter, Trishala, did not prove to be a bond strong enough to hold them together

To Sunjay's credit, however, he has always bounced back from his problems, no matter how grave, with amazing strength A stint at a rehabilitation centre in the US thankfully took care of his drug problem

As an actor he has proved himself always doing better than in his previous film Despite quite a few disasters at the beginning of his career - he was even written off as an actor and had no films on hand for a year - he went on to give extremely sensitive performances in successful films like Saajan, Khal-Nayak and Sadak which established him as one of tinsel town's best bets

A physical weakling - he was all arms and legs as the gawky Rocky he later made brawn fashionable Described once by choreographer Saroj Khan as a man with two left feet, he went on to become "a capable dancer"

But, as usual, life was not kind to Sunjay for too long No sooner had he reached the coveted number one position and was actually being compared to the Big B, no less, he was arrested in May 1993 under the Terrorist and Disruptive Activities (Prevention) Act for illegal possession of an AK-56 rifle

Once again Sunjay's childish impulsiveness had landed him in a spot, this time a far stickier one than he deserved

The muscles have now disappeared and Sunjay has lost over 20 kgs in jail The man who once loved to dress up now walks around barefoot, with a shaggy beard spoiling a Rs 40-lakh-a-film face

His father has even voiced fears of Film fraternity solidarity

his son going back to drugs after this harrowing experience "Sunjay used to be a person who could not sit still at one place for a while," says Sunil Dutt "There was a time when he would work out in the gym for two hours a day He cannot do that now and that has harmed his appetite"

Also, he has a lung problem and that, coupled with the tension, is leading to weight loss But, he is quick to add, "Sunjay can adjust to all circumstances He has no airs of stardom A lot of film workers have told me time and again that they never felt, while with him, that he was a star"

Indeed, there is a very generous side to this young man that many will vouch for, from unit hands whom he helped during a harrowing strike to the constables at the jail with whom he shares his sumptuous lunches from his father's Pali Hill bungalow

Sunjay was also one of the driving forces behind the formation of a peace committee after the Bombay riots Perhaps, it was a characteristic of his famous temper that he later went on and said, following his first arrest and subsequent release that "I will never again lift a finger to help anyone in distress"

His nine months in jail since July 1994, however, have mellowed him considerably The man who once said in the wake of a controversy surrounding Anupam Kher that "Anupam Kher only slapped the journalist, I would have shot him," now reads devotional books in jail

Says Sunil Dutt "He is a great devotee of Sri Sai Baba and reads a lot of books on him Also a couple of novels and some comics he loved as a child He also writes letters he receives a lot of fan mail—even letters written in blood, expressing love and faith in him" This helps to keep him going, he adds, along with support from his family who are allowed to meet him twice a week

Sunil Dutt admits that Sunjay is terribly lonely and in a depressed state of mind, "but who wouldn't be, given the circumstances?" "He is an innocent man who is a victim of circumstances If a person has not done anything wrong, he will feel only more frustrated Given his family background, there is no way he could have been involved in something like the bomb blasts, yet today everyone has forgotten about the other people accused in the blasts case It is only Sunjay whose name keeps coming up all the time"

Sunil Dutt, however, is still hopeful about the future, given the fact that "wherever I go in the country, from the Northeast to the south, in Calcutta, Madras, Tiruchirapalli, anywhere people come up to me and express their faith in Sunjay's innocence" This love, he feels, will also sustain his career when he returns to it, "though his career is not what we are worried about at this stage" "As long as people want to know him and love him, he can always make a comeback" ■

Says Sunil Dutt: 'He is a great devotee of Sri Sai Baba and reads a lot of books on him. Also a couple of novels and some comics he loved as a child. He also writes letters...he receives a lot of fan mail—even letters written in blood, expressing love and faith in him.' This helps to keep him going

INNER EYE ❑ Bejan Daruwalla

Aries

March 21—April 20

The planets help you to be imaginative and ambitious, so you will be successful and lucky What you do now will have its effect in the coming months A change in your area of work seems inevitable Sail with the tide rather than resist it Trips and ties are on the cards

Taurus

April 21—May 20

This would be a good time to switch jobs, ask for help and favours Get your house renovated and decorated This is also a week when you can plan a campaign, sign a major contract, take a major decision, or go for a major lease There is a lot of hard work to be done

Gemini

May 21—June 20

This would be a great time to make pots of money, bag contracts and assignments You will not have to strive hard for either of these things It is also a phase for launching out in style News of an exciting sort will reach you shortly You could both work hard and socialise extensively

Cancer

June 21—July 20

It would be best to get on with publicity, travel, contracts and communication Expenses will be heavy, but, nonetheless necessary This is an action-packed week for you Your suspicions will prove right Do get in touch with people to further your goals

Leo

July 21—August 21

Matters of the mind work out smoothly for you this week Business collaborations will be highlighted and the scales will swing in your favour Use your contacts with discretion This would be the time to enjoy life as also to get work done Some of you will be preparing for a journey

Virgo

August 22—September 22

Fine formation of planets will favour research, education, hobbies, sports, childbirth and romance There will be a lot of pending work which you will have to handle Funds, buying, selling and investment are of the utmost importance Make plans for the future

Libra

September 23—October 22

As the planets connect in a happy way finances and a sense of well-being come together in the coming days There will be ample scope for love Your work too will take up a large part of your time Friends and colleagues reach out to you making you feel good You can take risks

Scorpio

October 23—November 22

The New Moon signifies trips and ties, conferences, meets or a new line of work You will form close associations with people who matter and that will be a permanent one In matrimony, it is time to make a decision A shift or a possible house-warming is possible

Sagittarius

November 23—December 20

The importance will be on loans funds, selling buying, and investments Plenty of movement for Sagittarians now are foreseen Much can, and should be achieved in the coming months Friends will reach out to you making you feel good

Capricorn

December 21—January 19

The call of distant places and greener pastures will be irresistible Additions to the family are more than possible Things begin to happen fast and that should include both romance and finances This week could present opportunities galore The homefront brings joy

Aquarius

January 20—February 18

This a week when you can register gains There is a lot happening in terms of buying selling, renovation decoration and investments There will however, be time to socialise annd cultivate a hobby Your family members will be very pleased with you

Pisces

February 19—March 20

This is the week when long-distance connections are bound to take up a lot of your time Meetings ties and conferences are also foretold You could be asked to help out a person in dire need Trips ties and social activities take up a lot of your time Do give some attention to pending work

BIRTHDAYS

April 23: This is the time to move courageously and take what you want Travel seems strongly indicated for the footloose and fancyfree

April 24: There will be planning and performance on your part this birthyear It is a year when you should take chances and make changes

April 25: There are ample opportunities in store for you both in the sphere of work as well as property This is also a favourable time for creative people

April 26: There is no reason why you should not be doing well this year Those who are involved in teaching, finances and research fulfill their aims

April 27: The conjunction of planets promise glory and joy Success, be it in marriage, health or work, are positively assured Trips are indicated

April 28: Intuition, inspiration and luck will be at your disposal So just relax and take things easily this year Cultivate friends

April 29: You will have the drive to move ahead in matters related to property, job, children, romance and in matters related to the work front

TIME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

■ AGARTALA

Departures Flt No	Time	Days	Arrivals Flt No	Time	Days
IC 741	0710	3 5	IC 742	0940	3 5
IC 743	0920	daily	IC 744	1150	daily
PF 701	1130	1 3 5 7	PF-702	1610	1 3 5 7

■ AIZAWL

PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7

■ BAGDOGRA

PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1
PF-737	0730	3 5	PF 738	1740	3
IC 721	1300	1 3 5	IC 722	1540	1 3 5

■ BANGALORE

IC 771	0600	daily	IC 772	1140	daily

■ BHUBANESWAR

IC 544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC 770	2120	1 3 5

■ BOMBAY

IC 676	0640	daily	IC 675	0820	daily
D2 102	0905	daily	D2 101	0835	daily
IC 273	1945	daily	AI 306	1840	5
9W 212	1945	daily	9W 211	1910	daily
D2 104	2005	daily	D2 103	1935	daily
AI 309	2035	6	IC 274	2050	daily
AI 681	2350	1

■ DELHI

			S2 025	0810	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC 263	0700	daily	IC 262	0815	2 4 7
S2 026	0845	1 2 3 4 5 6	M9 303	0825	daily
M9 304	0905	daily	AI 682	0950	1
IC 812	1515	1 3 5	S2 015	1015	1 3 5
S2 016	1555	1 3 5	4S 806	1110	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC 402	1715	daily	IC 401	1155	daily
4S 805	1745	1 2 3 4 5 6	S2 005	1855	1 2 3 4 5 7
IC 261	1900	2 4 7	IC 811	1930	1 3 5
S2 006	1930	1 2 3 4 5 7	M9 301	1950	daily
M9 302	2030	daily	IC 264	2110	daily

■ DIBRUGARH

PF 737	0730	3 5	IC 704	1430	3 5
IC 703	0800	3 5	D2 181	1620	1 3 5 7
D2 181	1135	1 3 5 7	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	IC 702	1630	2 4 6 7
4S 815	1150	1 2 3 4 5 6	4S 816	1710	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC 701	1240	2 4 6 7	PF 738	1740	3 5

■ DIMAPUR

IC 257	1150	4 7	IC 258	1650	4 7

■ GUWAHATI

PF 735	0730	1	IC 711	1410	2 6
PF 737	0730	3 5	IC 704	1430	3 5
PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	IC 708	1430	1 4 7
IC 703	0800	3 5	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
IC 707	0800	1 4 7	D2 181	1620	1 3 5 7
IC 711	0800	2 6	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2 181	1135	1 3 5 7	IC 230	1650	daily
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	4S 811	1710	1 2 3 4 5 6
4S 815	1150	1 2 3 4 5 6	PF 736	1730	1

Departures Flt No	Time	Days	Arrivals Flt No	Time	Days
IC 257	1150	4 7	PF 738	1740	3 5
IC 211	1240	4 6	IC 258	1740	4 7
IC 229	1310	daily	IC 212	1740	4 6

■ HYDERABAD

S2 023	1045	1 3,5	S2 024	1525	1 3 5
IC 777	1600	2 4 7	IC 778	2100	2 4 7
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC 770	2120	1 3 5

■ IMPHAL

IC 707	0800	1 4 7	IC 256	1320	3 5
IC 255	0830	3 5	IC 708	1430	1 4 7
IC 253	1100	2 6	IC 254	1550	2 6

■ JORHAT

IC 213	0910	2 4 7	IC 213	1315	2 4 7

■ LILABARI

PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1

■ LUCKNOW

IC-812	1515	1 3 5	IC 811	1930	1 3 5

■ MADRAS

IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC 765	1720	daily	D2 171	1045	daily
D2-172	1740	daily	IC 766	2220	daily

■ NAGPUR

IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC 770	2120	1 3 5

■ PATNA

IC 249	1430	2 4 7	S2 015	1015	1 3 5
S2 016	1555	1 3 5	IC 249	1805	2 4 7
IC 812	1515	1 3 5	IC 811	1930	1 3 5

■ PORT BLAIR

IC 285	0640	3 5 7	IC-286	1100	2 4 6

■ RANCHI

IC 249	1430	2 4 7	IC 249	1805	2 4 7

■ SHILLONG

PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7

■ SILCHAR

IC 255	0830	3 5	IC 260	1110	1 7
IC 259	0830	1 7	IC 256	1320	3 5
IC 253	1100	2 6	IC 254	1550	2 6
IC 211	1240	4 6	IC 212	1740	4 6

■ TEZPUR

IC 213	0910	2 4 7	IC 213	1315	2 4 7

■ TEZU

PF 737	0730	3 5	PF 738	1740	3 5

■ VARANASI

S2 016	1555	1 3 5	S2 015	1015	1 3 5

■ VISHAKHAPATNAM

IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5

■ ZIRO

PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1

FLIGHTS — INTERNATIONAL

■ AMMAN

RJ 185	1445	4	RJ 184	0705	4

■ AMSTERDAM

KL 876	0420	7	KL 875	0235	7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[illegible]
IC-731	0655	2 4, 6, 7	KB-106	1115	3
			KB-106	1215	5
KB-105	1125	2, 6	TG-313	1240	1 3, 6
TG-314	1355	1, 3 6	IC-732	1505	2 4, 6 7
AI 306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6
[illegible]
RO-076	1950	5 7	RO-075	1055	5 7
[illegible]
IC-225	1200	1	IC 226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2, 5	BG-697	1655	2, 5
[illegible]
BG-092	0850	4, 5	BG-091	0810	4 5
BG-092	1150	1, 2 3 6 7	BG-091	1110	1 2 3 6 7
IC 723	1250	1 2 3 5 6	IC-724	1520	1 2 3 5 6
BG-094	1905	1 2, 3, 5, 6 7	BG-093	1825	1 2 3 5 6 7
BG 094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG 096	2100	1 5	BG 095	2020	1 5

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[illegible]
IC-747	1115	1, 3 5	IC-748	1455	1, 3, 5
RA 214	1815	1 4	RA-213	1715	1 4
LONDON
BA 142	2050	3 7	BA 143	1525	3 7
MOSCOW
SU 538	1855	4	SU-537	1655	4
PARIS
KB 106	1200	3	KB 105	1040	2 6
KB 106	1300	5
SINGAPORE
SQ-415	2345	2 5	SQ-416	2230	2 5
SOFIA
LZ 504	1750	4	LZ 503	1650	4
TOKYO
AI 306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
2311	19 15	Delhi Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19 20	Amritsar Mail	[illegible]	4006
3003	20 35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13 00	4004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat	16 15	2382
2303	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun
2301	16 30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun
		Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat	12 50	2306
3073	23 00	Himgiri (Jammu Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat Arr Tues Wed & Sat	11 35	3074
5047	13 00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Su Mon Wed & Fri	4 30	5048
3009	20 30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9 15	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18 15	3008
3049	13 20	Amritsar Express	15 30	3050
3039	21 00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5 20	3040
3019	16 05	Kathgodam Express	11 55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5 00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6 30	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17 11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18 20	Asansol Express	8 15	3036
3031	21 05	Danapur Express	5 56	3032
3025	23 00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday Arr Friday	11 35	3026
3071	22 30	Jamalpur Express	5 10	3072
3015	9 55	Santiniketan Express	15 40	3016
1159	15 25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tues & Wed	6 50	1160
1171	15 25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed Arr Fri Sat & Sun	6 50	1172
3327	14 30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4 50	3328
1181	15 25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6 50	1182
		Sealdah
3141	13 40	Teesta Torsa Express Dep Mon Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed Thurs Fri Sat & Sun
3143	19 15	Darjeeling Mail	8 45	3144
3111	20 15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7 15	3112
5657	6 25	Kanchanjunga Express	20 45	5658
3153	22 00	Gour Express	7 15	3154
5663	20 00	Katihar Express	1 15	5664
3151	11 45	Jammu Tawi Express	15 50	3152
3133	20 55	Mughal Sarai Express via SBG Loop	12 55	3134
3103	18 20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express	10 25	3104
5185	12 40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues Thus & Sat	4 25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6 50	6004
8002	13 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12 00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	1940	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13 45	6312
8013	1 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express	22 05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5 00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5 30	8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8 25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00	8046
8017	16 45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2421	16 40	Bhubaneswar New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10
	1 05	New Delhi Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15
	11 05	Trivandrum Central Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 45	6321
	11 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly	13 45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Vishakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Vishkhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13 45	6315
6520	22 35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15
	11 05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains please dial 2203545 54 for in coming trains 2203535 44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains dial 2203496 3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running) 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 1503535 37

COMPUTERS
THE
NEW QUALIFICATION
CHANDRA DATA SYSTEMS
A complete course of Computer Education
Prepare you for Today
[illegible] Prachand Path
Calcutta 700 073
Opt. Mohammed Ali Park
Ph 238 7505 / 231 2445

The Telegraph Classifieds

ADMISSION NOTICE

- Adv. Diploma in Computer Sc. & Management (18 months).

Course Contents
WINDOWS, FOX-PRO, CLIPPER, UNIX, C/C++, LAN, VISUAL C++, HARDWARE MAINTENANCE & OTHERS

Fees Rs 10,000/- payable in instalments

NSCT
National School of Computer Technology
2 Raja Basanta Roy Road (between Rashbehari Crossing & Lake Market) Cal-26,
Ph 76-7610(Office)

120 hrs. of extra practicals at your convenience apart from regular practicals.

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL is promoted and sponsored by Institute of Advanced Management, the country's most premier centre for Management Education IAM, formed in 1989, with global collaborations is ranked as one of the very best Hospitality Management Institute in India And now, IAM brings you the prestigious IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL with the mission of providing Management Education of international standard through state of the art methods of training and research IAM's years of experience, solid infra-structure and close relation with the industry and business would make IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL, one of the leading Management Institute of the country

THE COURSE

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL offers the following courses for the Academic session 1995-96
TWO YEAR POST GRADUATE DIPLOMA IN MANAGEMENT
(Full time Course, Monday to Friday, 10 AM to 5 PM)
THREE YEAR POST GRADUATE DIPLOMA IN MANAGEMENT
(Evening Course, Monday to Friday, 6 PM TO 8 PM)

ADMISSION PROCEDURE

Admission to the "Post Graduate Diploma in Management' Courses would be through a Admission Test conducted by IAM Graduates in any discipline with a minimum of 50% marks in aggregate are eligible Students appearing for the Final Degree Examination may also apply Upper age limit: 25 years as on 01 07 1995

PROSPECTUS & FORMS

Prospectus and forms are available from the Institute's office and also from the City Office on cash payment of Rs 100/- Outstation candidates have to send Rs 120/- by M O Only to the Executive Director, IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL, AE-486, Salt Lake, Calcutta-700 064.

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL
AE 486, Salt Lake, Calcutta-700 064. Dial: 37-7726.
City Office: IAM, 37/1B, Hazra Road, 2nd Floor, Calcutta-700 029. Dial: 475-9237 & 74-8132.

INTRODUCING
1 YEAR
New Diploma Courses in

- BUSINESS MANAGEMENT/ ADMINISTRATION
- MARKETING MANAGEMENT
- JOURNALISM
- TOURISM
- PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT
- BACHELOR OF EDUCATION

Eligibility Graduation in any stream
Duration 1 year
For further details contact director
Salt Lake College of Business Management
BG 101 Salt Lake City
Cal 91 Ph 37 1916

Join Quest's
interactive
MULTIMEDIA
ANIMATION
2D-3D GRAPHICS
LAN/DTP/CAD
COMMERCIAL APPLICATIONS
Courses
Special Summer Courses Available.
Contact
QUEST INSTITUTE OF ADVANCED COMPUTING
Suite-7A, 12A Camac St
Cal-17 Ph 242-1154

We take your international career as seriously as you do.

Conducted by Trade-Wings INSTITUTE • OF • MANAGEMENT

DIPLOMA IN
- International Airline
- Travel, Tourism and Hotel Management
- Airhostess & Flight Purser Course

ASTA American Society of Travel Agents
HAWAII

Calcutta 1 Crooked Lane Room No 108, 1st floor behind Great Eastern Hotel Cal-69 Ph 243-0625 Fax 91-33-2487825

Gariahat 1B Kumudini Apts 1/1 Dover Lane Cal-29 Ph 76-7727/440-6356

Asansol 1st floor Mritunjoy Bhawan 56/2 West Apcar Garden, Asansol-713 304 Ph 20-5701/2532

Guwahati G N B Road, Silpukhuri (Near Goswami Service) Guwahati-781003

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

OLD WALL CHARM

It is time to confess that at least half my life has been spent in idleness My old school would not be proud of me Nor would my Aunt Muriel

"You spend most of your time sitting on that wall, doing nothing," scolded Aunt Muriel, when I was seven or eight "Are you thinking about something?"

"No, Aunt Muriel "

"Are you dreaming?"

"I'm awake "

"Then what on earth are you doing there?"

"Nothing, Aunt Muriel "

"He'll come to no good,' she warned the world at large He'll spend all his life sitting on walls, doing nothing "

And how right she proved to be! Sometimes I bestir myself, and bang out a few sentences on my old typewriter, but most of the time I'm still sitting on that wall, preferably in the winter sunshine Thinking? Not very deeply Dreaming? But I've grown too old to dream Meditation, perhaps That's been fashionable for some time But it isn't that either Contemplation might come closer to the mark

Was I born with a silver spoon in my mouth that I could afford to sit in the sun for hours, doing nothing? Far from it, I was born poor and remained poor, as far as worldly riches went But one has to eat and pay the rent And there have been others to feed too So I have to admit that between long bouts of idleness there have been short bursts of creativity My typewriter, after more than 30 years of loyal service, has finally collapsed, proof enough that it has not lain idle all this time

Sitting on walls, apparently doing nothing, has always been my favourite form of inactivity But for these walls, and the many idle hours I have spent upon them, I would not have written even a fraction of the hundreds of stories, essays and other diversions that have been banged out on the typewriter over the years It is not the walls themselves that set me off or give me ideas, but a personal view of the world that I receive from sitting there

Creative idleness, you could call it A receptivity to the world around me — the breeze, the warmth of the old stone, the lizard on the rock, a raindrop on a blade of grass — these and other impressions impinge upon me as I sit in that passive, benign condition that makes people smile tolerantly at me as they pass

"Eccentric writer," they remark to each other, as they drive on, hurrying in a heat of hope, towards the pot of gold at the end of their personal rainbows

It's true that I am eccentric in many ways, and old walls bring out the essence of my eccentricity

I do not have a garden wall This shaky tumbledown house in the hills is perched directly above a motorable road, making me both accessible and vulnerable to casual callers of all kinds — inquisitive tourists, local busybodies, schoolgirls with their poems, hawkers selling candyfloss, itinerant sadhus, scrap merchants, potential Nobel Prize winners

Sitting on walls, apparently doing nothing, has always been my favourite form of inactivity. But for these walls, and the many idle hours I have spent upon them, I would not have written even a fraction of the hundreds of stories, essays and other diversions that have been banged out on the typewriter over the years

To escape them, and to set my thoughts in order, I walk a little way up the road, cross it and sit down on a parapet wall overlooking the Woodstock spur Here, partially shaded by an overhanging oak, I am usually left alone I look suitably down and out, shabbily dressed, a complete nonentity — not the sort of person you would want to be seen talking to!

Stray dogs sometimes join me here Having been a stray dog myself at various periods of my life, I can empathise with these friendly vagabonds of the road Far more intelligent than your in-bred Pom or Peke, they let me know by their silent companionship that they are on the same wave-length They sport about on the road, but do not yap at all and sundry

Left to myself on the wall, I am soon in the throes of composing a story or essay or poem I do not write it down - that can be done later — I just work it out in my mind, memorise my words, so to speak, and keep them stored up for my next writing session

Occasionally, a car will stop, and someone I know will tick his head out and say, "No work today, Mr Bond? How I envy you! Not a care in the world!"

I travel back in time some 50 years to Aunt Muriel asking me the same question The years melt away, and I am a child again, sitting on the garden wall, doing nothing

"Don't you get bored sitting there?" asks the latest passing motorist, who has one of those half beards which are in vogue with TV newsreaders "What are you doing?"

"Nothing, aunty," I reply

He gives me a long hard stare

"You must be dreaming Don't you recognise me?"

"Yes, Aunt Muriel "

He shakes his head sadly, steps on the gas, and goes roaring up the hill in a cloud of dust

"Poor old Bond," he tells his friends over evening cocktails "Must be going round the bend This morning he called me aunty "

(Sanctuary Features)

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S  COLUMN

LURE OF LUCRE

The satirist Shrilal Shukla once cruelly defined the north Indian male as someone who could always find a paan and a place to play lottery Over vast areas of the north the debris of spent lottery tickets litter the roadsides In Shrilal's home city of Lucknow they represent chances for dreams to come true

At the crossing of Ashok Road with Hazratganj, in the very heart of the city, hopeful young men in shaggy sweaters, looking rather like wild teddy bears, crowd round notices advertising government jobs They pour over copies of Employment Digest bought from the street hawkers, who sharply rebuke them when they try to look through other papers called Money and Economics Chetna for free

Vendors sell forms for government jobs — IAS, PCS, inter-college, railway board, the post office, intelligence bureau and even Himachal forestry where a cashier's job fetches the princely salary of Rs 1,550 a month

Just up the road these wannabe babus can see what joys money can buy Shiny motorcycles stand outside the showroom, the most impressive — the gleaming black Suzuki Samurai — priced at Rs 35,000 Beyond the neighbouring booze shop the lottery litter of paan stain, torn tickets begins — the Jai Vishnu, daily Maruti Express, Chetak Daily Morning Shortcuts to the Suzuki Samurai

For many they are shortcuts to many empty pockets, but the dapper man in a brown suit leaning on the counter of the largest lottery stall did not look like a loser He would not have been out of place at a mid-week race meeting anywhere in Britain, and he was studying the results in the Chetna lottery paper just as a betting man in Britain would study horses' form in The Sporting Life

In Britain racing is the sport of kings — and the gambling which goes with it Lottery for the man in the brown suit was something similar

"I always win," he told me with enthusiasm, "because I have a scientific method I play for the last figure, and bet either on odds or evens " I looked blank and he patiently explained, "When the winning number is drawn, and your ticket has the same last number as the winning number you win something Now, see this lottery I have just won Each ticket costs five rupees and if your last number is correct you win Rs 40 I bought 10 tickets each ending in 0, 2, 4, 6 and 8 which gives me 50 per cent chance of winning I invested Rs 250 — my number came up and I won Rs 400 "

"But do others have such a system?"

"No, they play on lucky numbers — superstition, of what the Chetna says is the number of the day Ninety-five per cent of the people lose "

The man in the brown suit returned to his paper, the sellers were getting ready to receive the phone-call from the UP state lottery office in Indiranagar which would give them the result of the 3 30 pm lottery, and the punters were hoping for a win

My eyes were attracted to a scrap of paper fixed on a stall beside wads of tickets for private lotteries the results of which came through daily at regualr intervals between 0900 and 1800 The paper read, "Lottery is gambling Don't buy these tickets "

The stall owner was a small man with a loud voice and a gift of oratory When I began to speak to him he harangued the crowd of gamblers around him "What I say, " he shouted, "is that these private lotteries are destroying people They are growing lazy, aalsi, kahil and susth! Am I saying anything but the truth?" He asked the crowd of lazy, aalsi, kahil, susth gamblers "No, " they replied in subdued voices

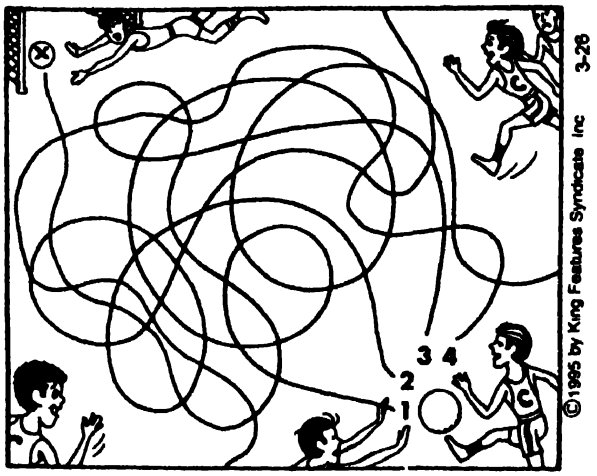
"I have been in this business for 30 years and I can tell you it wasn't like this in 1969 when the first state lottery results were announced in the Governor's house! Then it was once every three months Now it's all through the day Lottery should be held every lunchtime only, so that people will get on and do some work

"The trouble I have," he went on, "they fight, they run off with wads of tickets when your back is turned And they don't win Who wins? The main agents, the stockists The men in air-conditioned offices from where we take the tickets They earn lakhs every day "

Even if you win, greed makes life difficult Tara Chand was a peon before he won Rs 80,000 and he is a peon now He dreamed of opening a shop but his relatives got wind of his luck and went after him to share it It was a state lottery — private lotteries in UP don't generally offer more than Rs 5,000 as first prize — and the state takes months to pay out

People want ready money and go to an agent or anyone who wants to convert black money into white

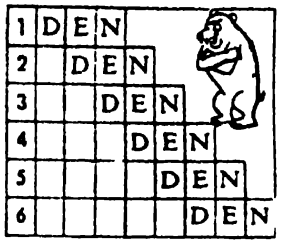
Tara Chand's relatives nagged at him until his "mind didn't work" They gave his ticket to an agent who took Rs 30,000, his relatives pocketed Rs 10,000 more and left him with just enough for clothes for his wedding



But most people Tara Chand sees never win at all "Then when they lose, their mood goes bad and they turn to drink " Even the man in the brown suit had known men who had committed suicide

Then there are young women like Suman, who is trying to rebuild her life along with her young child She has taken refuge in a women's shelter Her husband is an unemployed lottery addict in Benaras He drained the family of cash, and her mother-in-law and sister-in-law in the village beat her, asking what she brought in that they should feed her They even refused her infant child milk She ran away from home and her parents asked her why she had not died rather than leave her sasural "I told them," she said "what have I done? Why don't you go and find him? Was it me that ruined our lives with lottery?"

(Sanctuary Features)



JUNIOR WHIRL

HAL KAUFMAN

NEW RESULTS! Which route does the ball take to reach the net? Choose 1, 2, 3 or 4, and see if you guessed right.

WEATHER WORDS! Find weather words — warm, windy, rainy and clear — among consecutive letters 1 Sally bought a new armchair 2 Edwin dyed his hair 3 Al met Sara in Youngstown 4 We all read the article Arty wrote

STEP BY STEP DEN WORDS

HOW quickly can you fill blanks above with appropriate DEN words?

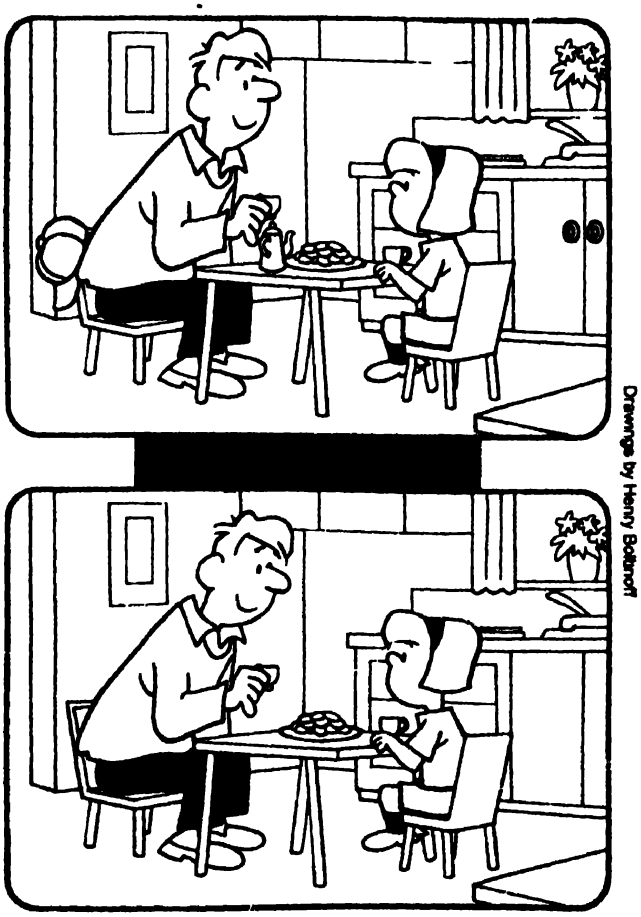
Let's see

Definitions of six words with letters DEN in stepped off progression are as follows

1 Bear's digs (DEN, in place)
2 Adam and Eve's garden spot
3 Add another lane to a highway, for instance
4 Summerall's TV broadcast sidekick
5 Add to the general joy of things
6 Free oneself from a heavy care

Try to adhere to a two minute limit

1 Den 2 Eden 3 Widen 4 Madden 5 Glad den 6 Unburden



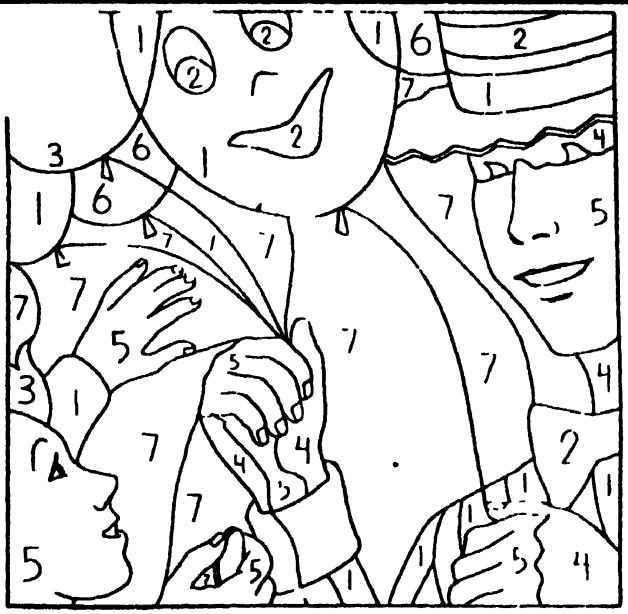
SUM LUCK! Alas, the simple magic number square shown below is missing five of its numbers. These missing numbers — 2, 4, 5, 6 and 8 — are required to produce a total of 15 in all directions — across, down and diagonally. How quickly can you put them in place?

P.S. In ancient times, we are told, this simple magic number square was deemed to have mystical powers, and was engraved on lucky charms.

Top down, from 492 through 816 will do it

	9
3		7
	1

HOCUS-FOCUS



Drawings by Henry Boltinoff

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1 Cap is missing. 2 Head is moved. 3 Teapot is missing. 4 Hair is different. 5 Curtain is smaller. 6 Cabinet knobs are missing.

FUNSPOT

ON HOLD! What time does the balloon go up? Right now, son, if you don't hang on. Color code. 1—Red. 2—Lt. blue. 3—Yellow. 4—Lt. brown. 5—Flesh tones. 6—Dk. green. 7—Lt. purple

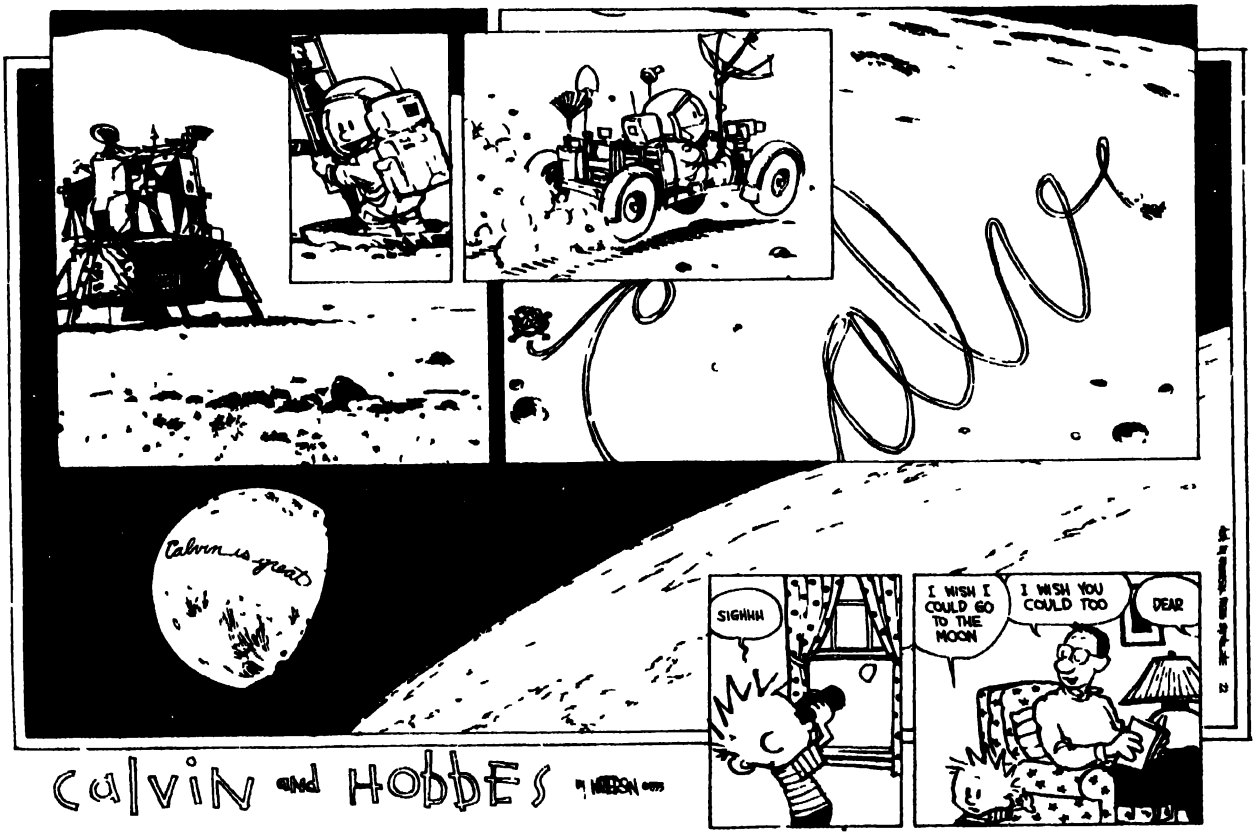
SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

OUTSHINE

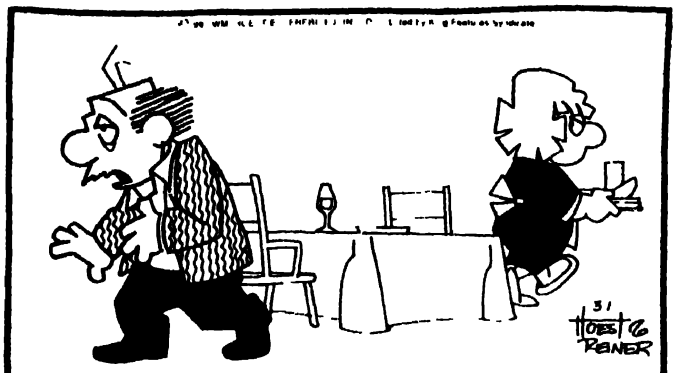
- - - - - - - -

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

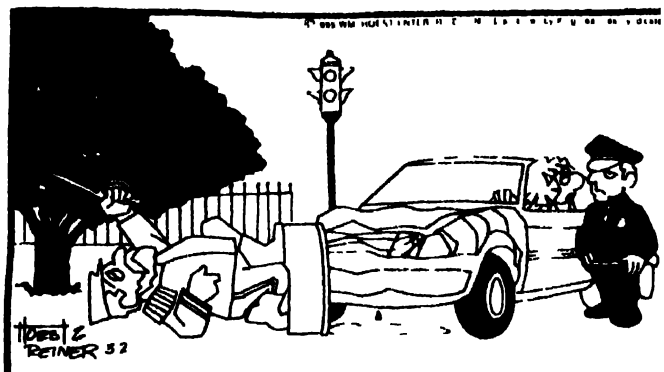


Try to score at least 50 points

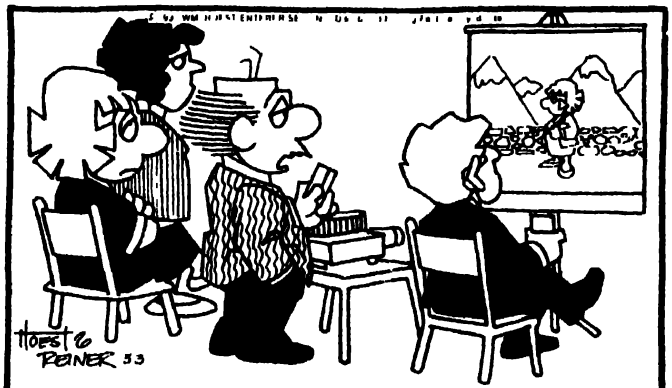
Possible twosome: Hone, sulk



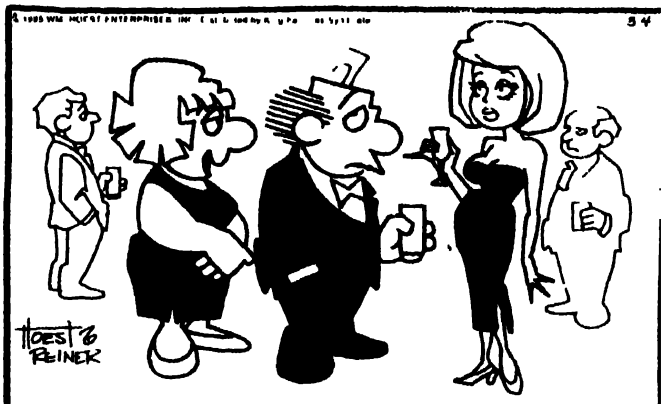
ARCHIE



CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON

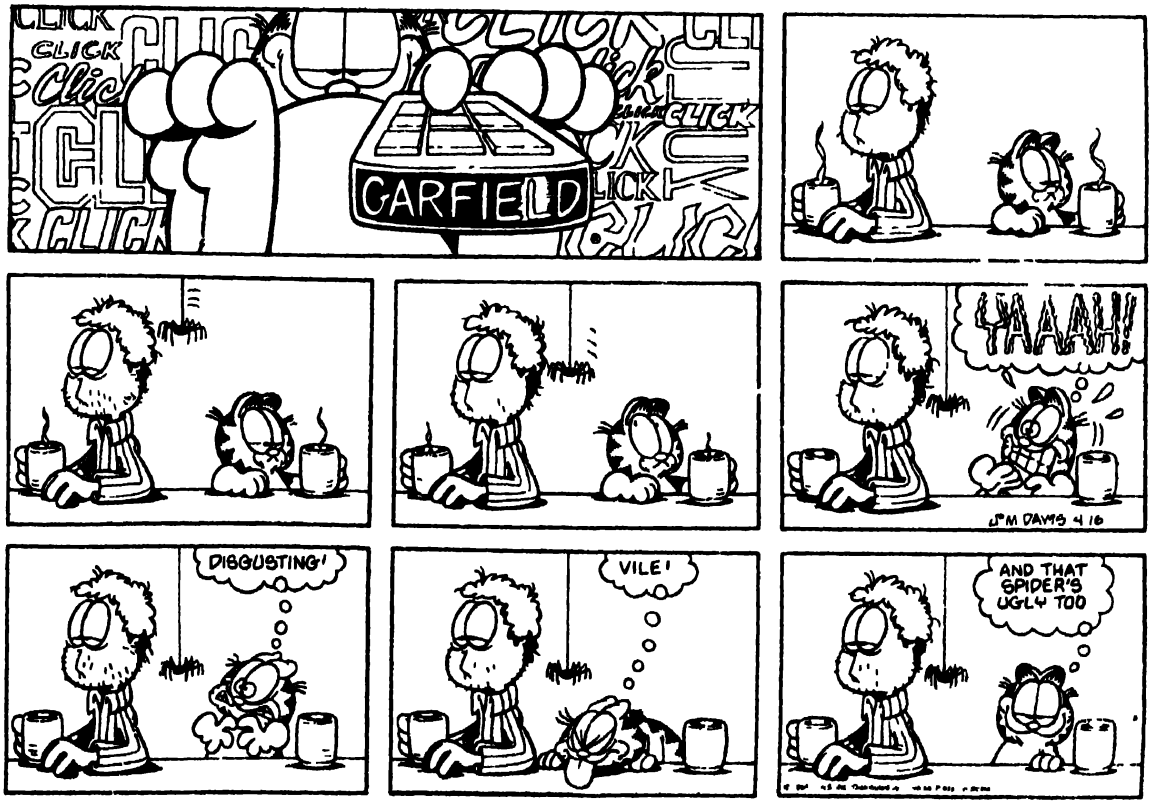


THE LOCKHORNS

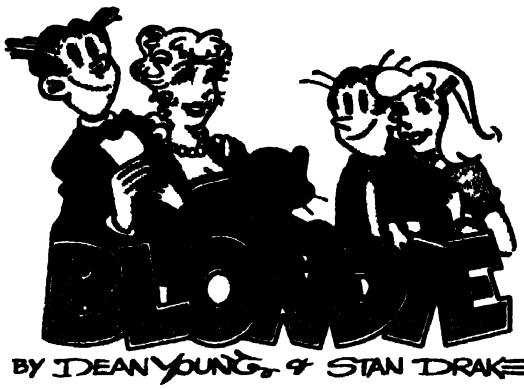


"I KNOW I JUST HAD A SQUARE MEAL, LORETTA THE CORNERS ARE JABBING ME"

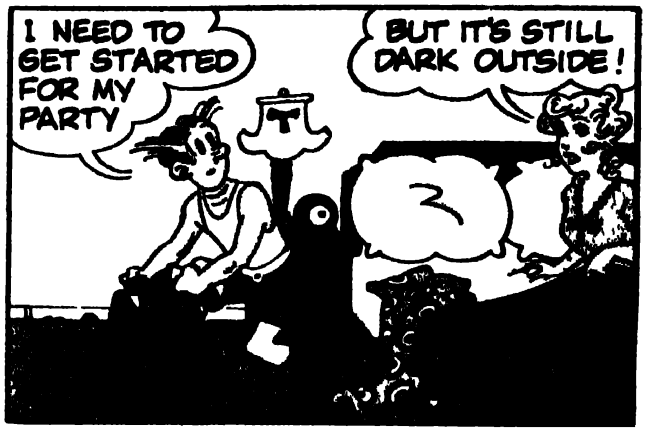
"HE RAN RIGHT OUT IN FRONT OF ME!"



"THESE SLIDES ARE THE ONLY PART OF OUR VACATION THAT'S PAID FOR"

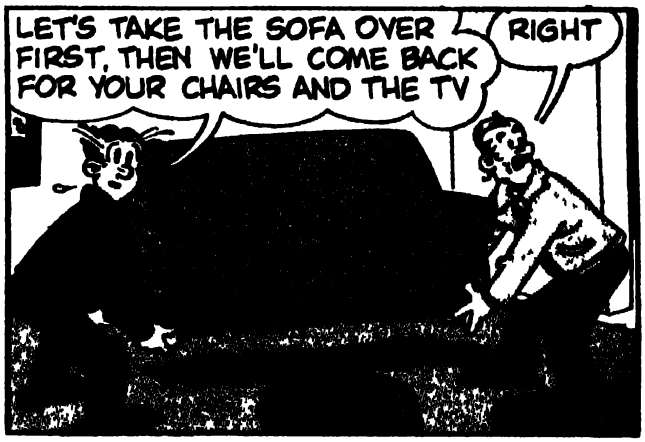


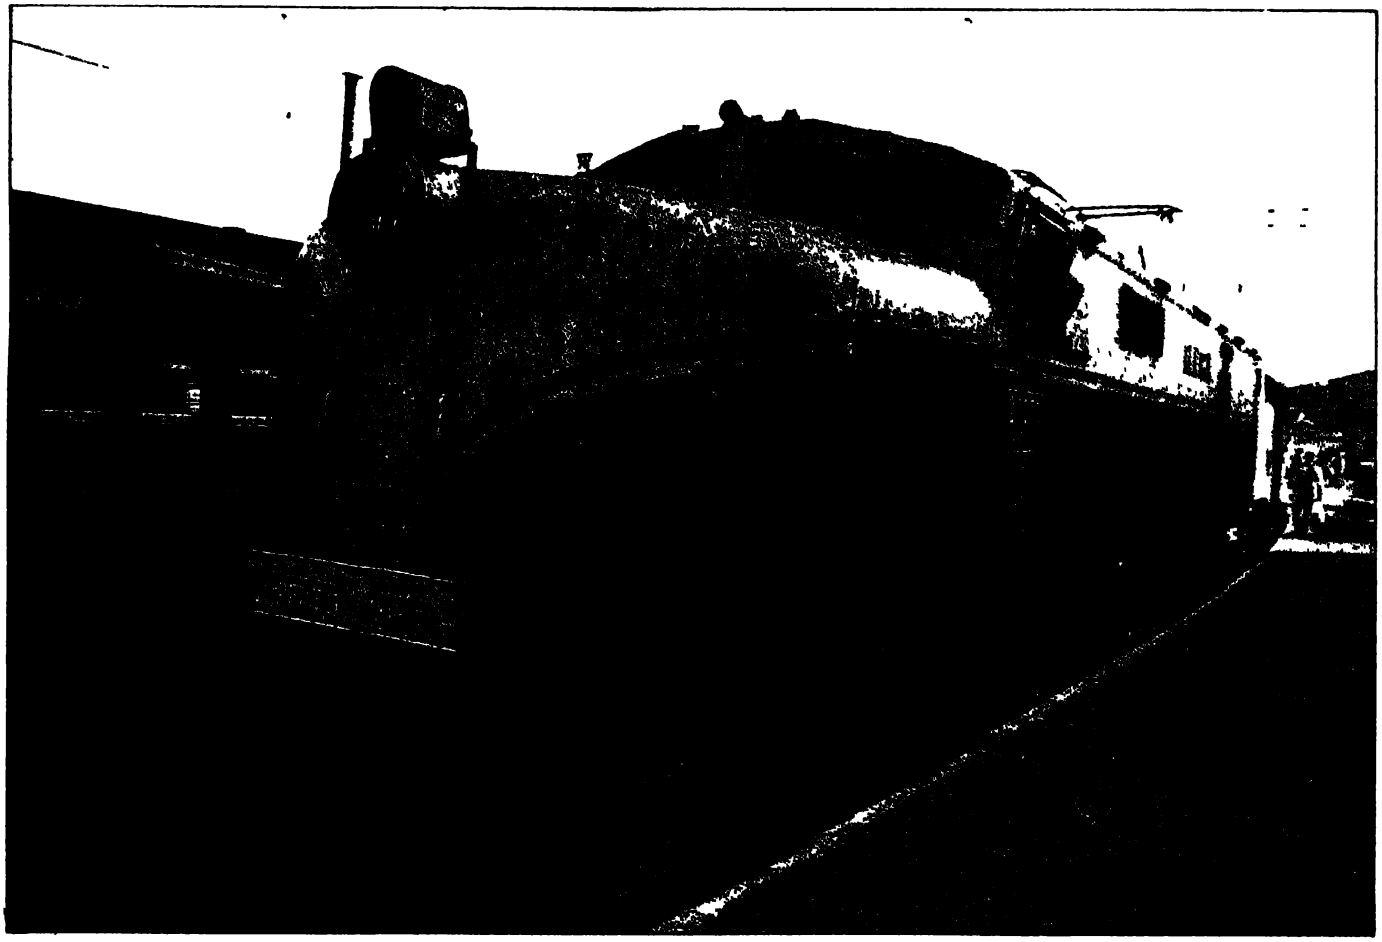
"TELL HER ABOUT THE TIME YOU MET FDR, LEROY!"



GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS

THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP





©1995 by King Features Syndicate, Inc. World rights reserved.

LIFESTYLE

ON THE RUN

A large section of commuters from Bombay to Pune spend most part of their lives in offices and on wheels Seema Paul experiences the romance, and the fatigue of travelling by the Deccan Queen

Photographs by Gautam Patole

The Deccan Queen

It was the evening of Friday, the 23rd of December, 1994. A new weekend was beginning, which would bring with it Christmas cheer. But the mood at platform nine-A of Victoria Terminus (VT), Bombay, hardly indicated that.

For the daily commuters between Bombay and Pune, travelling by the Deccan Queen, one would have thought a weekend would be a very special day: the beginning of a two-day break from the daily grind of traversing 192 kms each way in order to earn a living in Bombay.

So it was, many of them later admitted. But the moments before the Deccan Queen chugged into the platform were unusually tense on Fridays, specially for those travelling second-class.

Many Puneites prefer to spend the working days in Bombay and travel back to families for the weekend. And the Deccan Queen, with its 17 coaches, finds it difficult to accommodate them all on seats. Long queues at the platform are a norm and petty fights for seating space also not unusual, specially in the ladies compartment.

In the crowded second class common compartments men usually prefer to stand but the obviously-tired looking women prefer to squat on the floor. Out come the newspapers from the rather large bags they all carry, filled with daily shopping like vegetables and small knick-knacks for children. They are spread on the floor and friends sit around in groups, gossipping, reading, sleeping, eating, and fighting intermittently through the four-hour journey!

The men, in the other compartments, prefer mostly to play cards or eat. The cacophony of voices is lower in the common compartments but, then, women do have more fun than the men Introduced in 1930 as Deccan Ki Rani, the train has become an institution not only for the Central Railways but also the residents of Pune

According to the chief public relations officer of the Central Railways, H S Kambley, several generations of Puneites have travelled on it to work in Bombay "There have also been instances where bonds have so strengthened amongst commuters on the train that they have chosen to marry off their children," he says

This is hardly surprising considering that commuters daily spend nearly eight hours together on the train "For us,' said Sushma Trishnawar Ankush, who has been commuting by the Deccan Queen for the past 14 years, "it is virtually like living on wheels All the social friends and contacts I have are my fellow commuters as I have little time once I am at home to socialise "

Said Mrs Kodaikar, a senior clerk at the G I Hospital who was transferred to Bombay on promotion, "Train ghar jaisa hai ' So the commuters try to make the best of the time spent travelling

Once, the tension of getting seating space is over and everyone has found his or her corner, entertainment programmes begin The game of cards is very popular with the men while the women prefer antakshari Some of the younger girls are familiar with the latest songs and even have a good voice It's their dream that someday the Zee Television's antakshari programme will do an antakshari programme with them on the Deccan Queen "After all, it is a very special kind of antakshri," said Vaishali Bond, who is a chemistry teacher at the Ismail Yusuf College in Bombay

Enjoying a quick breakfast

A view of the ladies compartment

Even festivals are celebrated by the Deccan Queen community on wheels During a recent Maharashtrian festival, the regular commuters in the women's compartment contributed five rupees each and a lot of foodstuff was bought and shared by them The men, in comparison, seem dry and do not organise much festivity as a group They spend their time talking and eating besides playing cards

Equipped with a pantry car, the Deccan Queen serves excellent breakfast and snacks Since most of the commuters leave their homes by 6 30 am latest to catch the train, whose official departure time from Pune is 7 10 am, they prefer to have their breakfast on the train Omelette and buttered toast

Killing time with cards

and vegetable cutlets are the standard menu along with tea, which is stylishly served in a pot, for the first class passengers

The second class commuters carry a lot of their home-cooked and other chat patta stuff bought from the Bombay pavement dwellers The other favourite activity for the commuters in the morning besides eating is sleeping Since most of them get only four to five hours sleep, they try to catch up on it in the train

All the romance and fun of commuting by train notwithstanding, the journey is very tiresome and leaves them with very little time to devote to their jobs Most of them spend only four to five hours at their workplaces in Bombay, arriving later than their colleagues and leaving before the official closure time for the offices

Not surprisingly, most of them are in government service, working as clerks or school teachers – no private employer would make such concessions for its employees, unless he possessed a rare skill

Contrary to the impression in Bombay, those people choose to commute long-distance for jobs, not necessarily because they get better salaries than they would in Pune With the exception of a handful of them, they said they were working in Pune on transfer

As Smita Bhagwat, a clerk in the state government department, said, "It is not by choice that I commute to Bombay I have always lived in Pune but my employer has chosen to transfer me to Bombay I am unwilling to quit my city and am biding my time till my bosses relent and transfer me back to Pune"

In some sense, Pune is a compromise which the employers strike with their employees Women employees particularly are unwilling to leave their home cities as it would uproot their families Nor are they willing to give up the security of a government job, taking on, in the process, the burden of commuting in addition to working and running a home

For those living in nucleus families, without in-laws or parents, getting up as early as 4 am and going to bed at 12 pm is normal routine "I hardly get any time with my children," complained Mrs Cauamnia Verghese, in her early 40s who has been commuting on this route for the past 18 years to retain her teaching assignment at a Bombay Corporation School

She, as also most other daily commuters of Deccan Queen, bore tired looks on their faces Dark under-eyes and dry skins speak of the toll this schedule takes on their healths

Some men, on the other hand, preferred the routine of commuting to Pune and seemed to be doing it as a matter of choice B E Karkari, a bank-emplyee, who was recently transferred back to Pune after 12-and-a-half years of service was extemely nostalgic about the days he worked in Bombay and commuted by the Deccan Queen "I liked working in Bombay because people there are much better and I wish my bank would transfer me back again" he said

And believe it or not, Karkari insisted even his wife and children were happier when he worked in Bombay and commuted long hours "My family says I spent more time with them when I worked in Bombay than I do now," he said, with a twinkle in his eyes, and that is probably true Because long-distance daily travel, enforces a certain discipline and "you try to make the best of your time with your family and avoid unncessary socialising with friends"

Most daily commuters said Karkari's nostalgia was not out of place "Even though I am trying my best to obtain a transfer back to Pune," said Anil Sarri, summing up the feelings of many of his co-passengers "I know once it happens I will miss the life on wheels I will look back to these days and would remember it as a period when I struck some longlasting and true friendships and learnt to enjoy myself in different and even taxing circumstances" ■

POETRY

Selected by Jayanta Mahapatra

Fire

Cast these dreams into the fire
watch them burn —
then rise,
not toward resurrection
but such perfection
death cannot touch.

Anuradha Majumdar

Devotee

Someone has wreathed my neck with a cactus plant instead of Lord Shiva's snake
But I don't have the trident in my hand

I admit many decorate their drawing rooms with cactus plants
But where am I among the many?

If 'alas' is the sum total of life,
then it is too difficult to live like Lord Shiva with the Moon and the Ganga on the head

Bishnu Sankar Verma

Explanation

Please don't do it
Please, I mean it
For I was soaked repeatedly
In a dark, viscous liquid
Very sticky, very clutching
And very bitter
It was called pain
But fortunately enough, these days
I've reached the saturation point
The dark liquid
Now seems colourless
The bitter, viscous liquid
Seems tasteless, light, free flowing
And intoxicating
I feel dizzy — my vision is blurred
I enjoy pain oozing out
From every opening
Every pore I have
So, please — don't touch me,
For I'm sure you wouldn't like
To wet your fingers, would you?

Debjani Chakravarty

Arpo Dey

Nowhere Man

A man walks down the road
A nameless man with nowhere
to go
Is he hurrying to meet a lover?
Or are his children waiting for him
Is he worried about price of onions,
Or searching a match for his sister
May be he's cheating on his wife
Or his wife, him

Is he lamenting death of a dear one
Or the money he lost on cards
May be he lost his job today
And the railway track beckons
But no, he's turning away,
He squares his shoulders, And moves on,
Slowly merging in the approaching darkness
Another day passes in the life of
A nameless man with nowhere
to go

Vinny Kaul

KAVITA KRISHNAMURTHY won the Filmfare Award for the best female playback singer for her rendition of the superhit number in 1942 A Love Story (Pyar hua chupke se), an award that has come her way some 15 years later than it should have Krishnamurthy is easily the most versatile (she had a nomination also for the Mohra number, Tu cheez badi hai mast mast) singer of the present generation, if not the finest

What is your idea of perfect happiness?
When I work hard towards achieving something and actually achieve it And thus, create an extension of myself with God

What is your greatest fear?
That I should live long and become old and incapable

Who or what has been the greatest influence in your life?
My aunt

What do you dislike most in others?
[No comment]

What do you dislike most in yourself?
I am very hot-tempered

What is your most precious possession?
I know this may sound cliched, but it is my voice Another is my faith in God Not in any diety, but in the Presence You could call me an agnostic

What objects do you always carry?
Nothing in particular

What makes you most depressed?
Cruelty to animals And sick animals

What do you dislike most on your appearance?
My big teeth

What is your favourite word?
Wonderful

What is your favourite journey?
Trips to two places — Delhi and Geneva, where my siblings are living I love these trips and look forward to them

What is your favourite dream?
I do not dream

What is your nightmare?
I have two terrible nightmares — one is that I suddenly turn completely bald Another is that I suddenly become obese

What or who is the greatest love of your life?
[No comment]

What is your source of sustenance?
My music

On what occasions do you lie?
I am an expert on white lies And always to avoid people

What is your greatest regret?
Immediately after high school, I could have got into classical music But I did not

What has been your happiest moment?
There have been many

What brings tears to your eyes?
Sad movies

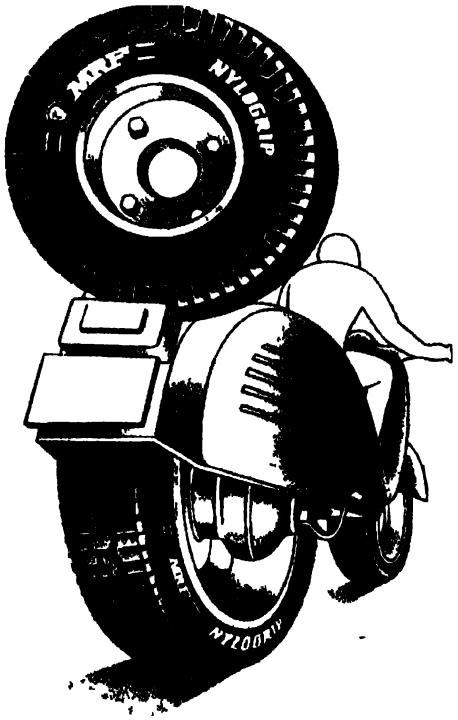
How do you relax?
I like watching films on animals

What do you envy most in others?
Intelligence

How would you like to be remembered?
A person who tried hard and gave her best for whatever she did

How would you like to die?
In my sleep

What is your favourite dream?



I do not dream

What do you dislike most in yourself?

I am very hot-tempered

THE LATEST TYRE FOR THE LATEST BIKES !

MRF NYLOGRIP

THE Advantage NO SCOOTER CAN BE DENIED.

A promise
of adventure
ahead.
Charting our own course,
making our own
waves.
It's got to be
JCT
JCT FABRICS

30 APRIL 1995

The Telegraph

POST MORTEM

Hello, Bombay!

■ On a recent visit to Bombay, charmed as I was, I realised why the city is fondly called the commercial capital of India ('Soul of Honour', March 26)

It is a dazzling, bustling, colourful metropolis, wherever one looks opulence greets the eye The Marine Drive and Nariman Point can compare with any place in the West Smooth roads, modern architecture and lighting make Bombay the envy of all metros

The city provides succour to millions Villagers from Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh, Rajasthan, Andhra Pradesh and Karnataka flock to this city for their livelihood.

Bowled over by its affluence and glitz, I could not help comparing it with Calcutta But there was something missing The warmth, perhaps? Even the poorest of the poor are treated with kindness, cordiality and respect in Calcutta

In Bombay everyone is busy And everyone is out to make a fast buck and no one has time for others Because without money one cannot survive in Bombay.

B.N. Bose,
Calcutta

■ To whom does Bombay belong? Is it Dawood Ibrahim's Bombay or Bal Thackeray's or Mani Ratnam's? Opinions may differ. But the best answer is it belongs to none in particular It is the product of the collective emotions of every Indian

It is as much Juhi Chawla's as it is mine and yours.

Rajib Chatterjee,
Asansol

■ With an enviable geographical location and a very fast lifestyle Bombay sets itself apart from the other metros Its roads and gardens are immaculately maintained The skyline, dotted with hundreds of skyscrapers, reminds one of a Western city Train services are dependable; local trains may be crowded but they are clean and punctual.

Nirmalendu Chakraborty,
Cooch Behar

■ Bombay's contribution towards Indian cricket is beyond any argument In fact, it would not be wrong to call it the cricketing capital of India The Magazine should have highlighted this point

Debanjan Banerjee,
Calcutta

■ The cover story brought to mind a remark of that great actor Nana Patekar who said in an interview "Some people tried to blast Bombay, some wanted to ruin it, destroy it, but still the city lived, it is the inherent spirit of Bombay that kept the city alive Salaam Bombay!"

Shovanlal Bakshi,
Calcutta

■ Bombay, no doubt is a magnificent city But here the rich languish in riches while the poor wallow in poverty

Dhananjoy Patro,
Bhubaneswar

■ We have had enough of Bombay and Bangalore

■ It is difficult to describe Bombay's beauty in mere words But it can be compared to a beautiful blue-eyed girl — vivacious and mysterious, specially so after dusk

Ravi Khanna,
Howrah

Can we come back to Calcutta?

Md Sajid Hossain,
Calcutta

■ You have mentioned that the Marine Drive is known as the Queen's Necklace But I think Malabar Hills is known as the Queen's Necklace

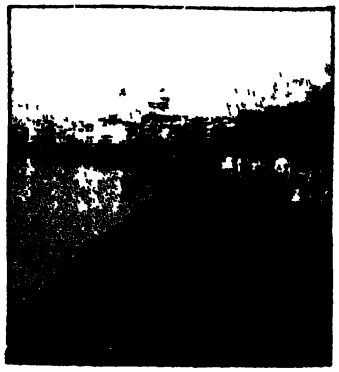
B. Ray Chaudhuri,
Calcutta

The view of the beachline from Malabar Hills is known as the Queen's Necklace. — Editor

Tall, Fair and Western

■ The definition of beauty is not going to change because two non Whites have clinched the Miss Universe and Miss World titles ('Beauty Tall, Dark and Asian', February 12)

Girls from the West will continue to excel in these pageants because of Western dominance



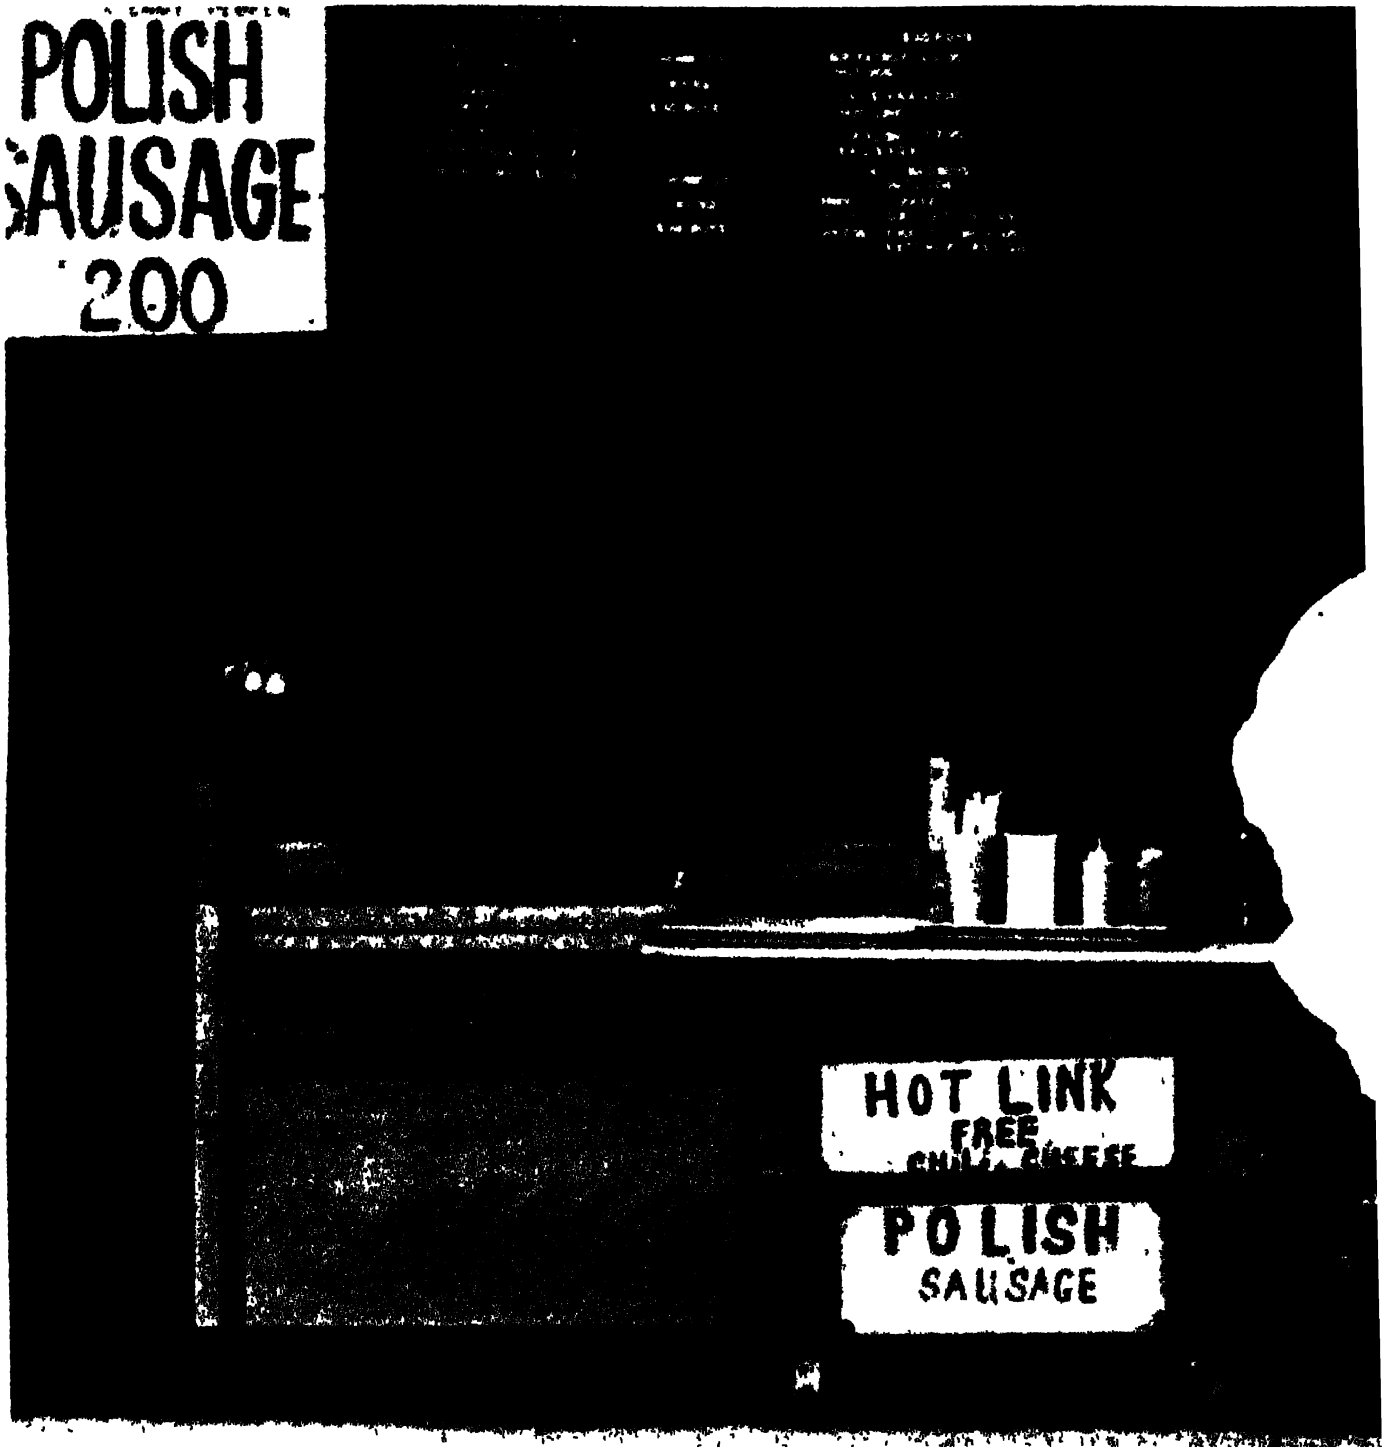
Manoranjan Das,
Jamshedpur

De After De

■ The betrayals may be small or big, but one thing is for sure Shobha De has mastered the art of selling herself with the help of her snapshots

Arta Mishra,
Cuttack (Orissa)

INSIDE



PAGE 6

BOMBAY, the great survivor, will survive yet again, to be sure But will it remain Our Bombay, a truly cosmopolitan oasis, or succumb to the juggernaut of modern politics and turn into Aamchi Mumbai? Will the reality that is Bombay turn — finally — into myth?

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
18 RUSKIN BOND
20 GILLIAN WRIGHT
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
26 PINUP
27 IN
28 POETRY
30 FIRST PERSON

Cover Bal Thackeray by Vishal Photo

POLISH
SAUSAGE
200
HOT LINK
FREE
POLISH
SAUSAGE

Carrier introduced air conditioning in theatres and movie studios
And is still the biggest draw in 130 countries

Carrier

The world's No 1 in air conditioning
After all we invented it

Carrier Aircon Limited

COVER STORY

Aamchi Bombay, Our Mumbai

Bombay, 1995 The film

The truly cosmopolitan city in the country shocked itself by voting saffron into power So, now, will the reality turn into myth?
Shameem Akthar talks to the citizens of a metropolis which has so far survived everything

A BOMBAYITE IS NORMALLY BLASE ABOUT MOST THINGS The ululating monsoon that sends his routine scudding. The traffic snarls that send his blood pressure soaring. The suffocating crowds that can turn into unruly mobs at unseen cues. Gang wars that hit his front-page before they hit the film screen.

He even survived the blasts and riots that made the world look at him askance And the plague

But he is yet to recover from the surprising saffron victory. And the regular pronouncements of Bal Thackeray, the combine's uncrowned king, who till now only crowed from his party's organ, Saamna.

Scribes now rush to him for some sensational copy and he obliges And the Bombayite's relaxed morning peace, with his cuppa and the newspaper, is irretrievably shattered

Things did seem topsy-turvy for the first few days Muslims, even the hennaed old Congress loyalists from the Ullema Council, said they were actually happy. A delegation, led by none other than Islamic scholar, Rafiq Zakaria, rushed to congratualate the man and his party and to pledge support

Even sceptics and critics were willing to keep their fingers crossed, saying even children learnt responsibility when trusted with duty. And these were certainly no children.

Bombay, 1992-93 The reality

Vishal Photo

Maharashtra Dy CM Gopinath Mundhe, CM Manohar Joshi, Bal Thackeray and L K Advani The saffron hand

Everybody was waiting and watching for sobriety In vain 'Permit system' screeched headlines 'No more ration cards for outsiders,' raved the others, faithfully repeating the Sena chief's words Partymen rallied in support of their leader, doggedly insisting that some blockades had to be erected to stem the tide of humanity into India's El Dorado

The BJP, though embarrassed by this outburst, stood by in stolid support Debates were whipped up Other states issued statements Parliament, waiting for only such relief from the tedium of governance, promptly went into 'uproar'

Then came the Bangladeshi statement "Evict Bangladeshis," he thundered The minority community, lulled into a transitory moment of peace at having given the Congress a licking, was rudely shaken awake It wondered if it was being targetted obliquely Non-Maharashtrians, who have made this city of gold their home, were nagged with worry that they may be the next target

Then, there was an open invitation to the boys (Sainiks) to smoke out the Pakistanis and Bangladeshis, that worried everybody Bombayites fretted if this will be misued to settle personal scores Will the petty hafta that is associated with the party, particularly "the boys", become an established demand?

Then came that phone call, purportedly made by a Bangladeshi, that threatened the supremo A hysterical reaction followed, like a shrill housewife who had received an obscene call Paraphrased, the panic reaction read — "If even a hair on my body is touched, the entire community will be wiped out"

Even staid papers, which did not want to massage a cult ego, could not ignore this statement The minority community wondered if they had been foolish, after all And the fledgling government, in its very first Assembly session, had to face an excited opposition which had been provided with enough salvo for sustained attack

Clarifications and counter-clarifications were feverishly issued, in a bid to salvage party image Then the Sena chief went mum, refusing to talk to a press which, he griped, always twisted his words While the journalists were left hanging, with no 'good copy' to fill up their front page, the city lurched back into its cocoon of relief

Not for long

Soon the Bombay film drama happened A handful of non-representative Muslim leaders shouted for a ban on

As for the permits, J.B. D' Souza quips, 'Next time a governor is appointed to this state that poor man will have to lug his own sackloads of provisions. Otherwise what will he do if Thackeray refuses him a ration card?'

Mani Ratnam's film. Their main grouse, it seemed, was that the film had been shown earlier to Thackeray, to get his approval Of course, the other objections to the film followed The city's police commissioner, Satish Sawhney, not wanting another riot on his hands, tried to placate these self-appointed Muslim leaders by postponing the film by a week

This, coming on the heels of the government's assurance that the film would not be banned, finally cracked the self-imposed maunviradh (fast of silence) of the Sena leader In a blistering report in Saamna, he ran down Sawhney as "a coward" and called for his resignation

Whatever the merits of his actions, the police commissioner certainly had public sympathy And this attack must have shocked many And even the city's elite, normally disdainful of political antics, tch, tch-ed at this latest paroxysm of Thackeray anger

But Bombayites continue with their daily grind, after checking out if their newspapers have any such fresh pronouncements And deciding if these warrant a nervous reaction But the rest of the nation continues to wonder if the 'cosmopolitan fabric' (that cliched description of Bombay which unfortunately describes it so well) will be ripped apart by this convulsive beginning to a new government

Foy Nissen, that adorable historian who loves this city, thread by thread weaves the background that created this cosmopolitan fabric "This migration started in the 19th century The Western coast, up to Gadkh in Karnataka district, had soil conditions suitable for cotton The climate was also ideal for storing it in the staple, raw form Migrants started trickling in from all over Maharashtra initially, as labourers for this textile industry When British entrenched this industry here, they started pouring in from other parts of the country as well "

The island's location along the western coast also helped, geographically making it an important port of call, from where cotton could be exported. This gave it a head-start over other metros of today, as Madras and Calcutta, which despite being important British destinations then, could never catch up with that historical advantage of Bombay.

And the economic wealth of this city, whose footpaths are paved with gold (and muck), attracted hordes of migrant labour which had changed its demographic pattern so much that

The Bombay Stock Exchange

These leaders [Muslim fundamentalists] were trying to fill a vacuum of leadership among Muslim youth, he [A.M. Arif] angrily remarks, and the press was playing into their hands and helping to create these monsters. And silly controversies, like the one over the Bombay film, would continue to unsettle the city today less than 50 per cent of it is Maharastrian

The infrastructural facilities as transport also grew, primarily to support the industries "In a way, this growth of Bombay had been unplanned, almost incidental And this growth continued even after the British rulers left India and it has choked even suburban Bombay today"

Nissen points out how, even in 1947 when the British quit the country, almost 75 per cent of the economic wealth in Bombay was held by foreigners The British clung on to their industrial base for long, with Bombay gaining an economic lead over the other metros Thus the migrating population always had a sound reason to make this their journey's end

Here is what historian-authors, B K Boman-Behram and A N Confectioner, have to say of Bombay in 1949, their description spiced with some sage advice that is uncannily relevant today "This bastion of the British Empire has now become a city of free India Its security until now was the security imposed by the foreign conquerer Its preservation now depends on the good sense of its citizen and the enterprise of its wealthy community to render justice to the millions of peasants and artisans whose labours and toils have gone to build up Bombay's prosperity"

Former municipal commissioner of the Bombay Municipal Corporation, J B D'Souza, shares that concern expressed almost half-a-century ago He dismisses this Sena-induced fear over the slumming, illegal migrants as irrelevant "These poor people are not parasites The minute anybody enters this city he or she is ploughing back money into its coffers Not all are beggars And compare the census figures for 1981 and 1991 — it is 8 4 million and 9 91 million"

He does a quick calculation and announces that instead of "the lakhs of migrants" who reportedly pour into the city, less than 480 persons are added to the population daily "Mind it, most of this is from births and not from migrants entering the city," he explains

He also laughs off Thackeray's pronouncements as "off-stage noises" and that despite his criticism, nobody is likely to accept his description of Sawhney as a coward "Everybody knows that Sawhney had been instrumental in motivating the locals to participate in the mohalla committees (set up after the riots to instil confidence and bring together the different communities) Other commissioners only spoke about it But he has been serious about these peace efforts Naturally, he was worried that this fragile peace was not torn by the row over the film Instead of supporting him, what is the point in trying to revile him?" he asks

"Is there not something called the law in this country? How can Thackeray run down the city commissioner? How can he order the Sainiks to identify illegal migrants? How many of us carry ready proof over our nationality? Outrageous!" D'Souza exclaims

As for the permit system, he quips, "Next time a governor is appointed to this state that poor man will have to lug his own sackloads of provisions Otherwise what will he do if Thackeray refuses him a ration card?"

WHAT'S YOUR RELIGION?

An open letter asks filmmaker Mani Ratnam

Dear Mani Ratnam,

I saw Bombay in Bangalore. In Tamil. I don't understand Tamil. But I saw the film twice. So okay, what does not understanding Tamil have to do with seeing Bombay?

I did understand the Wuthering Heights kind of landscape of love etched by you in the first half, and the mellifluous music of A.R. Rahman to which I swayed, with the superior acting by almost everyone in the cast and the ethereal otherworldly beauty of Manisha Koirala. Maybe, that is why they say cinema is a visual medium.

But then morning newspapers told me many states planned to ban Bombay. Even Bombay was ambi- [illegible] of Bombay. Different versions floated about:

Some say the Muslims have not liked a Muslim girl eloping with a Hindu boy, others say that the Hin- [illegible] et because one gets the [illegible] t you don't much care for the idea of a Ram temple at Ayodhya?

Mani Ratnam

After reading all this, I have started wondering whether your film is all that good. India is a communally sensitive state, you know. Besides, you also seem to be very [illegible] whose side you are on.

Why is there no point of identification? I cannot identify with the hero or the heroine. You know, if I were a Hindu, I'd proudly say some of my friends are Muslims. If I were a Muslim, I would say, most of the Hindus I know are really very good. But a Hindu-Muslim marriage — toba, toba.

Even when you portray the leaders of the two communities, you show both to be equally blood-thirsty.

We are not like that. Nor are our leaders. Only they are, and their leaders. We only retaliate. What were you trying to do? Shake our age-old prejudices and question our pet peeves and hates?

Too much, I say. Why do you not stick to safer formats like cops and robbers or the Bombay underworld where black is black and white is white, where I can idolise the heroes and hate the villains?

Here, you made me feel as if both the hero and the villain were [illegible] me. How [illegible] routine [illegible] die. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Though the emotion behind this rationale for permit system and eviction of illegal migrants may even be acceptable to locals like Bhai Bhandarkar, who presides over the National Fishermen Committee, and is president of the Maharashtra Machchhimar Kriti Samiti, he does not feel that the 'sons of the soil' theory really helps anybody or anything, except the Sena vote-bank

Bhandarkar, who has lived all his life along Bombay's coast, notes bitterly that the fishermen, who are the original sons of the soil, have been regularly pushed off the coastline by successive generations of politicians who only mouthed phrases that soothed parochial needs But the kolis' (fishermen's) real and simple needs for a clean coastal stretch, more space along the sea that was regularly consumed by reclamation, and education and training for their offspring have all been relegated to the background

Their fishing villages, with evocative names like Gorai, Versova, Danda, Worli, Colaba, Mazgaon, have all been sacrificed to the engulfing land reclamation And where date palms used to sway sleepily against a twilight sky, now skyscrapers dot the horizon

Both [Congress and the Shiv Sena] have dug into, and will dig into, the goldmines that this city throws up and give nothing in return. They will develop their constituencies with the money pumped in from this inexhaustible cache and both will spout different policies.

Bhandarkar's grouse Even when the Sena was the ruling party in the Bombay Municipal Corporation, when they had a chance to set right the wrong done by the Congress government, they did nothing for the kolis "Then what right have they to go on talking about the 'sons of the soil' theory?" he questions with anger "Manohar Joshi (now chief minister) and Pramod Navalkar (minister for culture) are friends from my MLC days But they don't know a thing about local needs

"So what can they do for us kolis anyway? Take Manori Island, for example The BMC used to charge one anna originally for its ferry services When the Sena ruled the corporation we started paying Rs 2 50 for these irregular services Despite taking money from us regularly, they had not introduced ordinary bus link "

And when parties rise to power on their empty theories, it is not just the unique cosmopolitan nature of a city like Bombay that becomes a casualty It is also the local groups that get a beating, Bhandarkar says

Another local, A M Arif, who heads the United Economic Front which works for the uplift of Muslims, would wholeheartedly agree He continues to be incensed over the fact the 'sons of the soil' policy does not include the Maharashtrian Muslims He can reel off statistics to substantiate his complaint, on how from employment exchanges right up to the jobs itself his community has been discriminated against by successive local governments

But, the anxiety that consumes him has little to do with the new saffron government Arif explains, "Of course, we cannot expect anything for us from a party, whose chief has a brick from the Babri Masjid in his house and displays it to every visitor But our problem lies with the fundamental Muslim representatives, who will now seize this opportunity, to groom themselves as leaders, trying desperately to grow alongside the saffron government as parallel power centres, trying to rake up or create controversies to get attention "

These leaders were trying to fill a vacuum of leadership among Muslim youth, he angrily remarks, and the press was playing into their hands and helping to create these monsters And silly controversies, like the one over the Bombay film, would continue to

---

Who wants all this jhamela.

One of my pseudo friends, who says he is politically correct (whatever that means) was telling me the counterpoint is, why should one man's creative obsession unnecessarily endanger innocent lives? So that means he is also coming around to thinking your film was wrong.

You know you have behaved like that Rushdie fellow. The one who wrote that book denigrating Islam. What was it called, Forgot. But they hung a price around his neck, didn't they? And now there is that [illegible] cheese.

All this is Western influence, I say. What do you people understand about the Indian context? You create all this chaos. Arrey, baba, who is asking you not to be creative or be free. But can't you see that freedom of expression means being free the way everyone else is free. Why feel special?

No, don't tell me you are just making a humanitarian statement. And if Sadhvi Rithambara or Imam Bukhari can get away with rabble rousing why can you not at least make an honest appraisal of how Muslims are misled into the realm of death and destruction; why indulge in wishful thinking?

No one is going to ban them. They are religious leaders, you do not even seem to have a religion. Why should they let you go scot-free? You reap as you sow.

Take my advice. Make your next [illegible] with Govinda and Chunky, or [illegible] a monkey. So soothing to [illegible] no. I'll love it. I'll watch it [illegible] first show. I like my thrills

The Taj Intercontinental hotel, Bombay enabled carriages and cars to drive right up to the entrance Inside, the theatre was accommodated with private boxes and orchestra stalls furnished with cane chairs Each floor had a separate refreshment room and bar and a promenade for taking the air during intervals

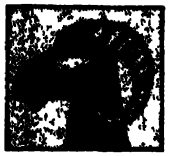
By 1917, the Opera House, like many other dramatic theatres, began to show films, catering to the growing popularity of the cinema industry and in 1925, the whole theatre was rented by Pathe's Cinema From 1929 to 1932, however, the Opera House was leased to various Indian theatrical concerns like the Parsi Elphinstone Dramatic Company and Bombay audiences were captivated by performances by leading actors and musicians like Bal Gandharva, Manji Khan, Bapu Pendharkar, Londhe, Pandit Dinanath, Jyotsna Bhole, Hirabai Barodekar, Jaddanbai, Fayyaz Khan, Nissar Hussain and Siddheshwari Bai

Meanwhile, with the arrival of many Maharashtrian intellectuals, Marathi musicals and social dramas with political overtones flourished from the early years of the 20th century The dramas were also enacted in local parks and within the courtyards of chawls, specially during the Ganesha festival celebrations initiated by Bal Gangadhar Tilak, under the guise of which political propaganda was made

The chawls built by the City Improvement Trust and the Development Directorate, in fact, formed a perfect setting for these dual purpose dramas and the forms of entertainment favoured by the labouring classes such as bharuds and bhajans, powadas and tamashas, which often had an underlying political message In fact, as the freedom movement gathered momemtum, ironically, the entire new city built by the British, became a vast podium for the nationalists

The period also saw the establishment of politically activist religious organisations like the Hindu Mahasabha and the growth of the Khilafat Movement Popular venues for meetings of the various political parties were open spaces like the Chowpatty beach, the parks and maidans, and the courtyards of chawls and baghs such as Shantaram's Chawl and Madhav Bagh

The early 20th century also saw the establishment of several new clubs in the city The Orient Club, founded in 1900 was perhaps one of the first of its kind, which although run on European lines, admitted European as well as Indian members Initially, it was housed in a hired bungalow owned by the Rogay family at Chowpatty, but within the decade the Club constructed its own imposing premises, designed by Charles F Stevens on the City Improvement Trust's newly laid out plots at Chowpatty



The first large and prestigious club open to Europeans as well as Indians was the Willingdon Sports Club. The idea of establishing the club which stands on Clerk Road (now Bapurao Khadya Marg) opposite the Race Course on Horby Vellard, was mooted by Lord Willingdon, the Governor of Bombay Soon after taking office, the Governor told Sir Stanley Reed, editor of the Times of India, that he had come "with a direct mandate from the king and the secretary of state to break down this damning racial exclusiveness" The club, with sporting facilities like tennis and badminton courts, a swimming pool, a polo and golf club and cricket fields, was opened in November 1917

Horse racing, which had been a popular sport at Bombay since the closing years of the 18th century, was given a fresh impetus when the Royal Western India Turf Club race course, buildings and grandstands designed by Robertson & Marks of Sydney, Australia, were completed in 1924, opposite the Willingdon Club The land level of this turf is noticeably much lower than that of the Hornby Vellard promenade Perhaps it was originally intended to be left as a swampy open tract to accommodate overflows in case the Vellard gave way! ■

INNER EYE ❑ Bejan Daruwalla

Aries

March 21—April 20

Ganesha announces buying, selling, shopping, leasing and funding for Ariens At the same time, you will have enough energy and drive to socialise and entertain Children and creative enterprise will give joy and this trend will continue for the next 27 days

Taurus

April 21—May 20

The moon's newness in your sign, according to Western astrology, makes you concentrate on the professional and financial side of your nature Here, gains are foretold Those in chemicals, the arts and wholesale business do well Many of you will be decorating/buying/selling house/office

Gemini

May 21—June 20

While expense will be great, rest assured you will cope with it, because Mars, according to Western astrology, gives you courage, wit, daring, energy and the right confidence Do not be in a hurry to get things done, but be keen to do a thorough job of any assignment given

Cancer

June 21—July 20

Action time! The more people you meet, the better your contacts, the greater the chances of joy and success It would be advisable to take decisions on April 30 and May 1-3 May is also the month to make money, socialise and get things done Contracts and assignments should come your way

Leo

July 21—August 21

It's high time indeed that you came into your own, did the things which really excite you and get on with your life While your work will occupy you fully, thanks to the placing of the moon's newness, it will just not do to neglect your home now You will thus have to maintain a balance

Virgo

August 22—September 22

Venus in your eighth sign this week, according to Western astrology, makes you adorable and charismatic A journey at short notice is probable Despite mounting expenses, you will make headway in your work Communication and ties are predicted for you

Libra

September 23—October 22

There are two dominant directions this week The first involves loans, funds and capital raising The next indicates entertainment, socialising and lots of fun as well as fanfare Many Librans will be in for buying, selling and negotiating The dice will fall right for you, so to say

Scorpio

October 23—November 22

Period of kicks and kisses, bricks and bouquets, bliss and bruises as the moon's last quarter makes life very personal and relationships mighty important Romantic escapades are possible Many of you will be working hard to better your prospects

Sagittarius

November 23 - December 20

Those in employment may go in for a job-switch or hop, which could be profitable in the long run Extra care of health is a must, even though you might feel energetic Long distance plans and connections will be unusually important to Sagittarians in the next 22 days

Capricorn

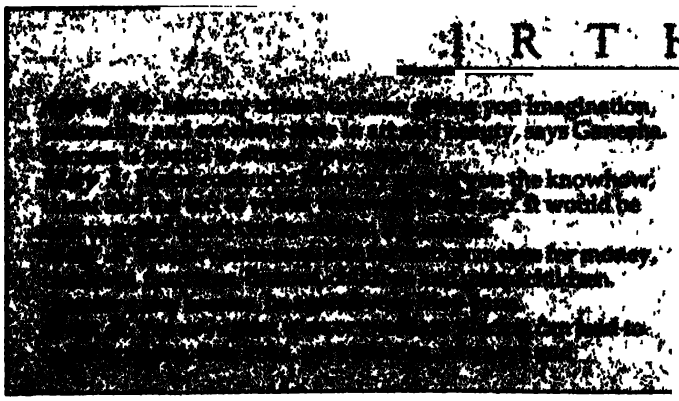
December 21—January 19

The week can be bisected in terms of travel, children, joy, in the pursuit of a hobby and money too You will take risks Financial considerations, bargains, negotiations, settlements, loans, funds, joint finances, particularly, insurance and claims should be mighty important

Aquarius

January 20—February 18

Sharp and clear focus on property and assets such as house, shop, warehouse, office, vehicles, land, shares and stocks Here finances will flow fast Beware of conmen A home away from home is also indicated Alliances, and paradoxically enough, separations are in evidence



Pisces

February 19—March 20

While the wholeness and the sanctity of life will help you to endure, you should take extra care of health and money Many Pisceans will be travelling, experiencing spiritual insights as well as moodiness or even gloom The first two days will be for correspondence

BIRTHDAYS

...sometimes an immigration.

...ect but emphasis will be on house, the ..., communication, contacts and contracts. Long range ... will be ideal.

Moon connects well with sun and Saturn giving joy ... sweet satisfaction in life. Now is the time to make the changes you desire in your family, house or even the workplace.

May 6: Moon opposition Neptune, trine Pluto is conducive to partnerships and marriage. In your working life, you could be deceived or misunderstood.

TIME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AGARTALA
IC 741	0710	3 5	IC 742	0940	3 5
IC 743	0920	daily	IC 744	1150	daily
PF-701	1130	1 3 5 7	PF-702	1610	1 3 5 7
[redacted]
PF-705	0730	2 4 6, 7	PF-706	1510	2 4 6 7
[redacted]
PF 735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1
PF-737	0730	3, 5	PF 738	1740	3 5
IC-721	1300	1, 3 5	IC 722	1540	1 3 5
[redacted]
IC-771	0600	daily	IC 772	1140	daily
[redacted]
IC-544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC-770	2120	1 3 5
[redacted]
IC-676	0640	daily	IC 675	0820	daily
D2-102	0905	daily	D2 101	0835	daily
IC-273	1945	daily	AI 306	1840	5
9W-212	1945	daily	9W 211	1910	daily
D2-104	2005	daily	D2 103	1935	daily
AI-309	2035	6	IC-274	2050	daily
AI-681	2350	1
[redacted]
			S2 025	0810	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC-263	0700	daily	IC 262	0815	2 4 7
S2-026	0845	1 2, 3 4 5 6	M9-303	0825	daily
M9-304	0905	daily	AI 682	0950	1
IC-812	1515	1 3, 5	S2-015	1015	1 3 5
S2-016	1555	1 3, 5	4S 806	1110	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC-402	1715	daily	IC 401	1155	daily
4S-805	1745	1 2 3 4 5 6	S2 005	1855	1 2 3 4 5 7
IC 261	1900	2 4 7	IC 811	1930	1 3 5
S2-006	1930	1 2 3 4 5, 7	M9 301	1950	daily
M9-302	2030	daily	IC 264	2210	daily
[redacted]
PF-737	0730	3 5	IC 704	1430	3 5
IC 703	0800	3 5	D2 181	1620	1 3 5 7
D2-181	1135	1 3 5 7	D2-183	1620	2 4 6
D2-183	1135	2 4 6	IC 702	1630	2 4 6 7
4S-815	1150	1 2 3 4 5 6	4S 816	1710	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC-701	1240	2 4 6 7	PF 738	1740	3 5
DIMAPUR
IC 257	1150	4 7	IC 258	1650	4 7
[redacted]
PF-735	0730	1	IC 712	1410	2 6
PF 737	0730	3, 5	IC 704	1430	3 5
PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	IC-708	1430	1 4 7
IC-703	0800	3 5	PF-706	1510	2 4 6 7
IC-707	0800	1 4 7	D2-181	1620	1 3 5 7
IC-711	0800	2, 6	D2 183	1620	2, 4 6
D2 181	1135	1 3 5 7	IC-230	1650	daily
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	4S 811	1710	1 2 3 4 5 6
4S 812	1150	1 2 3 4 5 6	PF-736	1730	1

FLIGHTS

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AMMAN
RJ 185	1445	4	RJ 184	0705	4

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
IC 257	1150	4 7	PF-738	1740	3, 5
IC 211	1240	4 6	IC 258	1740	4, 7
IC 229	1310	daily	IC 212	1740	4, 6
HYDERABAD
S2-023	1045	1 3, 5	S2 024	1525	1, 3, 5
IC-777	1600	2 4 7	IC 778	2100	2, 4, 7
IC 769	1525	1, 3 5	IC 770	2120	1 3, 5
IMPHAL
IC 707	0800	1 4 7	IC 256	1320	3, 5
IC 255	0830	3 5	IC 708	1430	1, 4, 7
IC 253	1100	2, 6	IC-254	1550	2 6
JORHAT
IC 213	0910	2 4, 7	IC-213	1315	2 4 7
LILABARI
PF 735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1
LUCKNOW
IC 812	1515	1, 3 5	IC-811	1930	1, 3, 5
MADRAS
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC-541	1030	1, 3 5
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2 7
IC 765	1720	daily	D2 171	1045	daily
D2 172	1740	daily	IC-766	2220	daily
NAGPUR
IC-769	1525	1 3 5	IC-770	2120	1, 3, 5
PATNA
IC 249	1430	2 4 7	S2-015	1015	1 3 5
S2 016	1555	1 3 5	IC 249	1805	2 4 7
IC 812	1515	1 3 5	IC 811	1930	1 3 5
PORT BLAIR
IC 285	0640	3 5 7	IC 286	1100	2 4 6
RANCHI
IC 249	1430	2, 4 7	IC 249	1805	2 4 7
SHILLONG
PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	PF-706	1510	2 4 6 7
SILCHAR
IC 255	0830	3 5	IC 260	1110	1, 7
IC 259	0830	1 7	IC 256	1320	3 5
IC 253	1100	2 6	IC-254	1550	2, 6
IC 211	1240	4 6	IC 212	1740	4, 6
TEZPUR
IC 213	0910	2 4 7	IC 213	1315	2 4 7
TEZU
PF 737	0730	3, 5	PF-738	1740	3 5
VARANASI
S2 016	1555	1, 3 5	S2 015	1015	1 3 5
VISHAKHAPATNAM
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
ZIRO
PF 735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1

INTERNATIONAL

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AMSTERDAM
KL 876	0420	7	KL-875	0235	7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[illegible]
IC-731	0855	2, 4, 6, 7	KB-106	1115	3
			KB-106	1215	5
KB-105	1125	2, 6	TG-313	1240	1, 3, 6
TG-314	1355	1 3, 6	IC-732	1505	2 4, 6, 7
AI-306	1950	5	AI-309	1925	6
[illegible]
RO-076	1950	5, 7	RO-075	1055	5 7
[illegible]
IC-225	1200	1	IC-226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2 5	BG-697	1655	2, 5
[illegible]
BG-092	0850	4, 5	BG-091	0810	4 5
BG-092	1150	1, 2 3, 6 7	BG-091	1110	1 2 3 6 7
IC-723	1250	1 2, 3, 5, 6	IC-724	1520	1 2 3, 5 6
BG-094	1905	1 2 3, 5, 6 7	BG-093	1825	1 2, 3 5 6 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1, 5	BG-095	2020	1, 5

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[illegible]
IC 747	1115	1 3, 5	IC 748	1455	1 3 5
RA 214	1815	1 4	RA 213	1715	1 4
LONDON
BA 142	2050	3 7	BA 143	1525	3 7
MOSCOW
SU-538	1855	4	SU-537	1655	4
PARIS
KB 106	1200	3	KB-105	1040	2 6
KB-106	1900	5
[illegible]
SQ-415	2345	2 5	SQ-416	2230	2 5
SOFIA
LZ 504	1750	4	LZ 503	1650	4
TOKYO
AI 306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
2311	19-15	Delhi Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19 20	Amritsar Mail	7 55	3006
3003	20 35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13 00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat	16 15	2382
2303	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun	16 15	2304
2301	16-30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun	10 45	2302
2305	13 45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat	12 50	2306
3073	23 00	Himgiri (Jammu Tawi) Express Tri-Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat Arr Tues Wed & Sat	11 35	3074
5047	13 00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon Wed & Fri	4 30	5048
3009	20 30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9 15	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18 15	3008
3049	13 20	Amritsar Express	15 30	3050
3039	21-00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5 20	3040
3019	16 05	Kathgodam Express	11 55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5 00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6 30	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17 11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18 20	Asansol Express	8 45	3036
3031	21 05	Danapur Express	5 50	3032
3025	23 00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday Arr Friday	11 35	3026
3071	22 30	Jamalpur Express	5 10	3072
3015	9 55	Santiniketan Express	15 40	3016
1159	15 25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tues & Wed	6 50	1160
1171	15 25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed Arr Fri Sat & Sun	6 50	1172
3327	14 30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4 50	3328
1181	15-25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6 50	1182
		Sealdah
3141	13 40	Teesta Torsa Express Dep Mon Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed Thurs Fri Sat & Sun	6 35	3142
3143	19 15	Darjeeling Mail	8 45	3144
3111	20-15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7 15	3112
5657	6 25	Kanchanjunga Express	20 35	5658
3153	22 00	Gour Express	5 15	3154
5663	20 00	Katihar Express	4 15	5664
3151	11-45	Jammu Tawi Express	15 50	3152
3133	20-55	Mughal Saral Express via SBG Loop	12 55	3134
3103	18 20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express	10 25	3104
5185	12 40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues Thus & Sat	4 25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6 50	6004
8002	19 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12 00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	1940	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13 45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express	22 05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5 00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5 30	8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8 45	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00	8046
8017	16 45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2421	16 40	Bhubaneswar New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10
	11 05	New Delhi Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15
	11 05	Trivandrum Central Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 45	6321
	14 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13 45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13 45	6315
6520	22 35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15
	14 05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains please dial 2203545 54 for in coming trains 2203535 44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains dial 2203496 3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition, dial 1331 (for recorded information on trafn running) 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535 37

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

THE DAFFODIL CASE

It was a foggy day in March that found me idling along Baker Street, with my hands in my pockets, a scarf wound round my neck and two pairs of socks on my feet The BBC had commissioned me to give a talk on village life in India and, ambling along Baker Street in the fog, thinking of my talk, I realised I didn't really know much about village life in India

True, I could remember the smell of cowdung smoke and the scent of jasmine, and the flood waters lapping at the walls of mud houses, but I didn't know much about village electorates and that sort of thing and I was on the point of turning back and making my way to India House to get a few facts and figures when I realised I wasn't on Baker Street anymore

Wrapped in thought I had wandered into Regent's Park And now I wasn't sure of the way out

A tall gentleman wearing a long grey cloak was stooping over a flower bed and, going up to him, I said, "Excuse me, sir, can you tell me how I can get out of here?"

"How did you get in?" he asked me in an impatient voice, and when he turned and faced me, I received a severe shock He wore a peaked hunting cap and in one hand held a large magnifying glass A long curved pipe hung from his sensuous mouth He possessed a long, steely jaw and his eyes had a fierce expression — they were bright with the intoxication of some drug

"Good heavens!" I exclaimed, "You're Sherlock Holmes!"

"And you, sir," he replied, with a flourish of his cloak, "are just out of India, unemployed and due to give a lecture on the radio "

"But how did you know all that?" I stammered "You've never seen me before I suppose you know my name, too?"

"Elementary, my dear Bond, the BBC notepaper in your hand on which you have been scribbling, reveals your intention to give a talk Your name is on the envelope which you hold upside down behind it It is 10 o'clock in the morning, and if you were not unemployed you would be sitting in your office "

"And how do you know I'm from India?" I said, a trifle resentfully

"Your accent betrays you," said Holmes with a superior smile

I was about to turn away and leave him when he laid a restraining hand on my shoulder

"Stay a moment," he said "Perhaps, you can help me I'm surprised at Watson He promised to be here 10 minutes ago but his wife must have kept him at home Never marry, Bond Women sap the intellect "

"In what way can I help you?" I asked, feeling flattered now that the great man had condescended to take me into his confidence

"Take a look at this," said Holmes, going down on his knees near a flower bed "Do you notice anything odd?"

"Someone's been pulling out daffodils," I said

"Excellent Bond! Your power of observation is as good as Watson's Now tell me what else do you see?"

"The ground is a little trampled, that's all "

"By what?"

"A human foot And a dog has been here too, it's been helping to dig the bulbs!"

"You astonish me Bond You are quicker than I thought you were Now shall I explain what this is all about? You see, for the past week, someone has been stealing daffodils from the park and the authorities have asked me to deal with the matter I think we shall catch our culprit this afternoon "

I was rather disappointed, "It isn't very dangerous, is it?"

"Ah, my dear Bond, the days are past when Ruritanian princes lost their diamonds and duchesses their tiaras There are no longer any Ruritanian princes in existence and duches-

'Ah, my dear Bond, the days are past when Ruritanian princes lost their diamonds and duchesses their tiaras. There are no longer any Ruritanian princes in existence and duchesses cannot afford tiaras...and the East End has been cleaned up. And those cretins at Scotland Yard don't even believe in my existence!'

ses cannot afford tiaras The more successful criminals have legalised their activities and the East End has been cleaned up And those cretins at Scotland Yard don't even believe in my existence!"

"I'm sorry to hear that," I said "But who do you think is stealing the daffodils?"

"Obviously, it's someone who owns a dog Someone who takes a dog out regularly for a morning walk That points to a woman A woman in London is likely to keep a small dog—and judging from the animal's footprints, it must be either a Pekinese or a miniature Pomeranian What I suggest, Bond, is that we conceal ourselves behind those bushes and wait for the culprit to come along She is sure to come again this morning She has been stealing daffodils this past week And stealing daffodils, like smoking opium, becomes a habit "

Holmes and I crept behind the bushes, and settled down to a long wait After half-an-hour, our patience was rewarded A large elderly woman in a green hat came walking stealthily across the grass followed by a small white pom on a lead Holmes had been right! More than ever I admired his brilliance We waited until the woman began pulling daffodil plants out of the soil and then Holmes leapt from the bushes

"Ah, we have you madam!" he cried, springing upon her so swiftly that she shrieked and dropped the daffodils but my efforts were rewarded by a nip in the leg from the outraged Pomeranian

Holmes had caught the woman by the shoulders, I don't know what frightened her more —being caught or being confronted by that grim visaged countenance, with its pipe, cloak and hunting cap

"Now madam," he said firmly, "why were you stealing daffodils?"

She had begun to weep and I thought Holmes was beginning to soften, he always did when confronted by weeping women

"I would be obliged, Bond, if you would call the park attendant," he said to me

I hurried off towards a greenhouse and after a brief search found a gardener

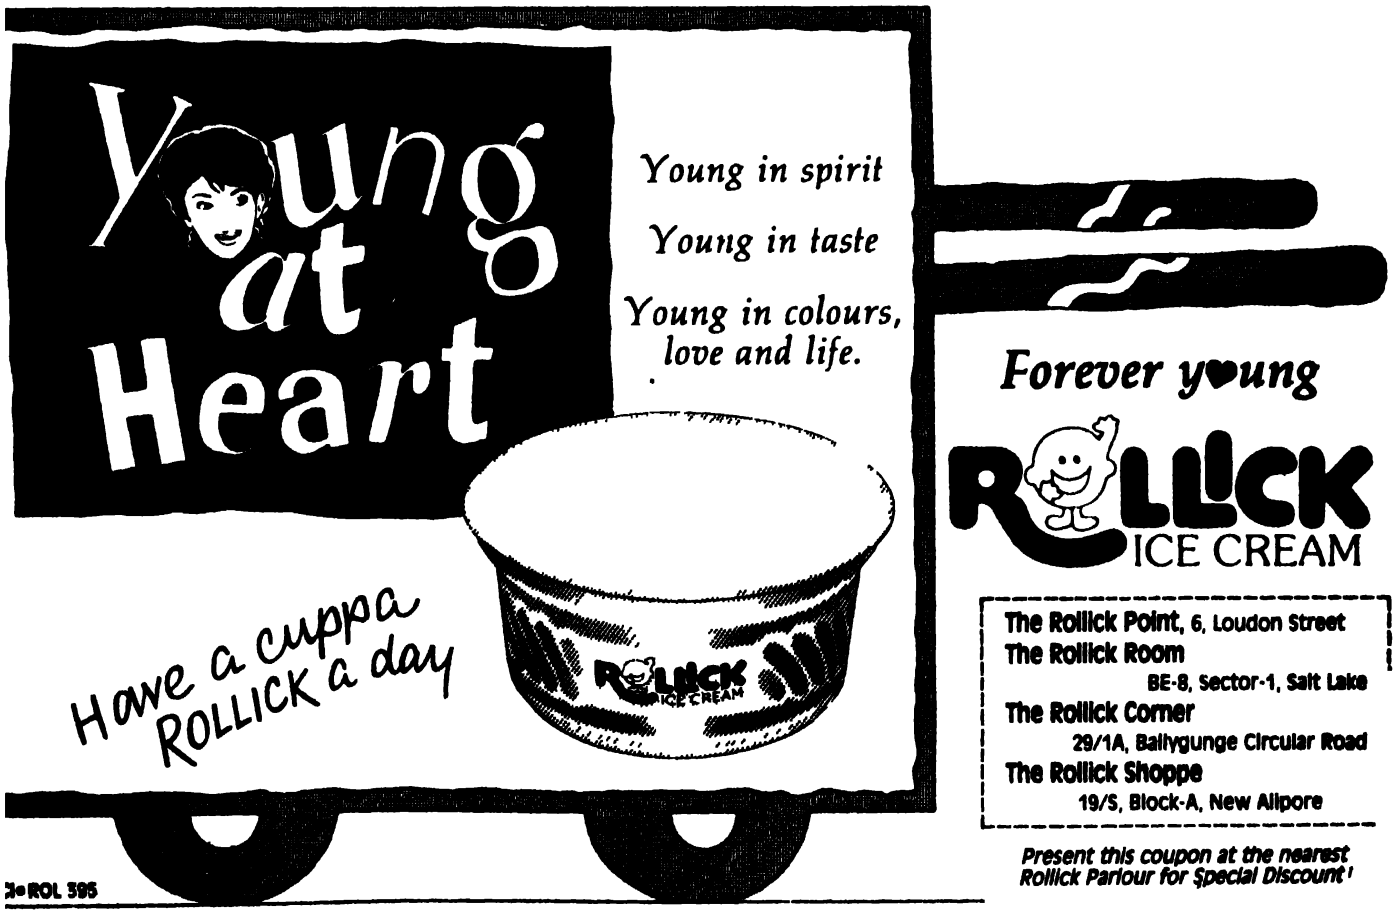
"Stealing daffodils, is she?" he said, running up at the double, a dangerous looking rake in one hand

But when we got to the daffodil bed, we couldn't find the lady anywhere Nor was Holmes to be seen I was overcome by doubt and embarrassment. But, then, I looked on the ground and saw a number of daffodils scattered about the place

"Holmes must have taken her to the police," I said

"Holmes," said the gardener "Who's Holmes?"

"Sherlock Holmes, of course The celebrated detective Haven't you heard of him?"



The gardener looked at me with alarm

"Sherlock Holmes, eh? And you'll be Dr Watson I suppose?"

"Well, not exactly," I said, but before I could explain, the gardener had disappeared

I found my way out of the park eventually, feeling that Holmes had let me down a little Then, just as I was crossing Baker Street, I thought I saw him on the opposite curb He was alone, looking up at a lighted room, and his arm was raised as though he was waving to someone I thought I heard him shout, "Watson!" But I was not sure I started to cross the road, but a big red bus came out of the fog in front of me and I had to wait for it to pass When the road was clear, I dashed across By that time, Mr Holmes was gone and the rooms above were dark

(Sanctuary Features)

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S  COLUMN

HAMMER AND TONGS

"If I had a hammer, I'd hammer in the morning, I'd hammer in the evening, all over the world"

So runs what was once a popular American song It would be the natural song to come to the lips of millions of modernday people, were it not for the fact that they already have hammers

I live surrounded by them in Nizamuddin east, once a very fashionable place to be buried Now the living outnumber the dead and market forces are forcing up the price of land, and forcing down the old bungalows built here after Partition by refugees from Punjab

Construction is not new to Nizamuddin In the 13th century this area was called Ghiaspur, after Ghiasuddin Balban, the last but one of the Slave Kings, who built a beautiful Red Palace here — few traces of which remain

After him came the Sufi saint Nizamuddin who would not have fitted too well into the market economy as he is reported to have wept over his wealth and made arrangements to give it away to the poor immediately The Hazrat wisely kept his public and private life separately, meditating in a small room near the river Jamuna and meeting all and sundry on a wide level piece of land where the dargah stands

The first purpose-built royal mosque of Delhi was built here and its huge halls reverberate five times a day to the recorded tones of a muezzin giving the call to prayer

The fact that even in sultanate times, this area was no remote patch of forest is proved by the construction of another mosque, the Kali Masjid

The sultans only bothered to build mosques where there were people to use them Until a few years ago, this edifice served as a buffalo and goatshed Now, it is a place of worship again, but the hammer has not spared it One part has been demolished and replaced by a modern minar Tiles of the type more often found in bathrooms have appeared on some walls, stone pavements have been relaid with marble and on a new tank built for washing

If this is the fate of a building of the 14th century, there can be no surprise at the wide-scale destruction of lesser buildings with no history They are carved out of the ground to be replaced by three-four storey flats with basements, most of which defy all planning permissions but are seldom touched by the administration The consolation is that they appear so badly made that they will fall down by themselves one of these days

As buildings fall and rise, rubble litters the streets in mounds and hammers work from dawn until late into the night Whatever modern technology may have done for us, buildings are still painstakingly knocked down by hand They are renovated by hand, too — with the occasional help of power drills, and polishing machines which grind the mind

There is one going in the flat upstairs as I write and it conjures up the image of a great giant at the dentist's, his mouth open in the chair while a horde of Liliputian humans dig holes in his molars

The effect of this is added to in our area by two sets of panel beaters who prefer to be known as denters and painters In fact, they dedent Drivers do the denting So whenever there is a pause in the cacophony of construction, they fill it with percussion of their own More vehicles mean more accidents and denting is as inevitable as death

Therefore, it is natural for men who were traditionally craftsmen of other types to move into this noisy business

Husna annd Bhinder are well known personalities to locals here, but one of the benefits of frequent travelling, is that one gets to know denters further afield, too

Recently, in Lucknow, I had a contretemps with a telephone pole, uprootinng it dramatically from the ground, disconnecting several officials' telephonnes and coming to rest halfway over a stone wall The car, unfortunately, was not mine

Oh, the agonies of guilt I felt after the initial shock of the adventure The hunt went on for a denter Munna in Nishatgunj, near the Karbala, was recommended to be the best by Kunwar Narain, a leading poet Who else should one go to at a time of crisis?

Munna was himself an artist He had never worked on a Contessa before and wasn't sure what it should look like, but was gifted with imagination

Not only that, out of sheer dedication to detail, we cycle-rickshawed around the state capital looking for undented Contessas We stopped where we spotted them parked and examined the bonnets

A suspicious policeman called us over outside the state guest house, but once we explained the problem, he called over a driver to assist us Two weeks it took And I sat in the dust and sun and noise and learned the theory of the art of panel beating

The energy required to sit in the sun for hours and beat is awesome, besides which there is the risk to hand and limb of burning yourself with the torch as you repeatedly heat and then beat

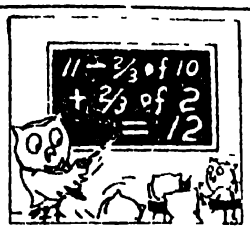
Munna, Bhinder and Husna are master craftsman of this new art born of the rising living standards of many The new flats in Nizamuddin, retailed in a cocktail of black-and-white money, also indicate newfound purchasing power

But while standards of living improve for some, the quality of our environment worsens through noise, air and water pollution Standards of living are mere economic indicators, but customers (for in the market economy that is all that we are) in the new century will demand something more On their shopping list will be not so much Standards of Living as Quality of Life

(Sanctuary Features)

JUNIOR WHIRL

HAL KAUFMAN



©1995 by King Features Syndicate Inc

FIND TWINS! Rain, rain, please go away, who needs another umbrella day? Which two umbrellas here appear to be twins?

WORD CIRCUS! Given a word and a letter, juggle letters to form the name of an animal 1 ROSE plus H 2 GRIT plus E 3 MALL plus A. 4. LACE plus M 5 BEAR plus Z See if you can name all five

1 Horse 2 Tiger 3 Llama 4 Camel 5 Zebra

FIGURING IS A HOOT

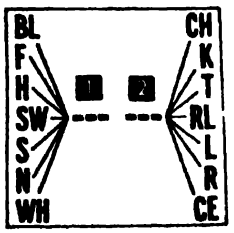
"LISTEN UP," says the Wise Old Owl, pointing to the blackboard above "Perhaps the problem you see does not make sense, but a case can be made that the answer is correct

'Hear me out

Ordinarily we would say 11 minus two thirds of 10, plus two thirds of 10, plus two-thirds of 2 (6 2/3 plus 1 1/3) is equal to 8, is it not?

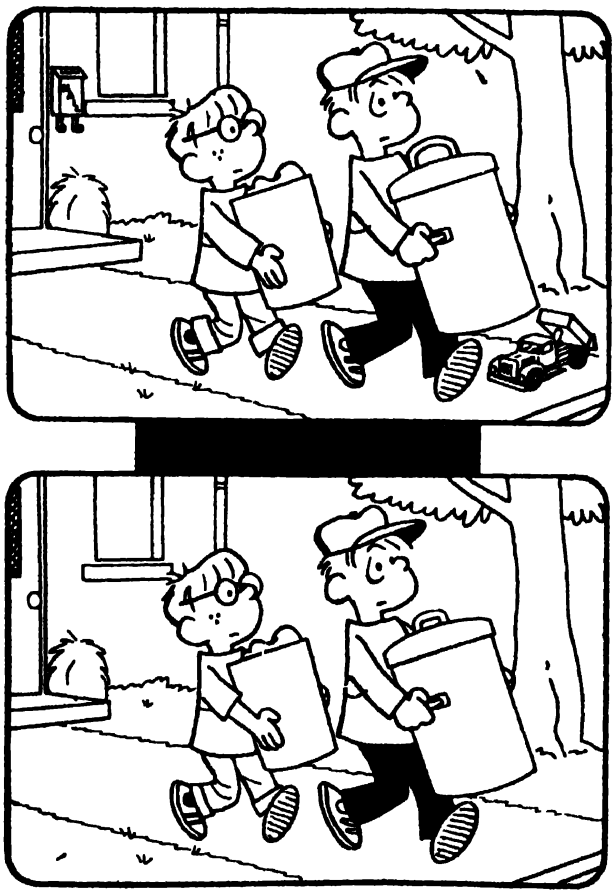
But at the same time, ELEVEN minus two thirds of TEN, which may be regarded as EN, results in ELEV plus two-thirds of TWO, TW is ELEVTW which, rearranged becomes TWELVE the answer displayed

'Anyone give a hoot? No? Class dismissed"



Second the motion

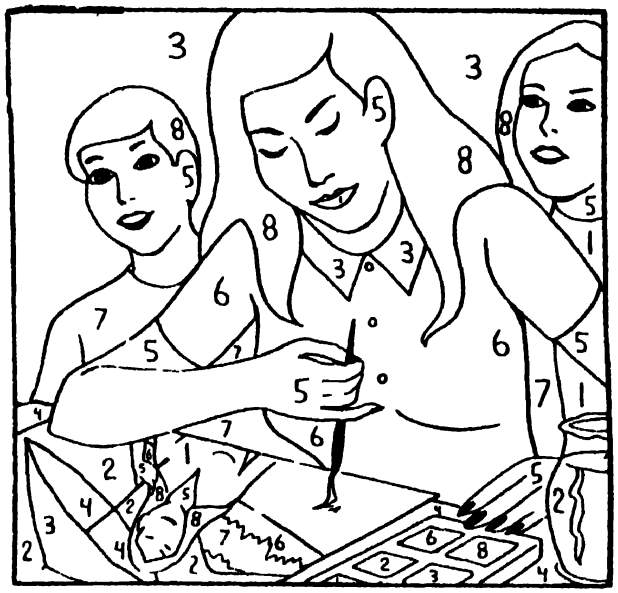
THREE AWAY! Two three-letter words will complete the word-run sequence below In sequence No 1, for instance, addition of the word "are" would result in blare, tare, hare and hare, but end there



In sequence No 2, addition of "pin" would result in pinch, pink and pint, but leave another four words unfulfilled

What two words then will comply with needs of each?

Bat and pie respectively will comply



HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below

Differences 1 Mailbox is missing 2 Platform is shorter 3 Sleeve is shorter 4 Curls are smaller 5 Handle is smaller 6 Truck is missing

FUNSPOT

BRUSH PARTY! Our artist friend is at work on a scene from her homeland. Coloring code: 1-Red. 2—Lt. blue. 3—Yellow. 4—Lt. brown. 5—Flesh tones, 6—Lt. green. 7—Dk. brown. 8—Black.

SPELLBINDER

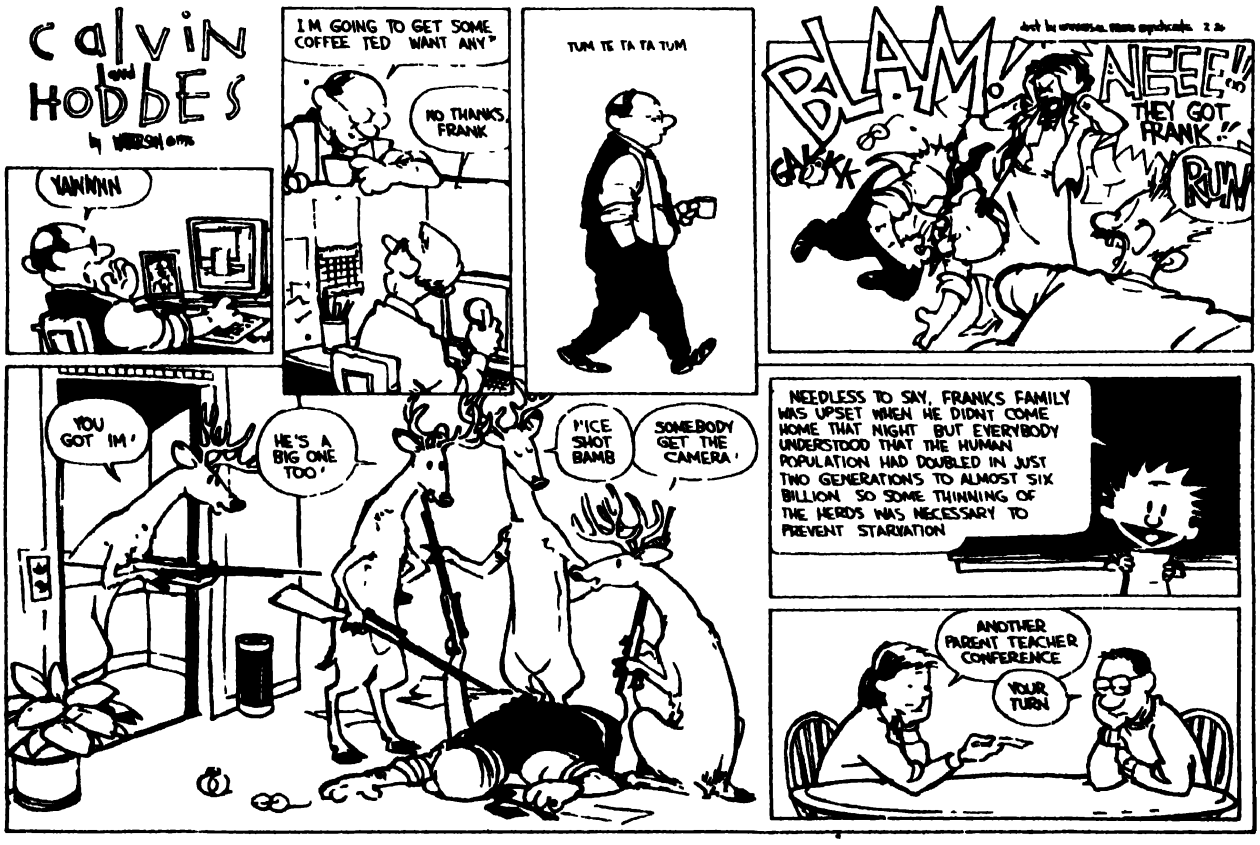
SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

ATOMIZER

- - - - - - - -

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

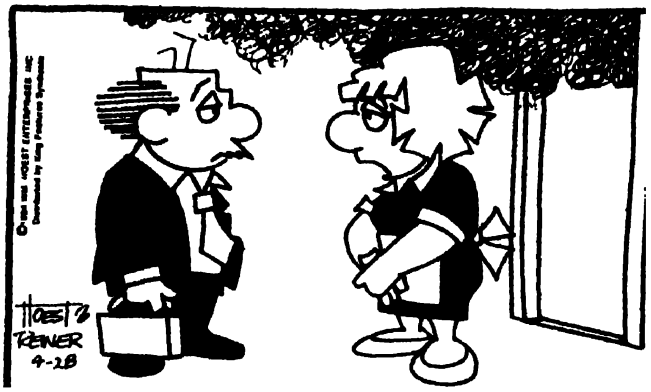
Try to score at least 50 points



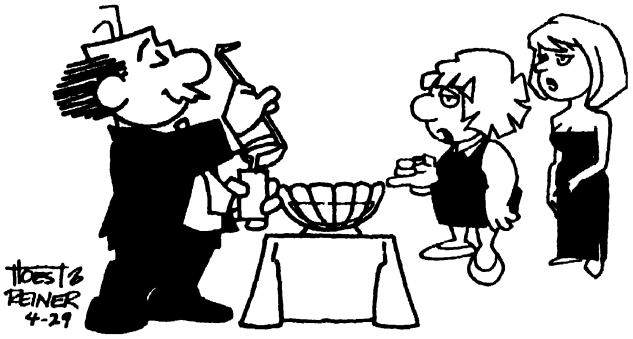
Possible awesome Riot, mazes

COMICS

ARCHIE



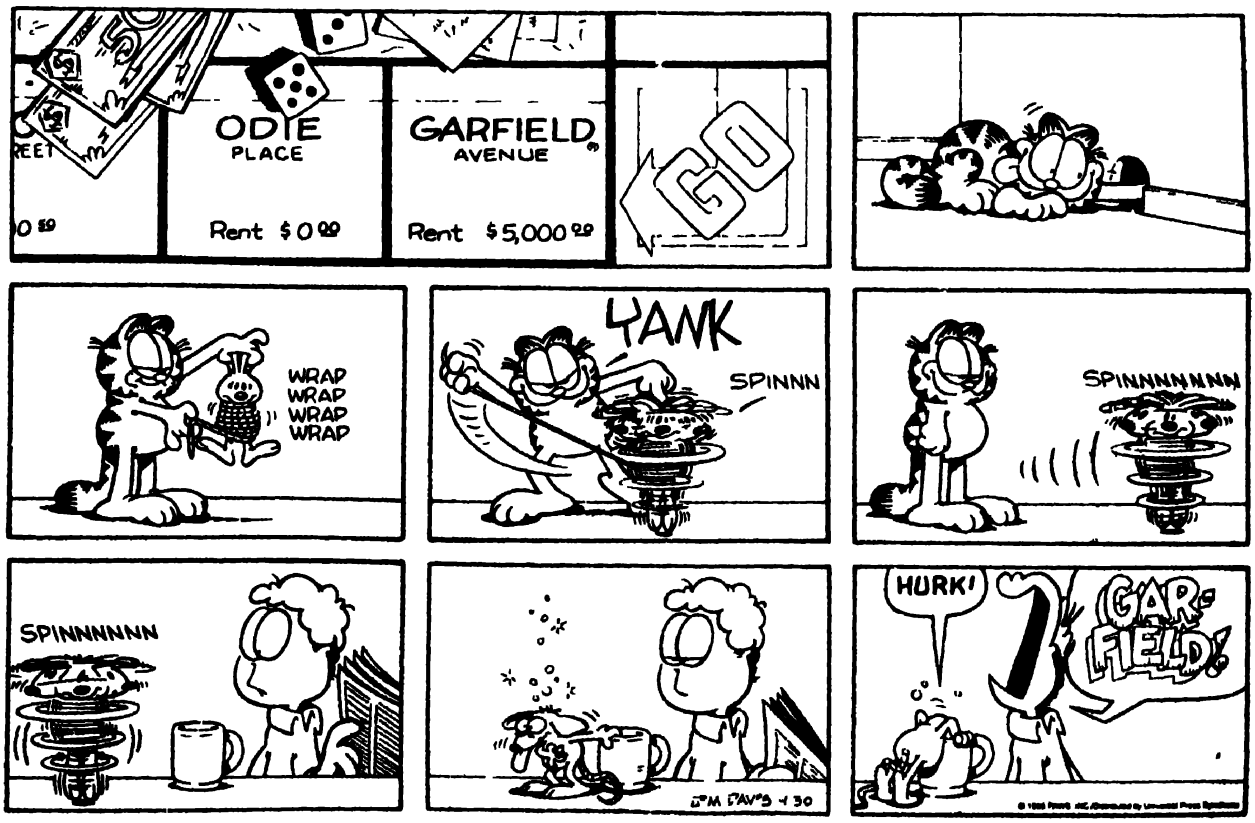
CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON



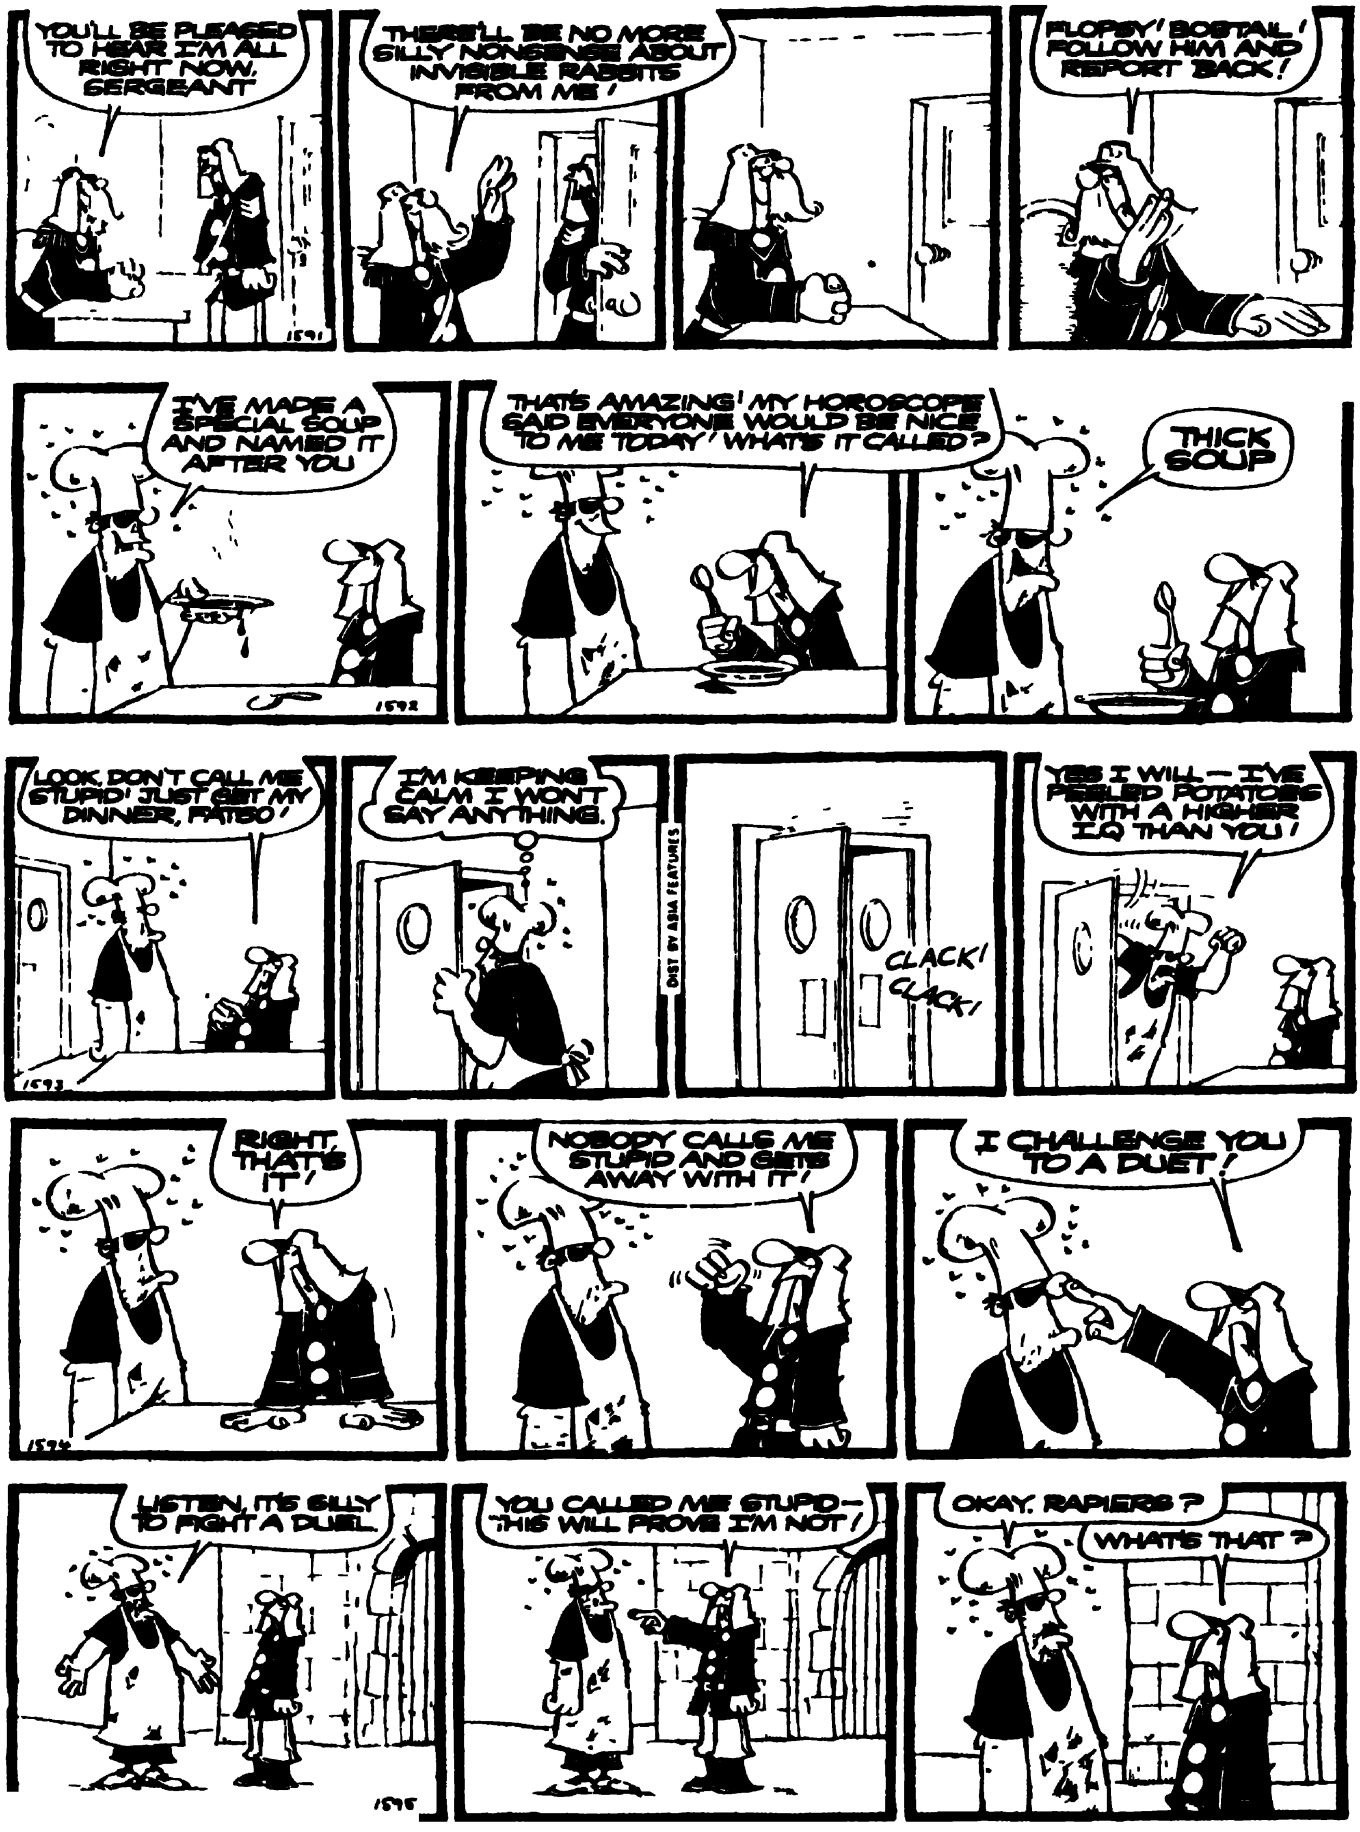
THE LOCKHORNS

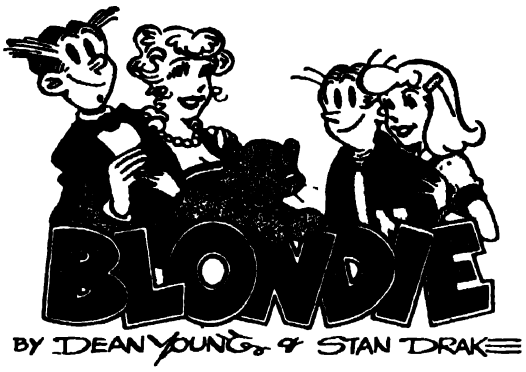
"LORETTA CHANGES HER MIND TWENTY TIMES A DAY, AND STILL HASN'T COME UP WITH ONE THAT WORKS."

"I DIDN'T BURN THE DINNER, LEROY. THE STOVE DID."

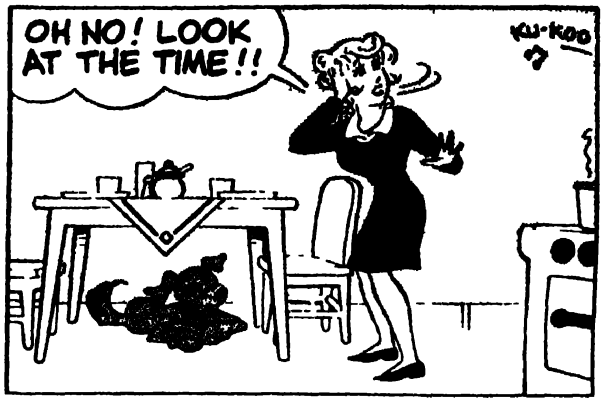


"AFTER LEROY FINISHES YOUR PUNCH, HE'S GOING TO GET ONE FROM ME."

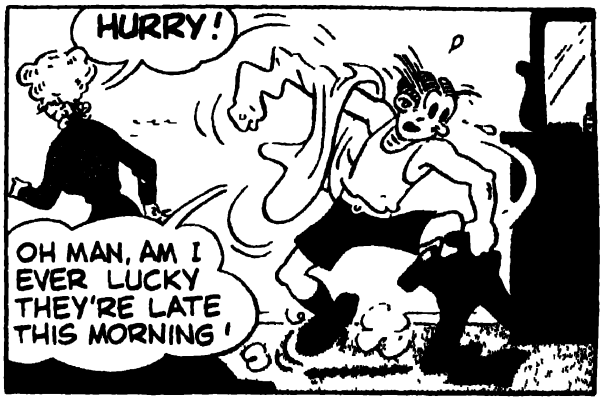




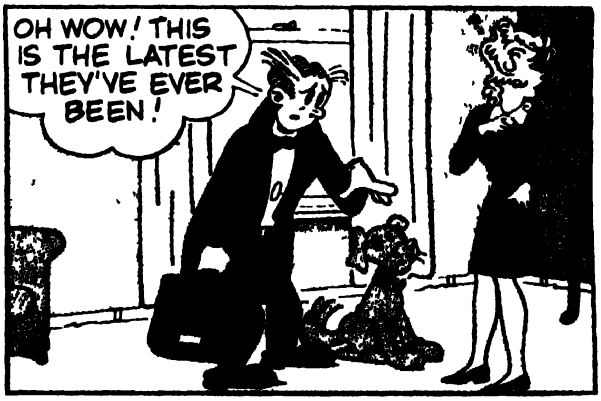
"AFTER TEN COMMERCIALS IN A ROW, I'VE FORGOTTEN WHAT SHOW WE'RE WATCHING."

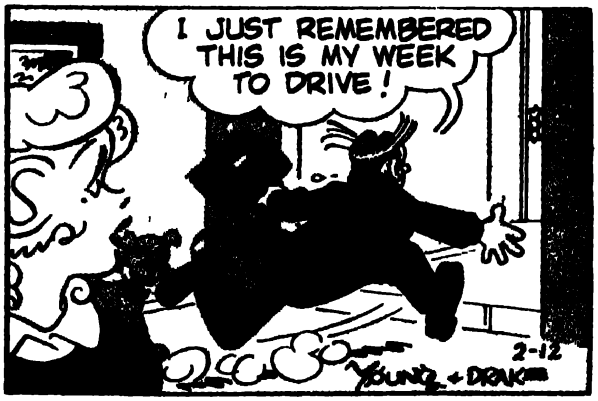


GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS



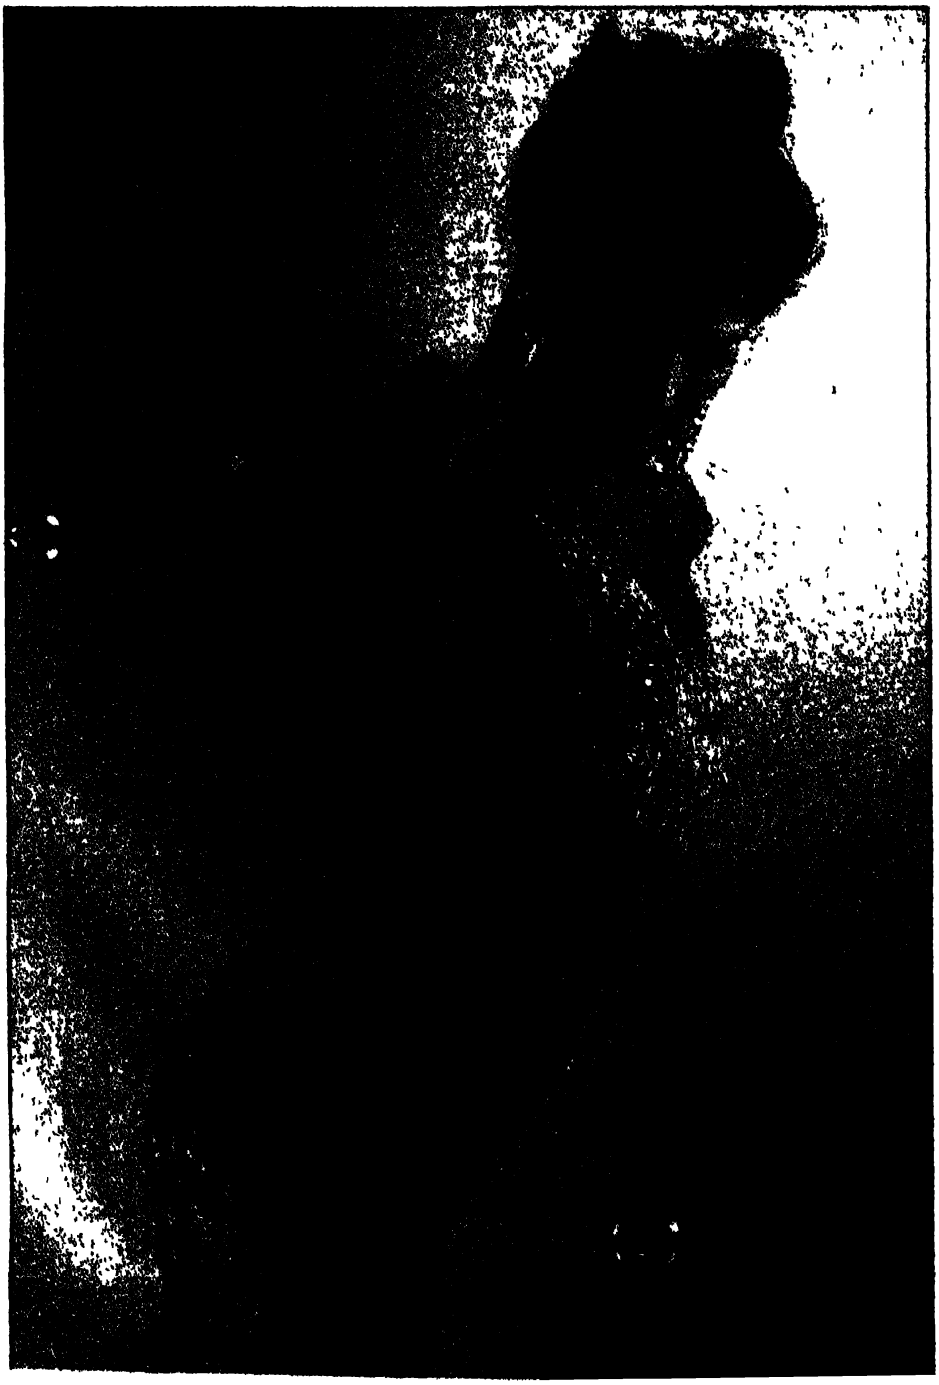
THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP





©1995 by King Features Syndicate Inc World rights reserved

PIN UP



HUMMA BIRD

The face to watch out for in Bombay

A sensational guest appearance in Mani Ratnam's Bombay has caught the public fancy even while the rest of the film is embroiled in controversy after controversy Sonali's feverish dance is set to the pulsating tune of A.R Rahman and exotically choreographed by Sundaram Raju

The song rendered by Remo Fernandes, Humma humma lends a touch of wantonness to Bombay

Sonali was not sure whether she would study labour law or personnel management But as destiny always has the last word, she found herself strolling into tinsel town and saying cheese to the camera Gone were the dreams of academics and higher studies

She became a model Remember the Strepsils girl? Or the Fem bleach model? Sonali Bendre, the 20-plus model-turned-actress, the mix-n-match Moushumi Chatterjee/Mamta Kulkarni look-alike is in the habit of springing surprises on everyone, including herself

For who would have thought she would waltz away with the Screen-Panasonic Discovery of the Year Award? And pick up the Filmfare Fresh New Face Award as well? "It is almost as if the Screen-Panasonic Awards were instituted just for me!" Sonali beamed after winning the honour

Tall, lithe, with a feline grace and a string of successful modelling assignments and movies (Aag, Naraaz, Takkar and Gaddar) trailing her, she is the hottest debutante in film town today

Sonali feels she is lucky as things easily come her way Like the Screen awards The Filmfare awards Mani Ratnam's Bombay And English Babu, Desi Mem opposite Shah Rukh Khan coming soon

How does she view herself five years from now? "I hope I won't have any more sleepless nights before a dance shoot!"

Susmita Banerjee

In

THE PICK OF THE WEEK

VIDEOS

Once Were Warriors: This brutally fascinating film unleashes the gory side of Maori life and New Zealand temperament kept well under wraps even two decades back.

The film, based on a novel by Alan Duff, is directed by Lee Tamahori who shifts the focus from husband Jake, to his wife, Beth, played by the dynamic Rena Owen.

The movie, crude and shocking in parts, turns out to be the story of Beth's awakening when her husband rams her against the walls and pummels her face constantly. She is in danger of losing her life.

If Beth still manages to hang around, it is out of a sense of stubborn pride and not because she is a masochist.

Caught in the vortex of an attraction which many women find hard to resist in tough guys, Owen takes everything to the very limits, showing love fighting back rage and then shame and despair tearing away at love.

BOOKS

Indian Cricket (1994) Last year was a year of records galore for Indian as well as international cricket Kapil Dev crossed Richard

Hadlee's tally of 431 Test wickets Dashing West Indian, Brian Lara, programmed himself into a superior run making machine when he scored 375 against England and eclipsed the 36 year-old record of Gary Sobers

In this 48th edition, P V Vaidyanathan compiles facts with figures, statistics with records of Indian victories and losses and national championship scores

This packed-with-info volume is priced at an affordable Rs 45 and is published by Kasturi & Sons Limited of The Hindu

FASHION

Short Circuit: Cool and chic. That's the kind of casual garb, up for grabs this season.

Gone are those heavily flounced up skirts with frills and laces. The trend is more towards wearing the itsy-bitsy natty look.

Hip-hugging cotton minis in bold black polkas are in, as is the black silk scarf passing off for a classy sash.

Legs, slim and shapely, should be left unhindered save for the black velvet ballerinas encasing the feet.

The top, in long zebra stripes, is brief, synchronising beautifully with the partly chequered matrix of the mini. Arms are left bare with just a strip of fabric as the only hint of a sleeve.

This gorgeous gear which looks best on glowing tanned skin was part of the Shringar Utsav, a fashion show put up by Delhi's IIFT and Business Nexus earlier this month.

And for reasons obvious had set pulses racing this summer.

FESTIVE

Count on Kellogg The cola war is turning cold and the liquor boom is stale news Now Calcuttans can gear up for some wholesome distraction at their breakfast table

Kellogg's is here to fill you with health flakes of different varieties — wheat, Basmati and the oh-so-common corn

This should be music to the ears of calorie-freaks as Kellogg's is a simple diet of complex carbohydrates, proteins, vitamins, iron and is 98 per cent fat free

The company did some serious research for quality cereals and finally managed to get the corn from

Andhra Pradesh, wheat from Madhya Pradesh and rice from Punjab

Competitively priced at Rs 16 40 for a 100 gm pack, Rs 27 30 for the 200 gm pack and Rs 37 15 for 250 gm pack

Sultry and sweet You've said 'mmm' to their mango, jived with their orange, pined for their pineapple and slurped their guava Now it's time to jumpin' for Litchis

Yes, Godrej now adds a 'litchi' flavour to their list of soft drinks This exotic tetrapak has been introduced in select markets and is now ready to tantalise the tastebuds of every major city this summer! You can go litchis for Rs 7 per 200 ml pack!

POETRY

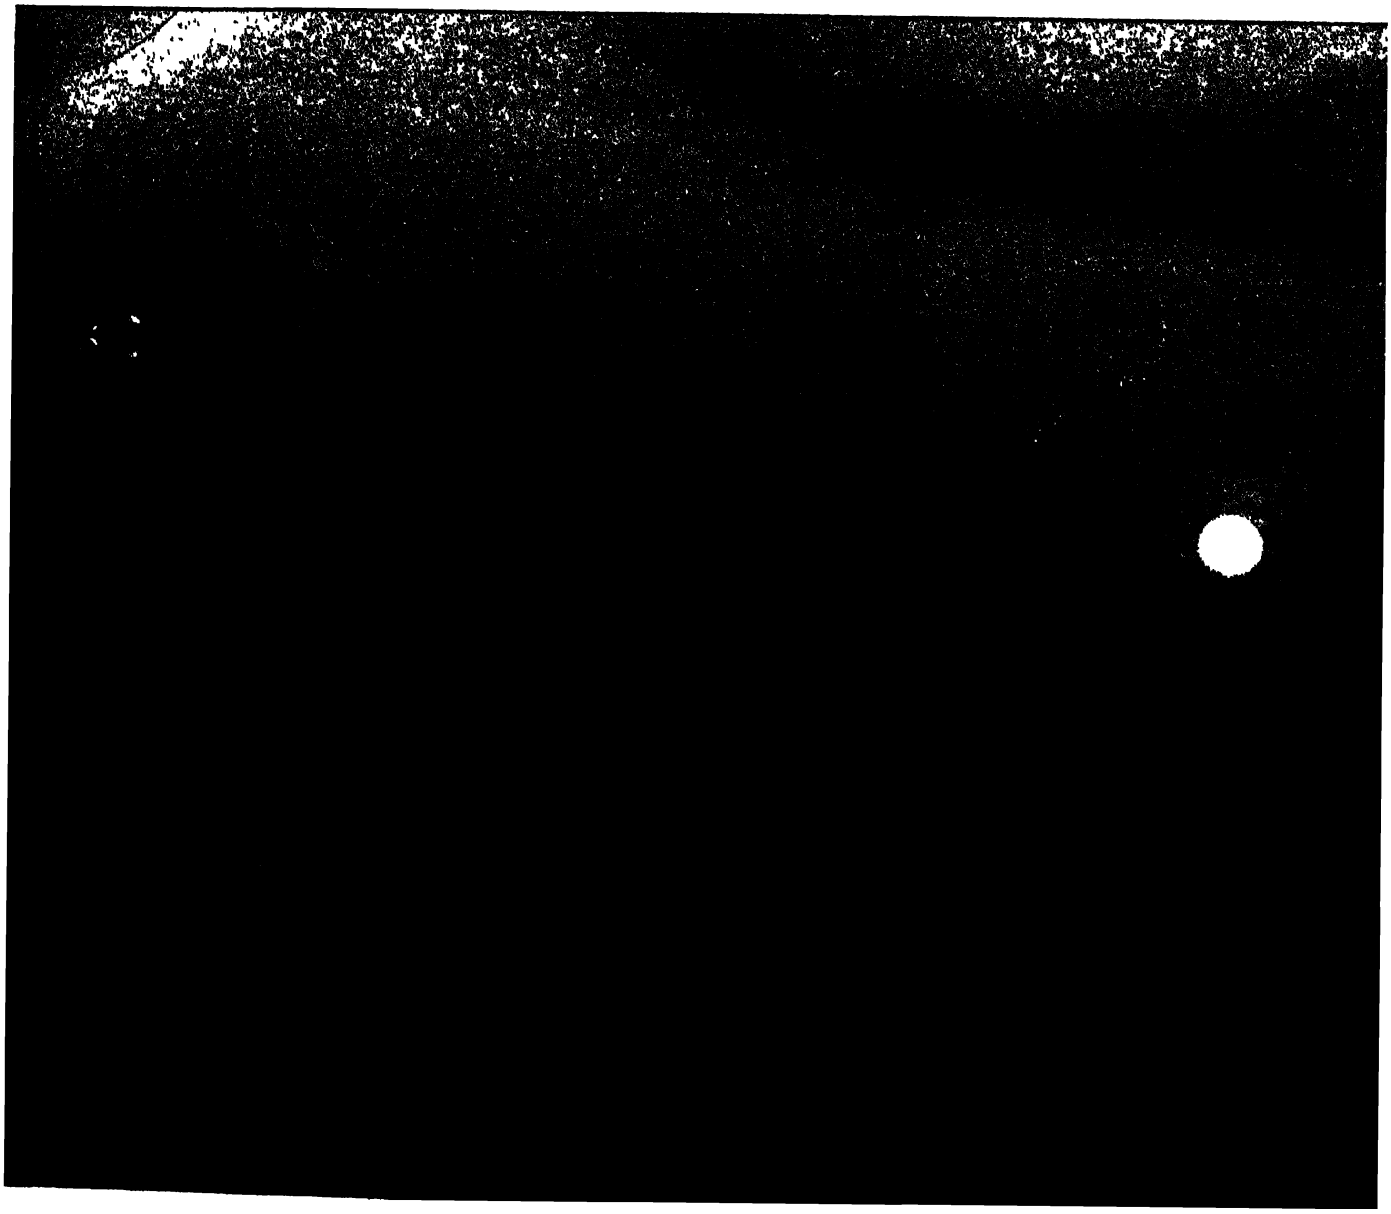
Selected by Jayanta Mahapatra

The Night Chorus

' crows calling at night wakes
,'
and I wonder what is wrong
The sound is full of danger
Or is it simply one's own mind
That sings its sad song
In the small hours?

They spoke the same language the night you died
I wanted to run far away and hide,
But I stayed and heard them as I held you in my arms
Not sleepy croakings, but shrill with alarm

Can they sense that Death is near?
Most things they hear
These crows
The approach of a strange cat, one they don't know
And call out a warning



I go to the window
"Are you somewhere there? Or anywhere?"

I ask, as I stare up at the sky
There is a disturbance in the trees
And I watch a crow fly sleepily to another

They are quiet now, but not so my heart
There is pain and longing, although
I accepted long ago we had to part
They're calling again Is something else in store?
Can there be much more?
"Yes", is the short answer to that

I return to bed
Perhaps what I hear
Is only the sound of my own fear

Tara Kidwai

You

I saw you in the majestic beak of a pied hornbill
Glittering in the morning sun from the peak
Of the tallest silk-cotton tree
In the thick forests of sub-
Himalayan Abor hills

I saw you in the shells of the fresh water mussels
Sprinkled over the sandy banks of Brahmaputra
At Majuli, the biggest river island of the world

I saw you in the hood of the giant
King Cobra
Prowling through the ferns
Luxuriantly dancing in the swamp of the Nambor forest

I saw you in the canter of the one horned King,
The rhinoceros with his prehistoric skin,
Paleolithic bonnes and timeless gaze
Reigning over the grass lands of Kaziranga

But now,
When I am here with my sons,
And tell them of you, they only smile,
They talk of AK47 and Robots,
I weep and I cry

Pratap Bora

India

Ask the man who sells shadows under that lonely tree in the scorching desert
in the kindness of some legendary
God
He can only point out where India
is

At midnight, the caretaker of the burning-ground,
Harishchandra, with those words
incised on his terrible stave
The cost for a body's cremation

Aware that not even one among them belongs to the flute-playing youth grazing cattle
in the twilight hour of homebound cows
India's freedom hides in the cloth tied to his head

And yet, when night gives birth everytime to the still-born morning which must come,
we crowd around it, crying out with joy
"Mother India! O India, our Mother!"

Sanat Ray
Translated from Oriya
by Jayanta Mahapatra

To Calcutta

So what if your face is wrinkled?
So was the face of my mother
So what if your lanes turn on themselves?
And smog conceals your soft cool
dawns?

Those whom I love — a friend, my mother,
A favourite book, a beloved city —
Even if wrinkled, even if moth-eaten
They have something which you can't put in words

I hear your song in my blood,
My arteries are tied to your pulse
You gave me all the dreams that I dream
And your womb covers all my fears

Susmita Bhattacharya

NIKKI BEDI, the golden-haired, blue-green-eyed lady might soon give TV chat show hosts something to think about. She is in a 'fun, frothy show' and not striving to emulate the 'intellectual' ones being aired now. This vivacious and ebullient damsel first made waves in India for her role as Desdemona in the Alyque Padamsee-directed Othello. With Star TV's Nikki Tonight chat show she's hit big time. No longer will she be known only as Kabir Bedi's wife.

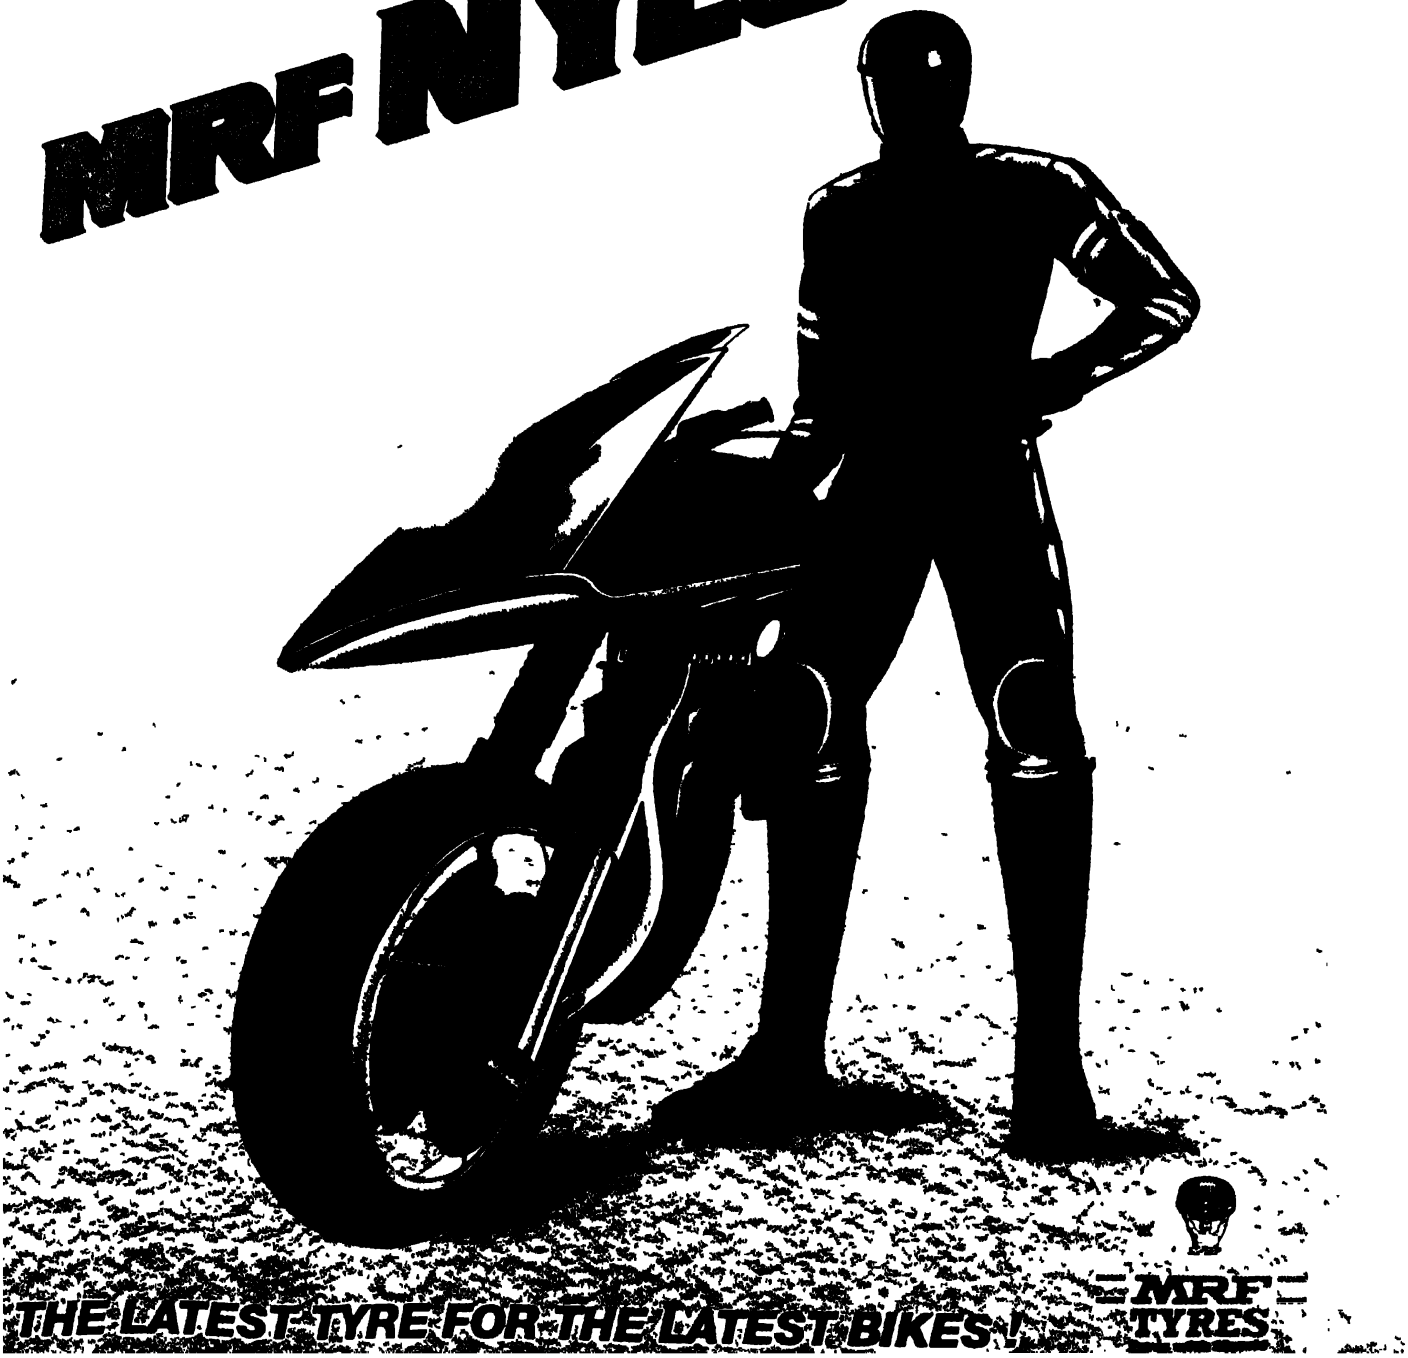
What is your idea of perfect happiness?
To be able to juggle a career, marriage and my family
What is your greatest fear?
I have so many But mainly, not being able to control my feelings
Who or what has been the greatest influence in your life?
My mistakes
What do you dislike most in others?
Hypocrisy
What do you dislike most in yourself?
My lack of patience
What is your most precious possession?
Kabir
What objects do you always carry?
My wedding ring — I wear it always And a harmony bell (a tiny brass bell with inscriptions, attached to a long string)
What makes you most depressed?
My menstrual cycle
What do you dislike most on your appearance?
I have finally learnt to accept myself completely But the part I disliked was a huge nose with a bump in the end I changed that (with plastic surgery)
What is your favourite word?
Gobsmacked

What is your greatest regret?

Leaving my first husband the way I did

What is your favourite journey?
[No comment]

What is your favourite dream?
I am very superstitious But I have no dreams



What is your nightmare?
The people I love, dying
What or who is the greatest love of your life?
Kabir

What makes you most depressed?

My menstrual cycle

What is your source of sustenance?
[No comment]
On what occasions do you lie?
Only to protect somebody's feelings It is always a white lie
What is your greatest regret?
Leaving my first husband the way I did
What has been your happiest moment?
Yet to come
What brings tears to your eyes?
Picket Fences
How do you relax?
I play scrabble And I am a mag hag I love reading magazines
What do you envy most in others?
Self-discipline
How would you like to be remembered?
This is what was said of Amrita Shergill — 'I would like to be remembered as a comet that hit and left a dent'
How would you like to die?
In my husband's arms.

THE MAN.
THE MACHINE..
THE TYRE...
MRF NYLOGRIP

THE LATEST TYRE FOR THE LATEST BIKES !

MRF TYRES

I bring an eye-opening collection of fabrics slightly ahead of their time

A revelation in pure silk and blends

A revolution in pure merino wool Woven from the world's best yarn, with fine air spaces
to keep you cool winter through summer

Rare fabrics that bring home
the world's best.

Bare your soul
Weave romance around your body
In colours you have only dreamt of

Don't believe me
Trust only your eyes

The Uniworth Collection is available wherever fine fabrics are sold

The Uniworth
Collection

If you find a better suiting, buy it.

UNIWORTH GROUP

UNIWORTH INTERNATIONAL LIMITED
Rowdon Chambers
11A Rowdon Street Calcutta 700017
©1994 UNIWORTH

The Telegraph

7 MAY 1995

POST MORTEM

Panditji's Sitar

■ The tribute to Pandit Ravi Shankar was enlightening ('Alaap', April 2) The views of the three musical maestros bring out Panditji's inherent mastery over the sitar

Ravi Shankar is the first to take Indian classical music beyond the shores of India His dedication and contribution to the cause of Indian classical music and the sitar, in particular, have made him the best cultural ambassador of India

Manoranjan Das,
Jamshedpur

■ Can we look forward to another such cover story on Ustad Ali Akbar Khan Saheb?

Avra Banerjee and Abir Banerjee,
Calcutta

■ I was greatly surprised to see such a divine subject on the cover of the Magazine, used as we are to seeing bare beauties

R Sarkar,
Calcutta

■ Ravi Shankar took the musical world by surprise with his talent and made the sitar a household name in India

Although a classicist he is at ease playing a jugalbandi with rock musicians also

Debabrata Mohanty,
Balasore (Orissa)

■ Ravi Shankar has taken the sitar to every corner of the world His music for Satyajit Ray's film, Pather Panchali, greatly enhanced the beauty of the film We wish him many more birthdays and hope he creates some dedicated disciples

Sukla Das,
Jamshedpur

Pandit Ravi Shankar One with his music

From Sahir's Sister

■ Thank you for the cover story on my Bhaijaan, Sahir Ludhianvi ('Timeless', March 12) It is because of people like you that the memory of Sahir is being kept alive in the hearts of the new generation

My Bhaijaan occupies a permanent place not only in my heart, but in the hearts of millions of people who relate themselves with the emotions expressed in his poems

Bhaijaan was a poet of the downtrodden, the masses and the have-nots

As a member of the Progressive Writers' Movement, Sahir's vision was revolutionary However his revolution was not characterised by slogan shouting and destruction

He was critical of the negative values and the customs of an exploitative social order He dreamed of an egalitarian society based on the values of secularism and universal brotherhood His yearning for peace in the world finds expression in poems like Parchhaiyan

Anwar Sultana,
Bombay

INSIDE

Ashoke Chakrabarty

PAGE 8

ASIAN TAXI drivers in New York live in danger, every night Fear lurks in their hearts for they could be the next target of a killer

PAGE 4

AN EXTRACT from T N Seshan and Sanjoy Hazarika's book, The Degeneration of India

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
18 RUSKIN BOND
20 GILLIAN WRIGHT
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
26 RAINBOW
28 ENVIRONMENT
30 FIRST PERSON

Cover A P Kamath

EXTRACT

Tu Cheez Badi Hai

MAST MAST

BY T.N.SESHAN

Extracted from The Degeneration of India by T.N Seshan with Sanjoy Hazarika, Viking (Penguin India), Rs 299

There is a cultural revolution of sorts taking place in India today New styles of music, dance, movies, the advent of satellite television, and new trends in newspapers, books and magazines, are changing the concept of India among Indians as well as that of Indians about themselves and the world around them Communication has suddenly become much quicker through fax, electronic mail and satellite technology A disproportionately high value is placed today on information and entertainment The tragedy is that our sources of entertainment have begun to redefine our culture And the world of entertainment in our country today is overly monopolised by films

There is programme on Doordarshan's Metro channel that my wife and I sometimes watch on Sunday evenings It is called Superhit Muquabla and purports to show the ten most popular songs from Hindi and regional films over the previous week

We don't usually watch all of it but only glance at it intermittently Sometimes we turn off the volume, switch on some Carnatic music and then sit back to watch the Hindi film dance sequence with a classical song playing in the background Others should try it it is hilarious

What appears to be taking place is a frenetic competition on who can gyrate his or her pelvic girdle the most, with the winner taking the grand prize of obscenity The film world seems to be pandering to cave man or cave woman instincts, with neither depth of thought nor sensitivity to the fact that these messages are being beamed into our bedrooms and living rooms where children, tradition-bound women and men may be watching

In fact, the new infotainment on film and television has spawned new lifestyles, where consumerism, not the consumer, is king What we have done is inflict the worst possible torment on our lower middle class and poor those who have access to television but who do not have the income to buy anything substantial from the washing powder advertised by Lalitaji to the sleek mixie-grinders, refrigerators, washing machines and soft drinks Nor can they savour the mouth-watering range of culinary dishes that international chefs serve up on TV channels

Few surveys have been conducted on the impact of television programmes and advertising on people, especially in the rural areas What is important to study is not just its impact in villages but also among communities which have little real understanding of India or the world and which must span many decades in a short span of time to them soap operas like The Bold and the Beautiful, Santa Barbara and Kurukshetra represent the elusive ideal, where life is a tangle of beauty, scandal wealth, sex, power and stunning palatial homes There is little or no ugliness in these serials except when it comes to deceit and betrayal

It is when life begins to imitate art that things take an ugly turn This has happened in many villages which are turning into sub-towns on the edges of major cities like Bombay and Delhi, where men are becoming hooked to pornographic movies and expect their wives to perform the kinds of contorted sex that they see in these films When the wives express horror and opposition, they are beaten and even raped That the men are frequently drunk makes the offence more vicious

People's visions of what they are or want to become are no longer being determined so much by peer example as by what they see on infotainment channels

Children, especially, are confused between what they want and what is the larger good A survey conducted by the Indian Express threw up some interesting findings (Express Magazine, 29 January, 1995) A fourteen-year-old says her role model is the actress Madhuri Dixit and she says she wants "a good job, a huge house and a chauffeur-driven imported car" Another wants an imported car but "I also wish there was no poverty in India" Others want to be cricketers in the mould of Sachin Tendulkar (how educated is Tendulkar?), businessmen, engineers and architects Very few say they would like to be teachers, professionals or even administrators Most of them watch satellite TV and the common denominator running through their remarks is that they would like to earn pots of money and live abroad

The current level of programming is thoughtless, corrupt and far removed from reality It only raises expectations beyond all realistic norms and increases the social tension in the country By essentially pandering to very basic human instincts revolving around sleaze, sex and money, indicating no option but violence to achieve results, entertainment is both degenerative and idiotic

Adding to the problem is the fact that Indian programmes which attempt to focus on serious issues find it difficult to get sponsors and advertisers who will underwrite costs Much of prime time advertising goes to programmes with the maximum pelvic thrusts or steamy masala sequences

But it is not as if our programme managers are able to efficiently handle serious programmes either Take the pathetic unprofessionalism of a news bulletin on Doordarshan Forget for once, its non-adherence to English grammar, forget its describing a landslide in Colombia South America, as occuring in Washington DC , forget even its utter unwillingness to attempt the correct poronunciation of places and names which even a foreign newreader finds possible to achieve Look instead at the basic aim of any news programme the skilful and comprehensive dissemination of news and current events Even here Doordarshan fails abysmally News here, is a series of bad shots of various 'leaders of the nation' taking turns at placing wreaths at Rajghat, or inaugurating some inconsequential facility Only the names of the VIPs change, according to the warrant of precedence News on All India Radio is much the same, minus the bad pictures, of course And more often than not, what appears as 'news' in the electronic media , would already have appeared in cold print 24, even 48 hours earlier

One of the reasons for the ineptness of our media is the constant interference by people in power, who, in this free country, very often determine what should constitute 'news' Telephone calls are made to the news editors by high officials and politicians on how to highlight an incident or play it down Naturally, the poor editor has no choice but to hold the torch Of course, add to all this the merriment of flies buzzing around the faces of news readers and cats sauntering across the studio floor

Occasionally you do see on the television a programme which even when it is hostile to the person being interviewed, is obviously professional in its hostility and relentless in its pursuit of truth Sometimes this is gentle, at other times needling, sometimes offensive but always exploring new problems and new lifestyles Examples that come to mind are episodes of Aap ki Adalat on Zee television and Hello zindagi on Doordarshan

To summarise, what is apparent is that a sanitised version of the news, dressed up in boring garments, is all we are allowed to watch instead of the r[illegible]thing Will our leaders ever see [illegible]w their policies will get them [illegible]owhere? One can only hope so

But why should we focus merely on the mess in television? Decades before the video and television boom, before satellite dishes and antennae bristled on the rooftops of our cities and towns, was the era of trend-setting films where violence was glorified, step by step rape was shown, where lechery and teasing of women was encouraged, where sickening innuendoes and open anti-woman biases were developed in songs and dances, not to mention hastily written scripts

Here we run in to the chicken and egg theory the film makers say they are making these kinds of films because this is what the audiences want "If they did not want them, then they would reject these movies," that is their attitude

My point is different it is not that you should not give the viewer what sells But you also have a broader responsibility to see that people can absorb this kind of punishment you are inflicting on them without adverse reactions The act of stoning a district magistrate to death, of molesting and blackmailing women, of police assaulting women in custody or in the fields, of people avenging themselves on oppressors in uniform with sharp brutality — these undercurrents may have existed for centuries But now they have resurfaced as adaptations from the pages of film scripts or clips from these films

All forms of crime, ordinary violence and brutality against woman are encouraged on screen and replicated in real life India is perhaps the only country where life imitates debased art we have chief ministers who strut about like heroes and movie actors have become chief ministers In reverse, the assasination of a Prime minister is converted into a film with music, songs and tamashas A tragedy is turned into a contemptible farce

I am not making a case for censorship But I am calling for upgrading the quality of entertainment That is the answer, not government control

People are tired of violence in movies, as in real life Real life too can be most unpleasant and there is a thirsting for better made, better quality products We see it these days in the greater number of non-obscene songs (albeit with pelvic thrusts) that are making it to the top of the popularity charts, there is a return to romance, pleasanter songs, cleaner comedy The mood of the pevlic has turned from supporting the Angry Young Men and their bevy of heroines, armed with mindless violence against a bunch of villains, to gentler, yet firm storylines

The answer as I have said does not lie merely in further government control Controls have never worked but have only served to drive both talent and mediocrity underground The government frequently talks about a censorship policy which even it cannot properly define We therefore need to develop an information system that is based on responsible information-entertainment gathering The Central Board of Film Censors must confine itself to laying down broad guidelines as to what is permitted and what is not It is not necessary for it to develop individual judgments on each dialogue and song The industry must ipsi facto apply it Self-control is the only enforceable form of

Sachin Tendulkar Role model

Madhuri Dixit Doing the choli number control Eventually there will come a time when there will be no Censor Board at all

Even now, one cannot control satellite channels In the not too distant future, we will be bombarded, it is believed, with scores of channels, perhaps hundreds of foreign and domestic channels In such an era of electronic chaos, it would be better to have a film industry that is unregulated by the censors but provides a strong alternative to the satellite programmes

Violations in the non-censor era must be punished with a ruthless hand under existing or amended laws, and with the assistance of the industry The Censor Board these days passes sequences that an ordinary, well-meaning person would find totally unacceptable, whether it is songs, about a man's pair of trousers being sexy or 'breaking a khatiya Indeed, I feel an exposed female body is far less prurient than lewd semi-exposure through dialogues or songs with lines like Choli ke peechhe kya hai Given the talent we have in this country, it would not be difficult to compose a lilting tune without the sleaze or produce a heart-warming film with less violence that would still capture the imagination or large audiences

But there are bigger issues at stake here than the exposure of the human anatomy or obscene lines and bawdy lyrics To understand these issues, one must look at the factors that first led vulgarity to find its way in large doses into our films When the Hindi film world was battered by a recession in the 1970s It was the Bombay underworld that came to its rescue A severe jolt came shortly after when the movie going audiences began to plug into the video world The people who helped finance the film world at the time where those who themselves did not believe in the system of justice, of governance, of culture And sure enough, this amoralisation was reflected in the new genre of films Violence became the trend, the destruction of the police evolved as a common theme in most films and the deification of criminals who mete out a vigilant brand of justice as the answer to ills plaguing society became the basic criterion for success And, unfortunately for us, the effects of the criminal element in the film world continue to be felt today

★★★

THE POLITICISATION OF CULTURE

In the aftermath of independence, royalty was abolished and we had instead politicians and bureaucrats The zamindari system was thrown out, breaking even that source of support to the traditional arts Artistes, whether in the cities or in the rural areas, came totally under the mercy of the new rulers and their whims

New institutions came up at the Centre and in the states to draw the best out of the cultural community but it soon became mired in controversies Favouritism and corruption were rife This trend has continued to the present day

The Lalit Kala Akademi, Bharat Bhavan and other institutions exist ostensibly to promote talented performers Yet, they have become politically oriented and invariably it is the elite, those with the best political and bureaucratic contacts, who get the best support

Where partisanship has crept in – and one can think of a few cabinet ministers who are supportive of female artistes — the concept of patronage has become corrupted Merit has gone out of the window, leaving many younger artistes frustrated and deeply unhappy Government administrators play favourites against one another, the system of sipharish has become common Indeed, merit has become the last item of consideration for many classical performers, especially if they are in the middle rung, trying to climb to the top

The one cause for hope is that because of the commitment of local communities and groups, the classical arts continue to be preserved in a few pockets as far apart as the deserts of Rajasthan and the hills of Northeastern India

What of the highly touted festivals of India that have sought to promote our culture abroad, whether in the United States Europe or the former Soviet Union? To my mind, these have been examples of growth without development, for there are no trickle-down effects at all However, to their credit, they have made us think once more of the essential question what is Indian culture? It is not just an approach to life and its myriad strands but as cultural czarina Pupul Jayakar once wrote, 'the matrix these shared beliefs, perceptual modes, customs and rituals from which artistic expression springs' (Jayakar, 1994) 'Culture provides both the vocabulary as well as the terms of reference for the artiste and the audience in a traditional society Art in India has never been the expression of an individual artist's isolated sensibilities, but has reflected values formed over many centuries Culture has been closely linked with inner springs, encompassing both the outer world and holding a mirror to the self' (ibid)

Culture spans every waking moment of every Indian In no other society does culture define a people so clearly as it does in India whether it is religious culture and clan culture or guilds of work culture brahmin or mullah, tribe or community, caste and jati It is our common heritage and we should guard it to the best of our ability, if not for our own sake then at least for the well-being of the generations to come ■

COVER STORY

DRIVEN BY FEAR

Thousands of cab drivers from the subcontinent ferry passengers back and forth the streets of New York But with murder breathing down their necks most of the time
Arthur J. Pais in an on-the-spot report

Parin Singh (second from left) and other Asian taxi drivers outside a cab-leasing office in New York

OPERATING ON LESS THAN FIVE HOURS OF SLEEP AND EIGHT CUPS OF STRONG TEA, MOHAMmad Tariq nibbles on goat biryani at New York's Shaheen Restaurant at the end of a 12-hour shift, and wonders why anybody would want to drive a cab in the city

"I am living day to day like an animal, even though I manage to smile and be courteous," he said in decent English. "It's not just work, food and sleep, it is work, food, little sleep—and plenty of fear. I would have been better off in Bombay."

Cabbie Muhammad Tariq Keeps smiling, nevertheless

Over the past three years, about 120 taxi drivers in New York city — out of an estimated 94,000 — have been killed on duty, most while driving 'for hire' cars that provide door-to-door service and, unlike the yellow cabs, are ordered by telephone from despatch centres

Tariq, who worked for a United Nations agency in India and has a Bachelor's degree, dreams of starting a business of his own, a common thought among hundreds of Indian, Pakistani and Bangladeshi cabbies in New York

"But, till then, I have to put up with danger every night," he says "The law prohibits cabbies from refusing to take passengers even in the most violence-prone areas of the Bronx and Harlem We try sometimes to get past the law," he adds "But it is not easy "

Tariq, a four-year cabbie veteran, laughs at the mention of a colleague's prescription for combating violence against the drivers Let the passenger drive the cab while the cabbie sits in the back seat with a shotgun and a hunter's knife.

Not everyone is laughing, however.

Many cabbies say that the situation is so dangerous — not only in New York but also in Washington D C., Chicago and Dallas — that cabs should be converted into rolling tanks "No good," says Parin Singh "Will anybody get into my cab if I make it look like a tank or a prison cell?"

As Singh talks to a reporter in the Little India segment of Manhattan, more than 30 of his colleagues and friends are sitting in a nearby Indian restaurant, share jokes, trade information and exchange the cassettes of the newest hits including Karan Arjun

"Though most of the conversation is in Urdu and Punjabi, you also hear plenty of Bengali Their license plates display such names as Mohammad Qasim, Trevor Pinto, Shabal Ahmad, Altaf Hussein, Sher Singh, Hussain Chowdry and Peter D'Cruz

The majority of cabbies from the sub continent is Muslim "On a Friday afternoon, if you want to get a taxi in New York," says Shabal Ahmad, "you better wait outside a mosque for the namaaz to end "

Driving a cab in New York is not an easy job for anyone But for a foreign-born cabbie the job entails an additional burden "You have to deal with a lot of passengers who say that they cannot understand our English," says Trevor Pinto, speaking slowly, clearly and with a slight New York accent "There are men and women who get into our cab and ask 'Do you speak English?'"

Tariq, a four-year cabbie veteran, laughs at the mention of a colleague's prescription for combating violence against the drivers: Let the passenger drive the cab while the cabbie sits in the back seat with a shotgun and a hunter's knife

CABBIES AND CURRIES

When Jackie Mason cracks a joke, a lot of people get offended but a lot of people laugh, too. He spares no one, particularly his own Jewish community But his critics point out that Jews get far less scathing criticism than the gentiles

Mason's one-man shows run for months in big American cities, and his recent show, Jackie Mason, Politically Incorrect, has been on in New York for nearly a year.

In a show that carries heavy barbs against Bill Clinton, the Democrats, Liberals and the news media, Jackie Mason reserves some of his sharpest venom for Indian cabbies.

Whether the cabbie is from Kapurthala or Dhaka or Islamabad, it does not matter to Mason. They are all Indian cabbies, and they reek of curry, their bodies radiate unpleasant odour and they speak atrocious English

Mason complains how he was dropped 12 miles from his destination by an Indian cabbie, and when

Jackie Mason: Maker of a controversial show that pours venom on Indian cabbies

he called the Taxi Commission's office to complain, the guy who took the call also sounded like an Indian

The dig at Indian cabbies got some bad publicity for Mason, but he has not changed the script of his show. The New York Times as well as New York Newsday said the attacks were mean-spirited. Said a critic for the Daily News: "It is an entirely different thing to laugh at the foibles and mistakes of Bill Clinton and Edward Kennedy, but why pour your venom on poor cabbies?" Time magazine's critic said that soon after the show he got into a taxi which was driven by a polite Indian driver. The critic felt very guilty indeed.

"Is Indian food the only food that has an overpowering smell? The hotdogs with mustard and sauerkraut smell, too. And so does Italian food. I mean the proper Italian food that has tonnes of garlic in it"

As for Mason getting lost, is it possible that Mason's own thick Jewish accent — which many Americans have some problems with — confused the cabbie?

Many cabbies from the subcontinent admitted that their English caused some problem to the custo-tions. "But many of us are trying to speak slowly and clearly," said Trevor Pinto.

Like many cabbies, Pinto is studying for a graduate degree, and drives the cab for eight hours three times a week. "Though the complaint that our English causes some problem is genuine to a degree, I think there is some exaggeration and bias in the complaint," he says. "The previous wave of cabbies from Eastern Europe, Russia and Greece also spoke English with a heavy accent," he adds. "But there was not much of complaint

"Was it because many Americans grew up listening to their parents speak English with a Russian or a German or a Polish accent? And they found no problem understanding a newly-arrived immigrant from that part of the world"

Pinto also does not understand what is the big fuss about the accent. "After all, most fares (passengers) have minimum contact with us," he says "I guess those who are complaining are the lonely guys and women who want to keep a steady stream of conversation with us."

Echoing Parin Singh's fears, Trevor Pinto adds: 'We are easy targets for drug addicts and bums who want money for their quick fixes. They know that at any given time we have a certain amount of cash on hand'

Murders and cultural conflicts apart, there are hundreds of instances of drivers being robbed, often during the day After prolonged protests, the city adopted a mandatory bullet-proof partition that could make it difficult for back-seat passengers to rob the drivers

Drivers say that this has led to about 25 per cent reduction of robberies "It makes it difficult for a man, or a woman, to put a gun or hold a knife to my head," says Parin Singh "But it will not stop him or her from robbing me at the end of the trip as the fare is being paid"

Echoing Singh's fears, Trevor Pinto adds "We are easy targets for drug addicts and bums who want money for their quick fixes They know that at any given time we have a certain amount of cash on hand"

Immigrant drivers — who constitute the majority of taxi drivers — are particularly at risk because they do not know how to say 'no' to potentially dangerous customers, adds Mira, one of the 900 women cabbies in New York city

A Russian immigrant, she says that while the White taxi drivers have mastered the art of refusing a passenger who wants to go to a crime infested area, the immigrant drivers comply with the request

"Immigrants take a long time to understand the tricks of the trade," she says. "Besides, the competition in the business is so strong that many immigrants take up driving the black taxis which are often called through phone calls, and there have been many instances that the passengers are not interested in going anywhere All that he wants is to rob you You give the address of the house and tell the police you have been robbed, the culprit will spin his story And since there are no eyewitnesses, your case is lost"

A few months ago, cabbies took a mile-long procession in New York demanding the right to refuse fare "Or the authorities should give us shotguns or other weapons," says Shabal Ahmad, who was mugged recently by four teenagers

After they robbed him of $74, they looked into his frightened eyes and chorused "Thank you very much, Mahatma Gandhi"

A Pakistani, Ahmad, felt he was being insulted after being injured

"Some muggers think that immigrant drivers won't fight back and lodge complaints with the police," he says "This is not true, but the police often look the other way when we complain They would rather deal with murder cases than with someone who has been robbed of $80 or $120 at gun point"

Despite the inherent dangers in the profession, taxi business in New York city, which grossed about $1 8 billion

Illustration Krishnendu Chatterjee

COMPUTERS
THE
NEW QUALIFICATION
CHANDRA DATA SYSTEMS
A complete house of Computer Education
Prepare you for Today
29/B Tarachand Dutt Street
Calcutta 700 073
Opp Mohammed Ali Park
Ph 238 7505 / 231 2445

The Telegraph Classifieds

Join Quest's
MULTIMEDIA
ANIMATION
2D-3D GRAPHICS
LAN/DTP/CAD
COMMERCIAL APPLICATIONS
Courses

Special Summer Courses Available.

Contact
QUEST INSTITUTE OF ADVANCED COMPUTING
Suite- 2A, 12A Camac St.
Cal 17 Ph 242-1134

ADMISSION NOTICE

- Adv. Diploma in Computer Sc. & Management (18 months).

Course Contents
WINDOWS, FOXPRO, CLIPPER, UNIX, C/C++, LAN, VISUAL C++, HARDWARE MAINTENANCE- & OTHERS

Fees Rs 10,000/- payable in instalments

NSCT
National School of Computer Technology
2, Raja Basanta Roy Road (between Rashbehari Crossing & Lake Market), Cal-26,
Ph 76-7610(Office)

120 hrs. of extra practicals at your convenience apart from regular practicals.

PROFILE OF INDIA'S TOP RANKING HOTEL MANAGEMENT INSTITUTE

WORLDCLASS EDUCATION + INDEPTH TRAINING + SOLID INFRASTRUCTURE + CELEBRATED FACULTY TEAM + DYNAMIC MANAGEMENT = 100% PLACEMENT SUCCESS RATE. YEAR AFTER YEAR.

Institute of Advanced Management. India's most respected and premier Hotel Management Institute. The Institute which believes that its students deserve the very best education the world can offer. Afterall an Institute is only as good as its products and the placement they get. And I.A.M. has achieved a clean 100% Placement record. Year after year. I.A.M. The symbol of world class Hospitality "Education & Training"

IAM
INSTITUTE OF ADVANCED MANAGEMENT
HOTEL MANAGEMENT COLLEGE
AE-486, Salt Lake City, Calcutta-700064
Phones :- 37-7726/475-9237/74-8132

WORLDCL ATION & TRAINING

YMCA COMPUTER CENTRE

★ Chowringhee Branch
25 J L N Road, Cal 87
★ College Branch
111, Vivekananda Rd, Cal 6

Admission on—for the following Courses.
1 Diploma on DTP (Windows) with Corel-draw, Pagemaker, Ventura, Linguist, Paintbrush
2 Diploma on Financial Accounting Career Courses with FOXPRO, WINDOWS, LAN, UNIX, C, FA etc

We take your international career as seriously as you do.

Conducted by... Wings INSTITUTE • OF • MANAGEMENT

- Magnum Diploma 3-in-1
- International Airline
- Travel, Tourism & Hotel Management

ASTA
American Society of Travel Agents

Calcutta:
Esplanade: 1, Crooked Lane Room No 108, 1st floor, behind Great Eastern Hotel, Cal-69, Ph 243-0625, Fax 91-33- 2487825

Gariahat: 1B, Kumudini Apts, 1/1, Dover Lane, Calcutta-29 Ph 76-7727/440-6356

Asansol: 1st floor, Mritunjoy Bhawan, 56/2, West Apcar Garden, Asansol-713304 Ph 20-5701/2532

Guwahati: G N B Road, Silpukhuri (near Goswami Service), Guwahati-781003

ADMISSION OPEN

Illustration: Kyshnendu Chakraborty

last year and serviced over 420 million passengers, continues to draw immigrants — both as cab drivers as well as the owners of taxis

"The demographics have been changing dramatically since the last 10 years," says Susan Feinstein, former director of the Taxi and Limousine Commission in New York city "In the past, majority of cab drivers were from Eastern Europe and the Caribbean

But in recent years, about 45 per cent of the new applicants are from the Indian subcontinent — roughly 20 per cent are from Pakistan, 10 per cent from Bangladesh, and the rest from India "

While the proportion of applicants from the subcontinent rose to 45 per cent in 1993 from 10 per cent in 1984, the proportion of candidates born in America dropped to 10 5 per cent in 1993 from 26 per cent in 1984

"In general, the taxi industry is an immigrant industry," she says "It takes a lot of guts and stamina to be a taxi driver in New York, and separately, it also takes a lot of guts, a lot of stamina and a lot of wherewithal to be an immigrant

"So these people who have the wherewithal and wits about them to uproot themselves from their country to come here to start a new life, they also have the quality to be good taxi drivers "

Feinstein's analysis notwithstanding, it does not explain why Indian, Pakistani, and Bangladeshi immigrants, who constitute less than 0 5 per cent of New York City's population, comprise such a high proportion of the city's cabbies

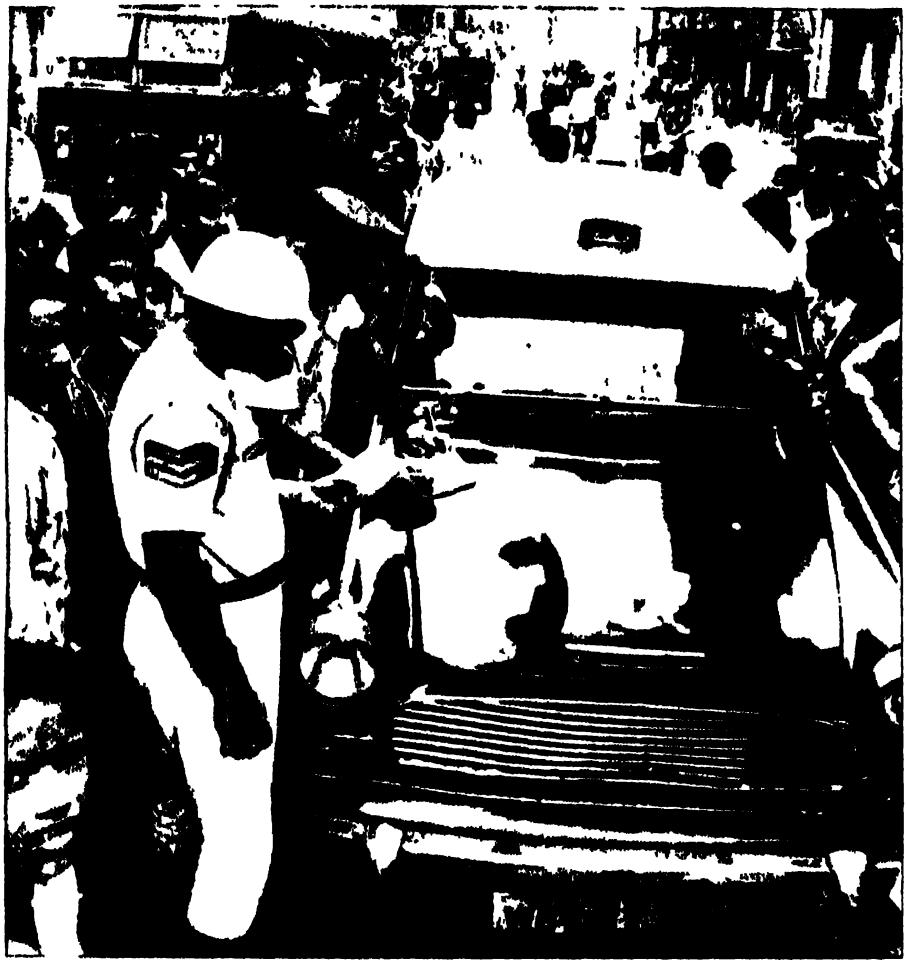
Drivers from the subcontinent constitute a high percentage of cab operators in Washington,D C , Boston and San Francisco

One explanation is that many drivers from the subcontinent work only part-time, attending technical institutes or universities while not driving Another reason is that approximately one third of New York's 12,000 yellow cabs and 30,000 black taxis are owned by people from the Indian subcontinent

"So when they lease their cars or hire drivers, they prefer someone from their part of the world," says one cabbie

"The kind of money you can make in this business may not be attractive to a White man who has lived here for many years," says Trevor Pinto "But it is good money for a recent immigrant who is dreaming of starting his own business in a few years

"If you lease a car, and drive 12 hours a day, you can make about $100 a day," he says "If it is your own car, you can make about $150 a day, and at the end of the year, you have made as much money as a professor



"Given the continuing state of the economy, we grab the kind of jobs that are easily available" he adds "And being a cabbie, you earn far more money than working in a newsstand, where the chances of being robbed are not all that minimal "

A few months ago, cabbies took a mile-long procession in New York demanding the right to refuse fare.... After they mugged and robbed Shabal Ahmad of $74, they looked into his frightened eyes and chorused: 'Thank you very much, Mahatma Gandhi'

FARE AND FOUL

Calcutta cabbies also have much to complain about

It was a familiar evening in Calcutta the roads were crawling with vehicles, the persistent honking piercing the blackhole of smoke There was a long queue of taxis in front of Victoria House in central Calcutta But they were all on the lookout for passengers on a 'share' basis More passengers, longer distance and, of course, more money

There are at least 16,000 taxis plying in the city and more than 25,000 drivers take turns to drive them Yet almost every short-distance passenger is refused bluntly

Is avarice the key reason behind their cussed refusals? Maybe they should think about the risk to themselves on the longer journeys, specially with passengers 'sharing' the cab "I don't have the time to think about it If I work hard for a day, I can account for that day's meal for my family That is, if I return home at night, if not well, there are plenty of bekar drivers on the look-out for an empty taxi ", said Bimal Ghosh, a veteran cab driver, summing up his life on the streets of Calcutta without much feeling

Our taxi screeched to a halt as a cyclist decided that it was time for him to cross the road After tottering precariously before the cab, he glided to safety But not before hurling a string of abuses at the driver

Ghosh grinned and went on, "He was definitely more well behaved than our mamas (an endearing though sarcastic sobriquet for traffic policemen) He as Ghosh related, would have banged his danda on the bonnet, yanked him out and then proceeded to chastise him, verbally or otherwise

"Therein lies the problem," says Madan Mitra, the secretary of the Progressive Taxi Drivers' Union "Is it asking for much if one expects a little courteous treatment on the road?" Mitra points out when owners of private cars or motorbikes flout traffic rules, they are rarely manhandled or abused "Why does everyone treat taxidrivers as social outcasts?"

A far cry from their US counterparts where a cabbie might annually earn as much as a professor, Calcutta's cabbies are caught in a vicious contract of baatchit, which entails a hefty payment of Rs 250-300 a day to the owner of the taxi This excludes the price of petrol, mobile oil, attendant's allowance and daily meal

"We never have more than Rs 50-70 with us on a busy day and are often left with as little as Rs 20." So the only way out to earn the daily bread is by undertaking long, risky trips

These trips often involve illegal traffic of goods, dubious passengers, and there is every possibility of taxi hijacking and murder

Are they aware of the danger? What safety measures are there to protect themselves and their vehicles?

Das waved aside the query with an impatient air "These men (ministers and police officials) talk big and do nothing " There have been meetings about formal uniforms, red-light/sound alarm systems But they are all very expensive "Where will the money come from? The maaliks would pay? Buh!"

Kalyan Bhadra, the president of the Bengal Taxi Association, mentioned an insurance scheme for the drivers in West Bengal, the first of its kind in the country, which gives them Rs 50,000 in a fatal accident or if murdered while on duty

"Yes, they get the money after they are dead," retorts Madan Mitra. He rattles off measures like doing away with baatchit, driving on a daily commission basis, block insuring the drivers and "Then let the police do their duty if we misbehave with passengers "

So the two unions vie with each other to put the meters straight, while files containing improvement measures and benefit schemes gather dust at Writers' Buildings The police pacifies and punishes in turns And the cabbies continue to refuse passengers, spit on the ground when abused and speed off to some remote destination

Trina Mukherjee

INNER EYE ❑ Bejan Daruwalla

Aries

March 21--April 20

Ganesha says romance and riches make a happy duo for you Shortly, it will be journey time Many Ariens will be going in for buying/selling in a massive manner Birth of a child, a spirit of adventure and enterprise should possess you A week of joy

Taurus

April 21—May 20

The accent will be on the homefront and possessions that could range from shop, office, shares, financial negotiations to legal cases While there is a danger of accidents and operations, a little care should see you through very nicely Travel seems likely

Gemini

May 21—June 20

Many crucial decisions will have to be taken Travel is a distinct possibility Many of you will be chalking out plans and getting ready for a line of action It would be best to take the initiative on May 7, 8, 11 and 12 You could be in an introspective mood Take time out to relax

Cancer

June 21—July 20

The spotlight will be on your finance and family Money should pour in This is most certainly the week to go in for group activities You will have a chance to make a headway, be it in terms of material progress, emotional happiness or spiritual illumination

Leo

July 21—August 21

You should go all out for the kill In your work, your creativity and output will be commendable Many of you will be regaining confidence and lost positions A promotion is on the cards The love life of Leons will be the envy of the rest of the people

Virgo

August 22—September 22

You will be off and away to pastures green Your gloom and sense of doom will be replaced by faith, hope and sweet reason Journey, ceremony, publicity and a forward thrust await you Many of you will plunge headlong into creative pursuits

Libra

September 23—October 22

While the focus continues on joint-finances and loans, you will widen your circle of contacts, spread your tentacles far and wide, go in for the occult, psychic phenomenon, philosophy and religion thus improving your mind A week to explore new areas

Scorpio

October 23—November 22

Kicks and kisses await you, but you will respond with brilliance and flair There's money for you now You will have to strive with might and main to get ahead of your rivals May 7-8, 12-13 find you in your rightful element Many of you will be on the move

Sagittarius

November 23--December 20

Except for a possible health problem this is going to be a fine week You may expect a promotion, a fatter pay-packet and more responsibilities The contacts you make should be not only useful, but eminently enjoyable The lure of distant places will ensnare you Time to be yourself

Capricorn

December 21—January 19

A week to go places Many Capricornians will be taking chances and coming up trumps The fine placing of Sun-Saturn assures you of taking the lead, be it in films, sports, business, research or employment Opportunities await you this week Make the most of it

Aquarius

January 20—February 18

You will be caught in the crossfires of the home and the outside world Many Aquarians will be taking pot shots at love, business, share market, and some will even change course mid-stream The final outcome should be pleasing The week also finds you locking horns

Pisces

February 19—March 20

A chance to make up lost ground, recover your poise, win new friends Also, you will have your full share of supporters and backers Rest assured, you will be able to carry on your tasks with great skill, dexterity and smoothness Letters, calls, news make your day

B I R T H D A Y S

May 7: The moon's first quarter helps you in all matters related to house and property, says Ganesha. There is plenty of movement for you

May 8: Moon-Mars conjunction assures you of financial deals, affairs of the heart and restructuring of your life and goals, which is the issue in 1995

May 9: Moon-Mercury happy placing could lead to misunderstanding and misconceptions, delays and disappointments Do not lose faith.

May 10: Moon-Sun fine formation leads to enormous success, specially if in business or profession Those in employment can look forward to a promotion

May 11: Moon-Pluto fine placing assures you of victory and wish-fulfillment However, you will have to be wary of secret enemies and gossip mongers Health will improve

May 12: Moon connects superbly with Mars-Jupiter promising you expansion at all levels If opening a new branch or marrying or switching jobs, you will not regret

May 13: You will be earning and spending a lot of money This is the right time to start a new project Children and creative pursuits give joy

TIME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AGARTALA
IC 741	0710	3 5	IC 742	0940	3 5
IC 743	0920	daily	IC 744	1150	daily
PF 701	1130	1 3 5 7	PF 702	1610	1 3 5 7
AIZAWL
PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
BAGDOGRA
PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1
PF 737	0730	3 5	PF 738	1740	3 5
IC 721	1300	1 3 5	IC 722	1540	1 3 5
BANGALORE
IC-771	0600	daily	IC 772	1140	daily
BHUBANESWAR
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC 770	2120	1 3 5
BOMBAY
IC 676	0640	daily	IC 675	0820	daily
D2 102	0905	daily	D2-101	0835	daily
IC-273	1945	daily	AI 306	1840	5
9W 212	1945	daily	9W 211	1910	daily
D2 104	2005	daily	D2 103	1935	daily
AI-309	2035	6	IC-274	2050	daily
AI-681	2350	1
DELHI
			S2-025	0810	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC 263	0700	daily	IC-262	0815	2 4 7
S2 026	0845	1 2 3 4 5 6	M9-303	0825	daily
M9 304	0905	daily	AI 682	0950	1
IC-812	1515	1 3 5	S2-015	1015	1 3 5
S2-016	1555	1 3 5	4S 806	1110	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC-402	1715	daily	IC 401	1155	daily
4S-805	1745	1, 2, 3 4, 5 6	S2-005	1855	1 2 3 4 5 7
IC 261	1900	2 4 7	IC 811	1930	1 3 5
S2 008	1930	1 2 3 4 5 7	M9-301	1950	daily
M9-302	2030	daily	IC-264	2210	daily
GUWAHATI
PF 737	0730	3 5	IC 704	1430	3 5
IC-703	0800	3 5	D2 181	1620	1 5 7
D2 181	1135	1 5 7	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2-183	1135	2 4 6	IC-702	1630	2 4 6 7
4S 815	1150	1 2 3 4 5 6	4S 816	1710	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC-701	1240	2, 4 6 7	PF 736	1740	3, 5
IMPHAL
IC 257	1150	4 7	IC 258	1650	4 7
GUWAHATI
PF 735	0730	1	IC 712	1410	2 6
PF 737	0730	3 5	IC 704	1430	3 5
PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	IC 708	1430	1 4 7
IC 703	0800	3 5	PF-706	1510	2 4 6 7
IC 707	0900	1 4 7	D2 181	1620	1 5 7
IC 711	0800	2 6	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2 181	1135	1 5 7	IC 230	1620	daily
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	4S 811	1710	1 2 3 4 5 6
4S 812	1150	1 2 3 4 5 6	PF 736	1730	1
IMPHAL
IC 257	1150	4 7	PF 738	1740	3 5
IC 211	1240	4 6	IC 258	1650	4 7
IC 229	1310	daily	IC 212	1740	4 6
HYDERABAD
S2 023	1045	1 3 5	S2 024	1525	1 3 5
IC 777	1600	2 4 7	IC 778	2100	2 4 7
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC 770	2120	1 3 5
IMPHAL
IC 707	0800	1 4 7	IC 256	1320	3 5
IC 255	0830	3 5	IC 708	1430	1 4 7
IC 253	1100	2 6	IC 254	1550	2 6
JORHAT
IC 213	0910	2 4 7	IC 213	1315	2 4 7
LILABARI
PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1
LUCKNOW
IC 812	1515	1 3 5	IC 811	1930	1 3 5
MADRAS
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
IC 544	11 5	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC 765	1720	daily	D2 171	1045	1 2 4 5 6 7
D2 172	1740	1 2 4 5 6 7	IC 766	2220	daily
NAGPUR
IC 769	1525	1 3 5	IC 770	2120	1 3 5
PATNA
IC 249	1430	2 4 7	S2 015	1015	1 3 5
S2 016	1555	1 3 5	IC 249	1805	2 4 7
IC 812	1515	1 3 5	IC 811	1930	1 3 5
PORT BLAIR
IC 285	0640	3 5 7	IC 286	1100	2 4 6
RANCHI
IC 249	1430	2 4 7	IC 249	1805	2 4 7
SHILLONG
PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
SILCHAR
IC 255	0830	3 5	IC 260	1110	1 7
IC 259	0830	1 7	IC 256	1320	3, 5
IC 253	1100	2 6	IC 254	1550	2, 6
IC 211	1240	4 6	IC 212	1740	4 6
TEZPUR
IC 213	0910	2 4 7	IC 213	1315	2 4 7
TEZU
PF 737	0730	3 5	PF 738	1740	3 5
VARANASI
S2 016	1555	1 3 5	S2 015	1015	1 3, 5
VISHAKHAPATNAM
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
ZIRO
PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1

FLIGHTS — INTERNATIONAL

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AGARTALA
RJ 185	1445	4	RJ 184	0705	4
AMSTERDAM
KL 876	0420	7	KL 875	0235	7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
BANGKOK
IC-731	0855	2 4 6, 7	KB 106	1115	3
			KB 106	1215	5
KB-105	1125	2 6	TG-313	1240	1 3 6
TG 314	1355	1 3 6	IC 732	1505	2 4 6 7
AI-306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6
BUCHAREST
RO-076	1950	5 7	RO 075	1055	5 7
CHITTAGONG
IC-225	1200	1	IC 226	1420	1
BG-696	1735	2 5	BG-697	1655	2 5
DHAKA
BG-092	0850	4 5	BG-091	0810	4 5
BG-092	1150	1 2 3 6 7	BG 091	1110	1 2 3 6 7
IC-723	1250	1 2 3 5, 6	IC 724	1520	1 2 3 5 6
BG-094	1905	1 2, 3 5 6 7	BG 093	1825	1 2 3 5 6 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG 093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1 5	BG 095	2020	1 5

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
KATHMANDU
IC 747	1115	1 3 5	IC 748	1455	1 3 5
RA 214	1815	1 4	RA-213	1715	1 4
LONDON
BA 142	2050	3 7	BA 143	1525	3 7
MOSCOW
SU 538	1855	4	SU 537	1655	4
PARIS
KB 106	1200	3	KB 105	1040	2 6
KB 106	1300	5
SINGAPORE
SQ 415	2345	2 5	SQ 416	2230	2 5
SOFIA
LZ 504	1750	4	LZ 503	1650	4
TOKYO
AI 306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
2311	19 15	Delhi Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19 20	Amritsar Mail	5 5	3006
3003	20 35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13 00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat	16 15	2382
2303	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fr & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun	1r 15	2304
2301	16 30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fr & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun	10 45	2302
2305	13 45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat	12 50	2306
3073	23 00	Himgiri (Jammu Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat Arr Tues Wed & Sat	11 35	3074
5047	13 00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon Wed & Fri	4 30	5048
3009	20 30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9 45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18 15	3008
3049	13 20	Amritsar Express	15 30	3050
3039	21 00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5 20	3040
3019	16 05	Kathgodam Express	11 55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5 00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6 30	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17 11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18 20	Asansol Express	8 45	3036
3031	21 05	Danapur Express	5 50	3032
3025	23 00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday Arr Friday	11 35	3026
3071	22 30	Jamalpur Express	5 10	3072
3015	9 55	Santiniketan Express	15 40	3016
1159	15 25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tues & Wed	6 50	1160
1171	15 25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed Arr Fri Sat & Sun	6 50	1172
3327	14 30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4 50	3328
1181	15 25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6 50	1182
		Sealdah
3141	13 40	Teesta Torsa Express Dep Mon Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed Thurs Fri Sat & Sun	6 35	3142
3143	19 15	Darjeeling Mail	8 45	3144
3111	20 15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7 15	3112
5657	6 25	Kanchanjunga Express	20 35	5658
3153	22 00	Gour Express	5 15	3154
5663	20 00	Katihar Express	4 15	5664
3151	11 45	Jammu Tawi Express	15 50	3152
3133	20 55	Mughal Sarai Express via SBG Loop	12 55	3134
3103	18 20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express	10 25	3104
5185	17 40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues Thus & Sat	4 25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6 50	6004
8002	19 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8010	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12 00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	1940	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13 45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express	22 05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5 00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5 30	8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8 25	8410
2821	8 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00	8046
8017	16 45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2421	16 40	Bhubaneswar-New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	18 10
-	11 05	New Delhi Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15
	14 05	Trivandrum Central Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 45	6321
	14 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13 45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13 45	6315
6520	22 35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15
	14 05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains please dial 2203545 54 for in coming trains 2203535 44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains dial 2203496 3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running) 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503538-37

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

DISTANT THUNDER

March is probably the most uncomfortable month in the hills The rain is cold, often accompanied by sleet and hail, and the wind from the north comes tearing down the mountain passes with tremendous force Those few people who pass the winter in the hill-station remain close to their fires If they can't afford fires, they get into bed

I found old Miss Mackenzie tucked in bed with three hot-water bottles for company. I took the bedroom's single easy chair, and for some time, Miss Mackenzie and I listened to the thunder and watched the play of lightning The rain made a tremendous noise on the corrugated tin roof and we had to raise our voices higher to be heard The hills looked blurred and smudgy when seen through the rain-spattered windows The wind battered the doors and rushed around the cottage, determined to make an entry It slipped down the chimney and stuck there, choking and gurgling and protesting helplessly

"There's a ghost in your chimney and he can't get out," I said

"Then let him stay there," said Miss Mackenzie

A vivid flash of lightening lit up the opposite hill, illuminating for a moment, a pile of ruins which I never knew were there

"You're looking at Burnt Hill," said Miss Machenzie "It always gets the lightening when there's a storm"

"Possibly, there are iron deposits in the rocks," I said

"I wouldn't know But it's the reason no one ever lived there for long Almost every dwelling that was put up there was struck by lightening and burnt down"

"I thought I saws some ruins now"

"Nothing but rubble When they were first settling in the hills they chose that spot Later they moved to the site where the town now stands Burnt Hill was left to the deer and the leopards and the monkeys and — to its ghosts of course "

"Oh, so it's haunted too"

"So they say, on evenings such as these But you don't believe in ghosts do you?"

"No Do you?"

"No, but you'll understand why they say the hill is haunted when you hear its story Listen"

I listened, but at first I could hear nothing but the wind and the rain Then Miss Mackenzie's clear voice rose above the sound of the elements and I heard her saying

" it's really the old story of ill-starred lovers, only it's true I'd met Robert at his parent's house some weeks before the tragedy took place He was 18, tall and fresh-looking, and full of his manhood He's been born out here but his parents were hoping to return to England when Robert's father retired His father was a magistrate, I think — but that hasn't any bearing on the story

"Their plans didn't work out the way they had expected You see, Robert fell in love Not with an English girl, mind you, but with a hill girl, the daughter of a landowner from the village behind Burnt Hill Even today it would be unconventional Twenty-five years ago it was almost unheard of!

"Robert liked walking, and he was hiking through the forest when he saw her or rather, heard her It was said later that he fell in love with her voice She was singing, and the song — low and sweet and strange to his ears — struck him to the heart When he caught the sight of the girl's face

The hills looked blurred and smudgy when seen through the rain-spattered windows. The wind battered the doors and rushed around the cottage, determined to make an entry. It slipped down the chimney and stuck there, choking and gurgling and protesting helplessly

he was not disappointed She was young and beautiful She saw him and returned his awestruck gaze with a brief, fleeting smile

"Robert, in his impetuosity, made enquiries at the village, located the girl's father and without much ado asked for her hand in marriage He probably thought that a sahib would not be refused such a request At the same time, he was really quite gallant on his part, because any other young man might simply have ravished the girl in the forest But Robert was in love, and therefore, completely irrational in his behaviour

"Of course the girl's father would have nothing to do with the proposal He was a Brahmin, and he wasn't going to have the good name of his family ruined by marrying off his only daughter to a foreigner Robert did not argue with the father, nor did he say anything to his own parents, because he knew their reaction would be one of stock and dismay They would do everything in their power to put an end to his madness

"But Robert continued to visit the forest — you see it there, that heavy patch of oak and pine — and he often came across the girl, for she would be gathering fodder or fuel She did not seem to resist his attentions, and, as Robert knew something of the language, he was soon able to convey his feelings to her The girl, must, at first, have been rather alarmed, but the boy's sincerity broke her reserve After all, she was young too — young enough to fall in love with a devoted swain without thinking too much of his background

She knew her father would never agree to a marriage and he knew his parents would prevent anything like that from happening So they planned to run away together Romantic isn't it? But it did happen Only, they did not live happily ever after '

"Did their parents come after them?"

"No They had agreed to meet one night in the ruined building on Burnt Hill — the ruin you saw now It hasn't changed much except that there was a bit of roof on it then They left their homes and made their way to the hill without any difficulty After meeting, they planned to take the little path that followed the course of a stream until it reached the plains After that — but who knows what they had planned, what dreams of future they had conjured up!

The storm broke soon after they reached the ruins They took shelter under the dripping ceiling It was a storm just like this one — a high wind great torrents of hail and rain and the lightning flitting abut and crashing down almost every minute They must have been soaked, huddled together in a corner of that crumbling building, when lightening struck. No one knows at what time it happened

"But next morning their charred bodies were found on the worn yellow stones of the old building "

Miss Mackenzie stopped speaking and I noticed that the thunder had grown distant and the rain had lessened, but the chimney was still coughing and clearing its throat

"That's true, every word of it," said Miss Mackenzie. 'But as to Burnt Hill being haunted, that's another matter I've no experience of ghosts "

"Anyway, you need a fire to keep them out of the chimney," I said, getting up to go I had my raincoat and umbrella and my own cottage was not far away

Next morning, when I took the steep path up to Burnt Hill, the sky was clear and though there was till a stiff wind, it was no longer menacing An hour's climb brought me to the old ruin — now nothing but a heap of stones, as Miss Mackenzie had said Part of the wall was left, and the corner of a fireplace Grass and weeds had grown up through the floor and primroses and wild saxifrage flowered amongst the rubble

Where had they sheltered, I wondered, as the wind tore at them and fire fell from the sky?

I touched the cold stones, half expecting to find in them some traces of the warmth of human contacts I listened, waiting for some ancient echo, some returning wave of sound, that would bring me nearer to the spirits of the dead lovers, but there was only the wind soughing in the lonely pines

I thought I heard voices in the wind and perhaps I did For isn't the wind the voice of the undying dead?

(Sanctuary Features)

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S  COLUMN

MEDICINE MAN

In previous millennia, when wildlife and wild plants were plentiful, there were different ways of healing Many things which today would seem disgusting, foolish or superstitious, had meaning

Ramesh Bedi, one of the grand old men of Indian wildlife, who is by training a Sanskrit scholar, vaid and botanist, is researching ancient connections between animals and healing, described in one of the great books of Ayurvedic medicine — the Charak Samhita

He has listed references to nearly 200 animals — from tigers to owls All of us are familiar with owls, or at least, sons of them And so I asked Ramesh Bedi, as he sat swathed in woollens and scarves in his small office, what Charak had to say about them

He searched out numerous references — the smoke of burning owl feathers, nails and skin would soothe the insomniac, its meat would be beneficial in the treatment of TB

As no one would generally relish owl meat, it should be cooked well and fed to the patient as peacock Other strange food is prescribed for TB patients — cat, mongoose and jackal should be given in the disguise of rabbit, snake should be fed to them as eel, and crow as partridge Lion, bear and tiger should be fed as venison

(The practice of eating lions and tigers, or, for that matter bears, is now thankfully extinct, or so we devoutly hope Indeed, it stretches the imagination to suppose that these cures were ever really tried) It has always been Ramesh Bedi's speciality, however, to marry traditional knowledge, modern science and personal experience of the jungle (He is now looking for connections between the Charak Samhita and the knowledge of those who live very close to nature)

He remembers, for example, being in UP when a maneating tigeress was killed The first reaction of the local Adivasi population was to condemn the killing of a jungle goddess and to garland and pay respects to her body

But when she was skinned, they all wanted a little meat The skinner was an old professional — he gave away most of the meat but kept the best for himself When Ramesh Bedi asked him why, he replied, "If you boil it without the lid on the pot, the smell goes and it tastes like venison " Words straight from the Charak Samhita

The Charak Samhita also contains great praise for the goat, the sight of which is very auspicious for a man critically ill Its fresh blood is prescribed as treatment for a number of diseases, specially, if someone has lost a lot of blood himself

Again, Ramesh Bedi tended to think that drinking goat's blood would be unacceptable Then he went to Ladakh There, around 15,000' high, nomads are dependent on their goats, sheep, yaks and horses For them, goat's blood is a valuable part of their diet It is mixed with barley flour and the resulting dough is stuffed into the cleaned intestines of the goat to make a kind of sausage

Ramesh Bedi's studies are not limited to the animal references in the Charak Samhita — there are many more plants described than animals These plants can be confusing as in different ancient texts they are described by synonyms - names derived from their qualities, appearance or use A vaid who has read these texts and walked himself through the plains and the Himalayas will be able to recognise them, but there are fewer and fewer of these And fewer plants, too

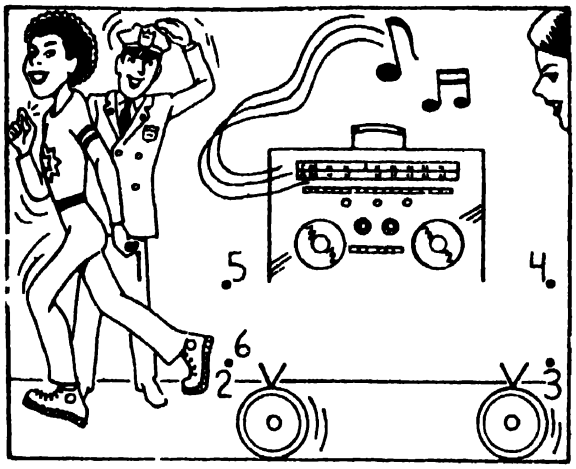
Bedi remembers his 14 years at the Gurukul Kangri in Hardwar before independence when he wandered in the mountains in search of herbs Then, hillsides were full of them Now buffaloes have grazed and trampled them underfoot, and unscrupulous herb collectors have rooted them out so completely they have even destroyed their seeds

To help the growing gap in practical knowledge, Ramesh Bedi is also completing his magnum opus, the Bedi Vanaspati Kosh, an illustrated dictionary of over 2,000 Indian plants, with details of their history, appearance and use

(To help the uninitiated, the plants will be listed under their Sanskrit, Hindi, local and Latin names) It is a project which Ramesh Bedi started over 20 years ago, when he was a research officer in the ministry of health, and now the first volume is about to be published

Bedi is a man of unfailing energy and enthusiasm, but recognises he is in a minority "I have written this in Hindi," he says, "and would be happy to have it translated I know there are not many readers for it For one thing, our Hindi readers do not have that much money to spend on books

"Then, there is little thirst for knowledge At least in England and such places, people have awakened to nature Here they think it's faltu, of little importance And whatever, they learn in school, they learn and tend to be satisfied with that — but that can only be a beginning "



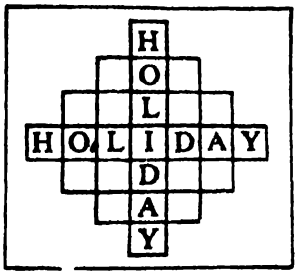
He himself is unimpressed with the teaching of natural history As a boy, he had reasons to be unimpressed While the great Sanskrit writers were familiar with all kinds of flora and fauna, the men who taught their works were decidedly ignorant On one particular occasion, his Sanskrit teacher found the word for camel in the Panchatantra, and translated it as "a special type of bird"

Ramesh Bedi is working for understanding, and against cultural forgetfulness He wants us to know our heritage better While tiger meat for TB is obviously never again going to be a possibility, medicinal plants should be a continuing resource For their survival, he sees two possible options — to keep men out of where they grow, and to cultivate them

Imagine the disaster if, just as modern science is beginning to confirm their worth, they disappear for ever

(Sanctuary Features)

JUNIOR WHIRL



© 994 by King Features Syndicate Inc

12 18

RADIO ACTIVE! Draw five straight lines from dot to dot to complete the picture above What's missing from view?

TAKE TEN! Take ten, double it deduct ten and have eight remain How can this possibly result? P S There is a trick to it, natch What is that?

Stack two tens to form 18 subtract ten and have 8 remain

HOLIDAY TRIMS TO PONDER

LET'S SEE if you can surround the word HOLIDAY with four shorter words to form a word square of sorts That is, a group of words that reads the same both across and down

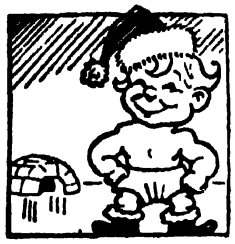
For one possible solution insert words in accord with the following definitions (top down)

1 Hectic shopper turnout
2 Grinder tooth
3 Opposite of goodly
4 Beam displayed in a light show, for instance

Remember, words are to read both across and down

Time limit two min

Answer words that comply Mob molar [illegible]



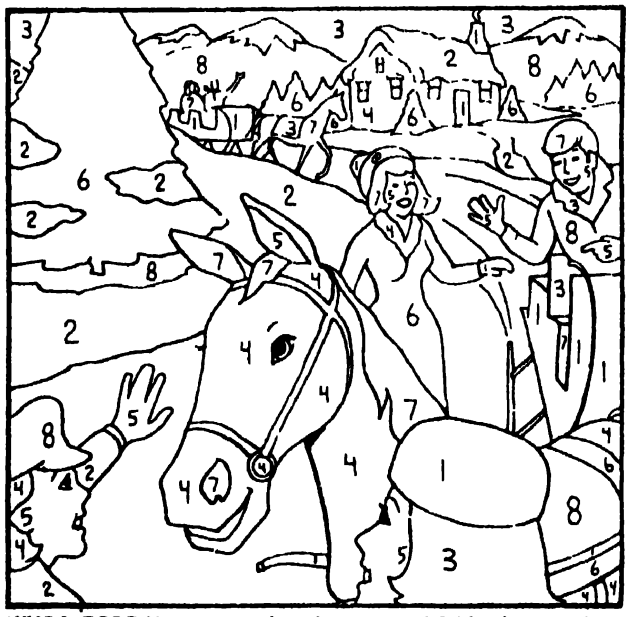
HO, HO, WHO! Santa found this picture (below) in an old family album He says he cherishes it because it portrays his father's brother's father's only grandson And who might that be? Think about it for a few seconds and then see if you can determine this person's relationship to Santa

Can it be grandson? Nephew? Cousin?

Or is it Santa himself?

How quickly can you puzzle it out? No fair peeking

[illegible] Santa himself? It is.



HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below

Difference 1 Chair back is lower 2 Illustration is smaller 3 Hand is moved, 4 Exit sign is missing 5 Ribbon is missing 6 Beads are missing

FUNSPOT

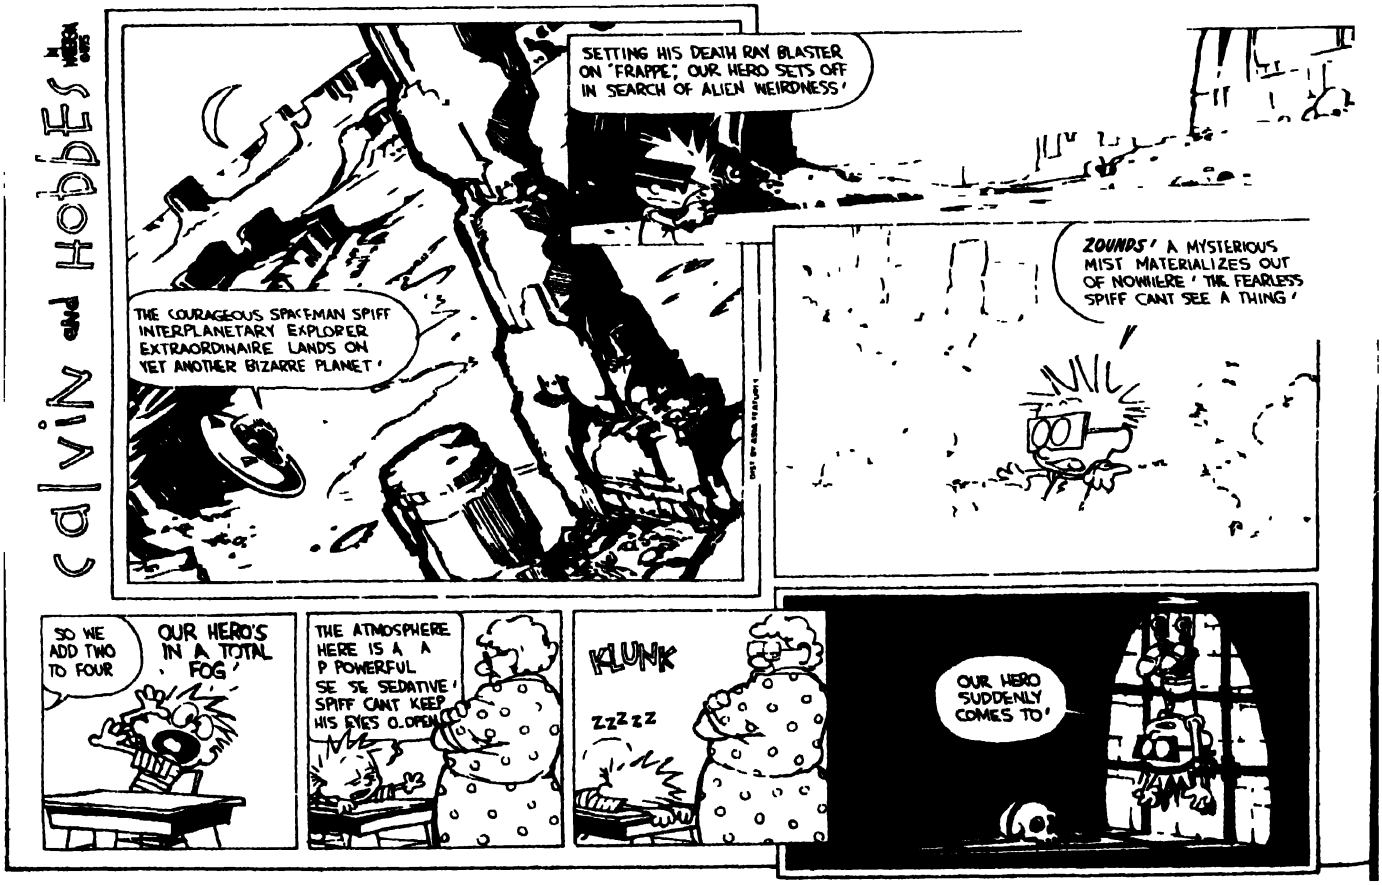
WHOA, DOBBIN someone is going our way! Add colors neatly to this old-time scene· 1—Red 2—Lt blue 3—Yellow 4—Lt brown 5—Flesh tones 6—Green 7—Dk brown 8—Purple

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

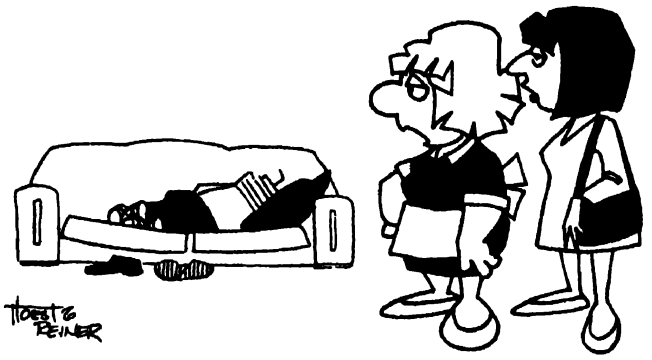
SMOOTHER

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters



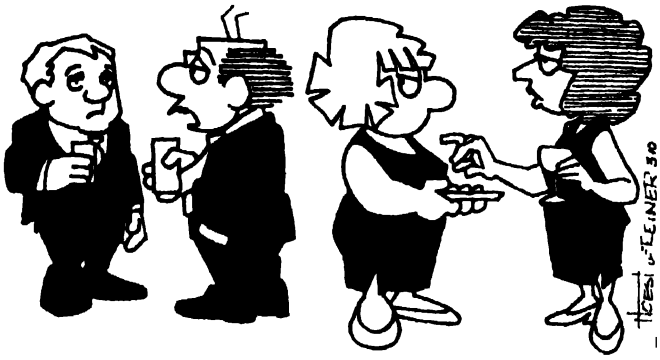
Try to score at least 50 points

Possible twosome Home and

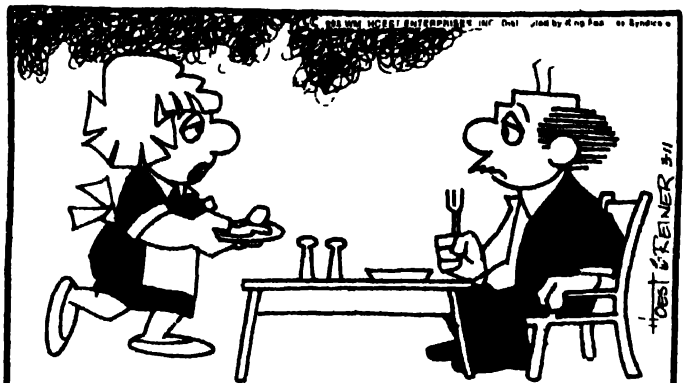


ARCHIE

CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON

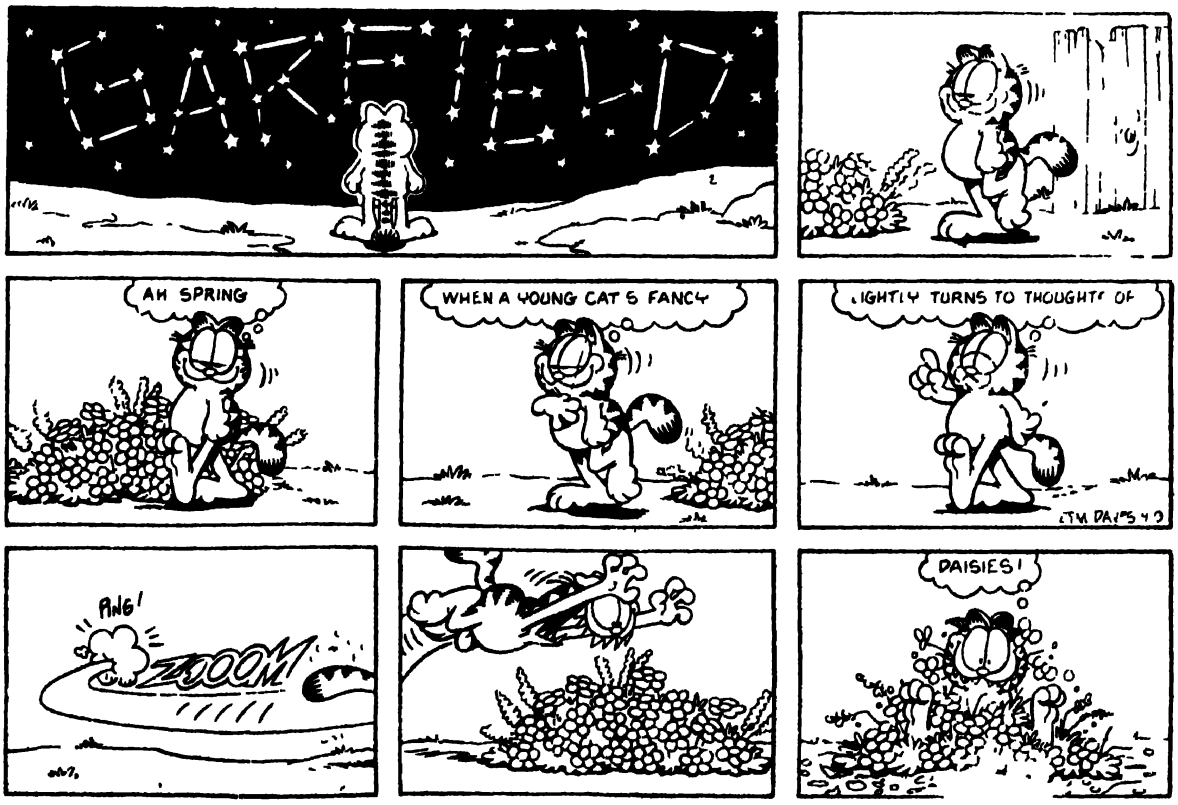


THE LOCKHORNS

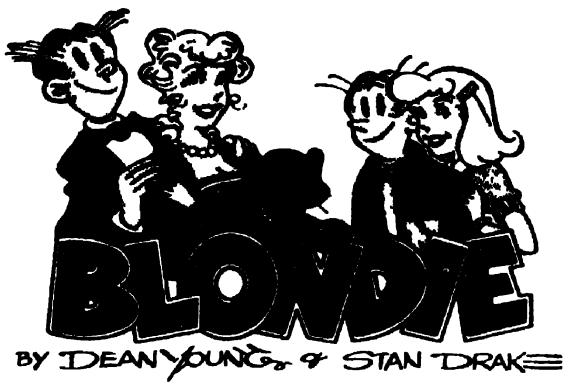


"NOT ONLY IS LEROY THE LAZIEST MAN ALIVE, HE ALSO HOPES TO RETIRE UNDEFEATED"

"WE NOT ONLY DIDN'T SAVE FOR A RAINY DAY, WE DIDN'T SAVE FOR A DAY WHEN WE'D HAVE WATER IN THE BASEMENT"



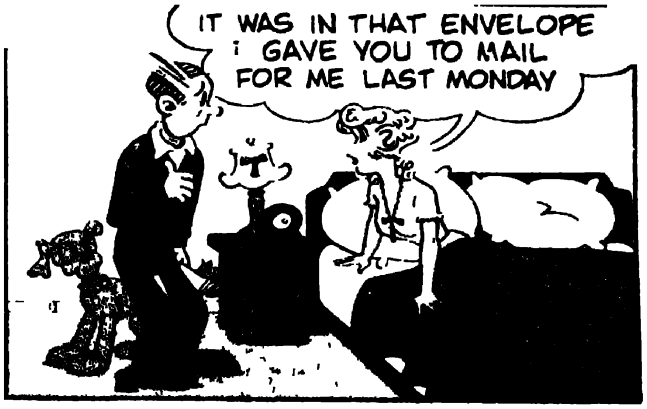
"THE SECRET OF OUR MARRIAGE? MUTUAL DISRESPECT"



"THE SUNNY SIDE EGGS HAD A TOTAL ECLIPSE"

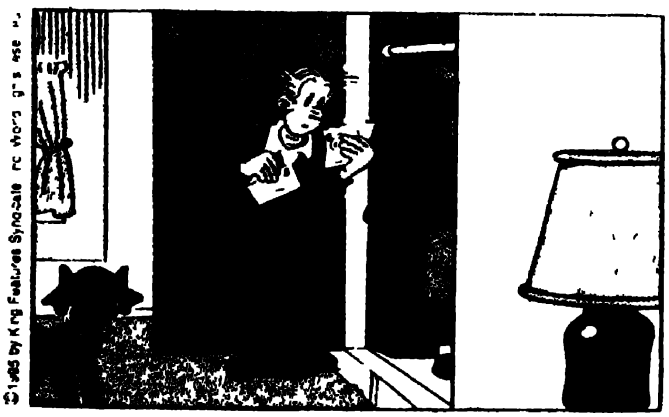
GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS

THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP

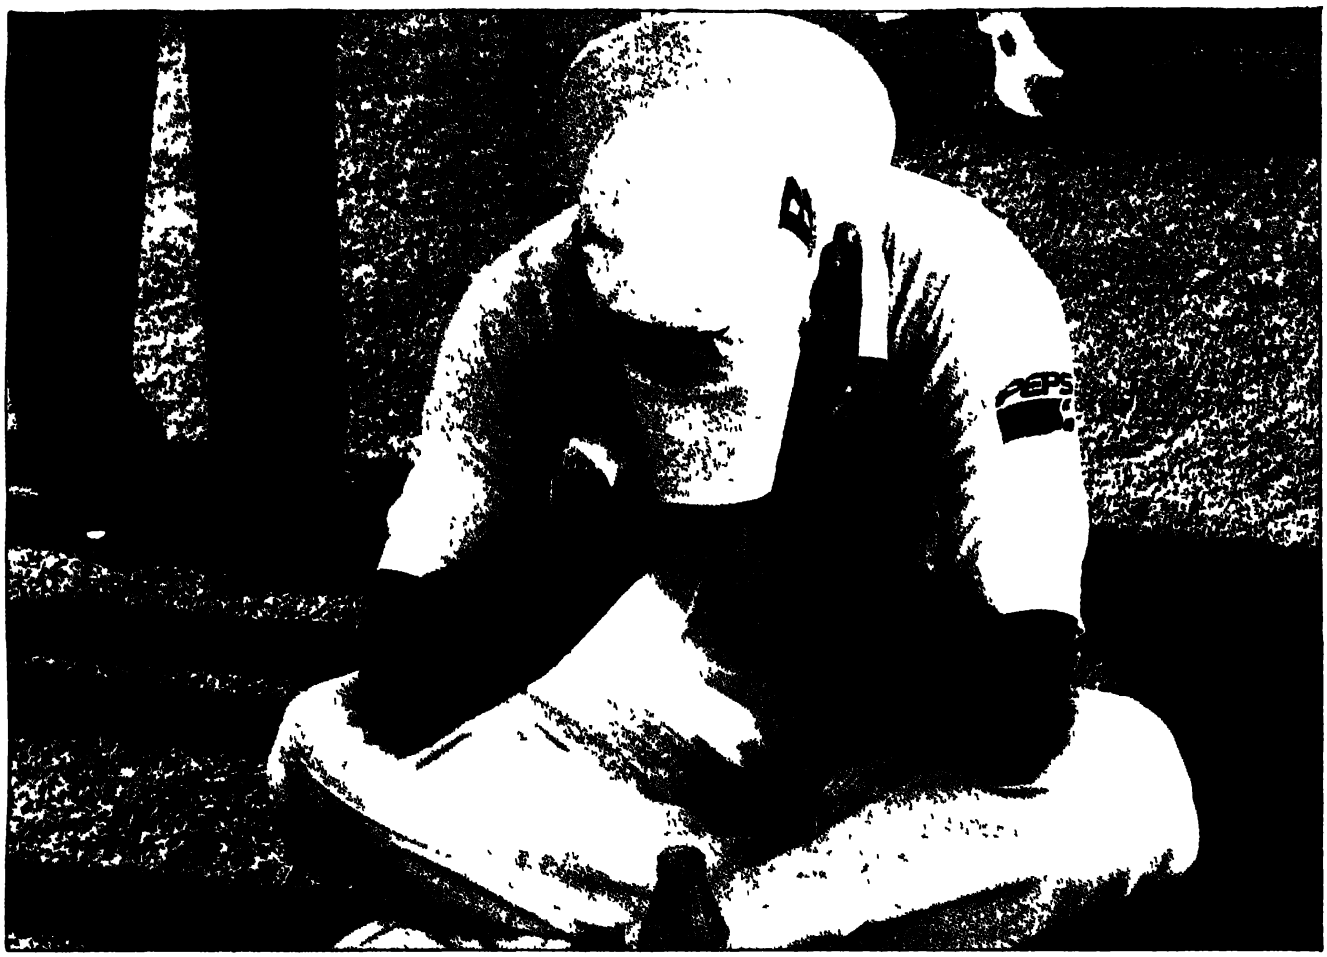


BLONDIE
BY DEAN YOUNG & STAN DRAKE

AREN'T YOU COMING UP TO BED ?
NOT UNTIL I FINISH THIS MURDER MYSTERY I'M READING



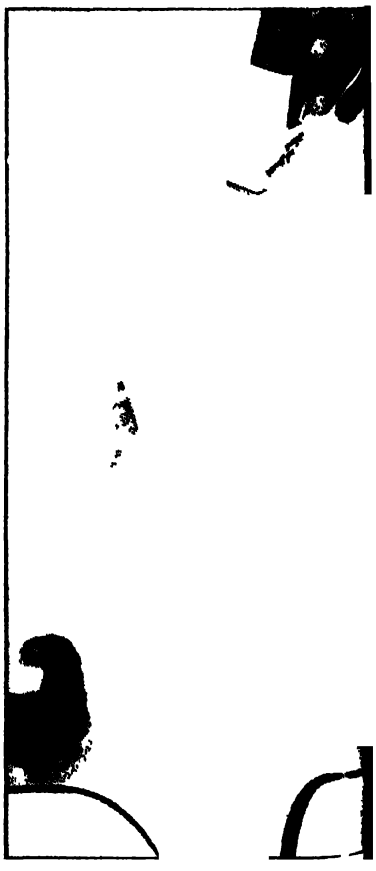
OMIGOSH ! WHAT HAPPENED TO MY MYSTERY STORY ?! THE ENDING'S GONE !!



BLONDIE ! SOMEBODY CUT THE BOTTOM PART OF THIS MAGAZINE OFF !!

I'M SORRY, DEAR, I CUT IT OFF BECAUSE THERE WAS A COUPON ON THE OTHER SIDE FOR A FREE RECIPE BOOKLET

IT WAS IN THAT ENVELOPE I GAVE YOU TO MAIL FOR ME LAST MONDAY



REMEMBER, I WAS AFRAID YOU'D FORGET TO MAIL IT, SO I CALLED YOU AT WORK TO REMIND YOU
YEAH, I REMEMBER

Aamir Nazir after Pakistan's shocking defeat against Sri Lanka

Vinod Kambli: Busy licking sticks

RAINBOW

AND ONE FOR THE ODDS

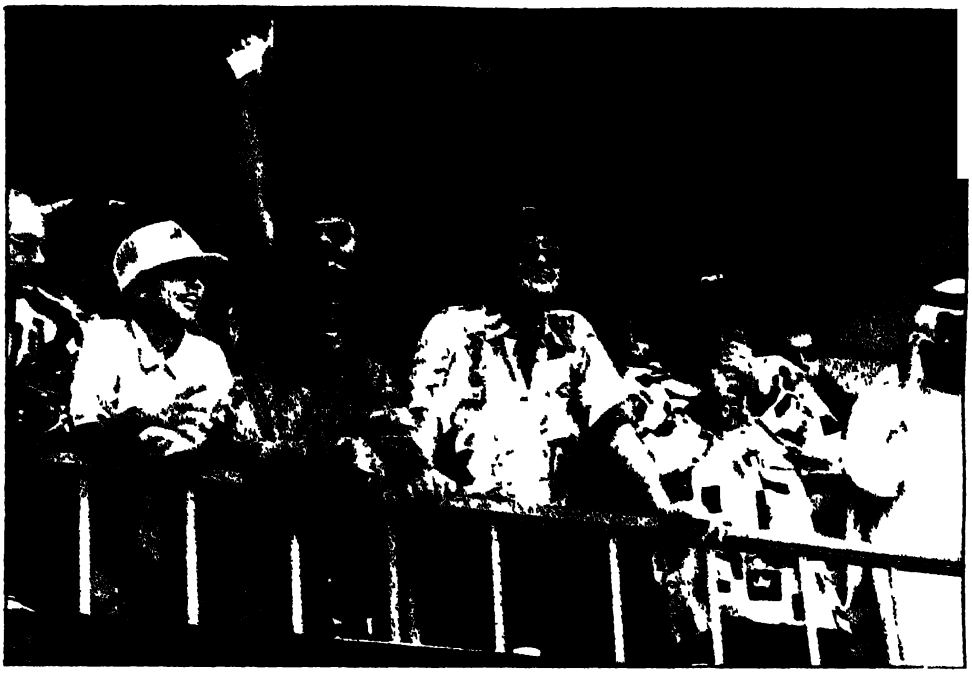
Though the Asia Cup tournament lacked fizz on the field, the real fun lay elsewhere Lensman Zafar Ali Khan focuses on some highs and lows

They came, they saw and they conquered. But the sobriquet, 'Desert Kings', would not exactly be apt, as in retaining the Asia Cup, India only beat Bangladesh and Sri Lanka

In the season's derby game against Pakistan, Mohammed Azharuddin's team again came a cropper

Even Anil Kapoor's wild cheering — the matinee idol had taken time off from promoting Prem, which had a rather snazzy presence at the Sharjah Cricket Stadium — was not inspiration enough.

For the final, of course, the other Kapoors were well represented: Randhir and Rajiv. Regulars Simi Garewal and Anju Mahendroo were present, too



But that Friday, whipping was not just bad news for millions at home, it left

United Arab Emirates-based Indians shame-faced Like Kandarp and Meera Singh. A common, and very disgusted refrain was "We can't even beat a new-look, demoralised Pakistan team Can we ever defeat them?"

Pakistan's advantage in the Emirate of Sharjah, which looks prettier with each tournament, is an unbelievable 13-3

The impassioned question could well have resurfaced had the title-round pitted India against Pakistan It was thanks only to the mother of all miscalculations which forced Pakistan out And while that made India's task so much easier, it also kept the crowd away Times, indeed are changing

Not only was the cricket never truly scintillating — except when Sachin Tendulkar held centrestage or when Aaqib Javed scripted yet another lethal spell -- there was much less gla mour (and even less wows)

'Prem' caps · Anju Mahendroo, Randhir Kapoor and Rajiv Kapoor (lighting a cigarette)

in the much-photographed VIP boxes

Last year, Shah Rukh Khan and Karishma Kapoor almost triggered a stampede Then you also had Rishi and Neetu Kapoor And, of course,

Akram and match referee Clive Lloyd. Lancashire legends

Imran Khan

This time the subcontinent's No 1 draw, Imran, preferred to launch a literacy drive in Lahore while Miss World Aishwarya Rai had other commitments to honour

Only, had both made the final, the on-field contest would have been reduced to a non-event

Off the field, though, the Asia Cup actually saw much drama Wasim Akram's yes-no-yes when the Pakistan Cricket Board declined permission for him to stay with wife Huma (it prompted a rather wicked quip "Girlfriends are fine. Not wives!")

Also, the eviction of two bookies (the powers-that-be would prefer "alleged people of dubious character") from the players' enclosure during the Indo-Pak match

Then, debutant skipper Moin Khan being felled -- not by Jawagal Srinath or Chaminda Vaas -- but by chicken pox, cricket manager Ajit Wadekar's decision to make himself unavailable next season Not to forget his lecturing mediamen on what they should do And more

Yes, there wasn't a dull moment

Lokendra Pratap Sahi

be damned

ENVIRONMENT

SPIT AND POLISH

In the absence of proper town planning, Kathmandu has been reduced to a maze of concrete and steel enveloped in pollution Seema Paul looks at the grime in what is considered a tourists' paradise

Photographs by Soumitra Sinha

Kathmandu, once a tourists' paradise, has lost much of its appeal as a Himalayan holiday spot, thanks to the city's unplanned development

The level of pollution is so high that a trekker descending from the magnificent Himalayas may well feel his holiday washed out in the grime of the city

After the salubrious air of the blue mountains, what greets him in Kathmandu is pollution and noxious fumes - far worse than even Delhi's clouds of poison And in place of the heavenly beauty that he enjoyed in the mountains, there is an urban slum spreading before him

Wherever he walks, there is filth and dust Even the municipal authorities are not active Sanitary services are almost non-existent Many Indian cities suffer from unplanned development — congestion, pollution, water crisis, health problems — but none can be as bad as Kathmandu

Even in the poshest areas of the city there is no evidence of town planning A visitor is bound to be befuddled by the maze of lanes and bylanes that crisscross the city Locating a house is a difficult proposition in Kathmandu Most of the houses are large mansions, sprawling and beautiful And add colour to the city

But the surroundings are an eyesore Visitors are taken for a ride by taxi drivers They go round the city, and mulberry bush, in order to inflate the meter readings

Kathmandu is yet to solve its water problem The quality of water is something everyone has to be wary about in Kathmandu Even Indians, used as they are to drinking substandard water, dread to touch Kathmandu's water A recent study shows that as against the World Health Organisation's stipulation for quality water (one coliform bacteria cell per 100 ml of water) Kathmandu's contamination levels reach 4,800 coliform per 100 ml Groundwater cannot be relied upon as an alternative source of water, as it too has become contaminated

As a rule everyone boils and filters water in Kathmandu Not only that, they clean vegetables in iodised water before cooking. For a shoe-string budget tourist, money spent on buying bottles of mineral water can be the highest expenditure after the hotel tariff

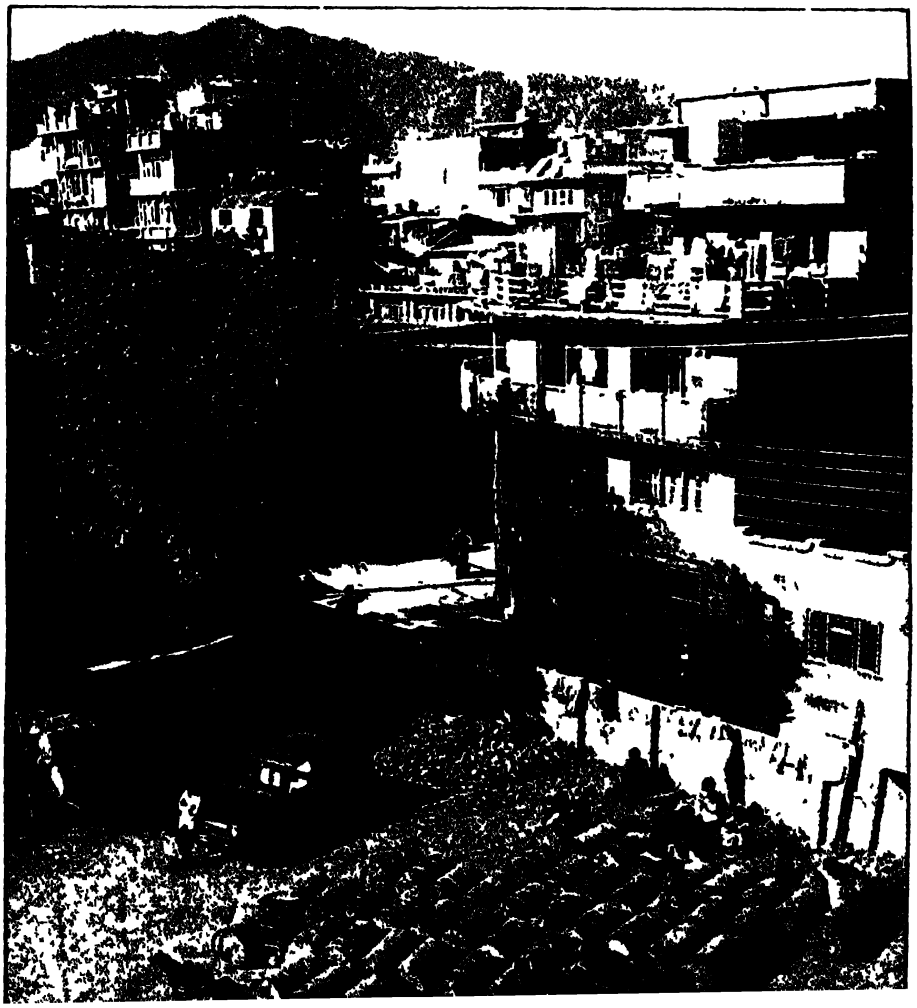
Not many Indian cities can boast to be better but there is still a lesson that our authorities may learn If care is not exercised, for example, in Delhi, it may soon degenerate to a Kathmandu-like situation



Kathmandu's tragedy is that its finest architectural displays are located in the ancient parts of the city which have degenerated beyond redemption

The municipality of Patan, for instance, located in Kathmandu valley, has lost its lustre over a span of four decades The city skyline encompassing the historic Mangal Bazaar and the Durbar Square — renowned for its exquisite architecture — has been taken over by sky-kissing buildings constructed over tiny plots of subdivided land in recent years

Patan, which was traditionally referred to as a 'city of thousand golden roofs', is today a maze of concrete and steel Ancient frescoed buildings, beautifully fired-brick fronts have all been razed to the ground in a flurry of

As a rule everyone boils and filters water in Kathmandu. Not only that, they clean vegetables in iodised water before cooking. For a shoe-string budget tourist, money spent on buying bottles of mineral water can be the highest expenditure after the hotel tariff

dust And highrise buildings have sprung up in their place

At one time it was possible to travel through the entire breadth of Patan by moving from one monastery compound (baha) to another, only occasionally stepping into a public lane before entering another baha through tunnel-like passages

It was in these bahas that the extraordinary artistry of Patan's Newar artisans was born But these passages are today dominated by curio shops selling cheap souvenirs imported from neighbouring countries

The same is also true for Thamel which houses the royal palace complex and some temples The road, which was not paved till the Sixties, was the main pathway of Kathmandu before the Great Earthquake of 1934

Some of the best architectural marvels of the city are located here The open courtyards of the old palace and the squares bear similarity with medieval Europe As vendors and sellers occupy the greater part of the place, the tourists have barely any space to appreciate the architecture

Kathmandu has so much to offer to the tourist — its historic buildings, temples, monasteries, architecture Is there no way this paradise can be regained? ■

SHEKHAR KAPUR, who began as an actor in Bollywood, graduated to directing movies with Masoom to his latest, Bandit Queen, which has sent the fur flying as no other in recent celluloid history. Kicked up by Phoolan herself, the fracas refuses to die down.

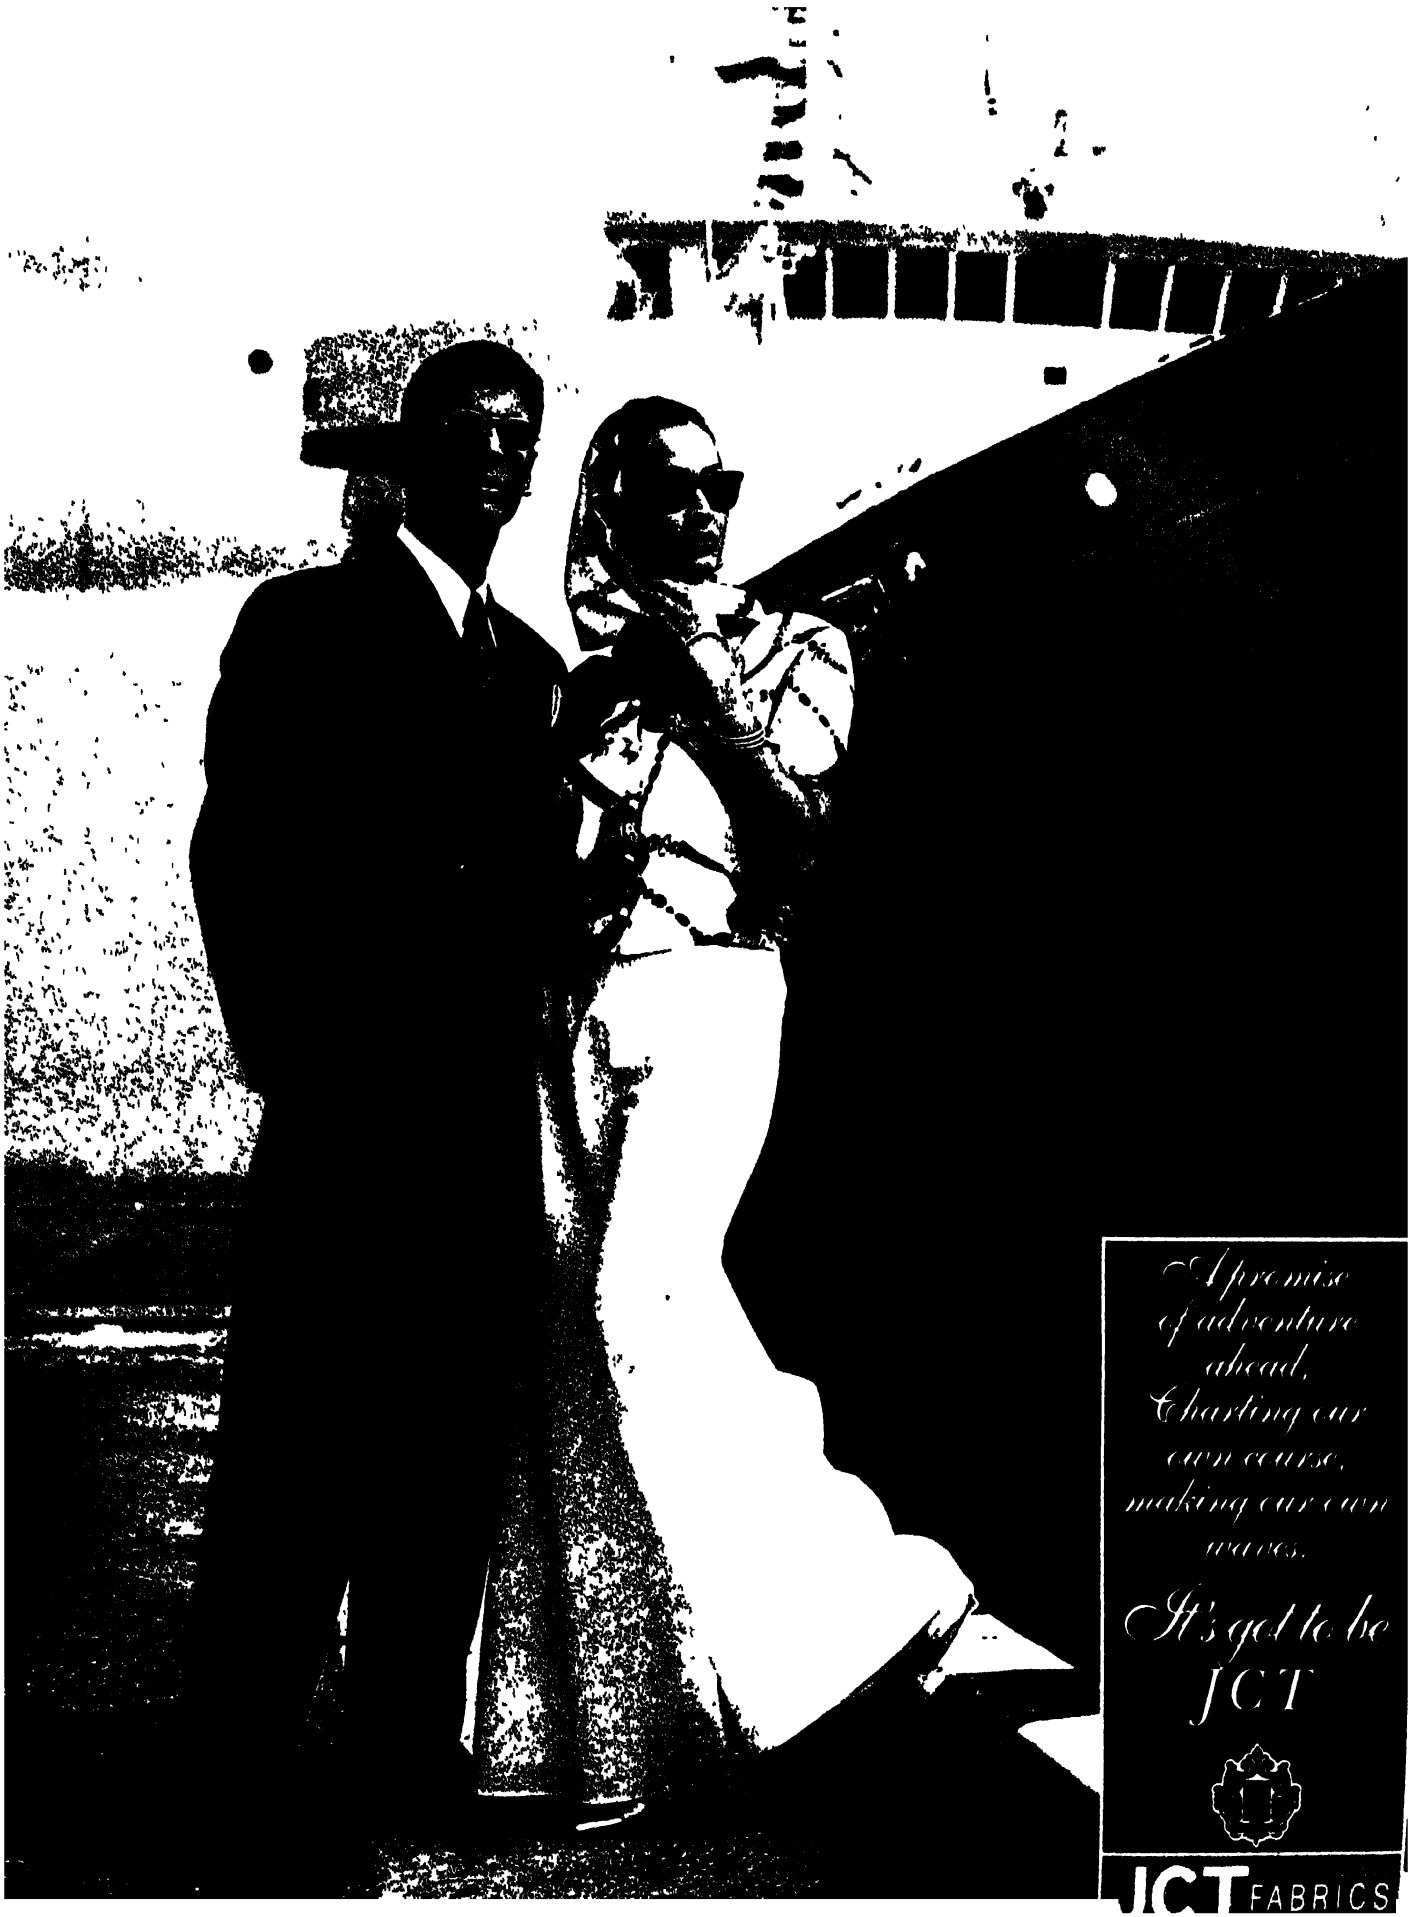
What is your idea of perfect happiness?
Change, from moment to moment
What is your greatest fear?
Fear itself — the fear of fear
Who or what has been the greatest influence in your life?
A total disbelief in the existing values of life
What do you dislike most in others?
The desperate need to dominate
What do you dislike most in yourself?
A certain laid-back attitude that allows this dominance

What is your greatest regret?



Actually, I wish I had been born Aishwarya Rai

What is your most precious possession?
My instinct — the child within me
What objects do you always carry?
These days my lap-top
What makes you most depressed?
Lies
What do you dislike most on your appearance?
My beard — I can't get rid of it now
What is your favourite word?
Yes
What is your favourite journey?
Walking down the streets of reality
What is your favourite dream?
That there is reality beyond the reality I see
What is your nightmare?
That there isn't
What or who is the greatest love of your life?
I am still trying to find out
What is your source of sustenance?
The belief that I am
On what occasions do you lie?
When I need to protect my instincts
What is your greatest regret?
Actually, I wish I had been born Aishwarya Rai
What has been your happiest moment?
The moments spent with my nieces and nephews

What do you envy most in others?

Their ability to forget. I don't forget

What brings tears to your eyes?
A child in distress
How do you relax?
I don't
What do you envy most in others?
Their ability to forget I don't forget
How would you like to be remembered?
As someone who cared
How would you like to die?
Alone

A promise of adventure ahead.
Charting our own course, making our own waves.
It's got to be JCT
JCT FABRICS

A promise
of adventure
ahead,
Charting our own course,
making our own
waves.
It's got to be
JCT
JCT FABRICS

14 MAY 1995 (

The Telegraph

POST MORTEM

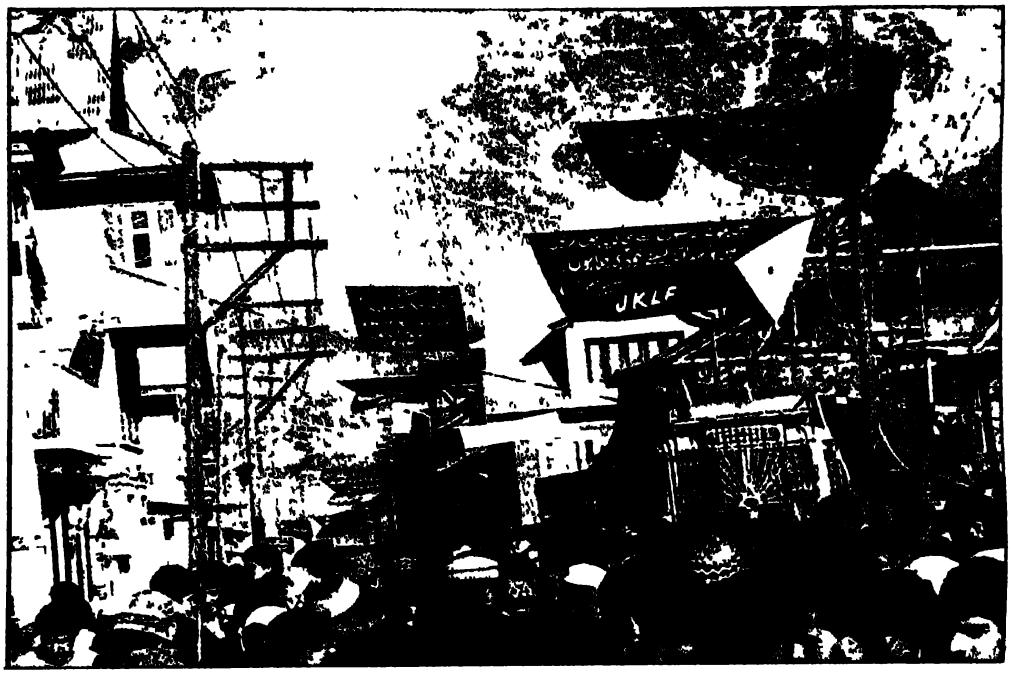
The Burning Chinar

■ 'A Hell on Earth' (April 9), based on the personal experiences and adventures of the author in Kashmir, brings to the fore the government's inherent inefficiency in tackling the crisis, and hails the militants as nationalists fighting to liberate the state

Terrorism in Kashmir has greatly hampered India's unity and integrity And who is paying the price for terrorism? The innocent Kashmiris who have nowhere to go Their normal lives disrupted, they live in perpetual fear and in terror of the gun

Living in Kashmir now is a trauma And leaving Kashmir means becoming a refugee in another state, in your own country

Under the circumstances, India has no option but to use brute force to crush the militants, particularly so when foreign forces are instigating them to destabilise the country and destroy its economy



Santosh Kumar Sharma,
Kharagpur

■ I had the good fortune of visiting Srinagar in 1978 with my family Terrorism had still not reared its ugly head then I remember visiting some of the most divinely beautiful places in Kashmir — Pahalgam, Gulmarg, Chasmeshahi, Nishat and Shalimar Gardens

The Kashmiris were so very cordial and accommodating

I feel pained at the thought what the militants have done to Kashmir No tourist can ever again freely visit this pristine paradise

B N Bose,
Calcutta

Troubled valley

■ The militants are waging a war of so called independence in Kashmir with which ordinary citizens cannot identify

It is Pakistani propaganda that is killing the state Tourism, the mainstay of Kashmir, has suffered the biggest blow

It is for everyone's well-being that Kashmir returns to normal and the verdant valley once again opens up to travellers

Somnath Mukherjee,
Calcutta

Yogi Desai

■ A disciplined lifestyle and an uncompromising nature helped Morarji Desai attain his goals ('A Great Long Life', February 26)

Never one to hanker for power, fame and such other worldly achievements, he relinquished them when they came his way Like a yogi he was dispassionate and detached

Debabrata Mohanty,
Balasore (Orissa)

INSIDE

PAGE 8

IN THE late Sixties, a violent movement came into force drawing within its fold some of the finest brains But soon ideological differences weakened the Naxalite movement An extract

PAGE 4

IN THE Philippines, remembering the dead is also a celebration A report

Charu Mazumdar

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
18 RUSKIN BOND
20 GILLIAN WRIGHT
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
26 FOCUS
29 IN
30 FIRST PERSON

Cover Krishnendu Chaki

CELEBRATING THE DEAD

The Philippines has given a whole new dimension to remembering its dead
Chandan Sinha takes a look at the parades*

It is therefore holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead (II Marcabees 13 46)

This biblical verse in all its profound beauty reflects the abiding faith of the people of the Philippines, the South East Asian archipelago known for its terrible typhoons and explosive volcanoes

Remembering the dead is a cause for celebration among the Filipinos

Though their customs vary from region to region, or from province to province, the enthusiasm is the same wherever you go, be it the northern or the southern realms of the country

It is a time when they not only honour the dead, but indulge in get-togethers, merriment and mirth As a national holiday, it provides Filipinos the excuse to revel in the cheerful laid-back mood which lasts for three to four days at a stretch

People working in the cities flock to their provinces for a reunion with their families by then busy preparing for the celebrations ahead

Regardless of their age, profession or economic background, they troop to the cemeteries and memorial parks, paying homage to relatives and friends laid to rest under the tuft of grasses or firmly cemented stone slabs

Long before the coming of November, relatives start to clean up the graves of their dear ones, weeding out the accumulated rubbish and whitewashing cemented bricks with fresh coats of paint

When they make their visits to the graves, they do so with everyone and with everything — right from food, soft drinks, small stoves to even big sized tents Pet dogs, too, faithfully follow them in their sojourns to the grave

Filipinos keep pouring in on the last day of October, and some prefer to go there even earlier They stay there overnight, sleep under small tents with their sound systems tuned to some popular FM channel

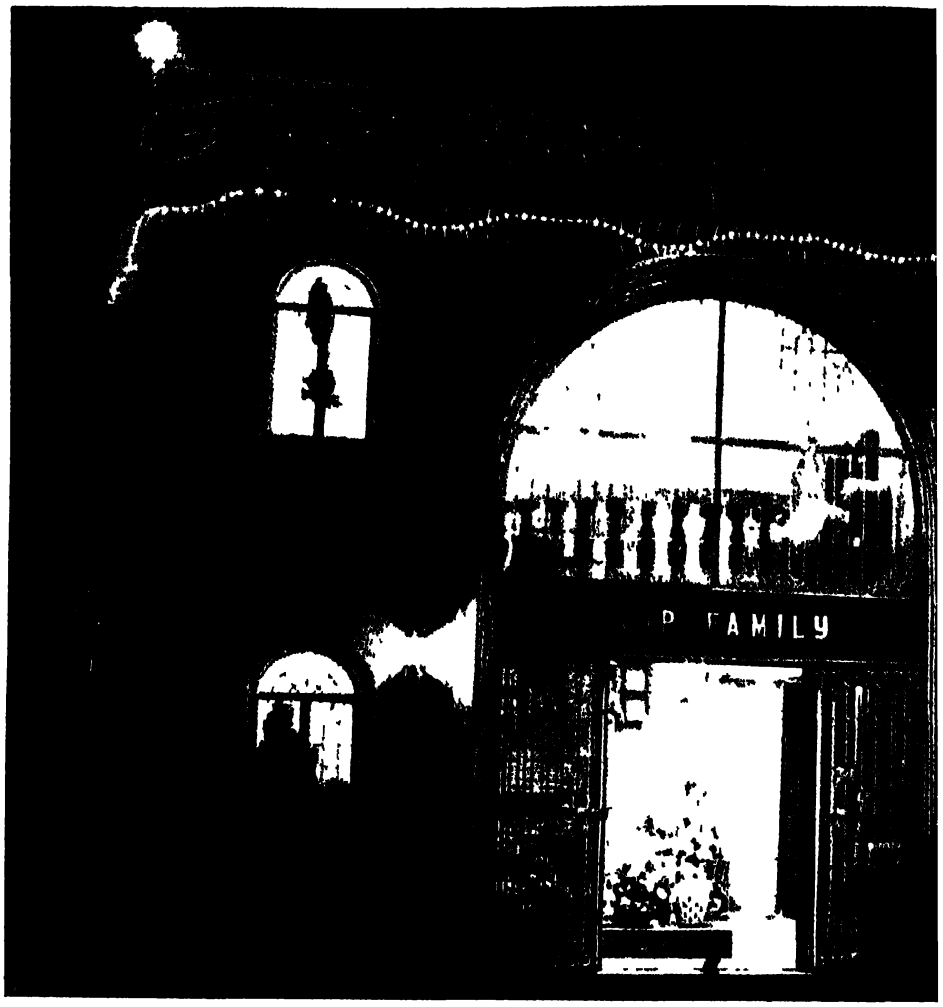
The graveyard casts aside its usual mournful gloom and is transformed into what seems like a cushy picnic spot It awakens to the squeals of children playing, candles glow, spreading their dimly-lit misty hues, and the sky looks nebulous and smoky Yet, no one is quite ready to fall off to sleep

They have their dinner together, meet relatives and friends gathered there, and when the night falls dark and deep -- they drift off to sleep, close to the graves of their departed kins

Festivities at a memorial park in Manila

The character of the celebration varies from one echelon of the society to another For the middle or lower class, for instance, there may neither be a big house built on the grave stone nor even a plot of land surrounding it

Sometimes, in the thick crowd of graves in the public cemeteries, there is hardly much space to walk But what really survives is the spirit, undying in its fervour

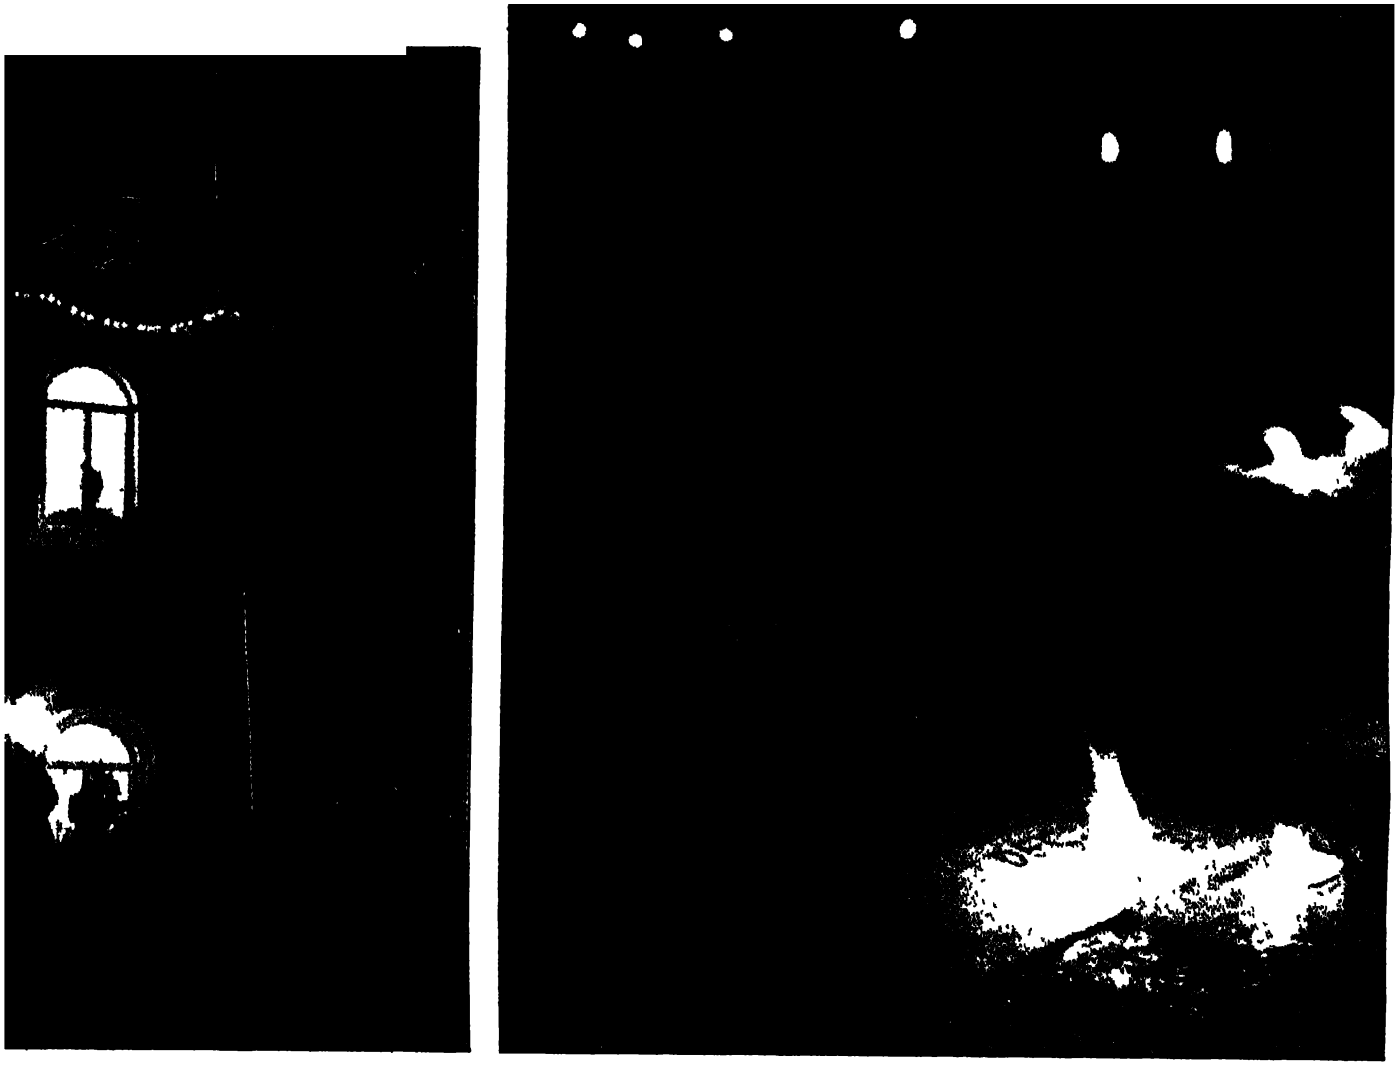


People come with candles and flowers They also bring with them a small can of food and a bedsheet for the night's stay

The rich, on the other hand, build large houses on the graves, some big enough to accommodate even living rooms, dining and bedrooms, a spacious kitchen and bathroom equipped with all household amenities

And they come here to stay not only during the November Festival, but for longer periods at other occasions of the year

Whatever differences there may be due to reasons of economy, the mood of the festival is generally upbeat This 'on-the spot' meeting with dead is an altogether curious phenomenon and there are even some rare examples of persons who are literally living with the dead



In some of the cemeteries, at any time of the year, they can be seen leading their lives in small cottages over the grave They are usually aged husbands or wives who have chosen to

A dwelling place built on the grave of a loved one

Night vigil

A candle-lit gravestone

stay with their departed ones, enveloped in a world of unearthly silence, far, far away from the city's maddening crowds

In the Roman Catholic calendar, the first day of November is referred to as 'All Saints Day' the feast of all members of the church who are believed to be in heaven The church on earth, commemorates the deceased members whose souls are believed to be in purgatory on the second day of the month

But in the Philippines, where centuries ago, the Christian calendar had compromised with the pagan liturgy, 'All Souls Day' (that is, the commemoration of the deceased in pugatory) is observed on the first day of November In the local (Tagalog) language this day is popularly known as 'Todos Los Santos'

In the cities it is characterised by endless traffic jams and price hikes at the florist's and makeshift markets which crop up in and around the cemeteries Street children who, on other days, are found gallivanting round the highway crossings, rush to the cemetery gates with flowers, candles, soft drinks, tabloids and whatever else

In some provinces, candles are lit at the doorsteps of homes to welcome the spirits of the dead In some others, food is prepared at the family altars as an invitation to the dead to join in the sumptuous banquet Rural folk offer food at the graves as an offering to their dead And there are still many who believe the true essence of remembering the dead lies in prayer

No matter what the approach, the Filipinos try to uphold their traditional values They pray for the dead, sing to them and share the joy of togetherness Their beliefs seem to echo Wordsworth's experience as he saw through the eyes of innocent Jane "Their graves are green, they may be seen,/The little Maid replied,/Twelve steps or more from my mother's door,/And they are side by side

My stockings there I often knit,/My kerchief there I hem,/And there upon the ground I sit,/And sing a song to them' ■

In some of the cemeteries, at any time of the year, they can be seen leading their lives in small cottages over the grave. They are usually aged husbands or wives who have chosen to stay with their departed ones, enveloped in a world of unearthly silence, far, far away from the city's maddening crowds

Photographs by Chandan Sinha

COVER STORY

AFTER THE STORM

Whatever happened to the Naxalite movement that promised to usher in a new social order?

BY PRAKASH SINGH

The important thing is the revolution, the revolutionary cause, revolutionary ideas, revolutionary objectives, revolutionary sentiments, revolutionary virtues.

—Fidel Castro

THE NAXALITE MOVEMENT HAD A METEORIC phase for about two years from the formation of the party in May 1969 till the end of June 1971. The ripples starting from Naxalbari spread in ever-widening circles to practically all parts of the country. The only areas which remained untouched were the Northeastern states

Illustration Krishnendu Dhale

and the Union Territories of Goa, Pondicherry and Andaman and Nicobar Islands The dominant strand of the movement was the annihilation of class enemies It was Charu Mazumdar's distinctive contribution to the movement It was his triumph as well as his tragedy — triumph because it achieved a considerable measure of success in the initial stages when several jotedars fled from the countryside and there were tremors among all shades of oppressors, and tragedy because the killings, not always discriminate, alienated the general mass of people and, further, there were serious ideological differences within the party which weakened and fragmented the movement

The annihilation of class enemies was directed at not merely the physical liquidation of a few hated landlords and usurers but at the "overthrow of the feudal class in an area, economically, politically and militarily" It was explained that after the class enemies were annihilated, others of his ilk would also flee in utter panic and the area would be freed of the class enemies and their agents This would raise the armed struggle to a higher plane Annihilation of class enemies was thus a "higher form of class struggle and the beginning of guerrilla war"

The annihilation campaign had other advantages also It raised — at least that was the claim — the political consciousness of the people and created conditions for the emergence of a new type of man who feared neither hardship nor death

' The battle of annihilation liberates the people not only from the oppression of the landlord class and the state but also liberates them from the shackles of backward ideas and removes from the minds of the people poisonous weeds of self-interest, clan interest, localism, casteism, religious superstition, etc "

The class enemies included landlords and their agents, rich peasants, money-lenders and police informers The poor and landless peasants were relied upon to carry on this campaign Squads of poor and landless peasants, imbued with the politics of seizure of political power by armed force and burning with class hatred, annihilated the feudal oppressors.

What weapons were to be used for annihilations? Here, as on seven other points, the Naxalites took the cue from Mao "Weapons are an important factor in war, but not the decisive factor; it is people, not things that are decisive " The party workers were therefore advised to rely on conventional weapons like choppers, spears, javelins and sickles The tendency to acquire guns and other firearms was discouraged on the ground that even if they managed to get hold of a few guns, they would not be able to retain them and those would inevitably fall into the hands of the police The party's thinking in the matter was expressed by the Debra Organising Committee of the CPI(ML) in the following words

"The guerrillas are used to bows and arrows and not guns, and so, their initiative and inventiveness develop in using the former Our tactic, plan and choice of weapons should be such as can unleash the initiative of the masses As they realise the limitations of their primitive weapons, in course of struggle, they themselves will take initiative to procure modern weapons, which will then not be a hindrance to releasing the initiative of the masses but will, on the contrary be its complement "

What weapons were to be used for annihilations? Here, as on seven other points, the Naxalites took the cue from Mao. 'Weapons are an important factor in war, but not the decisive factor; it is people, not things that are decisive.' The party workers were therefore advised to rely on conventional weapons like choppers, spears, javelins and sickles

The act of annihilation of class enemies was considered by the Naxalites to be the "primary stage of the guerrilla struggle" It is therefore necessary to understand the CPI(ML)'s concept of guerrilla struggle It was explained by Charu Mazumdar that "guerrilla warfare is and will remain the basic form of struggle for the entire period of democratic revolution" He was at pains to distinguish the CPI(ML)'s concept of guerrilla war from that advocated by Che Guevara in which guerrilla war was waged by the petty bourgeois intelligentsia without the support of the peasant masses. He underscored that the guerrilla war, as understood by the Naxalites in India, was initiated by the class conscious elements of the poor and landless peasants and that it could be led and carried on only with their active cooperation Another point of difference from Guevara type of guerrilla warfare was that there was no reliance on firearms and the peasant masses depended exclusively on primitive weapons conveniently available to them The guerrilla war, according to Charu Mazumdar, could be started wherever there were peasants. It was a mistaken understanding that such warfare could be started only in mountainous area or in jungles Another point — and this led to divergence of opinion in the party circles — stressed by Mazumdar was that mass movements and mass organisations were not necessary preconditions for waging guerrilla warfare On the contrary, these mass movements and mass organisations exposed the revolutionary workers before the enemy and were therefore obstacles in the way of development and expansion of guerrilla warfare What was indispensable was the spreading and propagation of revolutionary politics or the Thought of Mao Tse-tung

The Liberation of February 1970 gives an expose of Charu Mazumdar's views on guerrilla actions It was stressed that complete secrecy must be observed in forming a guerrilla unit "The method of forming a guerrilla unit has to be wholly conspiratorial No inkling of such a conspiracy should be given out even in the meetings of the political units of the party This conspiracy should be between individuals and on a person to person basis The petty bourgeois intellectual comrade must take the initiative in this respect as far as possible He should approach the poor peasant who, in his opinion, has the most revolutionary potential and whisper in his ears 'Don't you think it is a good thing to finish off such and such a jotedar?' This is how the guerrillas had to be selected and recruited singly and in secret and organised into a unit"

Extracted from The Naxalite Movement in India by Prakash Singh; Rupa & Co.; Rs 95

The guerrilla unit must be small, well-knit and mobile It should generally not have more than seven members and the unit should be led by a commander Before undertaking any action, a thorough investigation of the target should be done by keeping watch over his movements so that the best possible time and place for attack is chosen Shelters should be arranged with the utmost care and caution These should be spread and located in different villages far from the place where the guerrilla action is to take place A detailed plan of operation should be worked out in consultation with the petty bourgeois intellectual comrade At the time of attack, the guerrilla should come from different directions, pretending to be innocent persons and gather at a previously appointed place where they should wait for the class enemy After the annihilation is carried out, the guerillas should disperse to their respective shelters This should be followed by propaganda activity The political cadres, pretending to be neutral, would start a whisper campaign like this "So, that devil of a man has got killed after all, good riddance, eh! Can't find enough words to praise those who have done it They have done a heroic thing, haven't they? Wish they would carry on with this business until the whole pack of those bloodsuckers is finished off Oh, how fine will be everything then, just think, when they are gone all this area will belong to us, all this land, all these crops, all the riches will be ours, because, once these scoundrels are gone how can the police know who is tilling whose land? After the masses begin to respond to such propaganda, the political cadre would gradually beome bolder and hold group meetings At this stage, the petty bourgeois intellectual would also come out of hiding and hold meetings to rouse the masses The guerrilla units thereafter find out new targets and work out new plans of action The process

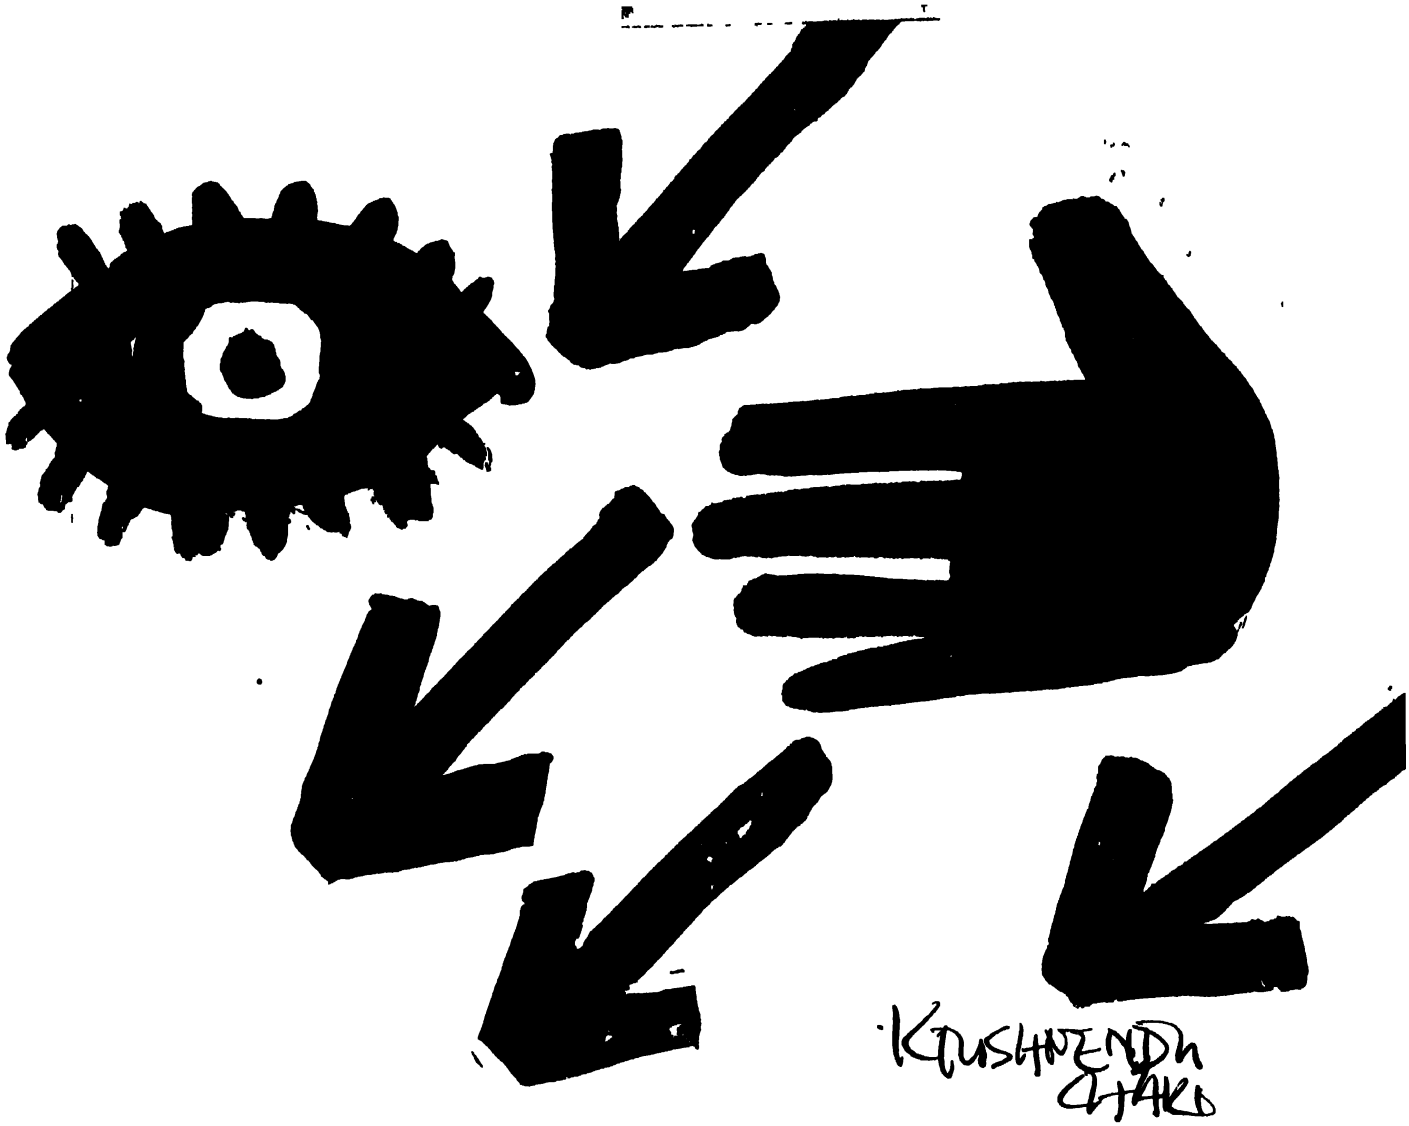
thus goes on until Red Terror is firmly established

While expounding the above principles of guerrilla action, however, Charu Mazumdar's enthusiasm overran his discretion and he made the fantastic statement that "he who has not dipped his hand in the blood of class enemies can hardly be called a Communist" The statement caused a furore among the party leaders and was subsequently disapproved even by the Chinese leadership

The guerrilla warfare was, in turn, to lead the establishment of base areas A base area was one where the feudal regime of the landlord had been destroyed and the revolutionary authority of the peasants established

These ideas fired the imagination of party workers and sympathisers — and the Naxalite movement surged stridently The idelogical formulations, however, had inherent flaws which, in due course, led not only to the movement losing its momentum but the party also getting splintered The annihilation campaign, it has been rightly said, had four basic objectives

i) Smash the feudal authority in the villages and replace it by the authority of the peasants



ii) Establish 'red terror' as opposed to the 'white terror' of feudal elements

iii) Arouse the poor sections of the rural masses to take over the leadership of the movement

iv) Encourage the common people to shake off their fear and inertia to join the Naxalites

Not that these objectives were not achieved to a certain extent, but Mazumdar failed to visualise the devastating implications of his flawed approach of the very cause he was trying to champion Mass movements were neglected, economic struggles did not get due attention and 'white terror' was provoked to launch fierce counter-attacks which nearly decimated the Naxalites The movement did not have the vital ingredients to sustain itself No wonder, after attaining a certain trajectory, it showed a sharp downward trend

At the end of 1969, Charu Mazumdar summed up the lessons of the year in the following words

"Rely on the poor and landless peasants, educate them in Mao Tse-tung Thought, adhere firmly to the path of armed struggle, build guerrilla force and march forward along the path of liquidating the class enemies, only thus can the high tide of struggle advance irresistibly"

He also expressed his optimism that the year 1970 held the promise of still bigger victories A month later, Charu Mazumdar gave the call for making the 1970s 'the decade of liberation' and exhorted the party workers to "spread the sparks of this revolutionary armed struggle throughout India, here and now"

The holding of the first Party Congress by the CPI(ML) in the middle of May 1970 was an important landmark in the evolution of Naxalite movement in the country The Party Congress was held in underground conditions in Calcutta and was attended by delegates from the various states of India It clearly acknowledged its links with the Chinese Communist Party in a resolution conveying "revolutionary greetings to Chairman Mao Tse-tung to whose all conquering Thought and to whom personally our Party owes its birth and phenomenal growth" The Congress did not mince its words in recording that "our Party and revolution have received and are receiving the personal care and guidance of Chairman Mao" Through another resolution, the Party gave a call to avenge the death of "great martyrs" by intensifying the armed class struggle and the war of annihilation of class enemies The party workers were advised to turn their grief into burning class hatred

It was explained by Charu Mazumdar that 'guerrilla warfare is and will remain the basic form of struggle for the entire period of democratic revolution'. He was at pains to distinguish the CPI(ML)'s concept of guerrilla war from that advocated by Che Guevara in which guerrilla war was waged by the petty bourgeois intelligentsia without the support of the peasant masses

The Congress adopted the Party Programme, the Political Organisational Report, the Party Constitution and elected the Central Committee The salient features of the party programme were

1 India achieved a 'sham independence' in 1947, when Congress leadership representing the comprador-bourgeoisie and big landlords was installed to power

2 The Indian people are now weighed down under "four huge mountains" namely US imperialism, Soviet social imperialism, feudalism and comprador-bureaucrat capital

3 The contradiction between feudalism and the broad masses of the Indian people is the principal contradiction of the present phase

4 The present Indian society is semi-feudal and semi-colonial in character

5 The government has been suppressing the genuine rights of all nationalities and national and religious minorities like Kashmiris, Nagas and Mizos who are being denied the right of self-determination

6 The foreign policy of the country serves the interests of imperialism, social-imperialism and reaction

7 The country is in the stage of democratic revolution, the essence of which is agrarian revolution

8 The revolution will establish the dictatorship of the working class, the peasantry, the petty bourgeoisie and even a section of the small and middle bourgeoisie under the leadership of the working class which is the most organised, advanced detachment of the people

9 A Democratic Front would be built up under the leadership of the working class and it would include the landless and poor peasants, the middle peasants and also a section of the rich peasants with the urban petty bourgeoisie and the revolutionary intellectuals as reliable allies

Charu Mazumdar

10 India's liberation would be achieved by people's war, which would involve creating small bases of armed struggle all over the country by waging guerrilla warfare

The party also outlined the major tasks which the People's Democratic State would carry out These deserve to be quoted in extenso

a) Confiscation of all the banks and enterprises of foreign capital and liquidation of all imperialist debt

b) Confiscation of all the enterprises of the comprador-bureaucrat capitalists

c) Confiscation of all land belonging to the landlords and their redistribution among the landless and poor peasants on the principle of land to the tillers, cancellation of all debts of the peasantry and other toiling people All facilities necessary for development of agriculture to be guaranteed

d) Enforce eight hours a day, increase wages, institute unemployment relief and social insurance, remove all inequalities on the basis of equal pay for equal work

e) Improve the living conditions of soldiers and give land and job to the ex-servicemen

f) Enforce better living conditions of the people and remove unemployment

g) Develop new democratic culture in place of colonial and feudal culture

h) Abolish the present educational system and educational institutions and build up a new educational system and new educational institutions consistent with the needs of People's Democratic India

i) Abolish the caste system, remove all social inequalities and discrimination on religious grounds and guarantee equality of status to women

j) Unify India and recognise the right of self-determination

k) Give equal status to all national languages

l) Abolish all exorbitant taxes and miscellaneous assessments and adopt a consolidated, progressive tax system

m) People's political power to be exercised through Revolutionary People's Council at all levels

n) Alliance to be formed with the international proletariat and the oppressed nations of the world under the leadership of the CPC

The political-organisational report adopted at the Party Congress claimed that peasants' armed struggle under the leadership of the CPI(ML) had spread far wide and engulfed 12 states of the country It gave a call for strengthening the party, which was declared the "most important, most immediate and most sacred task of the revolutionary people of India" The Party expressed its resolve to continue the annihilation campaign in a more determined and concerted way and "develop the struggles in mighty waves"

Charu Mazumdar's speech on the political-organisational report at the Party Congress for the first time indicated that differences were brewing inside the party over the issues of (a) annihilation, (b) use of firearms and c) dependence on the petty bourgeois intellectual Charu Mazumdar made a virulent attack on the dissidence whom he dubbed as 'centrists' and made a vigorous defence of the party line He said that without class struggle — the battle of annihilation — the initiative of the poor peasant masters cannot be released, the political consciousness of the fighters cannot be raised, the new man cannot emerge and the people's army cannot be created On the question of firearms, he argued

A base area was one where the feudal regime of the landlord had been destroyed and the revolutionary authority of the peasants established. These ideas fired the imagination of party workers and sympathisers, and the Naxalite movement surged stridently that their use at this stage, instead of releasing the initiative of the peasant masses would stifle it

"If guerrilla fighters start the battle of annihilation with their conventional weapons, the common landless and poor peasants would come forward with bare hands and join the battle of annihilation A common landless peasant, ground down by age-old repression, will see the light and avenge himself on the class enemy His initiative will be released in this way, the peasant masses will join the guerrilla fighters, their revolutionary enthusiasm will know no bounds and a mighty wave of people's upsurge will sweep the country After the initiative of the peasant masses to annihilate the class enemy with bare hands or home-made weapons has been released and the peasants' revolutionary power has been established, they should take up the guns and face the world "

Charu Mazumdar felt that "there is the possibility of a tremendous upsurge in India", and he therefore called upon the cadres to start as many points of arms struggle as possible instead of confining it "Expand anywhere and everywhere" was his message Such expansions were particularly noticeable in Srikakulam in Andhra Pradesh, Debra-Gopiballavpur in West Bengal, Mushahari in Bihar and Palia in Lakhimpur district of UP

SPLINTERED DREAMS

So, it was not merely a tale of messiahs and deliverance of the oppressed. Pothik Ghosh*, himself part of the procession once, readjusts his frame of perception of the Naxalite movement*

Ye sharmnak hadsa hamare hi sath hona tha
Ki duniya ke sabse pavitra shabdon ko
Ban jana tha singhasan ke paaye —
Marx ka sher jaisa sir Dilli ki bhulbhulaiyon mein
Mimiata hue hume hi dekhna tha
Mere doston, ye kufr hamare hi samay mein hona tha
(This shameful occurrence had to happen to us
That the most sacred words in the Universe
Were to be transformed into the support of a throne —
That we had to see the tiger-like head of Marx
Miaowing through the corridor maze of Delhi
Dear friend, this blasphemy had to happen in our times)

— Avtar Singh Pash

The 'blasphemy,' to put it succinctly, is the conversion of Naxalbari, a small sleepy hamlet in the remote corner of north Bengal, where a violent peasant upsurge almost 25 years ago made history, into a culture of lethargy and para-academic semantic jugglery

But Naxalbari is not all about the late Seventies' Calcutta ambience. Nor is it about Presidency College and the verbal crossfires at the College Street Coffee House It acquired another dimension after the movement was broken in the mid-Seventies and the party splintered into numerous small factions

What Bengalis, and moreso Calcuttans, have missed and still miss, in their haste to own anything intellectual and agit-prop, is that the spores of the movement have germinated in places which are scoffed at by these metropolitan inhabitants as 'backwaters'

Leaving the theoretical weight aside, let us be part of a tale A tale neither about Calcutta nor about the 'decade of anger' But about north India and in particular about a once-glorious, now decaying campus, Allahabad University

You must be wondering what is north India or for that matter Allahabad University doing in a story on the Naxals Read on

The year was 1989, I had just passed my school-leaving examinations and had joined the science faculty of Allahabad University as an undergraduate student As a fresher I nursed a lot of starry-eyed notions about college life and I was not an exception Students of my ilk, that is coming from sheltered families and ivory-tower, convent institutions had almost the same ideas

But fissures appeared quite early as we had to identify our caste before our seniors

Very soon we realised the extremely oppressive and feudal nature of the campus, which had touched almost every member of the institution — students, teachers and other employees alike Quite naturally students like me who were unprepared for this, struck an indignant posture and this stance of ours found a channel in the politics of the Progressive Students Organisation (PSO), an affliate of the CPI(ML)-Liberation, better known as the Vinod Mishra faction

This is one of the most powerful factions into which the CPI(ML) of the 1969 Naxalbari-fame had broken, and its main areas of operation are Bihar, Uttar Pradesh and some areas of West Bengal The party chief, Vinod Mishra, played an active role in the Naxal movement during the Seventies as a student of the Durgapur Regional Engineering College

All of us were very happy that our indignation and anger had been given a 'right' direction I, particularly, was very enthused because being a domiciled Bengali and having heard about the movement from friends and relatives in West Bengal, I was romantically inclined towards it

However, in the ultimate analysis most of us turned out to be nothing more than active sympathisers

Yes, there was Govind Was that his name? Anyway, names of activists and subjects, and citizens and soldiers have always been inconsequential After all history is made by leaders and kings, ministers and generals

As time passed Govind became a serious supporter of the Naxal cause and fully supported the party's idea of a democratic revolution preceding a socialist revolution, the 'Bhojpur model' of peasant struggle and guerrilla warfare, and democratic movements waged by open fora like our student organisation

Since I was nothing more than a sympathiser I became aware of a lot of things regarding the inner world of radical left politics through Govind who had became a sort of de facto convener of the organisation in the science faculty

The problems and thus the political strategies of the party were entirely different from those of Bengal of the early Seventies Caste politics was a dominant factor to reckon with

Humiliating students from 'lower' castes and harassment of girls by the 'upper' caste lumpen elements was the order of the day And Govind with his small band of newfound dedicated comrades put up a stiff resistance against all this, perhaps for the first time

I clearly remember the bright sunny day in March, 1990 We were at the fag end of our first year Govind, I and a couple of other people were standing near the botany laboratory Suddenly we heard shrieks of panic-stricken girls from the lane which connected our zoology and botany departments With much thinking Govind ran towards the lane, but by that time the anti-social elements had finished their dirty job of molesting a classmate of ours and took to their heels

Immediately Govind decided to organise a protest demonstration before the proctors His appeal hit the gut of the students resulting in a massive demonstration before the university authorities The leaders of PSO also came to give their 'blessings' to the protest As usual the authorities gave a very bureaucratic reassurance and the students dispersed

That evening, at around 8 30, when Govind was returning from a friend's place on his moped he was stopped by 'motorbike people', in a lonely corner of the city, slapped and threatened with guns The next day Govind and his comrades went to the party office for some sort of backup support But senior members told them to build their own organisational setup After all the PSO had to contest the coming student elections, how could they afford to annoy the university students, so what if some of them were virulently casteist

Govind was a little shocked, but was able to collect his wits soon, and took it to be command from the 'democratically centralised' organisation Although it isolated him a little from the rest of us

But the incident was gradually forgotten and Govind, along with us, participated in various activities like political meetings and study circles, organised by the party The study fora discussed a lot of things — from Marx's Economic and Political Manuscripts to the US invasion of Iraq and Panama Street plays were also regularly staged by the members of the organisation and the party

In the summer of 1990 All India Students Association (AISA) was founded in Allahabad and Govind was part of it, interacting actively with leaders and activists from other parts of the country

But the real problem was yet to show its face The then Prime Minister, V P Singh, made moves to implement the Mandal Commission report and the caste polarisation became very sharp The CPI(ML) took a very ambiguous position by saying that they were neither for nor against reservation, rather, they advocated the elimination of unemployment and inflation But such rhetoric could not and did not work on the campuses of Bihar and Uttar Pradesh, which were mired in identities of caste and clan

He [Govind] had once told me, 'You know the problem perhaps lies in our romantic inclination towards this stream of politics. We perceived Naxalism as a world of dreams and myths. It isn't so. It's a grey world of real human beings, not a black-and-white kingdom of messiahs and demi-gods'

Invectives and filthy abuses were regularly heaped upon Govind and his comrades wherever they went to campaign for the party's and the oragnisation's cause All of a sudden they found themselves swimming against the current with one-time loyalists deserting them to join the anti-Mandal movement Such was the hold of caste

And to compound his frustrations Govind woke up one morning to find his name in the daily papers, declaring that he had been suspended on charges of eveteasing and molestation

We instantly knew that the casteist and criminal student-teacher nexus of the faculty was at work But what could we do, except boycott classes and protest before the authorities? An inquiry was conducted and as expected no evidence was found to prove Govind guilty The suspension was revoked However, the damage had already been inflicted by publishing the order in the dailies

We gradually saw that the party and the organisation was becoming increasingly reluctant to provide a backup to Govind's activities The reason simply was that he had defied the party whip a couple of times and had done what he and his fellow-students thought best

Then during the general elections to the Lok Sabha, the Indian People's Front (IPF), a frontal organisation of the CPI(ML), contested polls from some places in Bihar, Uttar Pradesh, West Bengal and Assam They even sent Rameshwar Prasad from the Arrah constituency to the Parliament Kumudini Pati, a senior leader, contested from Pratapgarh in UP and Govind was one among the active campaigners

On one ocassion I remember Govind tearing up a Lenin portrait which hung in his room, in anger and frustration as the organisation had not come to his help after he was beaten up and thrown into a chemistry research laboratory in a semi-conscious state

He had once told me, "You know the problem perhaps lies in our romantic inclination towards this stream of politics We perceived Naxalism as a world of dreams and myths It isn't so

"It's a grey world of real human beings, not a black-and-white kingdom of messiahs and demi-gods "

After the massacre of pro-democracy activists in Tiananmen Square, China, the party for once was very honest and condemned the Chinese Communist Party But then there was that gloomy other side, too When Govind wrote an article condemning the coup against Gorbachev by Gennady Yanayev and criticised Stalinism he drew flak from his senior comrades

He was very dejected on his return from JNU, where the organisation is very active According to him perversions and upper middle class distortions had found a basis in the revolutionary tenets

His ultimate disillusionment came when he visited villages on the Uttar Pradesh-Madhya Pradesh border once and realised that his "involvement in the movement was nothing more than philanthropy, because after everything I at least have a comfortable house and books to return to" "It is the war of the oppressed sections and they will have to fight it their way " ■

INNER EYE ❑ Bejan Daruwalla

Aries

March 21—April 20

More space and comfort on the homefront is assured New partnerships, plenty of entertainment, amusement and a round of hard work are foretold for you this week Guard against ill health You will be going places, both metaphorically and literally

Taurus

April 21 —May 20

This will be the right time to make changes you want and do the things you aspire to High-flying success and the heights of power can be yours, thanks to the positive effect of the planets Journeys, publicity, ceremonies, progress and contracts are likely

Gemini

May 21—June 20

It is necessary for you to be discreet should you want your work to be effective You must also not complain over minor matters Contacts and communication will be unusually important Expect news from far and wide Though expenses will mount, work will be done

Cancer

June 21 —July 20

You will break free from the shackles of hardwork and that should help you to relax and socialise You will now feel free to do your own things This will enable you to make plans that will have great rewards in future Creative pursuits and hobbies will take up a large part of your time

Leo

July 21—August 21

You will have the confidence to surge ahead, so get started on fulfilling your plans Loans, funds, investments, taxes, legacies and research will take up a large chunk of your time The week is altogether quite eventful in its way Trips and ties are on the cards

Virgo

August 22—September 22

The planets in your sun sign make for added activity in all that you do, be it negotiation, romance or business You will not go wrong in whatever you take up Your charming ways will make others respond to you in a way you never quite thought possible Health safeguards are essential

Libra

September 23—October 22

This is the phase when you will pull yourself together and the results of that will be deeply satisfying Romance seems possible or an official engagement or public gathering which will see you in the thick of events This will be the right week to stand up to your claims

Scorpio

October 23—November 22

You will be a lot less irritable though there are chances that you will be provoked Expect rewards, progress and gains to come your way, specially in the area of work This is the time to start a new venture or collaboration, for your efficiency is guaranteed

Sagittarius

November 23—December 20

Contacts, communication, alliances, romance and money-making ventures are all definitely on the cards for you this week, making it a busy and hectic one Go all out to get what you want Both the office and the homefront are highlighted for you Travel is likely

Capricorn

December 21—January 19

This is not the right time to be reticent and shy, for there are excellent job prospects in store for you You are likely to achieve a new high in your career Happy times are ahead of you and you should be ready for them Expenses will be high, so learn to curb your expenditures

Aquarius

January 20—February 18

Journeys and ties will be important for you Transactions, buying and selling will figure prominently this week and the next You will entertain in style and probably witness a pleasing event Friends will reach out to you and be of immense help News from a distant place is also a distinct possibility

Pisces

February 19—March 20

The superb line-up of the planets will help you in personnal and professional life Yet you will have to be careful while communicating with others to get the most out of this week Do not be too proud to accept help from others for it will enable you to realise future plans

B I R T H D A Y S

May 14: The planets in fine placing mean sales, riches, expenses, travel and comforts. You will be witnessing happier days ahead.

May 15: You will be getting new opportunities to forge ahead. Loved ones will take up a lot of your attention. Expenses will be heavy.

May 16: Luck is certainly on your side, which means money, wealth and a touch of romance. A new high in your profession is foretold.

May 17: You will go through good and bad times in equal measure However, you will achieve fame and recognition and will be in a mood to take chances

May 18: Success will be yours after tremendous struggle. You will be able to communicate effectively with people Time to travel and go places in yor job.

May 19: An extra effort is required if you want to achieve your heart's desire. Learn to accept certain situations if they cannot be changed.

May 20: There are dramatic changes foretold. The focus will be on relationships, business collaborations and travel You will communicate effectively

TIME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[illegible]
IC 741	0620	1 3 4 6	IC 742	0850	1 3
			IC 742	1050	4 6
IC-743	0920	daily	IC-744	1150	daily
PF-701	1130	1, 3 5 7	PF-702	1610	1 3 5 7
[illegible]
PF-705	0730	2, 4 6, 7	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
[illegible]
PF-735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1
PF-737	0730	3, 5	PF 738	1740	3 5
IC-721	1010	1 3 6 7	IC 722	1250	1 3 6 7
[illegible]
IC-771	0600	daily	IC 772	1140	daily
[illegible]
IC-544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC 769	1615	2 4 6	IC 770	2120	2 4 6
[illegible]
IC-676	0730	daily	IC-675	0820	daily
D2-102	0905	daily	D2 101	0835	daily
IC-273	1945	daily	AI-306	1840	5
9W-212	1945	daily	9W 211	1910	daily
D2-104	2005	daily	D2 103	1935	daily
AI-309	2035	6	IC-274	1830	daily
AI-681	2350	1
[illegible]
IC-263	0700	daily	S2-025	0810	1 2 3 4 5 6
S2-026	0845	1 2 3 4 5 6	M9-303	0825	daily
M9-304	0905	daily	AI-682	0950	1
IC-812	1700	1 3, 5	S2-015	1015	1 3 5
S2-016	1555	1 3 5	4S-806	1130	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC-402	1715	daily	IC-401	1155	daily
4S-805	1730	1 2 3 4 5 6	S2-005	1855	1 2 3 4, 5 7
			IC 811	2055	1 3 5
S2-006	1930	1, 2 3, 4 5 7	M9-301	1950	daily
M9-302	2030	daily	IC-264	2210	daily
[illegible]
PF-737	0730	3 5	D2 181	1620	1, 5 7
D2-181	1135	1 5, 7	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2-183	1135	2 4, 6	IC 702	1630	1 4 6 7
4S-816	1205	2, 4 6	4S 815	1635	1 3 5
IC-701	1240	1 4 6, 7	PF 738	1740	3 5
[illegible]
IC-257	1230	2, 4	IC-257	1605	2 4
[illegible]
PF 735	0730	1
PF-737	0730	3, 5	IC-704	0920	1 3 4 5 7
PF-705	0730	2, 4 6 7
IC 703	0610	1 3 4, 5 7	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
			D2-181	1620	1, 5 7
			D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2 181	1135	1 5 7	IC-230	1620	daily
D2-183	1135	2 4, 6	4S-811	1635	2 4 6
4S 812	1205	1, 3 5	PF-736	1730	1
[illegible]
IC 229	1310	daily	PF 738	1740	3 5
HYDERABAD
S2 023	1045	1, 3 5	S2 024	1525	1 3 5
IC 777	1615	3 5 7	IC 778	2115	3 5, 7
IC 769	1615	2 4 6	IC 770	2120	2 4 6
IMPHAL
IC 255	0800	3 5 7	IC 256	1250	3 5 7
IC 257	1230	2 4	IC 257	1605	2 4
JORHAT
IC 213	0910	4 7	IC 213	1315	4 7
LILABARI
PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1
LUCKNOW
IC 812	1700	1 3 5	IC-811	2005	1 3 5
MADRAS
IC 542	1115	1 3, 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2 7
IC 765	1720	daily	D2 171	1045	daily
D2-172	1740	daily	IC 766	2220	daily
NAGPUR
IC 769	1615	2 4 6	IC 770	2120	2, 4 6
PATNA
IC 249	1430	2 4 7	S2 015	1015	1 3 5
S2 016	1555	1 3 5	IC 249	1805	2 4 7
IC 812	1700	1 3 5	IC 811	2055	1 3 5
PORT BLAIR
IC 285	0640	3 5 7	IC 286	1100	2 4 6
RANCHI
IC 249	1430	2 4 7	IC 249	1805	2 4 7
SHILLONG
PF-705	0730	2, 4 6 7	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
SILCHAR
IC-255	0800	3 5 7	IC-256	1250	3, 5 7
IC 253	0800	1 2 6	IC-254	1040	1
			IC 254	1250	2 6
TEZPUR
IC-213	0910	4 7	IC 213	1315	4, 7
TEZU
PF-737	0730	3 5	PF 738	1740	3, 5
VARANASI
S2 016	1555	1 3, 5	S2 015	1015	1 3 5
VISHAKHAPATNAM
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
ZIRO
PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1

FLIGHTS — INTERNATIONAL

[illegible]
RJ-185	1445	4	RJ 184	0705	4
[illegible]
KL 876	0420	7	KL 875	0235	7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No.	Time	Days
[redacted]
IC-731	0855	2, 4 5, 7	KB-106	1115	3
			KB-108	1215	5
KB-105	1125	2 6	TG-313	1240	1, 3, 6
TG-314	1355	1 3 6	IC 732	1505	2 4, 5, 7
AI-306	1950	5	AI-309	1925	6
[redacted]
RO-076	1950	5, 7	RO-075	1055	5, 7
[redacted]
IC-225	1200	1	IC-226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2, 5	BG-697	1655	2, 5
[redacted]
BG-092	0850	4 5	BG-091	0810	4 5
BG-092	1150	1, 2, 3 6 7	BG-091	1110	1, 2, 3, 6, 7
IC-723	1250	1, 2, 3, 5, 6	IC-724	1520	1 2 3 5, 6
BG-094	1905	1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7	BG-093	1825	1, 2 3, 5, 6, 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1 5	BG-095	2020	1 5

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[redacted]
IC-747	1115	1 3, 5	IC-748	1455	1, 3, 5
RA-214	1815	1, 4	RA-213	1715	4, 4
[redacted]
BA 142	2050	3, 7	BA-143	1525	3 7
[redacted]
SU-538	1855	4	SU-537	1655	4
[redacted]
KB 106	1200	3	KB-105	1040	2, 6
KB-106	1300	5
[redacted]
SQ-415	2345	2 5	SQ 416	2230	2 5
[redacted]
LZ 504	1750	4	LZ 503	1650	4
[redacted]
AI-306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure				Time	Dn
Up	Time	Howrah
2311	19-15	Delhi Kalka Mail		7 20	2312
3005	19 20	Amritsar Mail		7 55	3006
3003	20-35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad		13 00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat		16 15	2382
2303	9-15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun		16 15	2304
2301	16 30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun		10 45	2302
2305	13 45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat		12 50	2306
3073	23 00	Himgiri (Jammu-Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat Arr Tues Wed & Sat		11 35	3074
5047	13 00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon Wed & Fri		4 30	5048
3009	20 30	Doon Express via Grand Chord		7 00	3010
3007	9 45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line		18 15	3008
3049	13 20	Amritsar Express		15 30	3050
3039	21 00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line		5 20	3040
3019	16 05	Kathgodam Express		11 55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express		5 00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express		6 30	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express		21 25	3318
3029	17 11	Coalfield Express		10 30	3030
3035	18 20	Asansol Express		8 45	3036
3031	21 05	Danapur Express		5 50	3032
3025	23 00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday Arr Friday		11 35	3026
3071	22 30	Jamalpur Express		5 10	3072
3015	9 55	Santiniketan Express		15 40	3016
1159	15 25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tues & Wed		6 50	1160
1171	15 25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed Arr Fri Sat & Sun		6 50	1172
3327	14 30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express		4 50	3328
1181	15-25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only		6 50	1182
		Sealdah
3141	13 40	Teesta Torsa Express Dep Mon Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed Thurs Fri Sat & Sun		6 35	3142
3143	19 15	Darjeeling Mail		8 45	3144
3111	20-15	Jaipur Express via Main Line		7 15	3112
5657	6-25	Kanchanjunga Express		20 35	5658
3153	22-00	Gaur Express		5 15	3154
5663	20 00	Katihar Express		4 15	5664
3151	11 45	Jammu Tawi Express		15 50	3152
3133	20 55	Mughal Sarai Express via SBG Loop		12 55	3134
3103	18 20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express		10 25	3104
5185	12 40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues Thus & Sat		4 25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6 50	6004
8002	19-20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12 00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	1940	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13 45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express	22 05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5 00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5 30	8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8-25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00	8046
8017	16 45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2421	16 40	Bhubaneswar New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10	-
	11 05	New Delhi Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15
	14 05	Trivandrum Central Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 45	6321
	14 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13 45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13 45	6315
6520	22 35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15
	14-05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains, please dial 2203545 54 for in coming trains 2203535 44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains dial 2203400 3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition, dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running) 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535-37

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

TITS AND THE TAP-WATER POOL

In spite of several written requests to the municipality, no one came to repair the leaking water pipe Gradually, the water began seeping through the hillside, collecting in a rocky basin below the cottage At first I was perturbed, then when I found the birds coming to the pool to bathe and drink, I stopped sending reminders to the municipality

Before the leak, bird-watching usually meant a long trudge to the stream at the bottom of the hill Now that the birds were coming to me, I could simply sit at my first-floor window and look down at them sporting at the tap-water pool

The most frequent visitor was the Himalayan whistling thrush On summer afternoons I awoke from my siesta to hear the splashing of water and flapping of wings and, looking down, was usually in time to watch this splendid blue-black bird at his ablutions

Returning to the trees to dry himself, he would burst into song, a song indescribably sweet and melodic, one of the loveliest sounds in the forest

Later in the afternoon, numbers of small birds visited the tap-water pool Visiting parties of tits — grey tits, red-headed tits and green-backed tits — and a pair of tiny willow warblers their chirping just a fairy tinkle While the tits were bathing, the warblers would wait in the cherry tree, passing the time by attacking the fruit of the sour wild cherry

The various kinds of tits did not fraternise much with each other. Nor did they squabble. While the green-backs took their plunge, the red-heads waited patiently on the moss covered rocks. I thought they showed more discipline than a crowd of people at a city water tap

The various kinds of tits did not fraternise much with each other Nor did they squabble While the green-backs took their plunge, the red-heads waited patiently on the moss covered rocks I thought they showed more discipline than a crowd of people at a city water tap Then the mynas who are the dacoits of the bird-world would turn up and drive the smaller birds away

Since the pre-monsoon showers began, the tap-water pool has attracted other visitors It began with one frog croaking dismally in the darker reaches of the night Next day, his loneliness was alleviated by the arrival of a friend or relative They sang a duet I thought it was Puccini's Your tiny hand is frozen On the following night, there were several singers, both Indian and Western, and some of them seemed to have brought their tablas along too Now, a week later, there is an all-night Pop Festival in progress beneath my window

I could, I suppose, collect the frogs in a bucket and deposit them near the stream, but others would probably take their place I could even start a frog farm and make a fortune exporting frog's legs to France!

But what's a fortune compared to one's peace of mind As much as I like having birds by day, having frogs at night is too heavy a price to pay So once again I sit down to pen a missive to the municipality, urging them to send someone to mend the leaking water pipe Bird-song is wonderful but frog-song is strictly for the birds

(Sanctuary Features)

POETRY

MAY DEY

Our fond tribute to Manna Dey who turned 75 on May 1

Ab kahan jaayen hum...

(Film: Ujala; music: Shankar Jaikishan; lyric: Shailendra)

Where do we go from here, tell us,
O, earth
Here, no one belongs
People fear even their own shadow now,
Now none has faith in anyone else

I go door to door, and show them
this heart,
But the worldy creatures reject me,
All paths have been obliterated, all destinations lost,
Now none has faith in anyone else

There is hatred in the eyes, nay
bestiality,
The wind sprays poison all around,
The colonies of love have crumbled to dust,
Now none has faith in anyone else

Every breath is earned, every life is a pearl,
But in this mart there is none to take count,
Life here no longer has any value,
Now none has faith in anyone else.

Har taraf ab yehi afsane hain

(Film: Hindustan Ki Kasam; music: Madan Mohan; lyric: Kaifi Azmi)

All around, there is this one tale,
All around, there is this one tale,
That I am besotted by thine eyes,
All around, there is this one tale

O, so much truth in thine eyes,
That nothing remains counterfeit anymore,
A loving look somewhere there,
And dry forests become verdant
again,
Gardens spring up where there were droughts,
~~All~~around, there is this one tale,
~~That I~~am besotted by thine eyes

O, so much magic in thine lowered eyes,
In a moment, so many dreams
turn youthful again,
You raise thine eyes, and lower them which Leads us, God knows, God alone knows where,
The paths of love are untracked,
All around, there is this one tale,
That I am besotted by thine eyes

Translated by Anil Grover

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S  COLUMN

AN UPHILL TASK

Although the co-author of a photoguide to Indian birds, it's been ages since I've had a chance to dust off my binoculars and tick off new species in my copy of Salim Ali's Pictorial Guide

I was thrilled, therefore, to join birdman Bikram Grewal, perpetual activist Bittu Seghal and Mark Tully on a trip to the Great Himalayan National Park, 620 sq kms of mountains east of Kulu

Stuffing a bulky sleeping bag into an old suitcase and digging out a pair of boots from the back of a cupboard, I set off on the flight to Bhuntur, only a couple of kilometres from the park headquarters at Shamsi

As the little plane was buffeted by turbulence betweeen the mountains, I imagined the four days ahead A drive to a pleasant forest bungalow, gentle strolls in the forest — a sort of jungli Kasauli

The walk from Kasauli's Lower to the Upper Mall is generally the hardest exercise I take — and that, too, just once a year It didn't occur to me that the reason the GHNP is one of the least visited national parks, and contains some of the least disturbed forests in India is, because, the area is inaccessible

As the plane descended low over the Beas, I hurriedly removed my boots in case we didn't quite make it to the runway The air hostess eyed me doubtfully, but not as doubtfully as the park's director and his deputy when they welcomed us at the airport They had never before seen a trekker with a suitcase instead of a backpack

We chalked out the programme We would walk from Gushaini, where the road ended, up the valley of the Tirthan river, a tributary of the Beas The walk was said to be only 18 kms, through the buffer zone to the park proper and inspection huts at Rola The walk was to be 'gentle' and 'easy' A porter was hired for the suitcase

However, after the first easy climb out of Gushaini, all four visitors had chest pains and feared immediate heart attacks A few minutes of downhill raised spirits, which were soon dampened by the next three hours of continuous uphill

We didn't stop to observe the thousands of wayside violets, or the birds sipping nectar from the red rhododendron blooms, or to stare at the snow peaks before and behind us Even so, by the time we should have reached Rola, it was dark

We sat down by a couple of huts for tea and I suggested we should continue the next morning The accompanying park officials were tactfully quiet until we were refreshed, when they quietly reminded us that there was no bedding or food here and promised that our destination was entirely downhill and only a very short way away

For them, perhaps, it was There was a Chait moon but a few days old above us, offering little light We shared torches and stumbled off into the darkness, sheer drops beneath us

My right boot had rubbed the skin off one ankle Mark was struggling slightly as he had fallen over a cliff in 1971 and smashed both his ankles which have never looked or behaved like ankles ever since Bikram and Bittu were tightlipped

At about 8 15 pm, we turned a corner and saw a light in the valley ahead Our destination It didn't look too far away Dozens of feet below us the clear river crashed through pale boulders

In the moonlight the contrast between the fast-moving white-water, and the still rocks was stunning Fir, alder, horse-chestnut, walnut and spruce trees were outlined against the starry sky above I began to enjoy the scenery as I limped along Then I stopped horrified

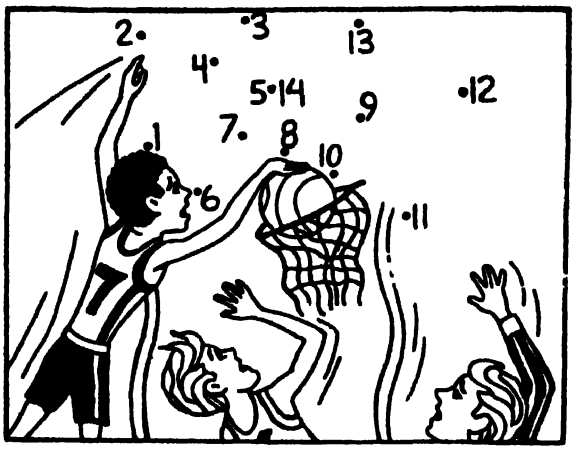
A chasm had opened up where the path had been The slippery mud of the hillside dropped almost vertically to the river below In ordinary circumstances, I would have packed up and gone home, but there was no turning back, and all four visitors put on a brave face

Bittu, a veteran trekker, was the bravest — partly, because he could see his friends were on the verge of mutiny The forest guard with us took pity on me and offered to carry me piggy-back over the chasm — an offer I declined, imagining us both tumbling to our deaths Eventually, a human chain stationed on both sides and just beneath where the path had once been, succeeded in shepherding us across

A final sprint up the hill and there we were at the Rola The light we had seen was the fire where dinner was being cooked Boots were pulled off and a porter massaged tired feet viciously with mustard oil A bottle of amber liquid flavoured with the peat of Ireland was uncorked

Much to the consternation of the park staff, we laughed and congratulated ourselves as if we had succeeded in climbing Mount Everest They began to realise that three of their visitors at least were not going to get beyond base camp level Not for us, then, the land of the musk deer, goral and monal pheasant

Fortified by food, Iodex and Combiflan, we fell asleep on the bare boards of the hut, happy that the next day's journey up the valley to Chalocha was just an 'easy' walk

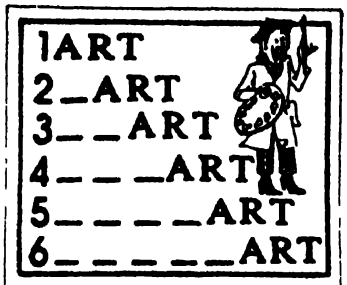


Once bitten, twice shy, they say But not us Still, the second day was not as shattering as the first and by the time it came for us to walk back wefelt completely at ease — providing, of course, that there was no uphill

The last stage, which any self-respecting hill-person would have covered in two and a half hours, we completed in a comfortable six And were there new ticks in my Pictorial Guide? Certainly, but space is limited and here I'll mention just a few — the golden eagle, the little forktail, fire-capped tit and fire-breasted flowerpecker. Long live the GHNP!

(Sanctuary Features)

JUNIOR WHIRL



HAL KAUFMAN

©1995 by King Features Syndicate Inc. 1-15

FAST BREAK! What can you draw to complete the action on the basketball court above? To find out, draw dot to dot.

PICK A CARD! Of what playing cards are these terms a reminder? 1 A hole-in-one 2 A kind of Alaskan crab 3 An ice-skating figure 4 A flat tire? Jack 4 Eight 3 King 2 Ace 1

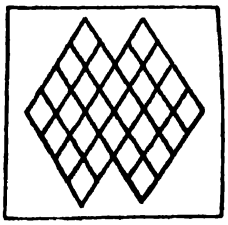
ART OF MATTER WORD TEST

ART, in a sense, lends expression to six words in the diagram above. Each of these words ends in ART and is one letter longer than its predecessor. Definitions in order follow:

1 "— for art's sake"
2 Before-the-horse item
3 Familiar valentine symbol
4 Leave town
5 Johnny-come-lately, of sorts
6 Strong supporter of a party, for instance

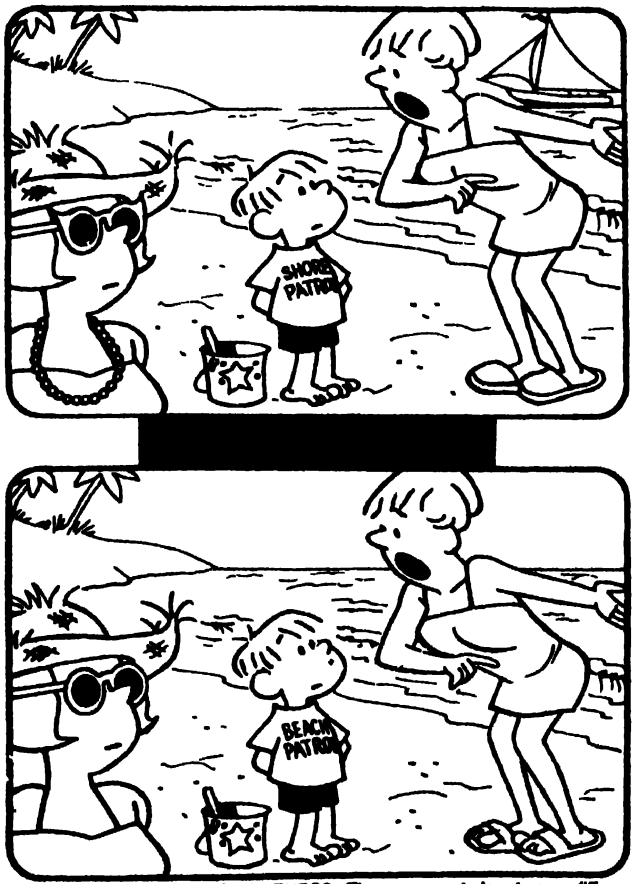
Afterwards, see if you can find another set of words to comply similarly.

Time limit: 2 mins.



1 Art 2 Cart 3 Heart 4 Depart 5 Upstart 6 Stalwart

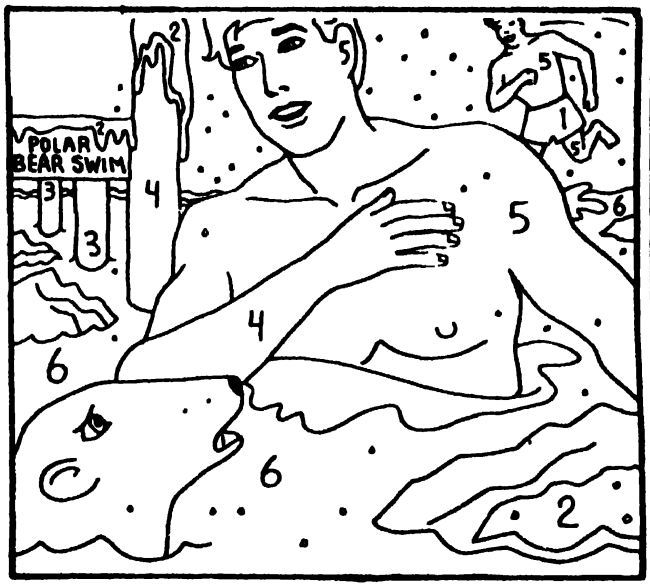
GEM DANDY! Question how many diamond shapes are there in the geometric figure shown at right? Obviously, there are two overlapping large ones, numerous small ones plus, a number of in-between sizes that figure in the overall count.



Indeed, more than 50 diamonds are apparent, if you hunt with care.

When you have completed your own tally, let someone else try. No fair peeking at answer!

There are 55 diamonds in the figure



HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences 1 Glasses are different 2 Beads are missing 3 T shirt is different 4 Arm is moved 5 Boat is missing 6 Sandals are different

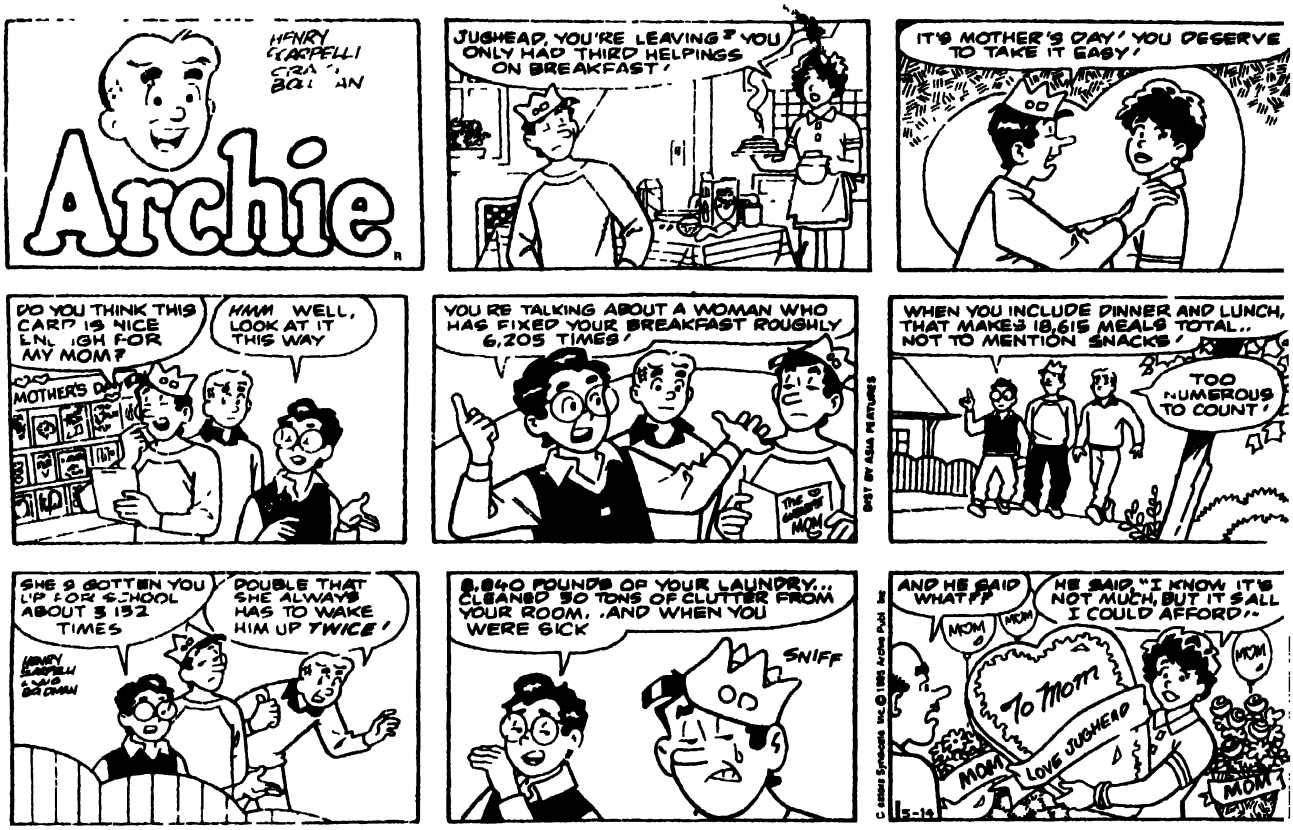
FUNSPOT

HARDY, HA! Well, shiver me timbers, and then some. Apply the following colors neatly by number: 1—Red. 2—Lt. blue. 3—Dk. brown. 4—Lt. brown. 5—Flesh. 6—Dk. blue. 7—Yellow.

SPELLBINDER

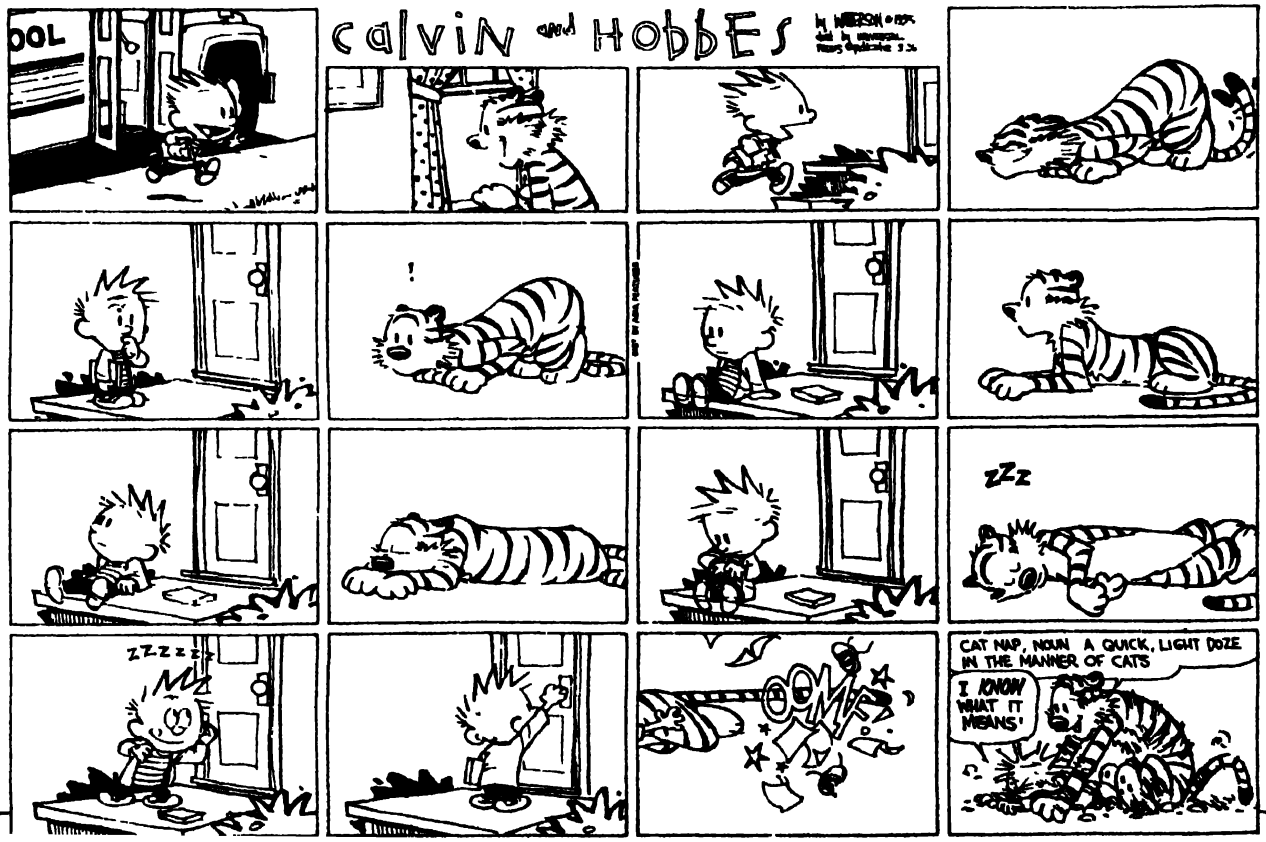
SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

STRADDLE



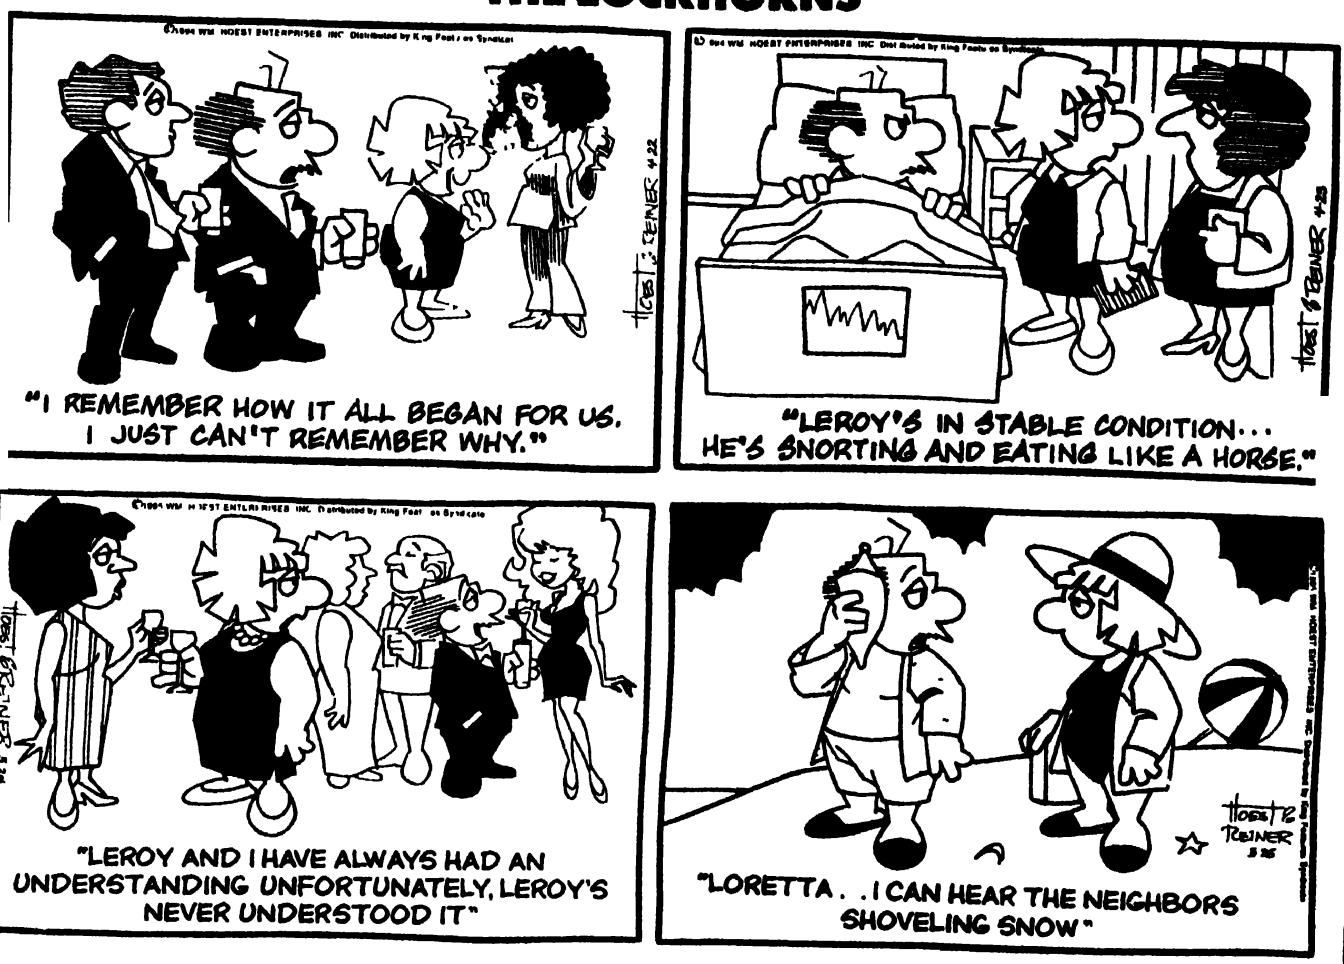
THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

Try to score at least 30 points

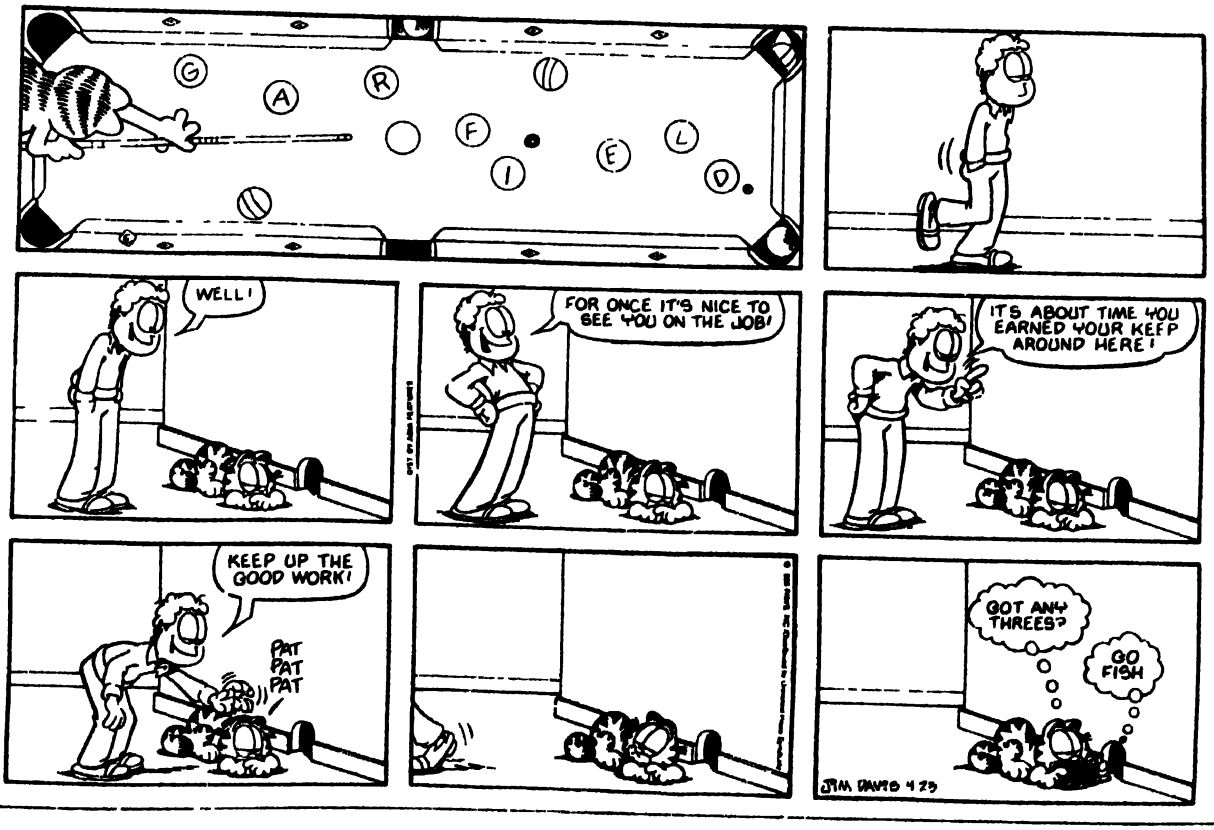


Possible twosome: Dan, Red

COMICS

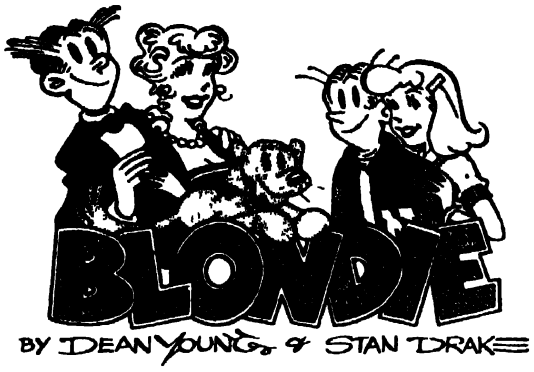


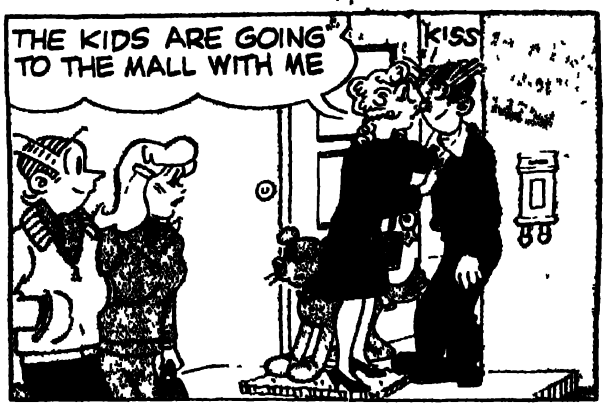
ARCHIE



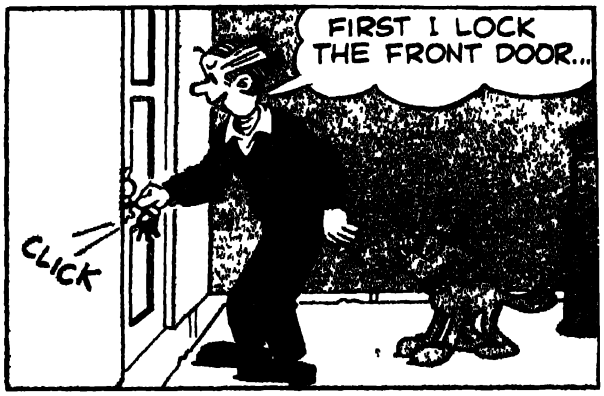
CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON

THE LOCKHORNS

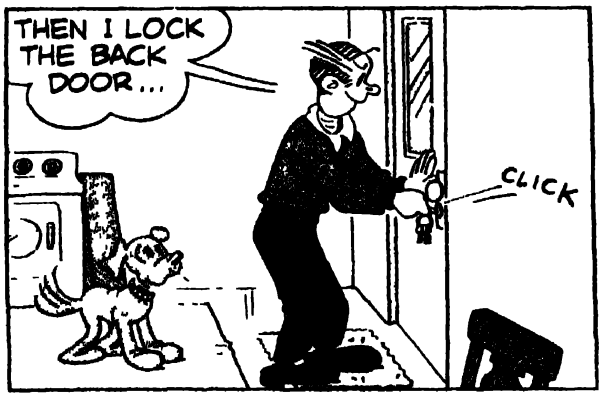




GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS

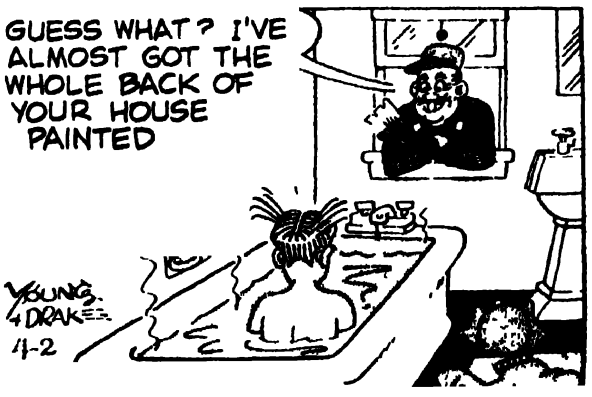


THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP



BLONDIE
BY DEAN YOUNG & STAN DRAKE

THE KIDS ARE GOING TO THE MALL WITH ME
KISS



WE'LL SEE YOU IN A COUPLE OF HOURS, HONEY
BYE, HAVE FUN

FIRST I LOCK THE FRONT DOOR...
CLICK

THEN I LOCK THE BACK DOOR...
CLICK

THEN I TAKE THE PHONE OFF THE HOOK

AND NOW I'M ALL READY FOR A NICE, PEACEFUL, HOT BATH WITHOUT ANY INTERRUPTIONS

GUESS WHAT? I'VE ALMOST GOT THE WHOLE BACK OF YOUR HOUSE PAINTED YOUNG & DRAKE
4-2

FOCUS

SUNBURN

Tara Cynara Newley is the first born of Joan Collins and Tony Newley. Now 31, she feels she chose her famous parents, but not the attendant misfortune

Tara Cynara Newley Voice like Kate Bush

Asia Features

There is a telling moment in Joan Collins' autobiography when she and her second husband, singer-actor Tony Newley, study their combined reflections in a mirror. "If our children have my looks and your brains, there'll be no stopping them. It will be an unbeatable combination!" she tells him.

About a year later, she gave birth to her first child. Tara Cynara Newley.

The omens were good. School reports came home covered in As and Bs, and an early talent for song writing may have owed a little to paternal genes.

From her mother, Tara inherited a perfect mouth, widely-spaced eyes and that distinctive triangular face. Even her voice soon developed the same Minnie-Mouse-goes-to-Roedean diction.

She was, in short, the unbeatable combination made flesh.

There was just one small problem. Tara's nose. It was a perfectly nice nose, strong, short and slightly curved. But her parents decided there was scope for improvement. So when Tara reached her 14th birthday, they offered her a nose job.

Tara Newley is 31 now, but she is still stung by the memory. "It was very upsetting," she says. "And it still hurts."

The nose job was flatly declined. "I do credit myself with a certain amount of sense. I don't like my nose. It's too big and not the nose I would have given myself. But it's my nose, and I knew that if I had it done, I wouldn't recognise myself anymore. Anyway, my nose keeps me humble."

Even with nose proudly intact (and occasionally sporting a nose-ring), Tara looks enough like her mother for complete strangers to stop her in the street ('Has anyone ever told you how much you look like...').

She is, however, not at all keen on being known as La Collins, Mark II. The cross she must bear is a face that remains a continuing source of betrayal and dismay.

As a child, she would hide behind her mother or deliberately assume a surly expression when photographers pounced at airports. "Oh God, I hated them," she says with feeling. By her teens, she was a fullfledged punk, alternately dying her hair black, blonde and pink. By her twenties, she was doing drugs. "I've tried pretty much everything except heroin," she states half-defiantly.

One can only flinch in anticipation of her mother's likely reaction It was Joan, after all, who once wrote that she had "instilled in my children from an early age the horror that drugs can bring to people's lives"

But Tara says her parents already know about her "social dabbling in drugs", as she puts it "What parent wants you to take drugs? They would all like to think we never make love or try drugs The reality of the situation is that you're young and you're curious But my parents have always been okay about it, so long as I'm not a junkie sitting on some street corner"

At an age when most trendies are toning down their lifestyles, Tara revels in street language and youthful rebellion It's not hard to understand why "What makes me angry is that where I come from is still held against me I'm a hypocrite if I go on a show and sing a song with dad I'm a hypocrite if I don't

Joan Collins: Mother in absentia

"I can't come from the street, because I'm not from the street and I don't have the street cred people need these days in the business," she says bitterly

Tara's main business is pop music, which she sings in a high, pure voice reminiscent of early Kate Bush She is best known for a trio of singles (one of them made number 30 in the dance charts) and an outre ITV show called Juice, which she co-presented for the past couple of years in Manchester

This is a north-western re-working of Channel 4's The Word, in which Tara has chirpily presented items on dildos, gay clubs and the relative merits of different condoms (Her parents have seen the tapes and liked them, she claims)

It is almost as though she has deliberately set out to travel the furthest distance possible from Dynasty, Beverly Hills and the beauty-and-celebrity industry that will forever be Joan Collins

And this carries through into almost every aspect of Tara's life While her parents can notch up seven divorces between them, Tara remains resolutely single While Joan favours Manolo Blahnik shoes and Valentino evening dresses, her daughter prefers second-hand street market fashions (for our photograph, she wears her own £5 Kensington Market dress and £35 Biba boots from the Portobello Road) While Joan takes pride in her Hollywood sense of interior design,

Tara lives with bare white walls and a good sound system

Each stair leading up to her tiny, one-bedroomed rented London flat sports a pair of down-at-heel shoes The loo flushes only with extreme reluctance and the wine glasses are made of plastic "The weird thing is that people assume you're rich if you come from rich parents," she says "But I need to make my own living, even if I'm not making much of one"

It would be grossly unfair to categorise her as just another poor little rich girl She has spirit, and she is very chary of blaming her parents for any of her problems In adulthood, she has grown close to her mother ("Bless her, we discuss everything and she is always there for me") and she has always adored her father "I love my family," she wails, "but please just let me be me"

Three years ago, she ended a seven-year relationship with a boyfriend, lost a lot of weight and fled to Joan for succour (Joan promptly sent her to a health farm, where she lost even more weight) "I just woke up one morning crying My relationship hadn't worked out and I was beginning to wonder Is it me?

"It was not so much that men treated me badly, if anything I allowed myself to be treated badly I just wasn't getting it together I had reached a point in my life where I needed to stop and look back before I could go forward"

Encouraged by her father Tara settled into Joan's back bedroom and went into psycho-analysis for two years "For the first six months, I wanted to run in the other direction but I wanted to know why my relationships weren't working out and why I was so scared of going into show business And the analysis helped me work out my fears"

She had, she says, found it "so easy to coast through life out of loneliness I would fall in love with the first person who came along, almost to verify that I was all right I had a problem with low self-esteem I was walking out on men before they could walk out on me

"It was repeating the pattern of my childhood Father leaves so (a) I'm not worthy and (b) I'll get out of this before I'm dumped"

A recurring problem with stage fright was, she discovered, linked to childhood fears when watching her father (best known as the musical star of Stop The World—I Want To Get Off) perform on stage himself "I used to get really upset when people weren't clapping, or I'd have sudden fears that someone in the audience was about to shoot him"

Her own attraction to show business, she feels, is inexorably linked with a childhood longing for love and approval The Newleys divorced when Tara was just six-and-a half She remembers her parents sitting her down with her brother Sacha and telling her "We're separating"

"How does a six-year-old child take that? she asks bleakly "You just deal with it as you go along" Within a short time, she 'lost' a father, gained a stepfather (Ron Kass, Joan's third husband) and moved from California to London

"Ron was a lovely, gentle man, but the fact was that Sacha and I weren't his kids We were from another marriage It was difficult because my Dad wasn't there but I don't think the step-parent situation is ever easy I think at first I withdrew, and then when I got older I rebelled"

The birth of Joan's third child, Katy, added to Tara's insecurities "All I remember is I lost my room and my bed to the cat because Mum was worried that it might smother Katy, so that it was a bit of a blow And the room because they'd had another one built and they didn't want to put the baby into a newly-painted room"

By the age of 12, Tara had moved back with her mother to Beverly Hills The culture shock, she says, was extreme "I'd been at an all-girls Catholic school in London and was still at the stage of playing with dolls And I moved straight into a co-ed school which was all drugs, sex and rock 'n' roll

"The girls were already waxing their legs, but what really shocked me was all the necking that went on For the whole of that first year, I used to eat my lunch on my own in the library and hide away I was a stranger in a strange land The American kids would say 'Say something — your accent's so cute' and I'd say 'Get stuffed' I was picked on for being English and the boys used to push me into the bushes"

Through much of her childhood, she was left with nannies while Joan was away filming One nanny in particular, says Tara, was wonderful "She managed to instil much-needed discipline in us She turned us from spoilt little brats into quite efficient little monsters"

But nannies were no replacement for Mum "I missed her," she says "At the time what I wanted was my Mum to be at home But that's not my mother She was there for me when I was younger, but after two husbands and three children, she wanted to get back to her profession I resented that"

Her resentment came to a head when she was 14 and her mother came to England to make The Stud (It's disconcerting to see your mother naked, a bit like trying to imagine your parents bonking," says Tara) On her return from California some months later, Joan was devastated to be informed by her two children that they no longer wished to live with her They would make their home with Dad instead

"I know my mother was hurt," says Tara, who was already beginning her

Tara: Like mother; but not quite

'punk' rebellion "We fell out, and it was a kind of testing ground for all of us I think there was an element of revenge on my part really I was saying 'I'm trying to give myself a home here' I just saw all these other kids with normal family lives and I thought that was what I should have as well"

"My Dad has remarried and looked quite settled, so I thought I want that, too And indeed, it was good for a while But then there was step-parent problem again By then I was 17, and I came back to London to live with Mum"

Not long afterwards, her sister Katy was badly injured in a car accident Tara comforted her hysterical mother when she heard the news, and was quite supportive as Joan visited her unconscious daughter in hospital every day "I'm still convinced my mother brought my sister back through positive thinking," says Tara "When Katy came home after six weeks, she couldn't remember anything I taught her the alphabet again and got her to say the first word"

Katy is now fully recovered and launching a career as a clothes designer, while Sacha is a talented painter All the family stay in constant touch and enjoy gatherings of the Collins/Newley clan But Joan has made it painfully clear in the past that Katy ("being a Gemini too") is the person who understands her "better than anyone in the world"

Tara knows this, and it is clear that Joan's favouritism has caused pain "I think there's favourite with parents, and I understand that Katy reminds my Mom of her own mother, whom she still misses And Katy's the youngest and we really lost her

"But going into analysis has made me come to terms with these things I feel very level-headed about it all now There were things in my life when I was bitter and angry I'd like to think I've grown up a bit now and put that behind me"

Her adult life began at 17 when she moved to Paris to study for an arts degree (occasionally basking in the Metro when the cheques from Joan arrived late) "Paris was my adventure, it was freeing If you don't have that stability you need to get on as a child, you just want to get on with your life"

Many jobs followed serving in a boutique, making tea at a pop video company, manning a till at Tower Records, working as a tape operator in recording studios, packaging mini programmes for radio, gigging with bands "I learned the ropes basically, and it was a great security to be doing things like making tea, you were everybody's friend and you weren't under any pressure"

For now, she is working on a TV sitcom, continuing to write songs and painting vast oils with mythological themes (Madonna with Spaceships is a typical example) Her latest relationship, with the photographer Joshua Millais, is only two months old, but she is optimistic about their future

"Obviously, coming from divorced parents, I will be careful about whom I marry That's why it's taken this long But I think in life you have to remain like an open wound If you let yourself scar over, you just become bitter and twisted What you have to do is take responsibility for yourself, and that's when your life starts changing

"I believe in reincarnation, and I believe I chose my parents for a reason But I'm still trying to find out why What lesson am I supposed to learn from all this? I just hope I don't die before I figure it out"
(Asia Features)

In

THE PICK OF THE WEEK

VIDEOS

Farinelli: He is the star of the 18th century opera stage, coming down from the heavens above in a floating cloud with feathers sticking out straight from his helmet.

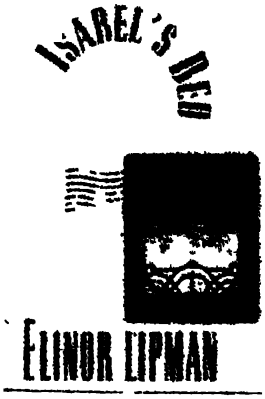
As a castrato and a virtuoso performer, Farinelli has the lung power of a man and the vocal range of a woman. The sound of his voice is so heartrending, it causes people of both sexes to tremble and swoon.

The movie, which Corbiau co-wrote with his wife, Andre, is mostly devoted to Farinelli's tormented relationship with his older brother, Ricardo Broschi (Enrico Lo Versa), a minor composer who latches on to his genius for sustenance.

The brothers have a silent understanding going: Carlo gets the women, and Ricardo gets the jouissance.

Farinelli's irony is that he is the prince of art who arouses others to peaks of ecstasy, but can never find satisfaction himself.

Though the film transports one to a world of complex pleasures, it turns out to be a little more than just a historical curiosity.



BOOKS

Isabel's Bed This is the story of Harriet Mahoney and Isabel Krug Spurned by her 12 years' live-in boyfriend, Harriet turns to the personal columns of the New York Review of Books and finds an ad offering room and board on Cape Cod in exchange for 'services'

The ad has been placed by Isabel, a blonde woman of dangerous reputation She is the former girlfriend of a rich and influential married man killed two years back by his wife when she discovered he had been unfaithful to her

Isabel now wants to churn out a bestseller on this sex scandal She hires Harriet for the job

Does the collaboration between the two work out? Does Harriet find her love? And whatever happens to the bestseller? You can't wait to know? So, grab a copy (Pocket Books, $26)

FASHION

Bride in flaming gold: The romance of the bridal gown in all its flaming splendour hit an all-time high when Zandra Rhodes, known for her work-of-art fashions, conjured up a dream creation in London last

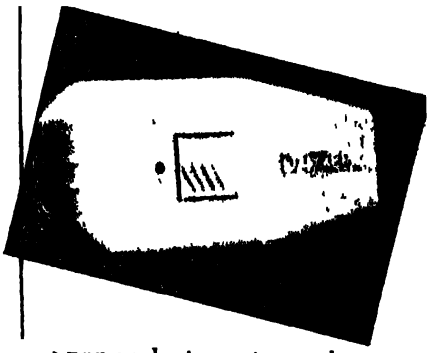
The sequinned wedding dress has all the chintz, shimmer and sparkle to set hearts on fire. Its broadly pleated skirt accentuates the intricately embroidered threadwork in gold, quite akin to some of our own zarikwork.

All accessories are clearly fenced out with just a pair of delicate earrings peeping from behind the bride's veil, quite surprisingly, offering a brilliant contrast in chrome as against the sombre hue of the well-cut gown.

The effect with thos[illegible]g-stemmed woodr[illegible]-like flowers is angelic, and lives up to Zandra's desire of creating "dresses that are classics, like a Fortuny or Chanel suit".



LIFESTYLE

Not just nuts There are six ways of going nuts, according to Godrej If you have a thing for almonds, you can have them to suit various tastes and moods

Chilli with lemon for you and your spouse, Onion Garlic for your boss, Barbecue to impress your friends, Roasted Salted when you're alone and Smokehouse or Honey Roasted for your sweetheart, of course!

Godrej has introduced Blue Diamond flavoured almonds which come all the way from California to please your palate So don't worry, be happy and just go nuts!

The Dazer Even the greatest dog lover can sometime come across an unfriendly type of the canine family Dazer provides a non-violent way to repel their advances

It emits ultrasonic sound waves inaudible to humans and is also totally harmless to dogs

In pocket size (4 3/4"), plastic case clips on belt, it includes one-9 volt battery

Ideal for early morning joggers, children, cyclists and the unwanted postman Priced at $29 98, you might come across this very handy gadget at one of the markets stocking 'phoren' stuff

At these prices it's a wonder if you'll have any money left over for the flowers.

Baccarat

The finest crystal in the world

For information only

PARIS Boutique Baccarat 1, Place de la Madeleine 75008 Paris Tel (33 1) 42653626 DUBAI Chalhoub Inc P O Box 16946 Dubai UAE Tel (971 4) 625252
HONG KONG Shiatos Ltd Room 404 Hong Kong Diamond Exchange Bldg 8 10 Duddell Central Hong Kong Tel (852) 25212383

Ambience/BC72

The Telegraph

21 MAY 1995

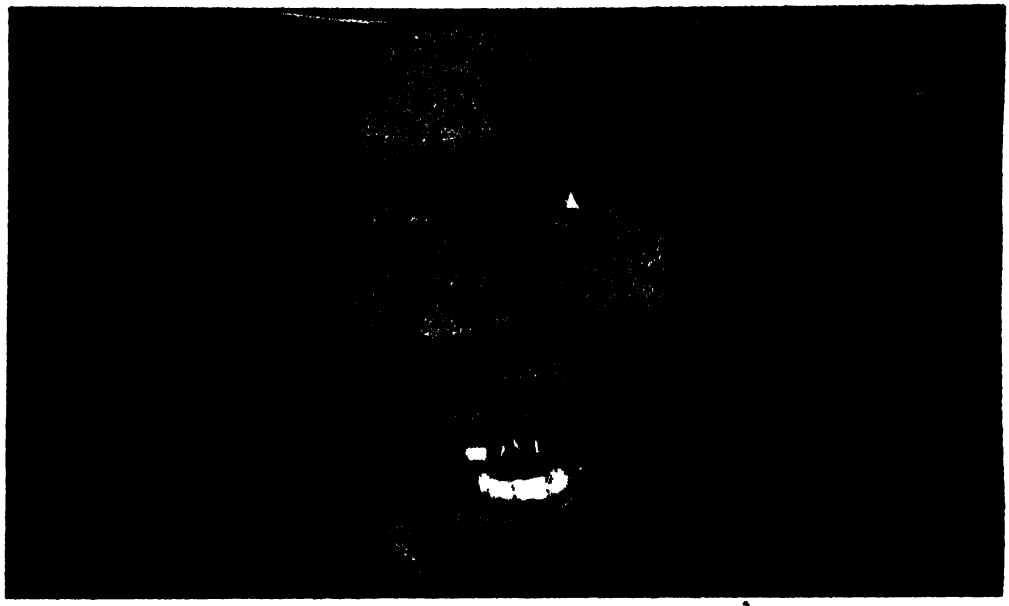
POST MORTEM

Tragic Heroes

■ To give the devil his due, it is unlikely that Mike Tyson was actually guilty ('What the Jail can do to a Man', April 23) It could be part of a larger conspiracy to ruin him

The new Tyson is not the obnoxious character he used to be He is a much chastened, humbled and mellowed man who might some day make a grand comeback

Filmstar Sunjay Dutt's case is most unfortunate It is difficult to believe he was involved in the Bombay blasts He is being made a scapegoat by some people nursing a vicious hatred against him and his family



Dawood Ibrahim and Tiger Memon are still at large, even after two years of the blasts Why are they not being tried?

Denaz Roy
Calcutta

■ Tyson will never again win back the people's confidence for the episode with Desiree Washington has ruined his name forever

Bollywood's talented macho actor Sunjay Dutt has been languishing in jail for quite some time His case proves that having celebrity parents is no guarantee for social security

Manoranjan Das,
Jamshedpur

Mike Tyson: Crime and punishment

■ Tyson and Sunjay come from opposite strata of society One from the ghettos, the other from the glittering world of glamour and riches Both ended up in jail for their misdeeds

Tyson was not short of dates Yet he chose to dishonour Desiree Washington And Sunjay should have known the perils of possessing an AK-56

Putul and Paresh Das,
Jamshedpur

Man Among Us

■ The cover story on poet-lyricist Sahir Ludhianvi ('Timeless', March 12) was superb Richly endowed with creative powers Sahir penned some of the most poignant lines on human sentiments, love, dejection and hope His lyrics are very popular with the Hindi film-going masses even now

But he is a vastly misunderstood man Many have felt his lyrics were being overrated But Sahir was one lyricist who could carry an entire film (like Pyaasa) on his shoulders because of his soul-stirring lyrics

Debabrata Mohanty,
Balasore (Orissa)

■ Remembering Sahir is remembering a grand era in Hindi films He was one of the greatest humanist poets of this century

It is unfortunate he did not live long. If we were present at his bedside at the time of his death we would have most probably said (quoting Sahir, of course), "Abhi na jao chhod kar, ke dil abhi bhara nahin "

Syed Shoib Moin,
Calcutta

INSIDE

Jagdish Yadav

PAGE 4

VIKRAM CHANDRA and Mukul Kesavan have stormed the literary world with their first novels What they are all about

PAGE 26

A SINGLE night in New York city can record as many as 20 muggings, 100 robberies, two rapes and three murders But are only Blacks to blame?

Vikram Chandra and Mukul Kesavan

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
14 GILLIAN WRIGHT
18 RUSKIN BOND
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
26 FOCUS
29 POETRY
30 FIRST PERSON

Cover Jagdish Yadav

COVER STORY

NOVEL TWINS

Mukul Kesavan and Vikram Chandra are the two new authors who have what it takes Bhavdeep Kang met them to give their respective muse the once-over together

Photographs by Jagdish Yadav

PIPING HOT PROPERTIES, EACH WITH A MAJOR FIRST NOVEL SETTING THE CRITICS A SIZZLE, Mukul Kesavan and Vikram Chandra are the new wunderkind.

Chandra's Red Earth and Pouring Rain and Kesavan's Looking Through Glass are "moving well", say the bookstores Hot off the press and swoosh! Sold off the shelves, lickety split. Tadatadi.

Kesavan's book is a forceful, allegorical narrative set in the Forties' India, with a secular undercurrent that gives it contemporary relevance Chandra's is a dazzling, rich epic set in 19thcentury India and Nineties' America, overflowing with a superabundance of tales.

The two met for the first time [for The Telegraph Magazine photo-session] in the narrow frontage of Mukul's wife's South Delhi home, Kesavan, 38, coming across as an egghead in the best Stephanian tradition And Chandra, 34, wafting the faintest unpretentious hint of Yankee Doodle. No sparks, no sizing up, each knew where the other came from

Born in upper-upper middle-class families, they were moulded in the best Indian schools and colleges, with finishing touches from Oxford/Cambridge/Ivy League Now they have both arrived (at celebrity junction), having started from approximately the same point. Along the way, in their respective literary journeys, they have been in many different places.

Kesavan did not aim at being a writer, or anything in particular Directionless, like most Seventies' collegiates, he drifted through St Stephen's, free of ideological moorings, causes and commitments Emergency authoritarianism bred rebels within the faculty and student body,

he admired, but chose not to emulate them

He sat for the civil services, as all good Stephanians must, but did not make the IAS "I got something pretty insignificant, like the central secretariat services," he recalls Thus preserved from becoming a "Bonapartist head" in some hapless rural district, he clinched an Inlaks scholarship and went to Cambridge

He cared little for research He had signed up for an undergrad course in English literature, but the load of critical reading put him off and he wound up doing history and research for his thesis on communal politics in northern India at Cambridge

He never got around to publishing it, because he found it 'unoriginal' and thinly researched

At 25, he returned to join the faculty at Jamia Milia Islamia for three years, then taught an undergrad class at his alma mater for a year A three-year fellowship with the Nehru Memorial Centre and he was back in Jamia

Teaching university is more fun than wrestling with fresh-out-of-school skulls "Undergrad colleges are always a bit unreal They are so self-absorbed, take themselves so seriously," says Kesavan

He finds today's kids purposeful and pragmatic to the limit, sometimes disconcertingly so

The impetus to write a book came with Salman Rushdie's Midnight's Children He first heard about it while holidaying with Amitav Ghosh in Egypt, where he had fled to escape the cold, dark, oppressive English winter They had laughed, called it an "abortion" brown man writing in white man's tongue Ironical, because Amitav Ghosh went on to huge critical acclaim with Circle of Reason, long after Rushdie became a literary star

Critics find 'Rushdien' resonances in Kesavan's work And when Kesavan met Rushdie while promoting his book in the UK, the latter said he liked it and had not missed the reference to him on page 248, where Aziz is magically transmuted to Salman on every page of Forster's book

The novel did not come easily He found no great epics dammed within, no spontaneous outpouring of creative expression Some ideas did glimmer There would be a time displacement of sorts There would be a railway station because he liked the ambience of crowded platforms, red-clad coolies, vendors and old steam engines It would be centred around the Partition, because that period in Indian history interested him

After a while, the novel developed a momentum as its own Images formed His uncle's home in Shimla, Holcombe found a place in the book A friend's pre-Mutiny mansion in Lucknow's Lalbagh was modified to provide a home for Ammi and Co His grandmother's home in Old Delhi became Nani's haunt A brief visit to Karnataka as a tourist lingered in memory and Mysore was woven into the story

It took five years just to work out the subject of the novel In the meantime, he got married, had kids He quit typing the book because "I could read it and it was awful" So he filled page after page in an illegible scrawl until he was through, then sat down to revise it

"The first draft was pretty bad," he says But he salvaged a few chapters from the wreckage of self-criticism and re-wrote the book It was an uneconomical way of writing, but he plugged away for a decade Iris Murdoch, he points out wistfully, had every last detail worked out in her mind before she began to write

'The first draft was pretty bad,' says Mukul Kesavan. But he salvaged a few chapters from the wreckage of self-criticism and re-wrote the book. It was an uneconomical way of writing, but he plugged away for a decade. Iris Murdoch, he points out wistfully, had every last detail worked out in her mind before she began to write

Kesavan is not "hugely interested in characterisation, the life of the mind and internal states" Psychological realism may have its place, but he prefers Tolstoy to Dostoevsky any day of the week He admires novelists who write large, eventful narratives, where "what people are is demonstrated by what they do rather than what they think So there is not too much of 'he thought and she thought' in the book," he adds

At the centre of the book is the fact that in Forties, a large section of Muslims were disillusioned with the Congress

Despite the party's secular credentials, they felt marginalised When the Quit India Movement was announced without their consent, they felt ignored, invisible, insubstantial

So Masroor, Yusuf, Rizwan et al vanish in puffs of metaphor "The more committed they were, the less they left behind " When majoritarian parties peddle secular rhetoric, two things can happen, says Kesavan Either they subscribe to it absolutely and so ignore the ground reality, that at some level people do see themselves as Hindu, Muslim or Sikh "This was Nehru's problem," feels the author

Or they use the rhetoric of Indianess to camouflage a sectarian identity P V Narasimha Rao and Bal Thackeray could use the same argument in favour of a Uniform Civil Code, the one to integrate, the other to obliterate The prospect of the BJP assuming power at the centre "terrifies" him The vanished Muslims return, when the Quit India gambit fails and the Congress is at the receiving end, "smashed, outlawed and imprisoned "

Perhaps, to dramatise the events of Partition, the long-lost characters find each other at the Red Fort in Hardyesque coincidences The narrator never returns to his own time At the end, he is still a "turning blur", trying to find his place in the scene

Vikram Chandra knew he had to be a writer because he could not not be one If he does not write, he gets cranky, feels driven "I have a vampire on my shoulder If I'm good, it tells me stories "

At Mayo College, he would tell stories to the other guys after lights-out It gave him an identity in a school where the jocks had glamour Like the US-returned cocaine-snorting Abhay, he was a "super arto nerd"

Mayo provided a solid education, but by the 10th standard, he was feeling trapped and getting into all kinds of trouble As editor of the college rag, Mayur, he wrote provocative anti-establishment editorials

Then, he was caught sneaking out to see a Manmohan Desai blockbuster and was expelled The incident figures in Red Earth , Abhay gets caught, but is let off with a whack on the rear from a senior

He enrolled at St Xavier's College in Bombay and hung out a lot at the USIS, mainly because it was air-conditioned The Kenyan Review convinced Chandra that Gambia, Ohio was where he wanted to be A little old town that was 90 per cent college and 10 per cent town Soon, craving urban stimuli, he wound up in Pomona, "a pretty town when not covered in smog", where he did an 'AB' in English with creative writing

It was not a time when you could tell people baldly, "I am going to be a writer " He was whip-smart and had always scored well in science and maths, so the family assumed he would study medicine

Braving universal battlement, he had chosen the arts and his parents had forked out funds enough to support him for a year But what next?

For a year, he took a series of odd jobs He painted fences, moved furniture and baked croissants He worked as a security guard and for a while, as a waiter he made a terrible waiter, always mixing up or forgetting orders

At the end of the year he decided to make a career in films Young Chandra is a film buff, like Abhay, he loves "trash" Commercial hits, Super hit Muqabla, Amitabh Bachchan strutting his stuff

He went to film school in Columbia and liked it, specially the library, which had a non-fiction Indian section That is where Red Earth began to take shape, in a corner of the top floor of the vast library building He came across the two-volume autobiography of Col James Skinner, set in the mid-19th century It was yellowed, papad-brittle, crumbling in his hands as he r d

C ira was fascinated with Skinner e man caught between two cult , struggling to justify the ideolo- of colonialism Skinner would not o away and somehow, became ntangled withC handra's typing monkey "I get these images in my head I don't know what they are doing there They start to solidify and accumulate other images," explains Chandra

Abuzz with accreting images, he took a year off from Columbia and went to Johns Hopkins for a 'writing programme' A uniquely American creation, the institutional structure of the programme provided godsend infrastructure, a stipend, access to a library and cheap medical insurance

He also met John Barth, head of the creative writing programme, whom he describes as "an encyclopaedic intelligence, expansive, overflowing with knowledge of the world" The story took shape quickly It had a beginning and an end, only the middle was fuzzy

Chandra is not a disciplined writer; no bounding out of bed at 6 am and flogging the muse for a measured number of hours. He quit reading How to write books because they said he was doing everything wrong.... 'I think you have to read if you want to be a writer; it's all feeding the mill,' says Chandra

For Chandra, the process of writing is filling in the missing spaces At the end of the year, he still had not purged himself of images, so he went to Houston He lived and worked there for five years, Sikander and Sanjay were born, tales within tales were spun, the novel began to vibrate with many voices

Superagents Janklow and Neskit agreed to represent him and all at once, he was a bona fide writer "It suddenly seemed real " Then, an article by Chandra appeared in Span He had mentioned he was working on a book Penguin India's David Davidar read the piece and expressed an interest in the book Chandra was in business

Red Earth is almost botanically lush, each character clamouring to add his or her bit of colour to the canvas "I was willing to let the characters do the talking and tell their stories," says Chandra Bred on the epics and popular cinema, he enjoys their burgeoning richness and complexity, the fecundity of stories and characters

"Ideas are not linear objects that need chopping down and paring away," he says He's matter of fact about things Indian, dealing with elephants and fakirs as casually as Kesavan deals with ordure

Chandra is not a disciplined writer, no bounding out of bed at 6 am and flogging the muse for a measured number of hours He quit reading How to write books because they said he was doing everything wrong He spurned concentration devices, pottered around the house, watched TV and then sat down to write "I think you

TALENT SCOUTING

Rajesh Kumar

Ravi Dayal

David Davidar

Since Salman Rushdie opened the floodgates, Indian fiction in English has burgeoned into a thriving new genre. Despite the small size of the market — it takes just 15,000 buyers to make a paperback bestseller — scores of new writers have emerged.

Amitav Ghosh, Vikram Seth, Upamanyu Chatterjee, Shashi Tharoor, Anita Desai, Rukun Advani, Rohinton Mistry, Farrukh Dhondy and Githa Hariharan are now an integral part of the modern Indian library, not to mention dozens of not-so-well-known authors

The market suddenly had room for more Mulk Raj Anands, Nirad C. Chaudhuris and V.S. Naipauls.

There is a shake-out coming, says Penguin India's David Davidar. As readers become more discriminatory, only truly meritorious books will be be published and the also-rans will drop out of the race.

The 50:50 ratio between fiction and non-fiction has already dropped to 30:70. "There was a time when just about anything got published. We would rather publish less than have second-rate literary efforts which sell a few hundred copies," says Davidar.

Apart from Salman Rushdie and Vikram Seth, few writers in this genre have attained international celebrity status. The rest fall within "a narrowish spectrum", explains Davidar, editor of Penguin India. Vikram Chandra might get up there with Rushdie. After having read the manuscript of Red Earth... he had a feeling that "this guy is going to be major".

Chandra was a lucky find. Talent-hunting has never been easy. To begin with, there are no agents or noteworthy literary magazines in India. Publishers have to rely on word-of-mouth, other writers, and very, very occasionally, an unsolicited manuscript.

Of 30 to 40 submissions, perhaps, one or two get published. With the market becoming more segmented, new areas are opening up. Penguin will soon bring out Do-It-Yourself books aimed at a vast middle-class [illegible] things with their hands". Finally, even those who have succumbed to TV and not developed the reading habit will take to the DIY books.

Publisher Ravi Dayal feels that with India's large intellectual infrastructure, the market can only improve. As more and more people learn English, more new writers and readers will emerge. "It is also connected with economic conditions. As buying capacity increases, more books will be purchased," he says.

While Indian fiction in English naturally has far more acceptability at home, Dayal feels it is of an international standard. For instance, he believes that Mukul Kesavan is "Booker Prize material". So are Amitav Ghosh and a handful of others.

How much larger can the market get? Not more than one lakh copies for a commercial book by the turn of the century, feels Davidar. Today, hardcover which sells 5,000 copies qualifies as a bestseller. "Pathetic, isn't it?" asks Davidar. At 40,000 copies per book, Shobha [illegible] commercial success.

ıave to read ıf you want to be a vriter it's all feeding the mill," says Chandra He enjoys thrillers and insists he has learnt a lot from them

The way he sees it, writing is not all God-given divine fire It involves a lot of labour and practice Sometimes you are in the groove and that is inspiration But mainly, it is perspiration

Chandra unabashedly aims to entertain For him, that is the first purpose of art His audience is his parents and his sisters and friends

Coming up next is a collection of short stories, all of which have something to do with Bombay, a city he loves, is terrified by and enjoys. He thought they were tales of "love and longing" but his editors found them "everything great and monstrous"

He is also working on a serial with Mahesh Bhatt and scripting a couple of feature films (he was a consultant on 1942 A Love Story) His mother is a writer, too She has scripted Chandni and 1942

After a brief stint in Bombay, he embarks on a 10-city tour of the US to promote his book, to be published by Faber The story-telling metaphor in

Some ideas did glimmer. There would be a time displacement of sorts. There would be a railway station because he [Mukul Kesavan] liked the ambience of platforms, red-clad coolies, vendors and old steam engines. It would be centred around the Partition, because that period interested him

'NOT-INDIA'

An extract from Mukul Kesavan's book,
Looking Through Glass

Masroor and I normally made our way to the back of the shop and unpacked our sandwiches in the cool, green glow of the Eden window That's what Cyrus called it Mowbray's was a very deep shop — as long as a tunnel it straddled the Mall ridge its front opened on to the Mall while its rear overlooked the dipping slopes of the foothills that built up to Shimla The scene in the window was always filled with the unploughed green of the hillsides, nobody lived in it and nothing ever happened. For an hour every afternoon, we ate our sandwiches and let our eyes drink Paradise in

Cyrus said that it looked like a postcard view of England Never having been there I couldn't say, but it didn't look like any part of India that I knew I thought of the view from my attic-room window in Banaras, where the only tree in sight grew unasked out of a roof, where in the lane below, the endless stream of living paused, only for the litters of the dead Sitting by the Eden window, it was hard to believe that this scene was made in India

The shop had the same feeling about it A fortnight into the Mowbrays routine, I realised that amongst all the thousands of books in the shop I hadn't come upon a single one published in India or written by an Indian In fact, except for a 47 volume series called Sacred Books of the East there was nothing about India at all unless Thus Spake Zarathustra counted as a book on the Parsees Cyrus, who had noticed the same thing, asked Mr Jacob about it one day, over lunch His host looked a little affronted

Mowbrays is a traditional antiquarian bookshop, Cyrus, he said crisply Exactly like those in Berlin or Vienna or Prague W do not trade in provincial exotica

Shimla being what it was, Mr Jacob's explanation was appropriate, it seemed reasonable to me at the time, and not at all absurd Shimla was an elaborately invented world — not in the sense of being freely imagined like the settings of good novels, but in the mechanical manner of fantasy, where the make-believe world was a simple inversion of everyday life Like all hill stations Shimla had one central function, it existed as not-India The India to which the sahib gave his life in heroic service, was flat, hot, dusty, brown, diseased and overcrowded Shimla was not-this

It was undulating and cool, its landscapes were green and the faces in sight were white, it was India's summer capital because it didn't have India's summer, it was sedate, pretty and English in the basic way of gabled roofs, half-timbered shops, Gothic churches and dateless castle spires — all built at once Time was kept in its proper place, in regimental records

Extracted from Looking Through Glass by Mukul Kesavan; Ravi Dayal; distributed by Orient Longman Ltd; Rs 190

Red Earth... is almost botanically lush, each character clamouring to add his or her bit of colour to the canvas. 'I was willing to let the characters do the talking and tell their stories,' says Vikram Chandra.

Red Earth shows up another side to Chandra He is a computer freak His story-telling monkey speaks directly to each one of dozens, then hundreds, then thousands of people gathered round the Misra household and spilling out of the maidan beyond No matter how far away, each member of the audience hears him clearly

On the Internet, you can speak to a million people and get responses Chandra has put his E-mail address on the book and is waiting to see if some readers get through to him "Internet will short-circuit hierarchies," he believes Theoretically, a hobo can download the Library of Congress (Doonesbury) or reach the White House

He reads a lot of science fiction, particularly cyberpunk, the genre pioneered by William Gibson He picked up the computerbug while, like Mother in Red Earth , working in a medical insurance firm in the US

Kesavan and Chandra do not swap E-mail addresses "I don't have a computer," explains Kesavan Telephone numbers are scribbled, hands shaken and promises to meet exchanged. They are comfortable together, having shared the embarrassment and discomfiture of a photo-session in a smelly corner of the Asiad Village and cracked up together at being turfed out of the Siri Fort auditorium lawns by over-officious securitymen

Kesavan goes home to the strenuous business of caring for the kids while Chandra heads for Jim Corbett Park in search of tigers, camera-bag in hand, vampire on shoulder and honour rolls Newspapers with their changing dates came to Shimla from the plains decorously late, bleached of their vulgar urgency No local newspaper existed to mirror its own existence Nostalgia was the ruling passion, not because anything had changed, but to make sure nothing ever did Things had never been the same in Shimla from the second day of its existence It was the tree-house of a tropical empire which was proceeding directly from adolescence to senility It was lovely

This little white world spent its evenings browsing up and down the shops on the Mall, and Mowbrays was a regular stopping place The regulars headed straight for the cabin where Mr Jacob sat, hair slicked back from a high-domed forehead, jowls so closely shaved that they glistened With grave courtesy he offered them tea or coffee and suggested things that might interest them If it was a book they wanted, he showed them to the relevant shelf or summoned Masroor for a consultation He generally knew what they were on the look-out for Tristram Greyly was mad about heraldry and genealogy and books with titles like Tartans of the Western Highlands, but he rarely bought anything Captain Byatt, on the other hand, had a private income and bought nearly everything Mowbrays stocked on Freemasonry and Satanism The Reverend Carrick, predictably enough, collected Bibles and his colleague on the committee Lady Elinor Armitage, was always on the lookout for cunningly wrought swordsticks which she regularly presented to her husband Even Delia Mulholland was a collector first editions of Somerset Maugham Lust in the tropics was Cyrus' explanation for this curious hobby

The shop swirled with gossip about Carrick's Christmas Lady Armitage explained to Mr Jacob that there would be a costume ball followed by a Nativity tableau Everyone at the ball will have to be dressed out of the Bible, she said, and paused

Mr Jacob waited in his well-bred way

Either Testament of course, she clarified graciously

Mr Jacob raised his eyebrows in profound something or the other — agreement? Admiration? Doubt? — while Masroor helped Gama clear the tea things away

Carrick, who came in afterwards, explained the whole thing all over again to a glazed-looking Mr Jacob, and then, in his ecumenical zeal, invited him to participate in the Nativity tableau as Joseph A shrug of the shoulders, an inaudible murmur, a graceful and meaningless gesture at his receding hairline and Carrick was persuaded to drop the subject

Not everyone wished Carrick's Christmas well One afternoon in November, the day dissolved into an unseasonal thunderstorm and Delia Mulholland rushed in to shelter from the rain Mr Jacob sent her off with Masroor to inspect a slightly damaged first edition of The Painted Veil, Masroor couldn't find it at once, he had been distracted all day because Parwana was due any moment now, he hadn't seen her in the garden for days Besides, Delia made him nervous, she stood too close and breathed too hard

As Delia was making her way back to Mr Jacob's cabin, Elinor Armitage walked in, furling an umbrella

Won't it be amusing, drawled Delia apropos of nothing, addressing herself to Mr Jacob, if that Indian woman whom the Reverend has cast as Mary, should produce a girl?

There was one beat of silence

Most amusing, said Lady Armitage crisply But not likely The Reverend Carrick and I went to Holcombe at noon to congratulate the Judge His ward has had two sons Twins, by Caesarean section

LEARNING AND DESOLATION

An extract from Vikram Chandra's book, Red Earth and Pouring Rain

Hercules strode into the tent, found the chamber where the girls were sleeping next to their mother, kicked aside two maids, lifted the children up by their arms with one hand, and when his wife pulled at the girls he hit her back-handed and knocked her over the bed By the time Sanjay, Ram Mohan, Sikander and Chotta woke up he was already outside, handing the girls to two red-coated English cavalrymen who, escorted by English infantry, made their way to the river and across it. Hercules came back into the tent, brushing past his sons without a glance

"Have I not treated you well?" he said to Sikander's mother in his accented Urdu "Have I not given you everything you needed? Have I not given you a house, servants, money? Have I not let you have your sons, as you wanted?"

She looked at him very directly, a small red mark on her right cheek, and said nothing

"The girls I wanted to look to, and I have been a good father to them I wanted them to be educated, and to grow up as Englishwomen That is the best thing for them, and that is what I have wanted for them. Do you understand that? I will go now to Calcutta with them, and leave them in the care of friends If you want you can come and be with them until we come back "

She said nothing, and he turned smartly on his heels and walked out, she sat without moving, on the floor beside the bed, and the evening came with its slow loss of shape and outline, its smell of flowers and water, and then the night Sanjay and others sat beside Sikander's mother through the dark, and Sanjay found that he did not need sleep, or even daydreams, to watch her face, her eyes, as the shadows moved slowly, was enough In the morning, when the birds began to call, she said in a very clear voice, suddenly

"Bring sandalwood "

Extracted from Red Earth and Pouring Rain by Vikram Chandra, Viking (Penguin India); Rs 299

Ram Mohan pushed himself up from a half-reclining position, next to Sanjay "What?"

But Sanjay knew already, somehow, what she wanted, some muscle or nerve, some single clear stream of emotion that stretched from his groin to the base of his neck tightened and convulsed

"To make a pyre," she said

The word spread through the camp like a quick wind, within minutes the tent was crowded with maid-servants who crouched on their haunches, staring at the slim figure in the middle

"Bring wood," she said again When nobody moved she got to her feet quickly and energetically, and walked between them, calling them by name, pleading, and no one moved She then kicked them, raging, reminding them of the years they had eaten her salt, but they only wrapped their arms around their legs and lowered their heads to their knee, and finally she turned to Ram Mohan

"No," he said

"I have been insulted," she said

"No "

"You know everything," she said "I do only what I should have done long ago "

"Not this This is a crime "

"I am a Rajput Padmini did it, with all her princesses The scriptures advise it "

"What scriptures?" he said, his face red "Which ones? The ones that do are lies and inventions " Ram Mohan went on for some ten minutes, quoting commentators and citing precedents, demolishing the authority of every text which could possibly support what she planned, ending with, "For a Hindu, all scriptures are without meaning anyway, and tradition itself is against it "

"Very good," she said "Then I choose it, I alone Bring wood "

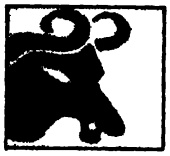
"Think of your sons," he said

Sanjay looked at her sons, and saw that Sikander was weeping Chotta was staring at his mother, a stunned look on his face, but Sikander was gazing blindly up at the roof, at the place on the cloth where the sun appeared as a clouded glow, and was crying His mother said quickly

"My sons are Rajputs They will understand Bring wood "

"No," Ram Mohan said

Slowly she stepped forward, four or five strides, hesitated, then reached to him and put a hand on his shoulder, feeling Ram Mohan shudder, Sanjay looked at him for a moment, and then back at her She suddenly seemed younger, and a blush spread from her shoulders, she took her hand from Ram Mohan and stood with her arms folded across her chest, like some girl in a painting Abruptly, Ram Mohan struggled to his feet and left the tent ■



INNER EYE — Bejan Daruwalla

Aries
March 21—April 20

You will be up to your ears and eyes in work Romance, childbirth and a round of socialising and entertainment are foretold Marriage, too, is on the cards Business links will be forged This is the right time to come to a decision about your personal and professional interests

Taurus
April 21—May 20

Be competitive, and give everything you do your best shot But a word of warning do not get impatient with people who are not as quick-witted as you are Conditions at home will give you mixed feelings Finances, loans and investments take priority

Gemini
May 21 —June 20

There is money to be expected and good times in full abundance A social engagement will take up much of your time, but on the flipside you could run into problems with your spouse So this will be a week of emotional upheavals Expect trips, ties and contacts

Cancer
June 21—July 20

You will overcome all barriers this week and come up trumps The trick to this lies in an elaborate round of socialising Management of finances and public relations will gain in unusual importance Collaborations are on the anvil and these will work out well

Leo
July 21- August 2

Your outstanding abilities will get you instant popularity Those in teaching, architecture sales, public relations, organising and communicative skills will do extremely well The legal profession might attract you A home away from home cannot be ruled out

Virgo
August 22—September 22

Concentrate on your work this week, be it brokerage, property, management, trading, astrology, films, theatre or travel Loans and funds will be available You will truly handle the signing of a contract or a business deal However, your health might cause a few problems

Libra
September 23 -October

Renovations, decorations, buying and selling for either your home or office are on the cards Expenses will be high A journey is fated, which will be of much advantage when it comes to making contacts and later contracts A round of socialising foretold Make the most of it

Scorpio
October 23 -November 22

This is the phase for expansion, buying, selling, a journey or possibly an emigration Your loved ones will prove their loyalty Those who are creative will flourish and all doubts about your abilities will clearly be dispelled In short, a good week Health of elders may cause concern

Sagittarius
November 23- December 20

This is the ideal time to go on a binge, get married or engaged, have children, be romantic, go in for research, do something unique and display your talents to the fullest Those in trade, entertainment, management will do extremely well Assignments and contracts materialise

Capricorn
December 21—January 19

The planets activate the homefront Also, you will be working hard and putting in very long hours The rewards too will be equally great In fact, success will be yours You will meet interesting people making this an eventful week A new venture likely

Aquarius
January 20, - February 18

The planets signify money and consolidation of position The week will therefore be superb for you financially Wedding bells for the unattached is not altogether unlikely You might be involved in religious ceremonies A celebration is foretold

Pisces
February 19 -March 20

The week favours renovation, decoration, buying and selling Trading and transactions prompt you into hectic activity Rely on your gut strength A major shift is likely Focus on contacts and communications You will do well professionally

BIRTHDAYS

May 21: You will visit friends easily. Progress seems definite. Marriage for the unattached and collaborations are likely.

May 22: You will be at your best this year. Romance, children, hobbies, and creativity are the major trends. Trips are on the cards.

May 23: You will be imaginative and dynamic. The [illegible] will take up much of your time. You will excel by [illegible]

[illegible] This is a year when there will be added fortunes. Be patient even if things go wrong Your friends will be greatly helpful.

May 25: You will do extremely well financially and professionally. A promotion is definitely on the cards. The year's end will favour you.

May 26: Those who are teachers, musicians, writers and businessman will go places this year. You will also be greatly involved in matters related to the homefront.

May 27: This is the time for a lot of hectic activity. Go in for strong action, whatever be your field of activity.

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S COLUMN

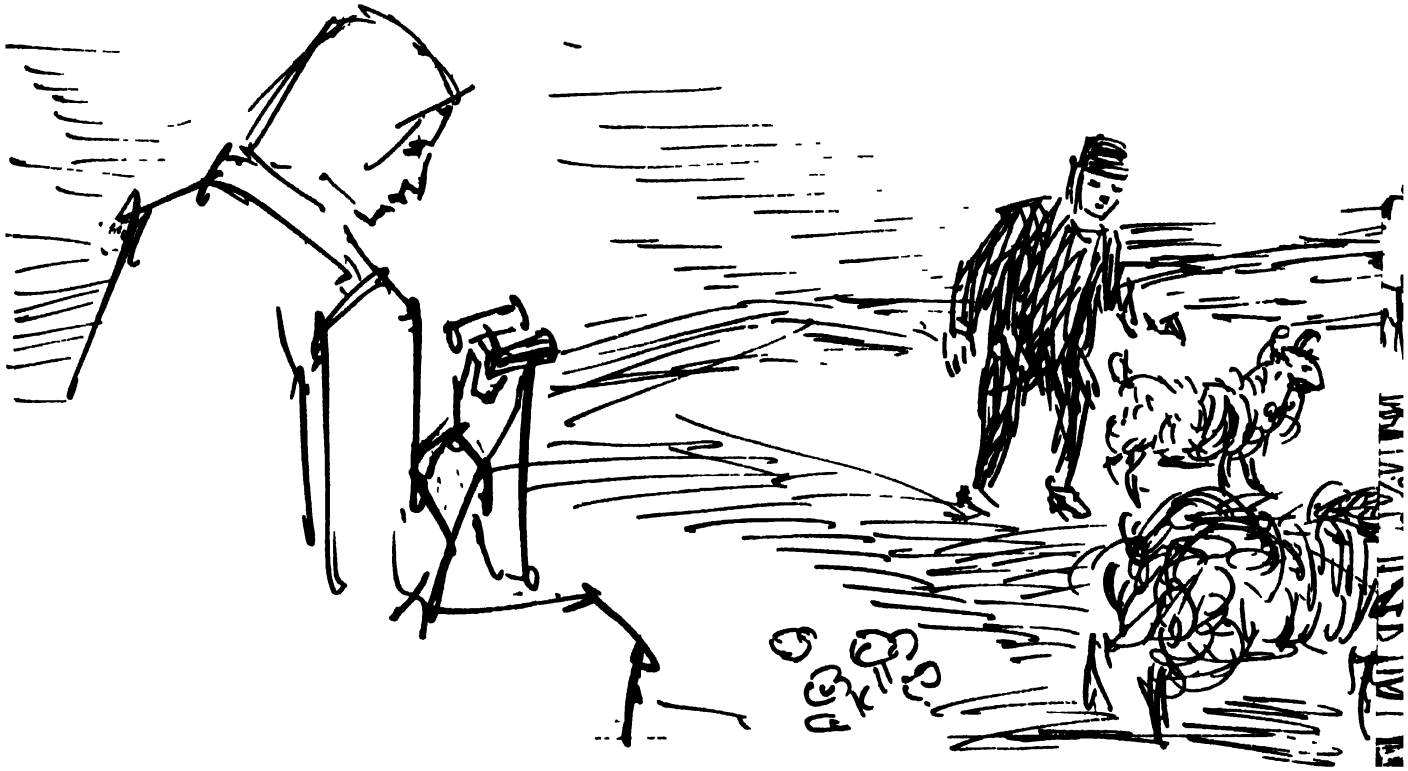
GUCCHIS, MORELLS AND DIPPERS

To many people living in metropolises, if that's the plural, Gucchi means shoes To the villagers living on the fringes of the Great Himalayan National Park, some 60 kms from Kulu, Gucchi means Morell mushrooms And mushrooms mean money

I discovered this while birdwatching in the valley of the Tirthan among some of the most beautiful original forests left in India The cachement area of this river, as yet undamaged, and its waters are an icy clear green The paths through the forest, where they exist, are too narrow for even hill ponies or mules Only humans, and that too local ones, generally use them

Even so, for two days we had seen no one, but members of our own trekking party The clean air, quiet forest and river were our companions Our city-bred pollution coughs faded away, and our sight sharpened in the clear mountain light

I have always been fasci ated by what Salim Ali refers to as birds "of Himalayan torrents" and, placing myself on a rock by the bank, I scanned the river for them First to come in sight were redstarts, insect-eating birds with hyperactive tails A single white-capped redstart, its cap contrasting with the rich blue and orange of its other plumage, flew from one rock to the other, its tail apparently semaphore-signalling the letters A, C, A C



A pair of plumbeous redstarts was also nearby These two were busy with the breeding season and their song rose over the river's roar The blue-grey-and-orange male and the sober grey female faced each other on a rock, tapping their tails softly against its surface

These were birds I had often seen, but I nearly dropped my binoculars when I first spotted the small forktail This tiny bird, in its dramatic black and white plumage, stood knee-deep in the torrent searching for insects Then suddenly it flew off, landing on a perpendicular wet rock which seemed to offer no foothold

Clinging to the rock it pecked at the surface, fluttering dry a wing which dipped by accident into the water The forktail is known to live even behind waterfalls

Though the forktail paddles, the brown dipper actually swims underwater even against the current I watched one carefully through my binoculars No doubt about it It was winking at me The bird bobbed up

Clinging to the rock it pecked at the surface, fluttering dry a wing which dipped by accident into the water. The forktail is known to live even behind waterfalls and down and stretched out a wet wing, before diving into the pool and getting carried half-way down the white water

Voices behind me disturbed my concentration A flock of long-haired white goats and shorn sheep were being driven into the park for grazing Behind came a couple of small boys in patched trousers and holey jumpers with bags made of plastic sacking on their backs

They greeted me This was Chaman Lal and Elu Ram from a village in the buffer zone, spending their school holidays collecting gucchis — they had found three so far

The local villagers have been collecting medicinal herbs and mushrooms for centuries, but the market entered their lives only five or six years ago. Before they would collect gucchis to eat themselves; now the 'rate' is so good they hesitate to consume them

The local villagers have been collecting medicinal herbs and mushrooms for centuries, but the market entered their lives only five or six years ago Before they would collect gucchis to eat themselves, now the 'rate' is so good they hesitate to consume them

Instead they string them up, dry them for a couple of days and sell them to their local lalas for Rs 130 for 50 gms They don't ask the lala how much he gets when he passes them on to other middlemen who supply to five-star hotels and exporters

Late in the afternoon, small groups of villagers began to appear out of the forest carrying home bags of Morells Kalu, Draupadi and Badmi were women in traditional Himachali dress, their pockets full of violets which they use to cure colds

None of the women were literate, but they all knew the word 'rate' They told me that they had to look after the house and work in the fields, and so they didn't come every day during the three-month gucchi season, and only stayed at the lower altitudes — the men went higher

Men like Ratan Chand stayed in the park for days on end, searching for gucchis and herbs He'd had encounters with bears and leopards while looking for plants like gugal and dhup which are used in making incense Other herbs he finds are made into purgatives and laxatives, and medicine for sore throats, wounds and mental ailments

All of them he sells to the lala, who gives the supplies the villagers need on credit Morells have made the villagers more prosperous Ratan Chand told me that now people generally clear debts within a year

There is a very delicate balance to be maintained if the forest, the villagers and river birds rely on, is to survive Park officials don't see much threat from traditional right holders — providing the villagers don't set fire to the forest On occasions they do, for example, to clear an area of undergrowth to reveal mushrooms

But outsiders sent in by middlemen do present a threat, and there is now a proposal to regulate entry into the park Villagers themselves are in favour of an identity card system, rather like Mr Seshan's

However, to preserve the forest and at the same time win the support of the local people and give them some level of development is a very difficult task. The park authorities are trying to pick out a path which will succeed, but the situation is so complex that they cannot be entirely sure of the way

I suspect that to survive in the long run, the forests of the Tirthan valley, will need a touch of the divine as well as human help Perhaps, from the forest deities, whose masks are embedded in the bark of silver fir trees, hung round with offerings of iron arrows, locks and old hurricane lamps

(Sanctuary Features)

TIME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AGARTALA
IC 741	0620	1 3 4 6	IC 742	0850	1, 3
			IC-742	1050	4 6
IC 743	0920	daily	IC-744	1150	daily
PF 701	1130	1, 3, 5, 7	PF 702	1610	1, 3 5, 7
AIZAWL
PF 705	0730	2 4 6, 7	PF-706	1510	2 4 6 7
BAGDOGRA
PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1
PF-737	0730	3 5	PF-738	1740	3 5
IC 721	1010	1 2 3 6 7	IC 722	1250	1 2 3 6 7
BANGALORE
IC-771	0600	daily	IC 772	1140	daily
BHUBANESWAR
IC-544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2 7
IC-769	1615	2 4 6	IC 770	2120	2 4 6
BOMBAY
IC 676	0730	daily	IC-675	0820	daily
D2 102	0905	daily	D2-101	0835	daily
IC 273	1945	daily	AI-306	1840	5
9W 212	1945	daily	9W 211	1910	daily
D2 104	2005	daily	D2 103	1935	daily
AI 309	2035	6	IC 274	1830	daily
AI 681	2350	1
DELHI
IC 263	0700	daily	S2 025	0810	1, 2, 3 4 5 6
S2 026	0845	1 2 3 4 5 6	M9 303	0825	daily
M9 304	0905	daily	AI-682	0950	1
IC-812	1700	1 3 5	S2 015	1015	1 3 5
S2 016	1555	1 3 5	4S 806	1130	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC-402	1715	daily	IC-401	1155	daily
4S 805	1730	1 2 3 4 5 6	S2 005	1855	1, 2 3 4 5 7
			IC 811	2055	1 3 5
S2-006	1930	1 2 3 4 5 7	MS 301	1950	daily
M9-302	2030	daily	IC 264	2210	daily
DIBRUGARH
PF-737	0730	3 5	D2-181	1620	1 5 7
D2 181	1135	1 5 7	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2 183	1135	2 4, 6	IC-702	1630	1 4 6 7
4S 816	1205	2 4 6	4S-815	1635	1 3 5
IC 701	1240	1, 4, 6, 7	PF 738	1740	3 5
DIMAPUR
IC 257	1230	2 4	IC 257	1605	2 4
GUWAHATI
IC 703	0610	1 3 4, 5, 7	IC-704	0920	1 3 4, 5 7
PF 737	0730	3 5	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
PF 705	0730	2 4, 6 7	D2-181	1620	1 5 7
PF 735	0730	1	D2-183	1620	2 4 6
D2 181	1135	1 5 7	IC-230	1620	daily
D2-183	1135	2 4 6	4S-811	1635	2 4 6
4S 812	1205	1 3 5	PF-736	1730	1
IC-229	1310	daily	PF-738	1740	3 5

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
HYDERABAD
S2 023	1045	1 3 5	S2 024	1525	1, 3 5
IC 777	1615	3 5 7	IC 778	2115	3 5, 7
IC 769	1615	2 4 6	IC 770	2120	2 4 6
IMPHAL
IC 255	0800	3 5 7	IC 256	1250	3 5, 7
IC 257	1230	2 4	IC 257	1605	2 4
JORHAT
IC 213	0910	4 7	IC 213	1315	4 7
LILABARI
PF-735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1
LUCKNOW
IC 812	1700	1 3 5	IC 811	2005	1 3 5
MADRAS
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2 7
IC 765	1720	daily	D2 171	1045	1 2 4 5 6 7
D2 172	1740	1 2 4 5 6 7	IC 766	2220	daily
NAGPUR
IC 769	1615	2 4 6	IC 770	2120	2 4 6
PATNA
IC-249	1430	2 4 7	S2-015	1015	1 3 5
S2-016	1555	1 3 5	IC 249	1805	2 4 7
IC 812	1700	1 3 5	IC 811	2055	1 3 5
PORT BLAIR
IC-285	0640	3 5 7	IC 286	1100	2 4 6
RANCHI
IC-249	1430	2 4 7	IC 249	1805	2, 4 7
SHILLONG
PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
SILCHAR
IC-255	0800	3 5 7	IC-256	1250	3 5 7
IC-253	0800	1 2 6	IC 254	1040	1
			IC 254	1250	2 6
TEZPUR
IC-213	0910	4 7	IC 213	1315	4 7
TEZU
PF 737	0730	3 5	PF-738	1740	3 5
VARANASI
S2 016	1555	1 3, 5	S2 015	1015	1 3 5
VISHAKHAPATNAM
IC-542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
ZIRO
PF 735	0720	1	PF 736	1730	1

FLIGHTS — INTERNATIONAL

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AMMAN
RJ 185	1445	4	RJ 184	0705	4
AMSTERDAM
KL 876	0420	7	KL 875	0235	7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[redacted]
IC-731	0855	2, 4, 5, 7	KB-106	1115	3
			KB-108	1215	5
KB-105	1125	2, 6	TG-313	1240	1 3, 6
TG-314	1355	1 3 6	IC-732	1505	2, 4 5 7
AI-306	1950	5	AI-309	1925	6
[redacted]
RO-076	1950	5, 7	RO-075	1055	5 7
[redacted]
IC-225	1200	1	IC-226	1420	1
BG-696	1735	2, 5	BG-697	1655	2 5
[redacted]
BG-092	0850	4, 5	BG-091	0810	4 5
BG-092	1150	1 2, 3, 6 7	BG 091	1110	1 2, 3 6 7
IC-723	1250	1, 3 5, 6	IC-724	1520	1 3 5 6
BG-094	1905	1, 2, 3, 5 6 7	BG-093	1825	1 2 3 5 6 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1 5	BG-095	2020	1 5

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[redacted]
IC-747	1115	1 3 5	IC-748	1455	1 3 5
RA 214	1815	1, 4	RA-213	1715	1 4
LONDON
BA 142	2050	3 7	BA 143	1525	3 7
MOSCOW
SU 538	1855	4	SU 537	1655	4
PARO
KB 106	1200	3	KB 105	1040	2 6
KB 106	1300	5
SINGAPORE
SQ 415	2345	2 5	SQ-416	2230	2, 5
SOFIA
LZ 504	1750	4	LZ 503	1650	4
TOKYO
AI 306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
2311	19-15	Delhi Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19-20	Amritsar Mail	7 55	3006
3003	20-35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13 00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat	16 15	2382
2303	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun		2304
2301	16 30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun	10 45	2302
2305	13 45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat	12 50	2306
3073	23 00	Himgiri (Jammu Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat Arr Tues Wed & Sat	11 35	3074
5047	13 00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon Wed & Fri	4 30	5048
3009	20 30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9 45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18 15	3008
3049	13 20	Amritsar Express	15 30	3050
3039	21-00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5 20	3040
3019	16 05	Kathgodam Express	11 55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5 00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6 30	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17 11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18 20	Asansol Express	8 45	3036
3031	21 05	Danapur Express	5 50	3032
3025	23 00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday Arr Friday	11 35	3026
3071	22 30	Jamalpur Express	5 10	3072
3015	9-55	Santiniketan Express	15 40	3016
1159	15 25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tues & Wed	6 50	1160
1171	15-25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed Arr Fri Sat & Sun	6 50	1172
3327	14 30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4 50	3328
1181	15-25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6 50	1182
		Sealdah
3141	13 40	Teesta-Torsa Express Dep Mon Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed Thurs Fri Sat & Sun	6 35	3142
3143	19 15	Darjeeling Mail	8 45	3144
3111	20-15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7 15	3112
5657	6-25	Kanchanjunga Express	20 35	5658
3153	22 00	Gour Express	5 15	3154
5663	20-00	Katihar Express	4 15	5664
3151	11-45	Jammu-Tawi Express	15 50	3152
3133	20-55	Mughal Saral Express via SBG Loop	12 55	3134
3103	18-20	Bhagirathi (Laigola) Express	10 25	3104
5185	12 40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues Thus & Sat	4 25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Tir	Howrah	Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6 50	6004
8002	19 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12 00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	1940	004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13 45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express	22 05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5 00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5 30	8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8 25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00	8046
8017	16 45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2421	16 40	Bhubaneswar New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10	—
	11 05	New Delhi Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15	—
	14 05	Trivandrum Central Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 45	6321
—	14 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13 45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15	-
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13 45	6315
6520	22 35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15	—
	14 05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains, please dial 2203545 54 for in coming trains 2203535 44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains, dial 2203466 3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition, dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running), 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535 37

USKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

CALYPSO CHRISTMAS

My first Christmas in London had been a lonely one. My small bed-sitting room near Swiss Cottage had been cold and austere and my landlady had disapproved of any sort of revelry.

Moreover, I hadn't the money for the theatre or a good restaurant. That first English Christmas was spent sitting in front of a lukewarm gas-fire, eating beans on toast and drinking cheap sherry. My one consolation was the row of Christmas card on the mantelpiece — most of them from friends in India.

But in the following year, I was making more money and living in a bigger, brighter, homelier room. The new landlady approved of my bringing friends — even girls — to the home and had even made me a plum pudding so that I could entertain my guests.

My friends in London included a number of Indian and Commonwealth students and through them I met George, a friendly sensitive person from Trinidad.

George was not a student. He was over 30. Like thousands of other West Indians, he had come to England because he had been told that jobs were plentiful and that there was a free health scheme and national insurance and that he could earn anything from £10 to £20 a week — far more than he could make in Trinidad or Jamaica.

But while it was true that jobs were to be had in England, it was also true that sections of local labour resented outsiders filling these posts. There were also those belonging to the middle classes, who were prone to various prejudices and though these people were in a minority, they were still capable of making themselve felt and heard.

In any case, London is a lonely place, specially for a stranger. And for the happy-go-lucky West Indian, accustomed to sunshine, colour and music, London must be quite baffling.

As though to match the grey-green fog of winter, Londoners wore sombre colours, greys and browns. The West Indians couldn't understand this. Surely they reasoned, during the grey season colours worn should be vivid reds and greens — colours that would defy the curling fog and uncomfortable rain?

But Londoners frowned on these gay splashes of colour. To them, it all seemed an expression of some sort of barbarism. And then again, Londoners had a horror of any sort of loud noise and a blaring radio could (quite justifiably) bring in scores of protest from neighbouring houses.

The West Indians, on the other hand, liked letting off steam, they liked holding parties in their room, at which there was much singing and shouting.

They had always believed that England was their mother country, and so, despite rain and fog, sleet and snow, they were determined to live as they had lived in Trinidad. And it is to be said to their credit, and even to the credit of indigenous Londoners, that this is what they succeeded in doing.

George worked for British Railways. He was a ticket collector at one of the underground stations. He liked his work and received about £ 10 a week for collecting tickets. A large, stout man, with huge hands and feet, he always had a gentle, kindly expression on his mobile face.

Among other accomplishments, he could play the piano and, as there was an old rather dilapidated piano in my room, he would often come over in the evening to run his fat, heavy fingers over the keys, playing tunes that ranged from hymn to jazz pieces. I thought he would be a nice person to spend Christmas with so I asked him to come and share the pudding my landlady had made and a bottle of sherry I had procured.

Little did I realise that an invitation to George would be interpreted as an invitation to all George's friends and relations — in fact, anyone who had known him in Trinidad — but this was the way he looked at it and, at eight o'clock on Christmas Eve, while a chilly wind blew dead leaves down from Hampstead Heath, I saw a veritable army of West Indians marching down Belize Avenue with George in the lead

Bewildered, I opened my door to them and in streamed George, George's cousin, George's nephews and George's friends They were all smiling and shaking hands with me, making complimentary remarks about my room ("Man, that's some piano!" "Hey, look at that crazy picture!" "This rocking chair gives me fever!") and taking no time at all to feel and make themselves at home

Everyone had brought something along for the party George had brought several bottles of beer Eric, a flashy coffee-coloured youth, had brought cigarettes and more beer Marian, a buxom woman of 35, who called me "darling" as soon as we met, and kissed me on the cheeks saying she adored pink cheeks, had brought bacon and eggs

Her daughter, Lucy, who was sixteen and in the full bloom of youth, had brought a gramophone, while the little nephews carried the records Other friends and families had also brought beer and one enterprising fellow produced a bottle of Jamaican rum

Then everything began to happen all at once

Lucy put a record on the gramophone and the strains of Basin Street Blues filled the room At the same time, George sat down at the piano to hammer out an accompaniment to the record — his huge hands crashed down on the keys as though he was chopping up hunks of meat Marian had lit the gas-fire and was busy frying bacon and eggs Eric was opening beer bottles In the midst of the noise and confusion, I heard a knock on the door — a very timid, hesitant kind of knock — and opening it, found my landlady standing on the threshold

Lucy put a record on the gramophone and the strains of Basin Street Blues filled the room. At the same time, George sat down at the piano to hammer out an accompaniment to the record, his huge hands crashed down on the keys as though he was chopping up hunks of meat. Marian had lit the gas-fire and was busy frying bacon and eggs. Eric was opening beer bottles. In the midst of the noise and confusion, I heard a knock on the door, a very timid, hesitant kind of knock, and opening it, found my landlady standing on the threshold

"Oh, Mr Bond, the neighbours " she began, and, glancing into the room, was rendered speechless

"It's only tonight," I said "They'll all go home after an hour Remember, it's Christmas!"

She nodded mutely and hurried away down the corridor, pursued by something called Be bop a-lula I closed the door and drew all the curtains in an effort to stifle the noise , but everyone was stamping about on the floorboards and I hoped fervently that the people downstairs had gone to the theatre

George had started playing calypso music and Eric and Lucy were strutting and stomping in the middle of the room, while the two nephews were improvising on their own Before I knew what was happening, Marian had me in her strong arms and was teaching me to do the calypso The air, I think, was Banana Boat Song

Instead of the party lasting an hour, it lasted three hours We ate innumerable fried eggs and finished off all the beer I took turns dancing with Marian, Lucy and the nephews There was a particular expression they used when they were excited "Fire!" they shouted I never knew what was supposed to be on fire or what the exclamation implied, but I too shouted, "Fire!" and it seemed a very sensible thing to shout

Perhaps, their hearts were on fire, I don't know, but for all their excitability and flashiness and brashness, they were lovable and sincere friends and today, when I look back on my two years in London, that Christmas party is the brightest, most vivid memory of all, and the faces of George and Marian and Lucy and Eric are the faces I remember best

At midnight, someone turned out the light I was dancing with Lucy at the time and in the dark, she threw her arms around me and kissed me full on the lips It was the first time I had been kissed by a girl, and when I think about it, I was glad that it was Lucy who kissed me

When they left they went in a bunch, just as they had come I stood at the gate and watched them saunter down the dark, empty street The buses and tubes had stopped running at midnight and George and his friends would have to walk all the way down to their rooms at Highgate and Golden Green

After they had gone, the street was suddenly empty and silent, and my own footsteps were the only sounds I could hear The cold came clutching at me and I turned up my collar I looked up at the windows of my house and at the windows of all the other houses in the street They were all in darkness It seemed to me we were the only ones who had really celebrated Christmas

(Sanctuary Features)

ADMISSION NOTICE

● Adv. Diploma in Computer Sc. & Management (18 months).

Course Contents.
WINDOWS, FOXPRO, CLIPPER, UNIX, C/C++, LAN, VISUAL C++, HARDWARE MAINTENANCE- & OTHERS.

'ees Rs 10,000/- payable in instalments

NSCT
National School of Computer Technology
2, Raja Basanta Roy Road (between Rashbehari Crossing & Lake Market), Cal-26, Ph 76-7610(Office)

120 hrs. of extra practicals at your convenience apart from regular practicals.

Career Care
The Telegraph
Classifieds
on Education is appearing on alternate Sundays.
Advertisers interested may send their advertisements 21 days in advance to our Head Office Or Can also call up 278000/274880 (Extn 118, 120 & 139) and Book the advertisements conveniently over the Phone

The Telegraph Classifieds

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL is promoted and sponsored by Institute of Advanced Management, the country's most premier centre for Management Education. IAM, formed in 1989, with global collaborations is ranked as one of the very best Hospitality Management Institute in India. And now, IAM brings you the prestigious IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL with the mission of providing Management Education of international standard through state of the art methods of training and research. IAM's years of experience, solid infra-structure and close relation with the industry and business would make IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL, one of the leading Management Institute of the country.

THE COURSE

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL offers the following courses for the Academic session 1995-96:
TWO YEAR POST GRADUATE DIPLOMA IN MANAGEMENT
(Full time Course, Monday to Friday, 10 AM to 5 PM)
THREE YEAR POST GRADUATE DIPLOMA IN MANAGEMENT
(Evening Course, Monday to Friday, 6 PM TO 8 PM)

ADMISSION PROCEDURE

Admission to the "Post Graduate Diploma in Management" Courses would be through a Admission Test conducted by IAM. Graduates in any discipline with a minimum of 50% marks in aggregate are eligible. Students appearing for the Final Degree Examination may also apply. Upper age limit: 25 years as on 01 07 1995

PROSPECTUS & FORMS

Prospectus and forms are available from the Institute's office and also from the City Office on cash payment of Rs. 100/-. Outstation candidates have to send Rs 120/- by M.O. Only to the Executive Director, IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL, AE-486, Salt Lake, Calcutta-700 064.

IAM SCHOOL

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL
AE 486, Salt Lake, Calcutta-700 064. Dial: 37-7726.
City Office: IAM, 37/1B, Hazra Road, 2nd Floor, Calcutta-700 029. Dial: 475-9237 & 74-8132.

Join Quest's

MULTIMEDIA
ANIMATION
2D-3D GRAPHICS
LAN/DTP/CAD
COMMERCIAL APPLICATIONS
Courses

...ial Sum... ...ses Available.

Contact
QUEST INSTITUTE OF ADVANCED COMPUTING
Suite- 2A, 12A Camac St
Cal - 17 Ph 242-1134

Admission On

● Certificate Course in Oracle & Excel

● Adv. Diploma in Computer Application (2 yrs.).

Course Contents
Windows, Unix, C, C++, Network, SSAD, RDBMS, Excel, CASE etc

● Also available other short term courses.

TRADE WINGS INSTITUTE
CENTRE FOR INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

1, Crooked Lane, 1st floor, Room No 108 behind Great Eastern Hotel, Cal-69 Ph 243-0625

Accredited to University of Cambridge

ASTA
American Society of Travel Agents

We take your international career as seriously as you do.

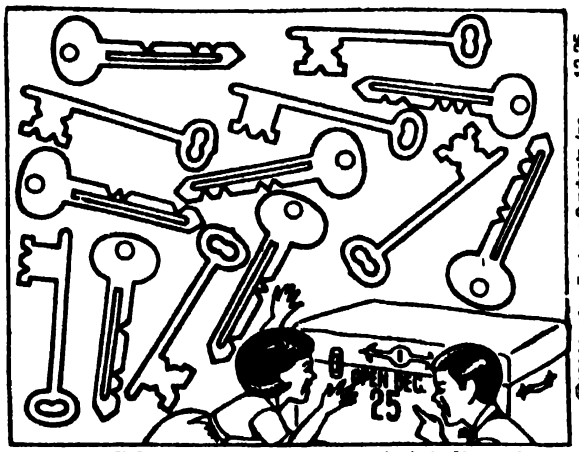
Conducted by – wings
INSTITUTE • OF • MANAGEMENT

DIPLOMA IN
- Magnum Diploma 3-in-1
- International Airline
- Travel, Tourism & Hotel Management

Calcutta:

Esplanade. 1, Crooked Lane Room No 108, 1st floor, behind Great Eastern Hotel, Cal-69, Ph 243-0625, Fax 91-33- 2487825

Garishat. 1B, Kumudini Apts, 1/1, Dover Lane, Calcutta-29 Ph 76-7727/440-6356

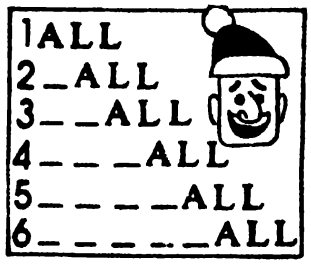


Asansol 1st floor, Mritunjoy Bhawan, 56/2, West Apcar Garden, Asansol-713304 Ph 20-5701/2532

Guwahati G N B Road, Silpukhuri (near Goswami Service), Guwahati-781003

ADMISSION OPEN

JUNIOR WHIRL



HAL KAUFMAN

KEY QUESTION! Among six different sets (pairs) of keys above is an odd key that opens the trunk Which is that?

BACK TRACK! Suppose you took a number, doubled it, subtracted 7, divided by 5 and obtained 7 What was the number? Work this out in your head, if you can

Original number was 21

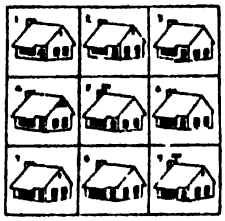
ALL DECISIONS FINALIZED

"AND to all says St Nick at visit s end, ' 'a good night But that s not All I for this exercise

Object here is to form increasingly longer words (one letter per step) ending in ALL in accord with these definitions

1 Whole biz (ALL, in place)
2 Telephone visit
4 Sudden storm
5 Give once-over visually
6 Weather ingredient that makes things easier for Santa's shed

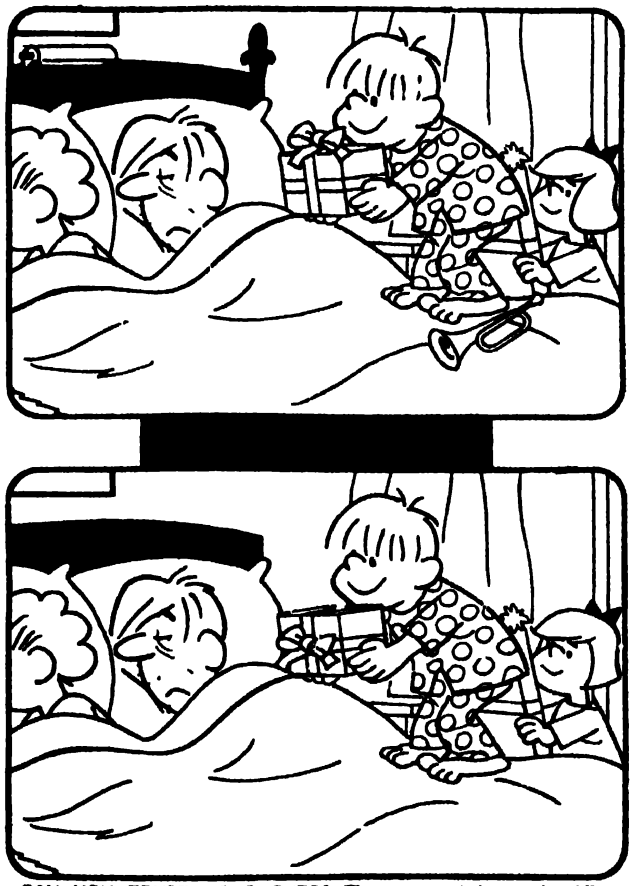
Time limit two min



1 All 2 Call 3 Mall 4 Squall 5 Eyeball 6 Snowfall

HOUSE TOUR! You are asked to draw four straight connected lines that will pass through each of ther nine houses depected below just onne time That is to say, begin at a house, draw through another house (or houses), veer off in a new direction, etc

You may pass through up to three houses per line

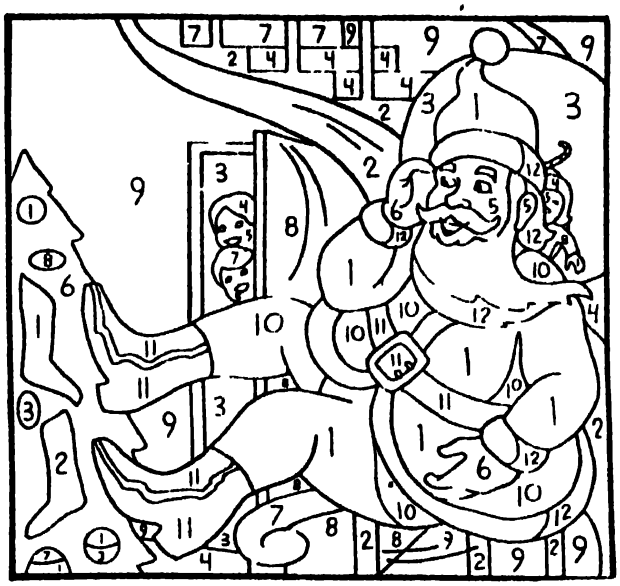


Lines may extend beyond diagram's perimeter

Incidentally, two of the nine houses are twins Which two?

One way Start at 8 draw through 7 and beyond through 4 2 and beyond through 3 6 9 through 5 1 Twins 2 and 7

HOCUS-FOCUS



Drawings by Henry Boltinoff

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below

Differences 1 Bed lamp is missing 2 Bedpost is missing 3 Bow is moved 4 Sleeve is shorter 5 Bulge is missing 6 Hair a different

FUNSPOT

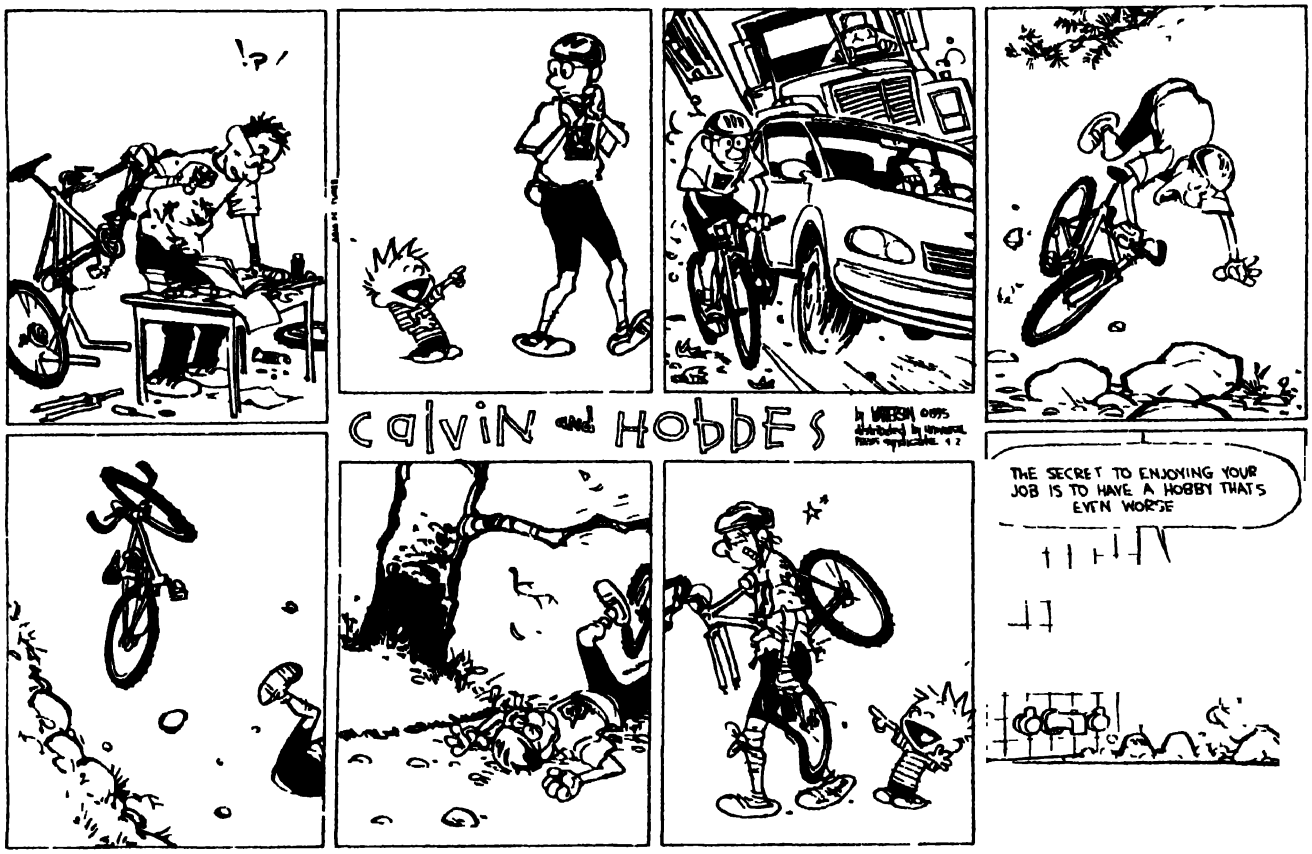
IT'S UNRAIL! Slide, Santa, slide Colors 1—Red 2—Lt blue 3—Yellow 4—Lt brown 5—Flesh 6—Green 7—Dk brown 8—Dk purple 9—Lt purple 10—Maroon 11—Black 12—Gray

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

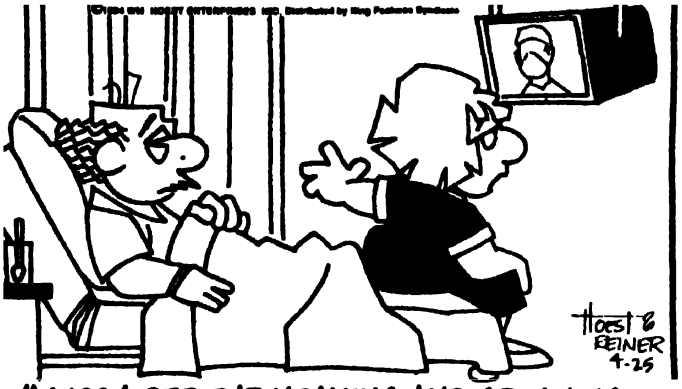
GRATEFUL

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

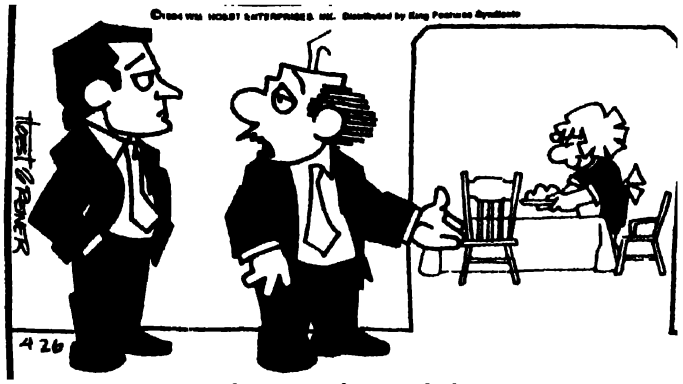


Try to score at least 30 points

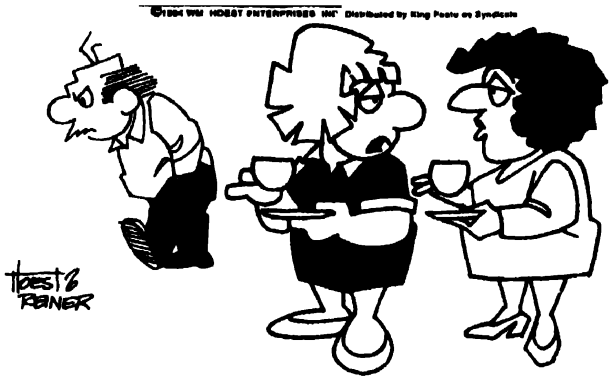
Possible twosome Fun gate



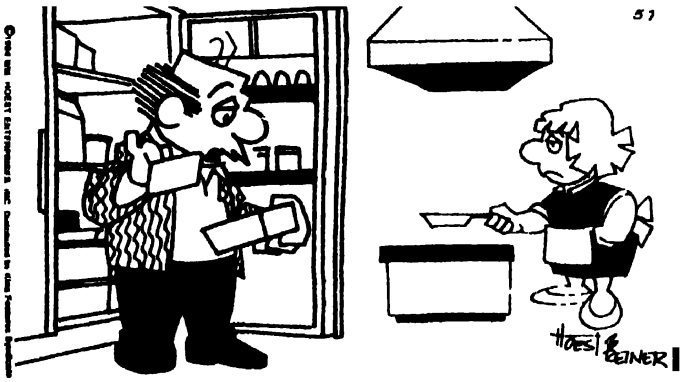
ARCHIE



CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON

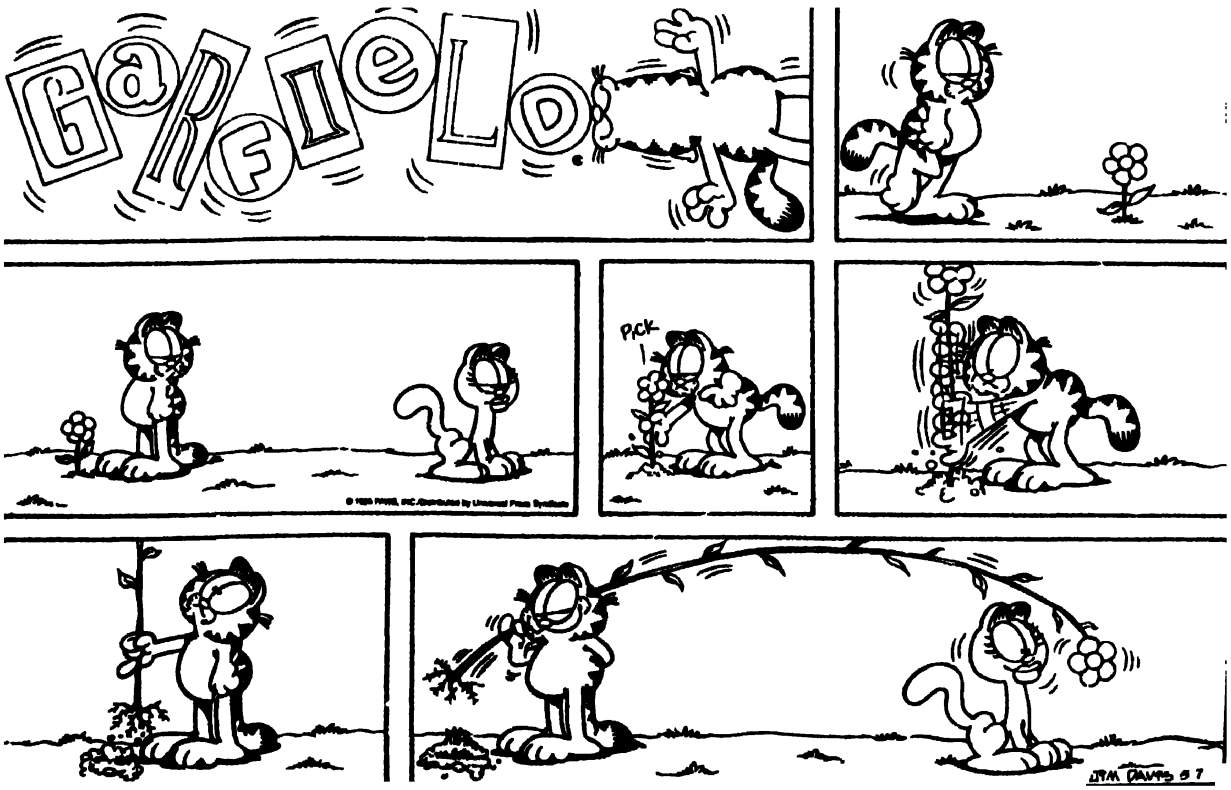


THE LOCKHORNS

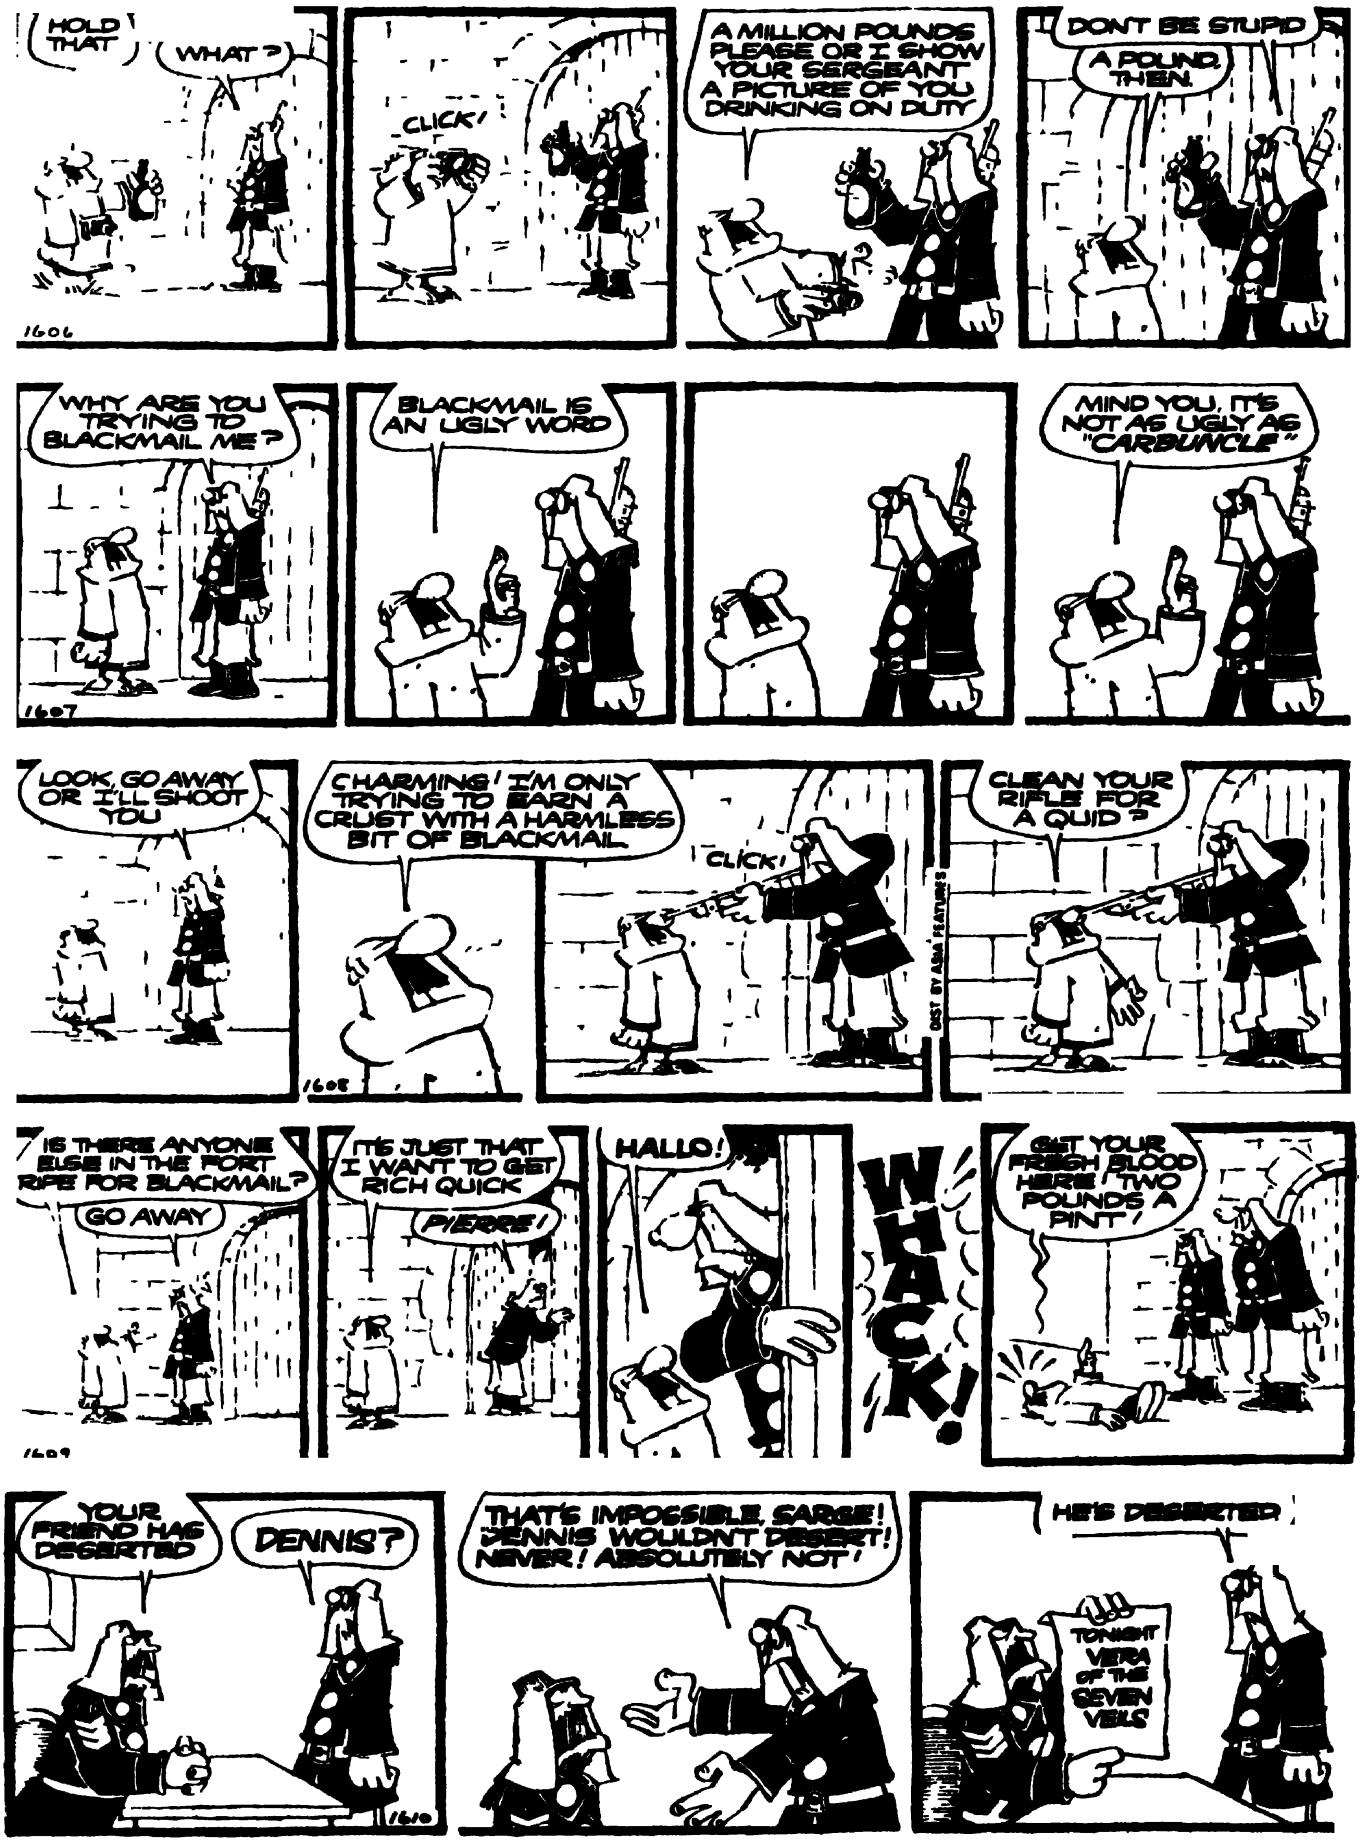


"KNOCK OFF THE MOANING AND GROANING, LEROY. I'M TRYING TO WATCH MY STORIES."

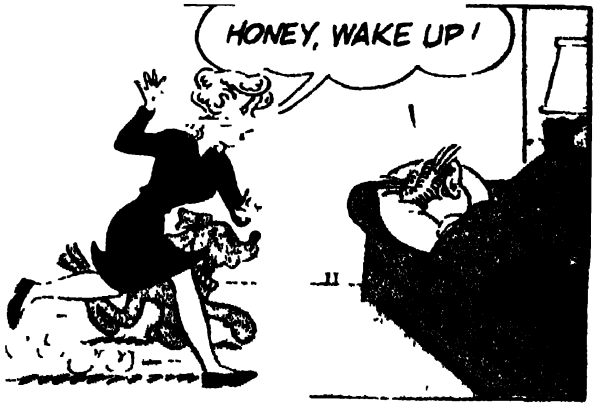
UNDERSTAND YOU'RE A GOURMET. THAT'S TOO BAD."



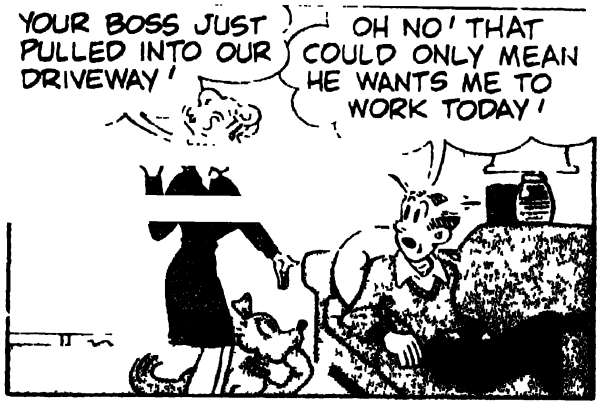
"THE TROUBLE WITH BEING MARRIED TO LEROY IS THAT I SEE HIM EVERY DAY."



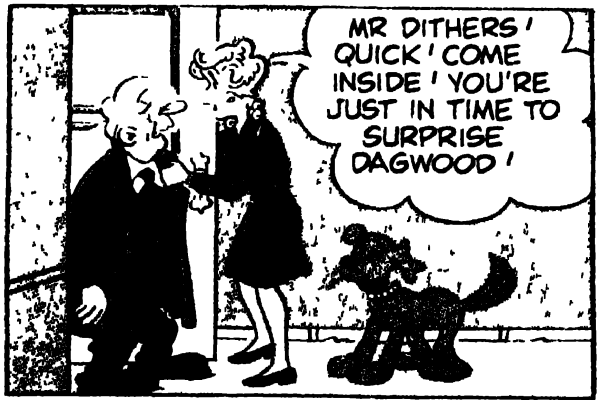
"GEE, LORETTA, YOU REALLY DO HAVE A GREEN THUMB."

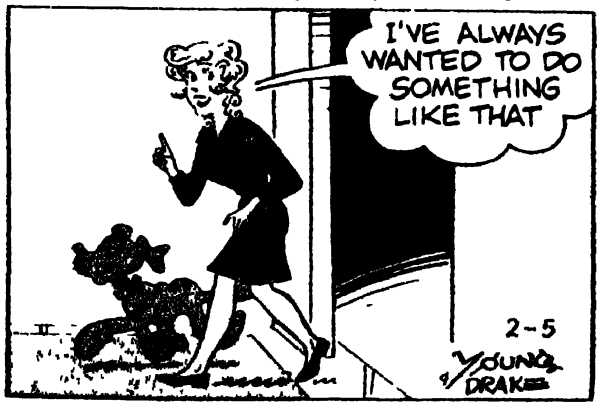


GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS



THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP





HERE, GET IN THIS CLOSET! BUT DON'T SPOIL THE SURPRISE! IF YOU SEE DAGWOOD, DON'T SAY ANYTHING!

© 1995 by King Features Syndicate, Inc. World rights reserved.

FOCUS

BLACK NIGHTS

In New York they mean mugging, robberies, rapes and even murder And the Blacks are always to blame, or that's what they all say
Arthur J. Pais, a serious victim himself, tries to analyse why this happens*

It took the man less than three minutes to overpower me, wave a knife and bang my head on the steps of my own house even as I told him that he could take all the money I had on me, kick me in the stomach many times -- and flee with $30, credit cards, and several ID cards

That night at New York city at least 20 people had been mugged, over 100 robbed, two raped and three murdered

The New York television stations and newspapers routinely report these incidents Unless a murder is particularly gruesome or the person who has been mugged happens to be the mayor's mother or the Archbishop of a big church, the incidents are forgotten in a matter of few days

Some months after the mugging, and a complicated surgery to fix the retina detachment in my right eye that my doctor says was connected with the incident, I still wake up at night, at times with a scream, often with just cold sweat

The surgery cost about $6,000 and, fortunately, was covered by the insurance But for several weeks following the operation, I could hardly write or do anything useful I wear two hats A freelance journalist and an adjunct professor at two of New York's better known schools, New York University and the New School for Social Research I cancelled one class, something I found very painful to do, and struggled through the other classes

Even today, reporting, writing and revising the stories is a struggle The surgery has given me back only one-third of the vision of my right eye

It was not the first time I have been mugged On one occasion, two teenagers robbed me on a train, and on another, two teenagers jumped out of a car, held a gun to my head, and ran away with $20, cursing me for keeping a "shit of $20"

But I had not been injured before

The author Before the assault

Nor was the mugging done right on the steps of my house in a solidly middle-class neighbourhood

Even as I sought the help of the police and doctors, I was confronted with a lot of questions by neighbours and family members What was I doing out there at 11 45 at night? "On the other two occasions when I was mugged, it was hardly 8 00," I told one relative "Who knows, if I had returned home at 2 am instead of 11 45 pm nothing would have happened"

"Why didn't you hit the man, you could have hit him on the balls Why didn't you yell? Maybe if you would have screamed fire or something, we could have then rushed out of our homes"

Thanks but the man had a knife on him Even if he did not have a knife, I would not have been sure if he was carrying a knife or a gun So how could I have taken the risk"

But the most painful question Was it a Kallu? (Yes, he was Black, so were the others who have mugged me But I resent the question)

Kallu, the mantra so many of us carry in our heads Beware of the Kallus When we talk about the serial killers who have always been White or about the men who tried to kill Bill Clinton, we do not refer to their race We do not call them Gorus

"It is wrong to always associate Blacks with crime," says a fellow journalist "But we do so because street crime hits us directly and our lives are in danger However, we should remember that there are white-collar crimes with which Blacks have hardly anything to do

"And there are moral crimes in which Indians play a big role, too," he adds "Look at the way our people are 'mugged' by our landlords who give inadequate heating even in severe winter Look at the way hundreds of Indians work for Indian firms at lower than the minimum wage so that they can get their Green Cards This is also a kind of mugging"

And yet, we have such contempt for Blacks, and blame them for the worsening law and order situation

One of the reasons we have a lot of prejudice against Blacks is because "we wall ourselves in," said Arun Gandhi, reporter and writer, in an interview "Mind you, we have prejudices against Whites, too, but the prejudices we have against the Blacks are greater

"It is also ironic that we have not realised that many of the benefits we enjoy in America are the results of the struggle Blacks waged in the Fifties and Sixties," he says

"These benefits include having a recourse against discrimination on the job and our right to go to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to have our grievances arbitrated"

"Instead of building bridges and making common cause with other minorities, particularly the Blacks, we continue to be prejudiced against them"

Gandhi and other concerned Indian Americans have been urging the latter not to forget that we, too, have been victims of White racism — and that we will do better by joining hands with Jews, Blacks and other minorities

Eight years ago, a group of White teenagers held under fear about 30 Indian families in a middle-class neighbourhood, as they went around smearing offensive graffiti, throwing putrid eggs into their compounds, and making harassing calls in the middle of the night 'Hindus Go Back and Live on the Trees in India,' read one graffito, ironically, all the families were Christians from the state of Kerala

It was not the first time I have been mugged. On one occasion, two teenagers robbed me on a train, and on another, two teenagers jumped out of a car, held a gun to my head, and ran away with $20, cursing me for keeping a 'shit of $20'

The families kept quiet for more than six months, afraid that if they publicise their plight the problem could become worse Only when one of their men joined the auxiliary police and discussed the problem with fellow police officers, things began to change Gang leaders were arrested and given suspended sentences

And then came the Dotbusters in Hoboken and several New Jersey cities For over a year, a group of young men and women harassed, beat and humiliated hundreds of Indians - - and anybody who looked like an Indian "It did not matter if one wore a bindi or a salwar-kameez or

PRIDE AND PREJUDICE

T[illegible]tle boy, the son of a colleague, gave me a wary look and w[illegible]ered to his mother "Yeh kallu / There was fear, and a certain [illegible]ount of disgust in his voice

Although I am a little darker than the average Indian, no one mistakes me for an American Black But the little boy did.

He had just arrived in New York City from India and was apparently conditioned by his mother to be suspicious of Blacks — called Kallus here, with such delicious derogation by so many of us.

Even his mother's assurance that I was Hindustani did not improve matters His fear and dislike of Blacks, articulated without inhibitions in a way so characteristic of children, reflects the attitude of a large number of America's one million adult Indians

Indians who land in New York and other big cities are often advised by relatives and friends to be wary of Blacks The word, kallu, becomes their mantra They are rarely warned about the Mafia, the White-collar crime on Wall Street, the drug cartels or sexual diseases

Many Blacks are aware of the derogatory word we use "Isn't it an irony that some of the best known Black leaders including Martin Luther King were inspired by Mahatma Gandhi while some of Gandhi's own people are so racially prejudiced," asks Teresa White, a peace activist shorts," says Angela Pinto "We were all victioms of dotbusters "

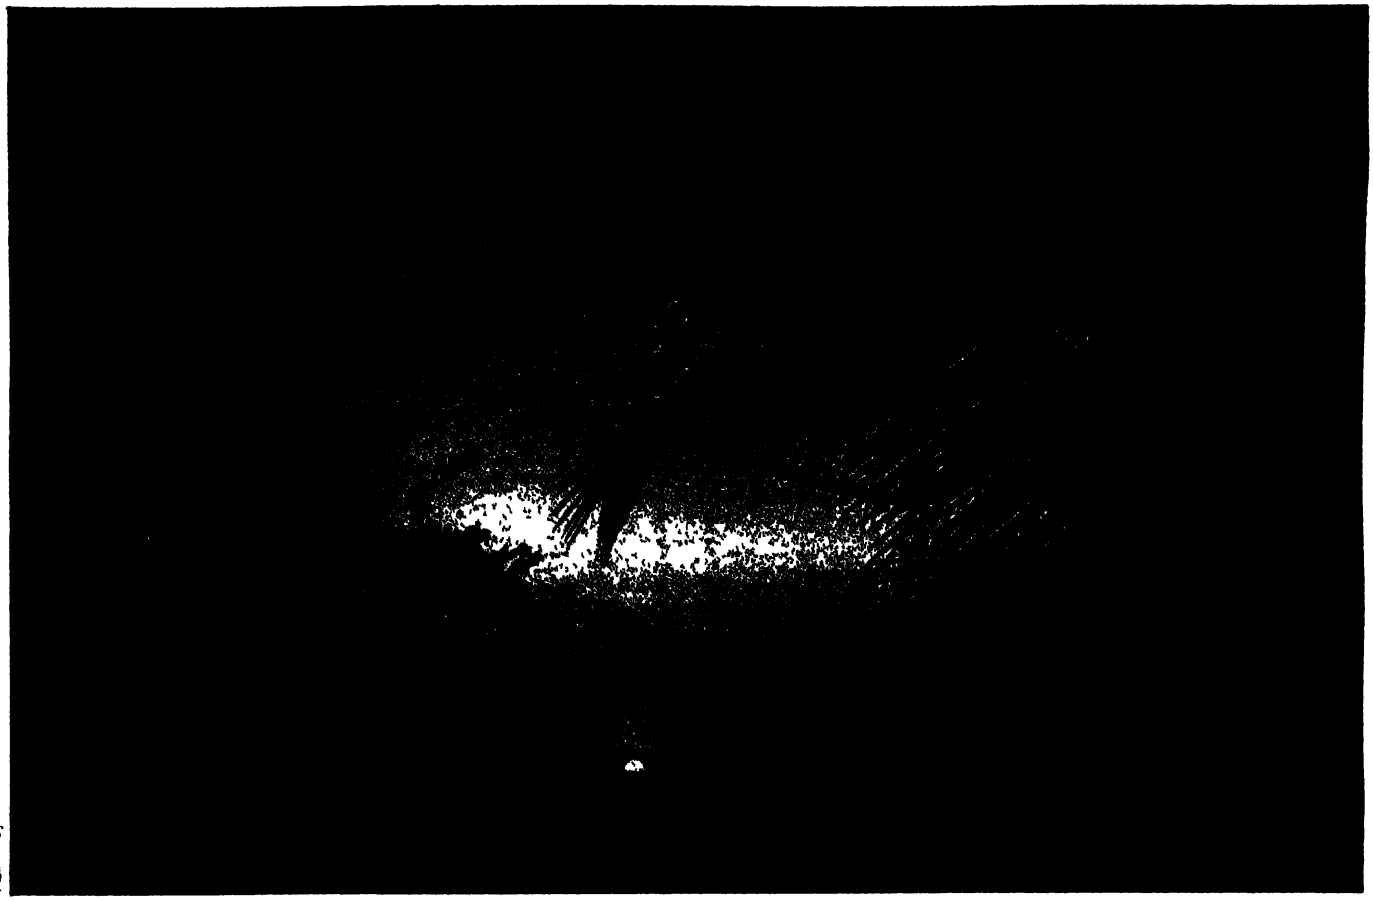
But community leaders and historians point out that racism which has been an integral part of America from the very beginning of its history as a White nation has been directed against Indians as early as the beginning of this century

"Often people whose ancestors were discriminated against, and in some cases beaten up, go about repeating those crimes against others," says a young cab driver in Elizabeth, New Jersey, which has more than 2,000 Indian families He comes from an Italian family, and his grandfather edited his Italian name to ward off the acute prejudice against Italians

"But today many of the young Italians in this town have started beating up young Indian kids, accusing them of robbing their jobs," says the cabbie "They forget that hundreds of Indian shops and restaurants, real estate businesses and small factories have also created jobs "

On weekends, he worked for an Indian cloth importer "The money I make on weekends is often more than the money I make the rest of the week from driving the cab," he said

Hundreds of Indians who arrived in British Columbia and Washington State in response to advertisements in the Indian newspapers for workers for timber yards and farms were spat upon by the local people



In Bellingham, over 200 town people protested against the arrival of 25 timber workers from India 'Dirty Hindus Go Back and Worship the Rats,' read one placard

"Given these factors, does it not make sense we join hands with other minorities to fight racism," asks Arun Gandhi "Of course, we should also join hands with Whites who are concerned about racism "

Last week as I went for another checkup for my eye, a young Black woman sat next to me in the doctor's waiting room We began a small chat She said she was mugged several days ago by a group of boys in their early teens

"There are all kinds of violence in our society, and White teenagers also loot and kill," she said "But I feel like telling the Black boys who beat me that they are bringing a bad name to thousands of other Blacks who work hard, who are upright in their morals, and who help people around them The world hardly seems to notice us "■

Selected by Jayanta Mahapatra

Asim Roy

The Making of Man

All of us together build children

Parents shower affection
Children become orphans

Teachers teach, children become illiterates
Government provides employment,
children become unemployed

Priests give sermons, children become fanatics

Leaders talk of patriotism, children become terrorists

All of us together build men

Ramesh Piatap
(Translated from Oriya by Rabindra K. Swain)

A Letter to Father

Since you left us
The world hasn't changed much
The same headlines,
Scam, scum, JKLF and NSCN
Only some more have been killed
The situation tense but under control

Another woman has alleged Sexual harassment in the States
One more, Marilynesque,
Claims she had slept with the President.
That gay singer has married,
And has promised to raise a family

Death has sucked in
Their bellies, cheeks and eyes,
Rwanda in Kalahandi.
Only the BBC correspondent
Is kept at bay

But I just remembered
You were not interested in these

The roses in your tubs
Have dried into black sticks
Thorns bloom -- your Sons forgot to water them

The bees have fled the hive
Inches above where you
Used to pray.

Another Rathayatra
Came nad went,
And the oblong flag fluttered on
As ever, which you used to notice from the Far off railway station, Malatipur

Only that uncouth Lord of yours
Appeared to be smiling a little less

Yes, he smiled less
You were his best devotee
And for once in
Eighty years you
Weren't around

Sumanyu Satpathy

SIDDHARTH KAK is filmmaker, art and film critic, journalist and editor of Cinema Vision India. As one whose range stretches from environment to history, and from Baba Amte to Raj Kapoor, Kak is today a household name as the beaming anchorperson of Surabhi, for which he bagged a series of awards including the first Screen-Panasonic Award (best TV production) recently Kak's Surabhi has proved that non-soap can also receive a record-breaking 4 5 lakh letters for one contest and has a regular response of a lakh letters

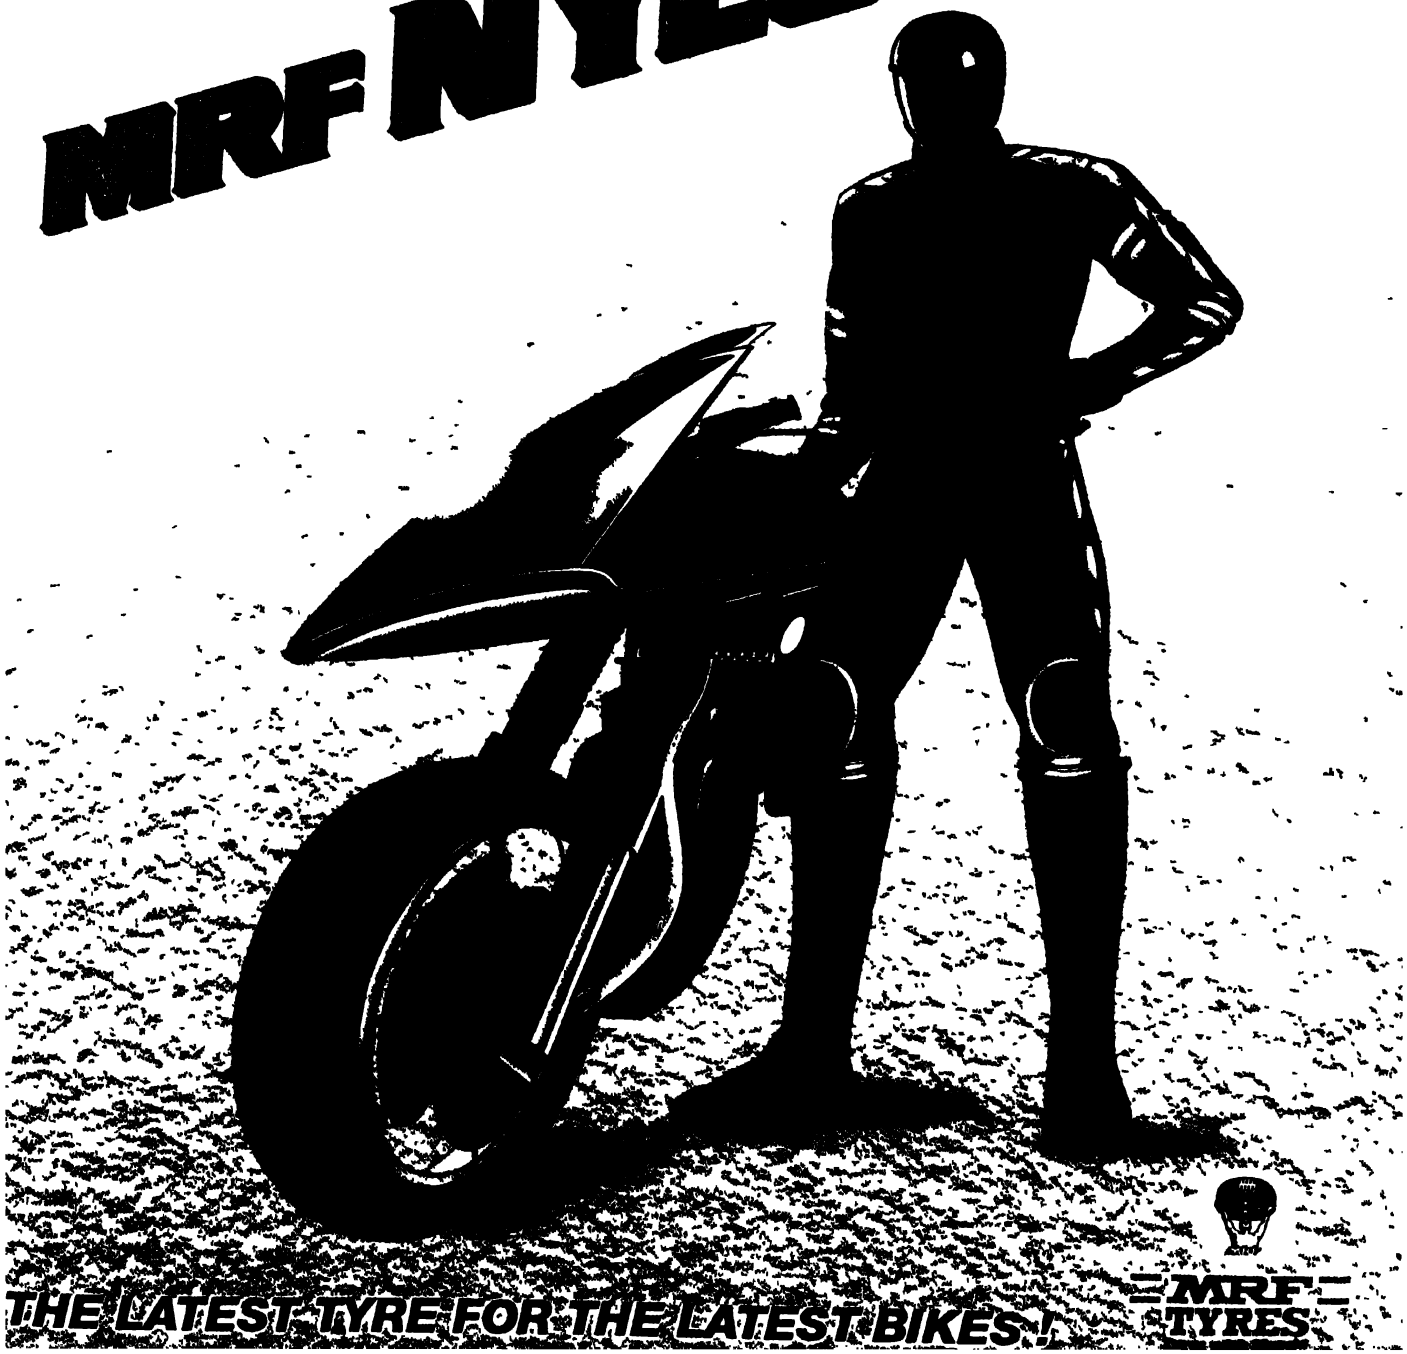
What is your idea of perfect happiness?
A mist-covered morning and alone in the mountains
What is your greatest fear?
Not being able to provide for my family
Who or what has been the greatest influence in your life?
My grandfather, Pandit Ram Chandra Kak, an enormously learned man and the last Prime Minister of Kashmir
What do you dislike most in others?
Arrogance and pomposity
What do you dislike most in yourself?
My moodiness
What is your most precious possession?
My mind
What objects do you always carry?
My pen, paper and my battered diary of events
What makes you most depressed?
Deceit or deception
What do you dislike most on your appearance?
My thinning hair and expanding waistline
What is your favourite word?
Perhaps
What is your favourite journey?
From Delhi to Kashmir by road I relive my youth
What is your favourite dream?
To be surrounded by creative people and creative artistes
What is your nightmare?
To be alone without love

On what occasions do you lie?

To keep the peace!

What brings tears to your eyes?



The fact that my parents who worked so hard, are not around to enjoy the fruits of my success

What or who is the greatest love of your life?
Books The world of imagination
What is your source of sustenance?
My wife and daughter
On what occasions do you lie?
To keep the peace!
What is your greatest regret?
I should have learnt a performing art — vocal or instrumental

What has been your happiest moment?
The first day Surabhi was telecast
What brings tears to your eyes?
The fact that my parents who worked so hard, are not around to enjoy the fruits of my success
How do you relax?
By reading and entering a different world
What do you envy most in others?
Clarity of purpose
How would you like to be remembered?
As a man who loved his people and country and gave it a place of pride in whatever little way he could
How would you like to die?
With my family beside me

THE MAN.
THE MACHINE..
THE TYRE...
MRF NYLOGRIP

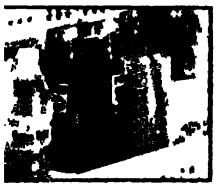
THE LATEST TYRE FOR THE LATEST BIKES !

MRF TYRES

Presenting the new Cold Gold Deluxe.

The ide[illegible] beauty with an accent on ut[illegible]

Soft looks.
All white interiors.
And very, very flexible.



The only 165 lt refrigerator in its class with a soft look and all white interiors. From the flush recessed door handle to the crystal clear vegetable and butter trays, th[illegible] refrigerator says it all in terms of style. Besides sporting a whole new host of flexible features. Like the new shelf-flap.

That can be raised to create room for additional bottles. Or even a tall jug. A snugger. Which holds your bottles in place. So they don't shake or tumble when you close the door.

There's even an extra mini-shelf on the door. To hold small items. Or the odd chocolates.

And the moisture control. Which lets you adjust the moisture level in your vegetable crisper. So vegetables stay fresh longer. Plus adjustable shelves that let you design the interiors of your Cold Gold Deluxe. The way you want it.

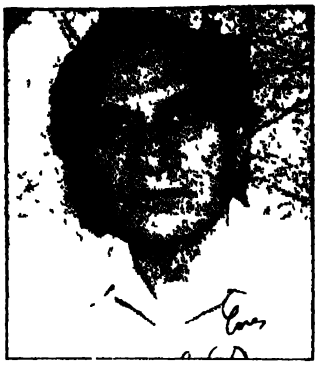
What's more, all this comes with the advantages of PUF.

The new Cold Gold Deluxe from Godrej.

Any way you look at it, it's a winner.

Godrej REFRIGERATORS

THE PROMISE OF GOOD LIVING



COLD GOLD Deluxe

THE FLEXIBLE REFRIGERATOR

28 MAY 1995

The Telegraph

POST MORTEM

B R Chopra

From a Close Friend

■ The cover story on Sahir Ludhianvi made me feel nostalgic ('Timeless', March 12)

My mind goes back to the days when Sahir and I worked together. Our partnership lasted over two decades, ending only with his untimely death.

Sahir was not a mere poet, he was an institution. I was drawn to him through his Talkhiyan and since I was engaged in making socially significant movies I felt, and rightly so, that Sahir was the only man who could drive home the message of my films through his meaningful and poignant poetry.

I had not read the poem, Ma, earlier. What depth and what emotion! What irony! Even in this poem he brings in his favourite subject, that of communal peace.

Sahir contributed a lot to the lyrical value of my films — the music directors notwithstanding. It is not true that Sahir used to dictate to the producers on the selection of situations or insisted on his own kind of lyrics.

On the contrary, he was a director's man. He insisted on knowing the story in detail with all the nuances so that he could do poetic justice to the situations in the story.

I remember that only once after hearing the story of Sadhna he suggested a situation be found for the lyric — Aurat ne janam diya mardon ko.

Ours was a deep relationship based on mutual respect and mutual understanding. It could not have lasted 23 years had it not been based on strong and meaningful ties of the heart.

He was not only a lyricist for me, but a great friend. He was the first man who complimented me for not including any song in Kanoon which only shows that he was a real artiste.

You have paid a fitting tribute to him. I salute my departed friend and colleague who was a great poet, a great man and a great legend.

B R Chopra,
Bombay

Let's Face it...

■ Despite all the criticism, you have produced another cover story on models — the two Reddy sisters (Meghana and Sushama) who have stormed the glamour world ('The Sisters are Reddy', April 16).

Have you ever thought of giving the readers a cover story on male models? Or, for that matter, on body-builders?

But all said and done, your stories on the fashion world do give us the pleasure of whiling away our Sunday afternoons in absolute leisure.

Manoranjan Das,
Jamshedpur

■ With the opening up of the economy and the entry of MNCs wanting to capture a cash-rich market, the very concept of advertising has undergone a sea change.

At least to satiate our academic interest we should find out what transformations are taking place in the modelling world.

Nilanjan De,
Silchar

Booms in the Valley

■ One wonders how many of the leaders wanting to effect a solution in the Kashmir Valley are actually emotionally involved with the state and its problems ('A Hell on Earth', April 9).

Jawaharlal Nehru, for one, loved Kashmir as deeply as perhaps Cordelia loved her father, King Lear. "I speak," Panditji had once said, "not as a Prime Minister but as a Kashmiri."

In July 1947 when he was requested by several of his colleagues not to go to Kashmir, Nehru wrote to Mahatma Gandhi, "Between visiting Kashmir and being Prime Minister, I prefer the former."

The sense of insecurity and alienation that has crept into the psyche of the Kashmiris is more due to these half-hearted attempts of the government to solve the problem.

Choton Banerjee,
Calcutta

■ The government should stop blaming other countries for fomenting trouble in Kashmir. It is time to rectify past errors.

Saif Ahmed Rauf,
Calcutta

Roshan Seth

PAGE 4

ROSHAN SETH and Hollywood sex bomb Raquel Welch have set the British theatre ablaze — for different reasons. A chat with the Indian 'reject', best known for his Nehruvian features.

PAGE 26

HAS THE British Navy's decision to allow women to go to sea proved disastrous?

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
18 RUSKIN BOND
19 GILLIAN
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
29 IN
30 FIRST PERSON

Cover: Rajesh Kumar

COVER STORY

LIMELIGHT

Roshan Seth has all eyes on him in a new play in Britain — despite Raquel Welch throwing herself on top of him every night. How does it feel to be unwanted in your own land, and standing up to Hollywood's celebrated sex symbol? Amit Roy got the actor unwinding

ROSHAN AND RAQUEL HAVE MADE IT BIG IN BRITAIN. AND ROSHAN Seth says his Indian friends are very jealous. The reason is that in the new stage version of George Bernard Shaws's play, The Millionairess, he has had the Hollywood sex symbol, Raquel Welch, throwing herself at him every night.

The play opened in Guildford in April and has toured Richmond, Birmingham, Sheffield, Malvern and Bath. It may transfer to London's West End

In saloon bar language, Seth enthusiastically describes her obvious physical charms: "She's got the biggest...."

His friends, he adds, have been dying to know what Raquel is really like in the flesh, as it were

So here is a relevant bit from the gushing programme guide: "Raquel Welch became an instant icon when she burst on the movie scene in the science fiction classics, Fantastic Voyage and One Million Years BC.

From this unforgettable beginning, she went on to create several lasting motion picture heroines in films such as The Three Musketeers (for which she won a Golden Globe award as best actress), 100 Rifles, The Last of Sheila, Fathom, Hannie Caulder and Mother, Jugs and Speed

In over 35 films, she has tackled a wide variety of roles, from the roller derby queen in Kansas City Bomber to the seductress Lillian Lust in Bedazzled and the outrageous Myra in the underground classic, Myra Breckinridge."

Or, to put her acting talents into proper perspective, she has generally allowed her lowcut dresses to do the talking. And what The Millionairess has achieved is a meeting of two cultures: Hollywood cleavage versus patrician India.

Seth feels his friends would not understand if he were also to voice certain reservations about her acting ability on stage

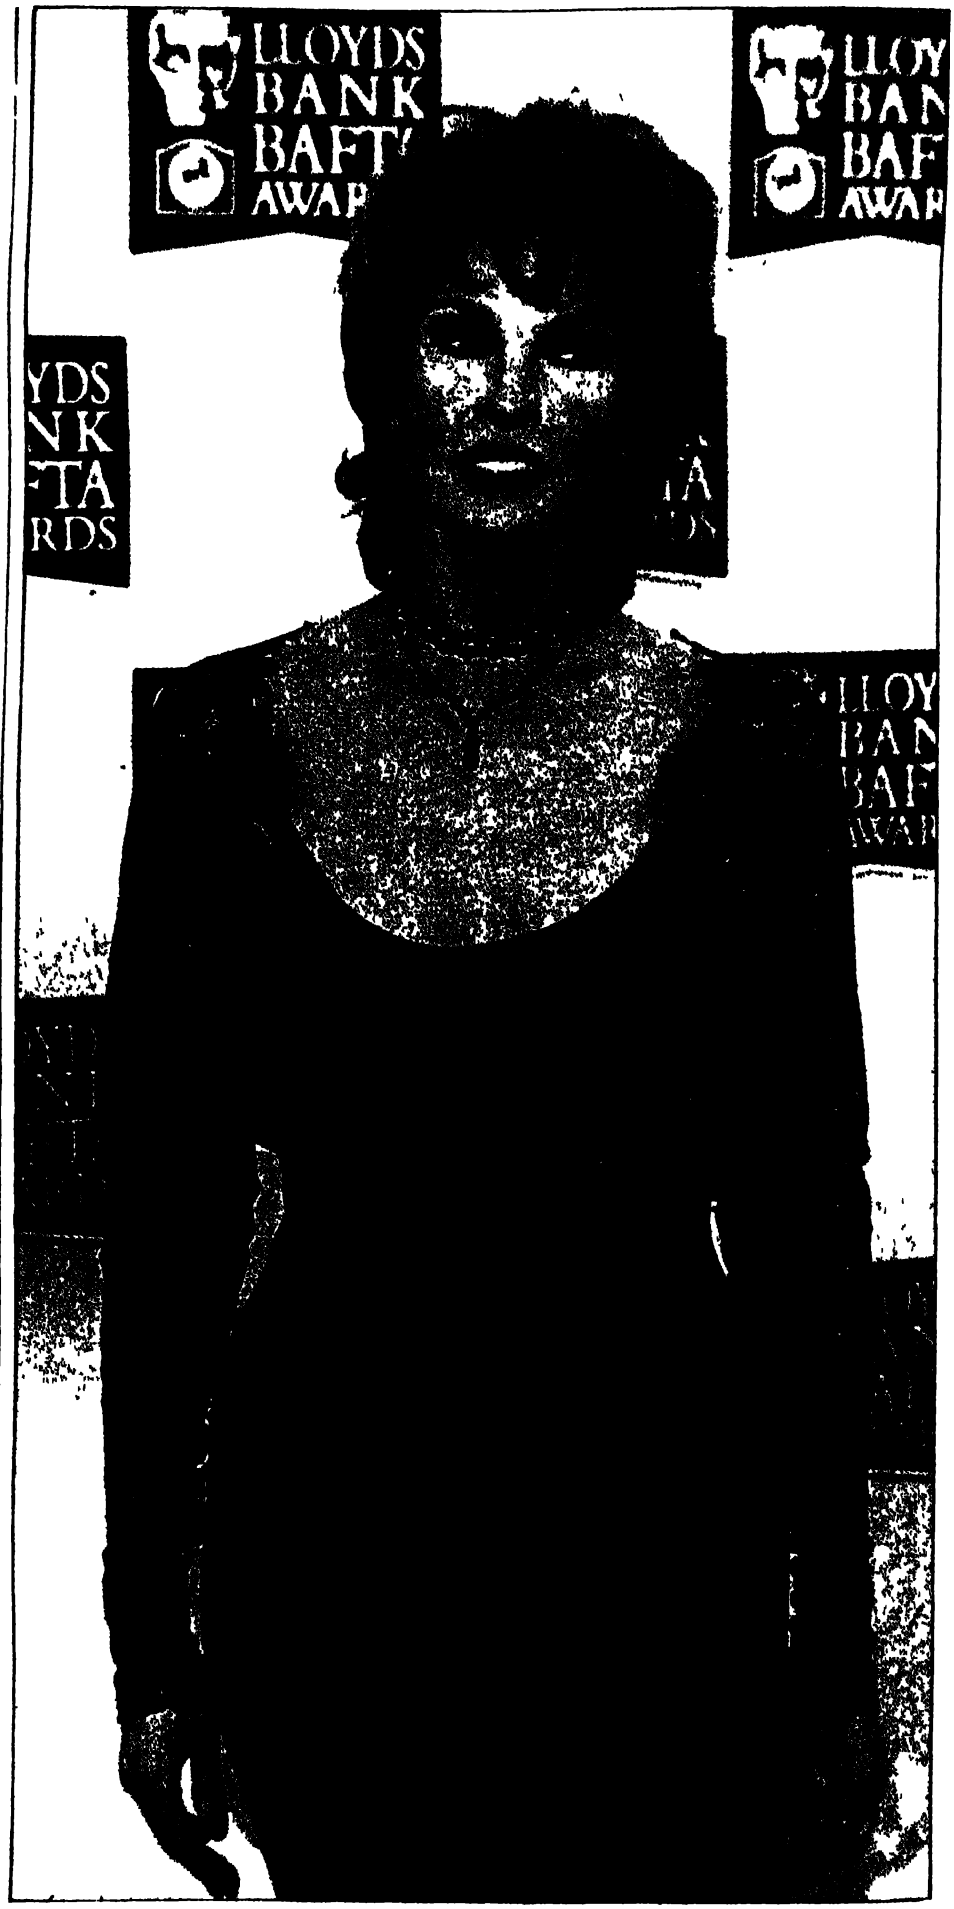
"My Indian friends are going to skin me alive They say, 'Raquel Welch is throwing herself on top of you every night ' How are you coping?"'

In fact, Seth has coped very well indeed, thank you "She enjoys hugely the scenes with the doctor because she feels on safe ground," he explains "You see she is trying to seduce him

And, in the end, she does

The play, written in 1934, is about an American rich bitch, Epifania Fitzfassenden, who is courted by men she finds insipid She is bowled over ultimately by an unlikely suitor —an Indian doctor who works for Allah Initially immune to her advances, he finally falls for her 'pulse' She does all the chasing

In the original, the doctor is an Egyptian, but in the recent play and also in the 1960 film version, which starred Peter Sellers and Sophia Loren, the doctor is an Indian Unlike the film, the stage version is faithful to Shaw's play



"I haven't seen the film mercifully," admits Seth "I was told by the director that the film was a travesty of the play "

He has adhered to Shaw's instructions that the doctor "speaks English too well to be mistaken for a native" Seth is, perhaps, being too generous to English audiences when he suggests that they would have cringed had he tried to reproduce the comical stereotype created by Sellers of how an Indian is supposed to speak English

"The English were very embarrassed by Peter Sellers doing an Indian accent The only people who enjoy Peter Sellers are Indians The English are doubly embarrassed when somebody tries to do an imitation of Peter Sellers doing an imitation of an Indian That is a double travesty "

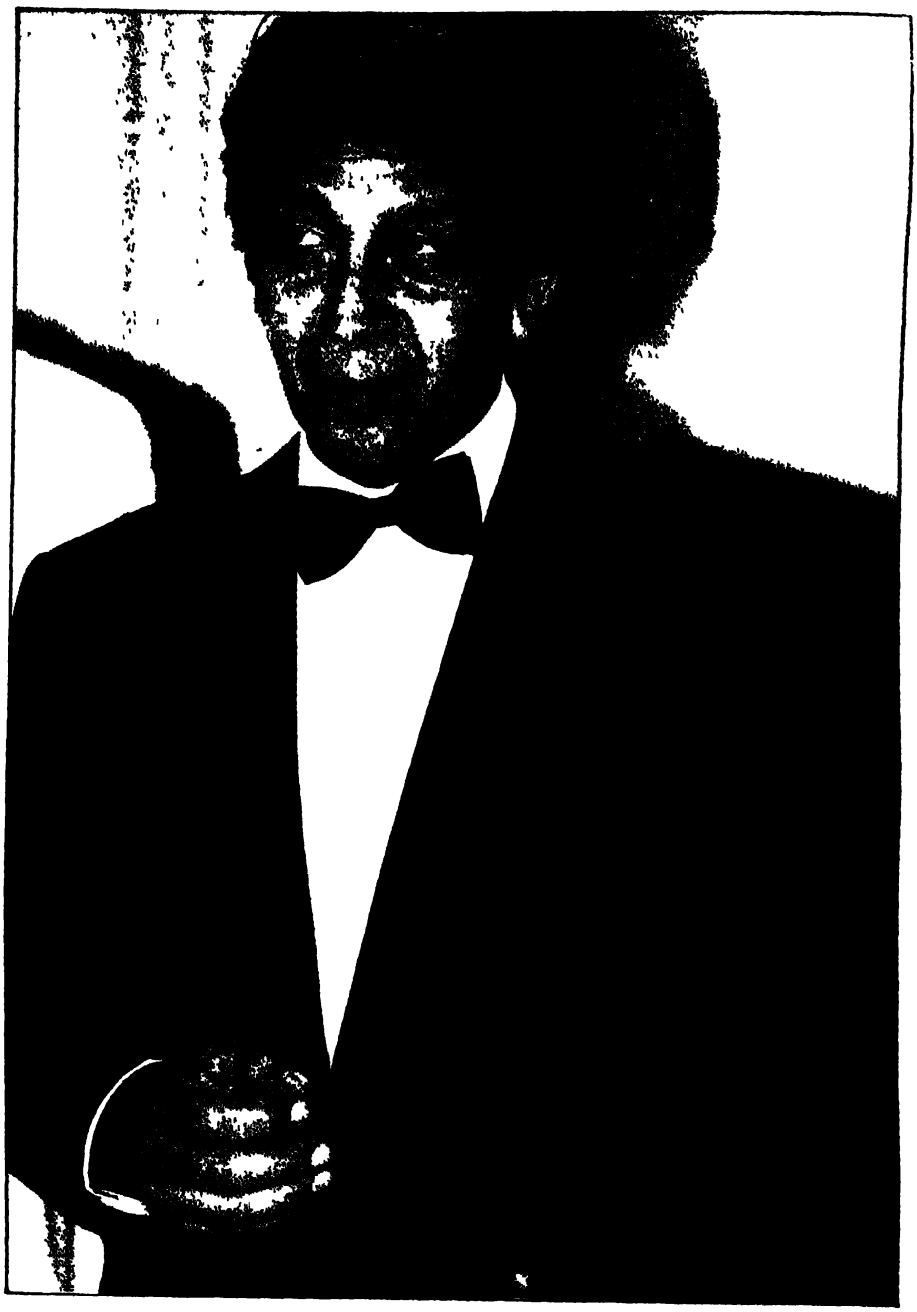
Appearing in such a high-profile role opposite Raquel is obviously doing Seth's career a power of good There are many BBC and Channel 4 dramas in the pipeline now that stories with Indian themes are in vogue with British television Shares in Seth Ltd should be pretty high

He and not Raquel, has been without doubt the real star of The Millionairess Glamorous she might be and invaluable in putting "bums on seats" but her transition to the British theatre has been awkward It is only in the encounter with the doctor that Shaw's play comes alive Without

Seth, the production would probably have been an artistic flop The reviews Raquel received were generally unkind

Though Seth has a long list of TV and theatre credits, he has never before been so much in the public eye "So it is rather exciting to have your name up in lights," he says

In Indian terms, his origins are a real hotchpotch "My mother was born in Bhagalpur in Bihar My mother's mother was English—Weslian Methodist Her father was a Muslim from a village called Uraln near Gaya "



Seth adds "My father came from a Hindu family He was from Lahore and was at Patna Medical College So I am a quarter English I have got all these things floating around "

Roshan, who is 53, was educated in Patna at St Joseph's Convent and St Xavier's School Later he went to Doon His Indian public school English is laced with some earthy Hindi On stage in his elegant sherwani coat, he cuts a handsome figure opposite the voluptuous Raquel

When he arrived in England at 24 to train at the London Academy of Music, Drama and Art (LAMDA), a big proportion of the Indian immigrant population was working class and worked as train drivers, bus conductors or postmen "They were the parts I was getting Now there are Indian professionals "

The irony of Seth's career is that in order to be recognised as a talented actor on the British scene, he quit England after 15 years and returned to India in 1977 There was a time in the Seventies when he was filled with optimism, specially after a world tour with Peter Brook's A Midsummer Night's Dream He had also done the film, Juggernaut, in 1974 with Richard Lester

"I returned to England thinking the world would open up," he recalls "It did not "

Had he remained he fears he would have been forced to make too many cultural compromises "It is horrendously expensive in London I would have to bow and scrape, 'Yes sir, no sir, three bags full,' just to get work "

He feared the insecurities would change him "The tendency is to push and nudge yourself towards the culture in which you live And that pushes you away from who you are and what you are "

When The Millionairess opened in Guildford, he commuted by train from London, and hated it "It is enough to kill anybody It is so boring because it is all so predictable The 14 20 leaves at 14 20 In India it does not "

His opinion of the local English audience which came to the theatre is not flattering, either "They are people making big salaries in London They sit in the train and are all so grey All

'Working with Raquel, you find everything revolves around Raquel. How she is feeling, how she is behaving, what she is saying, what she is not saying.... Raquel cannot walk down the streets to buy a packet of whatever it is. She can't. She won't. She would not be seen dead in the tube....'

their life is squashed out of them When they come to the theatre in the evening they have nothing to give 'The peas are nice, dear,' is probably all they will say to their wives in the evening They are nice people, but they are so exhausted "

Not that he romanticises the chaos of India He prefers to wait for the offers to come in from London "My life in Delhi is very odd It is directionless, almost meaningless I like being there for what it does to my inside, but God, it is a difficult country India is a mess "

But going back, he says, "restored me to myself" It also worked from a professional point of view "I had to go away before anybody in Britain thought I was any worth to them I suppose I became more Indian "

He learnt another lesson "One thing going back to India has taught me is that the less you apologise for who you are the better it is for you Do not forget we have always had a defensive attitude to our history and our civilisation "

An Indian should not be like that, he declares If others do not like the way he is, he should say it is their bad luck

He gave up acting for five years while he edited the India International Centre's quarterly journal He came out of retirement for five months in 1980 to do Jawaharlal Nehru in Richard Attenborough's Oscar-winning Gandhi

"I was going through a very bad personal time A long-standing relationship with a woman was ending "

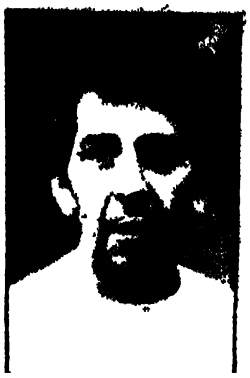
He was finally tempted into the theatre when David Hare offered him a role in A Map of the World in 1982

Since then, British theatres and television directors have shown a much greater willingness to cast him, for example, in the TV adaptation of Hanif Kureishi's The Buddha of Suburbia He was also in Kureishi's My Beautiful Launderette

He has played opposite Sharmila Tagore in Mira Nair's Mississippi Masala He accepts he will be viewed not as an actor, but always as an Indian actor "The reality is that I am always cast as an Indian. And it does not worry me in the least What else will I be cast as? I have accepted the bottom line "

Since he starred in The Millionairess, he has been repeatedly asked what it is like to act opposite one of Hollywood's most desirable sex bombs Her acting, he says, "is getting better"

He adds. "Working with Raquel,



Rajesh Kumar

you find everything revolves around Raquel How she is feeling, how she is behaving, what she is saying, what she is not saying "

He talks with disdain of her 'Hollywood baggage' "Raquel cannot walk down the streets to buy a packet of whatever it is She can't She won't She would not be seen dead in the tube She has umpteen clothes, she has to live in a suite, she has to have a car I would love a car But she costs the producer so much that there is nothing left "

He says that despite all his reservations he gets on with her "To give her her due, she has realised that things are different in this country I rather like the way they are here because it appeals to my personal politics The theatre is very Shavian politically, very Fabianistic, very socialistic Once you enter the stage door everyone is equal "

'The embarrassed by Peter Sellers doing an Indian accent. The only people who enjoy Peter Sellers are Indians. The English are doubly embarrassed when somebody tries to do an imitation of Peter Sellers doing an imitation of an Indian. That is a double travesty'

He will go back in due course to Delhi, which he points out is not an option open to the new generation of British-born Asian actors For them he

BEING THERE

Roshan Seth is not the only actor from India working in Britain. However, he is exceptional--he has been appearing in mainstream British theatre

Other Indians are being given new opportunities in the United Kingdom — thanks to the pioneering work in the state by British Asians It is a point that is usually forgotten

For example, Anupam Kher and his wife will shortly stage a performance of Saalgirah at the Waterman's Arts Centre in West London, a venue which specialises in Asian cultural events

Later this year, Naseeruddin Shah will come to Britain for the Tara Arts production of Cyrano de Bergerac. In the past, Shabana Azmi who had a part in the film, Madame Sousatzka, has performed in a stage version of Tumhari Amrita with Farooque Sheikh.

Indian actors come to Britain partly for recognition and partly for the money (though the theatre pays poorly compared with film or television)

For Brothers in Trouble, a BBC TV drama about immigrants to be broadcast in autumn, two Bombay actors, Om Puri and Pavan Malhotra, joined 16 British Asian men in the cast Shashi Kapoor whose numerous credits include Heat and Dust and In Custody, is expected to be included in a film version of Gulliver's Travels

When BBC Radio 4 dramatised The Ramayan last year, he was in the cast So was Nitish Bhardwaj, best known as Krishna in Mahabharata

The Bombay actress, Padmini Kolhapure, who hit the headlines when she kissed Prince Charles many years ago during a trip to India by the heir to the British throne, has announced she is opening an acting school in London

Now that British television is taking an interest in stories with an Asian theme, demand for Indian actors is growing. Those deemed to have a 'genuine' Indian accent have a better chance of being cast British-educated Asian actors, who speak with London, Birmingham or other regional accents, have to make an extra effort to sound like 'real Indians'.

American actors, too, come to Britain, and the big names are considered invaluable in filling the theatre — "putting bums on seat" Raquel Welch's predecessors have included Dustin Hoffman (as Shylock in The Merchant of Venice), Ralph Fiennes (as Hamlet) and Richard Dreyfuss (who directed Hamlet).

Shabana Azmi and Farooque Sheikh in Tumhari Amrita

predicts a passage rougher than the one he suffered

"They were born here, educated here, they are going to work here as actors and as Indians Now what is Indian about them other than their names? Other than the colour of their hair and some vague geneological connection with the subcontinent? Nothing They are British "

They are unlikely to be given mainstream roles or even Asian ones, he says "A man with a brown skin and black hair who sounds like a Cockney is an odd dish An English director would not consider him Indian enough "

Asian actors in Britain cannot benefit from the kind of integrated casting that had become commonplace in America, he argues "Unless things get to that stage in Britain they are not going to make it "

In her debut film, One Million Years BC, 1966, a superhit, which she now calls 'a turkey'

The only solution, as he sees it, is for Asian writers to create more parts for Asian characters to reflect the reality of multicultural Britain "The best way is for Asians to write the stuff"

And what of his own future?

One of his ambitions is to direct a film for Indian television based on Shashi Tharoor's collection of short stories, Five Dollar Smile "One is about a village girl set in Kerala The two are set in Calcutta, one called Aunty Rosie and another called Political Murder

He has been in Kashmakash directed by Chandra Narang for Zee TV "I've also done something for Sai Paranjpye for TV"

He feels frustrated that his talents have not been fully appreciated

"Nobody approaches me for anything They just do not seem interested in my kind of work"

He is also dismayed by the rise of the Shiv Sena and the Bharatiya Janata Party "Why have we got it all wrong? We are intolerant We are getting more and more fundamentalist"

He refuses to be caught up in the satellite television craze "The Indians are like atomic particles frantically charging around Everybody is saying, 'Arre yaar, satellite aa raha hai' But there is no trained personnel, no writers and big holes everywhere"

He feels unwanted "Someone like me is totally marginalised in India An English speaking Indian is a total irrelevance There is no Bombay producer who has rung me up"

But would he do a Bollywood movie, given he cannot stand the chaos of the industry?

He nods "I would, just for the fun of it"

CAVEWOMAN TURNS MILLIONAIRESS

Still sensuous (and still difficult) at 54, Raquel Welch fulfils her ambition of being in the theatre, says Megan Tresidder

In 1966, a big-bosomed girl from San Diego stepped on to the big screen dressed as a cavewoman in a furry bikini, in a film called One Million Years BC

She said four words and became an international sensation

Nearly 30 years later, Raquel Welch is playing the part of the filthy rich Epifania Fitzfassenden in George Bernard Shaw's The Millionairess She keeps her clothes on, and has plenty of dialogue, and the critics have panned her

The lesson, she says, is clear The critics will always try to flatten her "because I am Raquel Welch"

We meet at a hotel in the middle of London If Raquel Welch could be judged on her entrances alone, she would win an Oscar She arrives, skittering across the marble floor in fishnet stockings and high-heeled ankle boots The effect is of a lost deer wearing lip-liner

At 54, she is still very beautiful, with a voluptuous mouth pencilled in two tones of trembling pink Her skirt is a brief flounce of pleats, as short as the one she wore three years ago to the wedding of her son, Damon

Welch is a surprise She has a good sense of humour (her best parts have been comic, such as the role of D'Artagnan's lover in The Three Musketeers), and she can be self-deprecating One Million Years BC, she says, was a 'turkey' and she had vowed she would never do another And did she? "I've done plenty," she drawls

Then there is the matter of the fountain, splashing noisily by our table in the restaurant I move the tape recorder as far from it as possible Raquel goes one better and gets the fountain turned off

Then there is the menu A menu is conventionally a list of options, but Raquel treats the menu itself as optional She settles for Chicken Caesar Salad but later, surveying the choice of tea, coffee, herbal infusions, and decaffeinated, she looks the head waiter in the eye and asks for a cup of bouillon As he scuttles off, she says, grinning "Isn't it terrible to have such power over the kitchen?"

Raquel says that appearing in The Millionairess represents a life-long ambition "I always had a plan, which I am now fulfilling, to be in the theatre I just ended up doing everything backwards"

And, it must be said, slowly Welch took 32 films to make the move "That is a little uncharitable," she replies "It is a question of the right material There has not been anything since I did Woman of the Year (the Broadway musical in which she was a hit in 1981) which I have found exciting or interesting enough"

The Millionairess, she says, is a chance to vindicate herself and 1995, she says, will finally scotch One Million Years BC "That chick who was only allowed to come out of her trailer to say the line, 'Me Loana, you Tumak' is now dead"

Since her early twenties, she has had a reputation for speaking her mind and getting her way James Mason, her co-star in the 1972 film, The Last of Sheila, called her "the most selfish, ill-mannered, inconsiderate actress that I have ever had the displeasure to work with"

"I suppose I can be difficult," she says "I am very opinionated, very involved in what I do and like to get my fingers into every little thing Some people do not like that because I have a lot of ideas and I will not shut up I have lots of ideas about the scripts It is just my nature, and you can imagine the effect when I brought that nature to the set of One Million Years BC

'I suppose I can be difficult,' she [Raquel] says. 'I am very opinionated, very involved in what I do and like to get my fingers into every little thing. Some people do not like that because I have a lot of ideas and I will not shut up'

'Sex is power' she says, with Roshan Seth in The Millionairess and (inset) in her earlier days

"Whenever I spoke up, they said, 'Just shut up Go to your trailer and wait until we call you' "

Raquel never wanted to be a Bond girl "I could not understand why anyone would want to simper around in the background, just showing up for the kiss I wanted to do more physical things, be more androgynous I spent maybe the first 10 movies trying to get across the message that I was a fighter I said, 'Don't ask me to stand three paces back If you're gonna give me a gun in a movie, let me shoot it Do I have to wait while Burt Reynolds and Jim Brown shoot everybody while I am left standing there, holding the thing by the butt? No! I want to blow somebody away!' "

She was ambitious from the start, encouraged by her mother — an Englishwoman who met her father, an aeronautical engineer from Bolivia, at a Spanish class in Chicago The family moved to California, to a beach town called La Jolla, where Raquel won the Miss Photogenic competition at school and left to work as a TV weather-girl

Then she got pregnant by her high-school sweetheart, a fisherman called Jim Welch They married, had two children, but parted two years later, in 1964, when she was 24 Raquel took the children to Hollywood and worked as a waitress, a tailor's model, and as a billboard girl until she won a bit part in the Elvis Presley film, Roustabout

The film biographies say Welch was launched by her second husband, Patrick Curtis, who marketed her after One Million Years BC, getting her picture onto 200 magazine covers in 1966 "Most of that is garbage," she says "When I met him, he was working in a mailroom somewhere in Los Angeles He was no big honcho He was riding on my coattails But I did not say anything at first I did not want to cut the man's balls off "

That came later, when, after two years of hard work, she slowly realised the partnership was unequal "I had been working six days a week and he had been living off my ass And I said to myself, 'You gotta get this guy out' "

Out went the honcho But her biggest battle came 10 years later, in 1980, when she was sacked from the film Cannery Row by MGM They cited her temperamental behaviour on location, which she denied, arguing that this was a foil to disguise the fact that they had gone over-budget and had to cut costs by getting rid of her

Welch sued MGM and won, with an award of £14 million ($21 million) in compensation But it put her on the Hollywood blacklist "To the big power-brokers, yes, I am an outcast But not to the artistic community — to directors and other actors "

Now, after a third marriage and divorce, she lives alone in Beverly Hills She runs Raquel Welch Productions Inc, working on her latest idea for a film, about mother-daughter relationships She practices yoga, markets her exercise video and fitness book, makes ads for an American sugar substitute, and pursues her alternative career as a singer, appearing occasionally on the Las Vegas cabaret circuit And now there is the theatre

"I have always wanted to do the classics," she says Shakespeare would be wonderful, she adds, but she has first to acclimatise theatre audiences to Raquel Welch, classical actress

Raquel's cup of bouillon is long since drained and she has to go There is just time left to ask her about the verdict of Camille Paglia, the feminist writer, that Raquel Welch is the role model for all feminists "Raquel Welch," Paglia says, "represents all the pagan ideals of sensuality and glamour that contemporary feminism has prudishly edited out of its vision of female power "

She is, says Paglia, proof that the future for modern women lies in celebrating their sexiness, not hiding it

"Why not?" responds Raquel, triumphantly "Sex is power!"

(The Guardian)

INNER EYE ❑ Bejan Daruwalla

Aries

March 21—April 20

Ganesha says the new moon makes you very enterprising, "full of valour and daring" News, views, letters, calls, appointments, meets, conferences, hold the key to your future, and definitely so May 28 and June 3 offer glorious opportunities So gear up for this promising phase

Taurus

April 21—May 20

Your planetary ruler, Venus, helps you to live well, earn better, get along with people Deals and contracts will be signed Once again it is buying, selling, and distributing time The problems regarding loans, mortgage and funds will be resolved shortly

Gemini

May 21—June 20

Give life your best shot That means you should work with a will and expect success, find time to enjoy yourself and develop a hobby You could socialise, call friends over, enlist in clubs and do some charity to help others It is time to reach your full potential

Cancer

July 21—July 20

You will be in an introspective mood Restlessness and anxiety could possess you Travel, trips may be expected Or, you will be seeing a lot of visitors, relatives and foreigners For astrologers, poets, teachers, writers, this is a week of inspiration Expenses will hit the roof

Leo

July 21—August 21

Friends will love you, enemies will be out to vilify you, do you in, scuffles and sword play can be expected This is indeed an enormously exciting but uneven week, the highs and lows to be sure New ties probably at the cost of old ones, are destined and should therefore happen

Virgo

August 22—September 22

The new moon and Mars combine to energise you However, there is a strong possibility of clashes, court cases and conflict of interest Changes on the home front and on the work front are ordained Many Virgoans will be in for a new direction, a different purpose

Libra

September 23—October 22

Health and expenses could well be the bugbears, the disadvantages for Librans On the positive side, journeys, ceremonies, rites, rituals, functions and celebrations find you in your element News from distant lands and collaborations are foretold

Scorpio

October 23—November 22

You will have to work at top speed to finish pending assignments and start new ones Once again, loans, funds, monetary dealings and considerations, education and communication are strongly indicated This is a week of fast scoring and steady application And rewards too

Sagittarius

November 23—December 20

Wedding bells, sweet and clear, peal for you Alternatively, it could very well imply partnerships at all levels and marriage is the most personal Separations and legal battles are however very likely Changes in work patterns, danger to parents and in-laws are foretold

Capricorn

December 21—January 19

A little care at work and in health could save you a lot of necessary problems and headaches Ganesha says May 28 and June 1 and 3 should work in your favour Pets and colleagues need to be handled gingerly and tactfully Loans may have to be returned An uneven week

Aquarius

January 20—February 18

The drive to go ahead, the patience to be at it, the inspiration to be creative will all be there Success will attend upon your efforts Those interested in research, childbirth, hobbies and extra-curricular activities find happiness and fulfillment Trips and ties indicated

Pisces

February 19—March 20

You could go in for renovation, decoration and refurbishing of the home and office which are the dominant trends now You will have much to do with elders, parents and in-laws Many of you will be pining for new and greener pastures Mood fluctuations will be tremendous

B I R T H D A Y S

May 28: Moon-Saturn sextile leads to a new awareness of goals and values, and with that comes a better perception of life Efforts will lead to positive results

May 29: The new moon makes you active and alert. You will thus grab the opportunities and the chances that come your way Wedding bells for the eligible

May 30: Mercury-Moon conjunction gives you the creative impulse, which could be applied in a million directions Ganesha says this phase favours teachers and creative people

May 31: Moon-Mars sextile leads to a burst of energy, intense concentration and possibly, adaptability While there will be opposition, you should make it

June 1: Moon-Venus sextile helps women in general, fashion designers, models, film stars and those into cosmetics If there is a money squeeze at times, do not give it much importance

June 2: Moon trine Saturn and Pluto could lead you to success. A wish fulfillment comes your way and that is well deserved Financially, your bank balance shows an upsurge

June 3: Moon trine Jupiter makes you lucky, giving you the capacity to enjoy the good fortune Those in arts and corporations do well

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S  COLUMN

THE SEEDS OF A MOVEMENT

In the Himalayan foothills of Tehri Garhwal, new varieties of rice, wheat and potatoes green the valleys and terraced fields, promising wealth and access to the cash economy

But some farmers feel uneasy with this change, seeing it as a threat to their agricultural heritage Longing to turn the tables on history, they have started the Bij Bachao Andolan, a movement to save the seeds of the past Recently, they were persuaded to overcome their distrust of outsiders, take the bus to the Capital and put their hoards on display

Laid out were 110 varieties of rajma, as beautiful as jewels — black with a white lip, pink with black patches, yellow, cream and green, in a great profusion of shapes and sizes In small jars were some of the 126 varieties of native rice they have collected, 35 types of millet, nine of horse gram and nine of wheat

"Can I buy some?" I asked

'Buy some?" replied one of the moustached men behind the counter, scandalised "We have not come here to sell"

Kindly, though, he handed me a Garhwali datun, not of neem but of a thorny plant called temru I looked at it rather dubiously, and began to examine the innumerable seeds, ginger roots and other crops before me Soon several yeomen of Garhwal gathered around to expalin how they were going to stop modern agriculture in its tracks and return to their traditional systems of farming I asked Kunwar Prasun, the most vocal of them, how big the movement was

He looked me straight in the eyes and replied with great pride, "There must be six or seven of us"

His confidence in the face of overwhelming odds was disarming, but even he was underestimating the movement's strength Six or seven whole families have, in fact, dedicated themselves to collecting and preserving traditional and fast disappearing varieties of hill crops

"Vijay Jardhari started it," said Kunwar Prasun, introducing a softly spoken man with lively eyes, "He saw that new hybrids cannot survive long without expensive chemical fertilisers and pesticides Then you have to keep buying new seed stock So then Vijay turned back to local seeds, just using cow manure for fertiliser and no pesticides He did well, and we joined him "

They have had to work hard to collect seeds

"So many old crops just cannot be found any more," said Vijay "And once they are gone, no one can recreate them in a factory So we go deep into the interiors where some farmers still use traditional seeds and collect as many as we can We travel through Tehri, Uttarkashi, some parts of Pitoragarh Often farmers gift us seeds, but if they want some payment, we give it

None of the action group seemed to have any formal agricultural training, but they talked passionately about the dangers of being restricted to seeds with a narrow genetic base, specially in a country like India where growing conditions vary so widely

"We all have two or three acres of land — and we do not want a seed museum, we want them living — so we divide them among us and sow some of each We sow most widely the types which can match the hybrids, yield for yield No one publicises this, but there are many that do "

He gave me a handbill listing a host of higher-yielding varieties — thapachini rice 72 quintals per hectare, jhumkya 68 per hectare

None of the action group seemed to have any formal agricultural training, but they talked passionately about the dangers of being restricted to seeds with a narrow genetic base, specially in a country like India where growing conditions vary so widely

They were adamant that chemical fertilisers depleted the soil, making it 'addicted' Self-sufficiency is their central philosophy — the villains in their eyes being all those who have made hill farmers dependent on outsiders

"In our villages," said Kunwar Prasun, "you could have cartloads of rice carried into your grain store, but you were never considered prosperous until you grew a good crop of baranaja," 12 grains grown together Millet was the main among them — that was for bread — then there were pulses and sesame was the oilseed These gave you a balanced diet

"Now these scientists come and tell us to sow soyabeen instead of baranaja But soyabean, no matter how much protein it has, will go to the factory and not stay in the village Then before we grew chaulai, a spinach, now they say grow just peas But peas will not stay in the village either, they will go to hotels in the plains

"As for the dwarf varieties of rice, they do not give the fodder our cattle need So the old links between cattle and fields are breaking down The jungles have gone far from us, and when we need fodder we are given crops which cannot produce it "

I glanced through their handbill again The words, 'multinational companies', also occurred with great frequency What then was their own political philosophy?

"To stay far away from all politicians," says Prasun, "we are a movement and stand for lokniti not rajniti We don't even have official members — but we do have some slogans — Yeh lo apne bij aur khad, In se kheti hai barbad," he concluded with a grin

"Apni kheti apni khad, apna bij apna swad," chipped in Raghuvir Singh, a geography student and farmer, full of enthusiasm For him, the movement is inspiring "It is all a part of my mental development which is going on in all directions, he said "And I know we will succeed "

And had they enjoyed their visit to Delhi, I asked

"It is a difficult city, Delhi," commented stubbly-faced Dayal Bhai, who stood wearing a woollen khadi jacket and jeans

He and his companions laughed, and I picked up my datun and left, sure that if dedication and teamwork meant anything, their tiny movement would take root

(Sanctuary Features)

Illustration Subrata Gangopadhyay

TIME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

■ AGARTALA

Departures Flt No	Time	Days	Arrivals Flt No	Time	Days
IC 741	0620	1 3 4 6	IC 742	0850	1 3
			IC 742	1050	4 6
IC 743	0920	daily	IC 744	1150	daily
PF 701	1130	1 3 5 7	PF 702	1610	1 3 5 7

■ AIZAWL

PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7

■ BAGDOGRA

PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1
PF 737	0730	3 5	PF 738	1740	3 5
IC 721	1010	1 2 3 6 7	IC 722	1250	1 2 3 6 7

■ BANGALORE

IC 771	0600	daily	IC 772	1140	daily

■ BHUBANESWAR

IC 544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC 769	1615	2 4 6	IC 770	2120	2 4 6

■ BOMBAY

IC 676	0730	daily	IC 675	0820	daily
D2 102	0905	daily	D2 101	0835	daily
IC 273	1945	daily	AI 306	1840	5
9W 212	1945	daily	9W 211	1910	daily
D2 104	2005	daily	D2 103	1935	daily
AI 309	2035	6	IC-274	1830	daily
AI 681	2350	1

■ DELHI

IC 263	0700	daily	S2 025	0810	1 2 3 4 5 6
S2 016	0815	1 3 4 5 6	M9-303	0825	daily
M9 304	0905	daily	AI 682	0950	1
IC 812	1700	1 3 5	S2 015	1015	1 3 5
S2 016	1555	1 3 5	4S 806	1130	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC 402	1715	daily	IC 401	1155	daily
4S 805	1730	1 2 3 4 5 6	S2 005	1855	1 2 3 4 5 7
			IC 811	2055	1 3 5
S2 006	1930	1 2 3 4 5 7	M9 301	1950	daily
M9 302	2030	daily	IC 264	2210	daily

■ DIBRUGARH

PF 737	0730	3 5	D2 181	1620	1 5 7
D2 181	1145	1 5 7	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	IC 702	1630	1 4 6 7
4S 816	1205	1 3 5	4S 815	1635	1 3 5
IC 701	1240	1 4 6 7	PF 738	1740	3 5

■ DIMAPUR

IC 257	1230	1	IC 257	1605	2 4

■ GUWAHATI

IC 704	0610	1 3 4 5 7	IC 704	0920	1 3 4 5 7
PF 703	0730	1 3 5	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	D2 181	1620	1 5 7
PF 737	0730	1	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2 181	1135	1 5 7	IC 230	1620	daily
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	4S 811	1635	2 4 6
IC 253	1200	1 2 6	PF 736	1730	1
IC 701	1240	daily	PF 738	1730	3 5

■ HYDERABAD

S2 023	1045	1 3 5	S2 024	1525	1 3 5
IC 777	1615	3 5 7	IC 778	2115	3 5 7
IC 769	1615	2 4 6	IC 770	2120	2 4 6

■ IMPHAL

IC 255	0800	3 5 7	IC 256	1250	3 5 7
IC 257	1230	2 4	IC 257	1605	2 4

■ JORHAT

IC 213	0910	4 7	IC 213	1315	4 7

■ LILABARI

PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1

■ LUCKNOW

IC 812	1700	1 3 5	IC 811	2005	1 3 5

■ MADRAS

IC-542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC 765	1720	daily	D2 171	1045	1 2 4 5 6 7
D2 172	1740	1 2 4 5 6 7	IC-766	2220	daily

■ NAGPUR

IC 769	1615	2 4 6	IC 770	2120	2 4 6

■ PATNA

IC 249	1430	2 4 7	S2 015	1015	1 3 5
S2 016	1555	1 3 5	IC 249	1805	2 4 7
IC 812	1700	1 3 5	IC 811	2055	1 3 5

■ PORT BLAIR

IC 285	0640	3 5 7	IC 286	1100	2 4 6

■ RANCHI

IC 249	1430	2 4 7	IC 249	1805	2 4 7

■ SHILLONG

PF-705	0730	2 4 6 7	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7

■ SILCHAR

IC 255	0800	3 5 7	IC 256	1250	3 5 7
IC 253	0800	1 2 6	IC 254	1040	1
			IC 254	1250	2 6

■ TEZPUR

IC 213	0910	4 7	IC 213	1315	4 7

■ TEZU

PF 737	0730	3 5	PF 738	1740	3 5

■ VARANASI

S2 016	1555	1 3 5	S2 015	1015	1 3 5

■ VISHAKHAPATNAM

IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5

■ ZIRO

PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1

FLIGHTS — INTERNATIONAL

■ AMMAN

RJ 185	1345	1	RJ 184	0705	4

■ AMSTERDAM

KL 876	0345	7	KL 875	0135	7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
IC-731	0855	2 4 5 7	KB 106	1020	3
			KB 108	1240	5
KB-105	0850	2 6	TG 313	1240	1 3 6
TG-314	1355	1 3 6	IC-732	1505	2 4 5 7
AI-306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6
BUCHAREST
RO-076	1950	5 7	RO-075	1055	5, 7
CHITTAGONG
IC-225	1200	1	IC 226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2 5	BG-697	1655	2 5
DHAKA
BG 092	0850	4 5	BG 091	0810	4 5
BG-092	1150	1 2 3 6 7	BG 091	1110	1 2 3 6 7
IC-723	1250	1 3 5 6	IC 724	1520	1 3 5 6
BG-094	1905	1 2 3 5 6 7	BG 093	1825	1 2 3 5 6 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG 093	1830	4
BG 096	2100	1 5	BG 095	2020	1 5

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[illegible]
IC-747	1115	1 3 5	IC-748	1455	1 3, 5
RA-214	1815	1 4	RA-213	1715	1 4
[illegible]
BA-142	2050	3 7	BA 143	1525	3 7
[illegible]
SU-538	1755	4	SU 537	1555	4
[illegible]
KB-106	1105	3	KB 105	0810	2 6
KB 106	1325	5
[illegible]
SQ 415	2345	2 5	SQ 416	2230	2 5
[illegible]
LZ 504	1750	4	LZ 503	1650	4
TOKYO
AI 306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure

Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
2311	19 15	Delhi Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19 20	Amritsar Mail	7 55	3006
3003	20 35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13 00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat	16 15	2382
2303	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun	16 15	2304
2301	16 30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun	10 45	2302
2305	13 45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat	12 50	2306
3073	23 00	Himgiri (Jammu Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues Fri & Sat Arr Tues Wed & Sat
5047	13 00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon Wed & Fri	4 30	5048
3009	20 30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9 45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18 15	3008
3049	13 20	Amritsar Express	15 30	3050
3039	21 00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5 20	3040
3019	16 05	Kathgodam Express	11 55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5 00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6 30	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17 11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18 20	Asansol Express	8 45	3036
3031	21 05	Danapur Express	5 50	3032
3025	23 00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday Arr Friday	11 35	3026
3071	22 30	Jamalpur Express	5 10	3072
3015	9 55	Santiniketan Express	15 40	3016
1159	15 25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tues & Wed	6 50	1160
1171	15 25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed Arr Fri Sat & Sun	6 50	1172
3327	14 30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	1 50	3328
1181	15 25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6 50	1182
		Sealdah
3141	13 40	Teesta Torsa Express Dep Mon Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed Thurs Fri Sat & Sun	6 35	3142
3143	19 15	Darjeeling Mail	8 45	3144
3111	20 15	Jaipur Express (Mon)	7 15	3112
5657	6 25	Kanchanjunga Express	20 30	5658
3153	22 00	Gour Express	5 15	3154
5663	20 00	Katihar Express	3 15	5664
3151	11 45	Jammu Tawi Express	15 50	3152
3133	20 55	Mughal Sarai Express via SBG Loop	12 55	3134
3103	18 20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express	10 25	3104
5185	12 40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tue Thu Sat	1 15	3186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure

Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6 50	6004
8002	19 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	3 10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12 00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 10	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	1940	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13 45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express	22 05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5 00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5 30	8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8 25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00	8046
8017	16 45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2401	16 40	Bhubaneswar New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10	—
—	11 05	New Delhi Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2402
6322	22 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15	—
—	14 05	Trivandrum Centra Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 15	6321
—	11 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13 45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15	—
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13 45	6315
6520	22 35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15	—
—	14 05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains please dial 2203545 54 for incoming trains 2203535 44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains dial 2203496 3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running) 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535 37

USKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

BEAR IN THE BALLROOM

The old Savoy Bar had witnessed the passage of many famous celebrities—actors, politicians, business tycoons, beauty queens—and sometimes they merged into one composite personality, vanity being the common factor

But the most unusual visitor was the brown Himalayan bear which wandered in after a heavy snowfall last January During severe winters when food is scarce, wild animals do occasionally wander into the hill-station—remember the leopard that carried off all Landour strays a couple of years ago?

I was sitting on my favourite bar stool (the one that tilts slightly) waiting for the Man-from-Sail to walk in and sign for my drink, when I heard the swing doors open behind me Without bothering to look around I said, "Come on, old chap, you are half an hour late this evening"

All I got in response was a grunt Now, the Man-from-Sail does snore (I have shared a railway compartment with him) but I have never known him to snore standing up!

"In a bad mood?" I asked, and knocking on the counter to attract the attention of the barman, I said, "Get Sail Sahib a whisky-and-soda" The barman came out from behind his cubby hole, looked over my shoulder and let out a shrill cry

I turned then, and saw the bear a few feet away, looking very hairy and threatening Did I ever tell you that I was the 200-metre hurdle champion in my school days? Well, I can assure you that at 60, I have lost none of my speed or skill I was over the bar-counter like lightning, holding hands with the barman, nice boy, but not my type

The bear was now separated from us by the high counter, and not being a high-hurdler itself, began to vent its frustration by flinging bar stools all over the place With great presence of mind, the barman shook himself free of my embrace, picked up the house phone and rang the front office Almost immediately, he got Nandu on the line, and the conversation went something like this

Prakash "Sir, there is a bear in the bar"

Nandu "Make sure you give him a bill"

Prakash "A bear, Sir, not a customer"

Nandu "A bare customer? Did he have too much to drink?"

Prakash "No, Sir Bear,

I turned then, and saw the bear a few feet away, looking very hairy and threatening. Did I ever tell you that I was the 200 metre hurdle champion in my school-days? Well, I can assure you that at 60, I have lost none of my speed or skill. I was over the bar-counter like lightning, holding hands with the barman, nice boy but not my type bhaloo — big, brown bear "

Nandu· "Well, give Mr Bayer a drink and ask Mr Bond to look after him till I get there He is here to arrange a conference Bayer and Bayer, you know They are into cosmetics Very important customers "

Nandu put the phone down and we were left to our own devices

The bear had now discovered a decorated Christmas tree in a corner of the room and he was proceeding to take it apart Paper streamers, tinsel stars and plastic holly were soon festooned over the rampant animal While this mayhem was still in progress, Nandu and the Man-from-Sail entered at the swing doors Wordless, they backed out again and ran for the security guard

The security guard (a retired Havildar from Meerut) carried a muzzle loader which dated back to the Mutiny He rushed into the room and fired at random, shattering the glass of the clock that had been stationary ever since the atom bomb had fallen on Hiroshima The hands now made rapid and seemingly endless revolutions, as though to make up for all the lost years when time had stood still

The bear now rushed at the security guard who left by the swing doors and retreated to the conference room where Nandu and the Man-from-Sail were holding a council-of-war Fortunately for Prakash and me, the bear was able to negotiate the doors, and, finding the lobby deserted, made off down the corridor, stopping at the only occupied room on the ground floor

In residence was Miss Darshini Singh, an up and coming TV producer who was planning to film some of my plain tales from the hills

Miss Darshini had only just arrived from Madras, where she had been making a documentary on crocodiles She was still wearing the Crocodile Dundee hat which had been presented to her by an elderly Australian tourist After crocodiles, bears were small fry to her When the Savoy bear thudded into the door of her room, she flung open the door, clapped her hands and exclaimed, "Oh, how cute! A real live bear! The Man-from-Sail must have arranged it He really is enterprising Now we can do the scene where the bear chases Ruskin Bond up a maple tree!"

The bear had now discovered a decorated Christmas tree in a corner of the room and he was proceeding to take it apart. Paper streamers, tinsel stars and plastic holly were soon festooned over the rampant animal. While this mayhem was still in progress, Nandu and the Man-from-Sail entered at the swing doors. Wordless, they backed out again and ran for the security guard

Miss Darshini's dog Rambo, a Golden Retriever of considerable charm, and character, now rushed at the door, barking furiously Bears are afraid of barking dogs, they do not know what to make of them The visiting bear turned and ran, continuing its journey down the corridors of the Savoy till it found the billiard room

"Oh no, not my billiard cloth!" cried Nandu in genuine distress "It cost me a fortune! Made in Holland, 1922 Of course, I'm not that old," he added as an afterthought

Fortunately the bear bypassed the billiard room, dashing instead, into the old ballroom which was sometimes used for conferences and dinner parties The annual State Bank party was in progress with the commissioner as chief guest No respecter of persons, the bear charged straight through the gathering of dignitaries, upsetting a drinks cart, a drunk, two waiters and a retired Major-General Then entangled in a table cloth ("Do not forget to bill them for it," said Nandu), the uninvited guest dashed off into the night, heading in the direction of Convent Hill But that is a nun's story

(Sanctuary Features)

Today's way of life demands life insurance

Corporate ladder has its own demand - professional excellence You have it Isn't it

Uncertainties and contingencies have their demand too - security Life Insurance provides this to you, your valued employees as well as to your organisation

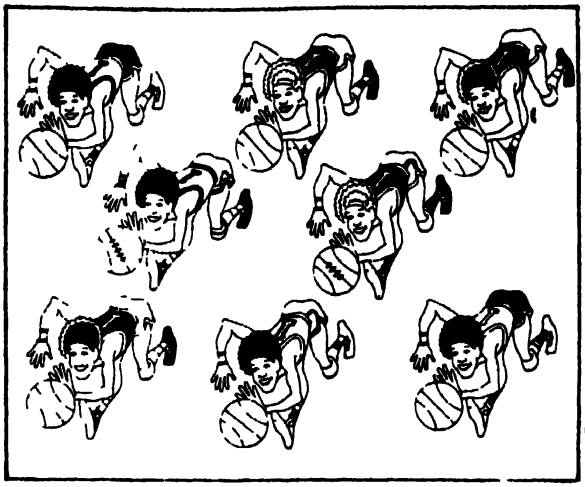
LIC policy guarantees a secure future It is a means of employees' welfare and employees' incentive Salary Saving Scheme is an additional facility

LIC has a variety of Plans to meet your personal and corporate requirements



For more details, contact your LIC Agent

FLAG BEARER OF FAMILY SECURITY
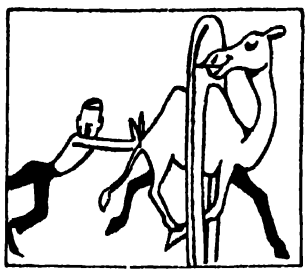
IN INDIA

A Trust you can trust your life with –
Life Insurance Corporation of India

JUNIOR WHIRL



HAL KAUFMAN

FIND TWINS! Two of the eight basketball players above are enough alike to be twins Let's see if you can find them

LETTER HEAD! Find a single initial letter that will convert each of the following four-letter words into five letter words ABLE EASE OUCH LASH RATE Remember it s the same letter for each word

Letter C will comply

'IMPOSSIBLE' TASK FORCE

THERE are some things traditionally that just can t be done You are challenged to fill blanks of ' impossibles' below

1 You can't push a — through the eye of a needle

2 You can't have your -- and eat it too

3 You can't get — from a stone

4 You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's—

5 You can't buy the wag of a dog's—

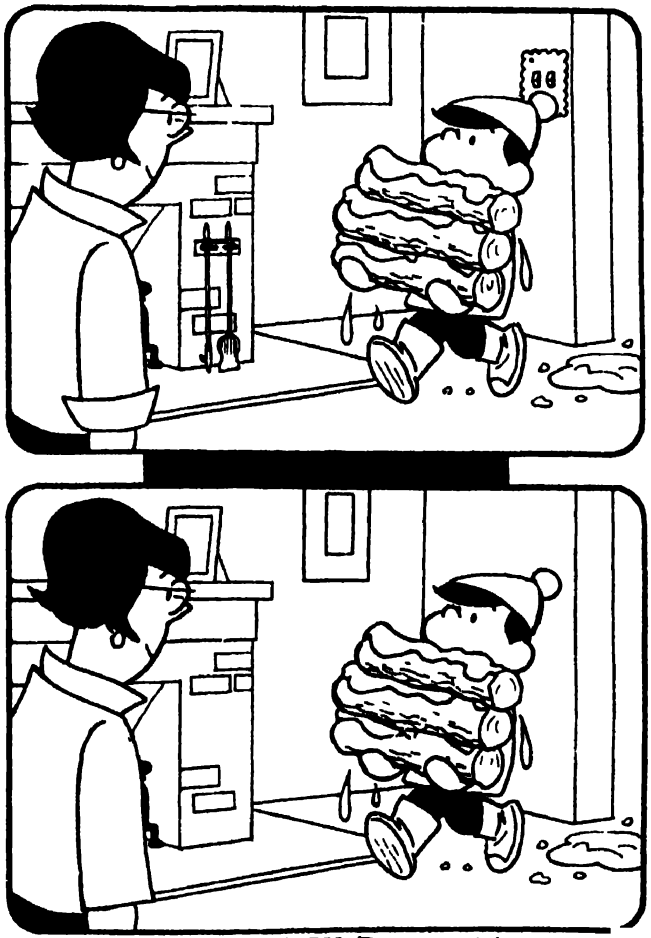
6 You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make it—

Time limit 30 secs Think fast

1 Camel 2 Like 3 Blood 4 Fur 5 Tail 6 Drink

CORNER SHOT! Let's see how quickly you can complete this "magic" number square (below) For better or worse, the centre number is 13 Surrounding 13 are the numbers 1 through 25, four of which—9, 11, 15 and 17—are missing from corner squares

You are asked to insert the missing numbers so that each horizontal, vertical and five-square diagonal row totals 65



Time limit Two minutes

No fair peeking at answer

Top left — 17 top right — 15 bottom left — 11 bottom right — 9

	24	1	8
23	5	7	14	16
4	6	13	20	22
10	12	19	21	3
	18	25	2

HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below

Differences 1 Hair is different 2 Cuff is missing 3 Andirons are missing 4 Picture is different 5 Hand is moved 6 Switch is missing

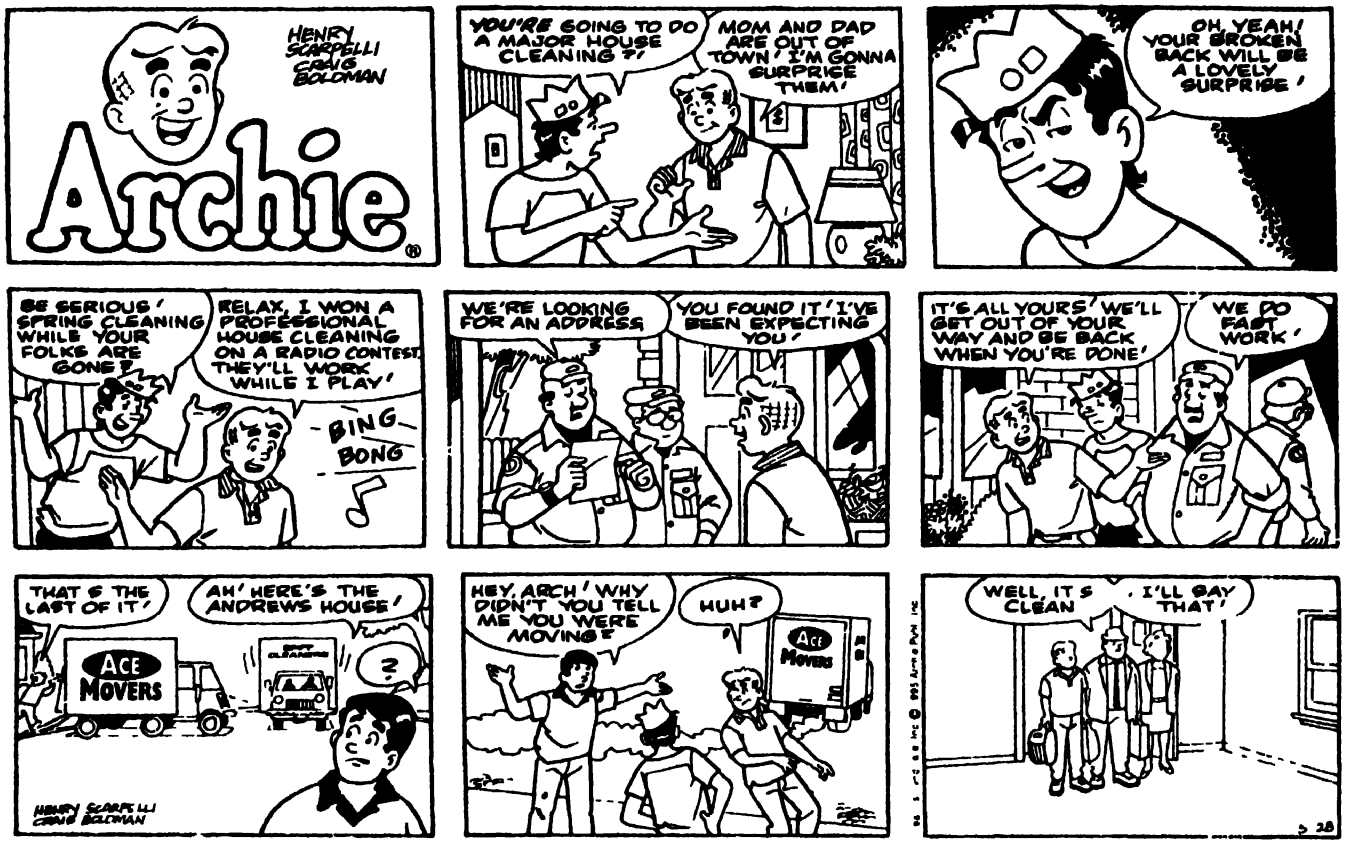
FUNSPOT

SMASH HIT! Yikes, the yoke is on our egg-juggling friend. Add colors by number. 1—Red 2—Lavender 3—Yellow. 4—Lt. brown. 5—Flesh tones 6—Lt. green 7—Dk. brown. 8—Dk blue

SPELLBINDER

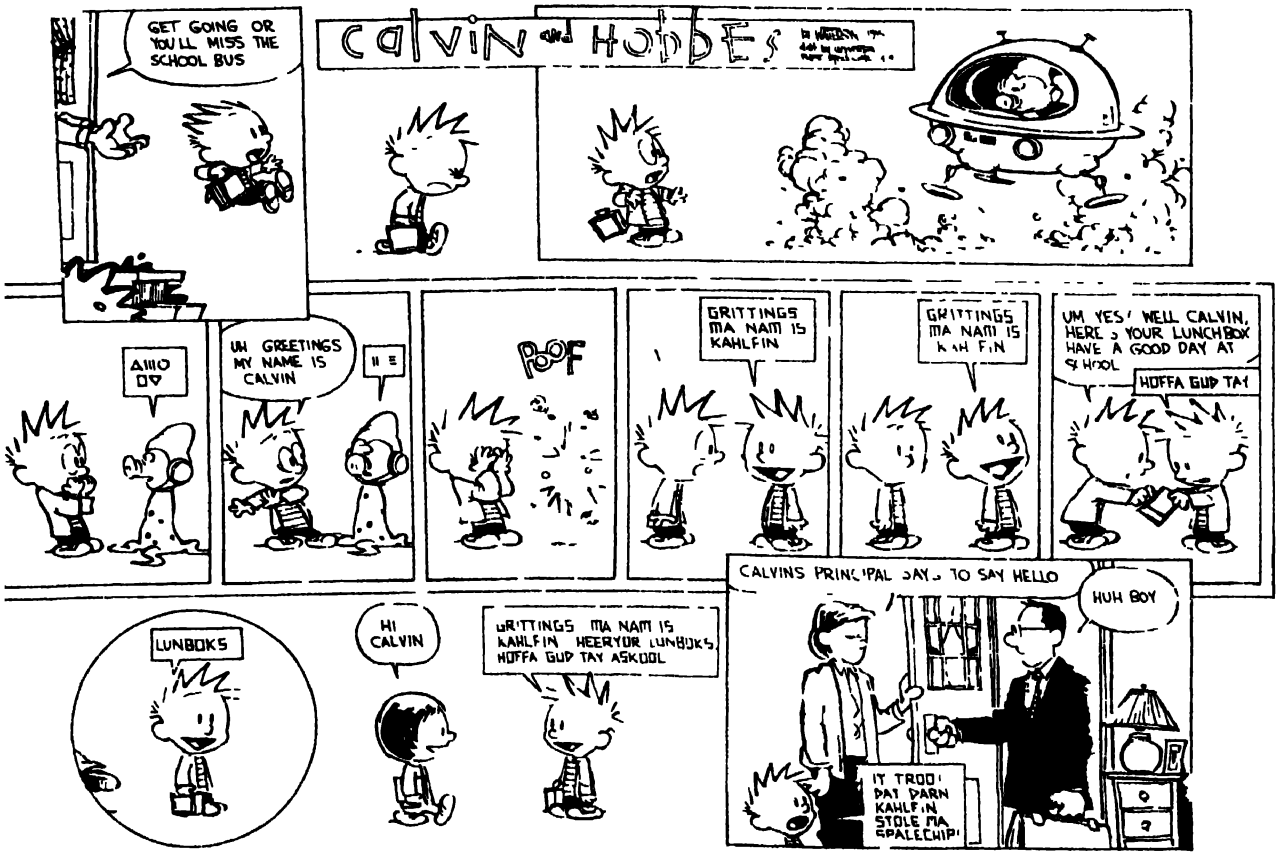
SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

GRANDEUR



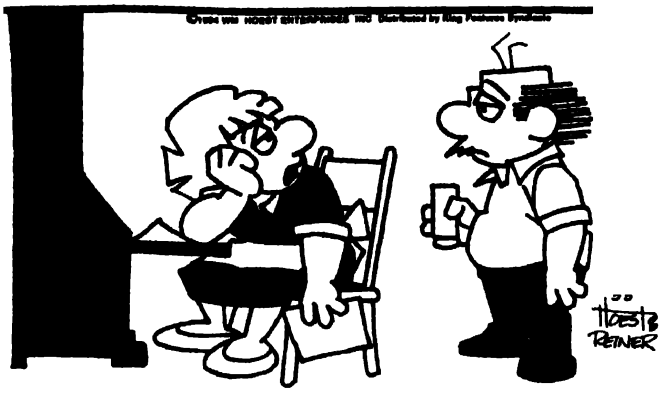
THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters

Try to score at least 50 points



Possible twosome Rang nude

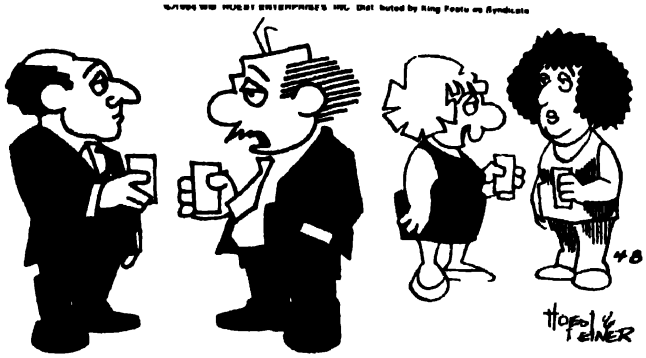
COMICS



ARCHIE

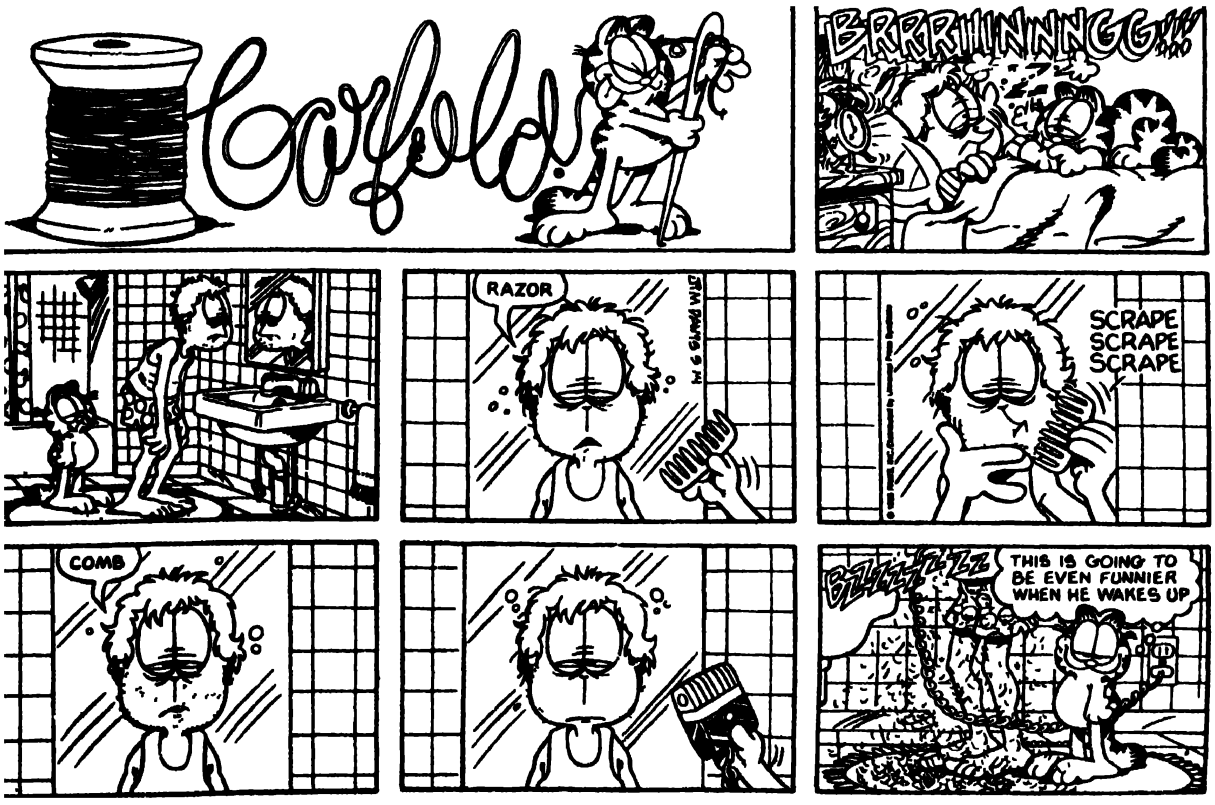
CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON

THE LOCKHORNS

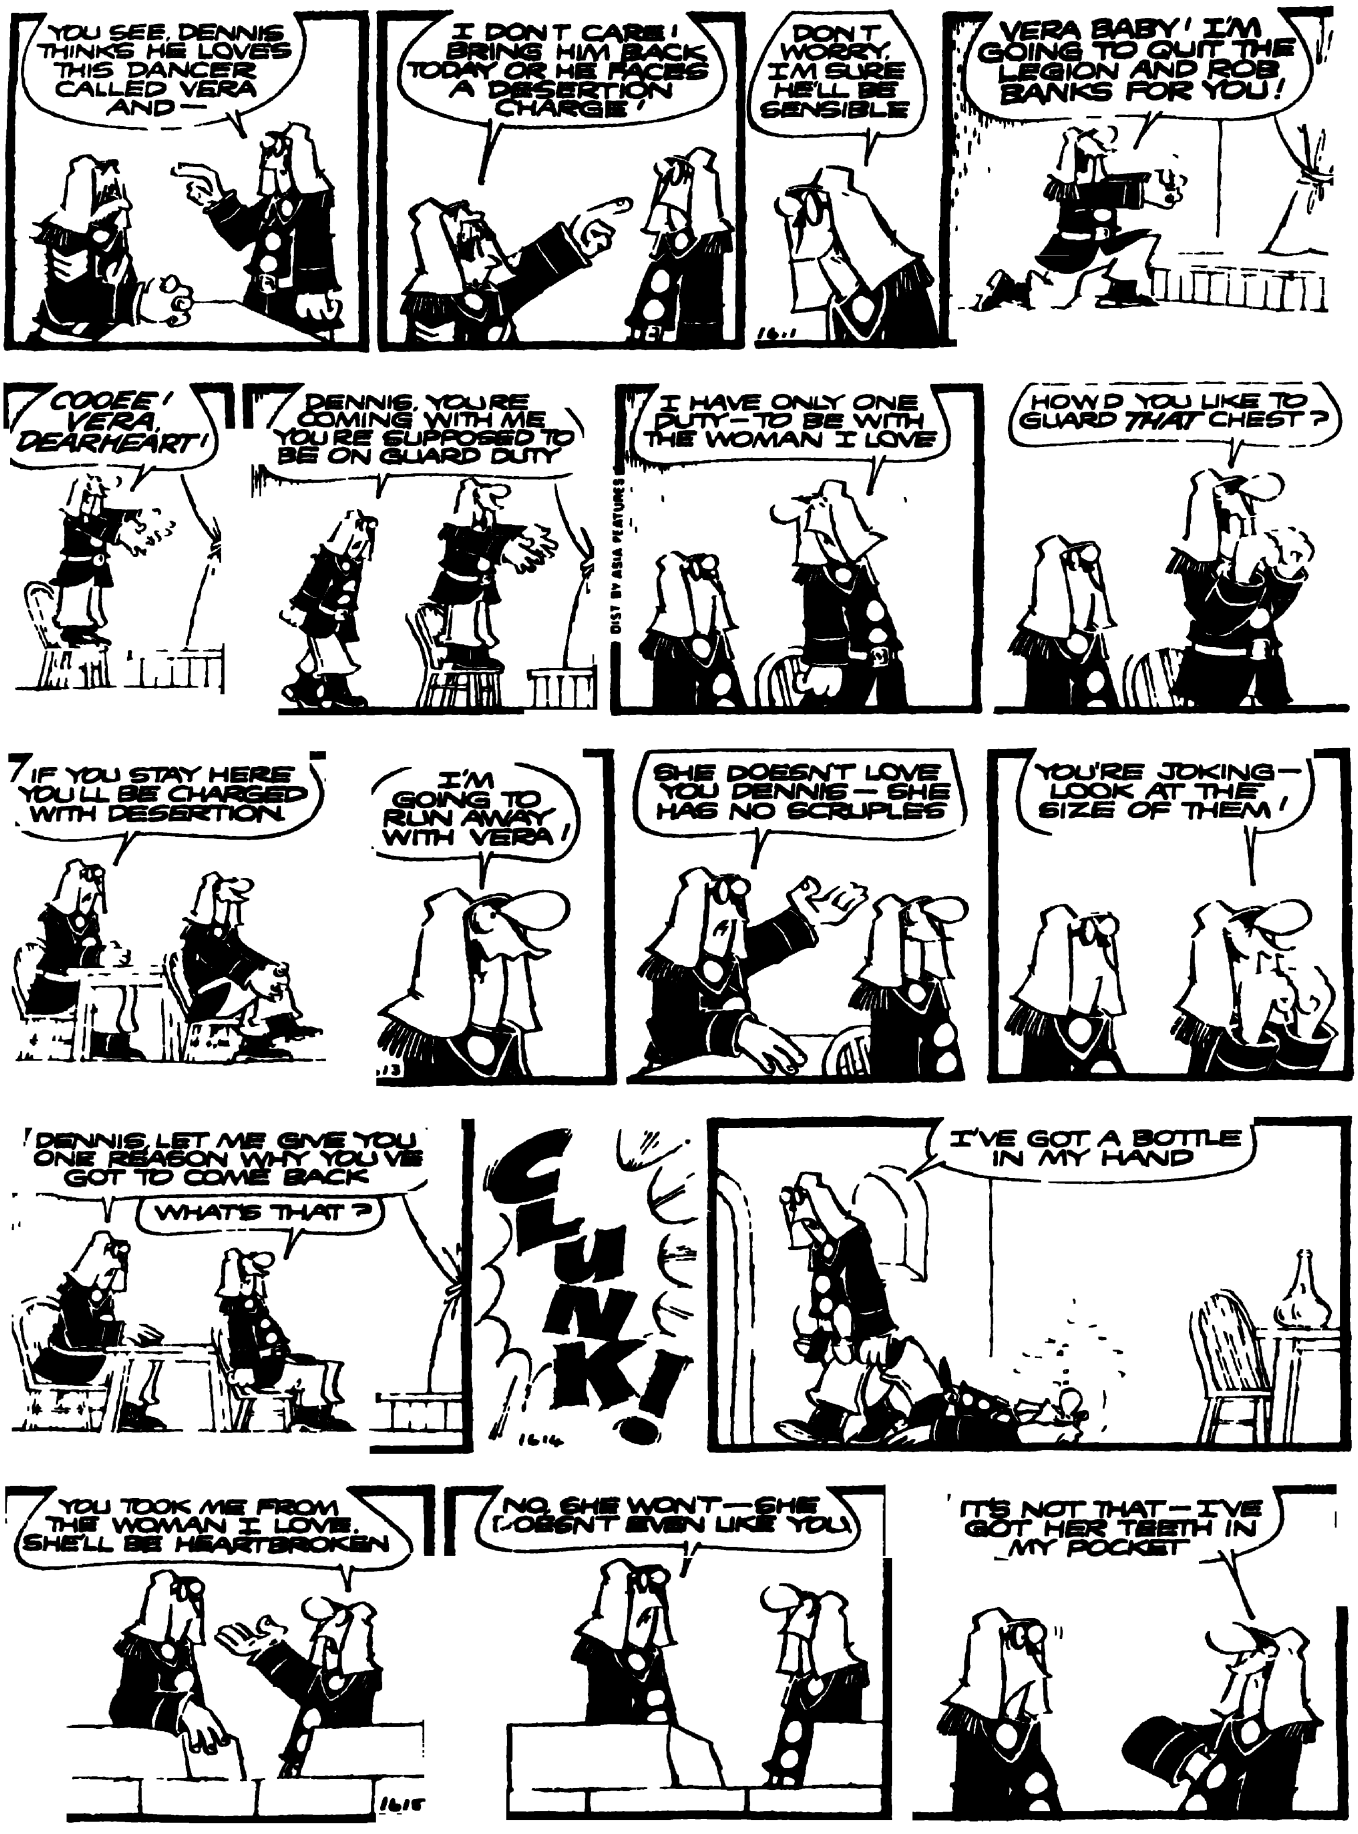


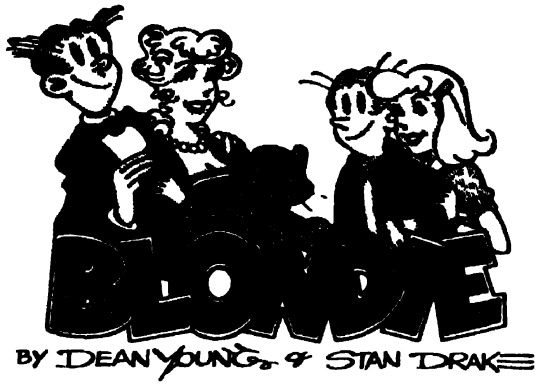
"WE CAN'T AFFORD TAXES THIS YEAR, LEROY."

"I HAD A CLOSE CALL THIS MORNING. LORETTA TRIED TO PACK ME A LUNCH."



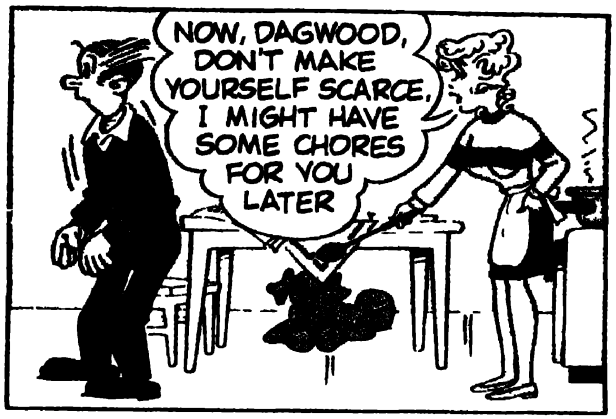
"I BELIEVE THAT IF YOU WEAR STRETCH PANTS, LORETTA, SOONER OR LATER YOU'LL MAKE USE OF THEM."



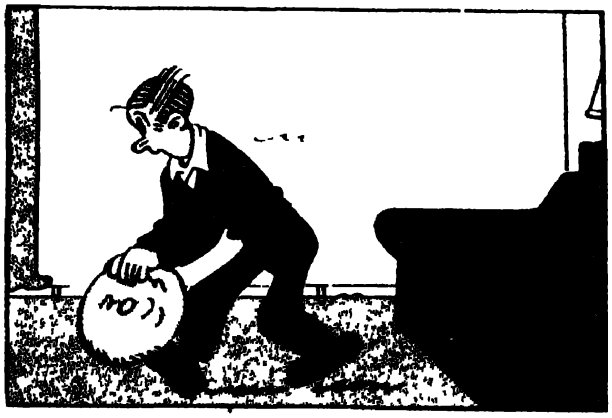


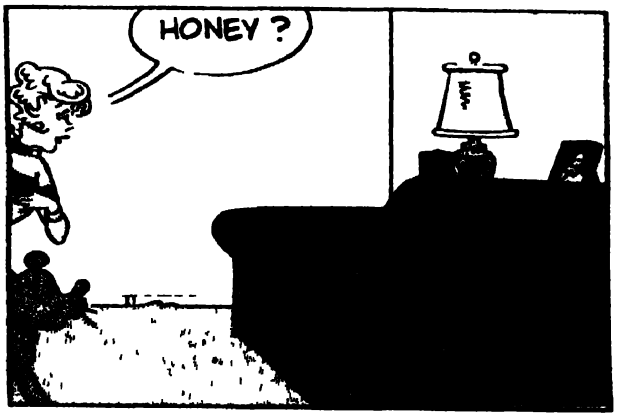
"I'VE BEEN MARRIED A LONG TIME···I GUESS I HAVEN'T PAID MY DEBT TO SOCIETY."

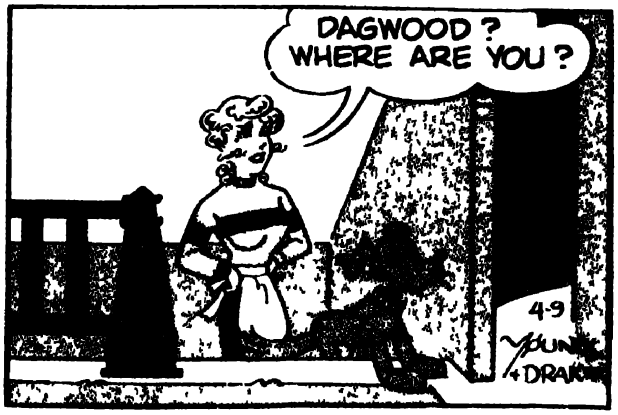
GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS

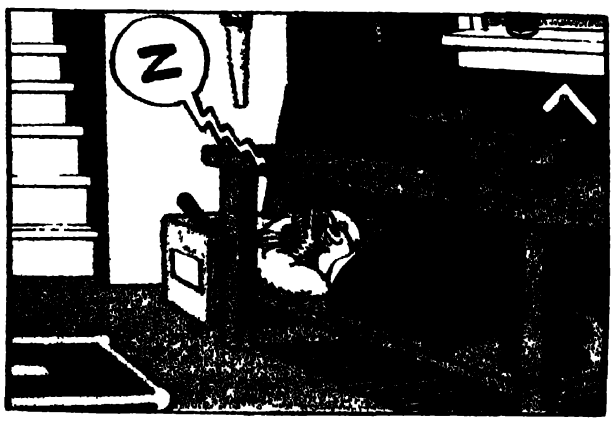


THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP









PLEASE DON'T MAKE IT SOUND LIKE I'M ALWAYS TRYING TO GET OUT OF WORK AROUND HERE! I'LL DO ANYTHING YOU WANT, ANYTIME

I'M SORRY, DEAR, I DIDN'T MEAN TO SOUND THAT WAY

PANORAMA

SHE AT SEA

The British Navy's decision to permit women on board has raised too many sexist and marital problems Sandra Parsons and Frances Hardy report on the disasters it has run into

Brave is the woman who ventures through the swing doors of the Albany pub in Portsmouth. Inside it are wall-to-wall tattoos on brawny arms lifting the umpteenth pint of the evening. "Those real jodhpurs, darlin'? Come over 'ere, I'll give you a ride!"

These are naval ratings, toughened men who are expected to die for their country if need be. Tonight, off duty and far from any war zone, they are relaxing the way they like to — with strong drink, salty language and a keen eye for any passing skirt.

Once this was an all-male preserve where the boundaries of behaviour — or lack of them — had been quite clearly defined by 200 years of seafaring custom. But today some of those shipmates are women, formerly known as Wrens, who now, in the relentless march for equality, have been stripped of their title, their distinctive badge, some of their uniform and, sadly, much of their dignity.

The Women's Royal Naval Service, from which the Wrens got their name, was once the most feminine branch of the armed forces and certainly the most chic. Male colleagues respected and adored them. But that was before the disastrous decision to send them to sea.

Propping up the bar of the Albany, a rating from HMS Southampton gazes gloomily into his lager as he tries to articulate the issue of women at sea. "Some of the lads in here," he says, with a wave of his muscular arm, "will just explode if you even say the word 'Wrens' to them."

If you've never been to sea, it's probably hard to understand. But let me put it this way: if this pub suddenly caught fire, would you be able to put me over your shoulder and carry me? You wouldn't? Well, that's why most of us don't want women on board. Most Wrens can't lift a 40-kg engine part. They can't carry two drums of foam weighing 25 kgs each - a lot of men struggle to carry them.

"So what happens is that she asks one of us to do it. Worse still, if it's her watch and the rest of us are asleep, she'll wake one of us. And when you're tired, that's not funny. It causes resentment and then she gets upset because she thinks you're being nasty. Well, sometimes we bloody well do give some lip. We give it to blokes, too, if they don't pull their weight. It's not a bloody cruise."

It took the Senior Service more than 70 years from the formation of the Wrens to offer women equality by allowing them to go to sea like the men. Four years on, female recruitment levels are falling, while drop-out rates of those in service are increasing. Earlier this year the navy decided that seven ships should lose their female complement, and that a programme to convert ships to accommodate women should be ended.

Naval sources insist that this is due not to the disillusionment of women, but to swinging defence cuts which have forced them to reduce recruitment generally. They say that while there have been a few problems, the decision to send women to sea has been a success.

Why then when the Daily Mail set out to investigate the true impact of Wrens at sea, were we informed by the ministry of defence that the media were no longer permitted to interview serving Wrens about life on board "because there has been so much adverse publicity"?

Serving men we spoke to admitted they were so worried about the damage they would do to their careers by talking to us that all asked not to be identified. Of the half-dozen we talked to, only one said he was happy with the Wrens at sea. "And that's because I'm married to one, so I've got to say that, haven't I?"

The two former Wrens we interviewed both had stellar naval careers. Wendy Clay, a radio operator, served on HMS Brilliant during the Gulf War and was awarded three medals while the Candida Brooks, a naval rating, left HMS Brazen with an honourable discharge and an exemplary record. Yet their advice to women thinking of joining the navy is blunt. "Don't do it."

The third woman we spoke to is the wife of a lieutenant commander and she blames the navy for the break-up of her marriage. "I have no doubt that if Wrens had not been allowed to go to sea, my marriage would still be intact," she says bitterly.

The message is clear. Allowing Wrens at sea has been at best an experiment which has failed, and at worst an

Women aboard the HMS Brilliant that served utter disaster

Why did it go wrong? Everyone cites different reasons For the men, it is their resentment at having to 'cover' for women who are physically unable to do their jobs For the wives, it is the dangerous sexual tensions which inevitably surface between men and women living and working together 24 hours a day in a confined space While for the Wrens themselves it is the daily trauma of having to run the gauntlet of rampant sexism and sexual harassment

Candida Brooks, 26, who left the navy a year ago, says "One incident remains vivid in my memory I can recall the almost tangible, jeering hatred of my male colleagues as if I were still standing there, surrounded by them I was in the middle of a group of six men on the quarter deck of HMS Brazen "They were speculating, using the most lewdly anatomical language, about how many men would bed me by the end of the posting The whole incident had a nightmarish unreality I simply could not believe it was happening I wanted to shout 'How dare you talk to me like that?'

"But I dared not risk the consequences of expressing my entirely justifiable anger So I resorted to feeble sarcasms"

This was not an isolated aberration It was symptomatic of the prevailing attitude towards Wrens One instructor turned public humiliation into an art form He used a particularly prurient form of sexual harassment, addressing a girl in front of the rest of the class with enquiries about the regularity of her sex life

"I spent just a year in the navy I had envisaged an excellent, character-building career I thought I would be joining a team of dedicated professionals, esteemed as the Senior Service Instead I was pitched into a largely foul-mouthed and misogynistic rabble The atmosphere was nasty, threatening, unfriendly and bewildering"

Wendy Clay joined HMS Brilliant in October 1990 is one of its first 15 Wrens and left for the Gulf a few months later She was not subjected to such severe sexual harassment but knows it went on "I worked on the bridge with the captain and other officers, which was fine But I knew a girl who was in a signals office where she would be verbally ripped to pieces By the end of the watch she would be in tears

"There was this leading radio operator, one rank above me, who would make the girls do all the work while the lads went to sleep In another case, one of the men, who was particularly horrible, had been left by his wife and his reaction was to take it out on women generally"

The naval ratings at the Albany in Portsmouth listen to such reports with genuine bewilderment In their language it is banter, and nothing to get too upset about

"Some of the Wrens give as good as they get," says one "What normally happens is, they take it for a couple of days, then give it back, and you should hear their language Then whoever is doing it will move on to someone else Could be another Wren, it could be a bloke It is part of the job Women who cannot deal with it have no place on a ship"

Another rating, a 20-year-old leading hand in a fire-fighting team, sips vodka and orange and tries to explain the incompatibility of women and ship life by recalling a fire at sea on HMS Broadsword last year, in which two men died and two more were badly burned

The Wrens who were part of the fire fighting team are still having counselling, because they think it is their fault the blokes died It was not, but they basically could not do their jobs Fighting a fire at sea is one of the most stressful experiences — pitch black, smoke, you can hear people screaming The Wrens could not carry the big drums of foam, they did not do their job properly and so they think they are to blame

"There are lots of jobs, such as radar and anti-surface warfare that Wrens do really well But I have seen a Wren in the engine room refuse to do a task because she has broken her nail The engine room is a dirty place, and I'm sorry, but I do not think it is a fit place for a woman I do not think war is suitable for a woman, either

"I was in the Gulf twice and in Bosnia, and in the Gulf I have never been so scared I do not think any of us hate women, it is just that half the time they cannot do the job the that they are supposed to"

Almost every aspect of ship life appears to carve a deeper chasm between the sexes Issues which men find difficult — such as coping with the long periods away from home are dealt with quite easily by women Others, such as lack of privacy, do not bother the men, yet drive women to distraction

"We were living on a ship designed for single-occupancy and had to run the gamut of leering men as we walked in our dressing gowns to the loos and shower rooms," says Candida

the Gulf war

Brooks "I know a Wren who became pregnant during a relationship with a fellow rating and then suffered a harrowing miscarriage on board She had to walk, haemorrhaging badly, through three corridoors before she reached the woman's lavatory, her distress compounded by the complete absence of privacy

It seems deplorably negligent that impressionable Wrens, some barely 17, go to sea without an older woman officer to advise them and, above all, to set a responsible example"

But, as a navy wife whose marriage ended last year points out, senior Wrens do not always set a good example The woman, a 35-year-old mother of three small children, does not wish to be named because she and her husband, a lieutanant commander, are in the middle of divorce proceedings He left her for a Wren officer serving on the same ship

"I know my husband's affair began blamelessly enough His work is enormously stressful he is a navigator in the Fleet Air Arm – and it is hardly surprising that he welcomed the chance to confide in a woman of comparable rank, to discuss his problems with her at the end of a fraught day

"But this is the flaw in the navy's logic however ardently it denies it, the climate on board is one in which sexual liaisons are bound to prosper Men do not readily discuss their problems with other men An accessible woman who proffers a shoulder to cry on, therefore, becomes an irresistible emotional temptation

"It is a short step from such a relationship to sex I do not know when he began to sleep with her I do know they shared a beach hut for five days on a tropical island off Singapore on a shore leave break I had hoped to share with him

"When he first said he was leaving home I was desperate for him to stay I was bitterly angry and resentful towards the navy because I felt it shared the blame for what had happened I dashed off a furious letter to his captain because I felt that his seniors had turned a blind eye, while ratings would have faced reprimands for similar behaviour

"I still feel the response I received exemplifies the navy's double standards I was told that my husband had conducted his affair discreetly and on shore, and that in those circumstances it was outside the navy's jurisdiction to intervene I believe that the navy should take responsibility for the sexual transgressions of personnel, when such behaviour could so patently jeopardise the smooth running of the ship

"I do not want my husband to lose his job However, it seems I am the only one who is being penalised for his infidelity and desertion He has not been demoted He has not even been reprimanded The navy placed temptation squarely in front of him and has turned a blind eye to the disastrous consequences"

Candida Brooks agrees "I'm afraid that the majority of those I encountered were promiscuous A favourite place for illicit sexual liaisons was the boatswain's locker where couples often made love undetected despite the rule that there should be no sexual attachments in camp or on board the ship"

Most of the women on HMS Brilliant, says Wendy Clay, formed

Asia Features

Candida Brooks: Bitter memories relationships with their fellow men, and she was no exception She attracted publicity when she returned from the Gulf pregnant But she says her boyfriend, Darren never broke the rules

"When the war ended in March we then had another six months' tour in foreign ports Darren and I slept together only when we were on shore It is down to your own morals really, but what irritates me is that when there is publicity about scandal on ships it is always the women who get the blame"

The uneasy balance between the sexes on HMS Brilliant wavered according to whether they were in ship or shore On board, the women were routinely insulted by the younger men On shore, their tormentors would suddenly be transformed into chivalrous charmers

"They would try to buy you drinks, be really pleasant and became extremely protective if anyone else tried to talk to you," recalls Wendy "But you also saw some shocking things on shore While we were in Mombasa some of the married men went to all the whore houses You would see officers you respected coming back from them It was disgusting"

In the Albany bar, however, the men fail to see what all the fuss is about "Look, I'm 29 and single and I have never had any girlfriend for longer than three months," says one "Some people have sex on board and as long as you are discreet and do your job, no one is that bothered But no sailor needs a Wren for sex If we are away for a long time we go to brothels"

Wendy Clay left the navy at the end of March 1992 after being told there was no guarantee she would not be sent to sea again She did not want her son Alex, now three, to grow up with parents who were both continually away

Now an assistant computer manager with the NHS, she says she is sad at what she perceives to be the needless de-sexing of Wrens The newer women members of the navy, she says, seem to be taking equality so far that they are even behaving like men "The girls swear and shout and drink with the men, they're very rough and ready The men probably think it is great, but I think it is horrible"

Candida Brooks believes that women do have a place in the navy "They are capable of cool-headed decision-making Their brains and wits are as finely honed as any man's, but they should be allowed to develop their inherent skills, not forced into jobs for which they are physically and temperamentally unsuited

"Their place—and I may sound desperately anti-feminist in saying so—is on-shore and in operational departments such as anti-surface warfare, radar, sonar, missile guiding and computers"

As Wendy Clay says "The navy is changing Wrens totally It has tried to make them into men and, tragically for the women involved, it has succeeded"

(Asia Features)

In

THE PICK OF THE WEE

VIDEOS

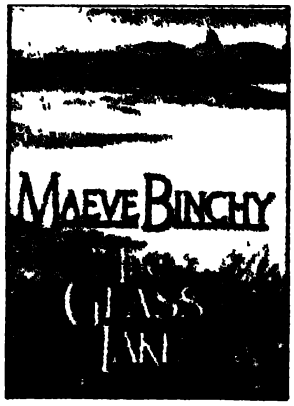
Stargate It is one of those recent 'flights' of fantasy you'd love to watch over and over again

The film is about an Egyptian artefact that turns out to be a gateway to another galaxy

James Spader, a dishevelled professor who can speed-read hieroglyphs, and Kurt Russell, as a disillusioned military commander in a saucy green beret, enter the stargate and land up on a planet where slaves wear turbans and bow down before Jaye Davidson, who plays a sinister extraterrestrial posing as Ra, the Sun God

Jaye Davidson has a whale of a time being snooty, Kurt always seems as if he is about to explode with laughter, more perhaps, because this trip across the universe, while carrying a concealed nuclear device, finally helps him get over the earlier death of his little son in a handgun accident

Stargate proves that all that oppressed people anywhere really need are slabs of chocolate and maybe nylons It is why the film is such a slick experience



BOOKS

The Glass Lake: This novel, set in an Irish lake town of Lough Glass, has all the ingredients of an old-fashioned melodrama. Several characters flit in and out of the story — a doctor, a chemist, a vitriolic drunk, a pristine nun.

The spotlight shifts to the McMahon family. Martin McMahon is a nice, innocuous man with a beautiful wife, Helen, and two children. Helen does not love her husband and takes long walks by the lake at night. Almost everyone thinks she is crazy.

One night, Martin McMahon's boat is found floating upside down in the lake and all are convinced Helen is drowned. But they are wrong. Helen has run off to unite with her former lover.

Maeve Binchy creates an exquisite morality tale which induces the reader to traverse through it. (Delacorte, $23.95)

LIFESTYLE

Kettle talk Why just Polly? Anyone can put this automatic kettle on Introduced for the first time in India by Vesta, this cordless beauty is a smart operator

Equipped with a two level safety switch, the kettle can boil upto 10 cups of water in only three-and-a-half minutes It switches off automatically once the water is boiled

Priced at Rs 850, a useful item for home as well as office

Courting the Caribbean Here's a spirit that ensures pure drinking pleasure Launched by International Distillers India Limited, Malibu has what it takes to be exotic blending Caribbean white rum with tropical coconut

This heady concoction, first tested in Scotland in 1980, was later rolled out to UK on the crest of the cocktail wave where it served as a perfect base for an instant Pina Colada

One could, if one liked, also enjoy it on the rocks or fuse it with fruity mixers like the piquant pineapple, tangy lemonade or just a dash of cola

The spirit, which comes in a milky white bottle (750 ml) is tagged at Rs [illegible] is meant for the discriminate few

FASHION

Network by design: Now that summer is at its scorching best, try out a few breezy styles this season.

How about Vivienne Tam's fancy embroidered net tunic gorgeously woven with flowers of every hue?

Worn over a finely pleated georgette slip dress, the floral web is sleeveless, showing off those bare slender arms.

The slip in thin, red-and-white pin stripes clings loosely to the figure reaching way above the knees. Brought out from the boudoir, it gives the wearer a chic and svelte

A dash of red lipstick is all that you'll need to complete the ensemble. So slip into this elegant combo this summer.

PHOOLAN DEVI, celebrated, reviled, hated, feared, glorified, ridiculed . bandit queen, has managed to stay in the news and capture the imagination of the public for over a decade. She emerged from a long stint in prison to a fresh wave of international publicity with Shekhar Kapur's controversial film Recently separated from her husband, the living legend is trying to put her life back on the rails, again.

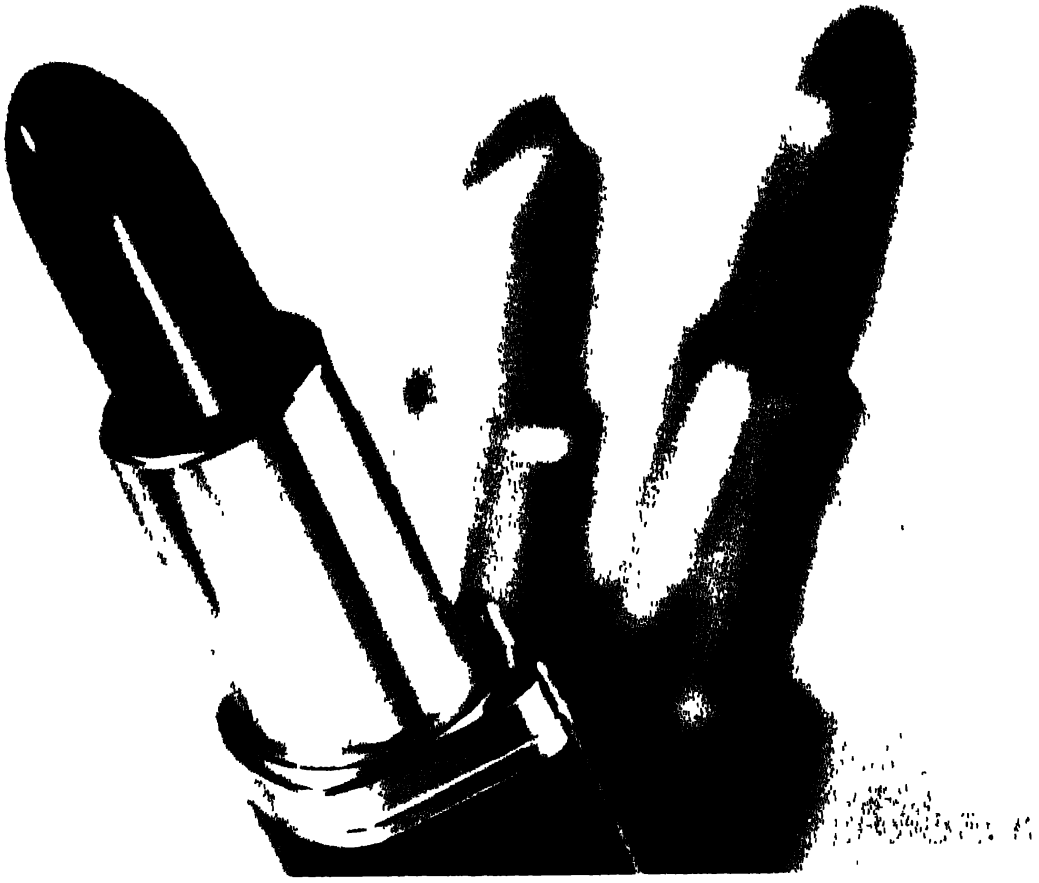
Ashok Vaid

What objects do you always carry?

The name of Ma Durga in my heart

What is your idea of perfect happiness?
I have never known happiness in my life, so what can I say on it?
What is your greatest fear?
I have known no fear for myself and for others (social) I have learnt to fight it, be it for myself, or for others
Who or what has been the greatest influence in your life?
Mulayam Singh Yadav Had it not been for him, my sufferings would have continued and I would have still been languishing in jail
What do you dislike most in others?
Lies, deceit and hypocrisy
What do you dislike most in yourself?
That I was born in a low caste and poor family because of which I have been abused and exploited
What is your most precious possession?
The story of my life
What objects do you always carry?
The name of Ma Durga in my heart
What makes you most depressed?
When people try to deceive you and use you for their own selfish interests
What do you dislike most on your appearance?
My face I don't think it is pretty at all
What is your favourite word?
Ma I love and respect her a lot and whenever I think of her, I want to run into her arms
What is your favourite journey?
To a place that is lonely and desolate
What is your favourite dream?
That something is done for the poor so that they are not exploited and deceived all the time by everyone
What is your nightmare?
When the lives of young innocent girls are ruined because of petty family feuds and enmities
What or who is the greatest love of your life?
Myself I have fought and struggled alone Even my parents bowed down to pressure
What is your source of sustenance?
The habit of facing challenges and adversity right from childhood
On what occasions do you lie?
When people make me lie Like Umed Singh made me lie and oppose Shekhar Kapur's film, so that he himself could make money out of it while people believe that I had done it willingly and knowingly
What is your greatest regret?
My marriage with Umed Singh
What has been your happiest moment?
When I heard that all cases against me had been withdrawn by the UP government, but it was a very fleeting happiness because the very next moment I was overcome by worries about my future
What brings tears to your eyes?
My past And the question why exploitation and deceit with me continues still
How do you relax?
By venting my anger and hurling abuses When there is too much tension, I take a sleeping pill
What do you envy most in others?
That they are lucky they have not gone through the exploitation and abuse that I have
How would you like to be remembered?
Whenever there is a crime committed against any girl, they remember me as one who did not take it lying down
How would you like to die?
I am willing to face death in whichever way it comes



On what occasions do you lie?

When people make me lie. Like Umed Singh made me lie and oppose Shekhar Kapur's film, so that he himself could make money out of it while people believe that I had done it willingly and knowingly

How do you relax?

By venting my anger and hurling abuses. When there is too much tension, I take a sleeping pill

Deep, rich, lustrous colours. The perfect excuse for a brand new wardrobe

The new range of Ultracreme lipsticks from Lakme are specially formulated to offer a richness of colour you've never experienced before They are so silky smooth, you can almost feel the colour And so lustrous, you get just the depth and hue you've been looking for In your search for a matching wardrobe, we do hope you'll find colours as deep and lustrous as Ultracreme

LAKMÉ

ULTRACREME

You can feel the difference.

Maya Grey

Deep, rich, lustrous colours. The perfect excuse for a brand new wardrobe.

The new range of Ultracreme lipsticks from Lakme are specially formulated to offer a richness of colour you've never experienced before They are so silky smooth, you can almost feel the colour And so lustrous, you get just the depth and hue you've been looking for In your search for a matching wardrobe, we do hope you'll find colours as deep and lustrous as Ultracreme

LAKMÉ

ULTRACREME

You can feel the difference

Mukta Grey

The Telegraph

4 JUNE 1995

POST MORTEM

Yours, Mine and Ours

■ In this age of globalisation, liberalisation and privatisation where all that glitters is supposed to be gold, the fourth estate has a certain role to play in making or breaking a leader ('Aamchi Bombay, Our Mumbai', April 30)

Whether he is a political or a religious dada he has to knock at the doors of newspapers to build a larger than-life image for himself (" the Press was playing into their hands and helping to create these monsters")

In Mani Ratnam's Bombay the journalist shoulders the responsibility of encountering these 'monsters' on the streets and offers himself for sacrifice at the altar of religious fanaticism

Forget the Hindi film-style romance in the film and you will realise Bombay reminds the audience of the potentiality and responsibility of this much maligned profession

Choton Banerjee,
Calcutta

■ There is little doubt that Bombay is a great survivor A city that can survive bomb blasts for several days, and riots, and the threat of an international conspiracy to destroy it, must be a great and resilient city

The hue and cry raised over Mani Ratnam's Bombay was purely a community reaction The Shiv Sena had no objection to the film and, in fact, were responsible for getting it released in the city

What objections can there be to a Hindu-Muslim marriage? India is secular and its people are free to marry anyone they wish without any religious bar

In fact, Mahatma Gandhi encouraged inter community marriages Indira Gandhi married Feroze Gandhi And in the film industry mixed marriages are very common Sunil Dutt and Nargis, Tiger Pataudi and Sharmila, Aamir Khan and Rina, Ustad Amjad Ali Khan and Subhalakshmi, Shah Rukh Khan and Gauri are just a few names that come to mind

Bal Thackeray's decision to cleanse Bombay of illegal residents should be well lauded Look at the state of Bengal, overburdened with refugees, and not knowing what to do

The new saffron ministry has started off well with firm actions like enforcing anti-pollution laws for vehicles, making sports compulsory for academic institutions and reemphasising the need to adhere to the codes of advertising

Indeed, Bombay is poised for a great leap forward

Santosh Kumar Sharma,
Kharagpur

Arvind Swamy with Manisha Koirala in Bombay: Being responsible

■ If Bombay has to be renamed at all, it should be called Shivajinagar and not Mumbai

Prahlad Agarwala
Nadia (W B)

Farce Person

■ The First Person page is getting very boring Why don't you change the questions? We are tired of reading about the ambitions, deceitful statements and so-called ideals of political personalities

Why don't you interview people from the world of cinema? Like A R Rahman or Arvind Swamy?

Sourav Ghosh Chowdhury,
Calcutta

Children of Politics

■ Tavleen Singh's 'A Hell on Earth' (April 9) was a poignant portrayal of the mess that Kashmir is in

What are we leaving behind for the children? A bleak future?

Nazma Tanweer,
Calcutta

INSIDE

PAGE 6

IN A spiritual journey to the past, leaders of two religious traditions both of which have experienced suffering and exile, meet to share their mystical wisdom

PAGE 26

A TRIP down picturesque Salzburg where it is Mozart, Mozart everywhere

The Dalai Lama

SECTIONS

16 TIME TABLE
18 RUSKIN BOND
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
26 PANORAMA
30 FIRST PERSON

Cover The Dalai Lama photograph by Tapan Das

"The eye shadows were perfect, the lipsticks smashing. But the lady behind the counter was not willing to sell."

Sarwat Khan, 26,
Artist, New York

"They're not for sale. Not until you try them first," she said with a smile, pointing out to The Orchids: rich lipsticks, lush mascaras, sheer foundations, displayed on an exclusive counter.

She watched me try a pastel pink lipstick.

"Perhaps a rich pink would suit you better," she said softly. A trained beauty counsellor, I could tell, just like they have back on Fifth Avenue. Polite, and unwilling to push a product not suitable to the customer.

"Lakme has spent many years studying skin types before creating The Orchids. Each product has been specially made to suit the Indian complexion."

"Ah, you've already noticed," she said, seeing my expression of joy.

The pink was perfect

THE ORCHIDS

THE EUROPEAN COLLECTION FROM LAKME EXPORTS

COVER STORY

Don't Worry, B Buddhist

In his journey through mystique, The Jew in the Lotus, Rodger Kamenetz attempts to fuse the two traditions of Judaism and Buddhism Arthur J. Pais on the mysterious connections between seemingly different Gods

IN 1989, THE SAME YEAR HE WAS AWARDED THE NOBEL PRIZE, the exiled Tibetan leader, the Dalai Lama, turned to a group of Jewish leaders in New York for help "Tell me your secret," he said, "the secret of Jewish spiritual survival in exile."

The Dalai Lama was concerned not only about the political struggle for his people, but also about keeping Tibetan religious traditions alive in exile

A few months later, eight Jew rabbis and scholars, and a poet, travelled to Dharamshala for the first ever dialogue between Buddhist and Jewish religious leaders

A class in progress in Dharamshala

The Jewish delegation was also feeling that Jewish people in America had lost much of their own religious tradition and history

So it was apparent to them that they were not going to teach the Dalai Lama anything startling and that they were more interested in sharing with him Jewish mystical thoughts and learning from him about Buddhist mystical traditions.

But they also knew that they had a rich menu of crises to choose from — the expulsion from Spain, the Inquisition and the Crusades were among the many disasters the Jews have faced.

But all of them were thinking of the Holocaust in which an estimated six millión Jews perished at the hands of the Nazis. Earlier, Rabbi Lawrence Kushner had told the Dalai Lama when they had met in New Jersey. "The Chinese came to your people as the Nazis came to mine."

Rodger Kamenetz, poet and director of Jewish Studies at Louisana State University, was one of the nine delegates. His account of the momentous journey, The Jew in the Lotus, was published recently by HarperCollins in America.

A graduate of Yale College, with advances degrees from Johns Hopkins and Stanford, he is the author of five books, including Terra Infirma and The Missing Jew: New and Selected Poems.

"Seeing the photographs of the Chinese destruction of Tibetan Buddhist monastries, temples and libraries," he writes in The Jew in the Lotus, he recalled "the systematic Nazi destruction of synagogues.

"When I read about celibate Tibetan nuns and monks being humiliated and tortured, I remembered the SS forcing rabbis to spit on the Torah before shooting them. And the death of more than one million Tibetans as a result of occupation brought up the inevitable charge of genocide."

Much before the publication of the book Kamenetz had made TV history when CNN beamed pictures to viewers worldwide showing him challenging David Duke, a former Nazi sympathiser, and now an ultra-right politician. Kamenetz confronted Duke when he visited the campus of LSU during his unsuccessful campaign for governorship of Louisiana four years ago.

Kamenetz writes that during the face-to-face confrontation, he was serene deep inside him. (Elsewhere in the book, Kamenetz who is initially a sceptic and irascible, is confronted by a lama originally from Montreal. "You doubt everything else," the lama says. "Why not doubt anger?")

And that this serenity rose from the indepth meetings with the Dalai Lama and fellow Buddhists. "If you have ever practised Buddhist meditation and found that you are calmer, that you are less prey to emotions, that you handle your ups and downs better, then I think naturally as a Jew. Is there anything like this in my own tradition?"

"I believe the answer is yes."

But the answer did not come easily.

"I have to admit that going into this project, my attitude was something like, these people are fakes," says Kamenetz, referring to the hundreds of American Jews, including poet Allen Ginsberg who had embraced Buddhism.

"My attitude now is that maybe we can learn something from the Buddhist experience, something to help us strengthen contemporary Judaism and make it a little more complete."

The Jew in the Lotus, a philosophic, intriguing, and yet fun-filled book, lucidly recollects the journey to India. Kamenetz has written a book that can be read without any problems even by those who have no idea of the esoteric sides of Judaism and Buddhism.

The Jewish delegates were charmed by the Dalai Lama's boyish enthusiasm. "At one point, (Rabbi) Zalman Schacter mentioned devas, Kamenetz recalls. "He translated it further for the Dalai Lama as 'angels'. Now the Dalai Lama knew something about the angels -- his eyes lit up and he went on for about 20 minutes with all kinds of questions about angels. What colour are angels? Do angels affect the weather conditions? Do angels cause earthquakes?"

A large number of Jews are not aware of the Jewish esoteric teachings found in the texts of Kabbalah, and as Kamenetz and fellow travellers listened to the Dalai Lama's questions, they wondered if this was one of the reasons why many spiritually inclined Jews have opted for Buddhism, rather than seeking out the mystical tradition inherent in their own religion.

"It is not really that these people

A large number of Jews are not aware of the Jewish esoteric teachings found in the texts of Kabbalah, and as Kamenetz and fellow travellers listened to the Dalai Lama's questions, they wondered if this was one of the reasons why many spiritually inclined Jews have opted for Buddhism

Richard Gere: Seeking solace in Buddhism were alienated from Judaism," Kamenetz said in an interview

"Judaism itself was not presenting its best face or tradition to us

"How did mainstream Judaism after World War II present itself to young, socially curious people? It was very outward-looking and exotic," he says

"It was very outward-looking and exoteric It was involved in political issues

"I grew up as a Reform Jew — and Reform Judaism was the civil rights movement, it was liberalism, but it was not talking about God or spirituality or how to improve yourself"

Discussing the points of similarity between the two religions, Kamenetz says "One of the key concepts of Buddhism is shunyata — the sense of 'emptiness' you strive to attain Similarly, I think the Kabbalists (those who follow the Jewish mystical tradition found in such literature as Zohar, the 13th century Kabbalistic masterpiece from Spain) realised that all these personal names we ascribe to God in the Torah — judge, king, father, — are just images, not the ultimate reality

"And the name they give us to the ultimate reality is ain sof -- the impersonal aspect of God, sometimes translated as 'no thing' because when you are at that stage of contemplation there is nothing you can say"

For many years, says Kamenetz, "these mystical elements were suppressed and despised — certainly by the German Jews who developed the rationalist tradition of Reform Judaism"

"And yet one of the things the Dalai Lama asked us is, 'Why do you not open these teachings up to more people?'"

Rabbi Zalman Schachter told the Dalai Lama "Our teachings have been kept secret even from Jews for a long time

"So every day, when people get up and say their prayers, there is an exoteric order But hidden inside the exoteric is the esoteric, the deep attunement, the deep way"

Kamenetz notes that many Jewish parents are not happy to see their children towards Eastern philosophy as they see it as the genuine threat to Jewish continuity

"I don't think any Jewish parent is happy to see their child becoming Buddhist or Hindu," he says.

"But if we start asking ourselves why did these people do this, maybe we are asking a better question And if we start asking among ourselves and with these people, maybe we would come to a better understanding"

Rodger Kamenetz: Drawing parallels between Judaism and Buddhism

Two years following the dialogue, Kamenetz says, "There was at least one effect of Jewish dialogue with the Dalai Lama had become clear The Tibetan leader now consistently describes the tragedy of his people as "cultural genocide" and "a Buddhist holocaust"

And more than before, the Dalai Lama, who became the first official visitor to the Holocaust Museum in Washington last year, has been making efforts to enlist the support of international leaders to highlight the plight of Tibetans

At a tribute to Tibet that followed, Elie Wiesel, a Holocaust survivor, and a Noble Peace Prize winner, told the Dalai Lama that Tibetans better learn the facts of life that the 20th century has taught the Jews "Prayers alone are not sufficient"

The Dalai Lama has begun to understand the importance of Tibet as a physical country

He is warning fellow Buddhists, particularly those from foreign countries, against fatalism that is accompanied by a feeling that things are not after all so bad since 200 Tibetan monasteries have sprung up all over the world, many taking the names of ancient monasteries destroyed by the communists in Tibet

"It is very unlikely that (the sacred land of Tibet) can survive as a cultural and spiritual entity if its physical reality is smothered under Chinese occupation," he told American Buddhists last year "Clearly, in this light, active support for the Tibetan cause is not just a matter of politics It is the work of dharma"

There are a number of practical results that have followed the dialogue Several major Jewish organisations have recorded their support for Tibetan people and the Jewish-Buddhist dialogue continues at the religious level in many cities and towns across America

How did the dialogue affect Kamenetz?

"My image of the encounter goes back to the moment we first saw the Dalai Lama in Dharamasala, at Tsuglakhang, the main temple We were sitting in a row on metal folding chairs I overheard Richard Gere explaining to Zalman Schachter (one of the delegates) some of the many thangkas hung about the temple, painted on silk in the bright primary colours Tibetans delighted in One behind the Dalai Lama depicted a layered cake of Buddhas rising up in rows

"Zalman asked about the pool of water where they meditated 'Actually,' Richard Gere said, 'that pool of water is really a pool of nectar'"

"I could not have described our encounter with the Dalai Lama any better He provided us a pool of nectar to look into, sweeter than a mirror, so that we Jews could see ourselves, not necessarily as we are, but as we might"

This is what Kamenetz saw

"Judaism, stripped away of all its historical baggage, the long history of anti-Semitism and the defences it has aroused Judaism with its own joys and sweetness, and its own deep wisdom The Dalai Lama gave each of us a glimpse of that, a glimpse so powerful it changed every one of us who experienced it"

The Jew in the Lotus is getting excellent reviews across America

Discussing the chapters on meditation, The New York Times wrote "To read these chapters (of The Jew in the Lotus) is something like walking through the mythic garden, and they are cause for reflection on many subjects, not least of them the shape of human consciousness and what might be called a bending of tradition to such an extent that the richness of its resources becomes inaccessible"

His book is also acclaimed among the literatti Robert Olen, the Pulitzer Prize winning writer, Rosellen Brown, a bestselling writer, and E L Doctrow, one of the most honoured writers in contemporary America today, are among them ■

NIPS School of Hotel Management

Announces admission for 3 years full time Diploma course in Hotel Management, Food Science & Catering Technology for the 5th session from July '95

Are you 10 + 2 passed or appeared and within 23 years of age at a crossroad, looking for a professional course which will lead you to bright career and good job opportunities then read this advt and get yourself admitted in NIPS The information below helps you in quick decision

Tourism Industry being largest foreign Exchange earner in our country.
Additional 1,00,000 hotel room required by 2,000 A.D to accommodate Tourist inflow.
Shortfall of 7.2.7.29 skilled personnel in the current financial year itself and this goes up to 1,37, 696 by 2,000 A.D
This diploma broadens, your scope for employment in Airline/Shipping/Railway/ Hospital/Institution/Club etc
Still further liberalisation will generate more employment.

Only Indian Institution having placement cell in U S A Opportunities for advanced studies in European countries Our National cell provides facilities & help for recruitment in hotels of repute

Training Six months Industrial Training in classified star hotels in India and you have chance in Singapore, Hongkong & Dubai too

The Course Designed & structured in line with International Labour Organisation (ILO) and comparable to best in India

Hostel Seperate accomodation for Boys & Girls

Selection Through written test & personal interviews

UTI (Govt of India) have certified NIPS for efficient service

For further information refer prospectus Priced Rs 100/- or Rs 120/- by Post from

CITY CAMPUS
Apeejay House
Block 'B' (5th floor)
15 Park Street, Cal-16
Time 12 30 p m.—5 30 p m

MAIN CAMPUS
BF 187, Salt Lake
(Near Baisakhi)
Calcutta - 64
10 00 - 5 00 p m

Watch out ! NIPS Resort Coming up

INNER EYE ❑ Bejan Daruwalla

Aries

March 21—April 20

Sun-Mercury conjunction makes you alert, vocal, communicative and very sociable, claims Ganesha It is time for travelling, calls and contracts Brothers, sisters and relatives will have much to do with you Your creativity will be fully matched by your independence

Taurus

April 21—May 20

Venus, your planetary ruler, is well placed with both Neptune and Saturn resulting in long range planning, contracts and commitments Your charm and patience will help you to carry home the booty Buying, selling, and shopping are clearly indicated

Gemini

May 21—June 20

Time to shift into high gear, mentally, emotionally and physically The house will clamour for its full share of attention and energy A conflict of interest could therefore arise for the working man or woman Behind-the-scene activity will be absolutely hectic Get set to travel shortly

Cancer

June 21 –July 20

While expenses tear into you, rest assured, you will cope with them and could even make a killing or two Rely on friends, well-wishers and social organisations Your luck will hold, specially with large organisations, because Venus and Saturn is in fine formation

Leo

July 21—August 21

You will be signing contracts and deeds Also, important changes will have to be made and guide-lines laid down in procedures and methods Friendships, socialising, having a ball, attachments, romantic inclinations and flirtations are more than likely

Virgo

August 22—September 22

The screws will be really turned on you and you will have to cope The personal aspect and the professional angle now cause psychological posers and even physical violence On the plus side, trips, ties, collaborations, buying and selling are foretold

Libra

September 23—October 22

Beware of wagging tongues and the green-eyed monster, jealousy Expenses could literally murder you Hospitalisation is not ruled out June 8-10 is for inspirational moments, honours, awards, travel and tours You will recover lost ground, so to say

Scorpio

October 23—November 22

Take care of finances which would then take care of themselves Or there could be a financial squeeze Romance blooms and a lot of activity is possible in that direction If you get too emotional you could get hurt or, at least, singed Beware of accidents

Sagittarius

November 23—December 20

Ganesha says, you could be on a collision course, unless you are wary and diplomatic Your work will also demand too much from you Legal matters will keep you busy June 7, 8, and 10 give conditions of relief It is then that flirtations and partnerships are also possible

Capricorn

December 21—January 19

The twin focal points are job and health A few changes can be expected and you may have to tow the official line willy nilly While you could be physically under the weather, your heart will be most eager and willing for a supreme fling and that is the paradox of it all Go slow

Aquarius

January 20—February 18

Your feelings will be deeply stirred Be it a child, or flaming romance or a burst of creativity Financial jugglery will be required for most of you It would be wise to safeguard your health Many of you will be in a mood to open out, accept life totally and yet move ahead

Pisces

February 19—March 20

The domestic front could be hit, unless you are very cooperative and conciliatory Legal battles are indicated, or, at least, a little heart burning Paradoxically, new ties and alliances and liaisons are absolutely fated These contradictions make June an exciting time It all starts now

BIRTHDAYS

June 4: Moon-Mercury sextile suggests skills and tact, which would stand in excellent stead to salesmen, dream merchants and those in media and communication.

June 5: Venus-Saturn in fine tune helps writers, artists, researchers, sculptors, businessmen and scientists, asserts Ganesha. Those in wholesale trade do well.

June 6: The Moon's first quarter could roughen matters a wee bit. You must guard against nervousness and anxiety Accept changes gladly and then move ahead.

June 7: Moon-Pluto placing helps you to take the lead, be creative, settle issues, shares, or have an issue. Those in business and profession gain most by this placing

June 8: Moon-Sun excellent position proves favourable to all Geminis, specially to government servants and officials, artists, entertainers, actors and media people

June 9: Moon-Neptune square might result in psychological problems and acute tensions On the positive side, your creativity and talents will help you

June 10: Moon-Mars sextile helps you to give your best to your work and play too That by itself should be pretty fulfilling. Your finances will improve

EXTRACT

Dharma DILEMMA

RAVAN & EDDIE
KIRAN NAGARKAR

BY KIRAN NAGARKAR

Extracted from Ravan & Eddie by Kiran Nagarkar; Viking (Penguin India); Rs 195

The Hindus and Catholics in Bombay's CWD chawls (and perhaps almost anywhere in India) may as well have lived on different planets. They saw each other daily and greeted each other occasionally, but their paths rarely crossed. Ravan and Eddie too went their separate ways. It was not just a question of different religions and cultures, they shared neither a common colonial heritage nor a common language. India won independence from the British in 1947. The tiny state of Goa, tucked into a pocket of the subcontinent, was a Portuguese colony till 1961. When the Catholics from CWD chawls went home to Goa, they needed a Portuguese passport. Their children went to 'English-medium' schools run by Catholic priests and nuns in Bombay. They learnt Marathi, the local language of the region, under duress for a few years and tried to forget it as quickly as possible thereafter.

At home, they switched unconsciously to Konkani. Their parents who were educated in Goa, spoke and wrote fluent Portuguese. The Pope and Rome were important to them but the most devout event of their lives was kissing the toe of the miraculously undecaying body of Saint Francis which had rested in the Bom Jesu Church in Panjim, the capital of the colony, for over 300 years. They celebrated Christmas but they really let their hair down at the Carnival in Goa.

There was prohibition in the state of Bombay, as it was known then. In Goa, wine and booze, both the local and foreign brews, were available dirt cheap. You drank for fun and sang and danced without reason. Goan Catholics were born and bred in India but their umbilical cord stretched all the way to Lisbon. Practically all the Hindus at the CWD chawls spoke Marathi or a dialect of it. Almost all of them went to Marathi municipal schools where the second language was English. English, the language of the former coloniser, was still the key which opened doors and gave you special privileges. But it was taught so badly and feebly in vernacular schools that it retained the status of a perpetual hurdle.

Parallel worlds can only meet in a geometrical utopia called the horizon. Then where did Eddie learn to speak Marathi like a native? And how did Ravan discover the sin of Cain? How did Hinduism bring these mortal enemies, Eddie and his sister Pieta, closer? What made tae kwon do part of Ravan's physical vocabulary when hardly anybody in India or the West had heard of the Far Eastern martial arts?

Perhaps the answer lies in subtle undercurrents, in phenomena or vibrations so tenuous that no instrument can record them. If history is the teeter-totter dialectic between heroes or villains and social forces, then chance, the stray remark and the accidental encounter are often the under-rated instruments which shape and reshape the contours of individual lives

In front of Chawl No 11 were open grounds On the left were an Indian gymnasium, a small Maruti temple, a sand-pit with three swings and a see-saw. The empty space changed character depending on the season and occasion

During the Ganapati festival, an icon of the god sat here under a cloth shamiana to the accompaniment of 14 hours of blaring and cracked film music, with a break at 12 noon and 8 pm for arti and other rituals Come election time, local leaders gave speeches here Once in a while the chief minister or a big name from Delhi would come and the grounds would be packed But most of the time it was a playground The boys played cricket and games like kho-kho, hu-tu-tu or kabbadi-kabbadi as it's called now, seven tiles and gili-danda, games that hardly anyone remembers today Sometimes, the Christian boys got together and played football

The space in front of the gymnasium, it was generally recognised, belonged to the Sabha, a volunteer organisation of Hindu revivalists, of white shirts and flared khaki half-pants fame "All are welcome Come one, come all," Lele Guruji, the head of the Mazagaon branch of the Sabha, told Parvati when she decided to enroll Ravan, as he told every mother who wished to recruit her son in the Sabha brigade Needless to say, in the all-encompassing 'all' of Lele Guruji, there was no room for Muslims

Parvati had no idea of the political sympathies of the Sabha and it certainly wasn't Ravan's idea to save India from non-Hindus Parvati's objectives were pragmatic Keep the boy out of her hair and out of trouble He had taken a bet of four annas with a boy twice his age that he could break three panes from his own kitchen window with three successive throws of the tennis ball with which they played cricket. He had lost the bet because, when he came to pick up the ball after the second hit, Parvati sliced it open with a knife and was willing to do the same with his head The older boy had come up to collect his dues but had instead to part with eight annas in damages because, as Parvati said, "At your age you should have known better "

There were barely 17 members in the Mazagaon branch of the Sabha Once, when Ravan showed some resistance to attending the Sabha sessions, Parvati hauled him along to Lele Guruji The Guru looked genuinely puzzled as he listened to Parvati's plaint "Now why would you want to stay at home when you can help build a great Hindu nation?" He wondered as he lifted Ravan off the earth by the narrow edge of his ear It was a stunning experience Ravan felt he had been shot in the head by a million pin-point pellets that exploded in undreamt of colours like Republic Day fireworks He was not overly keen to repeat this exercise in levitation

Putting on the white shirt and khaki half-pants (never called shorts) was a ritual as complex as a Samurai initiation First, the loin cloth You tie the strings around the waist at the belly button while the tail of the loin cloth trails on the ground Ensure that it's at the dead centre of the cleavage of the buttocks Now pick it up, bring it forward between your legs and pass it under the knot at your navel Heave Tighter and tighter Can't breathe? You're joking Looks loose even from this distance Haul, heave, pull and then pull some more till your testicles have ascended all the way into your brains Now pass the band of cloth over your crotch once again and tuck in the remainder as tightly as you can at the back

Your b s may be pinched, smashed, squashed and crushed but this home-made jock strap will make sure that you'll never get hernia Put on your vest and your shirt Pick up your half-pants The relationship of the bottom of each leg of the pants to the waist is as precise as the ratio of the circumference of a circle to its diameter The flare is 7 19378345267 times the waist Put the left leg through the left khaki pyramid, then the right leg through the other pyramid Tuck in the shirt, very tight please Don't want to see a single crease in it at the waist, do we? Okay, button up and buckle up All set? Good Now just before you step out, shove your hand under the pants, get hold of your shirt and pull Go on, keep at it, the idea is to use your shirt to lever your half-pants up to your rib-cage, preferably all the way to the neck As soon as you reach the grounds, shove your hand in again and hoist the recalcitrant pants. This is the only way they can defy gravity Any time there's a break in the exercises, or your sister-in-law or Lele Guruji himself comes over to talk to you even when you grow up and become Shakha Pramukh and are talking to an assembly of distinguished guests, don't forget, yank up the pants

"Attention," Lele Guruji barked and 15 youngsters, five to a row, came sharply to attention Each boy stood a precise arm's length from his neighbour On the right, resting on the ground beside each child soldier for Hindutva, was his six-foot wooden staff Time to bring one's right hand smartly to one's chest and say Jai Hind before going home Instead Lele Guruji said "at ease" and followed it up with a "sit down"

He looked into the distance The all too solid and numerous CWD chawls obscured his view, but he saw right through them into every boy's soul "Every day you reiterate your loyalty to our cause You swear that you have faith in our religion But faith is a torch Unless you light torches in the hearts and souls of others, our flame will waste and die

"Our Sabha desperately needs new blood " This was puzzling Why was the Sabha bloodthirsty? Hindutva is an infinite ocean But in the last few years, specially after the death of the great martyr Godse, the ocean is retreating " Ravan got the picture now Hinduism was an ocean of blood but there was a hole at the bottom, so you had to keep filling it "It is your bounden duty, it is your dharma to enroll at least one new member in the next 10 days Anyone who does so will get a magnificent calendar with a picture of the goddess Bhavani presenting her sword to his royal highness, Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj

"But even this is not going to be enough Our leaders have sent a special message to us For centuries, Muslims, Catholics and Protestants have converted Hindus It is time we turned the tide What we need is a wild bushfire that spreads across the country and brings back the lost souls to Hinduism Anyone who enrolls a non-Hindu in our Sabha will get a Wilson fountain-pen And the new member will be given not only a Wilson fountain pen and ball-point set but also a beautifully illustrated and abridged copy of the Stories from the Mahabharata and Shri Krishna's Life in Hindi, English or Marathi Go into the world and light fires, the fires of Hinduism Jai Hind "

Did Lele Guruji know what he was doing? That 10- and 15-year-olds, like 40- and 50-year-old adults, may pick only the out-of-context vivid phrase and act upon it? How many of Lele's pupils became arsonists must remain a matter of conjecture We must disappoint you and inform you that Ravan didn't But the mixed and the muddled metaphors of his Guru and the temptation of a Wilson fountain-pen when school would permit him to use a nib and holder had a fiery effect upon him He would convert, yes, he would be a missionary such as the world had never seen Having resolved upon a vocation, the question was whom was he to convert? What better place to start than home? No point letting go of the calendar After all, Lele Guruji hadn't said it was an either/or proposition He would win both the calendar and the Wilson fountain-pen

"Dada, I need to talk to you about an important matter " His father was lying on the only bed at home in the living-room with his face to the wall If anybody had asked Ravan what his father did, he would have said, "He lies in bed with his face to the wall " He had done that ever since Ravan could remember

From the occasional outbursts of his mother, Ravan had gathered that there was a time when Shankar-rao Pawar had had a job He had been a weaving operator in a cloth mill, moved on to an ice-factory as loader, had done a stint as a car-mechanic's helper and then been a dark-room assistant in a photographer's studio

"Why don't you work like a man?" Parvati would scream at her husband every few months

"What's the point, I always end up resigning Mark you, I've never been sacked I've always walked out "

"Every man I know works Nobody sits at home "

"You should have married them You know so many of them God knows how intimately "

"You watch your tongue now My own husband saying such awful things about me "

"Why shouldn't I? You don't treat me like your husband You don't let me come into your bed "

"Is this any way to talk in front of a child? Besides, I would if you were a man and earned a living like one "

Ravan couldn't figure out why Parvati asked his father to mind his language He rarely swore He certainly hadn't just now Unless bed was a swear word

He had the strange sense that, when his parents argued about work, or anything else for that matter, they always ended up where they started No gains, no losses Back to square one His father still called him Ram Parvati called him Ravan If they called him Ravan in school, it was because Parvati had taken him over for registration Was he Ram or Ravan? Good or evil? Black or white? He had no idea He didn't mind being either His name was a source of taunts and baiting in school and in the chawls but even good, solid, decent names could be distorted and lent themselves to wit, rhyme and scatology 'Eat shit Dixit' "What the f , hard luck Deepak " He would have liked to have made everybody happy by calling himself Ram-Ravan or Ravan-Ram, but both his parents found the hyphenated conjoining offensive

His father wasn't sleeping, but if you wanted him to respond you had to repeat whatever you said

"Dada, I need to talk to you about an important matter "

"If it's fees, talk to your mother If your school principal's rusticated you, I'm sure you deserve it Talk to her but I doubt if it will help Frankly if it's anything important, might as well catch her ear You know I don't count in this house "

"It's about some work "

"Not you too, you brat " His father got out of bed with unfamiliar alacrity, but Ravan sprang out of his reach "Don't you tell me how to lead my life "

"Not work work It's got to do with the future of the Hindu nation "

"Is that what you woke me up for, Ram?" He was very angry now "Well, you know where you can shove the future of the Hindu nation?"

"Where?" Ravan asked not so innocently, for he had a feeling that this was a rare occasion and his father was going to use some choice phrase But before Shankar-rao could reply, his mother was out of the kitchen

"Don't you dare, don't you say a word against our Hindu religion "

No, Ravan had to admit that recruiting his father was not a wise move How foolish of him Why hadn't he thought of it earlier? There was a candidate, no, a house full of candidates right next door The Dixits The mother and four daughters, like his own mother, had to be disregarded unfortunately since the Sabha, at least the Mazagaon branch, didn't admit any women, but between the Dixit father and sons, the tally was a goodly seven. And there was no doubt that you couldn't get a more eligible family than the Dixits They were the only ones apart from the Monteiros who flew the national flag on Independence Day

Should he talk to the youngest Dixit and then work his way up, or just talk to the boss man and leave the rest of the clan to follow? Caution, he counselled himself, best to talk to Chandrakant who's my age and my friend but choose a time when the father's around and casually direct some of the heavy stuff I have to say in his direction

Ravan chose the occasion astutely Five of the children and Ravan were playing not-at-home, the most popular game of cards in the CWD chawls, while Mr Dixit read The Times of India

Chandrakant narrowed his eyes and looked at his older brother like a policeman collaring a thief

"All right Ashutosh, it's about time you parted with the four aces you've been hoarding Let me have them "

"Not-at-home," Ashutosh yelled gleefully

"Chandrakant, the Hindu nation is in danger Only you can save it "

The effect of his words was beyond his wildest expectations Without looking at Dixit Sr, Ravan knew he had got his full attention He hadn't just lowered his newspaper, he was taking off his specs

"Me?" Chandrakant asked in wonder and awe at discovering such unexpected prowess

"Not just you You and your entire family The infinite ocean of Hinduism is drying up because Muslims, Christians, and," the word Protestant was too difficult and new for him, "Parsees are converting Hindus to their religion We need to light a fire to convert "

Ravan heard a rumble He had never before heard or seen a volcano but he knew in his guts that this was it

"Sala, you bloody murderers of Mahatma Gandhi, yes, yes, you, don't pretend to be so surprised, you murdered the Mahatma, you have the gall to come to my house and preach the gospel of the Sabha? Five times I have been to jail I left school to follow Gandhi and save our nation and now you want to destroy everything that we stood for and built? Out, out "

The whole building, Mazagaon, Bombay city seemed to resonate with that cry 'Don't you ever, ever step into this house Chandrakant, if I see you talking to this boy again, I will strangle you with my own hands " ■

TIME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[redacted]
IC-741	0620	1 3,4 6	IC 742	0850	1 3
			IC-742	1050	4,6
IC-743	0920	daily	IC-744	1150	daily
PF-701	1130	1,3 5,7	PF-702	1610	1,3 5 7
[redacted]
PF-705	0730	2 4,6,7	PF-706	1510	2 4 6 7
[redacted]
PF-735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1
PF-737	0730	3,5	PF 738	1740	3 5
IC-721	1010	1,2,3 6 7	IC-722	1250	1 2 3 6 7
[redacted]
IC-771	0800	daily	IC 772	1140	daily
[redacted]
IC-544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC-769	1615	2 4,6	IC-770	2120	2 4 6
[redacted]
IC-676	0730	daily	IC-675	0820	daily
D2-102	0905	daily	D2-101	0835	daily
IC-273	1945	daily	AI-306	1840	5
9W-212	1945	daily	9W-211	1910	daily
D2-104	2005	daily	D2-103	1935	daily
AI-309	2035	6	IC-274	1830	daily
AI-661	2350	1
[redacted]
IC-263	0700	daily	S2-025	0810	1 2,3 4 5,6
S2-026	0845	1 2 3 4,5,6	M9-303	0825	daily
M9-304	0905	daily	AI-662	0950	1
IC-812	1700	1,3,5	S2-015	1015	1,3,5
S2-016	1555	1 3 5	4S-806	1130	1,2 3,4 5 6
IC-402	1715	daily	IC-401	1155	daily
4S-805	1720	1,2 3 4,5 6	S2-005	1855	1 2,3 4 5,7
			IC-811	2055	1,3,5
S2-006	1930	1,2 3,4 5,7	M9 301	1950	daily
M9-302	2030	daily	IC-264	2210	daily
[redacted]
PF-737	0730	3 5	D2-181	1620	1 5,7
D2-181	1135	1,5 7	D2-183	1620	2,4 6
D2-183	1135	2 4 6	IC-702	1630	1,4,6 7
4S-816	1205	2 4,6	4S-815	1635	1,2,3
4S-812	1205	1 3,5	4S-811	1635	2,4,6
IC-701	1240	1,4,6 7	PF-738	1740	3 5
[redacted]
IC-257	1230	2,4	IC-257	1605	2,4
[redacted]
IC-703	0610	1,3,4,5,7	IC 704	0920	1 3 4 5 7
PF 737	0730	3 5	PF-706	1510	2,4,6,7
PF-705	0730	2,4,6,7	D2-181	1620	1,5 7
PF 735	0730	1	D2-183	1620	2 4 6
D2-181	1135	1 5 7	IC 230	1620	daily
D2 183	1135	2,4 6	4S 811	1635	2,4 6
4S-816/811	1205	2,4 6	4S 812/815	1635	1,3 5
4S 812	1205	1 3 5	PF 736	1730	1
IC-229	1310	daily	PF-738	1740	3,5

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
HYDERABAD
S2-023	1045	1 3 5	S2-024	1525	1,3 5
IC 777	1615	3 5 7	IC 778	2115	3 5,7
IC-769	1615	2 4 6	IC-770	2120	2 4 6
IMPHAL
IC 255	0800	3 5 7	IC 256	1250	3 5 7
IC-257	1230	2 4	IC 257	1605	2,4
JORHAT
IC-213	0910	4 7	IC-213	1315	4 7
LILABARI
PF 735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1
LUCKNOW
IC 812	1700	1 3 5	IC-811	2005	1 3 5
MADRAS
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2 7
IC 765	1720	daily	D2 171	1045	1 2 4 5 6 7
D2 172	1740	1 2 4 5,6 7	IC 766	2220	daily
NAGPUR
IC 769	1615	2 4 6	IC-770	2120	2 4 6
PATNA
IC 249	1430	2 4,7	S2-015	1015	1 3,5
S2 016	1555	1 3,5	IC-249	1805	2 4 7
IC-812	1700	1 3,5	IC-811	2055	1 3 5
PORT BLAIR
IC 285	0640	3 5 7	IC 286	1100	2 4 6
RANCHI
IC-249	1430	2 4 7	IC-248	1805	2 4 7
SHILLONG
PF-705	0730	2,4,6,7	PF-706	1510	2,4 6,7
[redacted]
IC-255	0800	3,5,7	IC-256	1250	3,5 7
IC-253	0800	1 2 6	IC-254	1040	1
			IC 254	1250	2 6
[redacted]
IC 213	0910	4 7	IC-213	1315	4,7
[redacted]
PF-737	0730	3,5	PF-738	1740	3,5
VARANASI
S2-016	1555	1,3,5	S2-015	1015	1,3,5
[redacted]
IC-542	1115	1,3,5	IC-541	1030	1,3,5
[redacted]
PF-735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1

FLIGHTS — INTERNATIONAL

AMMAN

RJ-185	1445	4	RJ 184	0705	4

[redacted]
KL-876	0345	7	KL-875	0135	7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[redacted]
KB-105	0650	2, 6	KB-106	1020	3
			KB-106	1240	5
IC-731	0855	2, 4, 5, 7	TG-313	1240	1, 3, 6
TG-314	1355	1, 3, 6	IC-732	1505	2, 4, 5, 7
AI-308	1950	5	AI-309	1925	6
[redacted]
RO-076	1950	5, 7	RO-075	1055	5, 7
[redacted]
IC-225	1200	1	IC-226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2, 5	BG-697	1655	2, 5
[redacted]
BG-092	0650	4, 5	BG-091	0810	4, 5
BG-092	1150	1, 2, 3 6, 7	BG-091	1110	1, 2, 3 6, 7
IC-723	1250	1, 3, 5, 6	IC-724	1520	1, 3 5, 6
BG-094	1905	1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7	BG 093	1825	1 2, 3 5 6, 7
BG-094	1910	4	BG-093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1, 5	BG-095	2020	1, 5

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
			[redacted]
IC 747	1115	1 3, 5	IC-748	1455	1, 3 5
RA 214	1815	1 4	RA-213	1715	1 4
■ LONDON
BA 142	2050	3 7	BA-143	1525	3 7
■ [redacted]
SU-538	1755	4	SU-537	1555	4
■ PARIS
KB 106	1105	3	KB-105	0810	2, 6
KB 106	1325	5
■ [redacted]
SQ-415	2345	2 5	SQ-416	2230	2, 5
■ SOFIA
LZ-504	1750	4	LZ 503	1650
■ TOKYO
AI 306	1950	5	AI 309	1925

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk-Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure				Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
2311	19 15	Delhi Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19 20	Amritsar Mail	7 55	3006
3003	20 35	Bombay Mail via Allahabad	13 00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Gaya Varanasi Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat	16 15	2382
2303	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express via Patna Dep Mon Tues Fri & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun	16 15	2304
2301	16 30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fri & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fri & Sun	10 45	2302
2305	13-45	Rajdhani Express via Patna Dep Thurs & Sun , Arr Wed & Sat	12 50	2306
3073	23 00	Himgiri (Jammu-Tawi) Express Tri Wkly Dep Tues , Fri & Sat Arr Tues Wed & Sat	11 35	3074
5047	13-00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon Wed & Fri	4 30	5048
3009	20-30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9 45	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18 15	3008
3049	13-20	Amritsar Express	15 30	3050
3039	21 00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5 20	3040
3019	16-05	Kathgodam Express	11 55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5 00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6 30	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17 11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18-20	Asansol Express	8 45	3036
3031	21-05	Danapur Express	5 50	3032
3025	23 00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday Arr Friday	11 35	3026
3071	22 30	Jamalpur Express	5 10	3072
3015	9 55	Santiniketan Express	15 40	3016
1159	15 25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fri , Sat & Sun , Arr Mon Tues & Wed	6 50	1160
1171	15-25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed Ar. Fri Sat & Sun	6 50	1172
3327	14 30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4 50	3328
1181	15-25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6 50	1182
		Sealdah
3141	13-40	Teesta Torsa Express Dep Mon Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed , Thurs , Fri Sat & Sun	6 35	3142
3143	19 15	Darjeeling Mail	8 45	3144
3111	20-15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7 15	3112
5657	6-25	Kanchanjunga Express	20 35	5658
3153	22-00	Gour Express	5 15	3154
5663	20-00	Katihar Express	4 15	5664
3151	11 45	Jammu Tawi Express	15 50	3152
3133	20-55	Mughal Saral Express via SBG Loop	12 55	3134
3103	18 20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express	10 25	3104
5185	12 40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues Thus & Sat	4 25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6 50	6004
8002	19 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16-20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12 00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fri Arr Mon & Thurs	1940	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13-45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10-20	8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express	22-05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5 00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express via Cuttack	5 30	8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8 25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00	8046
8017	16 45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2421	16 40	Bhubaneswar New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10	—
—	11 05	New Delhi Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15	—
—	14 05	Trivandrum Central Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 45	6321
—	14 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13 45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15	—
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13 45	6315
6520	22 35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15
—	14 05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains, please dial 2203545 54 for in-coming trains, 2203535 44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains dial 2203496 3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition, dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running), 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535-37

- News reading & announcement — in English & Bengali — practical classes with camera
- Diploma in Commercial Art with computer graphics.

ANIMA EDUCATION CENTRE
27/1, Harish Mukherjee Road, Bhowanipur, Cal-25 Opp Harish Motors Petrol Pump Stop Jadubabu's Bazar

ADMISSION NOTICE

★ Adv. Diploma in Computer Sc. & Management (18 months.)
Course Contents:
WINDOWS, FOXPRO, AUTOCAD, CLIPPER, UNIX, C/C ++, LAN, VISUAL C++, HARDWARE MAINTENANCE & OTHERS
Fees: Rs 10,000/- payable in instalments
★ Adv. Programming in Clipper & Foxpro with Porject Orientation

NSCT
National School of Computer Technology
2, Raja Basanta Roy Road (between Rashbehari Crossing & Lake Market), Cal-26, Ph: 76-7610
Avail Scholarship upto 30 Offer open till June

The Telegraph Classifieds

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL is promoted and sponsored by Institute of Advanced Management, the country's most premier centre for Management Education IAM, formed in 1989, with global collaborations is ranked as one of the very best Hospitality Management Institute in India And now IAM brings you the prestigious IAM Business School with the mission of providing Management Education of international standard through state of the art methods of training and research IAM's years of experience, solid infra-structure and close relation with the industry and business would make IAM Business School, one of the leading Management Institute of the country

The Course: IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL offers the following courses for the Academic Session 1995-96

Two Year Full Time Post Graduate Diploma In Management.

Three Year Evening Post Graduate Diploma In Management.

Admission Procedure: Admission to the "Post Graduate Diploma in Management" Courses would be through an Admission Test conducted by IAM. Graduates in any discipline are eligible

Prospectus & Forms: Prospectus and forms are available from the Institute's office and also from the City Office on cash payment of Rs 100/- Outstation candidates have to send Rs 120/- by M O only to the Executive Director, IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL, AE-486, Salt Lake, Calcutta-700064.

IAM SCHOOL

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL
AE 486, Salt Lake, Calcutta-700 064. Dial: 37-7726.
City Office: IAM, 37/1B, Hazra Road, 2nd Floor, Calcutta-700 029. Dial: 475-9237 & 74-8132.

SALT LAKE COLLEGIATE SCHOOL

Admission on from Classes I to XII
(All Streams) C.B.S.E. Delhi Board.
'A' & 'B' Courses as per CBSE norms available

We provide:
● English Medium Co-ed. ● Transport Facilities ● Hostel Facilities
● Trained, Experienced, Motivated Teachers ● Computer Education ● Individual Care

★ ★ Transfer Cases Accepted.

BG-101, Salt Lake City, Cal-91, Ph 37-1916 (10-30 am to 3 pm)

Jyotirmai Club
launches
"STEP-OUT-WORKSHOPS" (S.O.W.)
Activities for Ages 8+ to Adults

★ Exciting 12 months workshops.
★ Diploma Courses.

Workshops like: Lighthouse, Folk & Creative Dance, Cooking, Awareness Workshops, Calligraphy and many more
Starting 15th June, 1995
Contact Mrs. Sarkar, 37/1A, Garcha Road, Calcutta-19, Ph 475-8475/2309
Between – 10 30 a m – 12 30 p m, 3 30 p m – 5 00 p.m

Admission On

● Certificate Course in Oracle & Excel.
● Adv. Diploma in Computer Application (2 yrs.).
Course Contents Windows, Unix, C, C++, Network, SSAD, RDBMS, Excel, CASE etc.
● Also available other short term courses.

TRADE WINGS INSTITUTE
1, Crooked Lane, 1st floor, Room No 108 behind Great Eastern Hotel, Cal-69 Ph 243-0625

We take your international career as seriously as you do.

Conducted by:-

INSTITUTE • OF • MANAGEMENT

Calcutta:
Esplanade: 1, Crooked Lane Room No 108, 1st floor, behind Great Eastern Hotel, Cal-69, Ph 243-0825, Fax 91-33-2487825
Gariahat: 1B, Kumudini Apts, 1/1, Dover Lane, Calcutta-29 Ph 76-7727/440-6356
Asansol 1st floor, Mritunjoy Bhawan, 56/2, West Apcar Garden, Asansol-713304 Ph 20-5701/2532
Guwahati. G N B Road, Silpukhuri (near Goswami Service), Guwahati-781003

DIPLOMA IN
- Magnum Diploma 3-in-1
- International Airline
- Travel, Tourism & Hotel Management

ASTA American Society of Travel Agents
TRAVEL INSTITUTE OF INDIA
HAWAII

ADMISSION OPEN

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S COLUMN

GOOD DOG

There are two types of people Those with dog culture and those without To a small room trembling from the effects of being under a flyover, come a surprisingly large number of those with dog culture Here two young vets, one from Haryana and the other from Bangalore, are worked off their feet from 9 am to 8 at night They work with a team of Nepalis, only one of whom is a trained assistant

This is the charity Friendicoes The phone rings constantly reporting sick or wounded stray animals which their van collects and brings to the shelter The veterinary practice helps with running expenses And so I brought my own dog here, and here she was for the sixth day, lying on a steel table being fed by drip As I sat and stroked her to stop her dislodging the pipe feeding her, animal loving humanity paraded past, distraught by non-human suffering

There was the elderly man whose puppy had distemper, and whose eyes on being told it would most likely die, filled instantly with tears "Don't break my heart," he said "After this I could never another dog " Three young boys brought in their pet, which refused to take medicine, and so the young vet instructed them how to squirt the drug down its throat with a syringe, and sent them off with strict instructions to feed it zabardasti se. Then there were the slumdwellers from the nearby jhuggi with their goat — a victim of a hit and run accident, and a wandering sadhu whose Hanuman langur was feeling indisposed A young man wanted to know if it was still all right for his dog to sleep at the foot of his bed, even though the animal had an infection

The dog as footwarmer and friend has been around at least since medieval times The great cathedrals of Britain are strewn with stone images of lords and ladies lying on their funeral beds Under their long pointed feet lies, more often than not, a curled up hound

A succession of rather grubby children kept on looking in at the door asking what was wrong with my dog They had come to play with the stray puppies, two at a time, which are kept for most of the day in pens in a greenish area

The door behind me opened This was the operating theatre, where at irregular intervals anaesthetised dogs, their tongues lolling to one side, were carried out, carefully wrapped in newspaper, into the recovery cage next door Most of the operations were for sterilisation Friendicoes specialises in the sterilisation of strays, and all the many permanent residents of the shelter have had the operation

One of the new strays that day was brought in by one of Friendicoes' regular visitors, Mrs Italia She saw me sitting by the drip looking tearful and came to console me Soon her daughter arrived too — to comfort the dog as much as me She stayed for five minutes and then, overcome by the sight of the unconscious animal, became giddy and faint and had to step outside

There was the elderly man whose puppy had distemper, and whose eyes on being told it would most likely die, filled instantly with tears. 'Don't break my heart,' he said

Why should one care so much for a dog? Perhaps because lack egos What-ever tensions there may be between human beings, there is no tension or lack of undertanding between human and animal The only thing they do to upset you is to get sick and die

The level in the saline drip bottle declined, and I remembered John Updike's poem, Dog's Death, one of the most touching about a family-pet relationship, the story of the fate of a puppy still being house-trained

She must have been kicked unseen or brushed by a car

Too young to know much, she was beginning to learn

To use the newspapers spread on the kitchen floor

And to win, wetting
there, the words, "Good Dog! Good Dog!"

We thought her shy
malaise was a shot reaction
The autopsy disclosed
a rupture in her liver
As we teased her with play, blood was filling her skin
And her heart was learning to lay down forever

Monday morning, as the children were noisily fed
And sent to school, she crawled beneath the youngest's bed
We found her twisted, limp but still alive
In the car to the vet's, on my lap, she tried

To bite my hand and died I stroked her warm fur
And my wife called in a voice imperious with tears
Though surrounded by love that would have upheld her,
Nevertheless she sank and, stiffening, disappeared

Back home, we found that in the night her frame,
Drawing near to dissolution, had endured the shame
Of diarrhoea and had dragged across the floor
To a newspaper and carelessly left there Good Dog

The vet untied my dog, from the table and shook her feet to wake her from sedation Unsteadily we went home together, neither of us sure she would get better And behind us the vets and Bahadurs went about their daily work, in a not so rough and ready way, caring for all comers, animals and human

(Sanctuary Features)

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

WALNUT THIEF

It is nice to have a walnut tree just outside the window This is a tree for all seasons In winter its branches are bare but they are smooth and straight and round like the thighs of a dancing goddess

In the spring, each branch produces a hard, bright spear of new leaf By May, the entire tree is in leaf and by July, the walnuts, encased in green jackets, have reached their full growth

But they do not ripen until mid-August Then the outer skin begins to split, revealing the hard, brown shell of the walnut Inside the shell is the nut itself

Look closely at it, and you will observe that it is shaped rather like a human brain No wonder the ancients prescribed walnuts for headaches

Every year, the tree makes us a gift of a basket of walnuts But this year, the walnuts have been disappearing one by one and I am at a loss to know who had been taking them

Could it be Bijju, the milkman's son He is an inveterate tree-climber But he is usually found up oak trees, gathering fodder for cows He tells me his cows do not eat walnuts He admits that they ate all my dahlias last week but says they will not touch walnuts

Last week I found a fat langur sitting in the walnut tree. I watched him for some time to see if he was going to help himself to the fruit, but apparently he was only sunning himself.

Later when I was not looking, he came down and ate the geraniums, but he did not take any walnuts

She is an old pahari woman, her face is as wrinkled as the walnuts she has been stealing. In spite of her age, her arms and legs are sturdy. When she sees me, she is as quick as a civet cat in getting out of the tree

It is not the woodpecker He is out there every day, knocking furiously against the bark of the tree, trying to prise an insect out of a narrow crack

The walnuts have been disappearing very early in the morning, while I am still abed So this morning I decide on surprising everyone, including myself, by getting up before sunrise

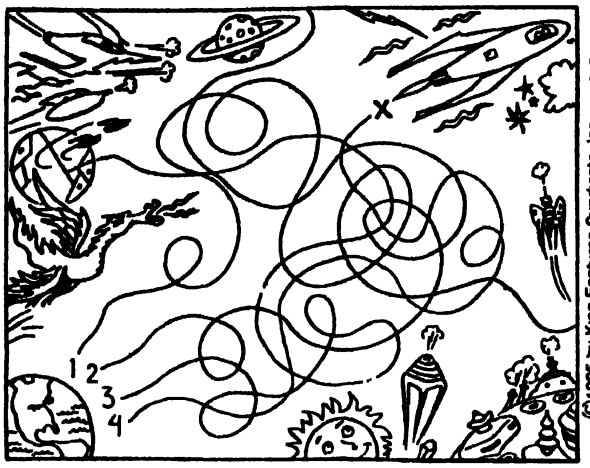
"Day, you will not begin without me!" I declare and, emerging just before dawn, I am just in time to catch the culprit climbing out of the walnut tree

She is an old pahari woman, her face is as wrinkled as the walnuts she has been stealing In spite of her age, her arms and legs are sturdy When she sees me, she is as quick as a civet cat in getting out of the tree

"And how many walnuts did you get today grandmother?" I ask "Only two," she says with a giggle, offering them to me on her outstretched palm

"You can keep them," I say "But you should have asked"

"People say you are an angry man So, I did not ask"

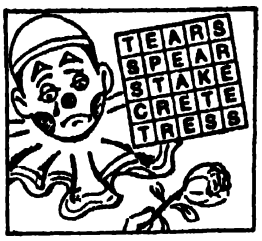


"I was angry yesterday and I will be angry tomorrow, but I got up too early to be angry today so you would do better to take all the walnuts you want"

She does not hesitate but climbs back into the tree and helps herself to all the remaining walnuts! It is impossible to object I am too busy admiring her agility in the tree wondering if I'll be able to climb walnut trees at 70.

(Sanctuary Features)

JUNIOR WHIRL



HAL KAUFMAN

SPACE CHASE! Just one route above puts the spacecraft on course. Which one? Choose path 1, 2, 3 or 4 to find out.

SAY WHAT! Let's see if you can complete these words from Mark Twain's "Life on the Mississippi": "I was gratified to be able to answer promptly, and I did. I said —" What three words are missing?

"I didn't know."

WORD JUGGLER EXERCISE

LET'S see if you can rearrange letters of the five words above to form a word square. That is to say, form a grouping of words that will read the same both across and down. Here's how:

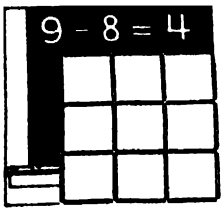
1 Rearrange TEARS into a flower.

2 Rearrange SPEAR into a kind of tire.

3 Rearrange STAKE into business profits (slang).

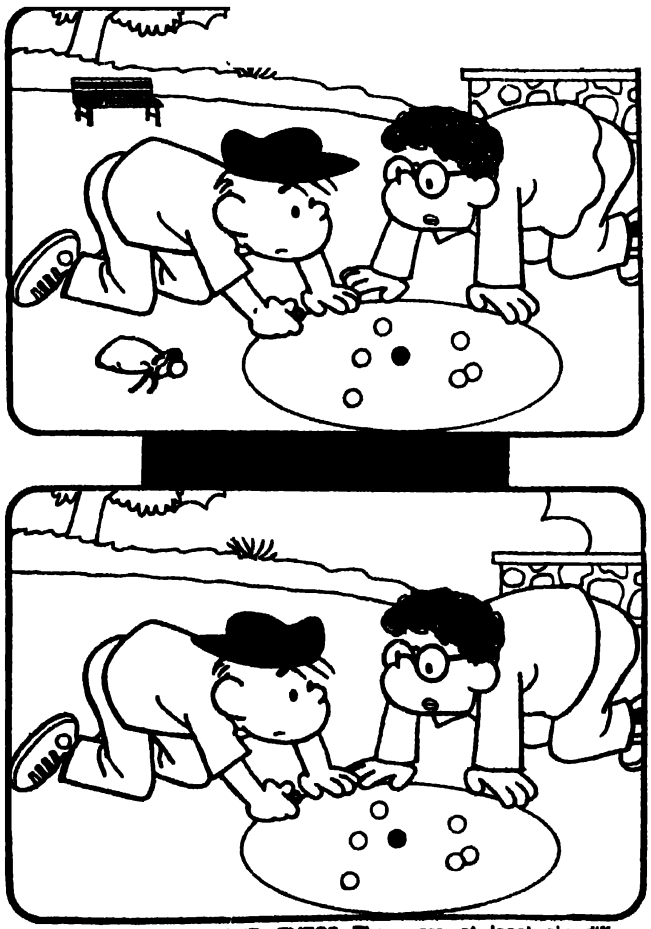
4 Rearrange CRETE into an upright stance.

5 Rearrange TREES into times of repose.



How quickly can you bring can you bring about the changeovers? Time limit: 2 min.

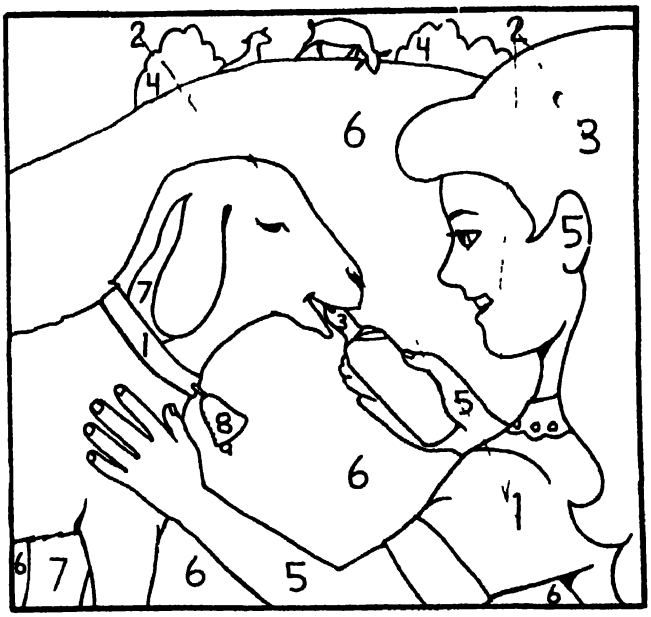
1 Aster, 2 Spare, 3 Takes, 4 Erect, 5 Rests



PICK PLAY! Nine minus eight equals four in the toothpick trick below — in a manner of speaking. Object is to remove eight toothpicks from the nine squares and have just four squares remain. How is it done? Give it a try before reading on. Try not to peek.

Here is the answer.

Alakazam, simply remove middle toothpicks of each outside row, then remove four toothpicks at center.



HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Difference 1 Bench is missing. 2 Marble bag is missing. 3 Cap is reversed. 4 Arm is moved. 5 Wall is shorter. 6 Shirtail is different.

FUNSPOT

BO PEEP SHOW! Not to worry — Little Bo Peep's lost sheep have returned. Coloring code: 1—Red. 2—Lt. blue. 3—Yellow. 4 green. 5—Flesh tones. 6—Lt. green. 7—Purple. 8—Orange.

SPELLBINDER

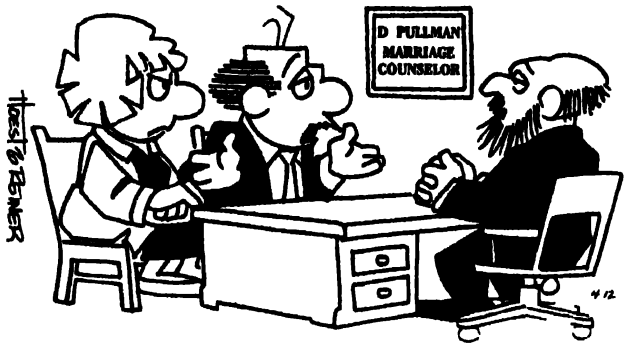
SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words.

PALOMINO

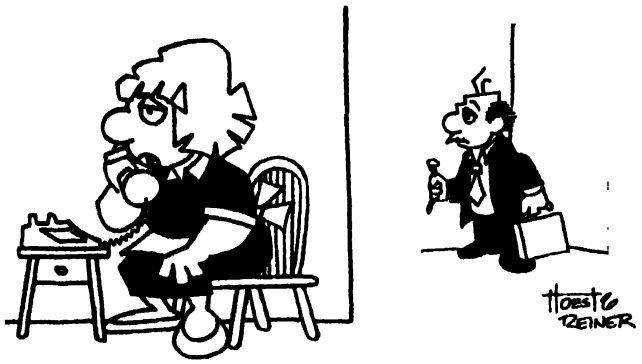
THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters.

Try to score at least 30 points.

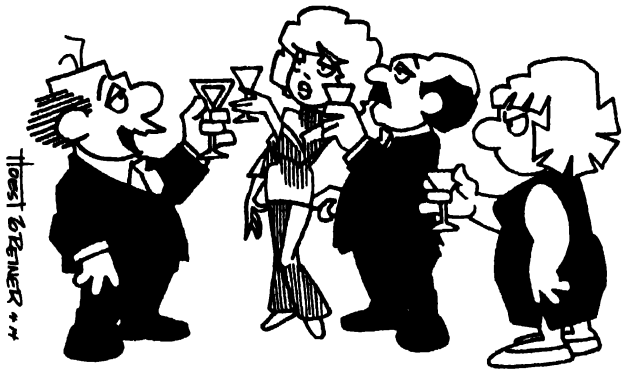
Possible two-worme: Moth, loop



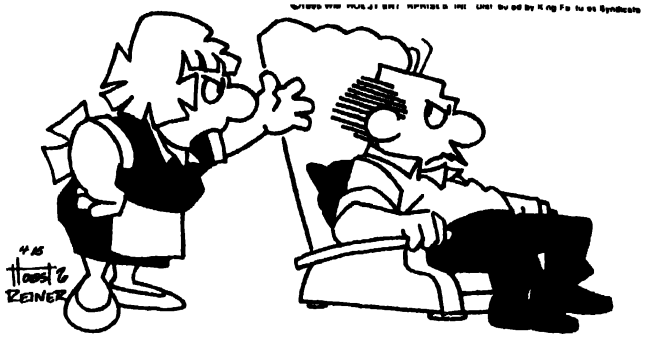
ARCHIE



CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON

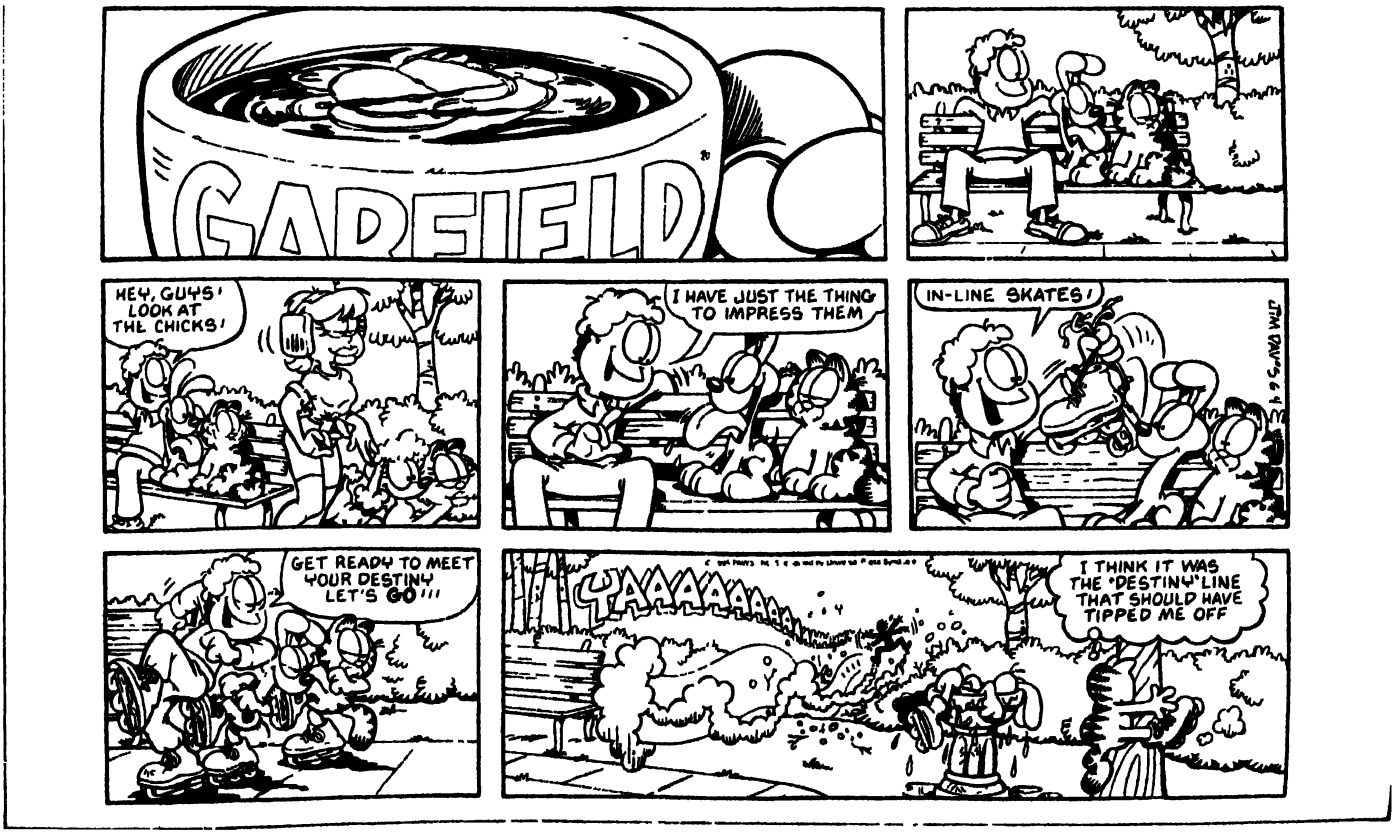


THE LOCKHORNS

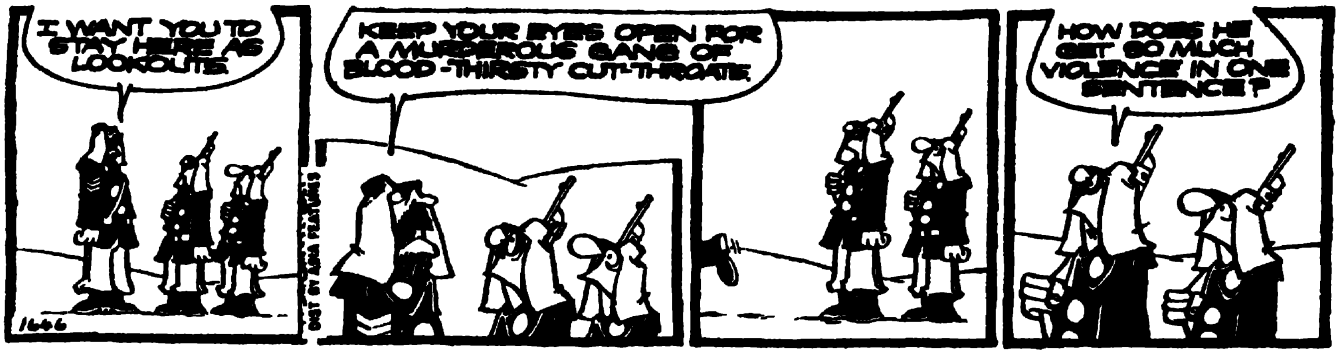


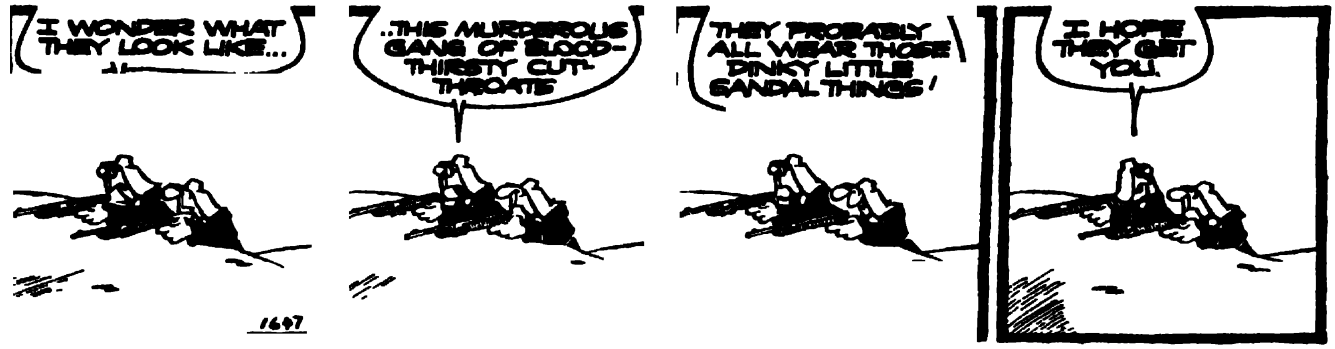
"LORETTA GAVE ME HER YOUTH . IT'S ONLY RIGHT THAT SOMEONE ELSE SHOULD GET HER OLD AGE"

"I'M NOT WORRIED, HELEN LEROY WILL GET OVER IT."

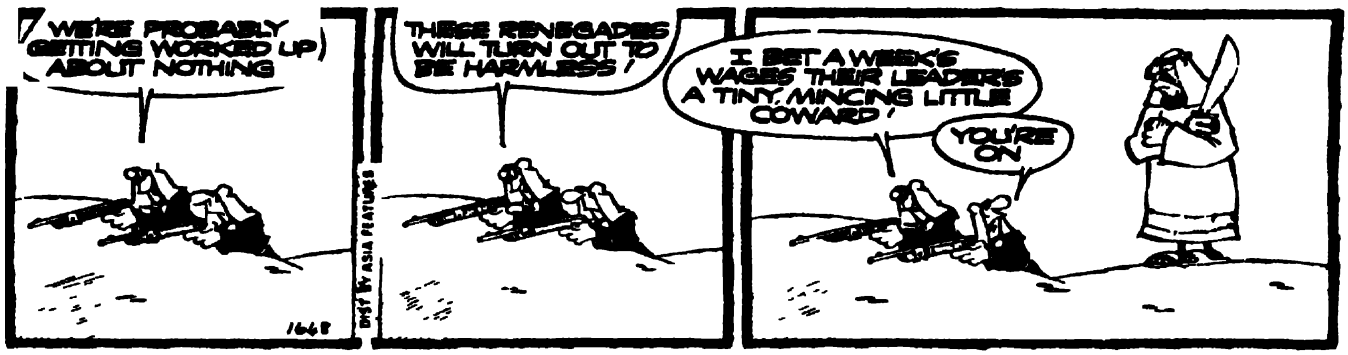


"TO THE LOVE OF MY LIFE FOOTBALL"

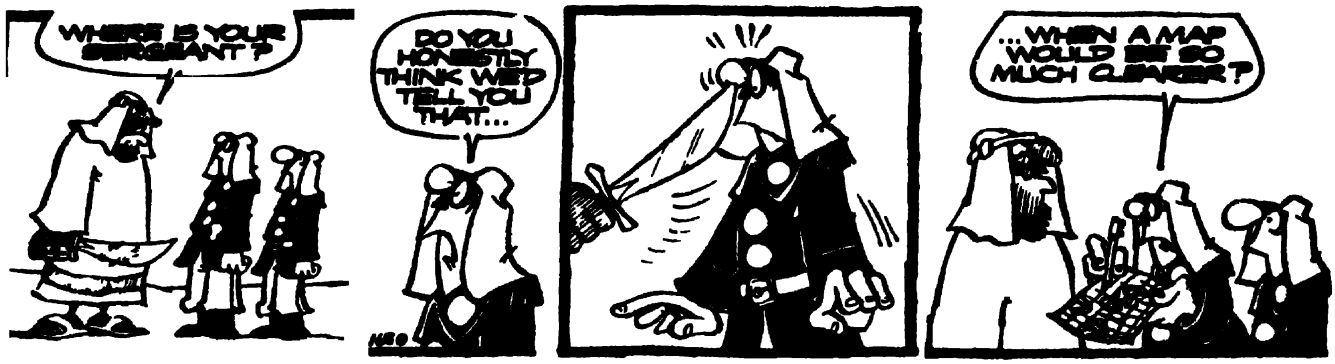




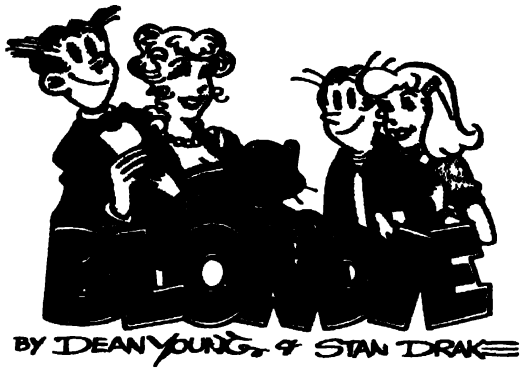
"YOU'RE THE ONLY ONE WHO EVER SAYS HE'S SORRY BECAUSE YOU'RE THE ONLY ONE WHO EVER NEEDS TO"

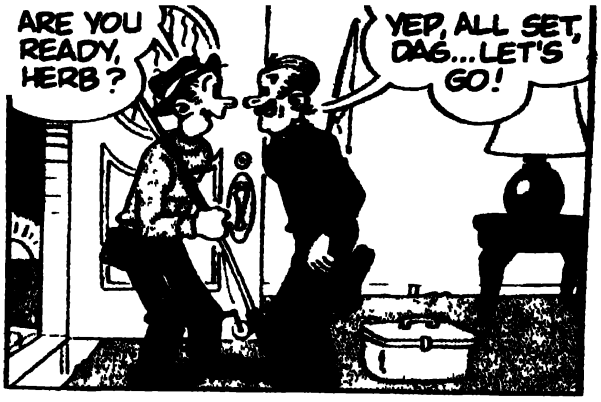


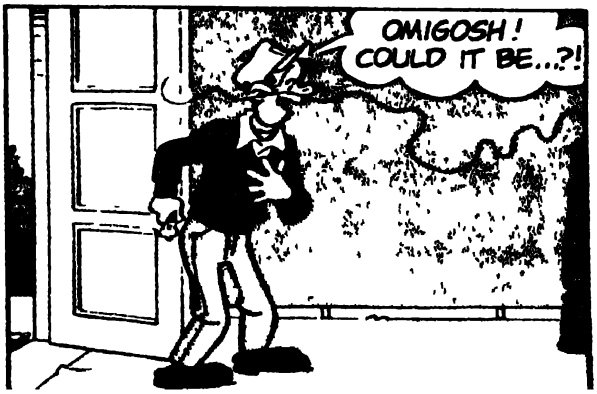
GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS

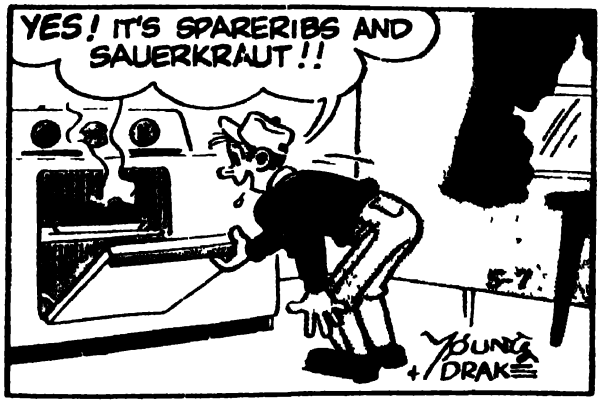


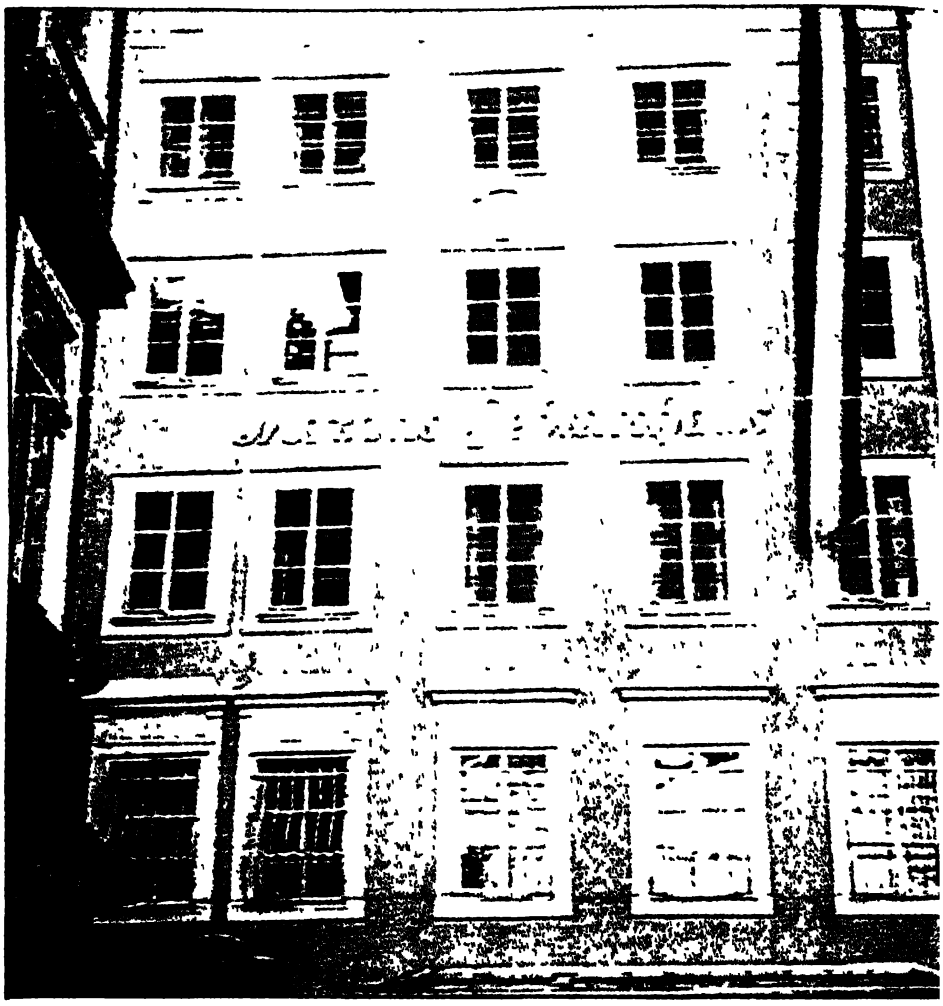
THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP











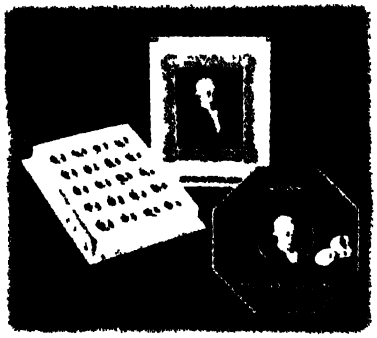
© 1985 King Features Syndicate Inc. World rights reserved.

Even though Mozart spent only the first few years of his life in Salzburg, he is the city's presiding deity, says Seema Sirohi

Mozart's birthplace

HERE A MOZART.

Without Mozart there would be no Salzburg He was born here, learnt to play music, slept and ate here and went on to become one of the greatest composers of Western classical music



Even though Joannes Chrisostomus Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart spent only the first few years of his life in Salzburg, he is the city's patron saint, crowd puller, presiding presence and marketing genius He leaps out of sweet shops, liquor stores, music shops and, of course, the museums which are dedicated to recounting his every motion in life — musical or otherwise

You can buy Mozart chocolates, rum-filled Mozart bon-bons, Mozart pens, Mozart crayons, Mozart cufflinks, Mozart watches, Mozart goblets, Mozart bookends, Mozart paperweights and on, and on, and on

He seems to carry the Salzburg economy almost entirely on his musical shoulders The city's fathers and mothers are not complaining since, as their most famous son (ever), Mozart brings in millions of tourists from all over the world

His big eyes, framed by the famous curly hair tied in a chic pony tail, are everywhere His sonatas twinkle out of guilded windows, his statue stands supreme in you guessed it -- the Mozart Square

Every corner has a claim on Mozart and if you had any doubt whether Salzburg loves the man, you simply have to visit the Mozart Foundation which tenderly collects every word written on the musician Mozart societies around the world send in donations, documents, displays to be included in the collection

Marketing Mozart with chocolates

The only rival to Mozart in Salzburg is the Sound of Music tour which takes you to all the sites where the legendary film was shot You can relive the trials and joys of the Georg von Trapp family and see the famous gazebo where the love scene was filmed or visit the Rocky Riding School where the family sang its farewell song

The international hit still manages to get people all tender and teary-eyed with its real-life story of seven children who lost their mother and who then became attached to their governess The rolling hills and the snow capped Alps around Salzburg provided the backdrop for the film

But Mozart remains the reigning deity of the city and demands attention by his sheer omnipresence That Mozart was a rare genius, a child prodigy, a great composer is beyond doubt But to bump into him constantly in a crowded tourist centre of Europe can be a little unnerving

Mozart Square

Mozart gave his first public performance at the tender age of seven having composed his first piece of music already at four. He travelled with his father to various courts and concerts, capturing the hearts of music lovers. He wrote extensive letters describing the flavour of different cities. Some 180 letters by Mozart are in the library dedicated to his memory

THERE A MOZART

But as all pilgrims to Salzburg, we too visited Getreidegasse 9 — advertised as the birthplace of all birth places (Jerusalem beware!) After crossing one more Mozart memorabilia outlet strategically placed near the entrance, we emptied our pockets at the ticket counter since nothing in Austria is cheap be it fast food or food for thought

After paying the price of a pair of jeans on sale, we entered the building, our toes freezing from the cold April showers and seeking the warmth of a Mozart home. A compelling reason for visiting the museum had been to escape the unseemly weather. But, the building was not heated.

We were immediately transported back in time. The freshly-painted yellow building with white windows stands three stories high in Austria's most famous shopping street.

Getreidegasse is indeed a pretty street with its wrought-iron shop signs painted in gold. You can get lost in a maze of inner courtyards and small lanes if you gaze too long at Cartier watches or Palmers lingerie.

But no one can miss the landmark site since it is inscribed in huge letters as Mozarts Geburtshaus or birthplace.

It is here that Mozart was born in all his curly cuddliness to Leopold Mozart and his wife on January 27, 1756. Mozart's father was a well-known musician in his own right and he began training his children at an early age.

Mozart gave his first public performance at the tender age of seven having composed his first piece of music already at four. He travelled with his father to various courts and concerts, capturing the hearts of music lovers. He wrote extensive letters describing the flavour of different cities. Some 180 letters by Mozart are in the library dedicated to his memory.

The house where the genius was born is a regular middleclass apartment with four rooms of moderate size. Nothing fancy or ornate. Today, it houses a museum of Mozart's instruments, paintings and handwritten musical scores. His viola and violin are displayed as are his piano and clavichord — an instrument that looks like a half piano. You can see Mozart's visage on ivory, on paper, in relief, in stucco, in sketch, in oil.

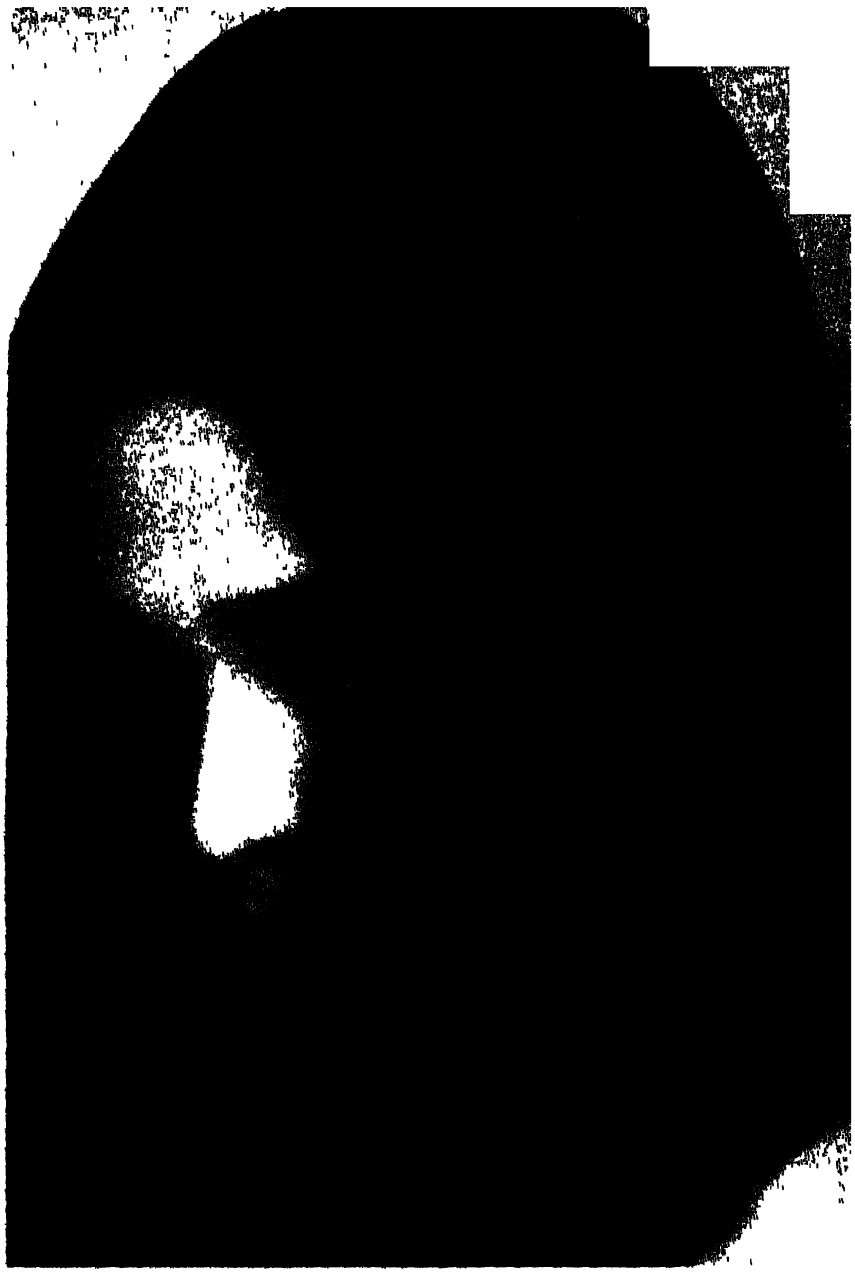
His tobacco pouch rests alongside a string purse made by some lady of leisure. Mother of pearl buttons plucked from his trademark coats lie on a tray above a few strands of hair displayed under glass. A question mark follows the announcement, 'Mozart's hair'.

The diehard devotees gaze at the hair, nearly feeling the texture of his genius. A floor below are photographs and replicas of sets for Mozart's operas from around the world.

A view of Getreidegasse

Sets from Don Giovanni were on display at the time from performances in Dresden, Prague, New York, Vienna, Paris and other famous places. In some, the dark, sinister side of Don Juan came out, while in others, the elegance of high life.

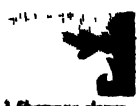
A short slide presentation traced Mozart's early life (Salzburg wants to highlight only the years spent there and not the great years in Vienna) and how he enjoyed appreciative audiences. His wife Constance remarried after Mozart's early death at the age of 35 — but their two sons never married.



A floor further down was the Mozart Cafe — the umpteenth one in town, but we resisted the temptation to spring for another expensive Austrian experience, smarting, as we were, from earlier treats and their Cartier-like prices.

He was there on the octagonal red and golden case beckoning with all his charm. We succumbed and bowed to the box and bought one marvelling at the marketing of Mozart

But as we walked to the car we could not escape the Echte Salzburg Mozartkugel or the "genuine Salzburg Mozart round" — lovingly described as a "ball of marzipan rolled in nougat cream and dipped in bittersweet chocolate".



He was there on the octagonal red and golden case beckoning with all his charm. We succumbed and bowed to the box and bought one marvelling at the marketing of Mozart.

Our shampoo and conditioner don't work together. But isn't that the secret of beautiful hair?

Two-step action.

1 Shampoo cleans, conditioner holds back.

2 Conditioner acts on cleaned surface.

Unlike ordinary shampoos with conditioners, Satin Rinse Shampoo Plus Conditioner has a unique two-step action. First the shampoo works, while the conditioner holds back.

Only after the shampoo has finished cleaning, does the conditioner take over. This is of prime importance, as conditioners don't work on oily, dirty hair.

Because our conditioner acts on a totally clean surface, it does a more thorough job. Leaving your hair satin-smooth, shiny and beautiful.

And it's no secret beautiful hair makes heads turn.

In 4 variants for normal, dry, oily and undernourished hair.

SATIN RINSE

SHAMPOO PLUS CONDITIONER

LAKMÉ

TWO-STEP ACTION. FOR SATIN-SMOOTH HAIR

FIRST PERSON

SANJIV GOENKA, 34, is already the vice-chairman of RPG Enterprises, one of India's fastest growing industrial houses with an annual turnover of more than Rs 4,000 crore. An ex-Xaverian from Calcutta, this illustrious business magnate became the youngest-ever president of the Indian Chamber of Commerce and is also the former chairman of the Confederation of Indian Industries (eastern region) where he played a pivotal role in its centenary celebrations concluded a few months back.

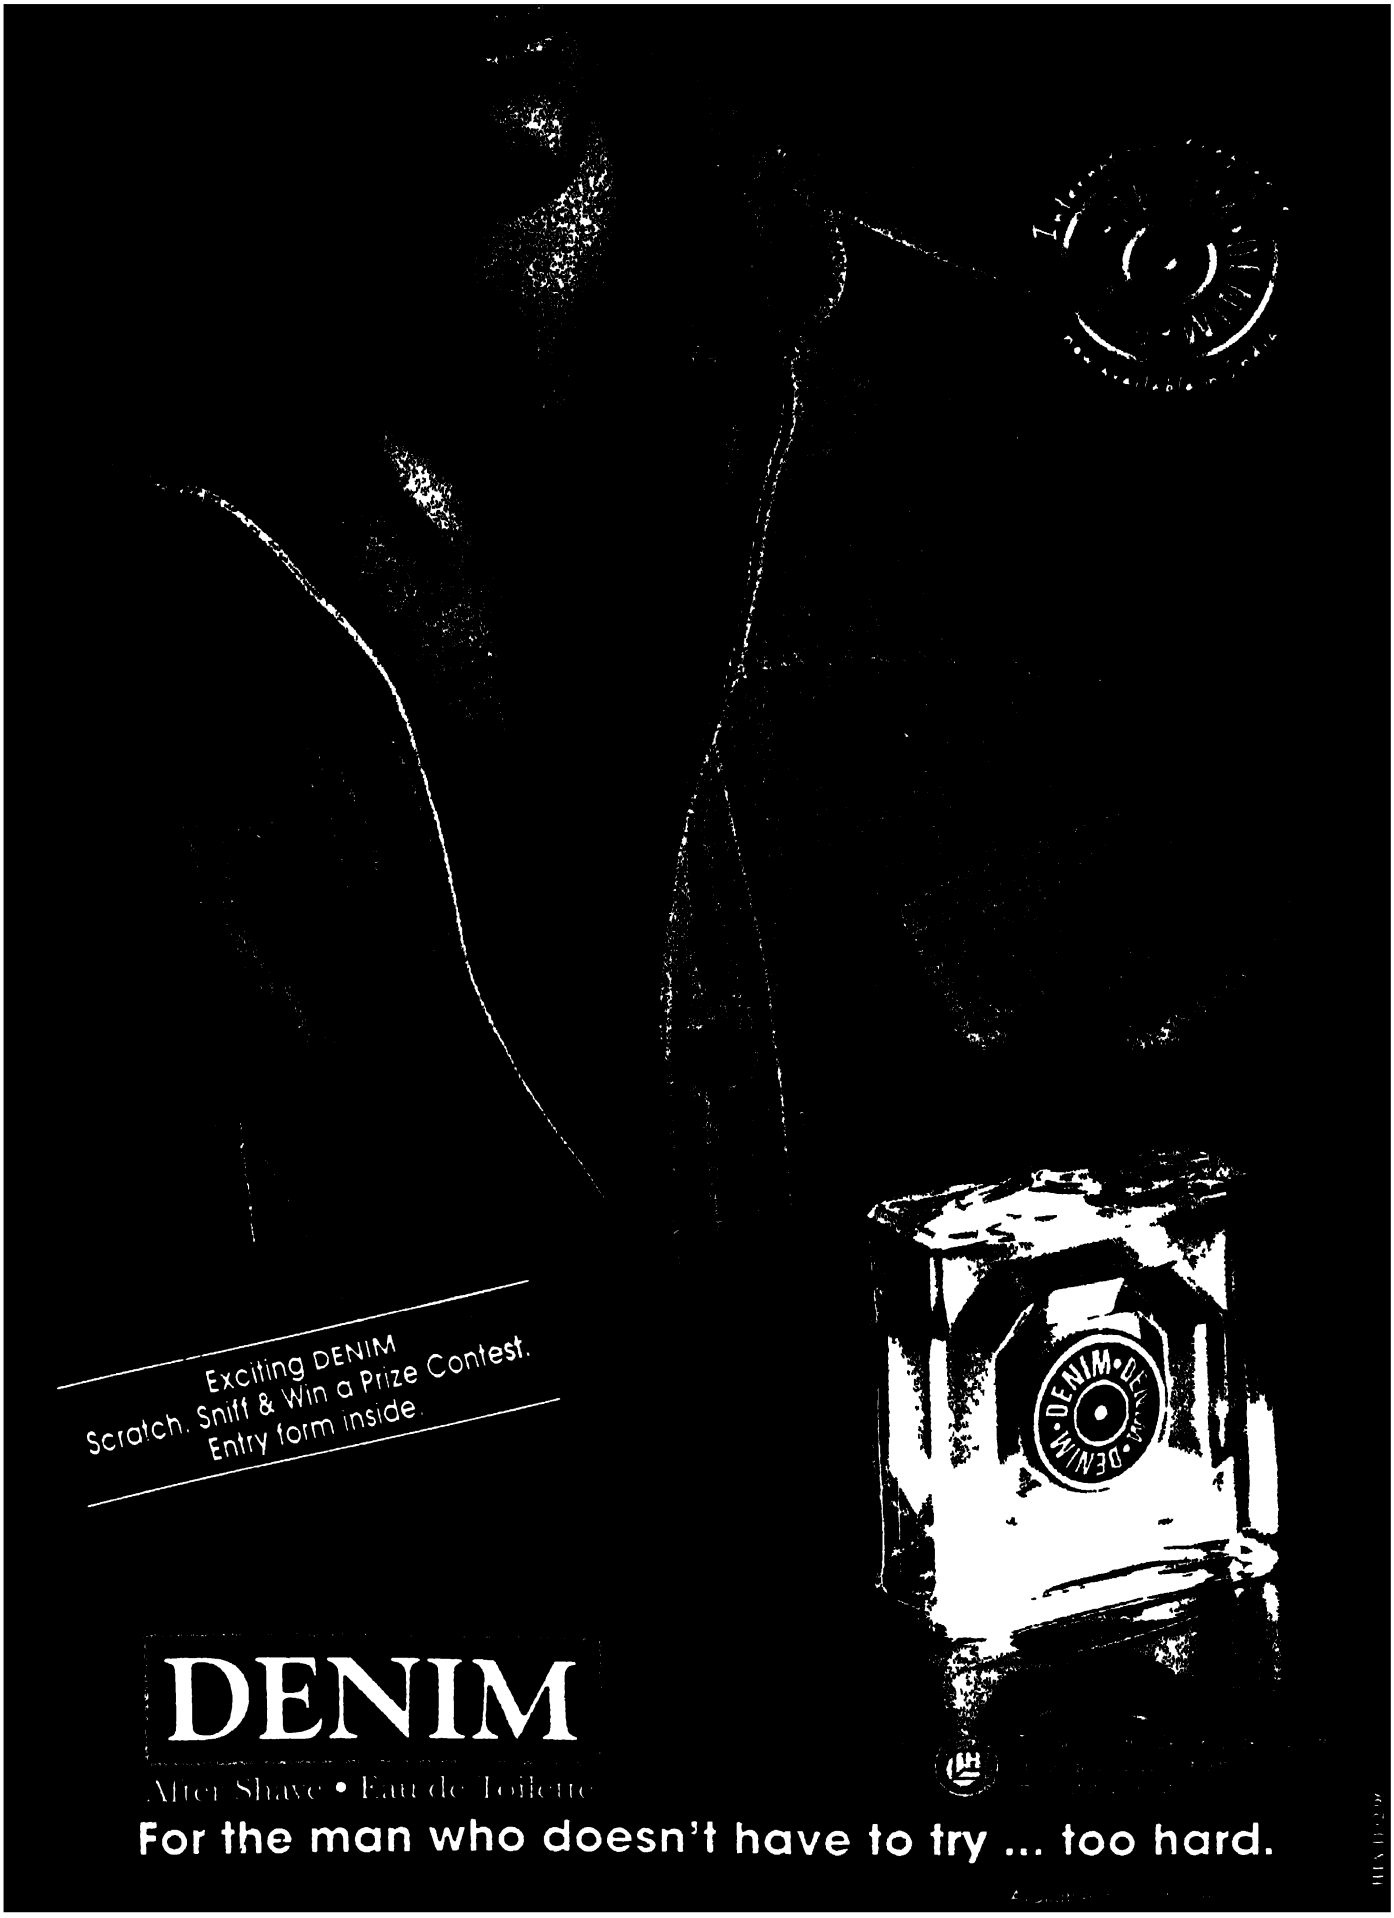
What is your idea of perfect happiness?
I am not yet experienced enough to know the secrets of happiness But this much I know, that happiness is not an external commodity It has to come from within
What is your greatest fear?
That I am not performing what is expected of me by my well-wishers
Who or what has been the greatest influence in your life?
My father, R P Goenka
What do you dislike most in others?
Too much selfishness
What do you dislike most in yourself?
My inability to match my own expectations.
What is your most precious possession?

The love and affection of my family
What objects do you always carry?
Balaji's photograph
What makes you most depressed?
People whom I trust letting me down
What do you dislike most on your appearance?
My vanishing hair

How would you like to be remembered?

An ordinary entrepreneur who is always surrounded by exceptional managers

What is your favourite journey?



A trip to Kodaikanal

What is your favourite word?
I am not sure I have a favourite word
What is your favourite journey?
A trip to Kodaikanal
What is your favourite dream?
Successful completion of a major project well ahead of schedule
What is your nightmare?
Being let down by people I trust
What or who is the greatest love of your life?
My daughters — Vasundhara and Avarna
What is your source of sustenance?
Success
On what occasions do you lie?
When sugar-coating the bitter truth

What is your source of sustenance?

Success

is unavoidable
What is your greatest regret?
Why am I not content with six hours of sleep like my father I need eight hours
What has been your happiest moment?
The birth of our first child
What brings tears to your eyes?
When love is reciprocated
How do you relax?
Watching Hindi films on video
What do you envy most in others?
Their capability to do better than I
How would you like to be remembered?
An ordinary entrepreneur who is always surrounded by exceptional managers
How would you like to die?
To pass away in sleep

Exciting DENIM
Scratch, Sniff & Win a Prize Contest.
Entry form inside.
DENIM
After Shave • Eau de Toilette
For the man who doesn't have to try ... too hard.

ROUND - THE - YEAR

COOL

SPRINGFIELD. A WIDE RANGE OF BLENDS IN WOOL, SILK/LINEN AND RIE IN SUBTLE DESIGNS AND TROPICAL SHADES.

Raymond

SINCE 1924

The Telegraph

11 JUNE 1995

POST MORTEM

Taxing Time

■ The cover story, 'Driven by Fear' (May 7) shows that making a living in America can be tough. And dangerous, too

New York has traditionally been a crime-prone city and Asians, a minority community there, obviously fall prey to either racial discrimination or acts of crime

Good money could be a motivating force attracting immigrants to the taxi industry, but it is certainly no compensation for the dangers involved

'I would have been better off in Bombay," laments an Asian cabbie. Perhaps, but there would have been other hurdles to cross in Bombay Besides, crime is on the rise everywhere, including Bombay

Tarit Basu,
Calcutta

Knocked Out

■ Mike Tyson and Sunjay Dutt's stories are that of two famous personalities ruining their career and life ('What the Jail can do to a Man', April 23).

Tyson, who had knocked out many an opponent in his life to be the champ, is now himself out of the boxing ring Maybe he will make a grand comeback one day But his crime will never be erased from public consciousness.

Prashant Arora

Sunjay Dutt: Arms and the man

In the other case, reel life hero, Sunjay, was stamped with the image of a khalnayak in real life, rightly or wrongly we are yet to know

Can they be called victims of circumstances?

Panchanana Baskey,
Baripada (Orissa)

■ The cover story tries to project Sunjay as an innocent babe. His "childish impulsiveness" had landed himself in a spot once, the story stresses

Sunjay was more than a mature adult and should have realised the pitfalls of possessing an AK-56

Debanjan Banerjee,
Calcutta

■ The idea of judicial punishment is to reform a human being, not to ruin his career. But in the case of Tyson and Sunjay their careers appear to have been prematurely terminated

Sanjib Dutta,
Calcutta

Seeing Stars

■ The best column in the Magazine is Inner Eye. Initially, I had no faith in astrology But after going through Bejan Daruwalla's weekly forecasts, I think I have developed some belief in the planets' influence on ordinary mortals like us

Priyatu Mandal,
Calcutta

■ I am told that a new zodiac sign has come into existence. Why doesn't Bejan Daruwalla include this in his Inner Eye column?

Tania Chakrabarty,
Kharagpur

Double Seshan

■ T N. Seshan has undoubtedly ushered in a great many changes in our electoral system but there have been occasions when he has overstepped his authority and behaved like a dictator ('Tu Cheez Badi Hai Mast Mast', May 7)

Now he acts as our moral guardian warning us about the ill effects of watching Bollywood films.

Seshan should not forget that he attends functions like the Filmfare awards Didn't he present Madhuri Dixit with the Best Actress Award?

Someone who hobnobs with filmstars should not be complaining of Bombay and television corrupting the youth

Anindya Dasgupta,
Srirampur (W B)

■ The constant beaming of television programmes has completely ruined the youth What is most lamentable is that television is killing the reading habits of everyone, more so the children — be it newspapers, serious journals, magazines or even bestsellers

Sunil Banerjee,
Calcutta

■ T N Seshan's book, The Degeneration of India, priced at Rs 299, will be a luxury. How many of us can afford to buy that book at this price?

Mir Afsar Ali,
Calcutta

INSIDE

Courtesy Ensemble

PAGE 4

TARUN TAHILIANI has shot into international fame with billionaire Sir James Goldsmith's daughter, Jemima, selecting him to craft her trousseau. But does this break mean anything at all for the Indian designers?

PAGE 26

FEATURING SOME Tarun Tahiliani creations

A design from Monapali

SECTIONS

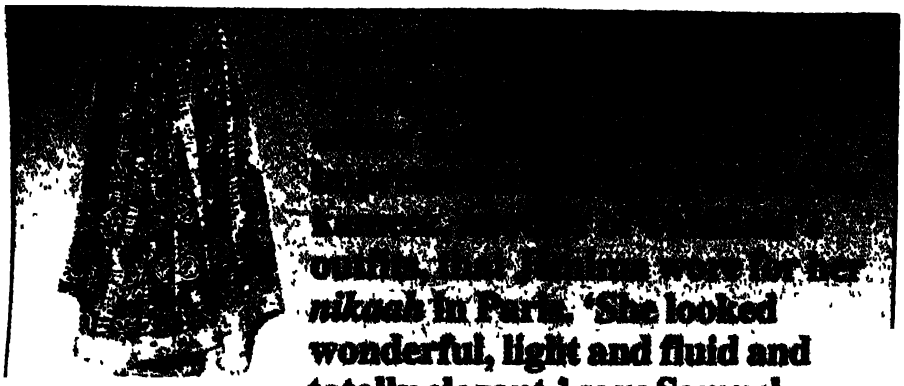
16 TIME TABLE
18 RUSKIN BOND
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
26 FOCUS
30 FIRST PERSON

Cover Creations by Tarun Tahiliani, photograph courtesy Ensemble

Cut and THRUST

Next week Jemima, alias Haiqua, will be donning Tarun Tahiliani's designs for her marriage with Imran Khan What does this break mean for the Indian label in the international market? Amit Roy and Suman Bhuchar talk to fashion industry experts in London and give the lowdown

WHEN ISABELLA BLOW, A CONTRIBUTING EDITor of Vogue, went to a fashion show at the Dorchester Hotel in London in autumn last year, she met an "incredible designer".



His name?

It does not trip easily off her tongue, but finally it comes: "Tarun Tahiliani"

Blow considered putting him in Vogue, the Western world's fashion Bible, but decided against it.

"He is a bit too Eastern," she explains. "But if I went to India I could sort him out."

It is kind of Blow to offer, but Tahiliani might not need her help anymore. He has landed the job that has put the noses of many top designers out of joint. When Imran Khan marries Jemima Goldsmith at Richmond registry office on June 20 in the social event of the year —and before an army of photographers—the bride will be wearing a cream salwar kameez nikaah in Paris. 'She looked wonderful, light and fluid and totally elegant,' says Samuel created by Tahiliani

Shameem Mithaiwala, a Bombay student from the London College of Fashion, reckons that the Indian designer is about to take the West by storm

"It is a brilliant opportunity," she enthuses "It will be a totally Asian look and it will take away the breath of English society"

Perhaps this judgment is a trifle immature According to The Daily Telegraph's fashion editor, Kathryn Samuel, "Tahiliani is not yet a big name in international terms, but it is a beginning"

British fashion editors are a hypercritical lot, but Samuel was impressed with the chiffon salwar kameez — another of Tahiliani's outfits — that Jemima wore for her nikaah in Paris "She looked wonderful — light and fluid and totally elegant," says Samuel

So just how much do Western designers owe to the subcontinent?

Mohammed Tariq, a Pakistani designer in Britain who sells under the 'Mask' label, says that Asians have injected colour into Western lives — literally "Until 20 years ago, most Western people did not have a clue about colours Menswear was all black, blue or grey — now you get people wearing red blazers"

Lisa Armstrong, Vogue's associate editor, agrees· "Indian fabrics and colours are tremendously in vogue"

Any Indian who walks past clothes shops in Oxford Street or Knightsbridge will immediately recognise that Western designers have borrowed heavily from India Everything from fabrics to colours, embroidery, tie dyes and clothes, specially the kurta, waistcoat, the Lucknowi pyjama and the Nehru jacket, have been stolen from India But credit is seldom given

For example, Jean Paul Gaultier's churidar-type tight trousers, Nehru-style jackets and loose shirts clearly have Indian influences Among others who have been inspired by India are Romeo Giogli, an Italian, and Draes Van Noten, a Paris-based Belgian

Valentino's chiffons, heavily embroidered with sequins, have a touch of the sari The British designer Zandra Rhodes was so taken with the sari that she went to India and produced her own designs In 1987, she showed off hand-beaded saris from Madras at a fashion show in Olympia, London

Her clothes also enhanced the beauty of scantily clothed models who were photographed in India for Unipart's 1995 calendar Her 1995

LEGGY DIANA IN A TAHILIANI?

For Tarun Tahiliani to be bracketed with the likes of Giorgio Armani, Yves St Laurent, Emanuel Ungaro, Karl Lagerfeld, Gianfranco Ferre and Gianni Versace, he needs someone like Princess Diana to wear his clothes

Diana is Britain's and probably the world's most sought after clotheshorse Her patronage is worth millions to her favoured designers

Her wedding dress was designed by David and Elizabeth Emmanuel, and she is known to have worn Bruce Oldfield, Jeff Banks, Zandra Rhodes, Jean Muir, Catherine Walker and Donna Karan

Since her separation from Prince

A Tarun Tahiliani fashion show in London

Charles, she has cut down spending on clothes to £90,000 a year If she were paid to endorse products, it is reckoned her sponsorship would earn her £250,000 from Ray-Ban glasses, £250,000 from Reebok trainers. £150,000 from Lacoste (for wearing their tennis skirts), and £250,000 from Head ski suits.

When she sports thin silk dresses, she chooses Damart thermolactyl thermal underwear.

She prizes a shawl given to her on her Indian trip in 1990 by Amjad Ali Khan In 1991, she wore jodhpurs for a formal portrait taken by Earl of Snowdon with her husband and two sons.

Her style mentor has been Anna Harvey, deputy editor at Vogue A fashion editor says: "She loves to show off her legs in glossy tights and high heels."

On a recent Caribbean holiday, she got into trouble for wearing a figure-hugging white top without a bra. It provoked Jane Moore, fashion editor of the Sun to observe: "Going braless is not fitting behaviour for royalty "

But column-inches in newspapers is what celebrities and their fashion designers want.

One of the most controversial designers is Gianni Versace, who designed a revealing dress, held together with large safety pins, for the actress Elizabeth Hurley. His critics say his designs verge on the tarty.

But he has revealed that when he was a little boy, his mother took him past a brothel· "From behind her fingers, I could see the most beautiful, incredible magical women."

In marked contrast, Tahiliani's upbringing, even if he went to Doon, has been quite proper.

A.R. and S.B.

Her [Diana's] style mentor has been Anna Harvey, deputy editor at Vogue. A fashion editor says: 'She loves to show off her legs in glossy tights and high heels' spring/summer collection has an "over the top, multi-coloured Madras check, chiffon wedding dress with lime green panniers and trailing purple net train"

At a fashion show in May, 1995, she used brilliant colours in stunning printed chiffons and silks "Zandra has taken the classic garments for the Western woman," says her office

It adds that she uses "tunics in classic shapes" with "trousers in the Eastern tradition" These outfits are "teamed with a magnificent capsule collection of hand embroidered scarves and stoles (dupattas)"

One designer who miscalculated was Gianni Versace who put an extract from the Koran into the pattern of a bustier worn by the supermodel Claudia Schiffer Some Muslims exploded in anger and the bewildered designer received a death threat

Selina Blow, a part-Sri Lankan, part-English designer in London, says that thanks to India, Western clothes have become "more glamorous, flamboyant and vivid" She adds "The Nehru jacket has been copied by Donna Karan and Georgio Armani "

One company which imports a big proportion of its clothes — mainly cotton garments of ethnic design — from [redacted] Monsoon, founded by an Englishman, Peter Simon. His middle name is Monsoon (he later changed it to Michael).

This year, the Indian look is less in evidence than previously, according to fashion experts Even so, the big department stores stock Indian-looking lines

The spring and summer look at Marks and Spencers includes long blouses with side slits which resemble the kameez Simpsons, in Piccadilly staged a three-week India season this summer and showed off such India-inspired garments as elaborately-patterned dupattas and shawls to be worn with Asian-style jackets and palazzo pants

Zandra Rhodes. Swept by the sari

Ramola Bachchan: In a Tahiliani outfit

Before Tahiliani's name first croppe-de up, the one Indian designer who had attracted media attention was Asha Sarabhai, who retails through a shop called Egg in Knightsbridge She was endorsed by the daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Kent, Lady Helen Windsor She wore a Sarabhai creation at the wedding of Princess Margaret's daughter, Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones. It was an adapted kurta and churidar, with a shawl draped dramatically over her shoulder

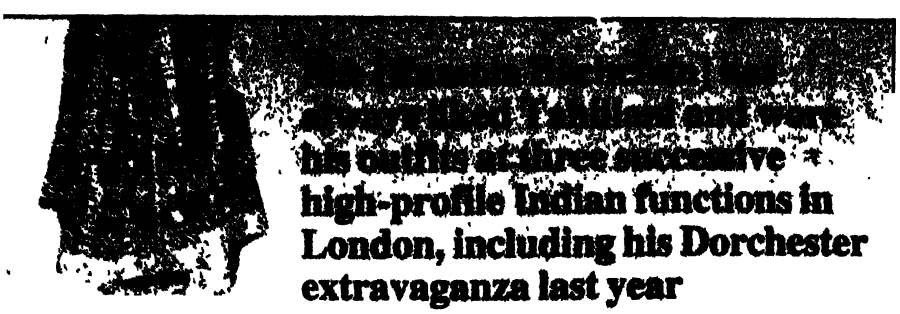
Sarabhai's Cambridge contemporary, Deborah Swallow, head of the India-section at the Victoria & Albert Museum, believes the Ahmedabad-based designer has "achieved something really unique in bridging the gap between Indian and Western cultural traditions" "Westerners tend only to care about how clothing looks Asha cares about the feel as well "

While Sarabhai has been building a British following, well-heeled Indian women in the UK have gone for Western designers with the Eastern touch Ramola Bachchan, the society hostess, points out that among Western designers who appeal to Indian women are Versace, Armani, Escada, Valentino and Yves St Laurent

Catherine Walker, who is expected to make some wedding outfits for Jemima, is "a bit too British" for Indian women, Ramola Bachchan says She adds "Indian taste is a bit more flamboyant "

She has always liked Tahiliani and wore his outfits at three successive high-profile Indian functions in London including his Dorchester extravaganza last year

The event, which launched Tahiliani's look, was organised partly by Rohini Khosla, sister of the late Rohit Khosla, who died just as he was about to make it big on the Western fashion scene Rohini created the right atmosphere at the show by attention to detail



Models imported from India included Mehr Jesia, who often works for Tahiliani The music included a track, Chalte chalte from Pakeezah

Rohini, who recalls that "Tarun's show was a huge success", says that there is a growing market for Indian designers But if they are to make the vital breakthrough in the West, she adds, "more good quality shows are needed"

She points out that the Japanese succeeded only when their designers introduced the international look, and suggests that Indians should club together to promote their interests

She asserts, "The Western woman will not want a salwar-kameez. If you have a beautiful jacket by Tarun, fabulous crinkled pants by Abu-Sandeep, a lycra top by Rina Dhaka, it could be the right ensemble for a Western woman "

She hopes that Vogue will soon highlight the work of Tahiliani and other

[redacted] his outfits at three successive high-profile Indian functions in London, including his Dorchester extravaganza last year

[redacted]

[redacted] Indian clothes are reserved for formal Asian occasions — weddings, religious functions and family parties.

At 16, Priya Mavjee, who is about to sit for her GCSE school exams, almost never wears Indian clothes. "I like the English-type casual look and get my clothes from Gap and French Connection."

Actress Shaheen Khan, 34, loves Agnes and Romeo Giogli, "but I cannot afford them." She says: "I wear leggings from Harvey Nichols."

PR person Bushra Ahmed, 32, sister of Shami Ahmed, the name behind the Joe Bloggs label, wears [redacted] "Jean Paul Gaultier for the evening."

Model Vandana Vij, 22, and nearly 5' 10" tall, says she likes either very long or very short skirts by Jane Norman. "I get my Indian clothes from Silver Tulip and Bridal Galleria in Delhi."

One 24-year-old student who spends £100 a month on "looking good" is Balvinder Jalaf. "I shop at Jigsaw and Kookai and get my jeans from Valentino."

Tina Patel, 24, who is studying business management, patronises Next and Miss Selfridge. "Most of my Indian wardrobe comes from Variety Silk House in Wembley. Young Indian women are wearing saris these days — it is usually plain with a pattern around the [redacted] and whistles." [redacted] she wears only occasionally, are bought from South Extension in Delhi.

Filmmaker Shakila Maan, 35, who admits being "a fashion victim", goes for the country look of Racing Green. For ordinary wear, she wears Chino trousers. "My Indian clothes are stitched by my sister. I like Lucknowi pyjamas, sherwanis, Sixties-style fitted salwar-kameezes. I look at Indian movies like Silsila and Mehboob Ki Mehndi for my styles."

A.R. and S.B.

Indian designers

British journalists, who are hungry for every scrap on the Imran wedding romance, have started targetting Tahiliani

Making Jemima's wedding outfit will get him more publicity than he could ever have hoped for But to compete with the big stars of the Western world, his clothes have to be worn by supermodels on the catwalk that matter

Lisa Armstrong of Vogue identifies the battles that lie ahead for Tarun Tahiliani "To get really known in the fashion world, you need to show in the four international cities — Paris, Milan, New York and London "

And what does the Indian fashion circle itself feel about the Big Break? Shameem Akthar and Samita Bhatia get the feel of things

The bride of the year, Jemima Goldsmith, may want the Bombay's czar of fashion, Tarun Tahiliani, to design her wedding wardrobe, but the city's beau monde continues to be its irreverent self

And like an insatiable lover in unflagging pursuit of multi-partners, this jet-setting, trend-making crowd experiments with many designers, many modes.

So, there is no one statement on vogue that emerges from this fashion capital of the nation.

While one Tahiliani makes the world sit up in eager anticipation and one Hemant Trivedi wows Miss World judges with his Aishwarya Rai gowns, fashion watchers will sadly tell you that as long as Indian buyers (the inspiration behind the creations) dither between the West and the East the internationalisation of Indian designs will take some time to come

For instance, while editor-social talent-seeker Maureen Wadia slips in and out of sarees or power suits to match the animated pace of her many interests, the queen of the champagne circuit, Shobha De, pledges eternal faith to her closet of ethnic clothes

Fashion writer Meher Castellino writes off frothy zardozi as passe, while averring that the West was still very much in, specially in India But Bollywood's true-love designer, Xerxes Bhathena, vows that though the West was best as far as the disco haunting richie rich kids were concerned, understated ethnic clothes emphasised chic for the older lot, who were finding out that they do not have to be Westernised to look cultured.

But then pop queens, sizzling Sharon Prabhakar and alluring Alisha Chinai, root for body-hugging Western lines, and would scout abroad for the right fabric and the right cut

And the city's fashion trinity — boutiques Glitterati, Ensemble and Sheetal — declare that the East does meet the West comfortably on the designers' drawing board Conflicting pointers for those slavishly waiting on the fringes to follow their demi-gods

What about the competition from Pierre Cardin and other foreign outlets which have started sprouting in the major metros here? 'Cardin, who is he?' asks loyal-Indian Bollywood designer Xerxes Bhathena e world of elan.

And for those who want to know if India was becoming marked as a shoppers' stop on the international map of fashion.

'Bombay Girl' Chinai, for instance, though swooning over model Milind Soman in her latest video for being 'Made in India', prefers the Western cut If she were taller, perhaps, she may not have minded the drapes of the Indian dress But her petiteness, she explained, put paid to this choice

When she does opt for the 'Made in India' look she picks up an Ensemble label Or a Shahab Durazi These two masters of the thread give even Indian clothes a tailored look which Chinai points out is essential for her small frame

But her ultimate favourite will always remain the late Rohit Khosla He gave her the come-hither look that this Indian Madonna hankers after

Bhathena would agree with Chinai's temporary switchover to the 'Made in India' tag He would not comment on whether the West was opting for Indian clothes But definitely more Indians were

He sings paeans to the Lucknowi range of Sandeep Khosla And the Tahiliani collection two months ago, which underscored the Indian look "To a certain point the young kids may think that ethnic is old fashioned for the clubs and discotheques But when it comes to socialite evenings, the big get-togethers and major parties, it is the Indian look which is considered glamorous"

The new-breed designer pack's exquisite cuts get widely splashed in the press The photographs are cutout as models and their designs get recycled by everybody who wants the glam look which, enthuses fashion photographer Atul Kasbekar, was best exemplified in a Shahab Durazi (for the structure) and a Rohit Bal (for the flow) ensemble

"This media craze lets 'the' look reach everywhere and everyone This has resulted in the revival of Indian clothes which," Bhathena predicts, "are very much here to stay"

Though Western clothes are neither down nor out, they will pose no competition to the desiwallah What about the competition from Pierre Cardin and other foreign outlets which have started sprouting in the major metros here? "Cardin, who is he?" asks loyal-Indian Bhathena

Seema Kakkar of the elite Glitterati boutique would subscribe to this

From the Bhairavi Jaikishan collection at Glitterati

India view "The craze for Indian clothes has always been there, but today the Western style allows translation into Indian designs These in turn are becoming more Westernised by turning more stylised More emphasis is placed on the cut, the body and the shape And then there is more consciousness for environmental-friendly fabrics and colours, as in the West"

This shopping paradise for the cash-rich NRIs had a summer collection, ranging from Rs 2,000 to Rs 60,000 (yes, for one dress!), cater to this borrowed-from-the-West eco chumminess Long signing colours like deep pink and bridal reds are out The ecru (which is a favourite off-white shade abroad), beige, whites and lavenders have taken over

Black has been the only constant to survive this subtle assault on preferences, observes Kakkar

The first casualty to internationalisation of Indian designs has been embroidery Heavy embroidery is suspected to be overkill

Today, in Bombay embroidery seems over only vital stitches while the dress for the day is essentially basic, elegant This does not mean that skimpy dresses are in, avers Kakkar Elegance in India is yet to borrow from the show-skin Western mode

Fashion writer Castellino will be the first to dismiss the notion of Indian designs exploding on the international fashion arena She agrees with Kakkar that Indian designs were getting more Westernised in look

The heavy zari work is now passe, even for weddings which till now demand ornate, stifling drapes smothered in embroidery Castellino observes that more and more chic brides are choosing to spend their D-Days in a no-fuss, no-zari dress which is almost like a long gown that retains only its basic shape Jackets (also Western), gowns for evening wear, one-piece short dresses with simple lines and no work is the in thing in India, as it is abroad

Sharon Prabhakar agrees that Indian designs were 'too heavy' even for Indian taste And have to get simpler before they could set afire the catwalks abroad She is the lycra freak and so shops only in the West for outfits that mould her power exercised, toned figure Formal wear is lycra Crush proof and crunchy enough to be fit into a handbag

Prabhakar could be writing an ad for lycra But it was the only fabric which was simple and set off a well-maintained shape "I would drown in the Indian dress," she moans, explaining that for five years she had not been tempted by even the best designer here to pick up an Indian dress And owns only one zari suit by Ritu's which has long served its use

So, unless Indian designers turn to more bodylines, health freaks like Prabhakar will look to the West And the West, which is even more fanatical about figure 10, will take more time before it turns East

And when trendy women like Maureen Wadia straddle both the worlds, to choose the best between the two "If I am running around working I find that trousers are practical and comfortable But for formal wear, I like a saree"

So, is the Indian designer going international? He will, if he finds a median And the search for that has just begun

While the Asha Bhosle-owned boutique Anja San (only the elite can pronounce that!) sticks to Western styles for its exclusively male wear (designed by Reza Sharifi), fashion stops like Ensemble and Jordache's '30 K-The Store' continue to flirt with both styles

Says an Ensemble hand, "Tarun experiments with a broad range" Which includes bridals (even today mostly ethnic, like frothily-embroidered sarees or the richly-sequinned lehnga-cholis) which cost Rs 1 lakh onwards, and Westernised clothes made to order, starting from a minimum of Rs 8,000

Jordache has a lot of denim and lot of Western suits But its wide panel of designers comprising Harsh Agarwal, Geetu, Mallavika Agarwal, Divya Ratanlal and brands Pace, Pye and Biriz Mode continue to retain their ethnic roots with the salwar-kameez which cost from Rs 1,000 to Rs 20,000, Chetana Gopinath, manager of 30-K, says that though nostalgia struck NRIs preferred Indian clothes, the sales were divided 50-50 between the West-East styles

But in the past one and half year, she has noticed, among the Indian buyers, a definite shift towards ethnicity

Shobha De should be happy She is, among being anti-many things, also anti-fashion She likes to make her wardrobe decisions herself And if fashion muses like her remain steady to the Indian dress, maybe the fashion genius here will finally find that will-o-wisp median between the East and West

Courtesy J J Valaya

A design by J.J. Valaya and (inset) the designer

Recently, Dubai was agog at the prospect of a fashion show that promised Rohit Bal and J J. Valaya's collections on the ramp. Back home, the high-flying designers were taken aback at this bit of information for, as it happened, the organisers had obviously made bogus claims to attract the crowds Neither Bal nor Valaya were scheduled to display their lines in Dubai at that time

A clarification was issued, but a point was driven home. Valaya was pleased as punch to learn that top Indian designers like himself did have admirers overseas "We may not have made a major impact in the international fashion scene but there is a fan following."

JJ has made forays abroad and has a strong following in UAE retailing in stores in Dubai, Kuwait, Bahrain and London while "South Africa is showing signs of opening up now."

Today, JJ feels, the Indian designer has touched the highest point in Indian high fashion Muses he "There remains one very important thing for us to do now and that is to sell our labels abroad in a major way"

Ritu Kumar is a designer who enjoys the distinction of having dressed Sushmita Sen, Aishwarya Rai and now Manpreet Brar As the winners sashayed down the ramps attired in her creations, Kumar got rave notices from an international audience Says Kumar. "The Indian designer is making a dent in a definite way within the parameters of the Indian market abroad."

She adds: "Designers are making their presence felt very gradually, not in a sense of offering international brands any competition in haute couture but as a country that wears different clothing"

Most designers concur that our fashion industry, being just eight years old, is still in its infancy However, the strides made in these eight years, estimates J J Valaya, is equivalent to what Paris and Italy would have been able to achieve in 50 years!

"Currently what we designers are taking abroad are essentially Indian designs and offshoots of Indian clothes," says JJ "Breaking into the American or European market is at the moment an uphill task We will need a strong financial backing besides we ourselves will have to make certain that what we send out is the best"

Our designers focus on specialised embroidery, but not really on the body structure The emphasis is more on the embellishments rather than the body David Abraham is, perhaps, the only one who is really going places abroad (Though Bina Ramani does not like to talk about it, she has had Hillary Clinton buying from her collections).

The world is obviously not short on designers and it is to an extent a shrinking market which continues to be inundated with new breeds of designers all the time Industry observers feel that in this scenario our own designers will be noticed provided they come up with new and different designs and styles that can be bought for great prices

JJ adds, "It is not fair to compare ourselves with mega international labels as that common platform has yet to be created."

Pierre Cardin Fashions came into the country with a bang for India is a high focus market for international brands to sell their lines. According to Anuradha Ruhil, managing partner, Pierre Cardin Fashions India, Indian

WHO WEARS WHOSE

Here's what the Indian celebs like to wear:

Shabana Azmi, actress and activist. I have no pet designer label. I do not follow fashion and believe that no 'designer ensemble' can match the sari in sheer elegance.

However, when I travel abroad for specific functions (specially professional premieres, awards), I try and arrive at an 'international' rather than a purely ethnic look.

Ritu Kumar put together all my clothes for the retrospectives of my films at the prestigious Smithsonian Institution and American Film Institute in Washington, the Pacific Cinematheque in Vancouver and the Winnipeg Cinematheque at Winnipeg.

Kumar's clothes were a huge success — because they were expensive without being ostentatious, classy without being ornate. I would not exchange her leather jackets (specially the 'tree of life' piece) for any designer label in the world! Also, she is great fun to be with.

Mehr Jessia, model: I used to like Rohit Khosla's work very much. Now I like Tarun Tahiliani — both for the same reason They used to pamper me. I used to feel spoilt by them. They used to make me feel like a queen. Whenever I visited his studio, Rohit used to gift outfits to me. Tarun also does the same thing. Yesterday he was going to London with a new collection and he just gave me an outfit I like. Both knew what I wanted. I never had to tell them about my tastes.

Meher Castellino, former Miss India and fashion writer: I like Pawan Aswani, Wendell Rodrigues and Hester Maxwell clothes. Very simple lines and extremely long-lasting.

Nafisa Ali in a Bina Ramani design

And their designs give scope for mix and match of different outfits. I like that since I can wear these clothes in different ways.

Sharon Prabhakar, pop star: For the stage I like Sunoo Dawar's clothes because I trust her with what I want. When it is something flamboyant and filmy I choose Kavita Bhathena and Manish Malhotra.

Maureen Wadia, editor of fashion supermodel discoverer: I like Pallavi Jaikishen because she knows Indian garments very well

Bina Ramani, designer, agony aunt and socialite: I wear a lot of my own clothes as I am most comfortable in them. I have a European build — tall, long-legged and long waisted. That's just the right kind of body for Western wear.

The designers I prefer are Abu and Sandeep from Bombay who are among the few who understand the body structure. But they are too expensive

Meera and Muzaffar Ali's designs and classic cuts are also among my favourites.

Earlier I preferred bright jewel tones, now I've moved to neutral colours, earth shades — cream, beige, khaki. I love the antique look and can spend upto Rs 30,000 on a jacket if I like it enough. For it will increase in value for me, and I view it as an investment. I think I'm a practical buyer.

Shobha De, columnist and best-selling author: I am strictly anti-fashion. I go to the neighbourhood darzi when I want something done.

Alisha Chinai, pop star: I love Shahab Durazi because he is the hot favourite now. And, of course, Tarun Tahiliani because he is not [illegible]. Rohit's favourite was Ritu, who is unfortunately [illegible]. He gave dresses that [illegible] style that I just love.

[illegible] Pawan Singh, film and TV director and VJ: I prefer middle-of-the-[illegible] clothes. So my designer is [illegible] Malhotra who is actually a [illegible] designer. His clothes suit my [illegible] — a little classic and not too [illegible].

[illegible] Gupta, former model and [illegible]: I'm not into designers designers are "terrific" but should restrict themselves to the Indian market and cater to Indian women alone.

Says Ruhil, "How can they be expected to make a dent in the French fashion circles? In Europe nobody knows who a Rohit Bal or a Suneet Varma is. If at all they are known, it is within the Indian circles alone We don't hear of them and they have absolutely no presence in these markets"

After having done well for herself at Galleries Lafayette in Paris, Ritu Kumar intends to move on In a bid to make her mark more strongly in the overseas markets she is soon to set up shop in Europe, the pulse of haute couture.

According to her again, Asha Sarabhai was, perhaps, the only designer to have struck oil abroad "She's very upmarket and hers is a very international look which does exceedingly well through her store in London" Another name that really sells abroad is Anokhi, which has four outlets in London, "but they are into a different line altogether," says Kumar

The designers admit there is very little textile designing happening in India Argues Kumar, who is among

Kavita Khanna

Mehr Jesia

Shobha De

Shabana Azmi

Archana Puran Singh

clothes in a big way. I neither have the time nor the energy to go shopping for the heavy stuff. Besides I admit that I do spend a lot of money on clothes.

You'll always find me in different styles — trousers, long shirts, skirts, jackets and blazers. Benetton, Lacoste and Mischief are my favourites, Kirit Mode is where I shop the most. The garments are easily available, the quality is excellent and I can order what I like. The other designers, too, take orders for specific designs, but they charge a fortune for them.

I don't look out for designer clothes. I quite like Tarun Tahiliani designs which are wearable even 10 years later They're not gimmicky but classic, they fit wonderfully and the workmanship is excellent. If not him, I check out the J.J Valaya styles.

Kavita Khanna, wife of Vinod Khanna, businesswoman and socialite: During my pregnancy (she has just delivered) I wore a lot of Manisha Jaisingh outfits. I like Naren Kumar's clothes, too. I like these designers because they don't have a set style, Each collection is different from the previous one. My taste varies depending on my mood. I do not stick to one designer.

Nadira Ali, former 'Water Baby', Miss India, model and actress: I never follow any trend and am, perhaps, the most unfashionable person going.

The lengths of my kurtas never change, my sloppy style never changes, my faded clothes never change (they are the most comfortable and therefore impossible to discard). As a matter of fact, some have even commented on my 'threadbare outlook'.

I'm most comfortable in a pair of jeans and T-shirt, for I can go anywhere in them and they're always in fashion (Even if it fades it's in fashion!) I love to take a look at designerwear, but not buy it. I have probably bought designer clothes just twice or thrice.

As a matter of principle I never buy clothes that are very expensive. However the designer whose clothes I really like is J J. Valaya. His clothes have a sense of style, they're sober yet grand.

Of late I'm into cotton saris which I find very cool in this summer heat. The saris I wear are inexpensive, in pale colours with small borders that are the only embellishment. Even if a sari crushes, the pleats hide the creases. I bought all my heavy sarees when I was in Madras — those that I will eventually pass on to my children.

the few who've been designing her own textiles since years, "Styling takes all of 48 hours, but what of designing textiles and creating your own stamp? Where is our new look and identity?" she asks "Why can't we too create something like silk-wool-linen blended trousers that are so popular in the West?"

And it does not end there. Designers wonder how they could ever hope to compete with the Italians in the cut and styling of suits JJ sees a major problem "They are far ahead of us in technology An imported sewing machine can cost upto Rs 30,000 while the Indian machine costs just Rs 2,000 "

Where creating a jacket involves state-of-the-art technology and a long procedure, designers find themselves ill-equipped to match the quality of international labels

According to Anuradha Ruhil, managing partner, Pierre Cardin Fashions India, Indian designers are 'terrific'...but, she says, 'How can in the French fashion circles? In Europe nobody knows who a Rohit Bal or a Suneet Varma is'

Ruhil adds, "The ready-to-wear Pierre Cardin designs in India are completely monitored from Paris And the only way in which our designers can make a mark abroad is by spending more time there and learning new techniques from world renowned designers "

Fashion, a huge industry abroad has, to top it all, been grossly sidelined in India Designers today are looking forward to the government or the corporate sector stepping forward to help promote Indian fashion abroad

'She is a dream person to dress'

BY TARUN TAHILIANI

From my point of view, being asked by Jemima to do her bridalwear was all in a day's work I really do not know whether this is a big break, but yes, I am excited about it

She is a dream person to dress, incredibly good-looking and has a fantastic figure She is one bride who does not believe in bejewelling herself just for the sake of it

The Indian designer has not arrived on the international fashion scene, but Indian designs are generating some degree of interest in the Western world I've noticed that our styles and silhouettes are getting popular abroad, but not the designers themselves

The designers are not creating a longing for Indian designer-wear nor being able to capture the imagination of the West. They might be noticed, but nobody is raving about them

Some names do stand out like Alpana Bawa and Hemant Sagar, but then, neither is really an Indian designer Alpana is based in New York while Hemant works out of Paris The only Indian designer who has done well for herself abroad is Asha Sarabhai

In America, London or Paris I have not seen the Indian designer as a sought-after person at all

I have not seen Indian designers make any considerable impact on the Western fashion world Why would an Englishwoman, who is comfortable in a Christian Dior or YSL outfit, look out for an Indian designer's creations? Indian designers are definitely not household names abroad

One of the major reasons that Indian designers are non-entities in the world of international haute couture is the government's neglect of the Indian fashion industry There is no encouragement or support from the government while abroad, fashion is considered big business.

The Festivals of India, held in different parts of the world with regularity, do nothing for the country's flourishing fashion industry All we end up doing is promoting the villages in India or better still pani puri! Though the festivals do help to generate an interest in our country it is not exactly a very modern picture of India that emerges.

There is a paucity of advanced technology, too We are not equipped to design Western wear. Though our export market is huge, we have not made a dent in the hard-core fashion arena abroad. Exports and haute couture are two totally different ball games

Indian designers will have to make themselves far more visible abroad than they currently are We will have to flood the stores abroad to be noticed and will have to organise many more shows. Getting their collections on the catwalks is the one big way in which we can make our presence felt

The only mega event last year that left many gasping was the high-profile fashion show in China But then China is not a relevant market ■

The Festivals of India, held in different parts of the world with regularity, do nothing for the country's flourishing fashion industry. All we end up doing is promoting the villages in India or better still pani puri!

INNER EYE ❑ Bejan Daruwalla

Aries

March 21—April 20

The full moon makes you exceptionally vocal and dramatic, says Ganesha Neighbours and foreigners will take an active interest in your affairs Correspondence, calls, contacts, in short, communication triggers progress and assignments and trips A week to show your true colours

Taurus

April 21—May 20

Once again finances and figures help you to be happy and that is what all of us seek in our individual ways Buying, selling and distribution will be more than ordinarily useful June 16-17 is where the action really is Do not wear your heart on your sleeve

Gemini

May 21 -June 20

Venus in your sign from June 11 favours writers, musicians, actors jewellers and those dealing in fancy products and fashions Others too will have a renewed surge of confidence and elation Obviously, that in turn, will help them to succeed It is all about mind over matter

Cancer

June 21—July 20

You will have to work with a will now, not giving any quarters or even concessions Tough decisions will have to be taken Restlessness and expenditure will have to be curbed Get set to travel or move or shift Expect visitors and relatives to descend on you Try to be diplomatic

Leo

July 21—August 21

A good week to ask for favours get work done, work well and play swell Group activities will be very productive and more importantly enjoyable Your heart will beat to a faster tempo Very possibly a few hassles in leadership are likely to happen Make good use of your humour

Virgo

August 22—September 22

Time to give your best shot as enemies will be active and out to harm you Changes in work and partnerships are foretold You will be under considerable pressure to perform and make good It would be wise to take time off to read swim go for a walk or relax in any way you choose

Libra

September 23– October 22

Health needs safeguarding now The travel urge will be exceptionally powerful and sharp Visitors will pour in and you will have to deal with them Many Librans might be forced to change plans go in for a compromise and adjust to the ideas of others This is a week of taut nerves

Scorpio

October 23—November 22

You will have to take a firm grip on finances and career as matters could get out of hand To further complicate it, health is suspect The silver lining is you will cope splendidly, be compensated for your trouble and strike a deal or two in the bargain June 11, 12 and 16 are quite favourable

Sagittarius

November 23—December 20

The full moon is conducive to partnerships and contacts A journey with a stop-over is quite likely You will have to move fast because much remains to be accomplished and time is your enemy Parents and in-laws will cause a few problems

Capricorn

December 21—January 19

Job and health once again take top priority Be careful in your choice of words and do not rush into anything blindly It would be best to have a healthy attitude, not give in to swings of mood, and quietly and assiduously work out a plan June 14 16 will be crucial

Aquarius

January 20– February 18

You cannot be too careful in matters of the heart Hobbies, creative writings research, music and electronics are the slots which require your undivided attention Many of you will be in the thick of events and publicity Therefore you will be working at a frantic pace and tempo

Pisces

February 19—March 20

There could be a falling out or a difference of opinion with loved ones, family members and elders Given charm these can be minimised Pisceans will have to give special attention to the house, surroundings and the general public because these are the turbulent zones

I R T H D A Y S

June 11: Moon-Pluto conjunction leads to gains, a slice of luck and promotion or better prospects for Geminis, says Ganesha. Your work will be appreciated.

June 12: Moon conjuncts Jupiter making you ambitious and generous, kind and forgiving. In job/business/profession, expect an upswing.

June 13: The full moon could result in accidents and worries and so it would be best to be prudent and wary. It all depends upon the decisions you make.

June 14: Moon-Saturn trine ——— you ——— daughter, birth of children, a house or ——— in tantrums, lively and very definitely excellent career prospects.

June 15: Sun-Saturn square indicates obstacles. But given will, prayers and determination, this square can work positively. Do not be afraid.

June 16: Moon-trine Mercury-Venus makes for a happier you and happiness is what we all seek. Those in sales, teaching, arts, research, communication do extremely well. ——— more than business. The going could be good and easy and that is a big point in your favour.

TIME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7-day code ① MONDAY ② TUESDAY ③ WEDNESDAY ④ THURSDAY ⑤ FRIDAY ⑥ SATURDAY ⑦ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[illegible]
IC-741	0620	1 3 4 6	IC 742	0850	1 3
			IC 742	1050	4 6
IC-743	0920	daily	IC-744	1150	daily
PF-701	1130	1 3 5 7	PF 702	1610	1 3 5 7
[illegible]
PF-705	0730	2 4 6, 7	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
[illegible]
PF-735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1
PF-737	0730	3, 5	PF 738	1740	3 5
IC-721	1010	1, 2, 3, 6 7	IC-722	1250	1 2 3 6 7
[illegible]
IC-771	0600	daily	IC 772	1140	daily
[illegible]
IC-544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC-769	1615	2 4 6	IC-770	2120	2 4 6
[illegible]
IC-676	0730	daily	IC-675	0820	daily
D2 102	0905	daily	D2-101	0835	daily
IC-273	1945	daily	AI 306	1840	5
9W-212	1945	daily	9W 211	1910	daily
D2-104	2005	daily	D2 103	1935	daily
AI-309	2035	6	IC 274	1830	daily
AI-681	2350	1
[illegible]
IC-263	0700	daily	S2-025	0810	1 2 3, 4 5 6
S2-026	0845	1 2 3 4 5 6	M9 303	0825	daily
M9-304	0905	daily	AI 682	0950	1
IC-812	1700	1 3 5	S2-015	1015	1 3 5
S2-016	1555	1 3 5	4S 806	1130	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC-402	1715	daily	IC-401	1155	daily
4S-805	1730	1 2 3 4 5 6	S2 005	1855	1 2 3 4 5 7
			IC 811	2055	1 3, 5
S2-006	1930	1 2 3 4 5 7	M9 301	1950	daily
M9-302	2030	daily	IC-264	2210	daily
[illegible]
PF-737	0730	3 5	D2-181	1620	1 5 7
D2-181	1135	1 5 7	D2-183	1620	2, 4 6
D2-183	1135	2, 4, 6	IC 702	1630	1 4 6, 7
4S-816	1205	2, 4, 6	4S 815	1635	1 2, 3
4S-812	1205	1, 3 5	4S 811	1635	2 4 6
IC-701	1240	1, 4 6 7	PF 738	1740	3 5
[illegible]
IC-257	1140	2, 4	IC 257	1520	2 4
[illegible]
IC-703	0610	1, 3 4 5 7	IC 704	0920	1 3 4 5
PF-737	0730	3 5	PF-706	1510	2 4 6, 7
PF 705	0730	2, 4 6 7	D2-181	1620	1 5 7
PF-735	0730	1	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2 181	1135	1 5 7	IC 230	1620	daily
D2-183	1135	2 4 6	4S-811	1635	2 4, 6
4S 816/811	1205	2 4 6	4S 812/815	1635	1 3 5
4S-812	1205	1 3 5	PF 736	1730	1
IC-229	1310	daily	PF 738	1740	3 5

FLIGHTS — INTERNATIONAL

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[illegible]
RJ-185	1445	4	RJ 184	0705	4

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
HYDERABAD
S2 023	1045	1 3 5	S2-024	1525	1 3, 5
IC 777	1615	3, 5, 7	IC-778	2115	3 5, 7
IC 769	1615	2 4 6	IC-770	2120	2, 4, 6
IMPHAL
IC 255	0800	3 5 7	IC 256	1250	3, 5 7
IC 257	1140	2 4	IC-257	1520	2 4
JORHAT
IC-213	0910	4 7	IC-213	1315	4 7
LILABARI
PF 735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1
LUCKNOW
IC 812	1700	1 3 5	IC 811	2005	1 3 5
MADRAS
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1, 3 5
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC-543	1035	2 7
IC-765	1720	daily	D2 171	1045	1, 2, 4 5 6 7
D2-172	1740	1 2 4 5 6 7	IC-766	2220	daily
NAGPUR
IC-769	1615	2, 4 6	IC 770	2120	2, 4, 6
PATNA
IC 249	1430	2 4, 7	S2-015	1015	1 3 5
S2-016	1555	1 3 5	IC-249	1805	2, 4 7
IC-812	1700	1 3 5	IC-811	2055	1 3, 5
PORT BLAIR
IC-285	0640	3 5 7	IC-286	1100	2, 4, 6
RANCHI
IC 249	1430	2 4, 7	IC-249	1805	2, 4, 7
SHILLONG
PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	PF-706	1510	2 4, 6, 7
SILCHAR
IC 255	0800	3, 5, 7	IC-256	1250	3, 5, 7
IC 253	0800	1 2 6	IC-254	1040	1
			IC-254	1250	2, 6
TEZPUR
IC 213	0910	4 7	IC-213	1315	4, 7
TEZU
PF 737	0730	3, 5	PF-738	1740	3, 5
VARANASI
S2-016	1555	1 3, 5	S2-015	1015	1, 3, 5
VISHAKHAPATNAM
IC 542	1115	1, 3 5	IC-541	1030	1 3, 5
ZIRO
PF 735	0730	1	PF-736	1730	1

INTERNATIONAL

[illegible]
KL-876	0345	7	KL-875	0135	7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[illegible]
KB 105	0850	2 6	KB 106	1020	3
			KB 106	1240	5
IC 731	0855	2 4 5 7	TG 313	1240	1 3 6
TG 314	1355	1 3 6	IC 732	1505	2 4 5 7
AI 308	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6
[illegible]
RO-076	1950	5 7	RO 075	1055	5 7
[illegible]
IC 225	1200	1	IC 226	1420	1
BG-698	1735	2 5	BG 697	1655	2 5
[illegible]
BG 092	0850	4 5	BG 091	0810	4 5
BG-092	1150	1 2 3 6 7	BG 091	1110	1 2 3 6 7
IC 723	1250	1 3 5 6	IC 724	1520	1 3 5 6
BG-094	1905	1 2 3 5 6 7	BG 093	1825	1 2 3 5 6 7
BG 094	1910	4	BG 093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1 5	BG 095	2020	1 5

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
[illegible]
IC 747	1115	1 3 5	IC 748	1455	1 3 5
RA 214	1815	1 4	RA 213	1715	1 4
LONDON
BA 142	2050	3 7	BA 143	1525	3 7
[illegible]
SU 538	1755	4	SU 537	1555	4
PARO
KB 106	1105	3	KB 105	0810	2 6
KB 106	1325	5
[illegible]
SQ-415	2345	2 5	SQ 416	2230	2 5
SOFIA
LZ 504	1750	4	LZ 503	1650	4
TOKYO
AI 306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure		Howrah	Arrival
Up	Time		Time	Dn
2311	19 15	Delhi Kalka Mail	7 20	2312
3005	19 20	Amritsar Mail	7 55	3006
3003	20 35	Bombay Mail v a Allahabad	13 00	3004
2381	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express v a Caya Varanas Dep Wed Thurs & Sun Arr Tues Wed & Sat	16 15	2382
2303	9 15	Poorva (New Delhi) Express v a Patna Dep Mon Tues Fr & Sat Arr Mon Thurs Fri & Sun	16 15	2304
2301	16 30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya Dep Mon Tues Wed Fr & Sat Arr Mon Tues Thurs Fr & Sun	10 45	2302
2305	13 45	Rajdhani Express v a Patna Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat	12 50	2306
3073	23 00	Himgiri (Jammu Tawi) Express Tr Wkly Dep Tues Fr & Sat Ar Tues Wed & Sat	11 35	3074
5047	13 00	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun Mon Wed & Fri	4 30	5048
3009	20 30	Doon Express via Grand Chord	7 00	3010
3007	9 45	Udyan Abha Tootan Express via Main Line	18 15	3008
3049	13 20	Amritsar Express	15 30	3050
3039	21 00	Delhi Janata Express via Main line	5 20	3040
3019	16 05	Kathgodam Express	11 55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5 00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6 30	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17 11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18 20	Asansol Express	8 45	3036
3031	21 05	Danapur Express	5 50	3032
3025	23 00	North Bihar Express Dep Wednesday Arr Friday	11 35	3026
3071	22 30	Jamalpur Express	5 10	3072
3015	9 55	Santiniketan Express	15 40	3016
1159	15 25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express Dep Fr Sat & Sun Arr Mon Tues & Wed	6 50	1160
1171	15 25	Shipra (Indore) Express Dep Mon Tues & Wed Arr Fri Sat & Sun	6 50	1172
3327	14 30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4 50	3328
1181	15 25	Chambal (Agra Cantt) Express Thursday only	6 50	1182
		Sealdah
3141	13 40	Teesta Torsa Express Dep Mon Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun Arr Tues Wed Thurs Fri Sat & Sun	6 35	3142
3143	19-15	Darjeeling Mail	8 45	3144
3111	20 15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7 15	3112
5657	6 25	Kanchanjunga Express	20 35	5658
3153	22 00	Gaur Express	5 15	3154
5663	20 00	Katihar Express	4 15	5664
3151	11 45	Jammu Tawi Express	15 50	3152
3133	20 55	Mughal Sarai Express via SBG Loop	12 55	3134
3103	18 20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express	10 25	3104
5185	12 40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express Dep & Arr Tues Thurs & Sat	4 25	5186

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure		Howrah	Arrival
Up	Time		Time	Dn
6003	20 30	Madras Mail	6 50	6004
8002	19 20	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10	8001
2860	12 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15	2859
8034	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8033
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 20	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express via Cuttack	12 00	2842
7003	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Sunday Arr Saturday	19 40	7004
7003D	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express Dep Tues & Fr Arr Mon & Thurs	1940	7004D
6311	22 35	Bangalore Express Dep Sun Arr Sun	13 45	6312
8013	17 30	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8014
8011	6 15	Ispat Express	22 05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5 00	8006
8015	21 40	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
8007	22 15	Puri Express v a Cuttack	5 30	8008
8409	19 00	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Naraj	8 25	8410
2821	6 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	21 30	2822
8079	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8080
8045	10 30	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00	8046
8017	16 45	Purulia Express Dep Except Saturday Arr Except Sunday	11 25	8018
2421	16 40	Bhubaneswar New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10
	11 05	New Delhi Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Saturday only	10 45	2422
6322	22 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	22 15	—
	14 05	Trivandrum Central Howrah Guwahati Express Saturday only	13 45	6321
	14 05	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express (via Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Thursday only	13 45	6313
6314	22 35	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express (via Howrah & Visakhapatnam) Saturday only	22 15	—
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express (v a Visakhapatnam & Howrah) Dep Tues & Fri Arr Tues & Fri	13 45	6315
6520	22 35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Wednesday only	22 15	—
	14 05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express (via Howrah & Cuttack) Monday only	13 45	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains please dial 2203545 54 for in coming trains 2203535 44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains dial 2203496 3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running) 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

MOTHER HILL

It is hard to realise that I've been here all these years Twenty-five summers, monsoons, winters and Himalayan springs (there is no spring in the plains because, when I look back to the time of my first coming here, it does seem like yesterday)

That probably sums it all up Time passes, and yet it doesn't pass, people come and go, the mountains remain Mountains are permanent things They are stubborn, they refuse to move. You can blast holes out of them for their mineral wealth, strip them of their trees and foliage, or dam their streams and divert their currents, or make tunnels and roads and bridges, but no matter how hard they try, humans cannot actually get rid of their mountains That's what I like about them, they are here to stay

I like to think tha I have become a part of this mountain, this particular range, and that by living here for so long, I am able to claim a relationship to the trees, wild flowers, even the rocks that are an integral part of it.

Yesterday, at twilight, when I passed beneath a canopy of oak leaves, I felt that I was a part of the forest I put out my hand and touched the bark of an old tree, and as I turned away, its leaves brushed against my face as if to acknowledge me

I like to think that I have become a part of this mountain, this particular range, and that by living here for so long, I am able to claim a relationship to the trees, wild flowers, even the rocks that are an integral part of it

One day, I thought, if we trouble these great creatures too much, and hack away at them and destroy their young they will simply uproot themselves and march away, whole forests on the move — over the next range and the next, far from the haunts of man I have seen many forests and green places dwindle and disappear Now there is an outcry It is suddenly fashionable to be an environmentalist That's all right Perhaps, it is not too late to save the little that is left They could start by curbing the property developers who have been spreading their tentacles far and wide

The sea has been celebrated by many great writers Conrad, Melville, Stevenson, Masefield, but I cannot think of anyone comparable for whom the mountains have been a recurring theme I must turn to the Taoist poets from old China to find a true feeling for mountains

Kipling does occasionally look to the hills, but the Himalayas do not appear to have given rise to any memorable Indian literature, at least not in modern times

By and large, writers have to stay in the plains to make a living Hill people have their work cut out trying to wrest a livelihood from their thin, calcinated soil And as for mountaineers, they climb their peaks and move on in search of other peaks They do not take up residence in the mountains

But to me, as a writer, mountains have been kind They were kind from

'Who goes to the Hills, goes to his Mother.' So wrote Kipling, and he seldom wrote truer words. For living in the hills was like living in the bosom of a strong, sometimes proud, but always a comforting mother. And every time I went away, the homecoming would be tender and precious. It became increasingly difficult for me to go away

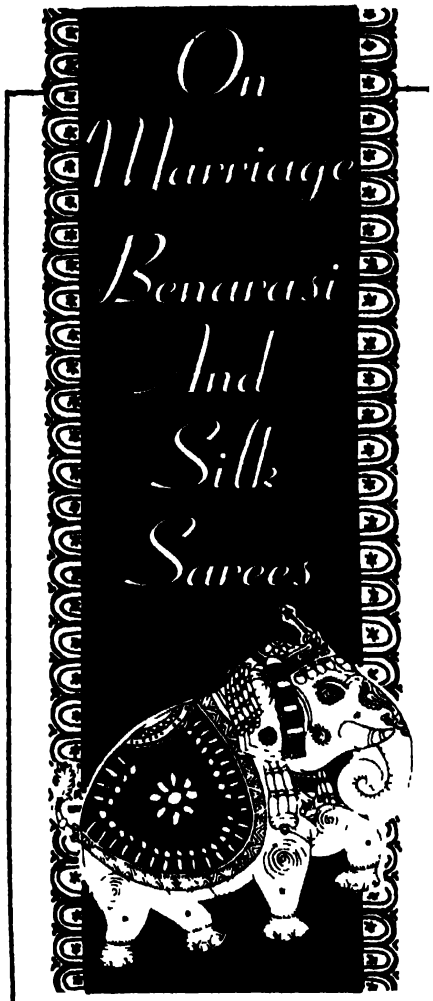
the beginning, when I left a job in Delhi and rented a small cottage on the outskirts of the hill-station Today, most hill-stations are rich men's playgrounds, but years ago they were places where people of modest means would live quite cheaply There were few cars and everyone walked about

The cottage was on the edge of oak and maple forest and I spent eight or nine years in it, most of them happy, writing stories, essays, poems, books for children It was only after I came to live in the hills that I began writing for children I think this had something to do with Prem's children He and his wife had taken on the job of looking after the house and all practical matters (I remain helpless with fuses, clogged cisterns, leaking gas cylinders, ruptured water pipes, tin roofs that blow away when there is a storm, and the do-it-yourself world of small-town India)

They made it possible for me to write Their sons, Rakesh and Mukesh, and daughter Savitri grew up in Maplewood Cottage and then in other houses when we moved

Naturally, I grew attached to them and became a part of the family, an adopted grandfather For Rakesh I wrote a story about a cherry tree that had difficulty in growing up; for Mukesh, who liked upheavals, I wrote a story about an earthquake and put him in it, and for Savitri I wrote rhymes

One seldom ran short of materials There was a stream at the bottom of the hill and this gave me many subjects in the way of small (occasionally large) animals, wild flowers, birds, insects, ferns The nearby villages and their good-natured people were of absorbing interest So were the old houses and old families of the Landour and Mussoorie hill-stations There were walks into the mountains and along the pilgrim trails and sometimes I slept at a roadside teashop or a village school



'Who goes to the Hills, goes to his Mother ' So wrote Kipling, and he seldom wrote truer words For living in the hills was like living in the bosom of a strong, sometimes proud, but always a comforting mother And every time I went away, the homecoming would be tender and precious It became increasingly difficult for me to go away

It has not always been happiness and light There were times when money ran out Freelancing can be daunting at times, and I never make enough to buy a house like almost everyone else I know. Editorial doors sometimes close, but when one door closes another has, for me, almost immediately, miraculously opened

I could perhaps have done a little better living in London, or in Canada like my brother or even in a city like Bombay But given the choice, I would not have done differently When you have received love from people and the freedom that only mountains can give, then you have come very near the borders of heaven

(Sanctuary Features)

Indian Silk House

COLLEGE STREET MARKET CALCUTTA

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S  COLUMN

ONE FOR THE ROAD

It takes two to make an accident Cyclists and drivers are natural partners in this process. In India, a socialistic pattern of blame is generally adopted — the driver in the big car is guilty

This is not always the case. A driver employed by the Hindi poet, Kunwar Narain, was once negotiating an attractive stretch of rural UP road Ahead of him he noticed a large man on an average cycle meandering along, engrossed in the music flowing from a transistor radio hanging over the handlebars

Just as the driver was about to overtake, the cyclist swerved carelessly into the middle of the road He was hit square on, slid up the bonnet, smashed his head on the windscreen and died

Soon others gathered, and then more and more There must have been 200 people. They all stared at the driver, then at the corpse. By now the driver was scared. As a means of escape, he suggested going to the police station The crowd solemnly agreed Off they marched

At the police station, the thanedar surprised the driver by asking him to sit down and offering him a glass of sugarcane juice. Then he and the senior members of the crowd whispered together in the doorway Finally, the mystery was explained The driver had run over one of the area's most wanted dacoits

Few accidents have such a silver lining Recent statistics from the US show that of some 1,000 cyclists killed on the roads each year there, 90 per cent die in collisions with motor vehicles That cyclists are at least partly at fault is also clear Male cyclists are over five times more likely to die on a bike than females, partly because they are also more likely to have alcohol in their veins — it is dangerous to drink and drive

In India, there are no such detailed figures available But we do know that some 60,000 people are killed on the roads each year, meaning that there must be between 600,000 and 1,200,000 seriously injured

These figures could be brought down if only pedestrians, cyclists and motorists could be separated and slowed down

It is official government policy to do so In the latest Road Safety Policy, all state governments have been requested to take special steps for 'traffic calming' It is a different matter that most road engineers do not yet know what traffic calming is.

Nor did I, until I sat down with Dinesh Mohan, one of the country's leading road safety experts, who is a member of the National Road Safety Council which drew up the latest policy 'Traffic calming' is a foreign concept His aim is to adapt and apply to Indian conditions for which he had first to observe Indian roads.

Through video recordings of traffic, he found that 'conflicts', like suddenly stopping or turning your car, do not necessarily mean accidents. Higher speed, on the other hand, definitely does That is logical, too If you are doing 65 kms an hour and hate a cyclist, in 85 per cent cases, the cyclist will die If you are doing 30 kms an hour, only 5 per cent will die

The research also showed that lane driving may be sane driving, but it is unnatural Indian roads are a perfect laboratory for observing the natural, unconfined motorist The natural motorist indulges in 'space sharing' which means jockeying for position and moving into whatever vacant space takes him forward For him, rules are there just to be broken And so education, on rules of the road, will never make them safe

Professor Mohan also found that on two or three lane roads, cyclists automatically gravitate to the kerb side lane As bicycles go much more slowly than cars, the net effect is to narrow the road From the point of view of the motorist, the lane is as useless as if it were planted with trees This de facto cycle lane is created even if there are only a few cyclists And the mix of mortar and non-mortar vehicles increases stress for both cyclists and drivers and also the risk of accidents

Dinesh Mohan argues that to calm traffic, separate cycle lanes are a must, preferably running on the outer side of bus stops to avoid bus/cycle collision They do not need to be as wide or as thickly surfaced as ordinary lanes, and therefore, are also cheaper. If footpaths are kept to the left of cycle lanes, this further keeps pedestrians from under the wheels of cars and buses

Many of his findings are confirmed by research in Europe, which is expecting a huge rise in car ownership over the next decade There, too, the conclusion has been reached that no one will obey rules unless they are forced to, and there are not enough policemen to make them

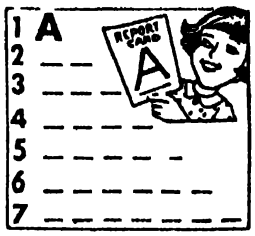
There 'traffic calming' means a sophisticated system of speed breakers to force drivers to slow down Europeans are also narrowing roads to force cars to keep in lanes Speed limiters are proposed to be fitted to all cars Last, but not least, are plans for cycle lanes spreading over whole cities The networks must be complete so that cyclists will be confident they can reach their destination by then

In Britain, a scheme for long-distance cycle lanes has just been sanctioned, to the joy of steering committees of safe cycling societies throughout the land

On the byways of India, there is still safe and civilised traffic where the cycle rules. Here the pace is slow, the air unpolluted and more people take proper, productive exercise In towns and cities, the picture is different Even the beautiful city of Chandigarh is becoming congested. There are reservations for jobs and places in educational institutions. What is now needed are reservations for the underprivileged on the roads

(Sanctuary Features)

JUNIOR WHIRL



HAL KAUFMAN

TALLY HO! Our artist says there are 25 pumpkins in the you-pick-'em pumpkin patch above How many do you see?

FAN FARE! Add and subtract letters for a one-word close-game stadium cheer SUEDE minus SUE plus F plus TENSE minus T What is the word? Time 1 min

The word is "DEFENSE"

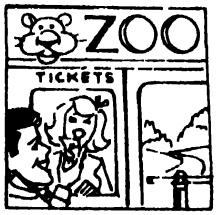
SCHOOL WORD STEP-OFF

ARE you up on words that pertain to school? Let's see Add one letter in each step and rearrange letters as needed to form new words Definitions

1 High Mark (A — already in place)
2 School is where it's — for learning
3 A cafeteria is a place to —
4 To — through the hall is a no-no
5 Another name for a student's car
6 Bring into being, as in art class
7 Homework checker

How quickly can you complete the test?

1 A 2 At 3 Eat 4 Tear 5 Crate 6 Create 7 Teacher



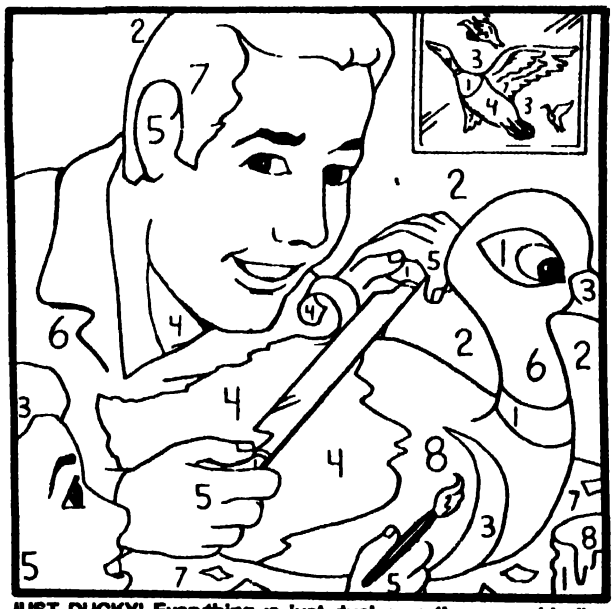
HEADS UP! Read this classic riddle carefully Then study the sign below As you'll discover, it's all about a trip to the zoo

"Tell me," I said to the uniformed guide "How many creatures have you inside?"

Said he, "When having the park turn around Over the gate a sign will be found

"From that sign, subtract a third of a third, and you will have a tally of beast, snake and bird " What is the total?

700, obtained by removing bottom third of



HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below

Differences 1 Fence is different 2 Blouse is different 3 Shirttail is different 4 Sign is different 5 Ball is missing 6 Handle is different

FUNSPOT

JUST DUCKY! Everything is just ducky on the assembly line above Apply colors. 1—Red. 2—Lt. blue 3—Yellow 4—Lt. brown 5—Flesh. 6—Lt. green. 7—Dk. brown. 8—Dk green

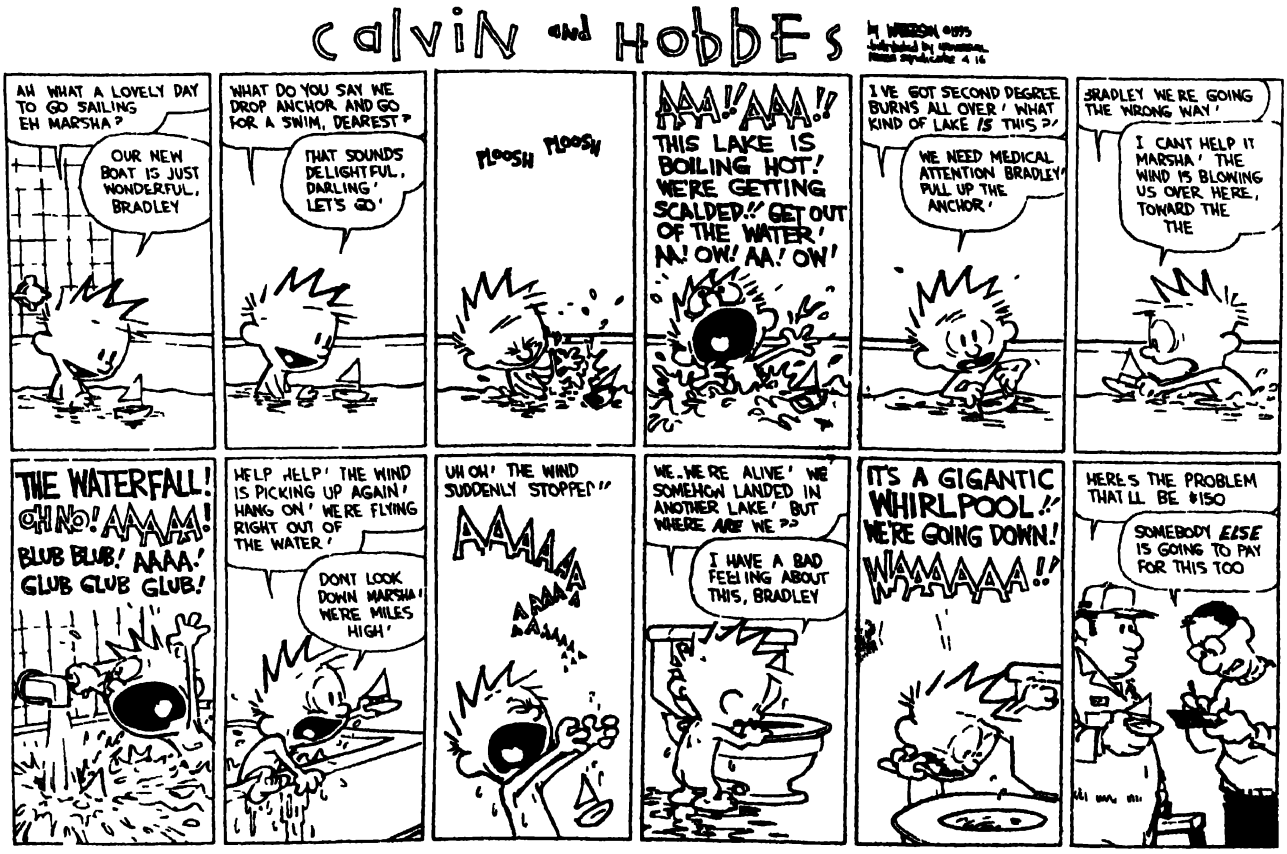
SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words

BALKIEST

- - - - - - - -

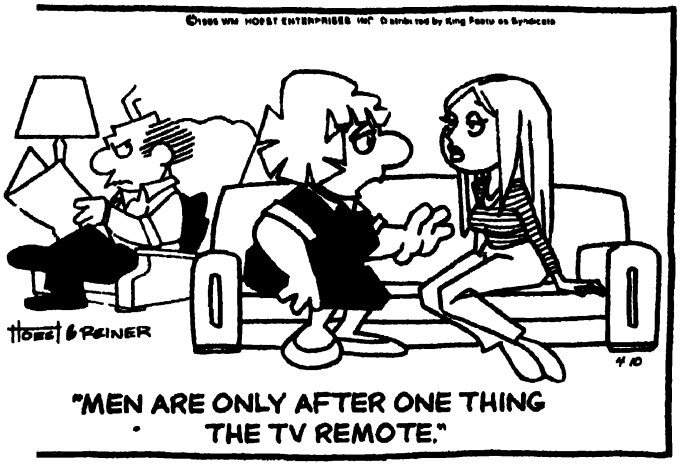
THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters



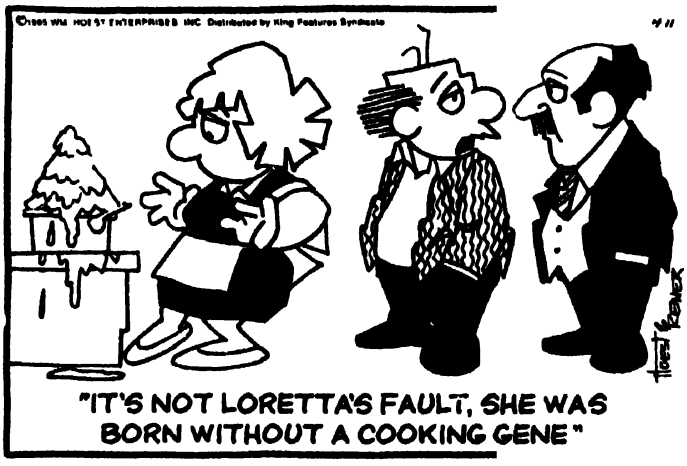
Try to score at least 50 points

Possible twosome Beat silk

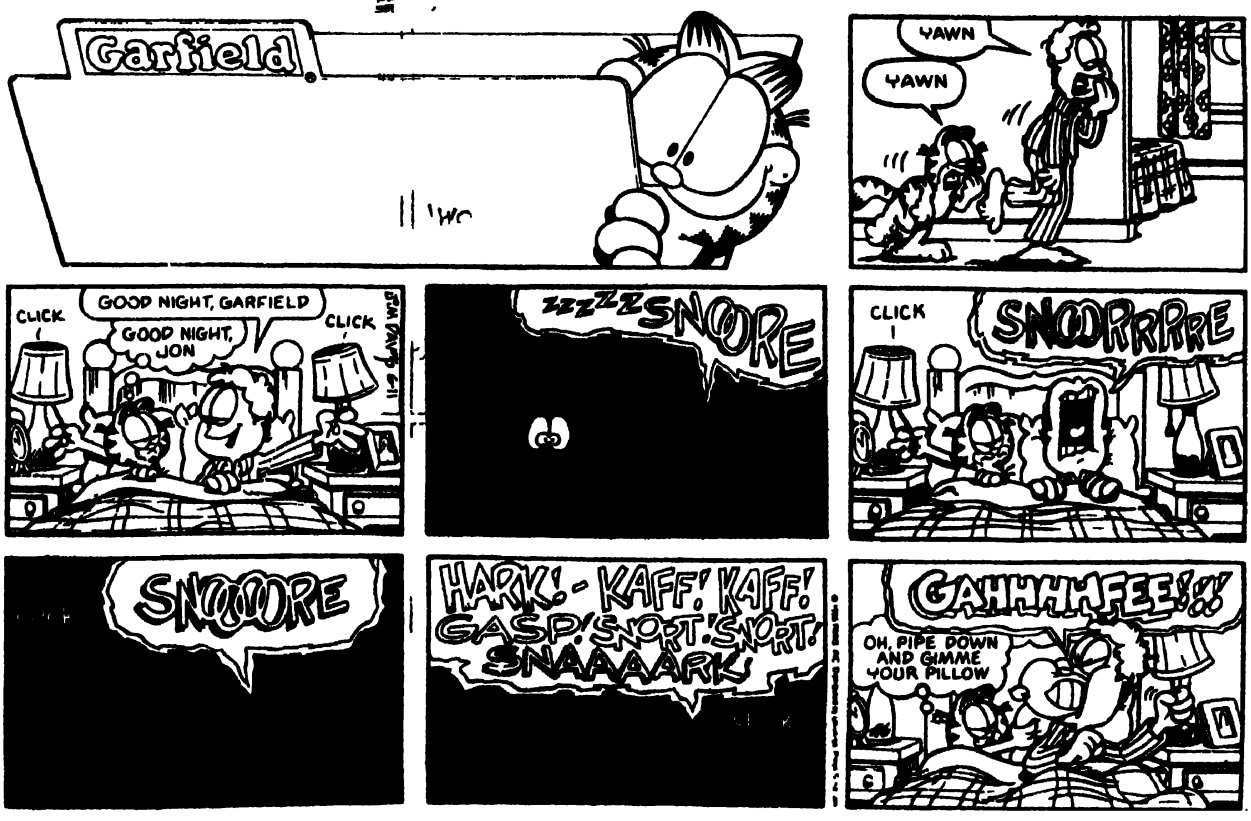
ARCHIE

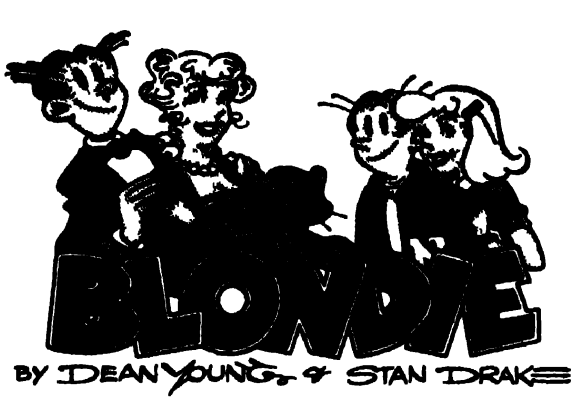


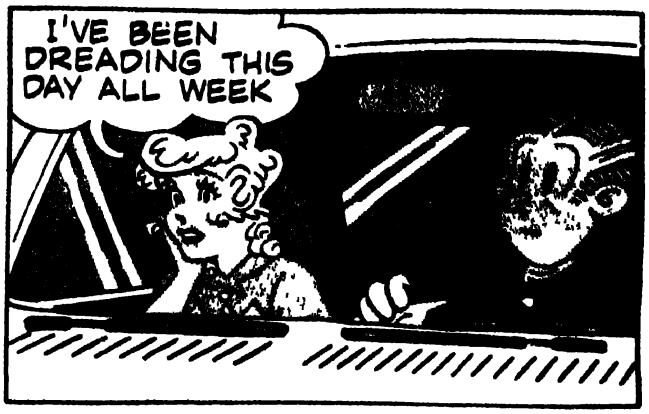
CALVIN AND HOBBES ■ WATTERSON



THE LOCKHORNS

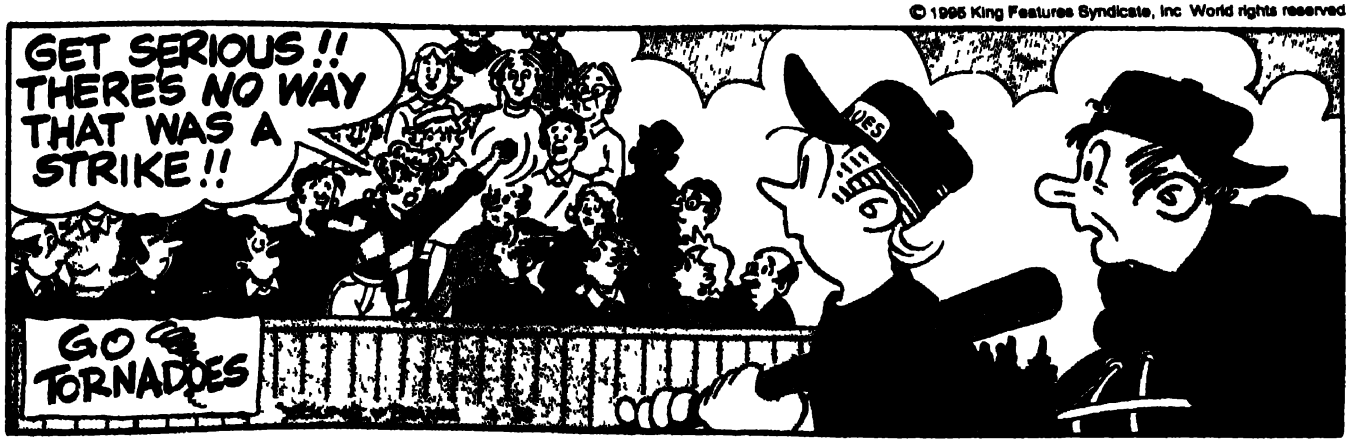


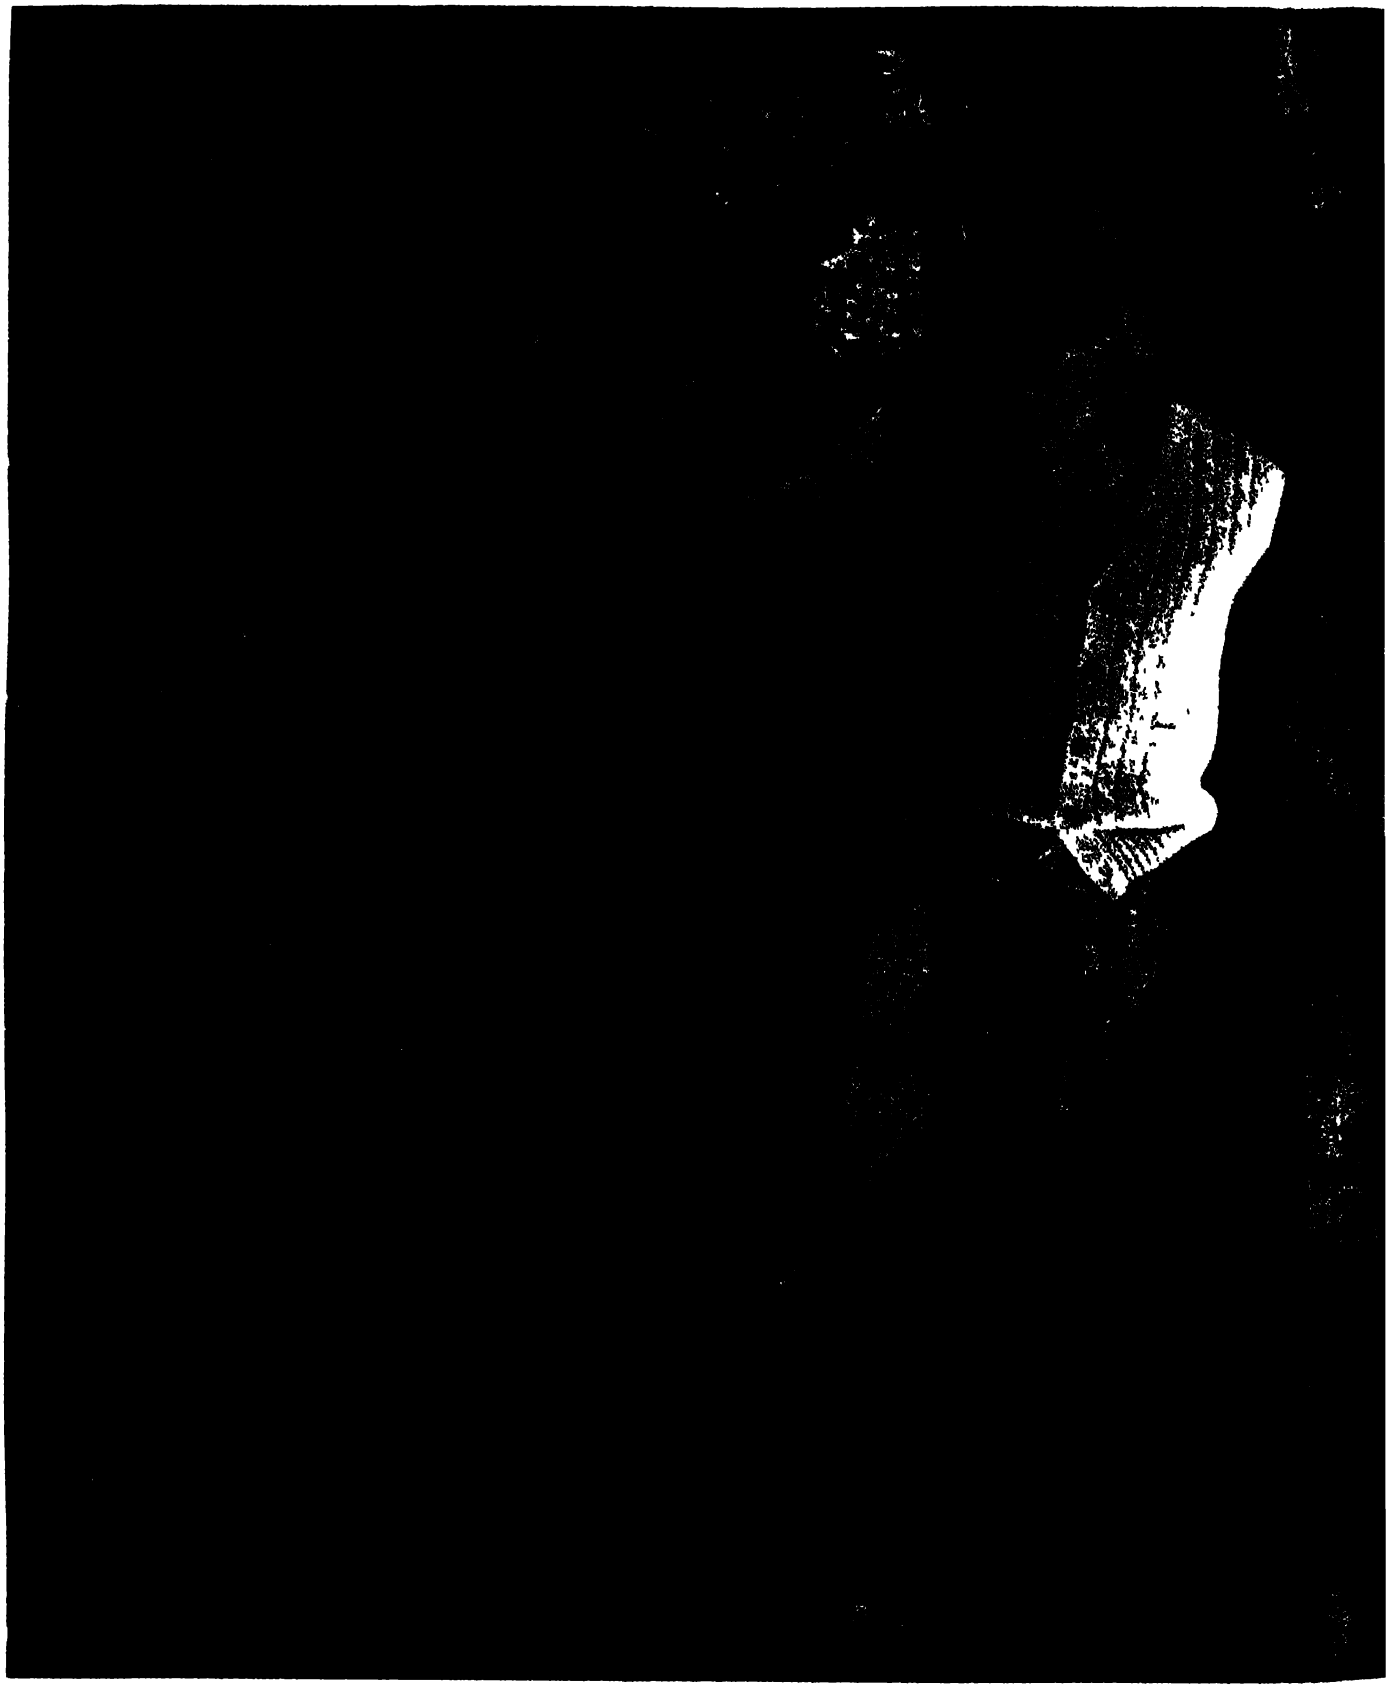


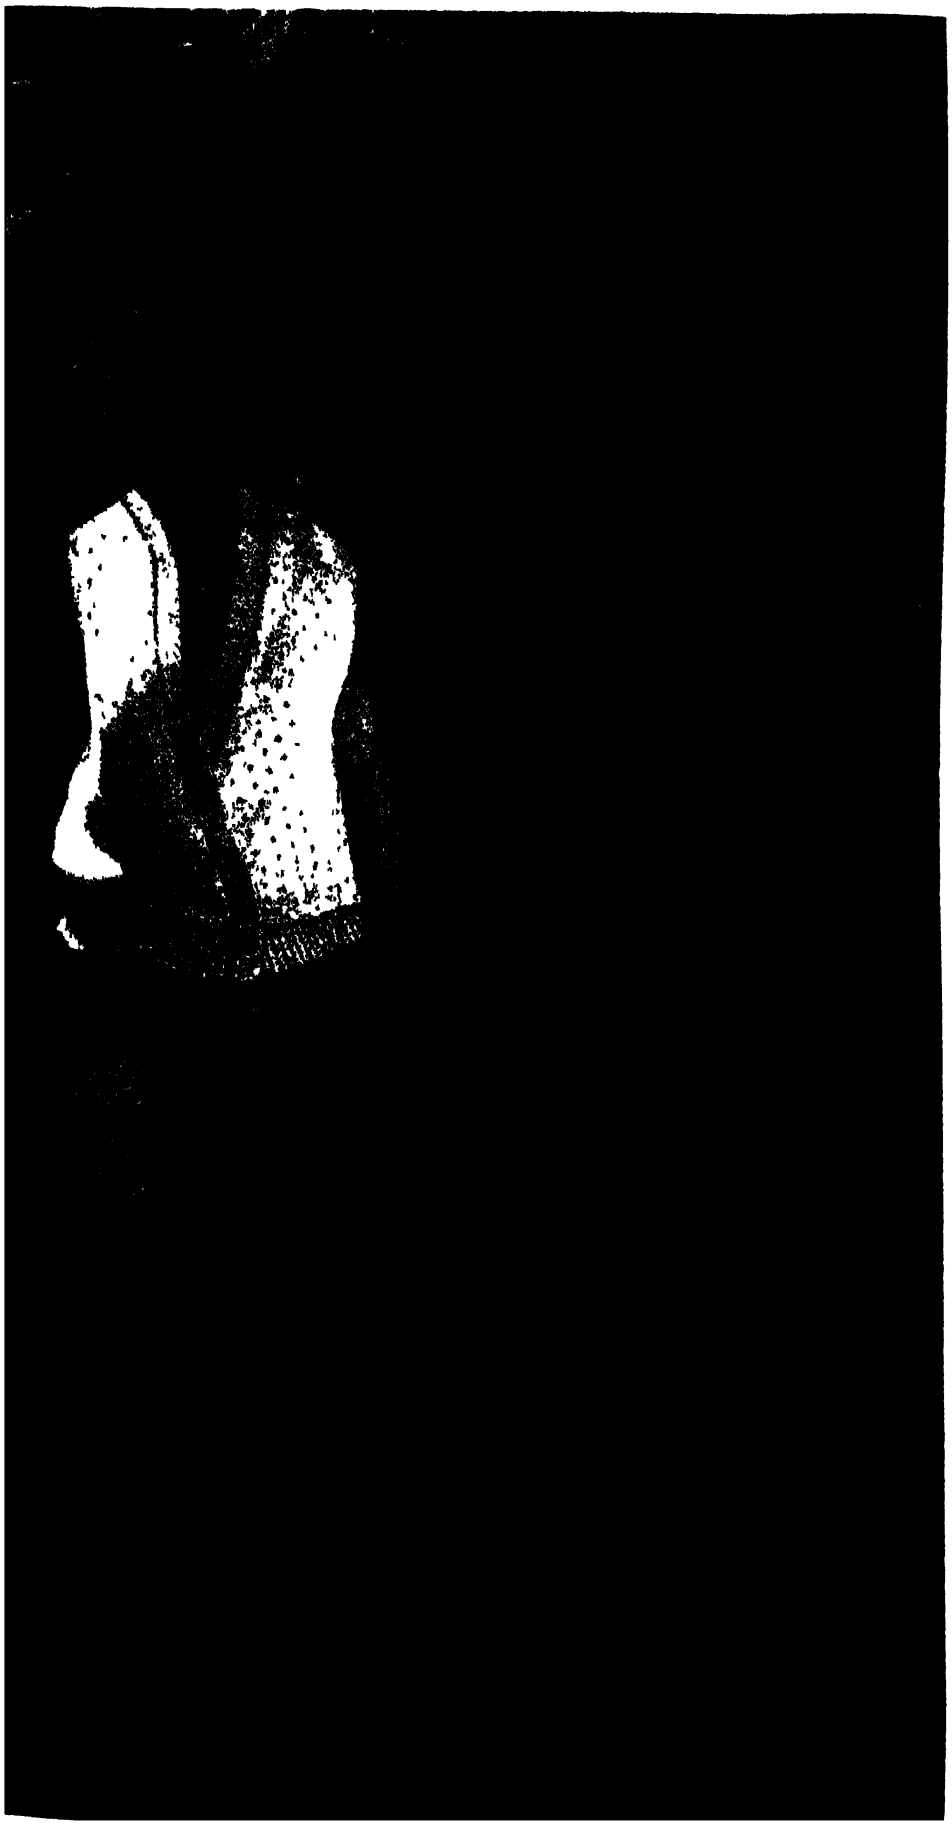


GARFIELD ■ JIM DAVIS

THE ADVENTURES OF LEGIONNAIRE BEAUPEEP







© 1995 King Features Syndicate, Inc. World rights reserved.

MADE IN Ghana

Carrier The first air-conditioners
on earth

Carrier

The world's No.1 in air conditioning
After all, we invented it

Carrier Aircon Limited

MANPREET BRAR, 22, and standing at 5'7", just missed her crowning glory at the Miss Universe contest this year by less than a mark. An MBA aspirant, this svelte lady likes to describe herself as 'humane', and would like to take up modelling as a career.

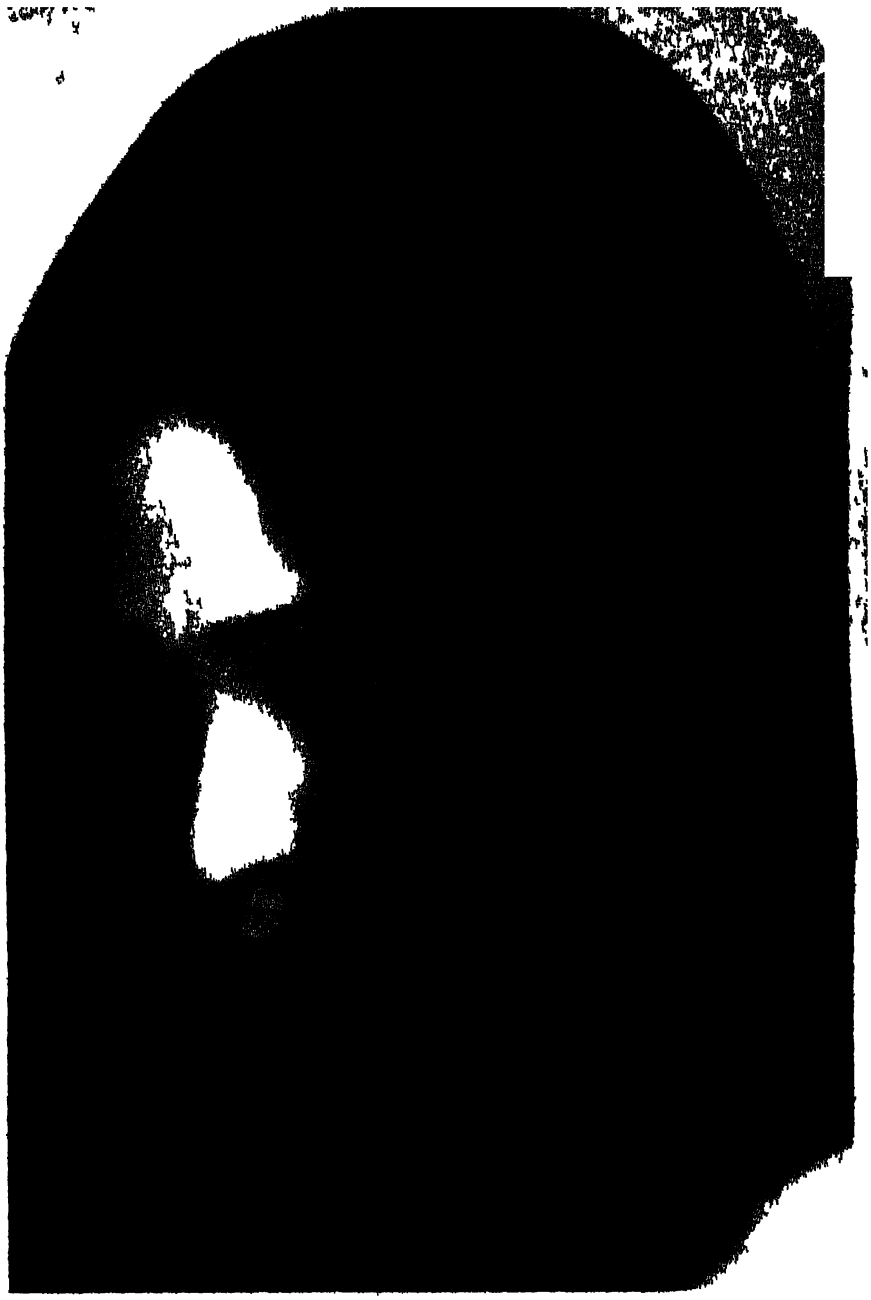
What is your idea of perfect happiness?
Contentment
What is your greatest fear?
Losing my family
Who or what has been the greatest influence in your life?
The exposure I have got as an Army officer's daughter which included travelling all over the country All that I am today is an amalgamation of this exposure
What do you dislike most in others?
(Under her breath: So many things)
People who cannot keep their word
What do you dislike most in yourself?
I tend to vacillate

What do you dislike most on your appearance?

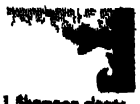
My feet



What is your most precious possession?
My freedom of thought
What objects do you always carry?
(I'll tell you what I don't carry) To be on the safe side I always carry enough money.
What makes you most depressed?
Uncertainty. When I cannot decide
What do you dislike most on your appearance?
My feet
What is your favourite word?
Sorry; I think it is the most convenient word that came into existence in the English language
What is your favourite journey?
At 60,000' when we got caught in a blizzard at Sela Pass. The adventure could have made it to 'Drama in real life' in Reader's Digest
What is your favourite dream?
My dreams keep changing But what I want to accomplish is to keep busy all the time I only enjoy when I am up to my ears in work with little time to relax
What is your nightmare?
To be bored.
What or who is the greatest love of your life?
Books. They keep me company when no one else is there.
What is your source of sustenance?
My thoughts
On what occasions do you lie?
If I tell you then you will always know when I am lying
What is your greatest regret?
Not having learnt to swim until a few months ago
What has been your happiest moment?
When I saw the pride in my parents' eyes at the Miss Universe pageant.
What brings tears to your eyes?
Lots of things. When I see able-bodied people begging on the road — that makes me think...
How do you relax?
No comment.
What do you envy most in others?
People with energy and zest for life.
How would you like to be remembered?
More than being loved, I would rather be respected and then loved and thus remembered.
How would you like to die?
It is something I have never thought of. When it comes, it comes. Death is something out of my control and there is little point in thinking about something I cannot control.

What has been your happiest moment?

When I saw the pride in my parents' eyes at the Miss Universe pageant



Our shampoo and conditioner don't work together.

But isn't that the secret of beautiful hair?

Two-step action

1 Shampoo cleans conditioner holds back.

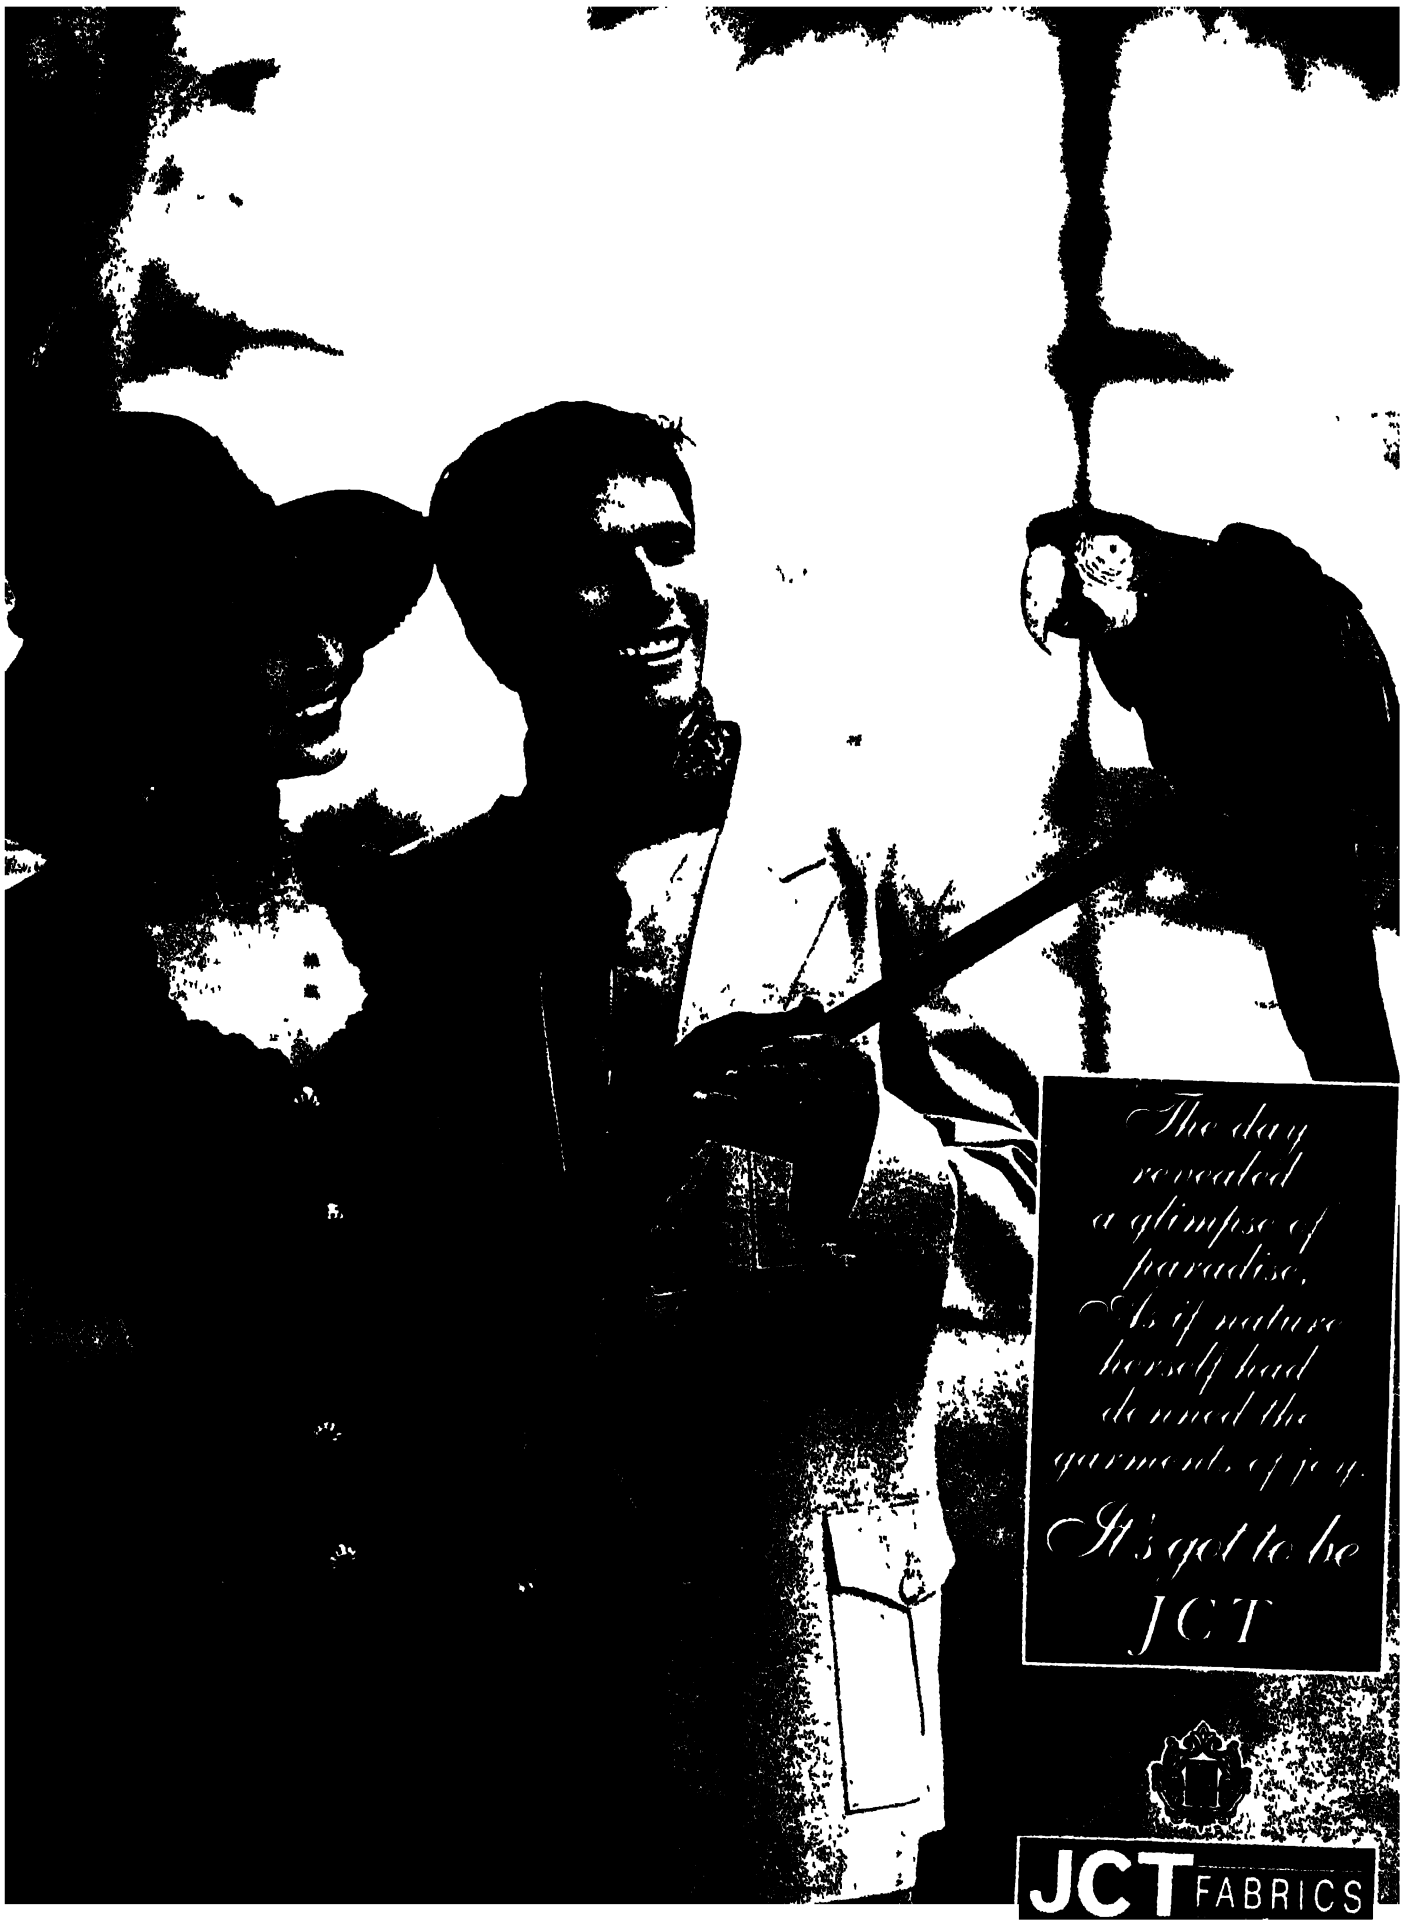
2 Conditioner puts on cleaned surface

Unlike ordinary shampoos with conditioners, Satin Rinse Shampoo Plus Conditioner has a unique two-step action First the shampoo works, while the conditioner holds back

Only after the shampoo has finished cleaning, does the conditioner take over This is of prime importance as conditioners don't work on oily dirty hair

Because our conditioner acts on a totally clean surface, it does a more thorough job Leaving your hair satin-smooth, shiny and beautiful

And it's no secret beautiful hair makes heads turn



In 4 variants for normal dry oily and undernourished hair

SATIN RINSE

SHAMPOO PLUS CONDITIONER

LAKMÉ

TWO-STEP ACTION. FOR SATIN-SMOOTH HAIR

The day revealed a glimpse of paradise. As if nature herself had donned the garment of joy.
It's got to be JCT
JCT FABRICS

The Telegraph

18 JUNE 1995

POST MORTEM

Red Terror

■ The Naxalite movement in India was not a principled fight for class annihilation, unlike the one in China ('After the Storm', May 14). It sought to impose its views on the people.

The peasants, although gaining an upper hand, came under the terror of the red party which still holds sway over the agrarian community in the state.

My mind travels back to the turbulent times of the Seventies when terror reigned supreme in Calcutta. There were so many killings; so much bloodshed.

I remember a youth mercilessly killing an aged woman for plastering cowdung cakes on the parapet of a house displaying a Mao Ze Dong slogan. The youth felt he had rightfully killed his "bourgeois mother".

A bunch of misguided youth destroyed public property and killed innocent people who did not conform to their ideals. So many statues of great personalities like Tagore, Vidyasagar and others were mindlessly beheaded. What for?

The movement, instead of ushering in a social change, ruined trade and industry and transferred power to the hands of some unscrupulous leaders who still rule the roast by adopting such tactics as killing and suppression.

Santosh Kumar Sharma,
Kharagpur

Calcutta in the turbulent Seventies

■ The Naxalite movement was actually an upshot of the communist movement wanting to achieve class annihilation. Romantic notions about revolution, struggle and communism prompted many a youth to join the movement.

But today with communism virtually disappearing from the face of the earth, the Naxalites are fast becoming a rare breed. Consequently, they are indulging in petty crimes like kidnapping and looting to make their presence felt, little realising that such acts are belying their lofty ideals.

Debabrata Mohanty,
Balasore

Immortal Verses

■ The cover story, 'Timeless' (March 12) brought back memories of a day nearly three decades ago when I was listening to Sahir Ludhianvi recite Parchhaiyan at a mushaira in Delhi

It was well past midnight and the audience was getting restless, when Sahir started reading out his 300-line poem.

The audience listened with rapt attention; there was no fatigue on their face. Sahir recited his lines stressing on peace and universal brotherhood.

The mushaira ended and the people went back home with everlasting memories of his verses.

Y.C. Sood,
Sahibabad (U.P.)

■ All of Sahir's compositions were masterpieces. Compare Jaane woh kaise log they; Yeh raat, yeh chandni phir kahan; Tu Hindu banega ya Musalman banega, Saathi haath badhana with modern lyrics like Tu cheez badi hai mast mast or Choli ke peechhey kya hai

Neera Patodia,
Calcutta

■ The cover story took me back to the vintage period of Hindi film lyricism. Sahir's range of emotions and thoughts were mind-boggling. Whatever has happened that lyricists nowadays cannot write anything except a few lurid lines?

Devraj Singh Kalsi,
Kanchrapara (W.B)

■ Sahir's lyrics transport us to the world of unalloyed romanticism Sensuous and pregnant with emotions, his lines remind us of John Keats. Indeed, Sahir is the poet of the century.

Reeyaz Ahmed,
Jhajha (Bihar)

INSIDE

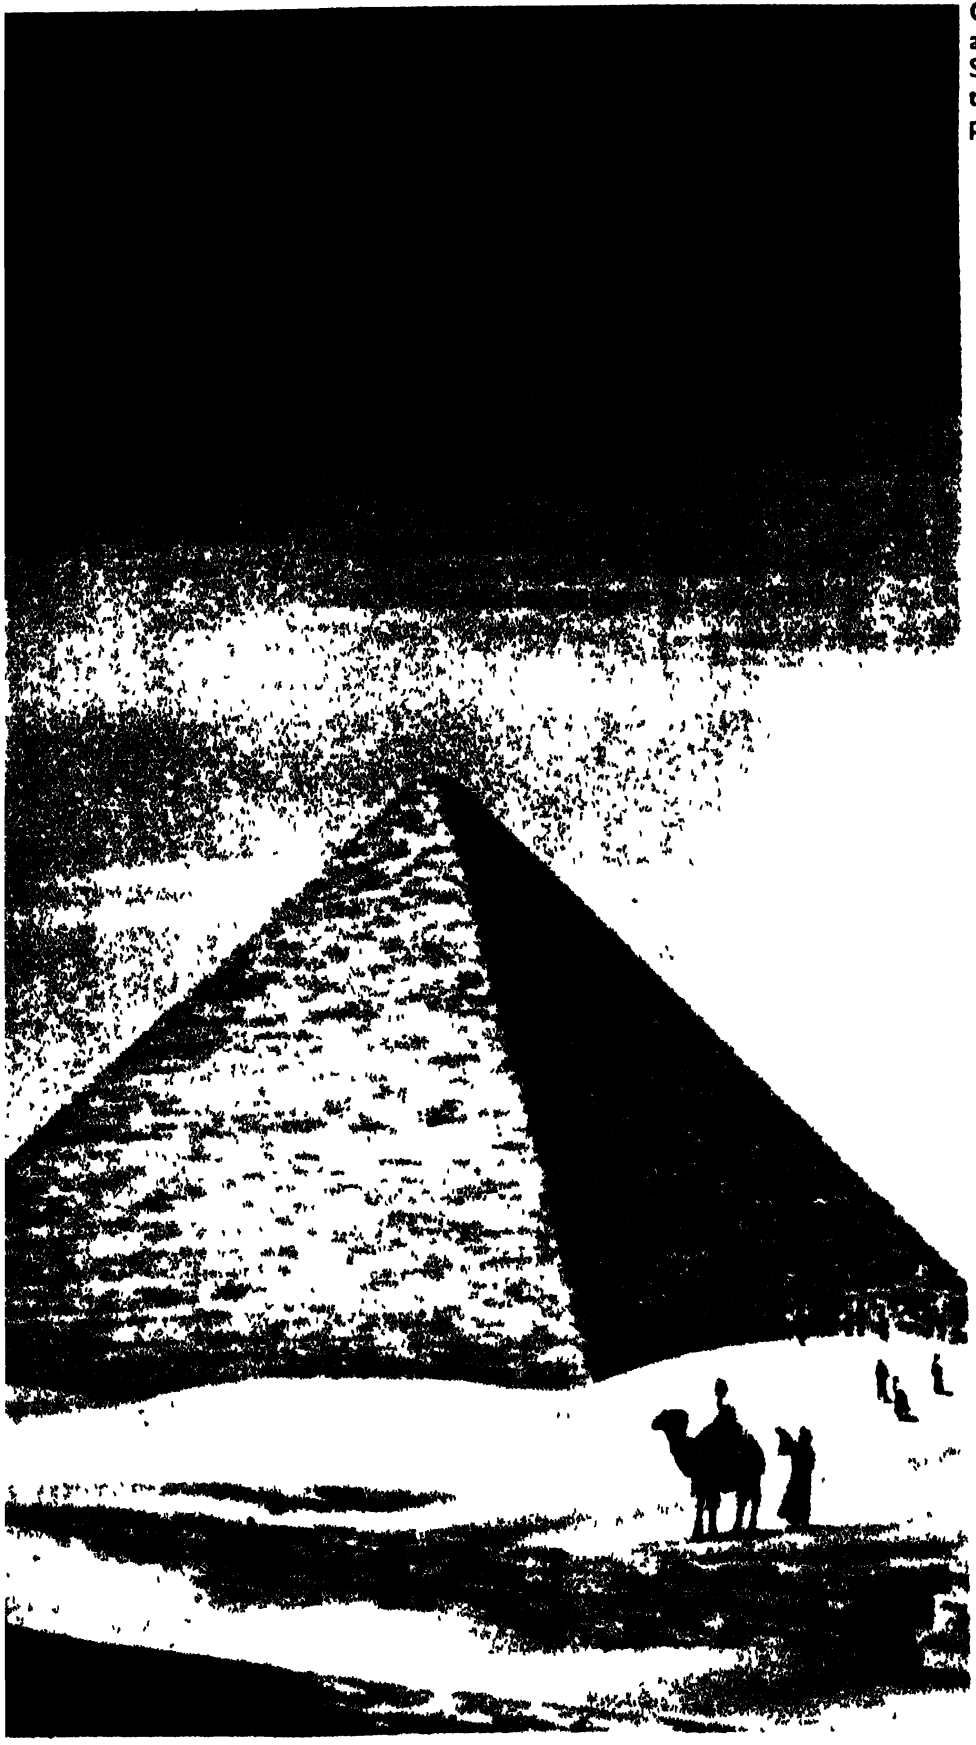
Gautam Patole

Pupul Jayakar

PAGE 6

PUPUL JAYAKAR, India's cultural activist, has just wrapped up her latest book, Fire in the Mind, on her spiritual association with Krishnamurti.

PAGE 26



PRATIBHA PARMAR is Britain's first prominent Asian to "come out to herself".

SECTIONS

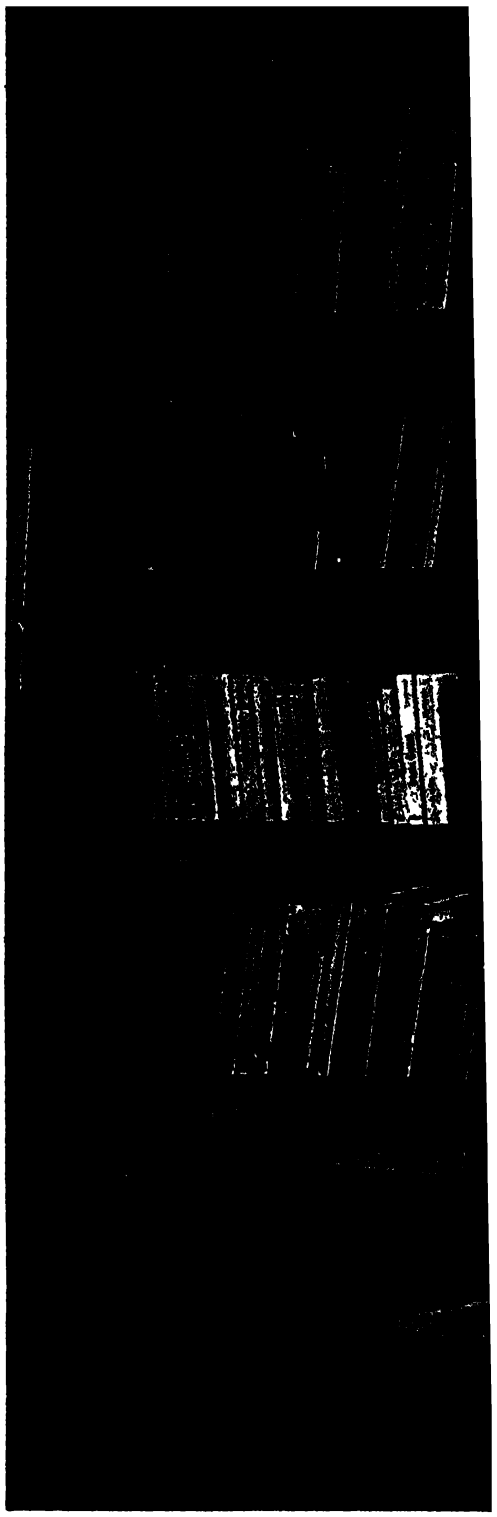
16 TIME TABLE
18 RUSKIN BOND
21 JUNIOR WHIRL
22 COMICS
26 FOCUS
30 FIRST PERSON

Cover Gautam Patole

Carrier was the first air-conditioner to cross the Suez Canal Standing the test of time in the hottest parts of the world

Carrier

The world's No 1 in air conditioning
After all, we invented it



Carrier Aircon Limited

COVER STORY

SEER MAGIC

Best known as India's 'cultural czarina' (a sobriquet she hates), Pupul Jayakar fulfils her dream of penning her dialogues with J Krishnamurti whose birth centenary is being celebrated this year Malini Nair talks to the octogenarian about her commitment, her image and her days in Delhi

Photographs by Gautam Patole

Pupul Jayakar: In search of the unknown

J. Krishnamurti: Brain, mind, and emptiness

AN ASSORTMENT OF TAPES LIES STREWN AROUND PUPUL JAYAKAR'S COSY WORKING ROOM IN the dilapidated Himmat Niwas mansion at Walkeshwar. Caught in the spools are 40 years of her spiritual association with Jiddu Krishnamurti, the man who defied gurudom, but had troubled seekers flocking to him in droves.

Jayakar has just wrapped up her latest book, Fire in the Mind, a free-flowing collection of dialogues between Krishnamurti and his followers culled over several years The exercise has left her rather sapped, but the 80-year-old cultural activist has her hands full with more projects.

She is writing her memoirs and the pace at which it is moving is exasperating her "It

'What he [Krishnamurti] wanted us to find out was if it was possible to be free of leaders and gurus and yet lead a life full of compassion and concern. And compassion is not possible where there is ego'

seems to take its own time
I'll never finish it this way," she says, throwing up her hands A large ring, embossed with the famous sun motif that became the emblem of the controversial Festival of India series, flashes on a finger

Jayakar is dressed in her typical ensemble, a flaring orange handloom sari, black blouse and the large bindi

Fire in the Mind is her second book on Krishnamurti The first, his biography, was published nine years ago and sold in seven languages abroad It may have been a tortuous process, but putting together Fire in the Mind was the dream of a lifetime

"I specifically wanted to deal with the Krishnamurti dialogues For here is one person interacting with a group to investigate into the nature and depth of human consciousness, brain and mind — all subjects which scientists are now getting interested in," she says

"It is a fascinating quest— is it possible, through relentless questioning, to reach into the realm of the unknown and bring it to light?"

Jayakar met 'Krishnaji', as she cal the thinker, way back in 1948 What drew her to him was his insistence t there be no guru or disciple, that ea should be responsible for himself a therefore for the world "There is n talk of nirvana, but of self-inquiry," she points out

"What he wanted us to find out w if it was possible to be free of leader and gurus and yet lead a life full of compassion and concern And compassion is not possible wh re there ego"

It is precisely this horror of ego, s Jayakar, which kept her out of politi Soon after independence armed wi a Congress ticket for the Assembly election she was just about to step ir politics when she met Krishnamurti "It all dropped away afterwards," s recalls

"In politics, it is necessary to say ' am the best' and I need to negate all that is 'I' So I moved into the realm

'I listen to criticism. and correct myself'

culture and handicraft "

During her high-profile stint as the boss of the culture circuit, Jayakar pioneered and headed several institutions — All India Handicrafts Board, National Institute of Design, National Institute of Fashion Technology The list is almost unending Even today she heads Intach

She may have been synonymous for years with all that can be loosely termed as state-backed 'culture', but Jayakar loathes the sobriquet, 'cultural czarina'

"The person who coined that expression must be really stupid," she says dismissively "Nobody can really embody the whole culture of India, but one has certain skills that can be built upon at the grassroots level "

Pupul Jayakar is no longer at the centre of the culture scene in the Capital Others have taken charge, but she refuses to be provoked into being acerbic about it "Everywhere you build and you move on, get old Others replace you,' she says philosophically But when I look back, what I am today is the result of all that — my heritage, my meeting with Krishnamurti "

In her busy years in Delhi, pushing the cause of culture, she came in for flak on many fronts — her proximity to Indira Gandhi, the grandiose scale on which the Festivals of India were organised But if she was upset about it, she makes a good show of hiding her hurt

"I'm one of the most criticised people in India But I listen to all criticism If I find substance in it, I try and correct myself Otherwise Why burn myself out?" she asks rhetorically

Even in her later years, at the sagging end of her culture crusade, Jayakar spurned an offer to join politics "I felt it was like being put into a cage," she says "I wasn't prepared for it "

Most people know of Pupul Jayakar largely as a product of her association with Krishnamurti, but her childhood had been quite fascinatingly different Her father, Vinayak N Mehta, was an ICS officer in UP who was determined that none of his daughters (he had four of them) would be brought up any differently from his son

Three things were absolutely 'no' for the girls — they could not enter the kitchen, they could not sew and they could not knit

"The three things regarded as symbolic of Indian womanhood," she explains "Even today I cannot make tea even though I could do many other things," she says, laughing

'What I am today is the result of all that — my meeting with Krishnamurti'

'In politics, it is necessary to say "I am the best" and I need to negate all that is "I". So I moved into the realm of culture and handicraft'

Marriage brought her to Bombay and Himmat Niwas was where the couple first rented quarters The city was vastly different then Walkeshwar was full of woods then and from across the road where her mother lived a green vista opened up outside "I've seen it all — the slow destruction of this city," she says ruefully "But I can still see the odd tree when I look out of the window "

Far from the bustle of Delhi's corridors of power, Pupul leads a fairly quiet existence But she says she does not miss being centrestage "There was a time when Delhi offered the possibility of building up a great deal Some good did come out of it, the handloom industry came into its own and there was an explosion of Indian culture abroad," she remembers

As she goes back to her study to resume her work, Jayakar Pupul throws back a prophetic line at her many critics "It will be a number of years before people realise the magnitude of what took place in those years "

EXTRACT

THE PARADOX WITHIN

What is culture? The question is simple, the answer is just as profound

Excerpts from the dialogue Pupul Jayakar had with J Krishnamurti, investigating the meaning of culture

Pupul Jayakar (PJ) Krishnaji, there is a strange phenomenon in the world today where the East reaches out to the West to find sustenance, and the West reaches out to the East for, in inverted commas, 'wisdom' to fill some vacuum. My question is: Is there an Indian mind which may contain the same elements of sorrow, greed, anger, etc., as the Western mind but where the ground from which these spring is different?

J Krishnamurti (K): Are you asking whether Eastern thought, Eastern culture, the Eastern way of life, is different from that of the West?

PJ Well, obviously the Indian way of life is different from that of the West.

K It is.

PJ Yes, because the conditioning of the two are different. But, in a sense, they complement each other.

K In what way?

PJ In the sense that the East, or India, more specifically, lacks perhaps that precision of carrying an abstraction to concrete action.

K Are you saying that in India they live more in abstraction?

PJ Yes. They are not so concerned about action in the environment or with action as such.

K What would you say they are concerned with?

PJ Today, of course, there is a great change taking place. It's very difficult to say what the Indian mind is, because the Indian mind today is looking – at one level – for the same material comforts.

'I question whether thought is ever Eastern or Western'

In the West there was a discovery and a dialogue with nature. But the direction in which the West turned led to technology and all the great scientific truths. India also had a dialogue with nature and with the self, but the dialogues were in themselves of a different kind.

So, are you trying to say that the Eastern mind, the Indian mind, is more concerned with religious matters than the Western mind?

Extracted from Time in the Mind: Dialogues with J Krishnamurti by Pupul Jayakar, Penguin India, 1995, Rs 150

K: It is looking for progress in the technological world, and applying it in daily life, and so on

PJ: Yes, progress in the technological world and consumerism have percolated very deeply into the Indian spirit

K: So, what ultimately is the difference betweeen Indian culture and Western culture?

PJ: Perhaps, in spite of this material overtone, there still is, in India, a certain insight into things because of a certain edge to the whole delving process itself In India, the delving process or inquiry goes into the field of the self, the within For centuries the Indian mind has been nurtured in this feeling Whereas, in the West, right from the time of the Greeks, there has always been a movement away — a movement towards the outer, the environment

K: I understand The other day I heard on the television a very well known Indian being interviewed He said that the technological world now in India is humanising the Indian mind I wonder what he meant by that Did he mean that instead of living in abstractions and theories with all the complexity of ideation and so on, the technological world is bringing the Indians down to earth?

PJ: And perhaps it is necessary to some extent

K Obviously it's necessary

PJ: So, if these two minds have a different essence

K: I question that very much I question whether thought is ever Eastern or Western You see, there is only thought It is not Eastern thought or Western thought The expression of thought may be different in India and in the West, but it is still a process of thought

PJ: But it is also not true that what the brain cells contain in the West, and what the centuries of knowledge and so-called wisdom have given to the brain cells in the East make them perceive differently?

K: I would like to question what you are saying, if I may I find that when I go to India there is much more materialism now than there used to be There is more concern with money, position, power and all that And of course there is over-population, and all the complexities of modern civilization Are you saying that the Indian mind has a tendency to an inward search much moreso than the mind of the West?

PJ: I would say so I would say that there is the inner environment and the outer environment, and that the outer environment is the concern of the West while the inner environment has been the concern of the East

K: Has been the concern, yes, but it has been the concern of very, very few people

PJ: But it is only those few who create culture

K: Yes Well, the Western world is much more concerned, as far as I can see — I may be mistaken — with worldly affairs

PJ: But what turned it in that direction?

K. Politics, economics, geographical location and climate

PJ. No, you see, if it was only the climate, then India, Mexico and Equatorial Africa would have had the same mind But they don't So, that's not the answer

K. No, of course not It's not only the climate You see, it is the whole so-

'The world is not so important as the understanding of the self

Isn't culture everything that the brain contains? That is, would you say that culture is the training of the brain, the refinement of the brain and the expression of that refinement in action, in behaviour, in relationship, and also that it is a process of inquiry that leads to something totally untouched by thought? I would say that that is culture

Yes. The swiftness with which the mind can start the inquiry is perhaps different in the West, where the inquiring and the great insights have been in a different direction.

In the West, you see, in religious matters, doubt, scepticism, questioning is absolutely denied. Faith is all important in the West. But in Indian religions, in Buddhism and so on, doubt, questioning and inquiry become all important called religious way of life in the West which is very, very different from that of the East

PJ That's it That's what I am saying That somewhere along the line, they are people of one racial stock seemingly divided

K Divided, yes

PJ In the West there was a discovery and a dialogue with nature But the direction in which the West turned led to technology and all the great scientific truths India also had a dialogue with nature and with the self, but the dialogues were in themselves of a different kind

K So, are you trying to say that the Eastern mind, the Indian mind, is more concerned with religious matters than the Western mind?

PJ I am, yes

K Here, in the West, it's all rather superficial – though they think it's rather deep — and there, in India, the tradition, literature and everything says, "The world is not so important as the understanding of the self, the understanding of the universe, the understanding of the cosmos, the highest principle — brahman"

PJ Yes The swiftness with which the mind can start the inquiry is perhaps different in the West, where the inquiring and the great insights have been in a different direction

K. In the West, you see, in religious matters, doubt, scepticism, questioning is absolutely denied Faith is all important in the West But in Indian religions, in Buddhism and so on, doubt, questioning and inquiry become all important

PJ Today both the cultures are in a crisis

K Yes, both cultures are in a crisis Pupul would you say that it is not merely the cultures but the whole of human consciousness that is in a crisis?

PJ. Yes Well, would you distinguish human consciousness from culture?

K. No

PJ. In a sense they are the same

K Yes, basically they are the same, they are not different

PJ So, the crisis, at the very root, has made them search somewhere away from themselves They feel an inadequacy and so they turn to the other culture It's happening in both countries

K Yes, but you see Pupul, in their search from their materialistic out look, if I may use that word, the people of the West are being caught not only in all kinds of superstitions, romantic, occult ideas but also by these gurus who come over here (to the West, that is) What I want to find out is whether human consciousness — which is in a crisis — can not only resolve that crisis without war, without destroying humanity, but also whether human beings can ever go beyond their own limitation I don't know whether I am making myself clear

PJ. Sir, the outer and inner are like two mirror images of the directions in which man has moved The problem really is that if man has to survive, the two have to be

K The two have to live together

PJ. No, not just live together, but a human culture, which would contain both, must come into being

K. Yes, that's it Now, what do you mean by the word 'culture'?

PJ: Isn't culture everything that the brain contains?

K That is, would you say that culture is the training of the brain, the refinement of the brain and the expression of that refinement in action, in behaviour, in relationship, and also that it is a process of inquiry that leads to something totally untouched by thought? I would say that that is culture

PJ. Would you include inquiry in the field of culture?

K: Of course

PJ: Isn't culture a closed circuit?

K. You can make culture a closed circuit or you can break it and go beyond

PJ: But today culture, as it exists, is a closed circuit

K That's why I want to understand what you mean by the word 'culture'

PJ Culture, as we understand it today Krishnaji, is the sum of our perceptions, the way we look at things, our thoughts, our feelings, our attitudes, the operation of our senses

K Go on

PJ You can keep on adding to this

K. That is, religion, faith, belief, superstition

PJ. All the outer and the inner

K Yes

PJ Which keep on growing -- but growing within that contour It remains a contour And when you talk of a search, which is in no way connected with this, would you include it in the field of culture?

K Of course Would you say -- I'm just trying to clarify the matter — that the whole movement of culture is like a tide going out and coming in and that human endeavour is this process of going out and coming in without ever inquiring whether that process can ever stop? Do you understand? What I mean is that we act and react

PJ Yes

K That's human nature — like the ebb and flow of the tide I react and out of the reaction act, and from that action react It's back and forth

PJ. Yes

K Now, I m asking whether this reaction of reward and punishment can stop and take a totally different turn Our lives, our functions, our reactions are based on reward and punishment — both physically and psychologically Right?

PJ: Yes

K. And that's all we know — deeply There is this reaction of reward and the avoidance of punishment and so on — like the tide Now, I'm asking whether there is another sense of action which is not based on this action-reaction Do you understand what I am talking about?

PJ As this action-reaction is an impulse of the brain cells

As they [the senses] operate today, Krishna*ji* they seem to have one root — thought. The movement of the senses, as they operate, is the movement of thought.

That's all. Therefore it's limited. I'm inquiring, with a lot of hesitation and a certain amount of scepticism, whether the brain cells — which have evolved through thousands of years, experienced untold sorrow, loneliness, despair and tried to escape from its own fears through every form of 'religious' endeavour and all the rest of it — can ever, by themselves, change and bring about a mutation in themselves

K It's our conditioning

PJ And it's an impulse of the brain cells

K Yes, of course, of course

PJ It's the way the brain cells respond and the way they receive through the senses

K Our question really is What is culture?

PJ And we went into it

K A little bit

PJ Yes, a little bit It can be expanded much further but still it remains within the same

K Yes, it's in the same field

PJ Would you say then that culture is that which is contained in the brain cells?

K Of course

PJ Anything else?

K All our past memories

PJ Yes So if you take all that, is there anything else?

K I understand now This is a different question, because — we must be careful, very careful — if there is something else — if — then that something else can operate on the brain cells which are conditioned Right? If there is something in the brain, the activity of that something else can bring about a freedom from this narrow, limited culture But is there something else within the brain?

PJ But even physiologically they are saying, Krishna*ji*, that the operation of the brain cells today is a very, very minute portion of its capacity

K: I know that Why?

PJ Because conditioning limits it, and it has never been free of those processes which

K: Limit it Which means, thought is limited

PJ: Yes, it's put all its eggs in one basket

K: One basket, that's how I want to put it Thought is limited, and we are all functioning within that limitation Right? Experience, knowledge, memory and thought are limited forever

PJ What place have the senses and the perceptive processes in this?

K That brings another question, which is Can the senses operate without the interference of thought? Do you understand my question?

PJ: As they operate today, Krishna*ji* they seem to have one root — thought The movement of the senses, as they operate, is the movement of thought

K: That's all Therefore it's limited I'm inquiring, with a lot of hesitation and a certain amount of scepticism, whether the brain cells — which have evolved through thousands of years, experienced untold sorrow, loneliness, despair and tried to escape from its own fears through every form of 'religious' endeavour and all the rest of it — can ever, by themselves, change and bring about a mutation in themselves

PJ: But if they don't bring about a mutation in themselves

K: What would?

PJ and there is nothing else?

K Yes, I understand your question

PJ You see, this is the paradox Really, sir, it is a paradox

Brockwood Park, 24 June 1983

'The whole movement of culture is like a tide going out and coming in

GILLIAN WRIGHT'S  COLUMN

THE ONLY RESORT

The most difficult thing about running a hotel must surely be putting up with the guests, the compulsion to be constantly polite

Anyone in the travel business knows how much holidaymakers complain The Butterfields, a husband and wife team, with broad Yorkshire accents and close-cropped hair, have been running railway tours around India for years

Theirs is about the only travel company for whom Itarsi is a big draw Many of their customers are fanatically committed to railways, but even they can complain about food or delays

A few winges from their clients even reach the Butterfields' booking centre in England — a village shop which would have closed down in the face of competition from supermarkets, but for a parallel trade in railway tourism

So the few months the Butterfields are not coupling and uncoupling their bogey from trains on Indian Railways, they are happy to retire to the peace of a small house in Kerala

Klaus Schleusner is another expatriate in the tourist trade who lives, but has not retired, in Kerala He has made his home his business

Klaus first came to India in 1971 From 1978 to 1985, he lived in Madras and taught German language and literature at the IIT there Now he's learning Malayalam and living a few kilometres down the coast from Kovalam He is vice president of the Kovalam Resorts Association, but is mortally opposed to what is actually happening to Kovalam beach

I found him dressed in a white lungi and kurta, supervising a team of local masons who were unmaking a natural rock-style swimming pool

The swimming pool is the most resortish feature of the Surya Samudra which is described in its brochure as a Bungalow Hotel and Ayurvedic Spa practising soft tourism

It began as a two-room octagonal house, with a steep conical tiled roof reminiscent of Kerala temple architecture This was the house Klaus built as his own home after scouring the coast for a spot that met his criteria — beautiful, near the sea and the airport and with good drinking water

In 1985 the idea of a hotel struck him He moved out and with one guest the hotel was full

But Klaus didn't want to build an ordinary resort His ideas were very much tinged with green So he and a German architect, who had spent years studying Indian architecture, began to look for traditional houses

Traditional arts are waning, and many of the state's old, solid-wooded houses are now barely recognisable from the outside Their owners, finding them unmodern and a problem to maintain are also selling them off as timber

Klaus bought a few old homes and brought them to the seaside, where his architect friend reassembling them, varnished them to protect them from the salt breezes, and adapted them to the needs of their future guests

This did not mean certain things which are generally considered essential for upmarket tourists

1 Air-conditioning None is provided If you ask, you can have a mosquito net and a pedestal fan Traditional architecture allows proper circulation

2 En suite bathrooms Traditional houses were not built with bathrooms To get round this problem, small rear courtyards were constructed and planted with banana plantains which grow next to the lavatory, tap and bucket

Soft tourism means working to promote local people of an area instead of harming them Generally, a quietly spoken, expert at being polite, Klaus is hard on mass tourism — the kind that's on the rampage in Kovalam

"Mass tourism destroys All the same businesses undercut each other And the Indian government is under no obligation to subsidise poor Europeans and give them a cheap holiday One person paying Rs 2,000 a night, brings the country just as much foreign exchange as 100 paying Rs 20 So why not have just the ones who can pay? That is what has saved Bhutan "

A room in a wooden house certainly doesn't come cheap by local standards — Rs 2 400 or Rs 2,700 a night In comparison, Rs 12 still buys a meal of rice, papardam, two daals plus sambhar, vegetable, curd and pickle at the local food establishment where many of the village men eat

Still, although the hibiscus-filled gardens of the resort are very much a separate world, at least local people do find employment there The man to benefit most is the vaid and masseur, who extracts his own oils from medicinal plants

An expert in his field, the resort has given him the opportunity to maximise his earnings and also teach Ayurveda in Germany Local people build, maintain and staff the complex One smiling local fisherman is the lifeguard, while others share the small beach with bathers

On one side soft tourism of this type has benefits The tourists attracted are on the whole sensitive Often, they have an abiding interest in India — one of the regular guests is a flautist who has written a book analysing Indian raagas

But the occasional boom of dynamite dropped from narrow log boats by fishermen blasting marine life from the sea is a reminder of the imbalances which exist on the coast The sea is over-fished and livings are harder to make than they once were

The Kovalam Resorts Association is considering petitioning the High Court to order the Kerala government to enforce the law and stop dynamiting This would save some marine life, but would not solve the problem If not mass tourism, then something else on a mass scale is needed to fulfil increasing aspirations

(Sanctuary Features)

INNER EYE — Bejan Daruwalla

Aries

March 21—April 20

Focus shifts to house, property land building and construction announces Ganesha Interviews and appointments will be up your street While a home away from home is literally possible, you will have to weigh it in the balance as your future is at stake

Taurus

April 21 -May 20

Cut out the crap and get to the core of it because time is short and you will have much to do There are too many irons in the fire for your own good Do expect visitors, relatives strangers and foreigners to call come and even stay Home may need a facelift June 19-20 signifies action time

Gemini

May 21 - June 20

Group activity is definitely favoured and encouraged The more you circulate and communicate, the better for you Romance opens the window of your heart wide open and that is badly needed June 20 21 is for entertainment and amusement Your bank balance augments

Cancer

June 21 - July 20

It would be ideal to mix caution and agression imagination and practicality, because the going will be slightly tricky and uncertain It is absolutely certain that news from a distant land could be the deciding factor Travel stars are in the ascendant June 24 is exciting

Leo

July 21 - August 21

Time to sign contracts work in secrecy burnish your image, get on with the jetset, play a major role in films TV or real life and Leons are good at all three! Many Leons will be into meditation psychiatry, extra sensory perception and bizarre experiences Heavy expenses

Virgo

August 22 - September 22

Release of tensions makes this comparatively speaking, an easier week, and you jolly well deserve this break It will also help you paradoxically, to work at full speed Progress will be made Those in business and sales do well Take the help of friends and well wishers

Libra

September 23 - October 22

Venus, your ruling planet is superbly placed making you charismatic and therefore popular But expenses will mount and competition will be great So do not relax your guard Visits and trips are definitely a salient feature of the week Research and education make a fine duo

Scorpio

October 23 - November 22

This week is a preparation for coming into your own, gathering your forces, marshalling your resources, planning an all out attack or campaign The results will please you, but a wee bit Finances and loans form a major part of the week Buying/selling is indicated

Sagittarius

November 23 - December 20

Romance collaborations wedding bells, legal affairs and partnerships at all levels are the main features of this week Ganesha says, taxes investments, capital formation, buying and selling make one big unit for you A very emotional week

Capricorn

December 21 - January 19

While your round of sustained hard work continues you will be able to cope better now with fluid situations changing very frequently You will also tide over a health problem and that is good news indeed New contacts and associations are destined

Aquarius

January 20 - February 18

Your heart will beat to a distant drum and there is a possibility of a job hop or a raise You will have to go flat out in whatever you do That, in turn could have slight health repercussions In other words, time to mix business with pleasure Do not be oversensitive

Pisces

February 19 - March

There are two trends working almost simultaneously The previous direction of house, property, office renovation and decoration is one The other revolves round marriage, divorce separation, joint finances and legacies Obviously, all this should keep you on your toes

BIRTHDAYS

June 18: Hard work and quick decisions plus an alertness will be necessary to succeed, because Mercury conjuncts Venus, says Ganesha

June 19: The moon's last quarter makes you diplomatic and insightful You can expect help from people and that should turn the tables for you

June 20: Moon-Jupiter trine or happy formation leads to an emotional fulfilment and that means much money, journey and ceremony

June 21: Moon-Venus sextile leads to romance, children, and a taste for all beautiful things Your friends and supporters will be numerous

June 22: Moon-Sun sextile means money in the kitty, popularity and tremendous confidence and drive There will be a realisation of your dreams

June 23: Moon-trine Mars assures energy, leadership, enthusiasm Those connected with land, building, films, chemicals and the arts do exceedingly well

June 24: Moon-trine Neptune and Uranus is excellent augury for traders, research workers, farmers and chemists It does spell inspiration and exaltation

TIME TABLE

All arrival and departure times are for Calcutta

Days of operation using 7 day code ❶ MONDAY ❷ TUESDAY ❸ WEDNESDAY ❹ THURSDAY ❺ FRIDAY ❻ SATURDAY ❼ SUNDAY

FLIGHTS — DOMESTIC

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AGARTALA
IC 741	0820	1 3 4 6	IC 742	0850	1 3
			IC 742	1050	4 6
IC 743	0920	daily	IC 744	1150	daily
PF 701	1130	1 3 5 7	PF 702	1610	1 3 5 7
AIZAWL
PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
BAGDOGRA
PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1
PF 737	0730	3 5	PF 738	1740	3 5
IC 721	1010	1 2 3 6 7	IC 722	1950	1 2 3 6 7
BANGALORE
IC 771	0600	daily	IC 772	1140	daily
BHUBANESWAR
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC 769	1615	2 4 6	IC 770	2120	2 4 6
BOMBAY
IC 676	0730	daily	IC 675	0820	daily
D2 102	0905	daily	D2 101	0835	daily
IC 273	1945	daily	AI 306	1840	5
9W 212	1945	daily	9W 211	1910	daily
D2 104	2005	daily	D2 103	1935	daily
AI 309	2035	6	IC 2[illegible]	1830	daily
AI 681	2350	1
DELHI
IC 264	0700	daily	S2 025	0810	1 2 3 4 5 6
S2 026	0845	1 2 3 4 5 6	M9 303	0825	daily
M9 304	0905	daily	AI 682	0950	1
IC 812	1700	1 3 5	S2 015	1015	1 3 5
S2 016	1555	1 3 5	4S 806	1130	1 2 3 4 5 6
IC 402	1715	daily	IC 401	1155	daily
4S 805	1730	1 2 3 4 5 6	S2 005	1855	1 2 3 4 5 7
			IC 811	2055	1 3 5
S2 006	1930	1 2 3 4 5 7	M9 301	1950	daily
M9 302	2030	daily	IC 264	2210	daily
DIBRUGARH
PF-737	0730	3 5	D2 181	1620	1 5 7
D2 181	1135	1 5 7	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	IC 701	1630	1 4 6 7
4S 816	1705	2 4 6	4S 815	1635	1 2 3
4S 812	1205	1 3 5	4S 811	1635	2 4 6
IC 701	1240	1 4 6 7	PF 738	1740	3 5
DIMAPUR
IC 25[illegible]	1140	2 4	IC [illegible]	1510	2 4
GUWAHATI
IC 703	0610	1 3 4 5 7	IC 704	0920	1 3 4 5 7
PF 737	0730	3 5	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	D2 181	1620	1 5 7
PF 735	0730	1	D2 183	1620	2 4 6
D2 181	1135	1 5 7	IC 230	1620	daily
D2 183	1135	2 4 6	4S 811	1635	2 4 6
4S 816 & [illegible]	1705	2 4 6	4S 813 815	1635	1 3 5
4S 812	1205	1 3 5	PF 736	1730	1
IC 229	[illegible]	daily	PF 738	1740	3 5

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
HYDERABAD
S2 023	1045	1 3 5	S2 024	1525	1 3 5
IC 777	1615	3 5 7	IC 778	2115	3 5 7
IC 769	1615	2 4 6	IC 770	2120	2 4 6
IMPHAL
IC 255	0800	3 5 7	IC 256	1250	3 5 7
IC 257	1140	2 4	IC 257	1520	2 4
JORHAT
IC 213	0910	3 7	IC 213	1315	3 7
LILABARI
PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1
LUCKNOW
IC 812	1700	1 3 5	IC 811	2005	1 3 5
MADRAS
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
IC 544	1115	2 7	IC 543	1035	2 7
IC 765	1720	daily	D2 171	1045	1 2 4 5 6 7
D2 172	1740	1 2 4 5 6 7	IC 766	2220	daily
NAGPUR
IC 769	1615	2 4 6	IC 770	2120	2 4 6
PATNA
IC 249	1430	2 4 7	S2 015	1015	1 3 5
S2 016	1555	1 3 5	IC 249	1805	2 4 7
IC 812	1700	1 3 5	IC 811	2055	1 3 5
PORT BLAIR
IC 285	0640	3 5 7	IC 286	1100	2 4 6
RANCHI
IC 249	1430	2 4 7	IC 249	1805	2 4 7
SHILLONG
PF 705	0730	2 4 6 7	PF 706	1510	2 4 6 7
SILCHAR
IC 255	0800	3 5 7	IC 256	1250	3 5 7
IC 253	0800	1 2 6	IC 254	1040	1
			IC 254	1250	2 6
TEZPUR
IC 213	0910	3 7	IC 213	1315	3 7
TEZU
PF 737	0730	3 5	PF 738	1740	3 5
VARANASI
S2 016	1555	1 3 5	S2 015	1015	1 3 5
VISHAKHAPATNAM
IC 542	1115	1 3 5	IC 541	1030	1 3 5
ZIRO
PF 735	0730	1	PF 736	1730	1

FLIGHTS — INTERNATIONAL

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
AMMAN
RJ 185	1445	4	RJ 184	0705	4
AMSTERDAM
KL 876	0345	7	KL-875	0135	7

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
BANGKOK
KB 105	0850	2 6	KB 106	1020	3
			KB 106	1240	5
IC 731	0855	2 4 5 7	TG 313	1240	1 3 6
TG 314	1355	1 3 6	IC 732	1505	2 4 5 7
AI 306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6
BUCHAREST
RO 076	1950	5 7	RO-075	1055	5 7
CHITTAGONG
IC 225	1200	1	IC 226	1420	1
BG 698	1735	2 5	BG-697	1655	2 5
DHAKA
BG 092	0850	4 5	BG 091	0810	4 5
BG 092	1150	1 2 3 6 7	BG 091	1110	1 2 3 6 7
IC 723	1250	1 3 5 6	IC 724	1520	1 3 5 6
BG 094	1905	1 2 3 5 6 7	BG 093	1825	1 2 3 5 6 7
BG 094	1910	4	BG 093	1830	4
BG-096	2100	1 5	BG 095	2020	1 5

Departures			Arrivals
Flt No	Time	Days	Flt No	Time	Days
KATHMANDU
RA 214	1030	4 7	RA 213	0945	4 7
IC 747	1115	1 3 5	IC 748	1455	1 3 5
LONDON
BA 142	2050	3 7	BA 143	1525	3 7
MOSCOW
SU 538	1755	4	SU 537	1555	4
PARO
KB 106	1105	3	KB 105	0810	2 6
KB 106	1325	5
SINGAPORE
SQ 415	2345	2 5	SQ 416	2230	2 5
SOFIA
LZ 504	1750	4	LZ 503	1650	4
TOKYO
AI 306	1950	5	AI 309	1925	6

AI ● Air India BA ● British Airways BG ● Biman Bangladesh Airlines D2 ● Damania Airways IC ● Indian Airlines KB ● Druk Air KL ● Royal Dutch Airlines LZ ● Balkan Airlines M9 ● ModiLuft PF ● Vayudoot RA ● Royal Nepal Airlines RJ ● Royal Jordanian Airlines RO ● Tarom Air Transport S2 ● Sahara India Airlines SQ ● Singapore Airlines SU ● Aeroflot 4S ● East West Airlines TG ● Thai Airways International 9W ● Jet Airways

TRAINS

EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
3313	19 [illegible]	Delhi Kalka Mail	[illegible]0	3312
4005	13 20	Amritsar Mail	[illegible]	4006
3001	20 35	Bombay Mail [illegible]	1 00	3002
3381	0 05	Poorva (New Delhi) Express [illegible]	16 15	3382
		Dep Wed Thur, Sun
		Arr Tue Wed & Sat
3401	0 05	Poorva (New Delhi) Express [illegible]	16 15	3404
		Dep Mon Tue [illegible] & Sat
		Arr Mon Tues Fri & Sun
2301	16 30	Rajdhani Express via Gaya	10 15	2302
		Dep Mon Tue Wed Fri & Sat
		Arr Mon Tue Thurs Fri & Sun
3001	13 00	Rajdhani Express via Patna	12 50	3006
		Dep Thurs & Sun Arr Wed & Sat
3074	23 00	Himgiri (Jammu Tawi) Express Tr Wkly	11 15	3074
		Dep Tue Fri & Sat Arr Tues Wed & Sat
5047	13 30	Purbanchal (Gorakhpur) Express Dep & Arr Sun	1 40	5048
		Mon Wed & Fri
3009	10 3	Doon Express [illegible] Chord	7 00	3010
3007	3	Udyan Abha Toofan Express via Main Line	18 15	3008
3049	13 50	Amritsar Express	15 30	3050
3039	21 05	Delhi Janata Express via Main Line	5 20	3040
3019	16 05	Kathgodam Express	11 55	3020
3021	21 45	Mithila Express	5 00	3022
5659	17 35	Kamrup (Guwahati) Express	6 40	5660
3317	6 10	Black Diamond Express	21 25	3318
3029	17 11	Coalfield Express	10 30	3030
3035	18 20	Asansol Express	8 45	3036
3031	21 05	Danapur Express	5 50	3032
3025	23 00	North Bihar Express	11 45	3026
		Dep Wednesday, Arr Friday
3071	22 30	Jamalpur Express	5 [illegible]	3072
3015	9 55	Santiniketan Express	1 40	3016
1159	15 25	Chambal (Gwalior) Express	6 50	1160
		Dep Fri [illegible] Arr Mon Tue & Wed
1171	15 25	Shipra (Indore) Express	6 50	1172
		Dep Mon Tue [illegible] Wed Arr Fri Sat & Sun
3327	14 30	Shaktipunj (Chopan) Express	4 50	3328
1181	15 25	Chambal (Agra Cantt.) Express	6 50	1182
		Thursday Only
		Sealdah
3141	17 40	Teesta Torsa Express	6 35	3142
		Dep Mon Tues Wed Thurs Fri & Sun
		Arr Tue Wed Thurs Fri Sat & Sun
3143	19 15	Darjeeling Mail	8 45	3144
3111	20 15	Jaipur Express via Main Line	7 15	3112
5657	6 25	Kanchanjunga Express	10 35	5658
3153	12 00	Gour Express	15	3154
5663	20 00	Katihar Express	4 15	5664
3151	11 45	Jammu Tawi Express	15 50	3152
3133	20 55	Mughal Sarai Express via BG Loop	12 55	3134
3103	18 20	Bhagirathi (Lalgola) Express	10 25	3104
5185	12 40	Ganga Sagar (Chhapra) Express	1 25	5186
		Dep & Arr Tues Thurs & Sat

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY

Departure			Arrival
Up	Time	Howrah	Time	Dn
6003	10 40	Madras Mail	6 50	6004
8007	19 [illegible]	Bombay Mail via Nagpur	8 10	8001
2560	1 30	Gitanjali (Bombay) Express	15 15	2859
8043	20 40	Ahmedabad Express	5 15	8043
8030	11 20	Kurla Express via Nagpur	16 30	8029
2841	14 10	Coromandal (Madras) Express	17 00	2842
		via Vijayawada
7001	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express	19 40	7004
		Dep Sunday, Arr Tuesday
70040	8 10	Fulaknuma (Secunderabad) Express	0930	70040
		Dep Tue Fri & Arr Mon & Thu
6511	1 35	Bangalore Express	13 45	6511
		Dep Sun
		Arr Sun
8011	17 10	Tata Steel Express	10 20	8011
8051	6 15	Ispat Express	2 05	8012
8005	20 55	Titlagarh Express	5 00	8006
8015	21 30	Ranchi Hatia Express	6 10	8016
890	22 10	Puri Express via Khurda	5 40	8008
8309	19 05	Jagannath (Puri) Express via Nimpura	8 25	8410
2811	1 05	Dhauli (Bhubaneswar) Express	11 30	282
8059	23 20	Tirupati Express	4 15	8060
8045	11 45	East Coast (Hyderabad) Express	15 00	8046
9017	16 15	Purulia Express	11 25	8018
		Dep Every Sunday,
		Arr Every Sunday
2421	16 10	Bhubaneswar New Delhi Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	16 10
	11 55	New Delhi Bhubaneswar Rajdhani Express (via Howrah) Sunday only	10 35	2422
632	12 35	Guwahati Howrah Trivandrum Central Express Monday only	12 15
	11 05	Trivandrum Central Howrah Guwahati Express [illegible]	11 35	6312
	14 30	Cochin Harbour Terminus Guwahati Weekly Express [illegible] Sunday only	15	6313
6314	22 30	Guwahati Cochin Harbour Terminus Weekly Express via Howrah & Jolarpettai Monday only	22 15
6316	22 35	Cochin Harbour Terminus Express via Vriddhachalam Cuttack & Howrah	13 35	6315
		Dep Tue & Fri Arr Wed & Sat
6520	22 35	Guwahati Bangalore City Weekly Express via [illegible]	2 15
	14 05	Bangalore City Guwahati Weekly Express via [illegible]	14 35	6519

ENQUIRIES For round the clock information of Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains please dial 2203545 54 for incoming trains 2203535 44 for all other information For information about reservations on Eastern Railway and South Eastern Railway trains dial 2203496 3500 (from 8 am to 8 pm on weekdays and 8 am to 2 pm on Sundays and gazetted holidays) In addition dial 1331 (for recorded information on train running) 131 (regarding train operations) and 135 (regarding reservations) Train service enquiry at Sealdah 3503535 37

RUSKIN BOND'S  COLUMN

GEORGE AND RANJI

When I heard that my cousin George had again escaped from the mental asylum in a neighbouring town, I knew it wouldn't be long before he turned up at my doorstep It usually happens at the approach of the cricket season No problem, I thought I'll just bundle him into a train and take him back to the hospital

Cousin George had been there, off and on, for a few years He wasn't the violent type and was given a certain amount of freedom — with the result that he occasionally wandered off by himself, sometimes, to try and take in a Test match You see, George did not suffer from the delusion that he was Napolean or Ghengis Khan, he was convinced that he was the great Ranji, Prince of Cricketers, and that he had just been selected to captain India — quite forgetting that Ranji had actually played for England!

So when George turned up on my front step I wasn't surprised to find him carrying a cricket bat in one hand and a protective box in the other

'Aren't you ready?" he asked "The match starts at 11 "

"There's plenty of time," I said, recalling that the train left at 11 15 "Why don't you come in and relax while I get ready?" George sat down and asked for a glass of beer I brought him one and he promptly emptied it over a pot of ferns

"They look thirsty," he said I dressed hurriedly, anxious to get moving before he started practising his late-cuts on my cutglass decanter Then, lin-

'There's plenty of time,' I said, recalling that the train left at 11.15. 'Why don't you come in and relax while I get ready?' George sat down and asked for a glass of beer. I brought him one and he promptly emptied it over a pot of ferns. 'They look thirsty,' he said

The scooter driver slowed down and looked from cousin George to me and back again. George gave him a winning smile and looking in my direction, tapped his forehead significantly. The driver nodded in sympathy and kept straight for the Kotla king arms, we walked to the gate and hailed an auto rickshaw

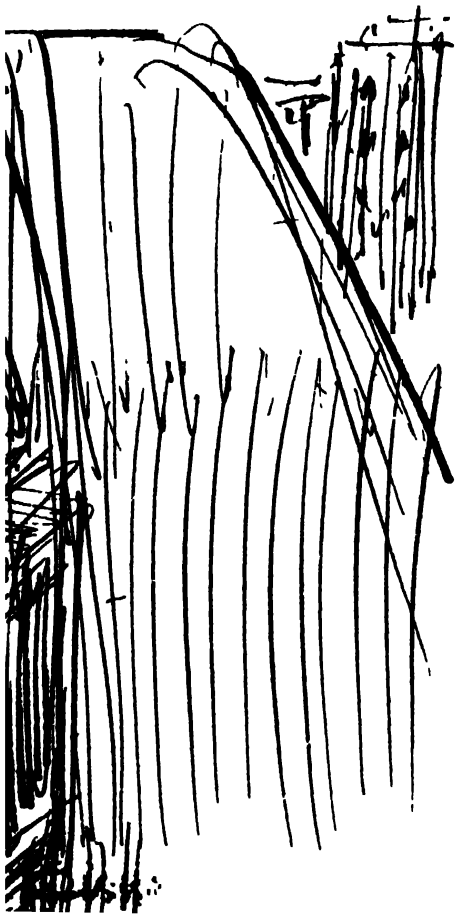
"Railway station," I whispered to the driver



"Ferozeshah Kotla," said George in ringing tones, naming Delhi's famous cricket ground No matter, I thought, I'll straighten out the driver as we go along I bundled George into the rickshaw and we were soon heading in the direction of the Kotla

"Railway station," I said again, in tones that could not be denied

"Kotla," said cousin George, just as firmly

The scooter driver kept right on course for the cricket ground Apparently George had made a better impression on him

"Look," I said, tapping the driver on the shoulder "This is my cousin and he's not quite right in the head He's just escaped from a mental asylum and if I'm to get him back there tonight, we must catch the 11 15 train "

The scooter driver slowed down and looked from cousin George to me and back again George gave him a winning smile and looking in my direction, tapped his forehead significantly The driver nodded in sympathy and kept straight on for the Kotla

Well, I've always believed that the dividing line between sanity and insanity is a very thin one, but I had never realised it was quite so thin—too thin for my own comfort! Who was crazy, George, me or the driver?

We had almost reached the Kotla and I had no intention of watching over cousin George through a whole day's play He gets excited at cricket matches — which is strange considering how dull they can be On one occasion, he broke through the barriers and walked up to the wicket with his bat, determined to bat at No 3 (Ranji's favourite position, apparently) and assaulted an umpire who tried to escort him from the ground

I confirmed the driver's worst fears by jumping off the rickshaw as it slowed down, and making my getaway I've never been able to discover if cousin George had any money with him, or if the rickshaw driver got paid Rickshaw drivers are inclined at times to be violent, but then so are inmates of mental hospitals Anyway, George seems to have no memory of the incident

Three days later, I received word from the hospital that he had returned of his own accord, boasting that he had hit a century — so presumably, he had participated in the match in some form or another

All's well that ends well, or so I like to think Cousin George was not usually a violent man, but I have a funny feeling about the rickshaw driver I never saw him again in Delhi, and unless he had moved elsewhere, I'm afraid his disappearance might well be connected with cousin George's rickshaw ride After all, the Jamuna is very near the Kotla

(Sanctuary Features)

- Diploma in Fashion Designing
- Diploma in Commercial Art with Computer Graphics
- News-reading & Announcement (in English & Bengali)

ANIMA

27/1, Harish Mukherjee Road Bhowanipur Cal 25 Opp Harish Motors Petrol Pump Stop Jadubabu s Bazar

The Telegraph Classifieds

TRADE WINGS INSTITUTE Centre For Information Technology

Offers

- Certificate Courses in Oracle & Excel (4 months) & Unix, C (3 months)
- Diploma in Computer Proficiency (6 months).
- Diploma in Commercial Applications (1 yr.).

 Fees payable in instalments*

For details contact at

1, Crooked Lane 1st floor Room No 108 behind Great Eastern Hotel, Cal-69 Ph 243-0625

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL is promoted and sponsored by Institute of Advanced Management, the country's most premier centre for Management Education IAM, formed in 1989, with global collaborations is ranked as one of the very best Hospitality Management Institute in India And now IAM brings you the prestigious IAM Business School with the mission of providing Management Education of international standard through state of the art methods of training and research IAM's years of experience, solid infra-structure and close relation with the industry and business would make IAM Business School, one of the leading Management Institute of the country

The Course: IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL offers the following courses for the Academic Session 1995-96

Two Year Full Time Post Graduate Diploma In Management.

Three Year Evening Post Graduate Diploma In Management.

Admission Procedure: Admission to the ' Post Graduate Diploma in Management" Courses would be through an Admission Test conducted by IAM Graduates in any discipline are eligible

Prospectus & Forms: Prospectus and forms are available from the Insutute's office and also from the City Office on cash payment of Rs 100/- Outstation candidates have to send Rs 120/- by M O only to the Executive Director, IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL, AE-486, Salt Lake, Calcutta-700064

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL

IAM BUSINESS SCHOOL
AE 486, Salt Lake, Calcutta-700 064. Dial: 37-7726.
City Office: IAM, 37/1B, Hazra Road, 2nd Floor, Calcutta-700 029. Dial: 475-9237 & 74-8132.

ADMISSION NOTICE

★ Adv. Diploma in Computer Sc. & Management (18 months.)

Course Contents:
WINDOWS, FOXPRO, AUTOCAD, CLIPPER, UNIX, C/C++ LAN VISUAL C++, HARDWARE MAINTENANCE & OTHERS

Fees Rs 10,000/- payable in instalments

★ Adv. Programming in Clipper & Foxpro with Project Orientation

NSCT
National School of Computer Technology
2, Raja Basanta Roy Road (between Rashbehari Crossing & Lake Market) Cal-26
Ph 76-7610

Avail Scholarship upto 40%
Offer open till June

SALT LAKE COLLEGIATE SCHOOL

Admission on from Nursery to Class XII (All streams) C.B.S.E. Delhi Board.

'A' & 'B' Courses as per CBSE norms available

We provide

- English Medium Co-ed
- Transport Facilities
- Hostel Facilities
- Trained, Experienced, Motivated Teachers
- Computer Education
- Individual Care

★ ★ Transfer Cases Accepted

BG 101, Salt Lake City, Cal-91, Ph 37 1916 (10-30 am to 3 pm)

Join Quest's interactive

MULTIMEDIA
ANIMATION
2D-3D GRAPHICS
LAN/DTP/CAD
COMMERCIAL APPLICATIONS

Courses

Crash Courses for Professionals

Contact
QUEST INSTITUTE OF ADVANCED COMPUTING
Suite- 2A, 12A Camac St
Cal - 17 Ph 242-1134

We take your international career as seriously as you do.

Conducted by - Trade-wings
INSTITUTE • OF • MANAGEMENT

DIPLOMA IN

- Magnum Diploma 3-In-1
- International Airline
- Travel, Tourism & Hotel Management

ASTA American Society of Travel Agents

TRAVEL INSTITUTE OF THE PACIFIC HAWAII

Calcutta

Esplanade 1 Crooked Lane Room No 108 1st floor behind Great Eastern Hotel Cal 69 Ph 243 0625 Fax 91 33 2487825

Garlahat 1B Kumudini Apts 1 1 Dover Lane Calcutta-29 Ph 76 772 ' 440-6356

